Cheadle announces opposition to Academic Senate proposal

By PETE YOUNG
Editor-in-chief

Chancellor Vernon L. Cheadle yesterday announced his opposition to a proposed resolution on "free speech" recently submitted to the Senate. The resolution was presented in a form of a mail ballot to the 332 members of the UCSB Academic Senate.

Dr. Cheadle called the resolution "unintelligible." The resolution, which was composed by arguments for and against the resolution, already have reached many senate members.

Votes will be returned by mail--which means the result will not be known until after the Christmas recess.

The proposed resolution expresses confidence in University President Clark Kerr and Chancellor Cheadle, but also expresses measures which go beyond existing University regulations.

It declares that the University "ought not, and is under obligation to, limit or suppress the content of speech or advocacy, whether on or off the campus, unless the normal function of the University is interfered with.

Further, it holds that "we encourage the further discussion of the public laws governing speech or advocacy, whether on or off the campus, even with the civil authorities.'"

In a statement prepared for EL GAUCHO, Dr. Cheadle said:

"There seems general agreement that under President Kerr's urging great progress has been made toward complete and responsible freedom of expression on the University campuses. Consequently, we must be sympathetic to the confidence in President Kerr expressed in the resolution. And naturally I am pleased to have the expression of confidence from all constituents of our University community in a useful manner. However, I think the Senate, in speaking for the students, should have spoken for the two resident faculty, and the other faculty members who must interface with the normal function of the University in a responsible manner.

Gold problem viewed

"The international monetary problem has come home to the people of the United States because the country is not taking in as much international money (gold) as it should," stated Dr. Asben Lerner, economic theorist and UCSB Lecturer. "In this way, we get from our exports a billion dollars or more, which we convert into dollars, and in this way I think we get the smallest view of the problem."

According to Lerner, the problem is borrowing and paying out in gold. "If we now hold in FL, know only in concept the liquidity of our international monetary gold--a percentage slightly diminished from 1948--it is like looking at a problem through magnifying glasses."

Lerner suggested that the United States could announce that it will no longer buy gold at the standing price and that the United States would be free to implement a domestic policy of maximum employment without worrying about the outflow of gold.

Lerner visualizes nations of the world giving the United States gold and services for its paper dollars. Profit from the operation would be turned over to the United Nations as aid for less fortunate countries.

The problem with the plan, says Lerner, is that it would not be accepted. Even though "a proper correction of the international money problem would be a devaluation of the dollar in gold, we've never come about as long as everyone thinks of it as a degrading the country."
A primer in patriotism

What's wrong at Berkeley?

Some of America's best known patriots have stepped forward of late in recent weeks to enlighten the University Regents, as non-boarded students and the people of the good state of California.

John Roxeselot of the John Birch Society tells us the Commu nists are active in the Free Speech Movement, in a manner which reminds us of a grand tradition begun in the 1950's, Roxeselot said he wouldn't mention names, but by golly, he'd reveal the list.

Not only that, one writer warned in the San Francisco Exam iner, but the Marxist (or is it Communist?) dominated FSM is only one part of a larger program of "planned agitation" designed to sweep youth into the "camp of communism" at colleges and universities all over the West Coast.

Worse than that, the problem is of such proportions that FM Director J. Edgar Hoover— at a time when anarchists, mid night bombers and murderers remain at large in the South— one UCSB student who actually attended a few meetings of the federal brother, may take a long, hard look at Berkeley faculty members as an object they will be able to wrath with impunity.

His language is a mixture of name-calling, innuendo, and harangue. Thus he calls the FSM "socialist" and Communist. This is obviously no more than prejudicial assertion without any basis in fact. In other words, it is name-calling and no more, for the right to free speech is not a Communist ideal.

Mr. Schwarz also calls the fdm student a "boring" student. "administration nycorias," apparently because they don't agree with his own peculiar outlook.

An example of not-too-subtle innuendo is Mr. Hutchison's description of the FSM as "peculi arly oriented." He is accusing the FSM of Communism, homosexuality, worse? Or does he mean that it is oddly placed in relation to the rising sun or that it has an unusual number of Oriental members?

The heretic element in Mr. Hutchinson's letter is indicated by his dictum: "the FSM, the neo-politicians, the muddled junior leftists, the administration representatives, the well-dressed young Turks, would-be campus fascists, FAC and the House Square," "psycholog ically disturbed students," "an illusory soap box for the "communistic" lodge-pole's.

