Pro-Nudity Beach Prompts IVMAC Letter

By JOHN LEE

The Santa Barbara Board of Supervisors acknowledged a letter from the Isla Vista Municipal Advisory Council (IVMAC) yesterday condemning the board's decision to enforce the nudity ordinance.

"It's a waste of taxpayers' money to pursue harassment of victimless crimes such as nude sunbathing at secluded beaches like More Mesa," the letter informed the supervisors. IVMAC at its April 3 meeting went on record as endorsing clothing optional beaches while condemning the Board's recent motion as only a temporary, "band-aid" solution to the problems of dust, parking, and traffic.

IVMAC pointed out that the problems are not related to whether bathers are wearing clothes or not, and that it is a waste to harass, fine, and arrest people at More Mesa for nude sunbathing. Also received were a letter from Majorie Luther expressing her indignation at the board's action, and a letter from lawyer Clifford E. Jordan saying many people support the campaign against nudity.

In other supervisorial action, the board voted four to five to pursue an investigation of the costs related to the extension of the Goleta Beach Pier.

Supervisor David Yager voted against supervisor Bill Wallace's motion that the board designate the county's $500,000 oil spill fund as the financial source if the project is begun. The motion indicated that the board will consider allocating spill money in the North County also if a project in that area merited funding.

To date, none of the money received in damages as a result of the 1969 oil slick from Union Oil's platform A has been used, although the board had previously committed the entire amount to be used to rehabilitate Ellwood pier before that project was abandoned. Formerly the money was ear-marked for use along the coastline where the destruction took place, Yager's district included.

Supervisor Robert Kallman clarified his position on the board's action saying, "It would have to be a very worthwhile project to suit me." Wallace pointed out that the Goleta Pier project would entail spending, "quite a bit less than we would have spent on the Ellwood Pier." One estimate that came up at the meeting was $180,000 to extend the pier another 600 feet.

Gilbert Rochlin presented the board with a list of 5,000 signatures of citizens in favor of extending the pier, while Phillip Beguhl spoke for area sports fishermen.

Beguhl pointed out that the mouth of the seaweed covered sewerpipe, a haven for fish, will be accessible to local anglers if the pier is extended. Improving the pier will make fishing easier for people who use the pier, while enabling larger sport boats to be run off it. He termed the extension of the pier, "a pretty good bargain for the public."

Bill to Ensure Due Process For Students Enters Assembly

By DICK BUFORD

SACRAMENTO — Legislation has been introduced in the Assembly that would require State Colleges and Universities to follow "due process procedures" before dismissing or disciplining a student.

Proposed by Assemblyman Willie Brown (D-San Francisco), AB 3519 grew out of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling involving a University of Missouri student dismissed in 1973 during her second year of medical school.

She appealed the dismissal to the Court on the grounds that she was not accorded a due process guaranteed in the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Within the University of California, the legislation could force a confrontation with faculty members responsible for setting academic qualifications for students admitted to the various colleges.

Because there is currently no single standard for a student's academic performance — nor any single teacher for the enforcement of those standards — the new legislation could force an unwanted rigidification in the University's regulation of its own academic affairs.

Students have complained, on the other hand, that dismissal or disciplinary proceedings often ignore circumstances that could be brought up in hearings. Some have suggested that hearings should be provided to allow students to contest decisions made by those enforcing academic standards.

Although disciplinary proceedings taken against students usually involve some sort of hearing process, enforcement of academic standards rarely entails any formal hearings.

The process involving academic dismissals usually is limited to letters informing students of their probationary two-subject-dismissal because of poor academic performance.

Appointments with academic advisors are sometimes recommended and appeals of dismissals are accepted, but (Please turn to p. 12, col. 5)

U.C. Students Join On Abortion Issue

By WILLIAM KREBS

Twenty-one U.C. students on three campuses are attempting to join in a suit that seeks to bar the University from using Registration fees to finance abortions. Originally filed against U.C. San Diego by three students there, the plaintiffs now consist of 14 UCSD students, six students from U.C. Davis and four students from U.C. Berkeley.

Last September Susan Erzinger, Peggy Patton, and Albin Rhomberg, three UCSD students, informed the UCSD Administration that they were withholding part of their Registration fees. The three objected to a Reg fee supported health insurance plan that paid for abortions at off-campus clinics as part of its coverage. Their enrollments were cancelled by the University for failure to pay fees.

To regain admission to the University, the three students filed suit against the University last December. In their petition, the plaintiffs complained that the San Diego plan forced them to participate in abortions against their consciences.

On religious and moral grounds, the plaintiffs asked the San Diego superior court to rule whether they were required to pay for the insurance plan. The plaintiffs also asked the Court to rule whether the fee system of the University was constitutional.

Erzinger, Patton, and Rhomberg sued on December 12, 1977. At the beginning of Winter Quarter 1978, four more UCSD students joined them in the case, with the concurrence of the University lawyers. Seven more (Please turn to p. 12, col. 1)

Getting Out the Student Vote 'Vital' to Affect A.S. Finances

By MICHELLE TOGUT

It's that magical time of year again: elections. Campaign posters are plastered on every available wall space, bulletin board, and kiosk. Candidates are out canvassing for that elusive creature: the student vote.

Is the student vote really all that elusive? So it would seem. In recent years, the vast majority of students appear to have decided it is not worth their while to vote. Last year's spring election was decided by a 16.5 percent student turnout. It would seem obvious that a large question in students' minds is "Why vote? What good does it do me?"

"Any student who pays $48.75 annually to the Associated Students is a fool not to exercise their singular opportunity to determine the application of those funds to student activities," said Jeff Loeb, Internal President.

Tom Bolton, Daily Nexus editor, concurred. "Voting is the student's one chance to have some input into the way his $48.75 per year is spent."

Students who vote in this year's elections will have a chance to decide whether or not they want to unlock monies guaranteed in the A.S. Constitution to Concerts and Lectures, to the Intramurals program, and to the MTD Bus System. Other measures include an increase in A.S. fees from $16.25 to $17 a quarter, and a Constitutional amendment which would lock in funding to student media.

Chancellor Robert Huttenback has mandated a 20 percent turnout for these measures which affect student finances. Apparently he feels a minimum amount of students should vote on issues that will affect the whole student body.

Another issue students will vote on is a new A.S. Constitution which would re-organize the existing structure of Leg Council.

