Little Bell.

Winter winds so rudely sweeping, Moaning, sighing, on your way, Hear ye not a spirit calling, Will ye listen? wild wind, stay, Wait the trembling snowflakes gently,
On your wings to yonder dell, The fleecy masses softly folding, Round the grave of Little Bell.

Deep and dreamless are her slumbers, Your wild wail disturbs her not,
But I would that ye breathe lightly, As ye pass the sacred spot,
For the flowers were blooming sweetly, When we laid her in that dell,
And thy voice in plaintive murmurs, Sang a dirge for Little Bell.

Once the light of joy was beaming, Oh! how brightly o'er my way, When our little arms were twining Round my neck at close of day, Looks of love, so fondly gleaming,
In my heart they ever dwell,
As they fell then, from the sparkling, Starry eyes of Little Bell.

As the clustering curls I parted From her fair and open brow, Where baptismal dew so lately Sealed for her the holy vow, Earnestly I sought the spirit, Waking there, to guard it well, Ever hoping that the future Might be fair to Little Bell.

But, alas—how frail, how fleeting,
Are the treasures we love best, Oh! how soon my sweet bird drooping, Folded her soft wings to rest,
To my heart more closely nestling, Languidly her eyelids fell,
And, a spirit pure and stainless, Angels took her—Lovely Bell.

The Steamboat Springs.

These curious Springs are situated about ten miles north of Wash-ho Valley, Utah, upon a tributary of the Truckee, are ten in number, and appear to derive their name from the fact that they are like so many boilers generating steam. Col. Norton, of Placerville, recently returned from a visit to these wonderful creations of nature, and communicates a description of them to the Placerville American:

For a distance of three-fourths of a mile do these remarkable springs pour their waters, rushing, boiling and foaming, through innumerable fissures in the rocky formation in which they are found. The entire of one bank of the stream on which they are situated, a distance of from thirty to eighty rods in width and three-fourths of a mile in length, and rising backward from the river in places from sixty to eighty feet, the whole seems one vast deposit from the water that for ages has been ejected therefrom. It is not that boiling hot water is ejected throughout this whole extent from well defined springs, but the surface is filled with innumerable cracks or fissures, from four to eighteen inches in width, communicating with subterranean cavities or chambers, through which the boiling water is forced with great velocity, and producing a noise closely resembling that produced by the wheels of a powerful steamer upon the water.
A singular feature is, that in large tracks but a few feet from each other, the boiling water is seen flowing in opposite directions, and in others changing from one direction to another at intervals of a few moments. In many places the waters overflow the surface, but more generally traverse the crevices at various depths from the surface, generally in view, but sometimes so deep within as not to be distinguished, whilst the ceaseless tearing, splashing and hissing is heard in every direction. And jets of steam that will scald the hand instantly on application, are here and there forced through the openings and fissures, high above the surface of the formation, and with great violence.

There is one place more remarkable, if possible, than others; it is where the surface of the rocky deposit is unbroken; yet loudly distinct beneath is heard the roaring as of a strong blast furnace. Not a drop of water is visible here, but the rock or deposit on which the spectator stands is actually burning hot; the bare hand can scarcely be held upon it for a moment. Morning and evening, when the air is cold and still, the whole is shrouded with steam and vapor.

In many places there are small deposits of sulphur that will ignite by the application of a match; in others the strongest alum was found; and yet others, an alkaline substance so concentrated as to destroy in a short time a linen handkerchief in which a specimen had been wrapped.

The country in the immediate vicinity bears unmistakable evidence of the effect of powerful volcanic action. Masses of vitrified rocks, cinders, the ordinary coarse conglomerate scoria of extinct volcanic craters, and not a few specimens were obtained of the lightest, purest, pumice stone ever seen.

Singular Calculation.

We compile the following calculations from various sources, all of which we think generally reliable. They are very curious and in some instances peculiarly suggestive:

The number of the inhabitants of a country or a city is almost renewed every thirty years; and if we allow three generations for an age, the human race is renewed three times and one-third during its existence.
Supposing the world to be 5,810 years old, there would be 172 generations since the Creation; 125 since the Deluge, and 54 since the Christian Era; and as there is not a family who can prove its origin even back to Charlemagne, it follows that the most anciently related among those who take pride in genealogies are not able to trace them further back than 30 generations—or even so far, unless they adopt the aid of legend or fiction—which is often much the same.

Out of 1000 infants nursed by their mothers, 300 die; and of the same number brought up by strange nurses, 500 perish.
Infant mortality increases faster than any other description,—which fact is accounted for by the circumstances connected with a luxurious age. Convulsions and dentition are the predominating causes of infant mortality.

The small pox, in the natural way, carries off about 8 out of 100; and by inoculation (vaccination) one scarcely dies out of 300. It has been observed that more girls than boys die of small pox in the natural way.

