Executive Director Is Hired Amid Protests

Staff Members Say Nash Too Harsh

By Steven Elzer

Assistant Campus Editor

Associated Students Legislative Council has approved the full-time appointment of interim Executive Director Marguerite Nash, despite last-minute objections from A.S. staff employees.

Nash's employment must still be finalized by UCSB Affirmative Action Officer Raymond Huerta, who ensures that affirmative action employment laws are followed. Huerta would not comment on Nash's appointment or his role in confirming her selection.

The student approval, given during a closed executive session at the last council meeting of Winter Quarter, sparked controversy because only 12 of 19 council members were present for the discussion. Staff employees have raised questions about the selection process because they think they were inadequately solicited for input.

Members of the staff, composed of secretaries and other paid employees, would only speak to the Daily Nexus on condition of anonymity, citing concerns that their views might be used against them.

Staff members were not consulted about the job search until the day of the selection. At that time, a staff representative was chosen to sit in at the Leg Council meeting. "This staff member was not listened to by Legislative Council when they said this is what we need," said one employee.

Status of Football Program Still in Doubt, Officials Say

By Scott Channon

Campus officials were upset Wednesday after the Santa Barbara News-Press reported that UCSB's club football program would return to intercollegiate status next season, calling the claim "premature."

Administrators said no formal decision to pursue Division III status has been made, although Vice Chancellor of Student and Community Affairs Ed Birch and Athletic Director Ken Droscher did say an announcement will be made by Wednesday.

The News-Press cited anonymous

"sources close to the scene."

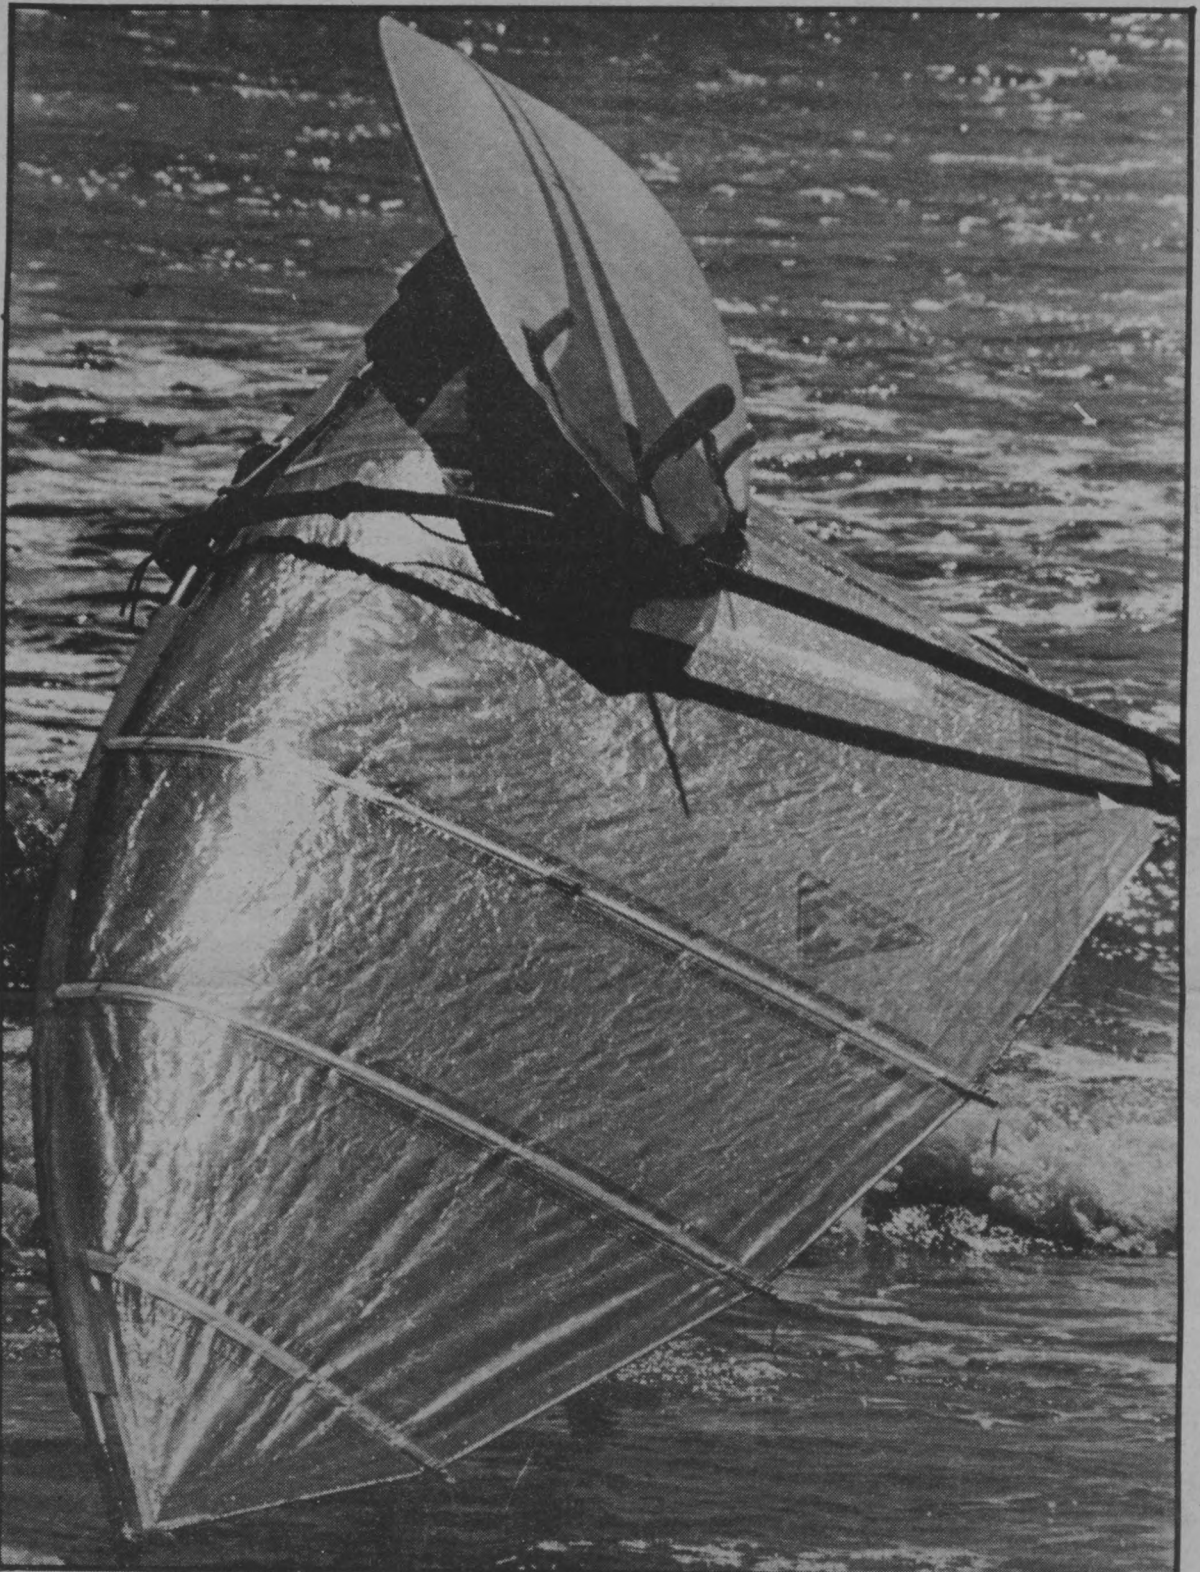

"There's no way the source could know that because the chancellor hasn't seen the data yet," Birch said.

