Reagan snags large victory, as Reps. gain across country

By RICH ZEIGER
Layout Editor
and JAMI STRAUSS
Staff Writer

Former actor, Ronald Reagan, will have the opportunity to perform in the greatest role of his career. Reagan swept to the Governorship with a margin of over 800,000 votes. Incumbent Governor Edmund G. Brown conceded defeat at 10:14 yesterday evening only two and one half hours after the NBC network had reported Reagan was to be the victor. This occurred fifteen minutes before the polls had closed. Only seven out of twenty-eight thousand precincts had reported.

Brown who has served in California government for twenty-three years, pledged in his concession speech, "to continue the battle for liberal ideas regardless of Reagan's victory."

Reagan, speaking before supporters who jubilantly waved a banner proclaiming "Reagan for President," stated that this November 8 is the day we restored the two party system. He continued with a reminder that "We didn't achieve any narrow partisan victory this time. We had many good friends from the other party and independents."

Reagan also renewed his pledge to have a government of the people of California--"Partisanship ends as of today."

NATIONAL TREND

One of the later UPI counts showed the net change in the Senate was a gain of three seats by the GOP. One of the gains came in Illinois where incumbent, Paul Douglas, lost to Charles Percy.

The Senate also has its first Negro member since the reconstruction. Edward Brooke has defeated the former governor Endicott Peabody, who represented one of the oldest families in Massachusetts politics.

In Oregon, backer of presidential policy, Robert Duncan, has been defeated by Republican governor Mark Hatfield, who opposes the administration on the war.

The Republicans have an apparent gain of six governorships--including Nelson Rockefeller of New York, George Romney of Michigan, Don Samuelson of Idaho and Claude Kirk of Florida.

In the south, Republican Howard Callaway took a slight lead over segregationist Democrat, Lester Maddox, after trailing most of the night.

However, Mrs. Lurleen Wallace defeated a Republican to succeed her husband, George, as Alabama Governor, if this can really be considered a Democratic victory.

These victories for the Republican Party can be seen as part of a trend toward several things. First, at least some sort of white-backlash has materialized, as evidenced by Reagan's overwhelming victory. Also the nation has expressed, through its defeat of incumbent Democrats, such as Douglas and Duncan, that they are not completely satisfied with the President's policy in Vietnam.

This dissatisfaction was also demonstrated in the change in the totals of the new House of Representatives which saw a gain of 45 seats for the GOP and also in the gubernatorial races which saw the Republicans take seven and possibly eight positions away from the Democrats.

Leg Council recommends pass-fail system increase

By TERRY OLESON
Staff Writer

In order to broaden the pass-fail procedure, Leg Council approved a recommendation that the current passed-not passed system be modified to allow a student to take from .5 to 5 units per quarter under pass-fail.

Voted on in Leg Council's Monday night meeting, this recommendation will be sent to the Academic Senate and the Student Affairs Committee for further consideration.

Cheryl Howard, IV League Rep, spoke in favor of this proposal, introduced by herself, stating that under the present system, if someone wants to take a gym class or some other small unit course on pass-fail all their pass-fail credit goes towards this one class.

Council also moved to establish an Ad Hoc Committee to evaluate the positions of Executive Director of the Associated Students and Director of the UCen, and their relation to the Associated Students.

Both offices are now held by one man, Mr. Robert Lorden, the dual nature of this position being the source of criticism from a recent EL GAUCHO editorial.

Greg Stamos, Executive Vice President, opened discussion on this measure by stating "I think there was some misinformation stated in the EL GAUCHO article and we owe it to Mr. Lorden to clear this matter up."

"We don't need an Ad Hoc Committee," asserted Paul Bellin, Independent Rep, "it should be sent to Personnel Committee."

Countering this remark, John Caverhill, Rep-at-large, declared, "I have some questions about this matter and I want to know the answers."

EDITORIAL REPORT

Draft Dodgers . . .
Emigrate to Canada

An estimated 2,000 Americans wishing to avoid the draft have moved to Canada within the past two years, and Selective Service director Lt. General Louis Hershey isn't worried.