From comparison of the bills of mortality of several countries, there are 11 out of 3126 who live to the age of 100 years. The proportion of the deaths of women, compared with those of men, is 100 to 108.
Married women live longer on an average than single. More people live to a greater age in elevated situations than those who reside on lower ones.

It has been found that the greatest number of deaths occur in the month of March.
The months of August and September stand next to March in this respect. The fewest deaths take place in November, December and February. Out of 1000 deaths 249 take place in Winter, 238 in Spring, 225 in Summer, and 237 in Autumn. More die, therefore, in the Spring than in any other season—only in large cities, where the deaths in Winter preponderate over those of other seasons, for the very obvious reason that in Winter the large cities and towns are more crowded by inhabitants than at other seasons. The half of all who are born die before they reach 17 years of age. The number of old persons who die in cold weather is as 7 to 4 compared with the mortality in warm or temperate weather.

The first month, and especially the first day after birth, are marked by the greatest number of deaths among infants. Of 2735 who die when very young, 1272 expire on the day of their birth, and the remainder during the first month. According to good authority, the healthiest children are those born in January, February and March.
Among the lower animals the same will have been observed to hold good, and almost every farmer will admit the fact in his experience. The greatest number of births are in May and June—according to collective statistical data. The number of twins is to that of the whole number of single births as 1 to 65. In rural localities the children in a family average, in this country, 3; in cities the average only reaches 1½. In Great Britain the average are, in the former cases 4, and in the latter 2½.

The married men are, to all the males in a country, as 3 to 5, and the married women 1 to 3. The number of widows to the number of the whole inhabitants, 5 to 51; that of widowers 1 to 15.

One-fourth of the whole inhabitants of old countries live in cities, two-fourths in villages, and the remaining fourth in retired rural situations and at sea.

Upon an equal space of ground the number of inhabitants existing are as follows in the specified countries:

Iceland	1
Norway	54
Sweden	15
Turkey	37
Poland	50
Spain	64
Scotland	69
Ireland	97
Switzerland	116
Germany	128
England	157
France	169
Italy	171
Naples	190
Venice	198
Holland	227
Malta	1109

"Uncle Sam's farm" is so extensive that room to grow is very amply furnished to his sons. We presume his portion would not much exceed the lowest but one of the numbers on the above list.—Boston Ledger.

In Oregon the habits of the people are rather primitive. It is said that the only tooth brushes used are corncobs fastened to the bed-post by a tow-string.

The Greatness of Little Things.

In Lient. Maury's recent work on the Physical Geography of the Sea, he gives the result of microscopic examinations of some shells drawn up from the bottom of the Atlantic ocean, where it is more than two miles in depth. Those shells are so minute, that to the naked eye they appear like common dust or clay, although not a grain of sand is among them; and yet are so preserved that their delicate edges are all perfect. It would require a larger grave to hold all the coral insects of the world than all the elephants.
The smallest tenants of the ocean, (not the largest,) are its most important occupants, and the microscopic shell-fish create more important changes than the whales.

It has been the great error of historians, statesmen and politicians, to lose sight of this truth. They look only at the whales, the big fish, and seem to consider these as the monarchs of the deep sea of politics; and they alone have the right to swim there.
If the French emperor flounders, or the Russian autocrat turns over on his side and dies, each contortion is duly chronicled. But, in the meantime, what do we hear of the progress of the people, the industrious classes, the small fish? They are the true monarchs of this great and wide sea of politics, after all. They form the strata by which the geologists of history will hereafter mark the progress of his age, and classify all its products; and upon the basis of which all future society will develop itself. Take care of the poor and the rich will take care of themselves. Educate the masses, and there will arise from the number a sufficiently large class to generalize their ideas, and carry out their principles. Reform the people, make them temperate, truthful and virtuous, for they give tone and temper to the age and to the country, determining the character of its leaders far more than the leaders that of the masses.

And so in individual life and character.
It is little things that make and unmake us all. There are thousands of young men of genius and enterprise, at this moment, who dream of fame and distinction, and who, if it only required some act of daring or sacrifice within the scope of human possibility, to become distinguished, would be heroes; but, because true eminence is only to be attained by a persevering application in a number of daily virtues, are constantly at war with the whole scheme of things, and esteem it a very badly governed world in which they find no higher place.

It is a man's habits of dress, demeanor, and conversation, that make or unmake the friends on whom his success and happiness in life depend. It is on a man's little habits of eating and drinking, of loitering over trifles, or knowing how to brush them aside, that his character for idleness or industry, and the occupation of the largest part of his time depend. It is the way in which a man takes care of the pennies in his pecuniary transactions that determines whether he will ever take care of pounds.

Little habits drive nails into our coffins.
They more than make up by their number, what they do seem to lack in individual importance. They are the true seeds of character. We might as well plant acorns, and not expect them to grow, as cherish small vices and not calculate in their increase; or reasonably hope to see the firm and noble oak where no acorns were ever planted, as true greatness and success in life, where the seedling of a thousand little habits of industry and virtue had not been first carefully cherished.