Chancellor Robert Huttenback must give final approval before the team can reach intercollegiate status.

Although he was admittedly surprised to see the article, football Coach Mike Warren said Wednesday that he has "reason to believe that we will be intercollegiate next year."

"Let's celebrate the good news that Gaucho (intercollegiate) football is back," said Warren, a

Rochdale Co-op to Return Buildings to Owner

By Amy Siegel
Contributing Editor

The Rochdale Housing Project Board of Directors decided last week to relinquish control of five large co-op buildings to owner Hal Rosen in June, avoiding an expected court battle over the properties.

Rosen filed suit against the co-op in late February to end his leasing contract with the project because of alleged mismanagement of his buildings, which include the La Loma and the Cedarwood apartments. Rosen first complained of mismanagement in early December.

When Rosen regains control over the five complexes, Rochdale membership will drop from almost 500 members to between 50 and 60 members, an 80 percent decrease. The co-op will consist of four duplexes and possibly two small buildings that board members are trying to lease for next year.

"This is actually the most attractive settlement we were able to get," said Dave Kearney-Brown, Rochdale president. "One of the considerations was that we stood to lose a lot more if we lost the case."

"We did have a strong case. In no way are we admitting that any of the allegations in the suit are true," he said.

Rochdale attorney Lorenzo Campbell was unable to assure board members that the co-op would win the court battle with Rosen, Kearney-Brown added.

"I don't think we're out of the dark yet," board member John Judin said, explaining that the two parties have not yet agreed on the exact date the buildings will be turned over to Rosen. The settlement stipulates that Rosen will receive control June 14, but current residents' leases state that they have until June 15 to vacate, thus creating a discrepancy, Judin said.

Rosen believes the co-op board was wise to settle out of court. "I was only interested in getting my buildings back," he said, adding that he was willing to "go all the way" to regain management of his five buildings.

"Sure I'm happy. I'm only happy to the point where I'm not spending any more money on attorneys. We would have had to go the whole way, I wasn't going to give up," Rosen said.

According to the settlement, both parties waive all legal claims and Rosen cannot refile his suit against the co-op, which has been dropped. Rochdale must also reimburse Rosen $4,800 for outstanding maintenance charges due him, Kearney-Brown said. Both parties will pay their own attorney fees.

Rochdale presently has a $42,000 security deposit

Bomb Explodes on TWA Jet Bound for Athens Airport

ATHENS, GREECE — Two Californians were among those injured Wednesday when a luggage bomb exploded on a TWA Boeing 727 flying at 11,000 feet over southern Greece. Four people were believed to be killed.

"It sounded like there was an explosion right outside the window. I was hit by dozens of fragments of flying glass," Myrtle Simpson, 70, of Los Angeles said at Voula Hospital near Athens Airport. Her husband, Henry, 70, also was injured.

An American, two women and a child died when they were blasted out of the plane, officials said. Another man was reported missing. The jet, Flight 840 from Rome to Athens, landed safely after the blast.

Flight 840 originated on a Boeing 747 in Los Angeles Tuesday morning and stopped in New York before proceeding to Rome, said Anita Clark, a reservations agent in Los Angeles. The flight changed to a 727 in Rome for the flight to Athens and Cairo.

Greek officials said seven people were injured, including at least four Americans. The others injured, in addition to the Simpsons, were James Carlton, 29, an American whose hometown was unknown; Eleni Philips, 63, a Greek-American from Patras, Greece; Despina Siotis, 24, of Athens; Ibrahim al-Nami, 29, a Saudi Arabian; and his wife, Nala, 30.

In New York, however, TWA President Richard D. Pearson put the number of injured at nine. He provided no names but said three remained hospitalized and the rest were treated and released.

Panagiotis Christopoulos, a senior airport security official, identified the dead as Alberto Stino, a Colombian-born American; Dimitra Stylianopoulos, 52, a Greek; her daughter, Maria, 25; and her infant granddaughter.

Christopoulos said Mrs. Stylianopoulos' husband, Andreas was missing.

Bishop Desmond Tutu Calls for Sanctions Against South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA — Bishop Desmond Tutu, risking arrest for treason, said Wednesday that only harsh economic sanctions can force the white government to change its course and avert "a catastrophe in this land."

The black Anglican bishop said he realized he might be prosecuted for making his first direct call for sanctions, but said he did not care because "our children are dying, our land is burning and bleeding."

"I call the international community to apply punitive sanctions against this government to help us establish a new South Africa, non-racial, democratic, participatory and just," he said.

Government reports said most of South Africa's black students returned to class after the Easter recess, heeding a decision of black leaders not to resume a boycott that involved about 200,000 students before it was suspended last year.

Tutu, the bishop of Johannesburg who won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize, did not recommend specific sanctions but said they should be punitive, coordinated and immediate.

He told a news conference international pressure is the only hope for ending the racial policy through which 5 million whites deny rights to the 24 million blacks.

Information Minister Louis Nel said sanctions "would lead to unemployment and misery, would increase polarization and escalate violence in South Africa."

"The South African government will not succumb to pressure ... but will continue along the difficult path of peaceful constitutional development," he said.

Neither Nel nor any other government official to whom the question was put indicated whether legal action would be taken against Tutu. Doing so would be risky because of the intense international criticism South Africa already faces and the great respect Tutu commands.

U.S. Airlines Search for Foolproof Way of Detecting Explosives

WASHINGTON — The federal government tightened baggage checks and passenger screening after the bombing of an Air India plane last summer, but airlines still lack a foolproof way of detecting smuggled explosives and say a search of all bags would cripple air commerce.

The bomb that exploded aboard a Trans World Airlines Boeing 727 Wednesday over Greece was hidden in a bag in the aircraft cabin, TWA officials said. The blast at 11,000 feet is believed to have killed four passengers.

The plane, which landed in Athens, Greece, despite a gaping hole in its side, had taken off from the Rome airport, where aviation security experts say tight baggage screening and anti-terrorist measures were in force.

It's not known whether the bag carrying the explosive was among carry-on luggage or possibly had been planted by someone other than a passenger. A significant deterrent in the past for using carry-on luggage as a way to smuggle a bomb aboard a plane has been that the terrorist would be among the victims.

Yet the fact is that an explosive device eluded what various industry and government security experts described Wednesday as exceedingly tight screening efforts at the Rome airport, which was the scene of a terrorist attack Dec. 22.

"TWA in that part of the world is complying and fully implementing rather extraordinary security measures," said Richard Lally, the top security expert for the Air Transport Association which represents the major airlines.

The FAA expects to spend nearly $12 million on explosives detection research this year.

Official Denies that U.S. Will Try to Pressure Saudis on Oil Curbs

WASHINGTON — A senior Reagan administration official on Wednesday sought to dispel the notion that Vice President George Bush's mission to the Middle East will be one of "beating up on the Saudis" to achieve oil production curbs.

The United States has no intentions of pressuring Saudi Arabia on oil price policy, said the official, who agreed to be interviewed on condition of anonymity.

"We believe in the free market," the official said.

Oil prices in the United States and Europe rallied after Bush said Tuesday that he will tell the Saudi government during his upcoming visit that plunging oil prices are hurting the U.S. oil industry.