In Canada U.S. draft laws do not apply and that nation itself does not have a draft. The Canadian press, policy, civil and university administrators solidly endorse the right of U.S. citizens to avert conscription, and Hershey sees no reason "to get your blood pressure up when you have a few hundred draft dodgers amidst 30 million draft registrants," according to the Collegiate Press Service.

Draft dodgers who do migrate to Canada can never again return to the United States because they face a $10,000 fine and 5 years in jail. A long-standing agreement the United States and Canadian governments prevents extradition.

People who move to Canada have weighed the alternative methods of avoiding the draft, pacifism or conscientious objection. One expatriot quoted by CPS stated "I wouldn't take C.O. status because it's demeaning. I have no intention of cooperating with the military system in any way."

Aspokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police explained that the draft status of immigrants is not a matter of Canadian concern.

A Toronto newspaper recently editorialized "The granting of political asylum is an accepted principle in all civilized countries. Canada cannot decently breach this principle."

Admissions Director E.M. Davidson at the University of Toronto says that the draft status of American applicants is not a factor in admission to the school. "We admit exclusively on academic and behavioral grounds."

There are several Canadian organizations which actively assist expatriots. The Student Union for Peace Action with headquarters in Toronto at 659 Spadina St. publishes an informative 15-cent pamphlet called "Coming to Canada?" for Americans concerned about the possibility of being conscripted. The document includes information on deportation, extradition, customs and landed immigrant status which is necessary to Canadian citizenship.

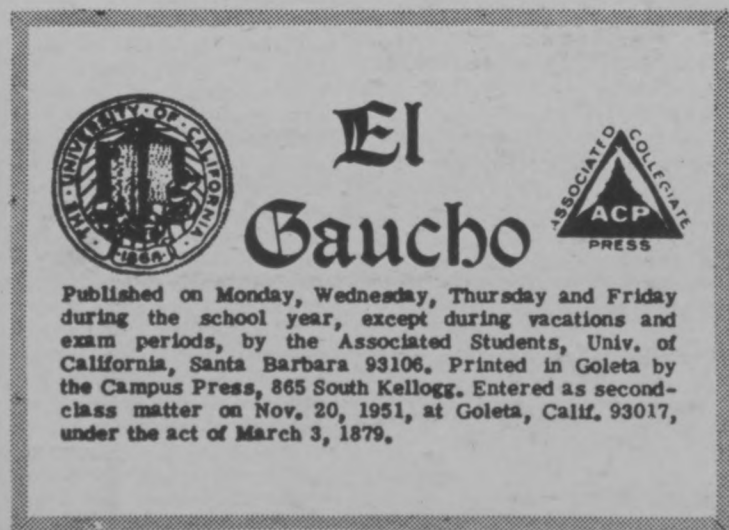

The organization reports that it receives about 50 requests a week and the number is growing.

Another aiding organization is the Fellowship for Reconciliation, a small Christian pacifist group.

The U.S. Vice-Consul in Toronto says he isn't worried about this sort of aid. Nicholas Volk states "It's none of our concern. We feel it's a matter for the Canadian government. We are guests here."

General Hershey contends that the very thing that Americans are leaving the United States to avoid, conscription, keeps protects Canada and it draft free. "As long as you've got a big brother around you don't have to learn how to box."

SIXTH COLUMN
'Coercion' examined

By TIBOR R. MACHAN

Whenever I enter into a discussion concerning the justification of coercion in societal and governmental issues, certain pat answers and issues arise. A brief glance at these will be of value at this time so that we may compare the way they justify coercion with the extent to which coercion has actually permeated our lives.

First of all, I want to distinguish two types of coercion. One is the sort that is performed in the act of crime-prevention or the apprehension of criminals, i.e., coercion that is essentially reactive. The second type is the one with which I am concerned. The paradigm case of coercion here is that of a hold-up man who makes one give up his personal property at the point of a gun, i.e., at the threat of one's health or life.

Since I have for some time argued that a completely free society, in which the government does nothing more than to protect individuals from harm done unto them either by their fellow citizens or by organized outside forces, is not only desirable and moral but is in fact a possible societal existence.