In a word, character is the sum of little things, rather than great ones. The true estimate of an individual is not ascertained by his accidental or occasional achievements, but his every-day habits.

A nation's character is not determined by its famous men, but by the habits of its masses, and the character of the age by the vices or virtues that were so inherent as to be unnoticed.—Phil. Ledger.

ROYAL EXTRAVAGANCE. The sum of 800,000 francs has been placed at the disposal of M. de Morny, the French Envoy to Russia, to enable him to represent his country in a fitting manner on the occasion of the Emperor Alexander's coronation. Napoleon will furnish him with six of his own carriages. Several European journals have, it is said, already engaged reporters to proceed to St Petersburg, and engaged to pay them $20 a day for their services.

Sixty thousand dollars will, it is said, be expended in decorating the church at Notre Dame, Paris, for the occasion of the baptism of the Imperial Prince.

A HUSBAND'S HAPPINESS. A friend of mine in Portland Place has a wife who inflicts upon him every season two or three immense evening parties. At one of those parties he was standing in a very forlorn condition, leaning against the chimney-piece, when a gentleman, coming up to him, said:
"Sir, as neither of us is acquainted with any of the people here, I think we had best go home."—Roger's Table Talk.

Cost of Living in Europe.

The New York Post has published an interesting statement of the cost of living in the principal European cities, from which we compile the following information:

For continuous railway travel $5 a day is a fair allowance.

The hotels in London are excessively dear and unprovided with luxuries.

Paris is the city of all others most resorted to by strangers. It contains on an average 5000 hotels and furnished houses, capable of affording accommodation for 70,- 000 guests, and restaurateurs and cafés in like profusion. At the hotels bedrooms can be procured at from forty cents to one dollar per day, and sitting apartments at from one to two dollars. Guests are left free to dine in their own apartments, at the table d'hôte, or elsewhere. Dinner at the table d'hôte costs from eighty cents to one dollar and a quarter.

A very customary practice for those who intend to remain some time in Paris is to take furnished apartments, which can be had in any part of the city, and at any price. Nothing is more common than residents, as well as strangers, to dine at the restaurateurs, the principal of which are fitted up in a style of great luxury, and with the best taste. At the most celebrated, as the Trois Freres Provençaux, Vefour and Very, the meals are served à la carte, but there are others of an excellent quality to be found in many parts of Paris, where an excellent dinner, including a cheap but popular wine, may be had for forty cents.
The cafés of Paris are generally resorted to for breakfast in the morning, for coffee, chocolate, tea, Eaux and liquers in the evening. The chief of these are the Café Piermont, Café Cardinal, Café Tortoni and Café de Foy, which are elaborately decorated, and kept with scrupulous neatness.
To all in which the sign "esiaminet" does not indicate that smoking is allowed, ladies freely enter.

In other places in France, as a general rule, the best hotels charge forty cents a day for a sleeping apartment, twenty-five for breakfast and forty to fifty for dinner. The French railways, as, indeed, almost all the continental railways, charge three cents per mile for the first class cars, two cents for the second, and one cent for the third.

Belgium, which lies on the way of tourists from England up the Rhine, attracts an immense number of visitors, and is well supplied with hotels. The more noted Brussels hotels charge from thirty to fifty cents for each sleeping apartment, from sixty to eighty cents for a sitting room, twenty cents for breakfast, and sixty cents for dinner, or less than one dollar and a half per day. It is said that upwards of one hundred American families have spent the last winter in Dresden. The Victoria Hotel, a very celebrated house, is kept here, by Mr. Dremel, who has also charge of the Grand Hotel Du Louvre, of Paris, and where the Summer and Winter rates correspond very nearly with those of the Brussels hotels.

At Caprin's Hotel, one of the best in Florence, every reasonable comfort, including an excellent table d'hôte dinner, may be had for one dollar per day. Apartments of several rooms may be hired in the Winter season at Florence for from twenty to forty dollars per month, and for half this price in the Summer. A very good breakfast at a restaurant, eleven cents; and an equally good dinner at the same place, thirty cents.
Families who live in furnished lodgings may bargain for their meals with a public cook for an incredibly low price, not exceeding two dollars per day for meals, including two or three courses of meat and pastry for several persons. The surrounding villas are to be let at a very cheap rate, and servants, horses, and amusements can be procured for one-half less than in the more northern parts of Europe.

In Rome, except during holy week, when we have known eight dollars to be paid for an indifferent sleeping apartment for a single night, Naples, Turin and Genoa, the rates of living, although not quite so reasonable as in Florence, are yet but little more expensive, and in the smaller Italian towns off the great high road of travel, some of which are charming spots, subsistence is still more reasonable.

