Prop. 3 Victim of Conservative Vote

Santa Barbara County residents reflected Tuesday the state-wide conservative trend that severely crippled higher education in California.

If anything, the local vote exceeded most other California districts in its student backlash makeup. Late results showed the overwhelming defeat of Proposition 3, the $250 million school bond construction measure, by a state-wide 55 per cent "no" vote, with a county defeat of 49,427 to 36,689.

In addition Max Rafferty's vehement anti-UC stance helped him carry the county by 6,759 votes.

The defeat left state college and University officials without a projected $200 million for physical growth and an additional $50 million earmarked for the rebuilding of rundown urban schools.

President Charles Hitch, of the University of California said: "We are deeply disappointed . . . we must now reassess our building program and the impact this will have on the development of new campuses and medical schools and facilities for new students. I hope alternative forms of financing can be found."

DISTURBANCES PROMPT LOSS

Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke said of the 18 campus state college system: "Many observers attributed the loss to the public's reaction to campus disturbances . . . However, the need for classrooms remains. Most of our campuses are bursting at the seams with spiraling enrollments."

The loss denied UCSB at least nine million dollars in new construction funds, as well as an additional five million in federal matching funds that were contingent upon the availability of state support.

The funds would have been used for five major building projects on this campus, spread over the next three years.

Acting Chancellor Buchanan indicated that Marine Biology Unit 2, the College of Creative Studies Building, and Engineering Unit 2 will be hardest hit.

Santa Barbara Mayor Don MacGillivray and Congressman Charles Teague were clearly swept to key Republican victories at least partially on the issue of campus unrest and dissent.

CRUCIAL DEFEAT

MacGillivray's defeat of incumbent Assemblyman Win Shoemaker was crucial in the delicate balance that apparently shifted control in the state assembly away from the Democrats. Among other things, this development clearly implies that Republican leader Robert Monagan, a long time critic of the University, will replace Jesse Unruh on the Board of Regents in the ex officio capacity of Assembly Speaker.

Stanley Sheinbaum's overwhelming defeat at the hands of Teague was a bitter disappointment to the coalition of New Leftists and McCarthyites that had supported Sheinbaum's idealistic campaign. (Continued on p. 6, col. 2)

UMAS Blasts EL GAUCHO; Claims 'Insensitive to Goals'

By RUTH BRINTON
EG Staff Writer

UMAS has lashed out strongly against EL GAUCHO for insensitivity to its activities and goals.

UMAS spokesman Joel Garcia said that EL GAUCHO had failed to cover several UMAS-sponsored activities over this past week-end. As an example, Garcia cited the appearance of El Teatro Campesino, the Farm Workers Theatre of Delano, in Campbell Hall Saturday night. EL GAUCHO, in an editorial Friday, had urged students to attend, but then, Garcia said, did not follow up by sending a reporter.

"We're being taken lightly," claimed Garcia, "This is the first time the University has had something that the Chicanos can relate to. The conference was a positive, constructive thing. The student media should realize its responsibilities. I don't think we were forgotten; I don't think we were ever recognized to be forgotten."

As a result of this, UMAS has formulated a resolution which they presented to Leg Council last night. The resolution reads as follows:

If EL GAUCHO is incapable of relating relevantly and sensitively to the Mexican-American community on this campus it becomes necessary to demand that either

(1) funds which have been allocated to EL GAUCHO be cut back in order to allow the Mexican-American students on this campus to put out a newspaper which will meet their needs and inform the campus community of important issues or

S.F. State Classes Cancelled; City Police 'Disperse' Students

By BECCA WILSON
EG Staff Writer

Classes were cancelled at San Francisco State College yesterday as a result of campus demonstrations in which students protested the suspension of Black Panther George Murray from his teaching position there.

After hearing rumors of disturbances on campus which followed a large rally at noon, S.F. State's President Robert Smith summoned the city police. No arrests or injuries were reported, but police "secured" all buildings, and made students disperse from them.

At 2 p.m. Smith ordered the campus shut down until this morning. Black and white students left quietly in response to a directive from the BSU.

Later in the day, Smith told newsmen that he was considering taking action against the BSU, which had originally called for a protest strike yesterday morning.