I have usually met with dire opposition from two camps. The first camp objects to my views on the grounds that certain people in such a society would suffer from the fact that (a) they are helpless through no fault of their own, and (b) no one would come to their aid. The second objects on the grounds that people do not know what is good for them, and unless there is some guidance built into the legal system of our system - in the form of anti-gambling, zoning, anti-pornography, and anti-perversion laws - the society will turn morally chaotic.

The objections members of the first group raise some always to be based on those rare but very serious cases of people not having a family background wherein enough material wealth exists so that one may gain a fairly solid material background for tackling with the world on his own when the time comes.

The second group brings up similar situations but with one major difference: here the unfortunate people fail to receive the proper moral background so as to assure them a healthy spiritual base for their individual activities in later life. Also, unless the misguided (gamblers, prostitutes, narcotics, Communists, etc.) are not punished or dealt with harshly by the law (whether they hurt anyone besides themselves or not), our civilization is surely going to crumble, claims this view.

Now I would be the last to argue that any society, free or not, can guarantee perfect safety for all of its members, be it in regards to material welfare or spiritual health.

Of course if we look at the matter closely we can see that what originally started out to be sincere concern for the truly unfortunate has usually permitted the existence of coercive measures in our society which have nothing to do with the unfortunate in body or spirit.

Certainly it would be absurd to say that our space program, our government's thousands of money grants for research, anti-trust laws, subsidies, arts and science foundations, museums and concerts, eminent domain procedures, etc., etc. are designed to do nothing more than to eliminate the one problem of a purely free society, namely the elimination of the plight of the truly unfortunate. Similarly, the hundreds of laws that attempt to curb freedom of action in one's private associations and beliefs (or intellectual practices), laws such as those discussed by Hugh Hefner of Playboy, laws that must constantly be fought in local, state and national communities in order to get some very good novels on the free market, and censorship laws in general cannot be said to serve the sole need of assuring the goodness of a few homeless children without proper upbringing.

The escalation of coercive laws usually starts from that initial heart-breaking moral plea for compassion for the unfortunate. Only, of course, it does not stop there at all. It would not, under these circumstances, be inappropriate to consider the pleas themselves somewhat out of line with reality - perhaps even insincere.

LETTERS
Orange County-

To the editor:

I can't understand why all our ultra-conservative neighbors in Orange County and environs are so concerned about the nasty influences to which their children are supposedly exposed to at the University of California. It is obvious from the Reagan victory in our UCSB straw vote that these suburban patriots have nothing to fear.

Their sons and daughters apparently have been very well grounded in the political mythology of their parents.

Hopefully, the good people of the Disneyland area will notice this, and at least not cast a negative vote on Proposition Two. Although a University degree may not be needed for its educational value, it is, after all, a prerequisite if their offspring are also to take their own places in the corporate world of suburbia.

This kind of analysis of self-interest may be too much to expect, however, from those living in the vicinity of Fantasyland.

Bike rules a vandalism plea?

To the editor:

We are again being warned that the bike riding and parking rules will be enforced. This tired story is still being spread by the Administration thru the pages of EL GAUCHO. It is about time that the Administration realizes that few people obey the bike rules because they are a complete farce. After the twentieth time no one could be expected to believe the announcement of a crackdown. Besides, this campus seems to have gotten along for at least a year and a half without these rules so what is the big rush to enforce them now?

Turnstiles have been installed in the trailer area. A fence across the path would make an effective no bike area, the first one on campus. This seems to be one way to enforce the rules. But one must remember that the traffic kiosks, symbolizing the entire auto parking mess, have been destroyed as a reaction against parking policies.

It is quite possible to imagine that the turnstiles will bear the same sign that the kiosks have always implicitly had, Please Vandalize Me. No one should be very surprised if they are destroyed before the year is over.

During these first weeks of school I have been horrified to note the great, and increasing, number of FLIES on the UCSB campus, especially in the classrooms. I counted 25 in one room, or about one for every two students.