"People complain about A.S. not being representative," El Congreso Chai: Ray Aguirre commented. "It's up to people to start going to them. The issues at hand affect everyone."

"If students are going to have any yelling to do later on in the year, they have no right to do it if they don't vote now," Mike Siefe, RHA Rep. and candidate for Administrative Vice-President said. "By not voting, they're giving student government a free hand to do whatever they want."

Gayle McKenzie, a candidate for off-campus rep. commented, "Whether you're conscious of it or not, the issues and candidates on the ballot do affect students. After the fact, people tend to be dissatisfied, but now's the time to do something."

"Students should have a chance to elect representatives who will be voting on student services," Betsy Palmer, chair of the A.S. Elections committee, reported.

According to Loeb, "A student who does not vote in A.S. elections has in essence waived his/her right to complain about the functioning of A.S. government in all of its programs and actions from budgeting, concerts, intramurals and the like, to its representative character of student demands in the campus community."

So why vote? It's up to the individual, but in the words of Sherry Studley, candidate for RHP Rep., "Voting is a way to benefit yourself."

The State

SACRAMENTO — Nuclear power advocates, reeling from their biggest California legislative setback of the year, face the possibility of more defeats this week as they try to launch a counterattack. A hearing is slated before an assembly subcommittee on a measure that would completely remove the ban on new nuclear power facilities.

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Authorities report three inmates at the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo are dead, the result of having drunk a drug they took from the prison hospital. Six other prisoners who admitted taking chlorhydrate had their stomachs pumped after the first death was discovered. The drug was taken from the prison infirmary by inmates working there who thought the drug provided a "high" like that of alcohol.

LOS ANGELES — The body of Charlie Chaplin was stolen from its Swiss grave because he was a Jew buried in a non-Jewish cemetery. The "Los Angeles Herald-Examiner" reports that the theft is strictly a matter of religion and nothing else.

LOS ANGELES — The big news from the nation's hottest beer battleground is that Anheuser-Busch has replaced Coors as California's best-selling brewer. A St. Louis Company founded in 1875, Busch finished 1977 with 31 percent of the California market, a full percentage point ahead of Coors. The gain is even more remarkable in that Busch had started the year 14 percent behind Coors. Busch's Western Sales Manager Larry Maloney says his company had targeted California for a big sales effort because it's the number one per capita beer consumption market.

The Nation

WASHINGTON — A government economist has hinted that Washington may use economic pressure to bring private firms into line with the President's inflation goals. Director Barry Bosworth of the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability says the federal government is a big enough purchaser to use its buying power as a lever to reward firms which hold the line on prices and to penalize those which don't.

TAMPA, FLORIDA — A tanker truck carrying 800 gallons of liquid propane overturned on a residential area northeast of the Tampa, Florida city limits. Authorities ordered four schools and hundreds of persons evacuated from a four-block area. Police said a strong odor of gas filled the area, but it did not appear that the tank was ruptured.

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd says the Panamanian government will accept a new compromise proposal on U.S. intervention rights under the Panama Canal Treaties. The disclosure of the acceptance gave new hope to treaty supporters that the second pact will be ratified in a final vote today. It's unknown however if Arizona Democrat Dennis Deoncini, who wrote the original military intervention provision, will accept a change of the treaties worked out by Byrd and other leaders of the pro-treaty fight.

BEATRICE, NEBRASKA — A tornado packing winds of up to 70 miles an hour struck the community of Beatrice, Nebraska. The twister downed power lines, demolished mobile homes and sent two men to the hospital with minor injuries. Flooding and hail was reported elsewhere in the state, and flash flood warnings were in effect for other parts of the state.

The World

PANAMA CITY — Panamanian National Guardsmen used tear gas to break up a student demonstration at the U.S. Embassy in Panama City over the canal treaties. The guardsmen began tossing tear gas after students hurled red, white and blue paint canisters against the walls of the embassy. About 100 University of Panama students had marched on the embassy, carrying signs reading "reject the treaties."

NEW YORK — The Soviet diplomat who is refusing to go back to his homeland reportedly wants $100,000 a year in exchange for information he'll give the U.S. "Time" magazine says the diplomat has offered to tell Washington which of its agencies have been fed false information by the Soviet KGB. "Time" quotes one American official as saying Shevchenko "has put himself in excellent bargaining position." The magazine says he's been talking secretly with U.S. intelligence officers for two years.

NEW DELHI — The American CIA did lose a nuclear device in the Himalayas 13 years ago. But the mission apparently was not kept a secret from the Indian government. Prime Minister Desai said that authority to plant the monitoring device had come from the highest political levels of the Indian government at that time. He believes there is no cause for alarm about possible radiation poisoning. The Indian Prime Minister disclosed the details on the government cooperation in a report to parliament.

TOKYO — Japan's Finance Ministry announced that a record monthly trade surplus in March carried the country's surplus for the 1977 fiscal year to an all-time high. Over the weekend Japan moved to curb its exports.

Political Science Undergrad Alliance Formed

By MARK OHRENSCHALL

In an effort to increase undergraduate impact on the policies and decisions of the Political Science Department, a group of Political Science majors have begun to organize the Political Science Student Alliance (PSSA).

In a meeting last week before 50 interested students, the group explained their goals, and set up the various task forces that will form the backbone of the organization.

The PSSA will serve as a springboard from which students can express their grievances with the department. These grievances, in turn, will be translated into action in the form of meetings with faculty members, or in the case of more nettlesome problems, with the introduction of petitions, boycotts or even strikes.

In the area of student involvement in the department's policy and decision-making process, there are difficulties indigenous to the Political Science Department. According to Moss Jacobs, one of the initial organizers, "The walls are high between the professors, the T.A.'s and the students." Another problem, according to Jacobs, is the tenure system, and the resulting tendency for some professors to settle into complacency, and disregard any changes.

Professors more interested in publishing and research than undergraduate education provide yet another obstacle in the quest for better communication. Jacobs observes that "the Political Science Department, like all bureaucracies, tends to be a little sluggish at times. There have been many political science groups before with essentially the same aim as ours, but they haven't worked out. We think our approach is different."

The PSSA certainly has a different set-up than most, if not all other campus groups. It was repeatedly stressed that there is no elite group within the PSSA, and this is borne out in its structure, which consists of six basic task forces and a loosely organized central task force, composed of interested members from each task force. The central task force, comments Niles Merton, "will point you in the right direction. We see the whole thing as more like a dynamic, or process."

