I'll always remember my first time...

Most of my friends had already done it, and were by now doing it regularly. But I was already a senior, and I was still a java virgin. Barclay found out, as we were discussing our greatest pleasures and he was determined to introduce me to the mythology and ritual of espresso.

He would be gentle, he would teach me well, he would make sure I enjoyed it.

That was 10 years ago. I now have four different varieties of specialty roasted beans in the house, a bean grinder, a coffee maker and a cappuccino machine. Actually, I have two cappuccino machines, but one operates on 220 volts. Anybody moving to England soon? Let's talk.

I am now fully committed to coffee. But it wasn't until I widened my circle of exploration that I discovered the many unique coffee venues Santa Barbara, Goleta and I.V. have to offer. Inside these pages, as finals and coffee season are now upon us, I hope that you will find some great places to hit the books, grab a slow-roasted pick-me-up, maybe do a little people-watching, and perhaps you'll think of your first time.

CAFÉ AU LAIT

Santa Barbara, California 93105

Le déjeuner des canotiers, 1881 - Pierre Auguste Renoir

Café au Lait began in 1986 as a small wholesale bakery on lower State Street. Originally we simply sold our specialty cakes and desserts to many of the finest restaurants in Santa Barbara. We made the move to La Cumbre Plaza in October 1989 and have been happily serving the North side of town ever since. Everything you see in our pastry case and on the menu is made right here on the premises, from our own developed recipes. That includes our flavorful whole wheat bread, pastry dough, pizza dough, soups, muffins, cakes and, well, virtually everything! If it goes wrong, it's strictly our fault. Fear not, though—it mostly goes very right. We are not a chain. We are a link.