This cannot continue without grave consequences. I suggest nothing less than an all-out campaign of murder directed at these monstrosities of the animal kingdom.

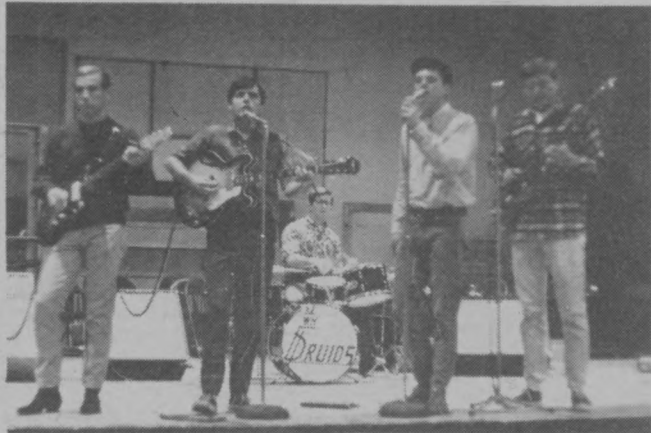

I must request that you withhold my name from publication, for if the FLIES should ever discover my identity....

Hosho No 'Sumidagawa' -- Japanese tradition

By ANN SHAFFRATH
Staff Reviewer

Last Friday evening, Nov. 4, the Hosho No Troupe of Jaan presented in Campbell Hall some of the first No drama to be seen on the American stage. Fusao Hosho (the head of the company) can trace, as can most of the actors, his ancestry far into the history of the traditional No theatre.

The troupe presented, "Sumidagawa," a play which consists of 13 parts. Unlike American theatre these are neither breaks nor acts, but segments presented in a continuous sequence. Applause is held until the very end, no curtain is used (the props are already on stage), not any intermission.

STAGE MOVEMENT

The simple story moved slowly and in great detail, while all stage movement was precise and formal. Once an actor came onto the stage he did not leave but remained upstage. Basically movement did not play a significant role. Actors delivered their long monologues from upstage right and faded to the side. The walking was slow, deliberate, and sustained, as were the scanty gestures.

Included on stage, at all times were the musicians, two drummers and a flutist, as well as the singers, or rather, "chanters." Though they squatted in the middle of the stage they were virtually non-existent and stone-like, except for the diminished action needed to play the instruments. Even this minute movement was calculated, precise, and graceful.

CHROMATIC SCALE

The oriental music had an unusual effect on the Americans who are not used to the chromatic scale. The flute and drum combination produced a shrill piercing but accented accompaniment.

The drum players, between characters and as an introduction produced low animal-like wailings. This tone was exaggerated in length and pitch. It was almost continual. The noise probably created tension in the audience which detracted from their concentration on the play.

Not only did the musicians wall, but also the actors. The entire performance was in a low raspy and eerie chant. Even the woman droned in a low baritone voice.

The music as the entire play, was traditionally sedate. The play was extremely formal and deliberate. It was similar to watching a film in slow motion with 78 sound track at 33 1/3.

The entire play was fascinating, a compelling representation of Japanese tradition and culture. The Hosho No Troupe will be continuing on their U.S. tour for several more weeks.

George-sitar and face fur?

Beatle George Harrison has sprouted a mustache, a dark, droopy creation parted in the middle. It made its first public appearance yesterday at London airport, where George was meeting Ravi Shankar, India's virtuoso of the sitar. The photographers didn't recognize George.

George is learning to play the sitar. He recently spent five weeks in Bombay studying with Shankar, who came to London to teach him more to make the music for a BBC television production of Alice in Wonderland.

Slough transformation into rec. lake seen

(from the Santa Barbara News-Press-Oct. 16, 1966)

Visions of transforming the Goleta Slough on the Municipal Airport into a recreational lake passed before the public again recently, this time at a flood control meeting.

This particular variation of an old theme of "what to do" with the slough, aside from leaving it alone, is attributed to Mayor Don MacGillivray. It had never been "officialized" by such bodies as the Planning Commission or the City Council.