The Associated Press reported that classes had been disrupted, windows were broken, and "assaults" occurred. However, The Gater, S.F. State's newspaper, denied that classes had been disrupted or that violence had taken place. According to the paper, a few minor "scuffles" occurred after the rally, but no one was injured, and consequently, calling the police was unwarranted.

It was claimed that classes were disrupted because black students interrupted them to ask students to join the strike. Many apparently did leave their classes, and roamed around campus carrying signs.

But students claimed that they "didn't want the cops on campus." The BSU yesterday morning asked students "not to do anything to make Smith call the cops," according to The Gater.

Murray was finally suspended, under orders from State College Chancellor Glenn Dumke. The reason given was that Murray was said to have told black students to "arm" themselves against the "racist administration."

Election Day Protests--Big March in Palo Alto

(AP)--An election protest march in Palo Alto led by folk-singer Joan Baez erupted into a noisy disturbance Tuesday night before about 100 policemen cleared the streets of the estimated 1000 demonstrators.

Five persons were arrested for refusal to disperse, police said. There were no reports of injuries.

In San Francisco, members of the Youth International Party, the Yippies, paraded their presidential candidate--a pig--through the downtown streets. In Southern California, the Students for a Democratic Society failed to gain wide support for planned classroom boycotts and demonstrations.

Miss Baez and her husband David Harris, draft resistor

David Harris, fresh from his Palo Alto march, will be in Campbell Hall at 4 p.m. and the UCen at 6 p.m. today.

and former Stanford University student body president, led the mile-long candlelight march from the Stanford campus to a downtown Palo Alto bank parking lot.

They called the march "an allegorical wake protesting the choice of candidates in the presidential election."

The crowd grew as rock 'n roll bands played and several youths burned what they said were their draft cards. Others pounded on garbage cans and chanted "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh, the NLF is gonna win."

As police received complaints of small bonfires and blocked streets they swept through the 10 block area near the entrance to the Stanford campus.

At seven Southern California campuses faculty members reported no noticeable change in attendance despite the SDS call for a boycott. Brief rallies involving about 200 students each were staged at Los Angeles City College and California State College at Los Angeles. No incidents were reported.

At Claremont Men's College about 150 students including many Black Student Union members conducted a one hour sit-down in the streets but dispersed voluntarily when police were summoned

The People Have Spoken: What's The Response

ISSUE: What do the results of the national, statewide, and local elections mean to us?

The Gipper pulled it out. Horatio Alger and Madison Avenue put together a victory. The resurrection is complete. The press has Richard Nixon to kick around again. Richard Nixon is alive and well at a toy factory near you.

The voters spoke (although it took plenty long to figure out what they were saying). The prospect of a Wallace pushing the election into the House of Representatives (or even being elected!) has been put off, at least until 1972.

The voters spoke against the University. Proposition 3, the University and state college bond issue, became the first higher education bond issue in California to fail. Winfield Shoemaker, a strong supporter of the University, was soundly defeated by a man who ran on Eldridge Cleaver and common sense. In this area, Max Rafferty would have won.

And Spiro T. Agnew has become Vice President.

What it all boils down to is that this country will have a conservative interregnum. Richard Nixon promised a slow-down on laws designed to change the social structure in this country. The voters apparently agreed with him.

What the country has not realized yet is that the social structure of this nation is changing so fast already that the laws of the land are not keeping up with the changes. To slow down attempts to make the laws change with the society now may lead to the end of the American social fabric.

As the black man and the brown man begin to gain true freedom, as the technological changes of the last decade begin to work their effects, as war no longer becomes a rational answer to ideological problems, it seems obvious to us that if the government of the United States is to be at all relevant, then it must change with the society.

To be sure, Nixon says that he is going to change things around in this country, but his changes are all variations on an old theme. "Black capitalism" is at best a stop-gap solution to the narrowing gap between supply and demand which frustrates the ghetto dwellers. A volunteer army is still an army.

Nixon and those whom he swept into office have quite a little task in front of them. The country is at a crisis point unparalleled since the Civil War. Alienation rides under every move. Fear continues to conquer.

It should be an interesting four years.

Life at UCSB

By DONALD PRICE
(Last in the Series)

Black men in America are experiencing a much needed and vitally important cultural and social revolution during these wild and turbulent times. As black men we are starting to assert ourselves—culturally and socially. We are not going to sneak in back doors any longer. It's either the front door with our heads held high or not at all.