The first task force will be a liaison to teachers, and will concern itself with improving communication between T.A.'s, professors, and both graduate and undergraduate students.

Revamping the teacher evaluation system will be the goal of the next task force. They seek to eliminate the IBM cards currently used to evaluate professors, and institute evaluations independent of the department.

The third task force has perhaps the most important pursuit. They will try to increase student input in reviewing course content, courses offered, major requirements and class scheduling. Two common objectives of this task force include more diverse course offerings and broader perspectives within specific courses.

The next task force will be involved with the T.A. selection and evaluation process. Their foremost desire is the establishment of a T.A. training program to help train those T.A.'s who lack previous teaching experience.

The fifth task force will evaluate sexual harassment within the department. The PSSA was quick to point out that they are merely looking into the problem now, and have no firm evidence that it exists in this department. However, it has been found in other departments, and they hope to prevent any delicate situations which might arise.

The last official task force will be a liaison to other cultural and political groups on campus, communicating with organizations such as the BSU, the Gay Student Union and El Congreso.

These six task forces will be augmented by the central task force, which will coordinate the outflow of the others. It is not a governing board or a leadership body, but rather a centralized group of interested people in the PSSA.

To date, the PSSA has effected several particulars. They have met with all political science classes this quarter, and with each political science faculty member. They have received funds from the Academic Affairs Board, to cover printing costs. Inauguration of a newsletter and a mailing list of close to 100 people have also highlighted their infancy.

Two problems still face the PSSA. One is that most of the original organizers are graduating seniors, and a possible lack of continuity in membership looms for next fall. The other hurdle is that ancient nemesis of student involvement apathy. Jacobs suggests that, "Santa Barbara has a definitely laid-back atmosphere. But if students are made aware of what voice they can have, they will be responsive."

Regarding the "Endwahl controversy," the PSSA staunchly denied they were in any way involved. They utilized the mysterious slogan "merely for eye-catching effect" in their Nexus advertisements, according to Jacobs.

The PSSA is probably an idea whose time has come at UCSB. Jacobs expressed a wish that the PSSA can become "a model for other departments. The Administration considers students apathetic, and we're trying to combat this. We're a positive group, trying to improve the weak points in the department and keep the strong points the way they are. We've been taught about participation and the ideals of democracy, and we're trying to put this into practice."

Students interested in joining the PSSA may drop a note in the PSSA box at the Political Science office on the third floor of Ellison Hall.

EARN OVER $650 A MONTH RIGHT THROUGH YOUR SENIOR YEAR.

If you're a junior or a senior majoring in math, physics or engineering, the Navy has a program you should know about.

It's called the Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate-Collegiate Program (NUPOC-C for short) and if you qualify, you can earn as much as $650 a month right through your senior year. Then after 16 weeks of Officer Candidate School, you'll receive an additional year of advanced technical education. This would cost you thousands in a civilian school, but in the Navy, we pay you. And at the end of the year of training, you'll receive a $3,000 cash bonus.

It isn't easy. There are fewer than 400 openings and only one of every six applicants will be selected. But if you make it, you'll have qualified for an elite engineering training program. With unequalled hands-on responsibility, a $24,000 salary in four years, and gilt-edged qualifications for jobs in private industry should you decide to leave the Navy later. (But we don't think you'll want to.)

Ask your placement officer to set up an interview with a Navy representative when he visits the campus on April 18-20, or contact your Navy representative at 213-468-3321 (collect). If you prefer, send your résumé to the Navy Nuclear Officer Program, Code 312-B468, 4015 Wilson Blvd., Arlington, Va. 22203, and a Navy representative will contact you directly. The NUPOC-Collegiate Program. It can do more than help you finish college: it can lead to an exciting career opportunity.

Local Rape Program Needs Your Support

Santa Barbara County does not currently have a complete program for dealing with the problems of rape and intra-family violence; but there is a move under way to establish a comprehensive program that would deal with the problem at several levels.

Right now most of the effort is directed toward the victim of these acts of violence, and while such care is undoubtedly necessary, it does not solve the problem. Our District Attorney is currently working with the Violence in the Family Project to implement a program that would provide expanded counseling service, training of law enforcement personnel and a larger force of prosecutors. What the program needs now is community support.

This proposal has been submitted to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration in hopes that the agencies involved can receive a portion of their funding from the Federal government. This backing would only need to be temporary, as most of the funding would be applied to educational programs. Once the law enforcement agencies have their personnel educated to deal with these problems, and the medical services in the county have worked out a program for handling these victims of violence, outside funding would no longer be necessary.

So many times we have seen problems go unsolved because no one has taken the first step to solve them. Here we have a program that is off to a running start that needs only a little help to finish the race.

Let Your Voice be Heard; Vote Today

That's how much each UCSB student pays a year in A.S. Fees.

These funds go to pay for Athletics, Intramurals, Recreation, the Daily Nexus, CAB, Financial Aids, Concerts, KCSB, as well as scores of other student groups.

Many of the decisions about how student money is spent are made by Leg Council (our student government).

Right now, a whole lot of candidates are running around campus trying to convince students to support their election bids. We hope you will all take the time to support those candidates who you feel will represent student interests.

This support is critical, because Chancellor Huttenback has decided to involve himself in student elections, therefore imperiling our rights to hold elections.

He has imposed an artificial turnout requirement (a reversal of a previous commitment) for Constitutional amendments, such as the Communications Amendment, the A.S. Fee increase, and the lock-in votes.

The Communications Amendment is badly needed because it guarantees funding to the student media, thereby removing the threat that Leg Council will wipe out your student media, newspaper and radio station.

Think about it!

Very few groups on this campus have been willing to take a long, vocal stand on issues affecting students.

Please! Give your input into how $48.75 a year of YOUR MONEY should be spent.

VOTE TODAY! We hope you will support the COMMUNICATIONS AMENDMENT, but whatever your preference, VOTE TODAY!!!

Chancellor's Decision Attacked

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Like everyone else, Chancellor Huttenback should know not to contradict himself, or more importantly, to prevent any damages which may result from his doing so.

When a serious error in communication occurs, and people rely upon misinformation to their possible detriment, believing such information to be true, then the mere act of apology is an insufficient and unjust remedy. I believe that the Chancellor owes Tom Bolton, Tom Brown, and the Associated Students more than just an apology.