This kind of senseless ad

neering matters no com ment. Like dirty laundry, it speaks for itself!

Mr. Hutchison seems to derive a great deal of satisfac tion from the fact that he pays taxes and votes, I say, "(C) multiple, obnoxious, Cheers! Triple hurrah!" for your take.

All through your letter you mention various "reasons for com son" and other poor techniques of "selling FSM as a threat", and never mention what they were fighting for.

Let us wrap up your letter in only one way: a disgraceful frac sion within the Federation.

ANDY MANER

President, Business Economics

Editor: Circumstances and conditions change with the years and what was successful at one point in time need not be so at another; and we are not so rash as to expect the approach of the Free Speech Movement to be ideally suited for the students of today.

However, in order to properly understand your letter I must know about and understand the past. This letter is written in the hope that this past is not forgotten and that the actions based upon conditions at the Univer sity of California in the 1950's may be of some help in re searching the current state of affairs.

The Free Speech Movement has stated that current University regulations violate the students' freedom of speech and freedom of as sembly. This kind of senseless slog ney is not an unique problem, but the Free Speech Movement has stated that the problem has been exacerbated by a lack of on-campus facilities to student groups, further compounded by non-University or -AUGUC organization could present programs on campus.

Furthermore, in order for the Free Speech Movement to proceed, the Free Speech Movement was necessary to pre empt a problem by a panel of qualified judges at the BAR-7 TIME and in the SAME PLACE.

In practice this meant that nothing of a controversial nature was presented, dis cussed, or debated on the cam pus. This rule was based upon an Amendment to the Constitution of the State Constitution (November, 1953) which states: "The University shall be entirely independent of all political or sectarian influence and kept free therefrom in the appointment of its regents and in the administration of its affairs." In 1953 a group of students, knowing that the policy based upon this amendment was wrong, attempted to change it. They realized that petitions and demonstrations would do little good and would not alter University policy, and so they decided to do it in a manner befitting mature and responsible citizens. They wrote to other universities here and abroad in order to ascertain what regulations were in effect there and how they were operated in practice.

After compiling this information they drafted and pre pares the FSM regulations, which is now in the process of being discussed by the Students' Senate. These regulations include the right of free speech and assemble ly for the students on the one hand and protection of the University's welfare and re putation on the other. The Regents consistently consulted with the student body before the Free Speech Committee of the Aca demic Senate, and the Executive Committee (Student Senate) of The tragedy at the Greek Theatre

(First appeared last week in the San Francisco Chronicle in Ralph 2, Glenson's column, "On the Town.")

"I agree with you that this may seem to be a rather theatrical performance today," President Kerr said as the tragedy was presented by the University of California Monday in the Greek Theatre. In his analysis he added "thanks to the audience, not to those of us here."

And what he said had the sad ring of a truth greater than he knew before, as it has since the beginning, the dynamic of the whole tragical-comedy, the whole farce, the whole incredible sequence of events has, indeed, come from the students and not from their elders.

(Continued from p. 2) The Associated Students. After eight times they presented their findings to President Sproul, who in turn presented the request to the Board of Regents.

Subsequently Rule 17 was changed and the new rule was identical to the student-suggested rule in all but two respects. The Faculty Senate rejected the students' recommendation that the group of speakers who were "predominantly" of students and students, and not of faculty, be composed "exclusively" of students and students. It maintained the prohibition against the appearance of candidates for local and state offices.

From 1957 to the present the right of students to speak in public is a question of "rhetoric of ten weeks that history will remember. Literature, poetry and history are not made by a smooth jowl and a blue suit. They are made with sweat and passion and dedication to truth and honor."

Editor's Mail Box

Ears to ground

Editor: Our local, state and national governments keep their ears to the ground (the people) through the polls and other legitimate means. The University keeps its ear to the ground (the students) through selection of representatives to Legislative Council and through its many sub-committees, each dealing with a specific aspect of student life and/or problems, and each designed to receive student requests.

Did Berkeley's FSM stay on the ground long enough to attempt to be heard by that listening ear before it suddenly took flight and stomped on the other ear? Did FSM exhaust all legitimate means of expression of grievances before it took to its unlawful Sproul Hall sanctuary?

If so, then perhaps no other course of action was open to them than the one they took. However, from all I have read concerning the situation, doubt that they have exhausted all legal avenues.

If I am correct in this assumption then I sincerely hope that the December 18 meeting of the Regents results in rejection of the recommendations of the Academic Senate. This rejection will (I hope) destroy the threatening precedent of achieving political and social goals through unlawful acts.