Privately, some authorities have said they don't like the idea of a flock of speed boats roaring up and down the lagoon, with or without water skiers, so close to the university campus. The airport makes enough noise, these people have maintained. But the mayor, a water skiing enthusiast, has frequently cited a need for expanded recreational facilities generally.

The closest the city came to specifically adopting the lake plan as being official was early in 1965 when the council approved an airport layout, devoted almost entirely to projected runway expansions or improvements. On the map was a lake and on the lake was a legend, "Existing Swamp Land--Proposed Recreational Lake," but few persons paid much attention to it.

Later in the same year, the Planning Department completed a zoning and land use study of the airport property, one not yet adopted. This plan had one word on the slough area -- "recreational." Planning Director Bruce Thompson says that designation, "It could have been 'most anything, a lake or a golf course or something else.'" Thompson said there is no adopted master plan for the airport.

DREDGING PLANS

Last Aug. 30, the mayor pressed for attention to the project by the Corps of Engineers. In a letter to the corps, he said, "This is to advise you that the City of Santa Barbara intends to dredge those marginal lands in the lower portion of Los Carneros and Tecolotito Creeks across that portion of Santa Barbara Airport southwesterly of our runways and as shown on the aerial photo recently sent to your office by our Public Works Department.

"By this dredging, we propose to create a recreational lake area. No plan of financing this project has been established yet, but in my opinion this project could be started within the next three years.

The proposed lake, 4,800 feet long and covering 140 acres, or some 15 per cent of the airport lands, was referred to when the Corps of Engineers on Oct. 5 held a public hearing on its proposed $14,300,000 flood control project on various creeks in the Goleta Valley.

Public Works Director R.D. Hogle said he was advised that the corps would make a contribution toward the lake project, to the extent of dredging a drainage channel passing through it. He said the Division of Highways may remove a considerable cubic yardage of muck from the slough area when it constructs the Ward Memorial Boulevard extension in the vicinity.

'State of art' in highway safety is as yet fuzzy

Design the highways for the drunks.

Invent a breath-lock so that if a driver gets behind the wheel of his car smelling of liquor, the car will not run.

Way out? Maybe. But they are some of the ideas a team of researchers found during the last nine months as they staged a worldwide inquiry into the "state of the art" in highway safety.

The research team, employed by Arthur D. Little, Inc., was put to work under a $100,000 "no-strings" grant from the Automotive Manufacturer Assn. The object: to find out what is now known and needs to be known about traffic safety.

After studying 2,000 research reports, interviewing automobile manufacturers, state officials, and even foreign experts, the team came to the conclusion that research to date has been this, and results fuzzy.

The study turned up generalities such as "more Americans (Continued on p. 5, col. 4)

SHELLY MANNE, PAUL HORN AND THE UCSB JAZZ FORUM

Jazz Forum will bring out big names

UCSB's Second Annual Jazz Forum will take place Friday, Nov. 18 in Campbell Hall. Performers this year will be the jazz musicians Shelly Manne and his Men and the Paul Horn Quintet.

Paul Horn has recently released his albums, "Monday Monday," "Satisfaction," and "Jazz Suite on the Mass." He is one of the nations leading jazz flutists. In addition to the flute he plays the sax, clarinet, and all the reed instruments.

Horn has appeared recently on the Tony Bennett Special and he appeared last week at Shelly's Manne Hole in Hollywood. Paul Horn's group includes Lynn Blessing on the vibes, Bill Goodwin on the drums, Mick Lang on the piano, Bill Plummer on bass and Horn on the flute.

Shelly Manne's most recent album is "Boss Sounds--Shelly Manne and his Men at the Manne Hole." This group includes Frank Strozier, alto sax, Conte Cangoli on the trumpet and flugal horn, Russ Freeman on the piano and Monty Budwig on the bass.

Each group will perform for 45 minutes thereby bringing each show to a full hour and a half. Shows will be at 7:30 and 9:30. The Forum is sponsored by the Senior Class as a fund raising project for graduation. Tickets are $1.50 at the AS Cashier or $2 at the door.