The senior official said that Bush's remarks at a news conference may have been misconstrued in energy markets, and that the vice president had just been trying to point out both good and bad sides of plunging oil prices.

"I don't think there is anything in that appearance of his that would lead one to believe he is being sent there on a mission to work with the Saudis to put a floor under oil prices or anything like that," said the official.

Bush will arrive in Saudi Arabia on Saturday. The official also said that while buying large quantities of oil from Mexico to help ease its debt crisis might be considered in the future, it is not part of any current rescue package.

Testimony Halted in Espionage Trial Due to Letters Sent to Jurors

SAN FRANCISCO — Jurors in the Jerry Whitworth spy trial notified the judge Wednesday they had received letters from a newspaper reporter declaring this was "a historical trial" and seeking post-trial interviews with them.

U.S. District Judge John Vukasin said the action came "dangerously close to attempting to influence the jury," and delayed testimony in the trial while he conferred in his chambers with defense lawyers and prosecutors.

Contacting jurors during a trial is always forbidden and attempts to influence them can be grounds for a mistrial. Although Vukasin did not raise the possibility of mistrial in open court on Wednesday.

Although Vukasin did not reveal the identity of the reporter in court, Steve Wright, covering the trial for the San Jose Mercury News, said outside court that he wrote the letters and sent them to jurors.

He said he thought there was nothing improper about it.

Whitworth, 46, a retired Navy radioman, is charged with selling secrets to the Soviet Union for $332,000 in an espionage conspiracy involving the notorious Walker family spy ring. His trial is in its second week.

Vukasin, who announced the incident involving the letters, said he concluded the reporter's action was "highly improper," but probably not illegal.

UC Officials Consider Moving Headquarters Out of Berkeley

BERKELEY — University of California officials are considering moving the headquarters of the state-wide system out of Berkeley, where the offices have been located since UC's founding in 1868.

"It hasn't gone to the regents yet, but it's safe to say we're seriously considering the move," university spokesman Ron Kolb said on Tuesday.

Kolb said UC President David Gardner's office had held "informal discussions" with developers and officials in Oakland, Emeryville and Alameda about building a 300,000-square-foot office building and relocating 1,350 employees.

"We're preparing to solicit formal development proposals and I expect it will go to the regents this year, probably in the fall," said Kolb.

Gardner has complained for years that the system has outgrown its seven-story University Hall headquarters.

Two plans to enlarge or replace the headquarters building have failed to win the support of the regents.

The hall has been the site of recent student demonstrations but university officials said space restrictions are prompting the possible move.

"It's just too crowded," said Kolb. "We're not attempting to escape the protesters. If we move, they would probably just follow."

Migration of Aliens into States Will Hit Record High in '86

LOS ANGELES — A record 92,296 undocumented aliens were seized in March crossing into the United States along Mexico's border with California and Arizona, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service reported Wednesday.

Harold Ezell, western regional commissioner of the INS, said this represented a 23 percent leap over the previous mark, set only last January with 74,480 arrests at the border.

"It appears that we are in for another record year for the fourth consecutive year," Ezell said in a written statement released by his office in the San Pedro area of Los Angeles.

He said 382,781 aliens had been arrested in the first six months of fiscal 1986, a 42 percent boost over the same period last year, and there probably will be more than 700,000 such arrests this year.

2 Rochdale Board Members Resign; Boyd Forced Off

By Amy Siegel
 Contributing Editor

Two community members on the Rochdale Housing Project Board of Directors resigned and a third was removed from his position in an attempt by the co-op to ensure that community board representatives have expertise in the areas of law, finance, or real estate.

Student members of the board requested the resignation of the three community directors, Patty Bradley, Richard Frost, and Mike Boyd at an open board meeting March 10 to implement a new bylaw change. The revision stipulates that the three non-member directors will be chosen by a panel of three student members and three board members, rather than being elected to serve on the board.

Bradley and Frost willingly resigned while Boyd refused to submit his resignation, which led to his forced removal. "I didn't resign because I felt the (co-op's) members had to be notified before changes in the bylaws could be made. But because I wouldn't change the bylaws, they removed me," Boyd said.

"I can't quit because I'm leaving the members to a pack of wolves. I don't want to desert my responsibilities because I was elected," he added.

According to Boyd, the board must notify members 30 days in advance of changing the bylaws. Boyd contends the co-op board acted illegally by changing the bylaws without the members' input and by removing him because he was an elected official.

"I'm not so hot and bothered about being kicked off the board as I am about the legality of it," he said.

However, according to Board President Dave Kearney-Brown, "it was a consensus of the resident members that all community members step down and apply through the process (of being selected by a six-member panel) that was delineated. He said that co-op members do not have to be notified of bylaw changes before they are made.

"The feeling of the board was that we had representatives who were not qualified. A community board representative was attempting to block that process," Kearney-Brown said, calling the move a positive step to address the problem of unqualified board members.

Community members were originally sought for the board to provide expert business and real estate knowledge and to play an advisory role, he explained.

Board member John Judin said Boyd's allegations that he was removed illegally are false and that Boyd is only trying to salvage his damaged reputation.

Frost, associate director of housing for UCSB, said he thought the board's request for his resignation was a good idea and he plans to reapply for his position. "I felt very good about saying I should submit my resignation.... I have a vested interest in it and the university has a vested interest."

Although Frost resigned, he will remain on the board until a new student director is elected later this month because the board cannot conduct business without at least six members. There are presently only five out of six student members on the nine-person board.

Any director can be removed by the board regardless of whether member input is solicited in advance, Frost added.

Boyd and Bradley are not expected to resubmit applications for the board, according to Kearney-Brown.

 such a big decision," said another staff member.

"It's a shame that the process for selecting a new executive director left staff only to voice their opinion on the last day," A.S. Internal Vice President Todd Smith said. However, Smith said the staff representative was given time at the executive session to express any concerns, and at that time, "the pros outweighed the cons."

"To have not hired her based on statements (from staff members) that had not been brought to her attention before (the selection) would have been an unwise move," Smith said. "There seems to be a problem of communication. These problems should have been brought to the attention of the president before," he said.

Staff members said other candidates, including one minority, were more qualified than Nash.

They pointed to problems with Nash's "management style and personality conflicts between Marguerite and staff," A.S. Office Manager Pat Almon said.

A.S. student officials said the conflicts are reversible and will be settled internally. Nash declined to comment until her appointment is official and cited the confidentiality of personnel matters.

Council member Sharlene Weed defended Nash. "She's a great executive director; she's done a lot for the association. She helped get us out of a really tough place and she's gotten us rolling again. When she came in ... she did things by the book; the way things are supposed to be done.... The staff wasn't used to that and they felt threatened." Several council members continue to support Nash despite staff complaints.

Nash's predecessor, Joan Nordberg, was forced to resign last May by former A.S. President Jim Hickman. Many sources claim that (See DIRECTOR, p.8)

April 4, 1985: The College of Engineering will receive $14 million from the National Science Foundation to establish a center for robotics systems, university officials announced yesterday.

It is the largest research grant ever awarded UCSB. UCSB was singled out from 106 institutions that submitted 142 proposals for the new robotics center.

One of the reasons UCSB competed for the grant is to upgrade the effectiveness of America's scientific work in microelectronics," according to Robert Mehrabian, dean of the College of Engineering. "If UCSB and research institutions like us don't do it, who will?" he said.