As a general rule, the more fashionable sea-side and watering-places of Europe are better conducted and more economical than those of the same character in the United States. Among the former, Dieppe, on the coast of France, and about one hundred and twenty-five miles from Paris, occupies the first place, and bears the same relation to other sea-side places there which Newport does here. For better accommodations than are taken by most visitors at our sea-side places, the charge at Dieppe is forty cents for a bedroom, thirty for breakfast, and sixty for dinner at the table d'hôte, or about nine dollars per week.

At Spa, Baden Baden, Weisbaden, and Aix-la-Chapelle, the same accommodations at the most fashionable houses, could not exceed ten dollars per week, and might be made to fall one or two dollars below this sum. All of these places of Summer resort which are thronged during the season with the most delightful society, possess the additional advantage of leaving their guests free to live à la carte, at the restaurant or at private tables in their own apartments as they see fit.

On the Chemistry of Food.

After Liebig had given his reason, drawn from natural philosophy, against materialism and in favor of a vital power and soul, he spoke three Saturdays on the articles used as food for man, giving a clear abstract of the theory discussed in his letters on chemistry, and illustrating it by experiments. You remember that two groups of organic matter are distinguished in human food. The first contains carbonic acid and the elements of water, and appears as starch, gum, sugar, and fat; the other adds to these sulphur and nitrogen, and appears under various forms, as caseine, albumen, and fibrine. These substances are found in vegetable as well as animal food. Now men need food for purposes of strength and warmth. The temperature of the body is maintained by the burning process of respiration, in which food containing carbon combines with the oxygen of the air and is thrown off as carbonic acid and water. The growth and repairs of the muscles take place through the medium of the blood; the mechanical force and the substance of the muscles are continually supplied by nitrogenous food transmitted into blood.
In our common articles of food, material for respiration and for the formation of the blood, are present in different proportions; in potatoes, for example, there is eleven percent of nitrogenous matter, in barley seventeen, wheat twenty-one, woman's milk twenty-five, cow's milk thirty three, peas forty-three, and in beef fifty-nine, while the food which supplies warmth is in inverse proportion; in potatoes, for example, it being eighty-six per cent. In this connection Liebig gave an explanation of his views in relation to beer, which have been misunderstood and very much contested in Munich.
Beer is worthless for the formation of blood; it is of value only to support respiration and to supply warmth. The nitrogenous portion of the barley becomes soluble in brewing, passes off in the sweet-beer, and is separated partly by fermentation, as lees. A little of the dregs remain; the brewer makes it as little as possible, or else the beer sours easily. A chemist of Munich eleven years ago asserted that our brown beer contained gum, two grains to the quart. Throwing out of account the nitrogen which appears in beer in the form of ammoniacal salts, and estimating only that which it presents as gum, a man who drinks eleven pints of beer per day would get no more gum in a whole year than a five-pound loaf of bread furnished. Beer serves to make people fat who are thin in flesh; it has the same effect as starch in bread.
It has its value in supplying warmth, but not in the formation of blood. It has its use also as means of enjoyment and as a stimulant to the nerves; but that does not come into the account of chemistry; chemically the use of meat may be recommended with bread instead of beer. Liebig intimated, in conclusion, that the best proportion of food for use were one of nitrogen to three of carbon—the proportions in woman's milk.

MANUFACTURE OF MATCHES. There are few things more remarkable in manufactures than the extraordinary rapidity of the cutting process in match-making, and that which is connected with it. A boy stands before a bench, the bundle on his right hand, a pile of empty boxes on his left. The matches are to be cut and the empty boxes filled by this boy. A bundle is opened, he seizes a portion—knowing by long habit the required numbers with sufficient exactness—puts them rapidly into a sort of frame, knocks the ends evenly together, confines them with a strap which he tightens with his foot, and cuts them in two parts with a knife on a hinge, which he brings down with a strong lever. The halves lie projecting over each end of the frame. He grasps the left portion, and thrusts it into a half-open box, which slides into an outer case; he repeats the same process with the matches on his right hand. This series of movements is performed with a rapidity almost unexampled; for in this way two hundred thousand matches are cut, and two thousand boxes filled, in a day by one boy.

A very curious instance has taken place in a family in Albany. A mother and her daughter were both confined on the same day, each having a little son. In the bustle of the moment both babies were placed in a cradle, and to the confusion of the mothers, when the youngsters were taken from the cradle they were unable to tell which was the mother's and which the daughter's son —a matter which, of course, must ever remain a mystery. The family is in the greatest distress over the affair.

The Emperor Alexander II will be crowned Czar of Russia at Moscow on the 31st of August, being the fete of his patron Saint. The expenses will be about $2,500,000.

Parker H. French has again been brought into court—this time at Rochester, N. Y.—on a charge of debt.

THE GAZETTE.