A dirty ear doesn't hear very well, but it can be clumsy, stomp on that ear and you injure it. An injured ear doesn't hear at all.

Associated Students Christmas Openhouse is being held tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Associated Students Circles, in the student complex area.

All faculty members and students are encouraged to drop by; people will be available to answer any questions on AS structure and operations. Refreshments will be served.

Senate voices pros and cons of resolution

(Continued from p. 1) -- can work together to reexamine the specific campus regulations and customs in any way called into question by the recent difficulties in Berkeley or by legitimate proposals from responsible students on our own campus.

The resolution also claims the advantage of usefully informing the Board of Regents, the press, and the public in a broad, nonsensational way that this Division of the Associated Senate is not only ready to support creative solutions from other sources but is able to provide independent, responsible leadership when such leadership is needed.

If we are to be realistic, we must realize that we no longer have a choice between this resolution and some reversion of, or subterfuge for, it. We must remember that the establishment of any body which have now placed us in the position of either accepting or rejecting the resolution exactly as it stands--there is no third possibility--and we must ask ourselves what would be the reaction, not only inside and outside the University community but if we were to reject a resolution that so clearly declares our confidence in President Kerr and Chancellor Cheadle and our belief in free speech for our students and for their invited speakers.

FAITH ASSERTED

"To reject the resolution will not simply be doing nothing. Such a rejection will almost certainly make it appear even to reasonable men--however untrue the appearance may be--that this faculty does not accept the principle of free speech and does not have full confidence in its administrative leaders.

"Another unfortunate consequence of a refusal to act positively at this time will be to deprive the faculty of an opportunity to take, in some degree at least, the initiative. To act now is to move into a position in which we can help to guide the students and in which we can advise the administration and the Regents (as well as educa tion itself) upon this important area of University policy.

"To refuse to reject the Berkeley Division's resolution--is almost certain to create a situation in which any future action of whatever kind will appear to be taken only under the pressure of, or in reaction against, student demands.

"The recent action of the Berkeley whole Division appeared to the members of that Division itself to have taken place in such a situation, and we must not allow ourselves to drift into similar difficulties. To prevent such drift we need only cast an affirmative vote for the resolution before us."

Corle Memorial Collection Contest opens to undergraduate bibliophiles

Students are invited to submit collections of 35-50 books to the Edwin Corle Memorial Undergraduate Book Collection Contest at UCSB. The contest is sponsored by Mrs. Jean Corle in memory of her husband, one of Santa Barbara's noted writers and book collectors. Prizes will total $275.

Each collection will be judged by the extent to which its books represent a well-defined field of interest in which the owner has chosen to collect. If the collection appears in excellence of design and production, the judges will consider this fact in making the awards.

Students are paid for blood donation

Blood bank donors may receive $5 for their contribution if they specify the donation is for the Santa Barbara City Employees Fund. Blood may be taken at the TTV-County Blood Bank, 950 Laguna, in Santa Barbara.

If the donors will mail the orange copy of their receipt and their address to Mrs. C. C. George, 6279 Rio Vincenzi Drive, Santa Barbara, they will be sent a check for a $5 reimbursement.

Santa Barbara City Employees' blood bank is set up to help defray medical expenses of Miss Olin Flachman, a fellow city employee, who passed away before the collection was complete. This money is now being used to purchase blood donors, who are asked to help employees who may need blood in the future.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM CERTAIN MEMBERS OF THE BERKELEY DIVISION OF THE ACADEMIC SENATE TO Colleagues and Students on the Other Campuses of the University of California:

Despite the publicity given to recent events on the Berkeley campus, we fear that teachers and students on the other campuses have not been able to appreciate the true nature of the crisis here. We believe that the problems facing the Berkeley Division when it met on the afternoon of December 8 were of the greatest moment for the entire University. Accordingly, we take this extraordinary means of conveying to you our estimate of the situation and attempting to explain the actions of the Berkeley Division.

On that date the Berkeley Division passed motions toward three primary goals: to effect an end to the virtual warfare between students and campus administration which over a period of two months had brought us to the point of chaos; to resolve the conduct issue which underlay the controversy from its beginning; and to take steps to enable the faculty to play an effective role in the reintegration of a disastrously fragmented community.