We have waited and hoped for great miracles too long. It is now up to us to demand and place our cultural traits and contributions to the eyes of the world. The culture we are going to put forth will not be the stereotyped lackey eating watermelon and dancing, but our truer selves.

We want all the world to know that Alexander Dumas and Alexander Puskin were black men. The time has come when contributions by black men cannot be slighted anymore. America, erase those myths and lies about the black man from your mind. Judge us for what we are—men. Men who take pride in being men; men who want their cultural backgrounds truthfully told.

If America is ever to become a Union of Fifty States, it is now time to start cultural assimilation. No country can call itself a nation when its people are in such ignorance of each other. Ignorance could possibly be the downfall of this nation.

In understanding its people, America is in the lower division. If this country is the "melting pot" of cultures as it so proudly claims, why is it that black culture has been buried under a pile of asinine nonsense? Has black culture contributed so little that is nonessential? Are the contributions of George Washington Carver, James Baldwin and Martin Luther King so unimportant?! Think about it!

It is documented in history that black men had a flourishing culture while the predecessors of today's Europeans were still living in caves. The black man's culture is not just awakening. It is simply being revitalized. We are capable of doing more than laughing and eating watermelons, very much so.

On Tuesday, November 19, a play entitled "Power of Gold" will be presented in Campbell Hall. This play will be a good indication of blacks in production writing and acting roles. If by chance you were in New York during the summer, did you get a chance to view "Hello, Dolly!"—the one that got the stirring and triumphant reviews—the all black "Hello, Dolly!"?

LETTERS

Swing, Doors

I write in reference to the EL GAUCHO editorial which considers methods of improving relations between the faculty and the students ("The Door Swings Both Ways"). Certainly as the university grows and Parkinson's Law affects all levels of organization, the probability of any "human interaction" (in your terms) between a given student and the faculty and administration tends to diminish and it is highly desirable that this trend be, if not reversed, at least abated.

The question is then, what means does one take to overcome the "psychological blocks?" If, in supporting the Leg Council's efforts in this direction, you also support their proposals that faculty members "alter their appearance" and open the Faculty Club to students, I must object to your reasoning.

I have it on good authority that the wearing of a coat and tie does not bind one's tongue nor does it frighten civilized peoples. The proposal of what any group in the university should or should not wear is no less a transgression of personal freedoms than Reagan's beards detract from campuses' comment, and should receive just as much consideration. 'Faculty' is different from 'Students,' that perhaps tastes in clothes differ should surprise no one, nor should it prevent communication.

As to admitting students to the Faculty Club, this suggestion negates the entire concept of such a club, as a place where faculty may momentarily retreat from the demands of teaching and scholarship with their colleagues and contemporaries. But no matter how long the office hours nor the depth of the descent of the administrators from their office, the initiative must reside with the student. Sweatshirted professors and students lounging about the Faculty Club are simplistic and unconstructive means of obtaining the desired end. The door 'swings' a lot more when students come in to the community of scholars than when the faculty go out.

Thoughts from Fiji

The University will be destroyed! Eat your heart and your guts out, every day, every Regents' meeting let Ronnie Baby, Slapsy Maxy and all the others eat away at what you've been working for, talking about and going to the big U to get. But, don't make waves. Don't let the good citizens of California (the 100,000 plus students of the University don't really count, do they?) know you've got the brains, the concern, the feeling, even the soul to feel about your U.

"But we don't want it destroyed!"

Be that secret den of good thoughts (aren't they all), just don't let anybody know you're really "concerned" about the university. So concerned you'd drive 900 miles in one day, 5,000 strong. So concerned you'd march to the steps of the state capitol in Sacramento to let the new governor know that you are the university and you'll bloody well do with it what you want. Only, after you've done all that driving (it was tiring, Susan, wasn't it?) kind of forget about the fact that it was a protest of passion. When telling Mommy and Daddy just show them those L.A. Times photos of the march. "See, everyone wearing a tie, no beards. And no signs! Weren't we civilized!"

Weren't we insane!

