Police Arrest 40 During Anti-Apartheid Protest

Cheadle Rally Ends in 'Divestment'

(Editor's Note: Steven Elzer, the author of this article, was arrested during the anti-apartheid demonstration so he could monitor and report on the treatment of the protesters by jail officials. That account will appear in tomorrow's edition.)

Campus police officers arrested 40 people at a Cheadle Hall sit-in Friday, after protesters attending an anti-apartheid teach-in moved their demonstration into the lobby of the administration building and refused to leave.

Of those arrested, 36 were taken one by one from the sit-in group to an awaiting Santa Barbara County Sheriff's bus. Four others, three of them students, were given citations for trespassing. Two non-students were arrested.

"The regents have made it clear to us that the only way they will listen to us is through civil disobedience or even greater illegal actions," said UCSB student Mitchell Spindell, who was one of eight who resisted arrest.

"Through the regents' refusal to either recognize or adhere to the students' request or demands, they have dubbed themselves and this university an undemocratic institution," Spindell said.

"I felt it was necessary to show my commitment and strong feelings particularly because other avenues — letters, telegrams, phone calls et cetera — didn't prove to be working," said Bruce Randall, a junior majoring in religious studies.

Among those arrested were Associated Students President Ken Greenstein and Legislative Council member Sharlene Weed. "I couldn't sit around anymore and just watch things happen. My conscience couldn't let me stand it," said Greenstein after being released from jail several hours later.

Eight people were charged with resisting arrest when they refused to be escorted by officers to the jail bus. Instead of forcing a confrontation, police officials used a medical gurney to take at least one demonstrator to the bus. Few incidents of force were exhibited during the arrest procedures, which lasted almost four and a half hours.

Students involved in the sit-in were visibly shaken as one member of the group was forcefully arrested. Many wanted their arrest to symbolize a non-violent movement, said graduate student Scott Forman.

Chancellor Robert Huttenback, who had just returned from a vacation, reiterated his belief in the importance of civil disobedience. "I'm a strong believer in civil disobedience, if they do it right. And, I'm also a great opponent of violence and I didn't see any," Huttenback said Saturday afternoon.

The lobby takeover began at 3:45 Friday afternoon when more than 100 rally attendees entered the building after the last teach-in speaker, black studies department Chair Cedric Robinson, completed his speech on political consciousness. The group was led by six protesters carrying a mock coffin.

Protesters placed banners on the walls and chanted and sang songs about peace and brotherhood. Spindell and seven others partially or completely disrobed. The crowd chanted, "Take off your clothes to those you oppose."

Bradley Opposes Governor's Drilling and Coastal Policies

By Penny Rosenberg
County Editor

Condemning the governor's record with the California Coastal Commission and offshore oil drilling, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who is seeking the 1986 gubernatorial nomination, accused George Deukmejian of attempting to destroy the watchdog agency.

"The great hopes" for the commission "have been seriously eroded by the actions of the governor over the course of the last three years," Bradley told reporters at a press conference Friday on Stearn's Wharf.

Bradley breakfasted with Santa Barbara Mayor Sheila Lodge, county Supervisor Bill Wallace, and City Council members Hal Conklin and Tom Rogers before the conference and represented their views to the press.

"We are here today to express again our determination to protect the coastline of California and to object to the indiscriminate offshore drilling," Bradley said.

The Los Angeles mayor holds Deukmejian responsible for the removal of a moratorium that limited offshore drilling. "By sending a letter to the members of the Congress last November, he (Deukmejian), in fact, was able to help change three votes the night before the vote was cast."

The moratorium, protection Bradley calls "absolutely essential," was lifted by one vote.

Bradley accused the governor of trying to dissolve the state coastal commission, adding that because Deukmejian did not have the legal capacity to do that, he instead reduced the commission to an ineffective size.

"When he took office, they were getting $10.1 million a year. They're now down to just a little over $7 million a year to operate that agency. From 171 staff people, they have been reduced to 115. Obviously, their ability ... is seriously damaged by that kind of tactic."

The mayor also accused the

Speakers Discuss Worldwide Issues

By Steven Elzer
Campus Editor

The first anti-apartheid event of Spring Quarter drew more than 300 people to Cheadle Hall Friday as students and faculty addressed a largely student crowd on a multitude of issues from South Africa and Angola to Central America.

The event, one of many across the country, was prompted by National Divestment Day and came on the heels of a violent apartheid confrontation at the UC Berkeley campus.

Students cheered as Coalition Against Apartheid member Martha Cody read from a statement issued by the UC Divestment Committee, one of the main organizations involved in the divestment movement at Berkeley.

"We at Berkeley salute the students of UC Santa Barbara who have stood up to be counted on the side of justice and freedom in South Africa. We are seeing proof that the university cares more about profit and businesses ... than it does about the lofty ideals it professes to uphold," Cody read from the statement.

"But the student movement will not go away or be beaten into submission. We will continue to educate ourselves and to protest and demand that the University of California divest all of the billions it has invested in apartheid. Together we will achieve our goal," she read.

Throughout the day, rally attendees heard educational vignettes lasting between five and 25 minutes. Freshman biology/psychology major Jill Muchow found the speakers informative. "I thought the teach-in was fantastic. I learned a lot and I got a lot out of it educationally and emotionally," she said.

Some of the speakers incited the group, others relayed personal experiences. Manthia Diawara, an associate professor in the black studies

Radical Arabs Focus of West Berlin Probe into Nightclub Blast

BERLIN — Police investigating a nightclub bombing that killed a U.S. Army sergeant and a Turkish woman and wounded 191 other people are focusing on Arab extremists who may have entered West Berlin from communist East Germany, news reports said Sunday.

U.S. diplomats said Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy was suspected of complicity in Saturday's bomb blast that destroyed the La Belle discotheque, which was popular with American soldiers stationed in Berlin. Of the 191 injured, 63 were Americans.