"Life on the Ocean Wave." "A life on the Ocean Wave!" The man who wrote it was green, He never has been to sea, And a storm he never has seen, He never has seen a wave As it dashed o'er the vessel's deck; He never has seen a fire at sea, Or been floating upon a wreck. He never has been aroused From his morning's gentle doze, By the sound of the splashing water, As it fell from the horrid hose. He never has heard a man Scrubbing right over his head, With a noise sufficient to rouse From the grave the slumbering dead. He never has seen a fat woman Growing thinner day by day, And leaning over the vessel's side, Throwing herself away; While people look carelessly on, Though in tears the woman may be, And unheeding say it is nothing at all, Only the roll of the sea. Sea sick he ne'er has been to his toes, And crept into bed in his coat, While every motion increased his throes, And his feelings were all in his throat. That man may have sailed in a boat, In some puddle, or on a sound, But if he has been to sea, and wrote Such a song he deserves to be drown'd.

Mrs. Partington, reading an account of a railroad accident, was much surprised to learn that the locomotive had been driven off the track by one of the switches. "She shouldn't have thought," she said, "that the great iron engine would mind such a little thing as a switch." "Yes, but you must remember, mama," said like, gravely, "the locomotive has a tender behind." "Oh, that indeed," replied the old lady, resuming her paper, "well, you needn't talk about it, my son, go on with your lesson." Boston Post.

Montigny, French Consul in China, says that the Chinese mix arsenic freely with the tobacco which they smoke, and those who do so are described as "stout fellows with lungs like a blacksmith's bellows, and rosy as cherubs." Dr. Londa, who announces that some years ago, in the course of a discussion at the Academy of Medicine, on the agents to be employed to cure tubercular consumption, he told the assembled doctors that he had found but one means of combating this dreadful disease, viz: the smoking of arsenic; and the doctor re-affirms his commendations of that remedy.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune gives that paper an account of the discovery of a quantity of auriferous quartz in a cave in Amsterdam, N. Y. Some school children discovered it, and carrying pieces of the precious ore home, induced their parents to repair to the spot. Crowds went to the mouth of the cave, and a good deal of fighting was the consequence. Lumps of quartz containing 15 oz. and 18 oz. of gold have been taken out. A stout man named Jennings got his head knocked in by one of the excited diggers.

"THE THUNDERER." The London Times was established in 1785 by John Walter, and on his death, in 1838, inherited by his son John, at present a member of Parliament. The establishment is valued at £750,000 sterling, or $3,750,000. Its editor in chief receives an annual salary of £5000; and its Paris correspondent 50,000 francs per annum.

A teacher had been explaining to his class the points of the compass, and all were drawn up in front towards the north. "Now, what is before you, John?" "The north, sir." "And what is behind you, Tommy?" "My coat tail, sir," said he, trying at the same time to get a glimpse.

A good anecdote is told of Ali Pasha, the Sultan's grand vizier, now in Paris. A few evenings ago a lady, to whom this gentleman was introduced at a soiree, hazarded the naive question—"Is the Sultan married?" "A great deal, madam," was the Turk's reply.

A shaft for the new Collins' steamer Adriatic has just been forged, weighing forty tons, said to be the heaviest piece of work of that sort by ten tons ever made in the United States. It required twenty days to forge it, and eight more to finish it in the lathe.

"Our prospects are very dark," said Bread, the baker, on the occasion of a rise in flour. "Yes," said Mrs. Partington, "and so is your bread;" but, said that estimable lady, looking benignantly on him through her specs, "your loaves are light enough."

A gentleman having given a quantity of peaches to the laborers on the road in the vicinity of Boston, one of them was asked how he liked them; he said the fruit was very good, but the seed scratched his throat a little as he swallowed them.

"How will your county go this year?" asked a zealous politician of a Dutch voter in Pennsylvania. "Vell, can't tell mooch," replied the simple Dutchman, "de man what tell us how to vote has not been round yet."

An incorrigible wag, who lent a minister a horse which ran away and threw his clerical rider, thought he should have some credit for his aid in spreading the gospel.

Sayante Valley—Fremont's Tree.

On Saturday last we took a pleasant ride into the country about our little village of Santa Cruz, says the editor of the Sentinel. Going in a northerly direction, about seven miles over an undulating country, and through sand hills covered with majestic pine trees, we emerged into the beautiful and romantic valley of Sayante—which forms the residence of Capt. Isaac Graham, one of the old pioneers, twenty-two years a resident of California. This valley is a broad bottom, about one mile wide and two miles in length, in the middle of which the San Lorenzo and Sayante rivers mingle their waters, and find their way down through a pass in the mountains to the ocean. Some parts of this bottom are open land susceptible of cultivation, with a rich and fertile soil, while others are covered with red wood timber of the most enormous growth. We passed on through the valley, which is surrounded with mountains and lofty hills, covered with dense forests of timber, across the San Lorenzo; upon one of the beautiful streams coming from the mountains on the western side, we passed a large body of miners, who were engaged in turning the creek from its bed in order to work for gold. They were just completing their ditch and flume, which turns the water out of the creek for about three-fourths of a mile; we did not learn the name of the company, and we knew but few persons whom we met. They treated us with kindness and hospitality, and we judge by their cheerful countenances and dispositions that they have a reasonable prospect of good diggings.