A review of the problem reveals that Bolton and Brown, two proponents of the Communications Amendment, questioned Huttenback about the enforcement of Cheadle's policy requiring a 35 percent voter turnout for the adoption of constitutional amendments pertaining to financial matters. His reply led them to believe that no such enforcement would occur. Upon the belief of this information, the Communications Amendment was drafted and its place on the ballot secured by a petition signed by more than 2,000 Associated Students.

Tom Bolton is in my estimation one of the most successful Editors-in-Chief of the Daily Nexus and Tom Brown was equally as competent during his tenure as General Manager of KCSB-FM. They are both sincere and honest people. Both know that a crucial question should be put directly to the person who can best answer it.

Based upon the need to determine the status of the "35 percent turnout requirement" policy, Bolton and Brown asked the Chancellor directly for an answer.

What transpired during that conversation is known only to Bolton, Brown, and Huttenback. But my guess is that if two students, both long involved in news gathering, go to the Chancellor to ask a specific question, then they are not likely to leave until they get a specific answer. When they did leave it was obviously only after reaching the understanding that no turnout requirement would be enforced.

This understanding was, however, just recently contradicted. The Chancellor issued a memo to Legislative Council to remind us of his "turnout requirement for financial matters" policy which he had previously discussed with Claude Ruibal, A.S. External President, and myself several months ago.

The issuance of this memo, as well as the policy itself, stands in direct contradiction to what he had previously told Bolton and Brown. This contradiction has led the proponents of the Communications Amendment to believe something which in some significant way, prompted them to pursue the adoption of this proposal. They proceeded in a manner aimed at obtaining the requisite two-thirds majority vote for approval, but not necessarily the 20 percent voter turnout which the Chancellor, not our A.S. Constitution, has required for ratification of the measure.

The time for apology has passed. Perhaps the Chancellor only intended this 20 percent turnout requirement to apply to the proposed deletions of the four constitutional "lock-in" funding amendments (Concerts, Intercollegiate Athletics, Intramurals, and the MTD Bus Service). Perhaps he felt that since these "lock-ins" required a 35 percent turnout for their adoption several years ago, it would not be fair to fail to impose a turnout requirement for their repeal.

The intent of this policy may still be intact because the latter three "lock-ins" above represented actual A.S. Membership Fee increases while the Communications Amendment does not. This proposal merely designates a percentage of the current fee to be used for the Communications area and is therefore an internal budgetary amendment not truly financially linked to the levying of the fee itself. If this was his true intention, then the time to say so is now.

But on the other hand, he may wish to allow this contradictory application of policy, telling Bolton and Brown one thing and others another, to stand in the way of the approval of the Communications Amendment. He must then consider the injury he will be doing to the "open-lines" of communication with the Administration so firmly established this year.

The enforcement of such a policy will in itself be difficult and possibly disastrous because our present Constitution does not set any turnout requirement for approving amendments and the representatives elected under this Constitution are obligated to uphold the provisions therein enumerated.

I am confident that an understanding can be reached swiftly in this matter so that no undue harm may be suffered by the Associated Students.

UCSB: Winning Fever?

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I somehow feel compelled to respond to John Baur's editorial, "Winning is Great, But..." I am an English Major and a shotputter on the track team at UCSB, and it was probably Mr. Baur's reference to using A.S. money to attract an "overweight shotputter or something" that raised my initial ire. Though I'm sure the reference was without malice, I don't doubt that Mr. Baur would expect me to answer him with, "Where is da bum, I'll tear him apart." I will confine my response to an agreement with Mr. Baur that he did indeed make use of cheap shots in writing his editorial.

The "win at all cost" philosophy of sport establishment is a stupid thing. I oppose it vigorously. I don't believe that a disproportionate sum of money has to be spent on the athletic or any department in order for success. Yet I don't think any department should be short-changed to the point of denying the opportunity for growth simply because some students don't care, as Mr. Baur suggests. If certain students don't care about athletic success, then so be it. I'm sure a number of students don't care whether or not the history department is of high quality, but that doesn't mean that its success should not be given a chance to materialize.

I myself get much pleasure and satisfaction out of improving and yes, winning. I am not being paid for as an athlete, but have met with fair success in competition at UCSB. I appreciate the opportunity to learn new things in the classroom. I cannot understand Mr. Baur's need to have to separate athletics (whether it be intercollegiate or intramural) from the rest of the school community and create an either-or situation by telling his readers, "You have your choices in front of you." Each experience is an education of sorts, and I think that to outcast any part of an educational system is to reduce its effectiveness and deny

I sincerely hope that UCSB never adopts the business-like "winning is everything" attitude for sports or anything else. Of course it is impossible to achieve a situation where everyone has access to every existing opportunity, but I feel that if that ideal is strived for (obviously some departments will get more money than others) the educational experience at UCSB will be richer one for all concerned.

Applications will be accepted until the first of May for positions on Presidential Advisory committees and statewide Academic Senate committees. All undergraduate and graduate students are encouraged to apply. Applications available in the Associated Students Office.

For more information contact your student body president, or the Student Lobby Annex director on your campus, or call the UC Student Lobby in Sacramento via ATSS: 8-477-0206.

Deadline: May 1, 1978

ATTENTION JUNIORS EARN OVER $650 A MONTH RIGHT THROUGH YOUR SENIOR YEAR.

If you're a junior or a senior majoring in math, physics or engineering, the Navy has a program you should know about. It's called the Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate-Collegiate Program (NUPOC-C for short) and if you qualify, you can earn as much as $650 a month right through your senior year. Then after 16 weeks of Officer Candidate School, you'll receive an additional year of advanced technical education. This would cost you thousands in a civilian school, but in the Navy, we pay you. And at the end of the year of training, you'll receive a $3,000 cash bonus.

It isn't easy. There are fewer than 400 openings and only one of every six applicants will be selected. But if you make it, you'll have qualified for an elite engineering training program. With unequalled hands-on responsibility, a $24,000 salary in four years, and gilt-edged qualifications for jobs in private industry should you decide to leave the Navy later. (But we don't think you'll want to.)

Ask your placement officer to set up an interview with a Navy representative when he visits the campus or contact your Navy representative at (213) 468-3321 (collect). If you prefer, send your resume to the Navy Recruiting District, 4727 Wilshire Blvd., Officer Programs Office, Los Angeles, CA 90010, and a Navy representative will contact you directly. The NUPOC-Collegiate Program. It can do more than help you finish college; it can lead to an exciting career opportunity.