U.S. military and West Berlin authorities identified the American killed as Sgt. Kenneth Terrance Ford, 21, of Detroit.

"The Libyan angle is being explored very vigorously. Khadafy is a very active suspect," said a U.S. diplomatic source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Khadafy called for Arab assaults on American interests worldwide after a U.S.-Libyan naval clash in the Mediterranean two weeks ago.

U.S. officials in West Berlin refused further comment on the investigation launched by a special, 100-member commission of West Berlin and American military police.

Manfred Ganschon, director of West Berlin security police, said Sunday that three separate claims of responsibility telephoned the day of the explosion to news agencies in London and Berlin "cannot be considered authentic."

The Berliner Morgenpost daily newspaper said investigators were focusing on anti-Western Arab militants in West Berlin.

Lebanese Woman Remains Only Suspect of TWA Jet Bombing

ATHENS, GREECE — Police said Sunday they questioned Arabs and other foreigners at Athens airport about the TWA jetliner bombing that killed four Americans, but that a Lebanese woman remained their only suspect.

Athanassios Zafeiris, security police chief for the Athens area, said the airport interrogations were part of a general inquiry and stressed: "We're not searching for any specific people or investigating any specific actions. No one has been arrested or is being held."

Police said they still suspected that a Lebanese woman named May Elias Mansur planted the bomb on the Trans World Airlines Boeing 727 on a flight Wednesday from Cairo to Athens. The plane went on to Rome. The bomb exploded as the plane was flying back to Athens and Cairo, and was 15,000 feet over southern Greece.

A woman identifying herself as the suspect spoke with The Associated Press on Saturday in Tripoli, Lebanon. She said she flew on the plane from Cairo to Athens, but denied planting the bomb.

A Greek senior police officer, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Sunday, "We still suspect this woman."

News reports have said that Greek police picked up an Arab identified as Mohammed Youssef for questioning Friday in the transit lounge at the international terminal. The police refused to confirm these reports.

Reagan Administration Will Campaign Against Worldwide Terrorism

WASHINGTON — President Reagan ended a 10-day California vacation Sunday, returning to work on a renewed campaign against international terrorism in the wake of another wave of attacks aimed at Americans.

While stopping short of blaming Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy for two attacks last week in which Americans were killed, an administration official accused Khadafy of sponsoring "a master plan ... to cause terrorist incidents worldwide."

Reagan, who spent a working vacation at his mountaintop ranch near Santa Barbara doing chores and horseback riding, was briefed on the explosions on a TWA airliner approaching Athens and in a West Berlin discotheque popular among U.S. soldiers.

An administrative official, who wished to remain anonymous, said the United States was pursuing diplomatic initiatives to increase cooperation with European allies to combat terrorism.

As he boarded Air Force One at Point Mugu Naval Air Station, Reagan was asked by a reporter whether he believed Khadafy was behind the West Berlin bombing. He said, "No comment."

Asked whether he planned to "hit Libya," Reagan again answered: "No comment."

Congress Returns from Recess to Consider Firearms and Tax Bills

WASHINGTON — Congress returns from its Easter recess this week with the House ready to take up firearms legislation that has put the National Rifle Association and police organizations at opposite ends of the barrel.

The Senate Finance Committee will resume its work on a tax overhaul bill, while on the Senate floor debate continues on whether to sell Washington's two federal airports to a local authority.

The House reconvenes Tuesday to consider some non-controversial bills, including one naming a fellowship program after Christa McAuliffe, the New Hampshire teacher who died in the space shuttle Challenger explosion.

Then on Wednesday, the representatives are scheduled to debate and decide between competing versions of legislation to alter the 1968 Gun Control Act.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Missouri, is similar to Senate-passed legislation. It would permit interstate sale and transportation of handguns, rifles and shotguns. Police organizations and House Democratic leaders support a rival bill allowing interstate transportation and sales of long guns — but not handguns.

Television Plays Key Factor in Capture of Chicago Gunman

CHICAGO — An armed man who held a woman hostage for more than 35 hours led a life filled with television fantasy, and it was television that helped police persuade him to surrender.

Negotiations with John Pasch Jr., 57, had been punctuated by his demands to be left alone during his favorite television shows, especially "Miami Vice," said Sgt. James Biebel, the negotiator who finally talked Pasch into releasing his hostage unharmed and surrendering early Saturday.

Police said the standoff began Thursday after Pasch shot and killed his landlord, who had gone to Pasch's apartment to discuss unpaid rent, and a police officer who had responded to calls of shots being fired.

Pasch, an unemployed tool and die maker, then barricaded himself in a 74-year-old neighbor's apartment, prompting police to surround the North Side building.

Pasch, charged with two counts of murder and held Sunday in Cook County Jail, apparently viewed the TV screen as a stage for his own drama.

Pasch was described as an expert marksman who "has been in hibernation for months," "hates everybody," has "a very short fuse" and "had no friends."

Federal Investigators Search for Clues in San Francisco Fire

SAN FRANCISCO — Federal agents joined the investigation Sunday of an explosion and fire that destroyed an industrial complex, and firefighters continued pumping out water that blocked their search for seven missing people.

A federal official said the blast may have been touched off by accidental ignition of lacquer spray.

Fire officials said 7 million gallons of water was sprayed onto the fire that injured at least 20 people Friday and left the three-story Bayview Industrial Park a pile of charred debris. Water stood up to five feet deep in parts of a basement area that had been underneath the complex.

Damage was estimated at $10 million to the complex, which contained 126 small businesses, ranging from sheet metal shops and artists' studios to a photography lab and carpentry shops.

Deputy Fire Chief Richard Crispin said a search for seven industrial park employees reported missing would begin today, after enough water has been pumped out.