April 2, 1981: A 35-year old Santa Barbara man who died March 27 from a fall off South Hall apparently committed suicide, investigators announced yesterday.

Police said there were no signs of a struggle in the sixth-floor room from which the man fell, and that the man had threatened suicide within 24 hours of his death.

The man had no official connection with UCSB, although he often took the bus here and frequented the library, according to police.

April 5, 1971: A $350,000 nuclear reactor is included in a plan to build an Engineering II building during the summer of 1972.

Supporters offer two main reasons for the nuclear reactor: it will be an object of study itself, as students will operate the reactor and study its operation; and it will provide neutrons for experiments and radioisotopes for the campus and community.

A member of the Physical Planning Committee objected to the inclusion of the reactor in the building plans. "Although I don't have any evidence that the nuclear reactor itself wouldn't be safe, I feel the money could be spent elsewhere, benefitting the entire campus rather than a few engineering students," she said.

A nuclear engineering professor said, "This particular reactor is the world's safest reactor."

Nice Try, Maybe Next Time

Editorial

Some people never learn. With all the problems the Associated Students has gone through since the new officers and council were elected nearly one year ago, one would think that by now these student politicians would work to avoid any more catastrophies. Unfortunately, as of late, the dedication and common sense needed for such work has not been demonstrated by A.S. representatives. It seems they have quickly forgotten the recent past and have gotten themselves into yet another mess.

This latest situation revolves around the selection of the A.S. executive director. Granted, this is no simple task. The process of searching out, interviewing, and eventually hiring a professional to work full-time directing the organization is complicated and exhausting. Though this is clearly a huge responsibility for our student leaders, it is no excuse for their sloppy job.

Student representatives have known since summer that interim Executive Director Marguerite Nash would either need to be hired or replaced within the year. But instead of efficiently and thoroughly completing the selection process over the past nine months, representatives left it to the last minute and tried to pass off a half-done job.

Nice try, but it doesn't work.

The problem is not with whom they chose. What is frustrating and upsetting is that our elected officers could be so unattentive and unprofessional with so important a decision. They tried to do it all themselves, without any input from members of the A.S. staff, whose opinions are vital. And it is the staff — comprised of professionals and students who operate the association — who will continue working with the director after the current representatives are out of office in a few weeks. Their opinions should have been heard. And they are justifiably upset at this lack of consultation, which is considered standard practice.

It seems our officers have forgotten the vital importance of both their executive director and their staff. If they only recalled last spring's activities and the scandal surrounding the incompetence of former Executive Director Joan Nordberg, perhaps the student officers would have thought to devote a little more time and effort to choosing her successor. And they are naive to believe that A.S. staff members who had no say in choosing their new director will keep working if that leader is unwanted or unrespected. Training new staff members along with a new director would be virtually impossible — and a quick way to add further problems to a student government that is still on shaky grounds.

Now is not a good time for spring fever in the A.S. office. Student government representatives must realize their actions are still under scrutiny by a skeptical public. The rush-job in selecting an executive director and the absence of any staff input doesn't look good on an already dirty record. Neither does the fact that only 12 of the 19 council members showed up to vote. Somehow, one would think, our officials should know by now not to act like this. Maybe next time.

The Great Book Ripoff

Peter Most

The slogan glared at me from the back of the bluebook: "Textbooks: A small price to pay for an education." As slogans go, this one isn't bad, but, like most slogans, it is also quite meaningless. While textbooks may provide us with a worthwhile education, the price we pay at the UCSB Bookstore is far from small. Basically, students are presently paying far more than is necessary for their books, a situation which must stop. We should all be concerned with our campus bookstore's continuing policy of providing inadequate service at an inequitable price. It appears that we could buy our books for far less, and, call me an idealist if you like, we should be able to buy them when we need them.

While I am not an economist, it appears students could and should get a better deal than they presently get. As far as I'm concerned full price (and then some) for our books is no deal, nor is there sufficient reason to charge students full retail price. You see, bookstores generally buy books for half the cover price, and then sell them for double what they pay. The built-in difference provides for their nominal

— Luisah Teish

To most of us, the thought of Daddy or Uncle Freddy being sexual with his 7-year-old daughter, niece, or granddaughter is appalling. It is impossible for us to imagine that an adult male would want sex with a child, and we find it inconceivable that such behavior could occur without someone discovering and stopping it. Surely, this sort of perversion only happens in "bad" families, or by mentally ill men, or with seductive girls who provoke such acts. Surely, it doesn't happen in upper/middle-class homes on tree-lined streets, where the family goes to church* or synagogue every week and takes ski vacations together in Colorado. Surely, the president of our bank or the minister of our church or the physician in our clinic would never engage in such a reprehensible act. And surely women who grow up under these circumstances must eventually "crack" and end up in institutions somewhere where they'll get proper psychiatric care. And we all breath a sigh of relief. Thank heaven this sort of thing never happens in our

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I have more respect for Kim Alexander for being so open and up front regarding her involvement in one of Jim Hickman's American Express charges. Although I feel that Kim was lucky that the ad hoc investigation committee overlooked this charge in the first place, Kim was being fair to the students when she circulated a letter attempting to explain her participation.

On the other hand, I am still awaiting an explanation from two other student representatives who dined with Jim Hickman at the students' expense. Jim Hickman is reimbursing A.S. for many A.S. American Express charges that include dinners with Rich Laine and Todd Smith, and these two gentlemen, as student representatives and as recipients of student funds for apparent dining pleasure, owe the students an explanation. I thought this kind of secrecy accompanying the use of my student funds ended with the resignation of Jim Hickman.

expenses and some not-so-nominal profit.

The expenses for most bookstores include advertising and large capital outlay for books which may sit on the shelf for long periods until bought. But we can't equate our campus bookstore with other bookstores because they serve different functions. Unlike other bookstores, ours has it quite easy — which means that the usual pricing scheme should not apply here. Think about it for a moment. The store doesn't have to advertise — it has a built-in clientele of about 20,000, with long lines to prove it. Furthermore, it knows exactly how many books to purchase — the class size, less the ten percent who never buy books. This means that books don't have to languish on the shelves, costing the store money. This also financially benefits the store, but students don't share in any of the benefits.

So, if my charges are true, and it appears self-evident that they are, then one can only conclude that the UCSB Bookstore is either inefficient or overpriced, and neither of these choices pleases me much. Are students being "ripped-off"? Or, to suit all of you economics majors out there, are "super normal" profits being made? Well, I haven't seen their balance sheet, but if excessive profits aren't being made I'd say that they are poor managers to boot. The only other conclusion that one can draw is that our textbooks sales help support the rest of the store. Should we be burdened with that financial responsibility? Please don't get me wrong. I'm a strong believer in ky-clean world.

The depressing truth is that the sexual abuse of children and incest (the sexual abuse of family members) is far more prevalent than many of us realize, most of it committed by adult males against young females. Estimates claim that 25-40 percent of women are molested before the age of 18. That's just one half of the women you know. And 75 percent of the victims know or are related to their abusers. It is an equal opportunity crime — it cuts across all socioeconomic levels and includes all racial groups. It happens to infants, toddlers, children, and adolescents. It usually continued for many years with increasing sexual activity and involvement of siblings. Abusers include men of every occupation and status in the community. Sexual acts may range from "dirty talk" to fondling, masturbation, oral sex, intercourse, and vaginal penetration with various objects. It is not the fault of the victim, who is usually motivated by affectional needs and fear, or curiosity, trickery, and physical/emotional pressure from the abuser. It is rarely detected because of the abuser's overwhelming pressure to keep the ugly secret — a tyranny of silence enshrouded in shame and guilt and perpetuated by terror.