The next and principal object of our visit, was the great red wood tree, known in the neighborhood as Fremont's Tree. We found it standing in the bottom towards the lower end of the valley, surrounded by a forest of the same kind of trees of less, yet of gigantic growth. We immediately commenced measuring with a tape-line, which we carried with us for that purpose. We found the tree to measure, two feet from the ground, fifty-two feet in circumference; its average diameter is seventeen feet, while one way it will measure nineteen feet; we then measured a base upon the level ground, of one hundred and eighty feet, and by getting the angle to the top of the tree, as near as we could without accurate instruments, we estimated the height to be three hundred feet. This will be found to approximate very nearly to its true height. It is surrounded by many other trees of great height, and from eight to twelve feet in diameter; this place forms the resort of frequent picnic parties. We are informed by Captain Graham that on his farm were to be found trees of still larger dimensions.

FONDNESS OF GREAT MEN FOR CHILDREN. Richter says that the man is to be shunned who does not love the society of children. Henry IV. was passionately fond of them, and delighted in their gambols and little caprices. One day, when crawling round his room on all fours, on his hands and knees, with the Dauphin on his back and the other children about him, urging the king to gallop in imitation of a horse, an Ambassador suddenly entered and surprised the royal family in the midst of their fun. Henry, without rising to his feet, asked: "Have you children, Mr. Ambassador?" "Yes, sir." "In that case I proceed with the sport," replied the king.

The Duke of Wellington was exceedingly fond of children, and was a general favorite with them. He enjoyed their gambols, took part in them, and was constantly presenting them with little keepsakes or presents. The opera was his chief amusement, and he was a frequenter of both houses, as well as of the ancient and first class concerts. Napoleon, like Washington, was fond of children. He used to take the infant King of Rome in his arms, and standing in front of a mirror with him, he made the oddest grimaces in the glass. At breakfast he would take the child upon his knee, dip his finger in the sauce, and daub his face with it; the child, almost always pleased, appeared to delight in the rough caresses of his father. Those who on such occasions had a favor to solicit from the Emperor were almost sure of being favorably received.

A REVOLUTIONARY INCIDENT. During the retreat from the city of New York, on the 16th of September, 1776, Greene, at the head of a small detachment, was riding up the middle road, towards Harlem Heights, where the American army was to unite. An artillery carriage, without the gun, came very rapidly along the road, when Greene ordered the driver to stop. "Where is your piece of cannon?" asked Greene sternly. "Please you, General, the British were so close behind me, that I thought it best to leave the gun, to save myself, the artillery wagon and the horses." "Face right about," said Greene, "or I will run you through!" drawing his sword at the same time. The man could do nothing but obey. "Now, gentlemen," he continued, "let us recover the gun." They rode back as fast as possible, found the cannon—a brass six pounder—placed it on its carriage, and in the face of the British troops, then advancing, successfully escaped. This shows, in a measure, the decision and character of Greene.

In Canada they have everything for greens, beginning with mullen leaves, and leaving off with the window blinds.

Hurrah for Vance's NEW DAGUERREAN GALLERY! LARGEST LIGHT IN THE WORLD! (OVER 500 FEET OF GLASS.) New Building, corner of Sacramento and Montgomery Streets, San Francisco.

WHY SHOULD EVERY ONE GO TO VANCE'S? Who wishes perfect Likenesses? Because he has now the best arranged gallery on the Pacific Coast, and not to be surpassed by any in the world; instruments containing lenses more perfect, and with greater power than any ever before used in the country. 2d. Because he has the largest Light in the world, from which he can form three distinct lights—top, side, and half side lights—that now enables him to overcome the great difficulty which every artist in this city has to contend with, namely: In order to obtain perfect likenesses, different formed features require differently arranged lights. 3d. Having the largest light, he is enabled to make pictures in half the time of any other establishment in the city; therefore they must be more perfect, for it will be known the shorter the time the more perfect the expression. 4th. Because every plate is carefully prepared with a coating of pure silver, which produces that clear, bold, and lasting picture that is so much admired, and which cannot be produced on the common plates, as they are now used by other artists. 5th. Because he has lately after much experimenting, brought his chemical preparations to such perfection, using compounds entirely different from anything ever before used in the art, which enables him to produce perfect likenesses at every sitting, with that clear, soft and beautiful tone, so much admired in all his pictures. All those wishing perfect likenesses will do well to call before sitting elsewhere, and judge for themselves. DON'T FORGET THE PLACE! New Building, corner of Sacramento and Montgomery streets. Entrance on Montgomery street, next door to Austin's. 1-11 t