Frank Sanders of a 10-member federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms task force helping in the investigation said agents were checking a report that the blast was accidentally triggered when a spark ignited lacquer from a high-pressure sprayer being used in a carpentry shop.

Crispin said that may have happened in a space occupied by Borsian Cabinets.

Scientists Claim Lunar Influences May Have Role in Earthquakes

LOS ANGELES — Southern California should expect a major earthquake soon, say two local scientists who suggest that the gravitational pull of the sun and moon may have helped trigger great quakes here in the past.

Astronomer Steven Kilston and geophysicist Leon Knopoff say Southern California has entered a time when the pull of sun and moon is greatest on the San Andreas Fault, and the most vulnerable time appears to be November 1987.

"But we're not predicting an earthquake in November of 1987," Knopoff emphasized.

They said 10 of the 13 major earthquakes in the area in the last five decades occurred near sunrise or sunset, when there is a strong influence of solar gravity. Also, most occurred in nearly 18.6-year intervals that coincide with the northernmost position of the moon.

While conceding they base their conclusions on meager historical data, they say tidal forces from the moon and sun may provide what Kilston called the "last-straw push" needed for jarring loose an earthquake.

Civil Rights Commission Member Urges Resignation of Chairman

STANFORD — Clarence Pendleton should resign as chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights because his "inflammatory rhetoric" has destroyed his effectiveness and undermined the commission's credibility, commission member John Bunzel said in a letter made public on Sunday.

"By attacking the motives and integrity of your opponents, you have lost whatever opportunity you may have had to exert influence on the work of the commission," Bunzel wrote in the letter.

Bunzel is a senior research fellow at Stanford's Hoover Institution and former president of San Jose State University. He has served on the Civil Rights Commission since 1983.

His letter was disclosed by Stanford officials. Bunzel could not be reached for further comment, and was reported to be traveling.

Bradley: Deukmejian Should Close Casmalia

ROBERT AUCI/Nexus

By Penny Rosenberg
County Editor

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, candidate for California governor, called on Gov. George Deukmejian to close Casmalia Resources toxic waste dump, labeling the site one of the best examples of the current administration's failures.

"George Deukmejian has done such a poor job in cleaning up toxic waste pollutions," Bradley told reporters during a Friday press conference at Stearn's Wharf. "Casmalia dump site is one example of his ignoring the problem."

"When it's clear that there are cancer casualties in that area, when schools are having to close down part of the day or all day... when people are complaining about the impact on their health, the governor has (neither) said nor done anything about that problem," Bradley said.

"I think the time has come for the governor to close down Casmalia dump site (and) instruct his administration to do something about it (toxic waste)," he said.

Bradley believes closure of Casmalia Resources would pressure the state to solve the toxic waste problem. He said that the administration has known about the toxic waste problem for years, but must be pressured before it will act.

Santa Barbara County Supervisor Bill Wallace believes Bradley's call for closure is not reasonable, but he does want to limit Casmalia Resources operations to its county land use permit. "It (the site) shouldn't be used for more than what it was permitted for in 1976," he said.

Wallace said he thinks Casmalia is a pivotal political issue because Deukmejian "has been so slow to act."

Bradley cited a California auditor general report that states Deukmejian's toxic waste program is "an abysmal failure" and proposed to adopt a program already utilized in Sweden.

"I'm told that in Sweden they have come up with a combustion program that does deal with toxic waste pollution," Bradley said, adding that the state has the facilities, the capacity and the technology for such a program.

"When people are complaining about the impact (of Casmalia) on their health, the governor has (neither) said nor done anything about that problem."

seriously damaged by that kind of tactic."

"I think the people in those areas directly affected know that their environment is going to be seriously damaged, that the air quality is going to be diminished by virtue of the offshore oil drilling," Bradley said. He added that he is pleased with Santa Barbarans' efforts to fight the "battle" of air pollution.

By calling attention to Deukmejian's actions, Bradley hopes the public will "indicate to the governor that we simply are not going to take it; we will not have this majestic jewel of this nation, the coastline of California, be spoiled by offshore oil drilling."

Bradley called Deukmejian's

current proposal of filing a lawsuit to protect the coastline a "laugh" and a demonstration of the governor's insincerity. He said the governor had an opportunity with the moratorium, but destroyed that option by sending the letter to Congress members.

"The governor isn't serious. Otherwise he would have taken different action a long time ago."

Bradley also criticized Deukmejian's reasoning behind his opposition to the moratorium. The governor believes, Bradley said, that oil tracts should be examined individually to determine if oil drilling is desired.

"The problem is that we've never seen the governor find a single tract that he didn't find attractive for oil drilling," he said.

Bradley believes that some offshore drilling is not necessary. "There's an oil glut in the world. Prices are plummeting because of the excessive oil that is already produced."

Bradley said he cannot see the rationale for more drilling when "refineries and other oil facilities are closing down.... Why is it so important, then, that they set California's coastline as a top priority for spoiling it?"

Wallace agrees with Bradley's environmental stance but wishes it were even stronger. "I'd like to see more of a Gary Hart kind of a stance," Wallace said, referring to the Democratic state senator from Santa Barbara.

Although Bradley is currently behind in the polls, he said he is not concerned because he just announced his candidacy a month ago. "Don't worry about what you may see in the way of informal, semi-official polls at this time. It's much too early."

His campaign is ahead of schedule for fund raising compared to the 1982 campaign, Bradley said. When asked how much money his campaign must spend between now and the November election, Bradley responded, "Too much."

A Day of Protest: Teach-in Becomes Sit-in

PROTEST

Contacted later, Robinson said the nudity detracted from the issue of apartheid. "The nudity loses the credibility of the issue and it may indeed distract from other people coming to join with us in these demonstrations," he said.