Women who survive childhood molestation often have physical and emotional scars. They may feel shame, guilt, fear, hopelessness, isolation, depression, and anxiety; they often blame themselves for the molestation, particularly if they derived emotional closeness or other positive feelings from it. In relationships, survivors often suffer sexual problems and difficulty with intimacy. They have trouble attracting men, and may experience repeated victimization in relationships with partners who are physically or emotionally abusive. Substance abuse, eating disorders, and suicidal tendencies are not profit motive, though I have a great disdain for the obscene, and I consider taking advantage of students in the present oligopolistic situation quite obscene. Actually, profit motive has done quite a lot here. It keeps the I.V. Bookstore afloat, the David in the bookstore battle which has to be efficient to survive. They are able to provide used books at a fair price. Of course, because of their size, they only plan for the alienated run-off from the UCSB Bookstore — leaving thousands of students between a rock and a hard place. Students don't want to buy books from our campus bookstore and award thievery, but often can't buy books at the I.V. Bookstore because of woefully inadequate supply.

Thankfully, luckily, we have a means to solve this problem. Associated Student Government. No, please, stop laughing a moment and consider the possibilities. It has worked at other universities around the country, which means it can certainly work here. Obviously the UCSB Bookstore lacks motivation to change — when you've got a free ride down easy street why bother? So, we've got to circumvent the cancer. There is no reason an A.S. Bookstore couldn't run an efficient operation for students on a non-profit basis. With successes such as the A.S. Notetaking Service and A.S. Bikestore to follow as role models, it is clear an A.S. Bookstore could work. Of course, the A.S. Bookstore would have to add a surcharge to cover the operation, but it would never have to amount to the exorbitant prices charged now.

uncommon in incest survivors, and many so effectively repress the trauma of their childhood that they do not remember their experiences until well into adulthood. Ironically, it is remembering and sharing the terrible secret that helps survivors heal their emotional wounds. They must externalize their shame, guilt, and confusion, and affirm the responsibility of the abusive adult. They need unconditional support while engaging in this painful process; counseling and survivor support groups are particularly valuable in providing a safe environment in which to explore molestation experiences.

Why does this problem haunt us? Many point to patriarchal familial patterns in molestation cases, observing that there is often a domineering but insecure father and a passive or distant mother, suggesting that the father molests his daughters to exert his power and control. Others blame our sex-role socialization, which teaches men to sexualize their feelings of intimacy and choose women who are vulnerable, innocent, and powerless — like children. Still others point to our societal inability to talk to our children about sexual matters (including unwanted touching), and the importance of educating children about bodily concerns. We all must be supportive of women we know who may be facing incest nightmares from their past. But until we make public, political efforts to eradicate the social structure that perpetuates this horror, incest will continue to lurk within the shadows of our most intimate relationships, destroying the lives of both men and women in its deadly tyranny of silence.

La Migra

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I wonder how many of your readers noticed (or understood) the ad in the movie section appearing in the Tuesday, March 4 edition of the Nexus.

The Spanish language Mission Theater advertised a double feature, one of which was entitled "Nos Reimos de la Migra," which translated means "We Laugh at the U.S. Border Patrol." Migra is a slang term meaning the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in general and the U.S. Border Patrol in particular.

I believe that the ad is the perfect commentary on Peter Most's naive and unrealistic article on "We Really Don't Want Your Tired etc.," which appeared in the same issue.

And it could be efficient. As I envision it, all it would sell is textbooks — so it could concentrate on textbooks. No longer would students arrive at the bookstore to find rows of sweatshirts and beer mugs but none of the books they need.

And we could all sleep easier at night with an A.S. Bookstore. Professors would no longer have to worry that only one-third of the books requested were actually ordered. And students would no longer have to rush to the bookstore to buy the four books that did arrive.

Basically, what we need to create is an atmosphere of competition and animosity. These are bad for personal relationships but work wonders for business. They motivate. I'm not suggesting that the UCSB Bookstore stop selling books. No, let them continue to trod down the overpriced path that they have worn so well. But let the A.S. Bookstore thrive and we'll see changes. Quick.

Hopefully the Associated Student Government — your duly elected representatives — will see the need for such a service. They have come to our aid before and I have faith they'll do it again. And if they don't, well, elections are just around the corner.

So, as you stand in line frustrated by inadequate service and burdened by outrageous prices, take heart. This is not a closed book. We can change the saga of the "Bad News Bookstore" into one with a happy ending by following this simple plan. I'd make book on it.

Sorry Mr. President

William F. Buckley

The president of the United States gave a compelling speech last Sunday. Moreover, it was a speech that, in the judgement of this listener, can truly be termed prophetic. By this is meant that the fate of Central America very likely rests on what happens in Nicaragua, or rather to Nicaragua; the fate of Central America almost certainly will determine the fate of Mexico. And the fate of Mexico can affect the United States directly in ways far more serious than any threatened by Kaiser Wilhelm, Adolf Hitler, Kim Il-sung, or Ho Chi Minh, and we went to war against all four.

But it's precisely those who get the president's message who are dismayed by what he proceeds to ask for. With reluctance one turns to quote from one of his professional critics, but Haynes Johnson of The Washington Post, after a few paragraphs of anti-Reagan push-ups, said it in language for which Mr. Reagan's friends have no answer, facile or strained. Here is what he said:

"Assume, for the sake of argument, that Reagan's analysis about the supposed grave threat from Central America is correct. If so, his proposed remedies, expressed passionately in numerous speeches throughout the five years of his presidency, have been a dismal failure. The threat, at least as he describes it, has grown ever more dangerous. By Reagan's terms, members of Congress should not be debating whether to make a most minor switch of funds in the Defense Department's accounting books. They should be voting on whether to make a most minor switch of funds in the Defense Department's accounting books. They should be voting on whether to blockade Nicaragua, interdict its sea and air lanes and prepare for introduction of U.S. military force to safeguard American citizens and the hemisphere. They ought to be asked to send in the Marines."

Begin with the last point. Mr. Reagan has no appetite to use the Marines in Nicaragua, and neither do the American people. But we are entitled to ask this question, namely: Is the use of the Marines justifiable other than to defend U.S. territory? We did send them to Lebanon not long ago, and the casualty list was a great shock: one kamikaze terrorist, 241 dead. The United States, post Vietnam, is a very different country from the United States that thrilled at the thought of sending Marines to the shores of Tripoli.

But of course it is at this point that the president and the entire country need to give thought to the role of the military. That role is to prevent the need for fighting in one's own country. It is for that reason that we fought in odd places like Pantelleria, before graduating to Italy, and then to Normandy, Paris, and, finally, Berlin.

Now Mr. Reagan's difficulty is that he describes exactly a situation in which the use of American military force is relevant, but draws dogmatically at the use of American force. Note, dogmatically; which is different from the arguments on which he publicly relies. These are the arguments that the contras can do it by themselves. But if we have learned anything from the experience of the past few years it is that the contras can most emphatically not do it on their own. What they can manage on their own is the kind of desultory terror for which Americans have very little appetite. The contras plus 100 million American dollars can hardly be expected to countervail the hundreds of millions of dollars and the advanced weaponry with which the Soviet Union, via Cuba, is nourishing a dictatorship growing every day in sophistication. Expecting the contras to depose Ortega in Nicaragua is on the order of appropriating a hundred million dollars for Alpha 77 and dispatching it to displace Fidel Castro.