Local Gliders Set to Hang in Benefit for Disabled Persons

SANTA BARBARA—The Santa Barbara Hang Gliding Association, with the cooperation of the Recreation Department of the City of Santa Barbara, will be presenting the First Annual Benefit FLY-A-THON April 22 from La Cumbre Peak, from noon until 5:00 p.m. for the benefit of the South Coast Special Olympics, a non-profit city development program which aids developmentally handicapped persons ranging in age from 8 to 62. The South Coast Special Olympics serves the South Coast area from Carpinteria to Lompoc. Nearly 350 developmentally disabled persons will benefit from the program this year.

Athletes participated in track and field competitions held in Los Angeles recently, and during the first week in April this year participants of the South Coast Special Olympics Program entered games at Mammoth Mountain. Competitive events are organized in which all entrants can achieve recognition for their efforts, and the program serves to boost morale and spirit among the participants who come from a diversity of backgrounds and ages to participate in the program. Al Miluso, Coordinator of the South Coast Special Olympics, calls the program "a very positive approach in assisting developmentally handicapped persons in achieving personal satisfaction in the sports world which might have otherwise been closed to them as a result of their own particular developmental handicap."

The pilots of the Santa Barbara Hang Gliding Association are soliciting sponsors who will match air time with money pledged. If a pilot remains airborne for 30 minutes while flying on a 15-cent per minute pledge, he and his sponsor together will have raised $4.50 for this benefit. Each pilot will fly only once for all of his or her sponsors, and if a sponsor wishes to donate as much as one dollar per minute with the stipulation that the amount does not exceed a specified maximum contribution, the sponsor may indicate his donation limit on the pilot's sponsor sign-up sheet.

The SBHGA encourages and welcomes pledges averaging 20 cents per minute, however, there are no restrictions on the amount a sponsor may pledge. For a pledge of $50, the SBHGA will honor the contributor with a Certificate of Merit and will present the donor with an honorary club t-shirt and honorary membership card. All donations are tax deductible, and receipts will be mailed to donors upon collection of pledge monies.

Pilots will launch from La Cumbre Peak, elevation 3,985 feet, and fly toward the landing area. When their flight has neared completion, gliders may be visible from as far away as the Calle Real Shopping Center in Goleta, as well as from most of Santa Barbara. Pilots will be landing in the fields next to the W.D. Cater Treatment Plant, and limited parking will be available on the East side of the Plant when available. Spectators are advised that vehicles entering the access road will be restricted to participants, officials, and residents only.

Individuals interested in sponsoring pilots may obtain sponsor sign-up sheets at the following businesses. Goleta: Don Vito's Spaghetti Syndicate, Goleta Valley Paint, Valley Nutrition Center and Upper Limits. Santa Barbara: Low's Radio and TV, Van's Belgian Waffles, The Coffee Bean, Freddy Fast Pants, Showcase Waterbeds, The Encina Restaurant, W.D. & Lee in the El Paseo, and Channel Islands Hang Gliding Emporium. Carpinteria: Channel Islands Sports.

'Clean-up Bill' to Augment Hart's Solar Tax Credit Plan

By STUART SCHNEIDER

To encourage greater efficiency in the application of last year's Solar Tax Credit, Assemblyman Gary Hart (D-Santa Barbara) has introduced a "clean-up bill" to act in conjunction with the Solar Tax Credit bill.

Last year, Hart authored the Solar Tax Credit (AB 1558), the largest state incentive program for the installation of solar energy systems in the United States. AB 1558 provides a credit against state personal income taxes, or bank and corporation taxes, of 55 percent of the cost of a solar system, to a maximum of $3,000.

In order to "tighten up the language" of the bill, Hart has been working with the State Franchise Tax Board and the Energy Conservation and Development Commission. The effects have been to monitor the tax credit, resolve potential problems, and maximize solar incentives in California.

"Energy conservation, lower utility bills, new jobs and economic stimulus are all benefits of the Solar Tax Credit," said Hart. "I want to see that California and its citizens receive these benefits to the fullest extent possible. My new legislation will encourage more efficient and less costly solar system applications," Hart said.

The clean-up bill would encourage consolidation of solar systems serving more than one function (such as water heating and space heating) by allowing a credit for each system; encourage consolidation of solar systems serving more than one dwelling unit by allowing a credit based on the per unit costs systems; allow the owner builder of new homes with solar systems to pass on the tax credit to the first purchaser of the home; and clarify that "passive" solar systems, which are part of the design and structure of a building are eligible for the credit.

According to Dave Modisette, legislative analyst to Hart, there are no foreseeable problems in getting the bill passed. The bill should get through the legislative process by July.

As a result of a $105,000 federal grant awarded to the Social Processes Research Institute, the past six months have been spent designing a course in careers for farmworkers.

Donald R. Atkinson, assistant professor of education at UCSB, and four graduate students have been involved in the development of the program.

The students, Reuban Pardo, Reuban Rey, Betty DeLaCruz and Gladys Denocohea were chosen on the basis of their experience with farmworkers, counseling skills and fluency in Spanish.

Reuban Pardo, a doctoral candidate in educational administration and former farmworker is now a "competent administrator for the program," according to Atkinson. He and the other research members have designed three types of material: a bilingual career text, a 40 hour curriculum guide and an audio-visual presentation which focuses on model farmworkers who have successfully found new jobs.

The course concentrates on exposing students to "job clusters" which are general occupational fields rather than specific careers. Fields such as health, public services, transportation, humanities, homemaking, communications and natural resources will be explored in hopes of broadening the students' awareness and understanding of possible job pursuits.

Careful attention has been paid to include an appropriate range of jobs which will be stimulating challenges without becoming frustrating impossibilities for the farmworkers returning to school. The career materials are designed at a 5th grade level and will be tested at Moorpark College in Thousand Oaks and at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo. Students at each school will range in age from 24-45 and from 18-22 respectively. The difference in age groups is intentional and it will insure that a wide range of jobs will be examined so that all participants are accommodated.

After the course is administered, evaluation of the program will be made in terms of its effectiveness. Mike Furlong, a doctoral student in counseling, will be assisting Atkinson with the analysis. Success will be comparatively charted before and after the course in areas of raising self-esteem, self-awareness, a sense of ethnic identity, the knowledge of existing occupations and educational goals.