ROTC honors presented

Fourteen seniors in the Reserve Officer Training Corps have received the Distinguished Military Student Award during an ROTC program on campus.

In another ceremony, Jack Slayton was commissioned a second lieutenant in the regular Army. He left immediately for Fort Ord.

Col George C. Dewey, professor of military science and head of the department at UCSB, awarded to Maj. John E. Prosser the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal for service in Vietnam.

The citation from President Johnson commends Prosser "for distinguishing himself with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam."

The 14 who received their Distinguished Students Awards from Chancellor Vernon L.

Experimental films, anyone?

The AS Arts Commission is presenting the first public showing of experimental films at UCSB on Wednesday, Nov. 16 in Chem 1179.

The award winning films to be shown are: "Woton's Wake," "A Chairy Tale," "21-87," "Below The Fruited Plain," "Begone Dull Care," "A Movie," "We Shall March Again," "Research," "Lapis" and "Logos."

There will be showings at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Admission is 50¢. Students are encouraged to come early as this is an event no one will want to miss.

Highway safety

are killed on rural highways than in cities," and specifics such as the fact that in 1964 a total of 48,900 men died on the road--but only 8,600 women.

"None of these statistics expresses adequately the human significance of the motor vehicle accident," the report said. "In the 20th century far more Americans have died in automobiles than wars."

Perhaps more startling than the facts discovered were the "facts" that don't exist. For instance: Do the highway safety campaigns, the signs along the road and the television commercials, help cut the accident toll? The report states, "the limited information available suggests that it (safety propaganda) is not particularly effective."

Should licenses be denied to drug addicts? Common sense might tell you "yes" but the investigators report "one study indicates that drug addicts may have a lower accident risk than the normal population..."

Despite what the public might think, one Australian study shows that traffic lights "unless properly designed" can do more harm than good.

Of all the areas covered, the study said, the most unanimity appeared in studying excessive drinking. Drinking is "associated with" more than half the motor vehicle fatalities in U.S. urban areas and quite possibly in rural areas, too, the report said.

"The frequency with which intoxication is found among victims of traffic accidents is so great that all areas of safety engineering such as road design, must deal with the question, 'How will the drunk react,' the report also said.

"No clear-cut direct approach to controlling the extent of driving after excessive drinking is yet evident," the report added.

"The regulatory control of drinking and driving in the United States is rather lax and the social climate does not seem to favor more stringent control, the researchers said.

Coach's kid makes good

Fully recovered from a first-quarter hip pointer suffered in the Cal Poly game last weekend, frosh quarterback Jimmy Curtice will be ready for action when the yearlings conclude their season against San Fernando Valley State Friday. Curtice, who is nowhere near the freshman records set by Mike Hitchman two years ago, has nonetheless completed 55% of his passes, 46 for 83, for 479 yards. He has also added 101 yards rushing on the option, and according to Gorrie is "a fine runner." His passing, though, has helped the Gauchos to four wins in five outings, running the three-year frosh record to 15-2 with a game left. "Curtice throws very accurately and will really help in the future," Gorrie noted. Ironically, it was reserve quarterback Paul Crouse who came off the bench when Jimmy was injured last week to pace the lopsided victory. Crouse hit on six of ten attempts for 139 yards (23 yards per completion) and three touchdowns.

Receivers catch weekly awards

BALL HAWKS--Offensive and Jim Priest (left) and flanker Paul Vallerga (right) share this week's Lambda Chi Alpha awards. Priest, who made several spectacular grabs, caught seven Hitchman aerials for 106 yards, while Vallerga snagged four 81 yards and went the entire 60 minutes against the Broncos. Flanking the two Gauchos are Bill Kringle, fraternity representative, and songleader Wendy Schmitz.

Cage practice continues season three weeks away

With but three short weeks to go before his season's opener against Cal Poly (SLO) varsity basketball coach Ralph Barkey will turn the stress from offense to defense this week as he attempts to ready his men for the upcoming 1966-67 campaign.

Barkey pointed out that the development of a fast break was a main objective in the first 2 1/2 weeks of practice.