I hate to say it, but if I were a congressman I would write a letter to President Reagan and I'd say: "Sorry. Extremely sorry, precisely because I think your analysis of the threat posed is exactly correct. But one Band-Aid isn't going to stop that bloody gusher. You come to Congress, Mr. President, and announce that you are ending all diplomatic relations with Nicaragua, and that the evidence is before you to support a request for a declaration of war. That declaration of war doesn't mean we have to send nuclear weapons to Managua, but it does put it out in the open: The United States, as guarantor against foreign aggression in this hemisphere, isn't going to permit in Nicaragua what we permitted in Cuba. Then let the debate rage. You give us your evidence, and let the people who want to tolerate Ortega as they wanted to tolerate Ho Chi Minh 11,000 miles away present their evidence. That is the time for a decision that accommodates your apocalyptic rhetoric. I should say, your properly apocalyptic rhetoric."

Nordberg mismanaged the association. However, as a result of Nash's appointment to the full-time position, several staff employees threatened to quit, Almon said. Many of them called the campus personnel office for information on other university job positions, she explained.

Prior to the executive session decision, a member of the UCSB personnel department conferred with staff members "about their concern regarding the situation with the executive director. And in the course of the discussion, people mentioned they would seek other positions," said Steve Carlson, personnel employment representative. "It sort of arose out of the frustration they were feeling at the time," he said.

To "buy some time to settle some of the problems" concerning Nash's selection, A.S. President Ken Greenstein considered vetoing the Leg Council decision.

However, Greenstein decided against the veto after further thought and after Nash wrote a letter to council members thanking them for their approval. Her letter also pointed out that the president's "veto power is only to veto legislation ... (and) an appointment is not legislation."

Greenstein has since met with Nash and is currently working to settle staff disputes. He declined to comment further, also citing the confidentiality of personnel issues.

"After looking at the first option (of the veto), we realized that there was a much more diplomatic way ... by having a peaceful dialogue with the staff," Smith said. Nash has spoken with staff about the complaints and council members have met with staff members to confirm the results of these meetings, he said.

Once council has a clear understanding of the problems, policies will be developed to deal with them, Smith said. "Hopefully we will be able to implement these new policies before the new council comes in," he said.

According to Smith, most staff members he met with said the disagreements can be worked out. "If in fact staff members were going to quit because of this, there would be a problem in my mind because they wouldn't have given Marguerite a chance to work out the problems," he said.

Almon maintains that the problems run deeper than this. "Legislative Council seems to think that the staff members were making idle threats of quitting," she explained. "The fact is that some of them had already looked into other job opportunities before the selection was made," she said.

"I think it's unfortunate that A.S. may lose one of the most vital links — that is the staff — who provides stability and continuity in the organization," Almon said.

When Nash was hired on an interim basis last June, A.S. was in the midst of a financial crisis. Since then, she has successfully dealt with a number of problems, Smith said. "Whether she did all the work herself, her being there caused it to get done," he said. One of these successes occurred last month when Nash found over $34,300 in unaccounted Short Term Investment Pool funds that may alleviate some of the association's financial pressures, according to A.S. sources.

In her letter to council members, Nash expressed her belief that many staff complaints arose from the "puritanical management style" she used "in dealing with the financial and administrative legacies of (her) predecessor and of recent presidents." She also expressed her willingness to work out these problems with staff members and any others who had complaints.

According to Almon, this management style was important when Nash was hired; however, the permanent executive director should operate differently. "Marguerite was hired for a specific purpose. We needed somebody who was very strong and authoritative, someone who could get the organization back on its feet," she said.

"(Nash) was brought in for that purpose, she did that job, and she did it very well. But now I feel that the association could use someone that could encourage growth and provide guidance and leadership for every aspect of the association, both students and staff," she said.

"What do they (Legislative Council members) care? They'll be gone in three weeks and the new Legislative Council will have to deal with the problems (caused by staff members leaving)," said one anonymous staff member.

According to Nash's letter, the need for the tough management style she has used is coming to a close. "The end, I am happy to say, is very near at hand because the time for its utility has passed," Nash wrote.

While opposition to Nash does exist, several staff members have either written the executive director or spoken with her commending her performance over the past nine months and congratulating her for her appointment.

"Legislative Council seems to think that the staff members were making idle threats of quitting."

NOMINATIONS BEING ACCEPTED FOR OUTSTANDING GRADUATING SENIORS & GRADUATE STUDENTS

All 1985-1986 Fall, Winter, and Spring Quarter Graduates Are Eligible

Each year the UCSB community recognizes the contributions and achievements of our outstanding graduates by soliciting nominations for three highly esteemed awards.

THE THOMAS MORE STORKE AWARD

One hundred medals, as pictured, were sculptured for UCSB by Francis Minturn Sedgwick, nationally famous sculptor. Each year one medal is awarded to the outstanding graduating senior. The basic criteria for selection are courage, persistence, achievement, leadership, OUTSTANDING SCHOLARSHIP AND EXTRAORDINARY SERVICE.

THE JEREMY D. FRIEDMAN MEMORIAL AWARD

This award is presented annually to a single graduating senior who has demonstrated outstanding leadership and superior scholarship, and who has -- in a particularly innovative or creative way -- contributed significantly to the quality of undergraduate life on the campus. Nominees must have earned a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or higher.

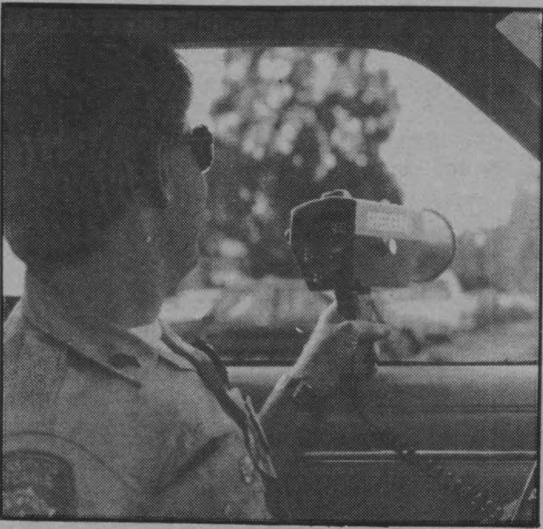

THE UNIVERSITY SERVICE AWARDS

The awards are presented annually to graduating seniors and graduate students who have performed "above and beyond the call of duty" in the giving of service to the University, the student body, and the community. While there is no definite GPA required, the awards are normally given to students whose academic performance is equal to or higher than that of the scholastic average of the graduating class.

Therefore, we are seeking nominations on behalf of graduating seniors and graduate students whom you believe are deserving of recognition and THANKS for the special contribution they have made.

Nomination forms are available at the Activities Planning Center, the Library Lobby, the Dean of Students Office, Residence Hall Trailers, and Community Housing Office, the Student Health Center Lobby, the Graduate Students Association, the Ombudsman's Office and the Counseling and Career Services Information Desk. A nomination form can be mailed to you by calling Eileen O'Mahony, at 961-4569. In advance, thanks for helping us acknowledge the students who have made UCSB a better place to learn, to be and to grow.