Last March, here in Fiji, I received a copy of EL GAUCHO—one year anniversary of the march; Reagan's temporary budget cuts. Hah! We've stood back and said placate the devil now and we won't have him next year. Don't be too conspicuous in your protest and he'll go away and we will not have upset anyone. Good P.R. and all.

Now I read that the Black Student Union takes over

Malcolm X Hall and Free Campus, not learning from the past and therefore doomed to repeat it, hollers halt. Don't upset the masses . . . Save the university.

I'm as white as the sands of this tropical island, but when it comes to the university, we're all blacks in a white man's Ronald Reagan world. What's worse, too many of us are those blacks Malcolm X describes in his autobiography who are actually emulating the whites; they hate themselves so much, killing themselves mentally and physically to be whiter than white. Man, the university just ain't white. By its very nature it's going to come up with ideas, with people, with aspirations revolutionarily different from "white" society around.

Save the University? Save it to be run as a trade school for Ronald Reagan? For what? It's our university and if we don't give every ounce of support, not just words but physical, to every attempt to let others know that we are the university, then we are lost.

I read about what's happening at Santa Barbara with tremendous respect and admiration. If the university goes down, it will have gone down fighting. But the hope is that the university's inevitable loss will be stemmed by the gallant actions of the "Blacks"—every university student.

Nuclear Ignorance

Richard Panofsky's letter in last Friday's EL GAUCHO, in which he stated that Peggy Burnside and myself perpetrated a misunderstanding, is indicative of Mr. Panofsky's ignorance on the subject of university nuclear research.

First, we did not imply that the Lawrence Radiation Lab at Berkeley is receiving money from the Nuclear Science Fund (NSF). Second, if Mr. Panofsky feels that we perpetrated a misunderstanding, he tried to counteract it by perpetrating one himself when he implied that the Nuclear Consortium receives only "public funds."

According to Dr. Eisberg of the Physics Department, the consortium has received money from the NSF in the last year. As we stated, the NSF derives most of its money from overhead reimbursements on AEC contracts with the university, and two of these contracts are with the Lawrence Rad Lab and the Los Alamos Scientific Lab which work in conjunction with one another. (As we outlined earlier, the primary purpose of Los Alamos is this country's nuclear stockpile.

Although the future research to be done by the Nuclear Consortium will supposedly be for basic nuclear research, it remains to be seen just what will come of it. This is something we all must watch and question; this was the primary aim of our story. We described in depth how funds from AEC contracts penetrate the field of the university's nuclear research, financing more research in many cases, much of which is war-related. This is something that many people don't realize, and something that needs bringing out.

I invite Mr. Panofsky to contact me at the EL GAUCHO office, if he so disposes, and I will discuss this with him, and make available our sources of information.

Defend Yourself! Cannon(ball) Is Coming!

By RALPH J. GLEASON

If jazz is in the sorry state some of its detractors think it is in, losing its audience and all that, I suggest a heavy dose of the music by Julian "Cannonball" Adderley, whose group is currently at the Jazz Workshop.

Cannonball's group, in its program, covers the whole spectrum of jazz and extends it to include rhythm and blues. The principle being one of inclusion, rather than exclusion, a problem which has beset jazz over the years.

Notes on the Underground

By ROGER SMITH

The appearance of the Cannonball Adderley Quintet in Campbell Hall tomorrow night might well be a landmark in this quarter's entertainment calendar. The rare appearance of both Cannonball and Nat Adderley on the same stage has prompted both Capitol and A&M records to send representatives to the concert.

Also on the bill is the result of some heavy jamming that has been going on in I.V. for some time, namely the Ray Lucas Group. The entire show promises to please the audience as well as the record company people.

Pleasing the audience seems to be the main problem facing the A.S. Concerts and Social Committee people this year. Heading into the Cannonball Adderley concert, the A.S. is battling none for three on the year.

The Pat Paulson gig was undoubtedly the best produced concert of the year, mainly because it was a package show done up in Hollywood and then sent out on the road with efficient road managers that could bring off a show in a cow pasture in Tulare. Still, the show was a colossal $3,000 loser.

The problem is that the A.S. has extremely enthusiastic, but unexperienced people producing concerts. Perhaps the answer to the problem is a suggestion box in the A.S. office. Sort of a "suggest-a-concert" type of arrangement. Then the concert people would have a variety of successful combinations from which to "snatch defeat from the jaws of victory."