SPERMATORRHOEA, OR LOCAL WEAKNESS. DR. CZAPKAY, late Lecturer on Diseases of Women and Children, and Chief Surgeon of the Military Hospital of Pesth Hungary, would call public attention to Spermatorrhea, or Local Weakness. There is not in the catalogue of human maladies one more to be deprecated than this, as well because of present distress, as the ultimate results. The tone of the system under its influence is either impaired or entirely destroyed, and a class of symptoms superinduced that unfit man for the performance of any of the ordinary duties of life. The injuries done to the physical part of man are truly lamentable, but trifling when compared to those of the sensorium, the great nervous centre, and to the nervous system generally. This disease, which is too often consequent upon that solitary vice, self-abuse, involves pathological conditions beyond the comprehension of the uninitiated, but which are well understood by the regular practitioner. Among the symptoms most conspicuous are the following: Love of solitude, aversion to business and society, distressing timidity, nervous excitement from slight causes, loss of memory, confusion of ideas, inability to reason correctly, low spirits and lassitude, dullness of apprehension, and insatiable thirst. These being functional derangements arising from the baneful organic lesions of the brain, which produces fatuity, dementia, and death. For the cure of this and all kindred diseases, Dr. Czapkey has established his Institute, where all may rely with perfect confidence upon that skill which long experience and thorough devotion to his profession have given him. Those who suffer should call without delay, and use the means by which they may recuperate and live. All consultations, by letter or otherwise, free. n15 t

These diseases are treated by Dr. C. in the most scientific and agreeable mode. He particularly invites to his establishment those suffering from Chronic Rheumatism, who have heretofore failed to obtain relief. To those suffering from the Fevers peculiar to this coast, he would promise immediate relief. Call and consult with the Doctor at his Medical Institute. Dr. C. has a new and efficient remedy for Diarrhoea and Dysentery. Call all consults, consultations free. Office hours from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., at the Grand Medical and Surgical Institute, Armory Hall Building, corner of Montgomery and Sacramento streets, San Francisco. n15 t

Dr. L. J. Czapkey's GRAND MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE, ARMORY HALL BUILDING, Corner of Montgomery and Sacramento streets, SAN FRANCISCO. Established for the Permanent Cure of all Private and Chronic Diseases, and the Suppression of Quackery.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, late in the Hungarian Revolutionary War, Chief Physician to the 20th Regiment of Honveds, Chief Surgeon to the Military Hospital of Pesth, Hungary, and late lecturer on Diseases of the Urinary Organs, and Diseases of Women and Children, would most respectfully inform the public of California that he has opened an Institute for the cure of Chronic Diseases of the Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive and Genital Organs, and all Private Diseases, viz: Syphilitic Ulcers, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Strictures, Seminal Weakness, and all the horrid consequences of self-abuse, and he hopes that his long experience and successful practice of many years will ensure him a share of public patronage. By the practice of many years in Europe and the United States, and during the Hungarian war and campaigns, he is enabled to apply the most efficient and successful remedies against diseases of all kinds. He uses no mercury—charges moderately—treats his patients in a correct and honorable way—has received of an uncountable veracity from men of known respectability and high standing in society. All parties consulting him, by letter or otherwise, will receive the best and gentlest treatment, and implicit security. Spermatorrhea, or Local Weakness, Nervous Debility, Low Spirits, Lassitude, Weakness of the Limbs and Back, Indisposition and Incapacity for Labor and Study, Dullness of Apprehension, Loss of Memory, Aversion to Society, Love of Solitude, Timidity, Self-Distrust, Dizziness, Headache, Involuntary Discharges, Pains in the Side, Affections of the Eyes, Pimples on the Face, Sexual and other infirmities in men, are cured without fail by the justly celebrated Physician and Surgeon, L. J. CZAPKAY. His method of curing diseases is new, unknown to others, and hence the great success. All consultations, by letter or otherwise, free. Address, L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D. San Francisco, California. n15 t