NOMINATIONS ARE DUE IN THE ACTIVITIES PLANNING CENTER UCen 3151 or the DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE, Cheadle Hall 1005 ON FRIDAY, APRIL 19 by 5 p.m.

Police Seek to Curb Campus Speeding

By Larry Speer
Staff Writer

Speeding on campus roads and its negative impact on roadway safety have led the Parking and Transportation Committee and campus police to work to persuade motorists to slow down.

Education and awareness are the two aspects of the program committee members hope to communicate to campus drivers, committee member Leslin Boyd said.

"We want our program to make people more aware of the 25-mile-per-hour speed limit. We hope to do this with an informational article and descriptive ads in the Nexus. And following this, increased police action to control speed," she said.

Boyd said a reduction in the number of accidents is the intended goal of this effort. "If the speed of automobiles is kept down, the roadways will not only be safer for those driving, but the campus will be a lot safer for bicyclists and pedestrians as well," she explained.

The majority of the motorists on campus this year are speeding, according to Lt. Bob Hart of the campus police. "We are really concerned that this many people are traveling at an excessive rate of speed," Hart said.

The campus has seen a steady increase in the number of traffic citations issued over the past few years, evidence of the worsening traffic situation, Hart said. In 1984 there were 288 citations given, while in 1985 there were 509 speeding violations cited. Currently, in the first three months of 1986, there have been 224 citations, up from the 144 citations in that same time period last year.

Hart said there were 17 accidents which resulted in injuries last year, and one that resulted in a fatality. "The vast majority of injury accidents involve speeding, so by curtailing speeding, we hope to lower the accidents and the injuries from accidents," he explained.

Campus police will implement traffic slowdowns this quarter as one way of stopping this speeding, Hart said. "At peak traffic times, our (police car) drivers will drive 25 miles per hour and force the traffic to go the speed limit," Hart said.

In addition, the department has purchased a "state of the art" radar gun that allows officers to clock cars going in the opposite direction of the patrol car, he explained. "If an officer has to stop (his car) to use the radar gun, he can only wait for a speeder and cite him. If the new gun is used, the officer can patrol the campus, lowering speeds with his presence while stopping people when he catches them on radar," Hart said.

Boyd admits that motorists might be able to safely drive faster than the speed limit on campus, but this would endanger other drivers exiting parking lots or pedestrians trying to cross at a crosswalk. "The program to slow down the traffic on the main roads on campus will have positive effects on the other thoroughfares where the excess speeds are posing a danger," Boyd said.

While the education program is a positive way to keep people aware of speed limits, such plans are not always effective, said Vice Chancellor of Administrative Services Robert Kroes, who oversees the parking committee's parent group, the Physical Planning Committee.

"Those who are only being careless when they violate the speed limits will benefit from an awareness campaign. But the flagrant violator, that person who doesn't want to cooperate, won't, and an awareness campaign will not change his driving habits. The majority of the drivers only need to be reminded every six months or so," he said.

As part of this program, Kroes sent a memo to staff members who drive university vehicles, advising them to follow traffic laws. "We're trying to make an effort each year to remind our employees to drive carefully. It would seem hypocritical to go after the general public but not the people driving our own vehicles," Kroes said.

"Our goal is not to increase the number of citations we write but to reduce the number of injury accidents and speeding violations currently occurring," Hart said.

and Droscher sign a petition to be sent to the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Approval from the NCAA and PCAA, however, is considered a mere formality.

"I think there's a good chance that we will be petitioning for intercollegiate status this year," Birch said. "(Huttenback's) attitude and my attitude have always been the same. We're very optimistic about our program, which tells us that we will be intercollegiate at some point."

Administrative, community, student, athletic and, most importantly, financial support must be documented before the program will petition for intercollegiate status, Droscher said. Administrators, the football coaching staff, and the Intercollegiate Athletic Policy Board have been reviewing those criteria over the past three months.

Birch said the IAPB, composed of

USC Spikers Win Five-Game Thriller

By Steven Deeley
Sports Writer

The scene looked so familiar to UCSB volleyball fans: The upset-minded Gauchos take the top-ranked team to the fifth game, where they are serving for the match.

The plot paralleled UCSB's stunning win last month over Pepperdine, then the top-ranked team in the nation, in the Events Center.

That same scenario was repeated Wednesday night, but someone forgot to tell the USC Trojans that they were supposed to lose.

The Trojans fought-off three match points, then roared back to claim the final game and the match, 5-15, 15-7, 9-15, 15-8, and 16-14.

The win made it 21 in a row for the Trojans, who improved to 14-0 in CIVA play, 21-1 overall. USC's only loss came at the hands of the UCLA Bruins in the pre-season Kilgour Cup.

UCSB dropped to 6-8 in the CIVA, 15-10 overall. The Gauchos now find themselves in a "must win" situation for the remainder of their league matches in order to qualify for the CIVA Regionals.

"Overall, I thought we played a great match," Gaucho Head Coach Ken Preston said. "It came down to execution at the end of the match. SC executed and we didn't."

The Gauchos jumped to a quick 5-0 lead in the first game behind the hitting of David Rottman, who finished the match with 25 kills. A solo block by John Kosty made it 7-1 Gauchos, and three reception errors by USC's Adam Johnson helped give UCSB a commanding 11-1 lead. Another block by Kosty gave the Gauchos a 15-5 decision.

The Gauchos jumped out to a 4-2 early lead behind the blocking of Kosty and Tim Corliss in the second game. From that point on, however, the Trojans untracked their offense, and dominated the remainder of the second game.

The third game was tight throughout, as both teams executed on both sides of the net. The Gauchos broke open a tight game on a service ace by Mark Franklin and three consecutive points on Trojan hitting errors. A cross-court spike by Kosty put the finishing touch on a 15-9 third game victory for the Gauchos.

The fourth game opened with three consecutive blocks by Corliss and Jared Huffman to give UCSB a 3-0 lead. The Trojans fought back behind Johnson and middle blocker Tom Duke. A kill by Rottman tied the score at eight, but that was as close as the Gauchos would get in the fourth game, a 15-8 win for the Trojans.