The success of this program is anticipated due to the developments in mechanization which are displacing farmworkers and requiring that they seek other employment. According to Atkinson, "There is a real contradiction for the University in terms of its mission to the state and to the welfare of the people in the state... it's a very touchy issue because, obviously, I'm not about to say that we ought to cease research activity that results in progress that lightens man's labor. To me the issue is whether the University is going to pay closer attention to the effects of its research activities."

Extension to Offer Songwriting Course

Buddy Kaye, professional songwriter and lyricist with an international reputation and record sales exceeding 50 million copies, is the featured instructor in a new UC Extension workshop on "Songwriting as a Career", April 21 and 22 at UCSB.

This intensive introduction to the art, craft, and principles of writing for the "Top 40" market is scheduled for Friday, 7-10:30 p.m. and Saturday, 11:30-6 p.m. in Rm. 1145 of the Music Building on the UCSB campus.

Buddy Kaye is a lyricist, author, musician, music publisher, and a long-time instructor for UCLA.

Enrollment deadline for the course is April 18 and enrollment is limited. Further information may be obtained by calling UC Extension at 961-3231.

MANY OF THE WEEKEND RUGBY GAMES had to be cancelled because of the mud, but Nexus Photographer Cam Lorentz captures some of the highlights from the weekend tournament.

Newport Captures 'Mud'-by Tourney for Second Time

By RICHARD BORNSTEIN

It will be the rain and the mud that most people will remember about the 13th Annual Santa Barbara Rugby Tournament.

For those 2,000 or so rugby players who came from as far as Canada, Arizona and Texas, as well as California, the weekend of play began with pouring rain and ended with a mud bath. But when it was over three teams were declared champions in their divisions.

In the tournament's toughest division, the Blue, two underrated teams played for the title. When the number five seeded Bay Area Touring Side faced the sixth seeded Newport Beach Rugby Club, it marked the first time in history that two teams seeded so low vied for the title. Newport had defeated Santa Monica, 3-0, in the semi-finals, while the BATS shutout OMBAC 10-0, in their semi-final contest.

Due to the condition of the field, and since it was the fifth game for both teams in two days, the game was basically a defensive struggle. So when regulation play ended at 3-3 by virtue of a penalty kick for each side, the 2,500 fans gathered probably could have expected to be there long after the weekend was over. When the first five minute sudden death overtime period ended, the pessimists were right, nobody had scored.

While the action was basically taking place in the middle of the field, and neither team approached the other's goal line, Newport's Dave Merito picked up a loose ball and drilled a kick towards the BATS goal. Merito quickly followed the ball through the air, and when a BATS half-back was unable to field the kick, Merito dove after the ball, had it for a moment, then lost it. Steve Bustamoby was there helping his teammate, and fell on the wet ball over the goal for the tournament ending try.

"The ball just bounced right," beamed Merito after the match. "I figured with the condition of the field and since the wind got it, I would have a chance to pick it up and I did. Then it got away, but luckily someone fell on it for us." Merito is from New Zealand and was playing in his last game for a United States team. For his heroics, Merito was named the Most Valuable Back of the tourney. On the game and the tournament in general, the short, stockily built Merito said,

"I think the reason we won the tournament the way we did was because of the conditions of the field. You have to expect something unusual to happen.

This is the second year in a row we have won this tournament, and it's a great tournament, but we weren't ranked in the top five coming in and that's idiotic. It's great to win and it was a good way to end my career in this country."

For the BATS, a team that looked like they had the game in hand, it was a tough one to lose. Skip Niebauer, a forward for the

Me, take another exam? Are you crazy?!?

Q. The Navy Officer Qualification Test (NOQT) is a piece of cake, right?

A. Not necessarily.

If you're majoring in engineering or another technical area, we would expect you to do better on the test than an Inner Mongolian Cultural Arts major, but you won't hear us telling anyone that the test is easy. The NOQT is an aptitude exam dealing with number and letter comparison, instrument interpretation, word analogy, practical judgement, mathematical reasoning, and mechanical comprehension involving gears, levers, pulleys, fluids, etc. For those interested in an aviation program, there is an extra section dealing with aircraft orientation.

The Navy Officer Information Team will be administering the test in the UCen in room 2292 on Wednesday, April 19, at 1:00 pm and in room 2272 on Thursday, April 20, at 9:30 am.

Tests will be scored immediately and an Officer will be available to discuss your results and the various programs you may want to consider.

Taking the exam in no way obligates you to the Navy, but it just might tell you something about yourself. Come in and give it a shot — you might even pass!

Men Barely Beat Defending Champs

By LANI JORDAN

"It was like our grave had been dug, we were already in the coffin, and were about to be lowered into the ground," head coach Greg Patton said.

He was referring to the men's tennis match against the University of Redlands on Sunday, in which the decision came down to one point in one of the doubles matches. The grave however, was used to bury Redlands, as Gerald Kleis and Tom "Beaver" Evers helped to outscore the defending NAIA champion; 5-4.

In singles play Jacques Manset, Evers, and Dave Siebel all had victories over their Redlands opponents. Following in what seems to be a Gauchos tradition this season, the score was again tied 3-3 at the end of singles matches. In doubles, Manset and Scott Bedolla lost their match which gave Redlands a one point advantage, but Ken Koch and Seibel registered a victory, leaving the two teams tied with one more match yet to be played.

At this point Kleis and Evers faced Rusty Miller and Larry Biles. The teams each won a set, forcing one final set to be battled out. Amazingly, Redlands led the third set five games to zero.

"It got to where Redlands needed just one point to win the match," Patton said. The Gauchos were determined though, and managed to make a startling comeback by winning the next six games plus the match. The final score was 7-5, 6-7, 7-5.

Patton added, "When that doubles team is hot, there's no stopping them. Both of the freshmen came through for us beautifully and it shows how much of a mental game it is."

The Gauchos also tallied up another victory when they defeated UC San Diego on Friday. This time the doubles matches were played first, and UCSB took all three matches.

The teams of Manset and Bedolla, Kleis and Seibel, and Koch and Greg Maher all had victories over San Diego. Patton then decided to give the second team a good chance to play.

"I'm especially pleased with Kim Vieira, Mark Larson, and Pat Adams who all had wins Friday afternoon. Manset, playing in the number one spot, also had a decisive 6-2, 6-2 victory. The final score of Friday's competition was 7-2.

"These matches gave us the confidence we need for next weekend," Patton said.

The Gauchos will face Pepperdine there on Friday, and then Irvine on Saturday on the home courts.