Many agreed with Robinson's sentiments but felt the apartheid issue would not suffer as a consequence. "I really respect their courage and strength to stand naked before a lot of strangers because of what they believe. But I think that it will be misunderstood by most people and that can be somewhat counterproductive," Forman said.

A woman, the first to disrobe, called her actions "as absurd as apartheid."

County Deputy District Attorney Gerald McFranklin called the action a literal expression of "divestment" and advised the protesters that "the bus will be cold."

All but one protester dressed prior to arrest. No charges will be added for those who undressed, McFranklin said.

Vice Chancellor of Student and Community Affairs Ed Birch said the bare students removed the dignity from the day's events when they removed their clothes. "They lose their credibility when they do something like this. It's like a fraternity party," he said.

One participant disagreed. "In Berkeley they had molotov cocktails, in Santa Barbara, we took off our clothes. It's different, it's our way," activist Doug Yates said.

Others defended the action. "Nudity has been used as a form of civil disobedience for a long time, look at Lady Godiva," said one protester.

Many spectators who had gathered outside of Cheadle Hall also began to disrobe as a show of support for those inside the building.

"This beats the hell out of what's going on up at Berkeley," said one protester.

Others agreed. "Forty people were arrested here with 17,000 people (enrolled)," Randall said. "At Berkeley they had 89 arrested with about 30,000 people. So were right up to par with other activist campuses."

"I think it's funny that at Berkeley, where they are espousing violence, they have adopted Steven Biko as the person they are naming Sproul Plaza after," said freshman Mike Shatz, a law and society major.

"But Santa Barbara is using Nelson Mandela, who is the exact opposite and we're being peaceful," Shatz said, explaining that Biko represented a climate of peace.

Acting UCSB Police Chief John MacPherson said the protesters behaved well and thanked them for their cooperation. Rally organizers had met with police prior to the event to discuss logistics for those who would submit to arrests.

Administration officials allowed the demonstrators to introduce themselves and give brief reasons for their decision to submit to the trespassing offense before they issued the first of six warnings to disperse. MacPherson was handed a rose before he instructed his officers to begin the arrests.

"It's important to know what it feels like to be handcuffed and chained to other people. We have so much freedom here in the United States, we take it for granted," Randall said.

Earlier in the day over 300 students boycotted classes to listen to various speakers discuss the situation in South Africa, Angola and Central America.

Military Versus Social Spending

One of the most significant trends during recent years has been that while the military budget has been rising at a precipitous rate, social programs have gone up very little or have decreased. According to the current plan the military's share of the budget will rise over 11% during this decade while other programs (excluding entitlements) will decrease 16%.

department discussed the film, The Gods Must Be Crazy, which was made in South Africa.

"I have not seen the film, The Gods Must Be Crazy, a film that failed everywhere else in the world but did so well in this country, did so well in Santa Barbara," he said. "When I tell people I am from Africa ... they ask me have you seen the film and I say, 'No, I have not seen it.' Then they seem disappointed."

"They say it's such a great film you must see it and then they go away from me. Then I tell myself I have seen The Gods Must Be Crazy. I saw it on the evening news when I saw South African blacks beat and burn to death one of their own whom they accused of treason," Diawara said.

"I also saw The Gods Must Be Crazy several times on Ted Koppel's Nightline with Botha calling Tutu a communist," he said.

Diawara explained other ironies of modern South Africa life, concluding he would rather have "Apocalypse Now."

One of the discussions targeted the inequality of a black South African's life. To illustrate his point, chicano studies department Chair Mario Garcia examined that country's school system.

"School education in South Africa is segregated ... there are few exceptions. Children have to go to schools that are run for their particular racial groups. The only exception are some private schools. The South African government spends much more on white children than it does on the education of black children," he said.

Garcia said that during 1982-83 "whites received per capita 1,385 South African dollars or pounds — 1,385 compared to only 115 South African dollars or pounds for Africans or for blacks in South Africa."

Visiting lecturer Steve Gold said UCSB students don't face the rigors of those in South Africa or even those American students in the colder eastern states such as Minnesota.

"I'm afraid the violence that we have to worry about comes instead from other people as we realize that what's happened to our brothers and sisters at Berkeley in the last couple days is the sort of shame that I think has to give us the inspiration and courage to step out ... and insist immediately that the University of California divest and divest completely," said Gold, who teaches business ethics.

"And you get into a large crowd like this where everyone's pumped up and excited and angry at the conditions and furious at the lack of action that the Reagan administration is taking and furious at the fact that the University of California is begrudging, little by little doing something. And the tendency is to

Chancellor Drives at Group Blocking Cheadle Lot Exit

By Steven Elzer
 Campus Editor

During an anti-apartheid protest Friday evening, Chancellor Robert Huttenback slowly drove his car into at least three people blocking a Cheadle Hall parking lot exit, running over the foot of a faculty member before he left through another exit.

Inside the building, 40 students were arrested in a protest of the University of California's financial ties to South Africa. Huttenback said he left through one of the building's rear stairways "so as not to disturb the activities in the lobby."

No one was seriously injured during the incident, which was witnessed by several students and faculty members. A police report was not filed as of Saturday afternoon, UCSB Police Lt. Bob Hart said. Hart said for a criminal charge to be investigated, one of the victims would have to have been injured and require aid.

A professor in a group of protest spectators said he thought he saw Huttenback leaving the building and pointed out the administrator's departure. Several people approached the chancellor and Library Assistant Peter Shapiro asked "if he wouldn't mind talking to us. He didn't respond."

Three people, including UCSB Lecturer Jerry Fresia, sat on the ground and blocked the exit. "Five of us could have blocked both the entrance and the exit, they are that narrow," Shapiro said, adding he did not block the exit himself.

"Huttenback backed out of his space and proceeded to drive past us toward the exit," Shapiro said. "I was a little bemused at why he was driving toward people who were blocking an exit. I thought he would stop and turn around ... but he didn't. I was kind of shocked."