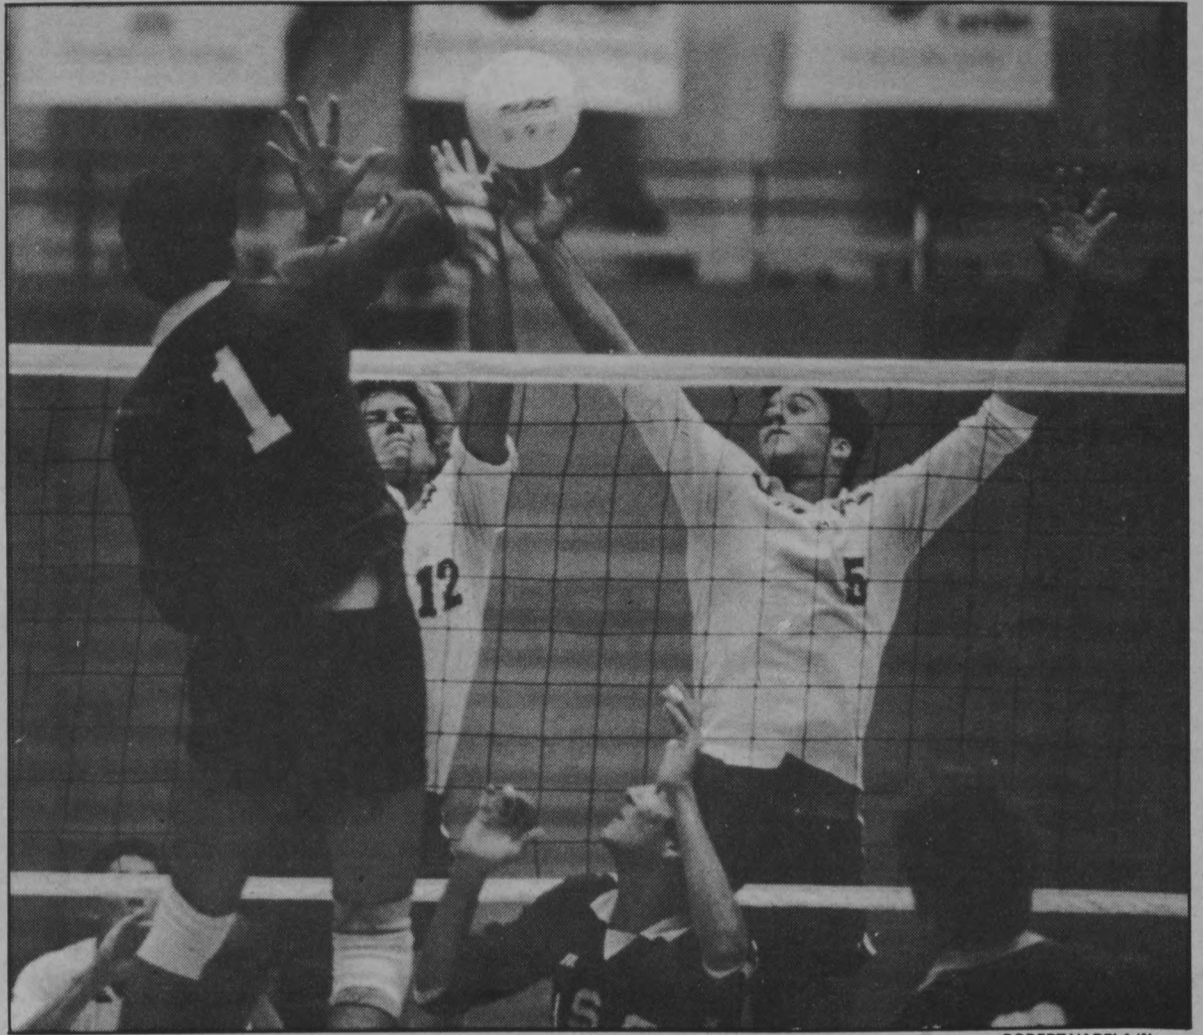

The final game provided an apt climax to a hard-fought match. The Gauchos jumped to a 4-1 lead on Kosty's hitting and strong defense. But as in the other games, the Trojans fought back and took an 8-6 lead as the teams changed sides. A solo block by Corliss and some strong serving from John Wallace tied the score at nine.

The teams swapped points twice, before the Gauchos were able to open a 13-11 lead on a kill by Kosty. Corliss and Kosty combined on a block to give the Gauchos match point and brought the crowd to its collective feet.

Three times the Gauchos served at match point, three times the crowd came to its feet, and three times the Gauchos failed to put the match away. The match was now becoming too similar to last season's loss to USC in the Events Center, in which the Gauchos squandered match point to drop a 17-15 decision in the fifth game.

Unfortunately for the Gauchos, history repeated itself. The Trojans went to Johnson (game-high 31 kills), who responded as one would expect an All American to respond.

The Trojans roared back to take a 15-14 lead, and match point belonged to USC. A kill by Mark Franklin gave the Gauchos a reprieve, but they were unable to respond to a second match point, giving the Trojans the match.

"I thought we blocked real well, and served tough," Preston said. "Chris Larson and Kosty both had a super match."

In addition to Rottman's 25 kills, Kosty led both teams with an impressive 40 kills and five solo blocks.

As a team, UCSB registered 25 blocks overall, and a hitting percentage of .333 for the match.

Johnson led USC with 31 kills, while teammate Dave Yoder added 29 kills.

Gauchos Outmuscle Azusa, 13-5

By Steve Saye
Sports Writer

UCSB's baseball team regained its temporarily AWOL offensive punch Wednesday at Campus Diamond. After being shutout on only two hits Tuesday at Pepperdine, the Gauchos rapped out 21 hits in a 13-5 victory over NAIA foe Azusa Pacific.

Sophomore Brain Nelson, in his second start of the season, pitched four strong innings to earn the victory. Nelson (1-0) gave up two runs, both unearned.

Both teams took advantage of some shoddy fielding to get on the scoreboard early. In the top of the first inning Rich Scheevel reached base on a Scott Cerny error and promptly stole second. Paul Cunningham followed with a single for the Tigers, putting runners on first and third. John Nero's safety squeeze put Azusa on the scoreboard, while Keith Beato followed with a single to make it 2-0.

The Gauchos came back with two runs of their own in the bottom of the first when Scott Cerny (4-for-5) singled and Tom Logan reached base on an error. Vince Teixeira then lifted a fly ball to right that was dropped, allowing Cerny to score after he had advanced to third. Greg Vella followed with a single to tie the score.

UCSB's big inning came in the bottom of the fifth. Leading 5-2, the Gauchos greeted Tiger reliever Phil Owens with six consecutive hits, good for four runs.

Paul Saylor started the rally with a double to the gap in left-center field, one of three hits on the day. Logan brought him in with a triple down the right field line. Teixeira, after just missing an opposite field homer, ripped a single to score Logan. Greg Vella followed with a single, putting men on first and second.

Quin Mack laced a sharp double down the left field line that brought in Teixeira, while Russ Ballati's single completed the surge.

Azusa came up with a mini-rally of its own in the sixth. Three singles, a fielders choice, and an error off Gaucho pitcher Scott Purviance resulted in three Tiger runs before lefthander Steve Connolly came in to slam the door.

The win improved UCSB's record to 22-11. The Gauchos have won 12 of the last 14 games.

Next up for the Gauchos is a three game homestand this weekend against Fresno State. FSU (16-16) took four-of-six from the Gauchos last year and are traditionally one of the league's frontrunners.

students, faculty, staff, and one community member, considers the criteria satisfied. The committee will recommend next year's team status to the chancellor.

Droscher said he is "satisfied that the criteria have been met.... (But) until the process is complete, we can not officially declare a position."

"There are still some obstacles to be addressed," Birch said. One of those obstacles is the "key" budget issue, which will be discussed in a meeting on Friday, he said.

UCSB students voted to tax themselves $1.50 each quarter in a ballot measure last spring, which gave the program $65,000 per year. That figure, however, is not enough to support a Division III team, according to Birch and Droscher, who said additional financial backing from the community and through fund-raisers is necessary.

"There's no way we're going to raise large sums of money," Birch said. A decision must be made to determine if the team can survive with a relatively small budget, he said.

Droscher and Birch made it clear that if the team does become part of UCSB's intercollegiate program, other intercollegiate sports must not suffer in regard to funds and facilities.

"We have no desire of becoming our own entity," Warren said. "We just want to become part of the program."

UCSB's intercollegiate football program was dropped in 1971 due to lack of financial and fan support. In April 1983, a group of UCSB students formed a club team in hopes that it would someday join the intercollegiate ranks.

The program took a large step toward that goal last April when the $1.50 measure passed. The hiring of Warren in July boosted the program even further.