The other evening at the Jazz Workshop, Adderley offered a composition dedicated to (and named for) "Sweet Emma." "Sweet Emma" Barret is a New Orleans historic figure still active in that city and the number, which featured Nat Adderley on cornet, was sweetly melodic and rhythmic as well.

A little earlier the group played a composition of pianist Joe Zawinul, "Rumpelstiltskin," which had a blues-ish feeling to it and sang with joy at the same time. In the same set, Zawinul's composition "Walk Tall," which is a striding, pulsating number, brought the house swaying to a roar of applause.

The thing about the Adderley unit which over the years has consistently had a high musical level of achievement, is that it swings. Everything it does moves. In addition, it has original material by the Adderleys and Zawinul and it has good soloists as well.

At one point in the evening, the group played a composition of Zawinul called "Early Chanson" which was really a quartet number featuring a remarkable interplay between the cornet of Nat Adderley, the bass of Victor Gaskin and the piano of Zawinul. It was a charming number, classical in design and in feeling and done with superb technical skill. It made a great impression on the audience, even though they had not been prepared for anything as delicate.

Incidentally the Adderley group offers some modern innovations. Victor Gaskin doubles on Fender (electric) bass and Zawinul doubles on electric piano. The sounds these two instruments produce give the group a most contemporary feeling and Roy McCurdy's drumming, which alternates between a first rate rhythm and blues pattern and a jazz style depending on the number, flashes it out.

It is all helped, in general appeal, by the fact that Joe Zawinul is the composer of "Mercy, Mercy," the rhythm and blues anthem which is featured by groups all over the country these days. There are innumerable recordings of it, almost every rhythm and blues band plays it and it is so well known that the audience recognized it at the first chord.

There's another point about the Adderley group, one which was very obvious at the recent concert in Oakland at which they appeared. This group digs entertaining. They have a good time and they expect the audience to have a good time too. It's not only in the flamboyant dress they feature or in the satiric but warm introductions Cannonball makes to the tunes (he's the band's chief vocalist in a sense), but it is in their entire manner on stage.

And audiences react to this. You can have a good time listening to the Adderley group and a good time is hard to find these days.

NUC Seeks Greater Student Participation

Student representation in the Academic Senate and voice in University operation were the major discussion topics at the first meeting of the New University Conference, October 31. Composed of faculty and grad students, the NUC is designed to encourage greater student participation so that students may eventually have a part in planning their curriculum, revising the rules and regulations concerning student discipline, and appointing and firing faculty. "The University is interested in its own public image, not its own students. As soon as we rock the boat, the money dries up." It was suggested that the formation of an apolitical broad-based organization, such as a student union, would be able to use its collective power on the "bread and butter issues."

One of the organizers noted that the "apathetic majority is not excited or concerned about abstract issues, they are only concerned when the issues are on their immediate level." Committees of faculty, grad students, and undergraduates were formed to further delve into the eminent issues.

Experimental College Here?

Interested in trying to form an Experimental College here at UCSB? Legislative Council last week formed an ad-hoc committee to look into the possibilities of an Experimental College "because there is a wide range of courses which should be offered at UCSB which at this time cannot be offered to the average student under the present academic set-up."

The A.S. needs your help, though, in making this program a success. So go to the A.S. office today, and give your name to Paul Sweet or Mike Nagler and let's get this thing going.

Conservative County Coup

Sheinbaum told supporters not to give up their fight for the ideals they've come to be recognized as representing--peace, honesty and accountability in government, and opposition to racism and imperialism. Sheinbaum called the race "largely an educational process" for the voters of the Thirteenth District.

Teague returns to Congress for the eighth time, sweeping to a nearly 2-1 victory. The final results stood at Teague 148,357; Sheinbaum 76,928. Sheinbaum made his best showing in Ventura County, where he was defeated 73,939 to 40,351. As usual, Teague topped other winning candidates with his victory, amassing 12,565 more votes than Richard Nixon in Santa Barbara County.