"He purposely seemed to swerve a little to the left so his front bumper would push against the person nearest to him. He pushed that person over with his car," Shapiro said.

Huttenback, when phoned Saturday at his home in Montecito, said he just "nudged them" and stopped the car. It was "a very small" confrontation, he said, adding that it had little significance and little relevance to the protest inside Cheadle Hall.

Fresia said he had his foot run over by the chancellor. Although Huttenback denied knowledge of this, witnesses confirmed Fresia's account.

"We sat in the area where he could exit and we saw him driving towards us in the parking lot. We had no idea he would just run into us. We thought that he would see us, turn around, and go to the other side.... Instead, he slowed down just a tad and then rode into us," Fresia said, adding that he was not injured.

"I sort of came out the back way and got into my car," Huttenback said, explaining he saw the people blocking the exit but didn't think they were students. He heard people "howling" but did not "know what they were yelling."

"I hollered, 'slow down,'" said UCSB graduate student John Woods. "It looked like he was trying to intimidate them. He intentionally drove fast, not meaning to hit anybody, but to try to scare them out of the way so he could go. But, he did hit them and he had plenty of time to see them."

Huttenback said that after he stopped the car he asked Shapiro if "he wanted to get an officer and he said no." Shapiro disagrees with the chancellor's version.

"I thought it would be better if he got the police in order to move people rather than his car. Then he said, 'Well you get the police.' I said, 'You should do it.' He backed up and made an exit," Shapiro said.

As Huttenback drove away Shapiro clenched his fist and pointed his thumb towards the ground in disapproval of the chancellor's actions, he said. Huttenback in turn, "raised his middle finger of his right hand in an obvious gesture," Shapiro said.

Huttenback could not be reached at his home Sunday, despite numerous phone calls.

Rally in Storke Plaza Will Benefit March of Dimes

Exit, one of Santa Barbara's favorite club bands, will be playing in Storke Plaza today at noon in the third annual rally for the March of Dimes.

The rally will be promoting a 10K Fun Run and Walkamerica, a walkathon. Santa Barbara City Council member Tom Rogers, a regular participant in the Walkamerica, is the featured speaker.

Walkamerica is a national event, with a walk mapped out in hundreds of cities across the nation. The 10K run scheduled for Saturday was organized as an alternative to Walkamerica, according to rally organizers. Local merchants, sponsors of the run will give away prizes.

Goleta Water Board Cancels Special Mail-in Ballot Plans

By Dana Anderson
Staff Writer

Instead of addressing campaign contribution limits and soliciting funds for water projects in a mail-in election, the Goleta Water Board cancelled plans for its special $50,000 ballot in favor of the November general elections.

Goleta and Isla Vista residents voiced their opposition to the special election at the water board meeting Thursday, before the board members voted against that ballot.

Associated Students Legislative Council member Robert Skripko said it would be difficult for vacationing students to vote by absentee ballots in August. "Voting is a right, not a privilege obtained by arduous efforts," Skripko said.

Voter turnout could be as high as 80 percent in the next election because of the local and state issues involved, said I.V. resident John Buttny, an aide to county Supervisor Bill Wallace. "You'll get better feedback if you wait until November."

Figures from past elections show that the last mail-in election drew a 36 percent vote, but the last general election in 1985 drew only 32 percent, District General Manager Lloyd Fowler said.

Board Director Donna Hone explained that the last general election did not include a Senate race as does the 1986 one. Voter participation will be greater this November and the district will save more than $40,000 by waiting, Hone said.

The board voted to place a campaign contribution limitation on the November ballot with a 4-1 decision. Directors Chuck Bennett, Hone, Jim Thompson and Don Weaver voted in favor of the general election while Director Gary McFarland wanted to hold the mail-in vote.

The board also decided to address a possible amendment to a governing policy on the November ballot. This change in the Responsible Water Policy Ordinance would increase funding for obtaining future water from Lake Cachuma.

The wording of the campaign contributions limitation was also discussed at the meeting. The limitation of $500 per person was considered too low by I.V. resident Dave Bearman, while I.V. resident Mike Boyd said that the $500 limit was too high.

Bearman also criticized a portion of the measure which included licensed professional volunteer services as a contribution. Bearman said this is unfair because licensed accountants and unlicensed volunteers are exempt from the proposed contribution limit.

The board voted to allow licensed professionals to contribute volunteer services, but kept the $500 limit.

American Civil Liberties Union attorney Dennis Flanagan said because a provision in the proposal limits spending by committees that are for or against a candidate, the board could "violate the fundamental right of free association."

The provision was written to prevent committees from denying their affiliation to candidates and spending money on their behalf, Weaver said. Although the section may violate rules and create problems, the alternative of many committees with no spending limitations is worse, he said.

Despite Flanagan's efforts, the board decided to keep the provision. Hone was the only director to vote against the committee limitation. "I still have reservations about this resolution," she said.

"Voting is a right, not a privilege obtained by arduous efforts."

Student Entries Being Accepted for Book Collection Contest

Book collectors may compete for $1,000 in prizes in the annual Edwin and Jean Corle Memorial Book Collection Contests conducted by the UCSB library for undergraduate and graduate students at UCSB.

Each collection will be judged on how well it represents "a well-defined field of interest" on the part of the owner, according to Christian Brun of the library's department of special collections.

An annotated bibliography and a short essay describing the collection must accompany each entry, whose size should be from 35 to 50 books.

A free brochure with complete contest information may be obtained from the department of special collections on the third floor of the library, where entries are being accepted through April 11.

The undergraduate and graduate contests each offer first, second and third prizes of $250, $150 and $100.

Now in their 23rd year, the contests are sponsored by Jean Lehman, in memory of her parents, Edwin and Jean Corle.