THE GREATEST DISCOVERY OF THE AGE! Great Blessing to Mankind! Innocent but Powerful! DR. L. J. CZAPKAY'S PROPHELIACUM, (Self-disinfecting Agent) a sure preventive against Gonorrhoea and Syphilitic Diseases, and an unsurpassed remedy for all Venereal, Scrofulous, Glandular, and Cancerous Ulcers, Fétid Discharges from Vagina, Uterus, and Urethra, and all Cutaneous Eruptions and Diseases. For sale at Dr. L. J. Czapkey's Office, Armory Hall, corner of Sacramento and Montgomery streets, San Francisco. As inoculation is a preventive against small pox, so Dr. L. J. Czapkey's Propheiliacum is a preventive against syphilitic and gonorrhoeal diseases. Harmless in itself, it possesses the power of chemically destroying the syphilitic virus, and thereby saving thousands from being infected by the most loathsome of all diseases. Let no young man who appreciates health be without Dr. Czapkey's Propheiliacum. It is in very convenient packages, and will be found convenient to use, being used as a soap. That the disease can be prevented by the use of proper agents is as well established a fact as that they can be cured after their establishment. This principle, which is now universally recognized, was received even before the day of Jenner, the discoverer of vaccination, in 1766, and its multiplied benefits ever since have received, as they deserved, the attention of the medical profession, and the pursuit of this branch of the medical science, that Dr. Czapkey fortunately made the discovery of his "Propheiliacum," which, for the prevention of syphilitic, gonorrhoeal, cancerous, and cutaneous disorders, stands unrivalled by any agent in the Pharmacopoeia. The effect of this agent after coition is immediate, and removes the possibility of contraction of disease. If, however, the disease has been contracted, it is useful in neutralizing the poisonous secretions, which, by absorption, produce the horrid consequences known as secondary syphilis. It has been administered by the Doctor in many thousand cases, and he has yet to find the first in which it has failed to subvert the purpose for which it was administered. Price $3. Full directions are attached to each package, and in cases where the Propheiliacum is used as a substitute, Dr. L. J. Czapkey will furnish (GRATIS) a prescription for his Blood Purifier. All communications from the country, addressed only to Dr. L. J. Czapkey, San Francisco, will be strictly and confidentially attended to, and the remedies, with the greatest care and security, immediately dispatched by Express or other conveyance to the destination. n15 t

TO THE LADIES OF CALIFORNIA. L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D., Physician, Surgeon, and Accoucheur, invites the attention of the sick and afflicted females laboring under any of the various forms of diseases of the brain, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, womb, blood, kidneys, and all diseases peculiar to their sex. The Doctor is afflicting more cures than any other physician in the State of California, and a false dietic prevent you, but apply immediately, and save yourselves from painful sufferings and premature death. All married ladies, whose delicate health or other circumstances do not allow to have an increase in their families, should call at Dr. L. J. Czapkey's Medical Institute, Armory Hall, corner of Sacramento and Montgomery streets, and they will receive every possible relief and help. The Doctor's offices are so arranged that he can be consulted without the fear of molestation. If desired, Dr. C. will visit the ladies at their residences. The attention of the reader is called to the following: A lady of high standing in society, and great respectability, published a card in the Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch, September 14th, 1851, which is as follows: "A CARD. The undersigned feels it her duty to express her heartfelt gratitude to Dr. Czapkey, for the successful cure of herself and child. The latter, having been afflicted by a severe attack of 'Cholera Infantum,' was given up as incurable by some of the most celebrated physicians of the time, when called on by Dr. Czapkey, of whom she heard very favorable reports, and who, after a short period, restored the child to perfect health. Encouraged by this extraordinary result, she sought advice herself, for the scrofulous malady with which she had been afflicted for eight years, and which withstood the treatment of the best physicians in Europe and America. But Dr. Czapkey succeeded in affording her permanent relief, so that she can now enjoy life, which, since eight years, had lost all charms to her. She therefore deems it due to herself, and to all sick and afflicted, to recommend Dr. Czapkey as one of the most skilful physicians within the United States. Mrs. C. ROLINE GRAY, Cor. Walnut and 7th sts, Philadelphia, Pa. A. Glaser, Notary Public, 126, 7th st." n15 t

SYPHILIS AND GONORRHOEA. DR. L. J. CZAPKAY would ask especial attention to Syphilitic and Gonorrhoeal diseases. In the first stages of either of these complaints he guarantees a perfect and effectual cure in a few days, without hindrance to business or the slightest inconvenience. The Doctor's method of treating them combines all the latest improvements by the medical faculty, with discoveries made by himself more effective than any thing yet known, which secures the patient from the possibility of secondary symptoms, and removes the disease in the shortest possible time. Secondary Syphilis, which appears in consequence of the absorption of the poison into the system, and produces Buboes, Ulcers in the throat and nose, which destroy the soft parts, and cause the bone to mortify, separate and come away, disfiguring the patient horribly. Nodes or painful swellings in the bones; spots upon the skin, cases of which the Doctor sees daily in his office, and which are the result of improper treatment. Also Ulcers, Sores and Pimples, and injuries to the constitution, which, after a long period of suffering, destroy life. It will also be remembered that these disorders are hereditary, passing from parent to child, and entailing upon the offspring a ruined constitution. For the cure of all these forms of diseases, the doctor guarantees a cure or asks no compensation. The Doctor can be consulted by letter or otherwise, free of charge, and invites all who are afflicted to call upon him, where he will give them such satisfaction as they can obtain nowhere else. His rooms are Nos. 1 and 2, Armory Hall, corner of Sacramento and Montgomery sts, San Francisco. n15 t