"We've been practicing since the 15th of October, during which time we've stressed our offense and break. It'll be an integral part of our offense. We run basically a patterned attack, but with a somewhat faster tempo this year than in the past. This year everyone, including the center position, will run more."

With just the rest of November remaining before the San Luis game, UCSB's new coach will shift his stress in practice to defense.

"Our first two weeks were definitely offense and fast break. We now enter a phase where the emphasis will be on defense, trying to develop a sound man-on-man coverage."

Barkey, who is making his debut as head coach, has a young team. His only seniors are Dick Kolberg (6'0") forward, Pat Grant (5'11") guard, and Howie Demmelmaier (6'0), guard. All three would be starters if the Gauchos were to open the season tomorrow, and Grant and Demmelmaier will be keys to Barkey's fast-breaking offense.

Center Charlie Hess (6'3") and forward Marlin Roehl (6'4") round out the Gauchos' pre-season starting five. Joining juniors Hess and Roehl are John Hiles, Ken Plass, a JC transfer from Monterrey, Breck Mac Laren, a transfer from College of San Mateo, and Al Bennett, who red-shirted last year.

Seven sophomores have reported to practice--Jim Finerty, Dough Franklin, Andy Clark, Bart Beckman, and John Norman, guards; and Steve Rippe and Leroy Jackson, forwards. Franklin, second-leading scorer on the frosh last year with a 15.5 average, has switched to guard after playing forward a year ago. The 6'4" sophomore has made what Barkey terms "a fine transition" to the new position.

With the WCAC season looming in the distance, Barkey speculated on who the top teams might be. "On paper Pacific figures to be better than last year. Santa Clara will be considerably stronger, and Pepperdine, with five strong JC transfers from the midwest will be a real sleeper."

SUCH A DEAL--Tonight Homecoming Week kicks off with Galloping Gaucho Review, which will include seven skits and Cal Club's famous song "Young Clark Kerr."

GGR bigger and better than ever!

The draft, burning issue of the '60's, is so all-pervasive that not even Galloping Gaucho Revue, the biggest escape clause of the fall quarter, could avoid it.

"If Women Were Drafted" will be the subject of the Delta Zeta skit in the Revue, tonight through Friday at 8:30 p.m. in Campbell Hall.

Greeks dominate the show, with six of the seven skits: Chi Omega, "No Strings Attached"; Kappa Sigma, "The Mating Game"; Phi Kappa Psi, "There's No Classes Like Psych Classes"; Sigma Kappa, "Showdown at Mother's Galley"; and Sigma Phi Epsilon and Pi Beta Phi, "Paradise Lost or Pandora's Box $2.98."

Napa and Bahia combine for the only campus dorm skit, "The Unoriginal Amateur Hour."

California Club members will present their traditional opening song, "Young Clark Kerr," in the revue, staged this year by student director Susan Hughes and Gaucho Band director Hal Brendle.

Wayne Smith, master of ceremonies, will introduce the skits and specialty acts. Between-skit acts include the Four Chords, folk singers Marilyn Randolph and Kally McMurray, and a barbershop quartet.

A madrigal group, "The Torches," will do a takeoff on various aspects of UCSB life in "Let There Be Light."

Homecoming queen will be announced at the performance tonight and she and her court will also be presented tomorrow and Friday.

Trophies for the skit competition will be awarded Friday.

Tickets, $1 for tonight and tomorrow, and $1.50 for Friday, can be purchased at the AS Cashiers Office at the UCen, and for $1.50 at the door.

Sign-ups for vacated chairmanship open

accepted by Leg Council for both Doug Glaeser, Community Aid Board Chairman, and Hal Steinberg, RHA Rep.

Glaeser resigned because he felt that Leg Council's decision on the controversial Proposal #14 was contradictory with the By-Laws of the AS Constitution.

Steinberg gave up his position for academic reasons.

Both Judy Frost, Government Affairs Board Chairman, and Gary Horn, UCen Program Board Chairman, withdrew their resignations of last week. President Jay Jeffcoat announced that sign-ups for the now vacant positions of RHA Rep and CAB Chairman will be open until Thursday.