Never Stop

Editorial

Apartheid and white-minority rule in South Africa will not crumble tomorrow, the next day, or even in the very near future. But no matter how distant the ultimate goal — democracy and freedom for a grossly oppressed people — may seem, we can never abandon the fight.

And Friday, when 300 students and faculty gathered in front of Cheadle Hall to teach and protest the injustices in South Africa, they added their link to the chain of hope that will eventually bring about equality in South Africa. And it is this kind of action — protest as the means to a common goal — however small, that must continue.

Like Friday's events, other teach-ins and rallies have proved their value as a successful form of protest. They have raised the awareness that is mandatory to eventually stop the immoral bloodshed in South Africa. Yet, perspective cannot be lost. People must see the value they add to the chain when they protest, but realize its limits. And they need to be careful not to stagnate in conventional avenues of expression.

Eight of Friday's protesters, who were later arrested, chose an unconventional route of protest — nudity. And however small their "voice" may be, it is still one more expression of outrage, one more symbol of people joining to fight their college and national administrations, and ultimately the South African government they support.

But physical protests are not the only channel. Others choose to protest silently. They write letters to congress members, university regents, student representatives to the regents, and newspapers. They read books like White Supremacy, The White Tribe Of Africa, and A Dry, White Season. In their own way — by educating themselves and others — they, too, protest. And most importantly, they add one more link to the chain.

In retaining a sense of perspective, we must realize that though our crusades may help us feel like we are making a difference, in reality our actions alone will not directly topple the Botha regime, nor any other intense system of injustice. Instead, we must see ourselves as links that need to be continually strengthened and united as we move closer to the desired end. It is when more people become active and more people protest that the pressure to change is felt by administrations who actually make the difference happen.

But however small, we cannot forget the value we add to the overall process. Black South Africans will continue to fight, with or without us. White South Africans will feel pressured, with or without us. But with us, the chance for blacks' freedom in a truly democratic South Africa is even better.

For that reason, we must never stop seizing opportunities and creating new avenues to express our beliefs. And for the value we add, we must never stop the protest.

Some Quick Thoughts

Dave Anthony

If I had my way — which, and perhaps fortunately, I don't — every pedestrian on campus would be required to carry a medium-sized metal bar with them wherever they went, approximately one inch in diameter by about two feet in length. It would be held gingerly in either their right or their left hand, and whenever a person on a skateboard went by that presented a real danger, he or she would have the option of doing one of two things: (A) give the skateboarder a wide, sweeping blow to the shins, sending them toppling head-first to the pavement, or (B) give the skateboarder a quick but decisive jab to the solar plexus, a move which would give us very nearly the same result.

Meet Biff. Biff is an avid skateboarder, and has been for as long as he can remember.

"Skateboarding is my life," he says with a starry-eyed relish found only in those truly entranced with the life they lead. And indeed, one sees that it is a passion manifested in his every action. On weekends, Biff wakes early,

The Reader's Voice

Book Ripoff

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I commend Peter Most for being the first student to verbalize his concern with our book purchasing situation. Finally, we the students can actively seek legitimate action from our A.S. body on this concrete issue of being "Ripped Off." Mr. Most however, did not touch upon the related problem associated with selling back books. If his calculations are correct, the one fifth or less we receive upon returning our books is a gross rip off!! There exists no reason why we, as students, only receive one third to one half our initial costs back upon returning good books which will be resold at close to full price again ... and again. Currently, other institutions of higher education across our country do refund close to one half the original costs as a routine practice and are still making profits.

If our campus bookstore insists on ripping off its students and further taking advantage of its much-needed clientele, clearly we are left with three options: One — we can continue to do nothing, a grim thought; Two — we can direct our efficient activists towards our needs and unite and protest such revolting behavior; Three — we can develop a new and fair book purchasing corporation such as A.S. Books as proposed by Mr. Most and desired by many.

The best choice is clear, but the most important factor remains to be stated.

We, the students must protest such unfair and unwarranted abuse, not only for this gross, isolated incident of abuse but in all unjust and unfair actions taken against the most important people on this campus — or have we forgotten? The Students! We can and must change existing abusive systems and right these wrongs so clearly created by our university. It is a sad statement that capitalistic corruption exists within an institution so dedicated to the betterment of society. What example are we to follow?

A. ROHN

Club Sports

Editor, Daily Nexus:

The Club Sport referendum has two main objectives. First, it will develop a small pool of money for use in covering administrative costs not currently allowed the club sport teams. Xeroxing, typing, mailing lists, phone costs and so on are picked up out of the pockets of the players and coaches. This budget would allow for some level of sophistication to develop for the club sport teams (although it would in no way even approach the money spent on the Athletic Departmental teams).

Second, the majority of the money generated would go directly into the budgets of the teams. That money would be spent in whatever way the needs of the particular teams dictated. For example, a travel intensive team (such as the Ski Team which needs to get to Mammoth even to practice or the Rowing Team which needs to get to Cachuama Lake six times each week) would use the money to rent safe transportation. An equipment intensive team might buy new uniforms, goals, etc. Some teams that have become national powers might spend their money professionalizing their coaching staffs (or at least in making the costs of being a "volunteer coach" acceptable to those many donors of time who have made our club sport teams championship calibre endeavors).

The amount of money is small compared with (any) Athletic Departmental budget. But its impact upon our grabbing his board, his knee-pads, and a few of his boarding buddies for a trip to the nearest live half-pipe spot. There, he and his comrades will spend the day, seeing back and forth in an endless procession that takes them no further than the other side of where they were but seconds before. These are some of Biff's most cherished times.

In truth, though, the hours Biff spends on the weekends with his board are but secondary to what he himself refers to as his, "prime boarding hours" — school days. Then Biff, along with his boarding buddies, invades the campus with a determination and singleness of purpose rare for persons so young. And their objective, quite simply, is to scare and to irritate innocent pedestrians to as great an extent as possible. If awards were given for disruption of otherwise tranquil journeys through campus, Biff and his counterparts would be consistent winners.