Newport Wins Mud Bowl...

Bay Area contingent, was named the Most Valuable Forward.

"It would have been nice to see them score on anything else but a trashy play," Niebauer said. "It's inevitable though that under these conditions the game was going to be decided on a play like that. It's just a tough one to lose."

In the Gold division finals, the Browns, another Bay Area rugby team, came back from a 13-4 halftime deficit to defeat Cypress. Ed Kertel scored a try with under five minutes to play to assure the Brown's victory.

"I think they made a mistake when they chose the wind in the first half," Brown's captain Bill Von Esmarch said. "The wind was a big factor and we knew that we could make up the difference when we got the wind."

For Cypress, the small college rugby champions, the loss was not only their first of the tournament but it marked the first time in the tourney they had been scored upon. They had outscored their opponents 37-0 in their four previous games. Even though his team had just lost, coach Dod Ladesich was pleased with his teams play.

"I've been involved with rugby for 17 years, and this is the farthest I have ever gone in any tournament," Ladesich said. "I told the guys at halftime they would have to score more in the second half if we were going to win, but we just didn't. We lost our halfback (Craig Patterson (later named the Most Valuable Back in the division) early in the second half. He's a super player and when he went out, it was a different game. I don't want to take anything away from the Browns, they played well. But we played well too, and we'll be back just as strong or stronger next year."

In the women's division, OMBUSH defeated the KIWT's 8-0. OMBUSH went through their play unscathed, and won the title for their second consecutive year. In fact, the team from San Diego has allowed only 16 points all season, and has won three tournaments and several league games.

"This is my favorite tournament," OMBUSH coach Don Hatch said. "We were a little blind-sided by the weather, but everyone must play under the same conditions so it didn't bother us. Actually, we came expecting to win the tournament and we did just that."

The tournament usually features consolation games, and all of the teams entered play five games win or lose. However, with the rainfall destroying the condition of the fields early Saturday morning, the consolation games were cancelled early Saturday afternoon. Thus, teams such as UCSB played only a handful of games.

The Gauchos number one team, playing in the Gold division, defeated the Unicorns 4-0 in their first game before losing to the finalists, the BATS, 9-0 in their second contest. UCSB's second team, the Guanos lost all of their games, while the women were beaten by Texas A&M 6-0, before defeating the Eleanor Rugby Club 1-0 in their only consolation game. The Old Bolts, a team of UCSB Alumni, won their first two games before losing.

Mel Gregory, the tournament's director, as well as the player-coach of the Gauchos number one team said,

"We really played well in our matches. The conditions of the field probably bothered us more than other teams because we rely on quickness and technique. In mud, the bigger teams have the advantage. I thought we played well though, and drawing the BATS in the second round was just a tough draw."

On the tournament overall, Gregory continued,

"Besides being a disaster because of the conditions of the fields, we're taking it pretty much in stride. In general, people are understanding. It's always sunny here this time of year, and we took it for granted it would again be that way. But, we will be better prepared next year if it rains. Really though, it's always a lot of fun to hold this tournament."

Sorority Women Gather for Volleyball Tourney for MS

By LANI JORDAN

Anyone cruising by East Beach this weekend should be delighted to find nearly 500 sorority women in bathing suits and shorts playing volleyball and enjoying the sun. Everyone is gathering for the Second Annual Inter-Sorority Volleyball Tournament which will take place all day Saturday and Sunday April 21 & 22 at East Beach in Santa Barbara.

ISVT is sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity of UCSB as a fund raiser for multiple sclerosis, the crippling disease of young adults. Sorority women from campuses throughout California have been invited to participate. This year's tournament already includes 84 teams which is almost double the number last year.

Activity Director Todd Lincoln feels the primary goal of the tournament is in its aid to research the cause and cure of multiple sclerosis. "Our main goal, as was last year's, is to raise as much money as possible for what we consider a very worthy cause."

MS is a neurological disease which threatens the central nervous system, spinal cord, and brain. The cause of the disease is still unknown, thus much funding is needed for research and in providing local service programs for patients. "Last year we raised over $1,100 for MS and this year we are looking to double that figure," Lincoln said.

Money raised for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society is a result of various contributions, the largest being the entry fee. Each sorority pays a $30 entry fee per team, and $25 per team thereafter. Other contributions come from advertisements in the program which is distributed free of charge, individual donations, and donations from merchants in the Santa Barbara community. In addition, there are official ISVT T-shirts for sale. Lincoln also credited the companies of Coca-Cola and Gatorade for their participation in the tournament.

"Our other goal is to allow 500 women from all over California to have one of the best times they can possibly have in two days. This has been an objective since September when we began work on the project," Lincoln said. The various women competing come from various sororities from the Berkeley campus on down to San Diego. They will stay in the sorority houses on campus and after a continental breakfast will be transported by bus to East Beach for two continuous days of volleyball.

In order to insure that each team plays as many other teams as possible, a round robin format is used. The 72 teams will be divided into nine pools and a team will play every other team in the pool. From these the top 16 teams will emerge, and then enter a single elimination round which will begin on Sunday. The losers will also be playing fellow losers. The top teams will advance to the finals which are scheduled for early afternoon on Sunday.

Following competition, awards will be given. Trophies are given to first through sixth place, and there are special awards. These special awards go to teams and sororities which are the "rowdiest, most spirited, and even the team traveling the farthest."

Last year final competition was narrowed down to the Kappa Kappa Gamma house of USC and Kappa Alpha Theta of UCLA. Rumor has it that both of these teams are anticipating this year by working with coaches and even holding tryouts. The Pi Beta Phi of Santa Barbara finished in third place last year, and won a special award for the most teams entered (four). In keeping with tradition, the Pi Phis are entering six teams this year including a team called the "Pi Phi partyers."

Besides two days of sunshine and volleyball, ISVT is hosting a BBQ for all participants, plus a dance Saturday night for anybody to attend. A live band will be playing Saturday night at the Lambda Chi house on Cervantes Road.

Lincoln is hopeful that all prospective "girl-watchers and volleyball enthusiasts" will come down to East Beach on the 22nd and 23rd to witness some excellent (if not entertaining) volleyball. If this year's Inter-Sorority Volleyball Tournament is as successful and enjoyable as last year's, next weekend will certainly be profitable to players, spectators, and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

THE SECOND ANNUAL INTER-SORORITY VOLLEYBALL TOURNAMENT will take place this Saturday and Sunday on East Beach.