It should be understood by all that the Berkeley Division passed, as some reports would have it, capitulating to the pressure of a group of unruly rowdies. It was responding rather to factors which in any situation, or under any circumstances, must exert a determining influence on the character of a university: on the one hand, to the compelling logic of the fundamental principle of our profession; on the other, to the broader social climate within which the university exists.

As long as the "Free Speech Movement" involved only a small portion of the Berkeley students, it was possible—all the more in the light of their actions—for many to regard them simply as a vociferous and sometimes disorderly minority group. But when among the 800 who were arrested on December 3 and the thousands who supported them we found a large proportion of our most mature and thoughtful students, we were impelled to take a more penetrating look at the reasons for their commitment. These young people are part of a generation which is quite different from those which, as educators, we have faced in the recent past. Many of them find themselves alienated from what they regard as a bureaucratised society, and from the increasingly impersonal university through which they have their major contact with that society. They are trying to find meaning for their lives and, finding it hidden on the university in a commitment to the active social movements of today. To an unfortunate extent we, their faculty, have lost touch with them, and this failure of communication inevitably affects adversely the educational process as well as the integration of the educational community. One cannot teach these young people by telling them that their social concerns are irrelevant or by attempting to deny them the activities which are often the focus of their interest as maturing adults. On the contrary, these concerns and activities are an essential part of the social environment in which education at Berkeley, as well as at other campuses in the country, will have to be conducted.

In this context, what are our responsibilities as educators? What restrictions should be placed on student involvement in political and social issues? Our answer is that an educational institution should impose only those limitations of time, place, and manner necessary to preserve the normal functioning of the educational process itself. This answer derives from the fundamental premise of our profession: that we cannot proscribe any idea or any opinion without impairing the search for meaning and for truth which is our commitment as scholars. It is both true and appropriate that social action and its advocacy are subject to certain controls by society at large. It is not our function as educators to define or to enforce these controls. It is the function of the civil authorities.

Out of the threat of chaos we have come to a new comprehension, a renewed conviction and the prospect of a new community. We hope these will be shared by members of the greater University community as well.

She received her BA in chemical engineering in 1963 at Cheng Kung University in Taiwan, and her Ph.D. includes research in nuclear chemistry.

Mrs. Tan stated that at the former, a student is required to complete 168 units for a BA degree. Applicants are expected to fulfill certain requirements for their major, but they are also encouraged to experiment in many areas of study.

In addition, she noted that the professors here seem to have more time to work on research, and that some are doing research on a competitive basis with financial resources (savings, expected to have some other financial need, and promise.

In the Philippines, there are only two seasons -- a rainy season and a dry season. During the dry season, when temperatures become exceedingly high, the government transfers the capital from Manila to Baguio.

While still in Manila, Mrs. Tan, she gained many impressions of the United States from watching American movies. She stated that she has always desired to visit the United States. "In general, the United States has met my expectations," she concluded.

Scholarships aid undergrads

More than 100 scholarships each year are awarded to under-graduate students enrolled on the UCSB campus. Scholarships are distributed through the Committee on Undergraduate Honors, Scholarships, and Prizes.

These scholarships are donated by private individuals, organizations, corporations, or by the Regents of the University, in any range in value from $100 to about $1400 per year. Continuing students must file applications by January 15. It would be advisable if students could return the applications by mail during the holidays. Applicants may obtain the necessary current forms and information from the Committee on Undergraduate Scholarship Office, Admin. 3205.

Bids (scholarships are required to carry a minimum of twelve units each semester. Applicants are expected to have some other financial resource savings, income from parents, etc.) Awards are made on a competitive basis with consideration to the applicant's scholastic record, financial need, and promise.

SAE, El Dorado-Madera, Navajo hold cage leakages

By JIM HARRINGTON

Delta Tau Delta suffered its first loss of the year but almost caused a major upset. At the end of the regulation time, they were tied with the SAE's 35-36. The SAE strength surged onward in the overtime to a 46-38 victory.

Navajo came out on top in Ana-guess. El Dorado-Madera captured the struggle over the Chi Sig's. The struggle was determined. First there will be a round to select the RHA representative. The games will be played between the three classes; RHA, independent, and Fraternity.

Athletes choose to feast or fast

By MIKE IBEREN

"All right men, don't forget to keep in shape over the vacation," bellowed the coach, "Yes Sir." echoed throughout the locker room.

For many Gauchos athletic teams this scene has special meaning. With wrestling, swimming, volleyball, basketball, and gymnastics plunging into their schedules early next year, UCSC's feast fatality chances are high.