Isla Vista, as expected, went heavily for Humphrey, Cranston, Sheinbaum, and to a lesser degree, Shoemaker. Final Presidential results included Nixon, 322; Humphrey 737; Wallace 24. Senatorial returns showed a clear cut Cranston victory of 804 to 232 over Max Rafferty, with Peace and Freedom candidate Paul Jacobs logging 63 votes. Sheinbaum whipped Teague by a heavy 825-325 margin, while Shoemaker prevailed 833 to 460 over MacGillivray.

Hitch, Buchanan on Prop. 3; Hurts Three UCSB Buildings

President Hitch has issued the following statement on the defeat of Proposition 3:

"We are deeply disappointed at the failure of Proposition 3. I want to thank those who worked so hard and faithfully for its passage and the many people who voted for it. We must now reassess our building program and the impact this vote will have on the development of new campuses and medical schools and facilities for new students. I hope that alternate ways of financing can be found."

The defeat of Proposition 3 will have a delaying effect on the development of the Santa Barbara campus as well as on the rest of the University. There are three basic ways of funding capital construction--bond funding, federal funding, and pay-as-you-go funding. The defeat of Proposition 3 not only eliminates bonds, but the federal funds which they generate, and leaves pay-as-you-go as the only present source of funding. This source will necessarily have to be reassessed in the light of the removal of the other sources of income.

The result will, of course, be a delay in construction. This delay will cut across the campus building program, affecting adversely such projects as Marine Biology Unit 2, the College of Creative Studies Building, and Engineering Unit 2.

Generally ascribed as leading causes of the defeat of Proposition 3 are the widespread opposition of voters to any increase in expenditures as evidenced in the defeat of other measures and the student unrest in colleges and universities. Those who voted against Proposition 3 because of the latter reason ignored the fact that only a minority of students have been involved in activism.

Furthermore, the students hurt by the defeat of Proposition 3 are not the activist students of today but the college and university students of tomorrow. Students now in high school are those who would have had the advantages of buildings and facilities provided for in the proposed bond issues.

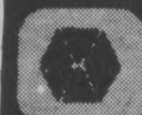

Now they are faced with the possibility that there may not be room for them, or, if they are admitted, with the prospect of crowded facilities. Students now in school will also be hurt if they remain for several years in undergraduate or graduate studies, because the required facilities may not be available.

A. RUSSELL BUCHANAN
Acting Chancellor

NAILING IT HOME
The QB
 ALAN GOLDHAMMER

The field of battle in the fall is the gridiron. The generals are named Starr, Unitas, Hanratty, Phipps, and Curtice. The foot soldiers are people with common names like Simpson and Post.

Like a war, football is a game that must out of necessity be planned out ahead of time. Strategy is talked and retalked. Plans must be made and finalized; weaknesses must be found and exploited. The attacking general bears the full responsibility for any hope of victory and must avoid the Westmoreland pitfalls.

While the pros cavort in front of crowds and nationwide television, there are teams that are not so lucky as to play on Astro-turf, this is another breed of player who faces Little Big Horn every week and sometimes more than once a week.

The generals are not named Tarkenton or Hadl but are called Rube and Lennie.

Craig Rubenstein is now in his third year of competitive flag football. In his first two seasons he guided the Sig Eps to the All-School Championship with resounding victories each time. He is the epitome of the money ball player. When the pressure is on Rube is up to the challenge.

Witness last year! The Eps had been crushed by the Lambda Chis earlier in the season on a wet field, and went into the championship game as six point underdogs. With Craig showing more moves than Little Egypt, the Red Army played like a horde of angry men and smothered the Lambdas 34-0.

Rubenstein possesses a sixth sense, a sort of radar that enables him to elude the oncoming rush and give his receivers more than enough time to get free. He has been so effective at this that the opposing defense is under constant stress. With the dip of a hip and the flip of a wrist, the ball is launched in a near perfect spiral into the waiting hands of a Matthews or an Ahler in the endzone.

With the drive and ambition that so much characterized his days as an infielder on Coach Gorrie's baseball team, Bill Kringlen is again at the helm of the Lambda Chis. For him football has been a series of futile attempts to capture the big one. Lennie has always played in the shadows of the Rubensteins and the Steve Murrys, yet manages to turn in a yeoman performance.

Although not possessed with great speed or an exceptional arm, he has always been able to deliver the ball to the right spot at the right time. He is always the lead blocker on the feared Lambda sweep which so characterizes their brand of ball control.