Gaucha Nine Play Long Beach Today

With nature once again wrecking the UCSB baseball schedule by raining out last Saturday's doubleheader with Long Beach, the Gauchos are forced to re-do their slated action this week.

Today's scheduled contest against the visiting nine of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo has been postponed, so that at noon Long Beach and UCSB can meet for two games.

UCSB (7-5) will send Stefan Wever to the hill in the opener, with Mike Wilgus the probable starter for head coach Dave Gorrie in the second game.

On Friday, weather permitting of course, Cal-State Fullerton will return to the Campus Diamond for a 3 p.m. game. The last time these two clubs met the Gauchos came away winners in ten innings by a score of 3-2. On Saturday the two clubs will square off on the Titans' home diamond.

Against Long Beach last Friday Brad Shames moved into the UCSB record books and Ray Barber turned some heads with his pitching.

Shames collected two RBI's in the doubleheader, giving him 45, tying Dick David's record, set some ten years ago. Two of Shames' runs batted in came in the second game on a home run.

Barber was on the mound in the second game and needed little more than the homer as he fired a three-hit shutout to win 4-0. Rob Lehtola added a two-run homer.

In the first game Doug Moll hurled seven scoreless innings before yielding all of Long Beach's runs in the eighth frame enroute to a 4-2 loss.

Gorrie noted that other than the home runs, the club did not hit very consistently during the two games. "That was probably the spottiest we've been offensively in a while. We really didn't wear the ball out," Gorrie said.

Today's doubleheader will begin at noon at the Campus Diamond.

IM's to Host 'One Pitch' Softball Tournament—Maybe

The intramural department is sponsoring a "One pitch" Softball Tournament this weekend, pending on the condition of the intramural fields.

If the tourney is held, sign-ups are due Thursday at 5 p.m. Also, there are currently five or six slots open for the Coed Innertube Waterpolo league. There is a managers meeting for poloists today at 4 p.m. in Rob Gym 1125.

Two UCSB Students to Aid With I.V. Fud Co-op Audit

By CHERYL SULLIVAN

Two students from the economics department will work with the Fud Co-op this quarter to create a tailor-made accounting system for the financially troubled cooperative, according to Bud Burns, Fud Co-op Treasurer.

The Co-op hopes to obtain an audit so that they may apply for federal and state funding, according to Steve Gandy, one of the student accountants. "To obtain an audit, an independent organization must approve the books and records," he said.

"Right now, our books and records are not in an auditable condition," said Burns. "In an audit, every document is certified by a CPA (Certified Public Accountant) that it's accurate and there is no fraud." As initiator of the student accountant plan, Burns hopes that this will "help get us internal control."

Candy and his fellow accountant, Deborah Schultz, first plan to study the present system and then make recommendations for improvement to the Fud Co-op Board of Directors.

After a preliminary evaluation last week, Candy said that their proposals will help the Co-op safeguard their resources against waste, fraud, and inefficiency, promote accuracy and reliability in their accounting and operating data, and encourage compliance with established company policy.

Because of the non-profit cooperative nature of the business, "they have a lot of untrained, unskilled people working their registers," said Gandy. "It looks like they're going to have to reconstruct the present system to handle the registers."

He also hinted that upcoming proposals would include implementing an inventory purchasing structure and formulating a more highly structured method of receiving inventory. "Of course, all we can do is point them (the Board of Directors) in the right direction. It's up to them to implement our ideas," acknowledged Gandy.

He also said that the books are in passable condition but will need some work. "Hopefully, by the 1979 calendar year, their financial statement and system will be adequate so that an independent auditor (CPA) may render an unqualified opinion," he commented. "That means there is nothing shaky in their business."

Gandy and Schultz, both seniors, are working under an independent study program sponsored by Robert Swenson, lecturer in economics.

By substituting students for a professional accountant, the Fud Co-op is saving a tremendous amount of money, according to Burns and Gandy. "Otherwise, they couldn't have done it," remarked Gandy.

Pat Farber, president of the accounting association on campus, said that the student accountants have taken a lot of courses on internal control. "Now they'll be able to put their booklearning into effect and see what works and what doesn't." She also said that because the Co-op is an unusual business in that it is non-profit, "it will be good for the students to have to tailor-make a system."

"We would like other students from the accounting department to continue where we leave off," said Gandy.

Assembly to Discuss Bill

never taken up in any formal hearings open to the student.

One University of California academic advisor indicated that the major obstacle to a mandated hearing process would be the amount of time required to administer it.

"At any one time, at least 1,000 students (on our campus) are on some form of academic probation. It would be just too time consuming" to have to give each of them a new hearing, the advisor said.

But by far the strongest objection is expected from faculty members who will resist an intrusion in academic patterns from the legislature.

The Brown measure is scheduled to come up before the Assembly Education Committee Wednesday.

Volunteers are Thanked

In order to thank volunteers nationwide, the National Center of Voluntary Action has designated this week as National Volunteer Week. Throughout the year, this association assists people involved in volunteer programs all over the United States.

On campus, Community Affairs Board will honor volunteers in each one of its various programs, from legal aid to the hunger project. Besides putting up thank you posters, CAB will contact their agencies and ask them to nominate deserving volunteers for outstanding service awards.

Dave Titus, one of CAB's co-chairs, says he'd also like to "heighten the awareness of those not volunteering. There's a lot to be gained from volunteering," Titus said. In addition to providing valuable pre-professional experience, volunteer work offers the chance to get off campus, and to meet new people.

U.C. Abortion Issue

UCSD students were also permitted to join the suit at the beginning of Spring Quarter. However, the University resisted the attempts of the Berkeley and Davis students to join the Erzinger case.

Currently, the plaintiffs at UCSD have been admitted to the University under a special agreement, which provides that their Reg fees will be held in a court trust until the lawsuit has been settled. The University has refused to extend such an arrangement to the other prospective plaintiffs in the case.

The potential plaintiffs at Berkeley and Davis have been given until April 28 to pay their Reg. fees or face the lapse of their University enrollment. One of the Davis plaintiffs speculated that the April 28 deadline was designed to give the University lawyers time to file a dismissal motion on the case.

A motion by the University to dismiss the Erzinger case was made in San Diego Superior Court last Friday. The motion argued that the Erzinger plaintiffs had no legal justification for suing the University. No ruling is expected on the motion for about a week.