While other students feast during vacation, the athlete finds his taste for food, not only physical power, but mental power as well. One instance of feast fatality occurred to student "Mr." of the "77" team last year. Home from the rigorous schedule of training, he relaxed. The result was ten pounds.

Returning to the great University by the lagoon, he found a force greatly increased. "Mr." lost interest in working as he became smaller. His reflexes became slower, he required more energy to do anything. With such pleasures available, his mind found it hard to stop such developments somehow.

Of course he didn't forget sports completely. There were many bowl games on TV. Many caused enough excitement to eat all food. He certainly admired the ability of those major college athletes.

Well, the coach had said maybe we would be major college one day. That might be a whole lot, it certainly would require steady work to do anything. Then came New Year's and someone asked him about his resolutions. He decided then that he would resolve to work especially hard during the next year to do well. After all, this was what the team needed if it were to advance!}

Upon returning to compete the one began. Tim was unfortunately short however, and it seemed almost certain earning his Varsity Letter. This discouraged him somewhat and he slowly lost interest in working as he found others achieving greater athletic heights than himself.

Well he said, since he had to study hard, he didn't have time for athletics. After all, UCSC was not really that athletically good a school, he was not missing that much.

The alibi served him well enough, as it had done others. It didn't help his grades however. He is a fatality of the Christmas feast.

University House is now decorated

By REINA BLUMBERG
Staff Writer

Christmas decorations are up for the first time in University House, overlooking the lagoon. Earlier this year Mrs. Vernon Cheddie, with the advice of local firms, planned another type of decorating -- that of the color schemes and furnishings of the new residence of the Chancellor and his family.

"We had to keep in mind that the tastes of future occupants might differ, but at the same time we wanted to avoid a "huh-uh-uh" effect," said Mrs. Cheddie. Therefore, she chose a warm, rose-beige as her basic color for the carpets and some of the drapes.

Complementing the fundamental color are chair covers, coats and bedspreads in turquoise, corals and greens. Even the tiles in the four bathrooms fit in with the general color scheme. The only thing which doesn't match is the Cheddie's new cat -- "Gauche," she's black.

Christmas dinner and other festive party fare will be prepared in the "planned for entertaining" kitchen. The four ovens should take care of the cooking, with two dishwashers for afternoons.

Club holds dance

Ski Club Christmas Dance, open to all students, is being held tomorrow in the Old Qym. It will run from 8:30 to 11 p.m. The Col-lege holdes dance is now decorated.

Student summer employment listed

Students wishing to work during the summer of 1965 may begin planning during Christmas vacation from information in the 1965 "Summer Employment Directory." There will be 4,000,000 new jobs available throughout the country. The pay is up $50 to $100 in many cases, but employers are more often asking for workers who are at least 18 years of age and experienced. Ask for the "Summer Employment Directory" at the bookstore or send to National Directory Service, Box 32065, Cincinnati, Ohio.

NEW DANCES

Primitive dances better

By SCOTT PIERING
Staff Writer

Remembering when the monkey was a hairy biped, the swim was an alternative to smoking, and the jerk was a hopeless dullard, LOOK magazine, in a recent issue, devoted their entire cover story to the "Primitivism Age," their term describing the younger generation which they feel is characterized by an array of animistic dances.

Indeed, it is in the contention of many people that the outcrop of new dances so fervently practiced by millions of gyrating juveniles, is merely another indication of America's moral decay and outright sexual promiscuity.

For example, the swim and some of its more interesting variations has been labeled "primitive sexual exhibitions" and "exclusively suggestive confusion of random movements."

We see as a possible solution to this problem, the substitution of civilized, meaningful dances to take the place of these new dances.

These new dances could be invented for, and named after famous people, perhaps political figures. What follows then, for the pressing problem, the substitution of its more interesting variations has been characterized by an array of animalistic dances.

1. Goldwater Crawl—This dance is characterized by very little movement. The basic step is a one, two, three, four; all of these steps are being taken backward instead of forward.

2. Strom Thurmond Shift—(She careful, this one is easy to mispronounce) Change partner in the middle of the dance and once this is accomplished, do the Goldwater Crawl the rest of the evening.

3. Mario Savio Mash—Request a number to be played by band. When hand refuses to play it, sit down in the middle of dance floor to prevent other couples from dancing. When hand finally consents to play the number you requested, call it totally unacceptable and request another, more difficult tune.