Meet Max. Max is a large, heavy-set boy, the sort who has no muscle definition, but who, like a mid-western farm boy of old, is incredibly strong. Max has no hair, and a forehead that juts forward with startling aggressiveness, so much so that his already smallish eyes become beady and imposing beneath its shadow. Max, as you may have guessed, is not overly intelligent. He does, however, have a certain single redeeming quality. Max hates skateboarders.

"Skateboarders demean my entire existence," he says in a slow voice whenever confronted on the subject. It is a phrase about which he is not only rather proud, but which is, on the whole, fairly accurate. Max has devoted his life to the abolition of skateboarders from our campus' bikepaths.

So then, (and just, mind you, for the sake of curiosity), let us imagine for a moment a confrontation between these two people, whose lives lie so very nearly opposite one another. Biff, whom we do not like very much, versus Max, our hero.

It is early, just before eight o'clock, but with the first wave of students on their way to class come also Biff and his many friends. It is a sunny day, and they are eager to extend again their wave of terror over the campus. But like most over-zealous terrorists, they are unaware of the eminent danger awaiting them.

Max acts quickly. Perched in a high, advantageous position, he begins hurling large objects in the path of the oncoming skateboarders. Used to avoiding such obstacles, the boarders begin maneuvering around them, but not without a crucial loss of speed. This is what Max has been waiting for. As they slow, Max, unconcerned with pain, launches himself bodily onto the skateboarders with a loud cry. There is a struggle, and most of the skateboarders escape, but not without the loss of their skateboards. It is a small skirmish, but a successful one. Carefully, and to the accompaniment of some crowd applause, Max hacks the boards to pieces and moves onward.

We know, of course, that this is a highly unlikely scene. Victories for pedestrians against the quick and agile skateboarders are few and far between. But since, however, this is fiction, the victory here will go to Max. Although an underdog of the first order, just for today we will imagine that Max, a pedestrian, had a chance against his enemies. For today, he will be our hero. Because this is fiction. Because in real life we are not allowed to hit people with heavy metal bars, skateboard or no skateboard. And because as I walk to school every day trying to avoid Biff and his buddies, that is really the only solace I can find.

many club sport teams (and over 600 athletes playing for them and paying their own way) would be great. We encourage all students to support this grass roots effort on the part of these struggling teams to build a solid base upon which UCSB might develop an even grander athletic program.

FRANK ROWE

What Happened?

Editor, Daily Nexus:

That's what I wanted to know. Why was I again standing in a line that belonged to a Disneyland ride to get classes? To my question, the university pre-printed a newsletter to explain why I only received four units for Spring Quarter. As I scanned the list of reasons, I finally came upon the category in which I belonged. It read ... "Often students simply experience BAD LUCK..." Wow, what a relief. I finally knew the TRUTH of my ill fate, simply, uncontrollable bad luck, in which I am one of the large number of the 1,500 students who unluckily got to spend hours desperately seeking classes, timely/considerately enough, during finals week.

Could this university of a highly educated, supposedly intelligent administrators possibly arrange a way to control fate and luck for us paying, fulltime students? Did I enroll in a roulette wheel of a school? Could I be in Las Vegas? Or ... could another reason exist as to why it is taking many of us students two times longer to graduate from this school in four years than other equal coeds?

The reason is obvious and can be explained in one word, overenrollment. Yee Gads!! Is it possible that this is the cause of so many problems? Let me assure you it is. For example, should incoming freshman who have followed all pertaining procedures end up at UCSB on move-in day without housing? I was also one of these such persons, another victim of overenrollment. Should we establish an I.V. Hot Line to counsel such victims? My parents, too, are wondering the infamous question ... What happened? as it looks like I might not be able to get classes in my major to graduate in four years — that is the norm is it not?

Clearly, the cause of these and many other problems such as high rent, etc., stem from overenrollment and we the students are paying the prices. If you know what I mean. Let's put an end to these problems, and control our fate. Let's end this lottery-type luck that threatens us all be becoming activists for Students Against Overenrollment. STUDENTS OF UCSB UNITE!

In The Name Of Understanding

Susanah Presley

In that now famous letter to the editor printed last quarter, the male author stated that maternal instinct has all but disappeared, and he cited the increasing number of abortions as an example. I say the two are unrelated, and his is an unfair and downright mean statement.

And I should know — I had an abortion.

People like to call me many things. Some say I'm a murderer and a senseless killer. Others say I serve as a model of the supreme right of choice. And that particular male author said I lack maternal instinct. What do these people know about me, the person that I am? Not a thing, yet they continually call me names. Let me tell you about me, let me share some of my experiences, in the name of understanding.

My name is not Susanah Presley. I am a student here at UCSB. I could be any student. I take 16 units, I sometimes study hard, sometimes not, and I receive decent grades. I have clearly defined goals for life and I try to pursue them. I could be anybody — your classmate, roommate, or girlfriend. And I probably am. In 10th grade, when I was pregnant, I was determined by my fellow homeroom classmates as "most likely to be a virgin." I didn't laugh.

I am not proud of my decision; in fact, I wish events didn't happen the way they did. I wish I didn't have to abort. But I wouldn't reverse my decision if I were placed in the exact situation today. The key issue is necessity. I was a 16-year-old pregnant girl caught in a downhill first-love relationship which increasingly damaged my self-image. There was no future for us. The guy was such a clod that the year after my abortion (and our breakup), he called me to wish me a happy Mother's Day.

If I had kept the baby, I would now be a single, working parent. I would have had to attend night school just to finish high school. Gone would be my hopes of going into advertising or other professional careers. This was just not how I planned my life.