Kringlen is optimistic about this season which will be his last before retirement sets in. This is the one he wants and if desire is any key he should come close to achieving it. Again the Sig Eps are in the same league as his own Lambda Chi team, so the opportunity for revenge will come before the playoffs.

The big game is set for Nov. 20 and while the participants will not be Meredith and Starr, the game takes on many of the features of a Green Bay-Dallas tilt. It all boils down to which quarterback has the hotter hand and cooler mind.

Frosh Poloists Take Crown In Consolation Competition

Running their season record to 11-5, the frosh water poloists captured the consolation championship in the Southland Tournament at Santa Ana J.C. Tuesday.

After dropping their opening contest to Santa Ana, 10-7, the freshmen went on to face Riverside J.C. Riverside, however, had already lost to the Gauchos earlier this year, and not wishing to do so again, forfeited.

In the final game the yearlings squared off against San Bernardino, and "scoring at will" according to coach Bob Gary, clobbered them 12-3.

"We were just too much for them," Gary said, a fact which becomes interesting when one learns that San Bernardino was seeded above the Gauchos, resulting in the freshmen having to play Santa Ana in the first round.

In that game "we got off to a slow start and couldn't catch them after that," lamented Gary. Down at halftime 5-2, the Gauchos opened the third quarter with two goals in 20 seconds to come within one goal.

They were about to get that tying goal minutes later, but a bad pass on the fast break resulted in Santa Ana scoring instead. "That broke our back," said Gary.

"Dirk Munteen played a very strong game against Santa Ana, as did Alan Smith," Gary commented.

Saturday the freshmen close their season against the UOP J.V.s in a 3:30 p.m. game here.

Sigma Chi Clobbers SAE In High Scoring Contest

By CLAY KALLAM
 EG Sports Staff

If you like touchdowns, Tuesday was a good day.

If you like one-sided scores, Tuesday was a good day.

If you like Sigma Chi, Tuesday was a great day.

Resplendent in its new uniforms, Sigma Chi showed a new look and a new power in IM football to the spectators watching the SAE-Sigma Chi game Tuesday as they trounced the third ranked SAEs, 38-26.

Quarterback Bob Crouse riddled the SAE pass defense with short swings and delays to halfbacks Phil Rightmer and Bob Oehlman, and 15 to 20 yard passes to center Terry Fosburg as the Sigs scored every time except one that they had the ball.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon missed flags with reckless abandon and couldn't seem to adjust to the short game of Sigma Chi which is so different from the normal intramural offense. The offense scored well and moved well but it was not enough.

Curt Hodding opened the scoring for Sigma Chi with a two yard TD reception and extra point, followed by Carl Bryan's 60 yard ramble for SAE. Oehlman then scored the first of his three TDs to put Sigma Chi ahead once more but Al Altree pulled in a fifth down Wayne Bryan pass for the tying touchdown.

However, the Sigs opened the second half with an Oehlman TD to grab a lead that they never relinquished. After an interception, Oehlman scored again to make it 26-13 and it looked like it was all over.

But the SAEs did not give up. Wayne Bryan spotted Bill Graham all alone for a 45 yard TD and with less than five minutes to go Sigma Chi held onto a slim 26-20 margin. But Oehlman scored for the third time, and following another interception, Terry Fosburg pulled in a 40 yard TD pass to wrap it up, 38-26.

The top-ranked Delts had some trouble with the Alpha Delts, holding only a one point lead at halftime and being tied 13 all late in the second half, but Dave Shoji and Don Gutman scores put it away for the Delts, 26-13. Greg Smaak scored 12 points as the Alpha Delts again played a good game against a good team, but lost.

Pass/Fail racked up their third straight win, and their third straight 30-plus game as they edged Sigma Pi, 33-26. John Fasola scored 24 points in that game.

In today's action, the Phi Delts will match up with Lambda Chi to see if they can do to number four what the Sigs did to number three. However, Barry Stockwell may not play due to a leg injury, leaving Mike Miller as the Phi Delt quarterback. But, coming off a 19-7 loss to the Sig Eps, Phi Delta Theta (to coin a phrase) has everything to gain and nothing to lose today at 4 p.m.