4. SARTRE SHIMMY

Jean-Paul Sartre Shimmy—Rent ballroom and invite no people and hire no band. Stand alone in middle of dance floor and impress your own steps and music to suit your whim. You may want to invite Ayn Rand to be your partner if the two of you will be willing to compromise your dance techniques.

5. SARTRE SHIMMY

Jean-Paul Sartre Shimmy—Rent ballroom and invite no people and hire no band. Stand alone in middle of dance floor and impress your own steps and music to suit your whim. You may want to invite Ayn Rand to be your partner if the two of you will be willing to compromise your dance techniques.

LAMUNBA LIMBO

The Lamumba Limbo—Dance in a normal manner quietly for a while, without warning, terrorize your partner, entice the help of the couple to your left, Rockefeller Rock—Your don't really get much chance to dance doing this one because you are too busy arguing with your partner over who is going to lead.

Rocky Kennedy Shuffle—Sit around for a while in the local dance hall, then go across town to a bigger and better ballroom.

Mac Too Tong Stomp—In this one, since you are angry with your partner, dance along. You must shout, wave your arms, and step on the toes of the couples around you.

Governor Wallace Waltz—You dance in one room while your partner dances in a separate but smaller room to the music of an interior band.

Pat Brown Boomer—Enter the ballroom. When you see that the younger couples aren't doing the same dances they were 20 years ago, call the police and have them arrested. After the floor is cleared, establish a set pattern of dancing from which no one may deviate.

I.D. Jump—Don't worry about stoppage because funds will be appropriated to have someone come in to do the dancing for you.

After seeing some of these alternatives we have to the savage forms of dancing, we begin to think that the primitive exhibition of the swim might be preferable to more "civilized" dancing techniques.

The Big Parade of Comec delights audience

by HARRIET WENGRAF

Bubbling enthusiasm filled a delighted audience as they left Campbell Hall Thursday night following the Opera Workshop's production of Johann Strauss' light operetta "Die Fledermaus."

Set in late nineteenth century Vienna, the plot revolves around one woman and one-loying Gabriel von Eisen- Carl Zytowski, and his lovely wife, Rosalinda, delightfully ac-

tued and sung by Barbara Gor-

den, who made her UCSB debut opening night.

JAIL-BOUND ALFRED Von Eisenstein, instead of going to jail for hitting the sheriff with a tomato, is persuaded by Dr. Falke (Stan Carey) to sneak off to a gala party to be held at Prince Orlofksy's mansion. To com- plicate matters, Alfred (Ed Kemprud) a romantically lo-clined tenor, persistently pur-

suaded by Dr. Falke (Stan Car-

ey) to sneak off to a gala party to be held at Prince Orlofksy's mansion. To com- plicate matters, Alfred (Ed Kemprud) a romantically locident Rosalinda, delightfully ac-

tued and sung by Barbara Gor-
den, who made her UCSB debut opening night.

"Mr. von Eisenstein" when the warden Mr. Frank (Jim Cowell) arrives to escort him to jail.

Act II reveals the magnificent ballroom in Prince Orlofksy's home (Gabrielle Batchelder), Jean Campbell-FrL), where, as entertainment, Dr. Falke has planned a clan by having Adele, the Eisenstein's chambermaid (Joyce Thomas) impersonate a famous actress, Mr. Frank parade as a cheva-ler, and von Eisenstein act the part of a Marquis, wooing none other than his own wife who is masquerading as a Con-tess.

Act III deals with the reconciliation, following the revelation by Dr. Falke that the whole thing was just a joke at Elesenstein's expense.

FINE MUSICIANSHIP

Those beautiful melodies, for which Johann Strauss is so loved, were performed with a finesse which can be attributed to the fine musicianship of orchestra members and the local ensemble, under the direction of Ed Kemprud and Carl Zytowski.

Barbara Gordon's strong voice proved more than adequate in her lovely arias, and was supported with a natural poise and grace. Joyce Thomas was delightful as the starry-eyed chambermaid bound for a stage career, and Jim Cowell's acting and vocal ability rendered his performance quite charming.

Also to be commended for fine performances were Deese Eila (Bob Namanny-FrL), as Dr. Glimo, the attorney; Stan Carey as Mr. Frank, and especially Gabrielle Batchelder (Jean Campbell-FrL) as Orlofksy.

Virginia and Thomas Faunce, who have worked for many years with Zytowski, once again showed ingenuity and diligence in preparation of sets and costumes. Zytowski's direction, with the aid of Ed Kemprud, student director, was most effective, evoking an audience response which expressed overwhelming approval.