Okay, you're probably becoming bored with the sob story. Well, let me tell you how it feels to be me. My thoughts plague me constantly: "Was it a boy or a girl?" "What would it have looked like?" I am convinced my baby would have been beautiful, and that thought makes me cry harder. I only cry when I'm alone because one can't say she had an abortion and then expect support from others.

And how I cry. I want to look at my baby, cuddle my baby. Something is empty. All I have is a "yes" by the medical questionnaire's "Ever pregnant?" and a "0" by "How many children?" The pain I feel when I see new mothers with babies in their arms is intense. I also cry while watching TV or films when parents survive a crisis with their children. The tears of guilt run.

I wish I could tell everyone to handle me with care. I am fragile, and I break easily. I don't enter into abortion debates; I'm afraid people won't understand. I'm afraid I don't understand myself. I do not agree with abortion, yet I would not change my decision if given the chance. Society has to learn that abortion is not a yes or no issue but an individual, very personal, intimate question that can only be answered by the impregnated person. And sometimes then the answer is not clear. In my case, I still suffer the loss of my child — silently.

Women who have aborted are silent to the world. Nobody likes to talk about it. So my testimony may be unique, but I doubt it. I'm one of the "it-can-never-happen-to-me-ers." I will pay the price of shame forever unless the world changes its harsh viewpoints. You see, I don't need anyone to condemn me because I do enough of that myself.

Crisis Out Of Thin Air

Lane Simonia

Hello, President Hoyo, this is President Reagan.
Hello, President Reagan. May I say this is quite a surprise.
Well, I just wanted to see how you are holding up under the greatest crisis in Honduran history.
What crisis?
The Sandinista invasion.
Oh, that.
You mean it doesn't concern you?
No, it happens all the time.
All the time? What are you talking about?
Border incursions by the Sandinista troops happen all the time.

Do they always happen just before a critical senate vote on aid to the contras?

No, I guess not. But what's your point?

My point is that if we can convince Congress that Sandinista troops have invaded Honduras, they will give me the hundred million in contra aid that I am asking for. And I will do anything to get that aid. Do you understand me?

Including misrepresenting what is going on in Honduras?

Anything. Now listen to me, I am going to ask Congress to pass $20 million in emergency military aid to Honduras. American Helicopters will be used to transport Honduran troops to the scene of the battle. Is it a deal?

No.

What do you mean, no?

Try to understand our situation, Mr. President. First of all we don't even recognize that the contras are using our territory as a base of operations against the Sandinistas. Secondly, we don't want to get involved in a conflict with Nicaragua.

Listen, President Hoyo, if you don't understand your own national security interests, we will make you understand them.

I don't know why you are so concerned if we're not so concerned.

Because the Sandinistas are a threat to the entire western hemisphere.

No one in Latin America believes that.

Don't bring the Latin Americans into this. We're talking about a direct threat to U.S. interests in the hemisphere. Now, I believe there is a vote on U.S. economic aid to Honduras coming up soon. Would you like the money?

Yes.

Okay, then accept this twenty million as a sign of friendship between our two countries. Is it a deal?

What can I say?

How about, "It's a deal."

Whatever the U.S. says or wants, Honduras complies.

Good, that's the way it should be. Now you can relax. The greatest crisis in Honduran history is almost over.

You cannot believe how relieved I am, Mr. President.

S.B. Supervisor Candidates Speak on Local Concerns

By Penny Rosenberg
County Editor

Candidates for the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors' District Two seat seem to agree on local issues and stress the importance of self-determinism in the county.

Asked to speak in alphabetical order, incumbent Michael Stoker, city council member Tom Rogers, local attorney Ben Bycel and Santa Barbara Police crime analyst Gerald Dow discussed Goleta Valley incorporation, the water supply and rent control before the Santa Barbara Rental Property Association in a public forum Thursday.

"The people of Goleta should be allowed to make their own choice (about incorporation)," Bycel said. "I will support whatever the people do."

The Land Agency Formation Commission, which decides if cityhood will go to a public ballot, must consider all alternatives for an unincorporated area, he said. "They've (LAFCO) got to be able to pursue cityhood — cityhood without Isla Vista annexation — or simply remain in the county."

Dow favors annexation or incorporation and believes decision making should be "brought down as close to the people as possible."

"Whatever the people wanted, I would work diligently to see that that work," Dow said.

Stoker cautioned that he cannot prejudice the incorporation drive because he is a LAFCO alternate.

"It's very important to me as an alternate to LAFCO and it's important to me being a member of the Board of Supervisors that all the alternatives, all the proposals are given a fair shake," Stoker said.

"It's the most important decision that's going to be made in the Goleta Valley in our lifetimes and we've got to do it right," Bycel added.

Although Rogers does not favor one particular incorporation plan, he would support a proposal with community "momentum."

"My goal is to allow ... local control," he said "I see that we need support for one major proposal and if we don't have that, it won't work."

According to Stoker, a county growth management plan can most effectively handle area water problems.

Although Stoker supports raising Lake Cachuma, he has "serious problems with the raising of Gibraltar ... because there is a saltation problem."

Stoker believes state water can fulfill the agricultural need in the Santa Ynez Valley, freeing 10,000 acre-feet a year from Lake Cachuma for possible use in the South County.

Santa Barbara City Council member Tom Rogers explains that if Goletans don't unite behind one cityhood proposal, "it won't work."

"We don't have a Goleta water problem. We don't have a Santa Barbara water problem. We have a regional water problem," Bycel said.

He also supports the ground water basin management plan, but is "very skeptical" of Gibraltar expansion and opposes importation of state waters to south county as an "economic unreality."

"Santa Barbara is at the bottom of the list. We'll never get state water, even if we pay for it," Rogers said.

"The trick is local resource control," he said, adding he supports conservation and recycling on a short range basis.

"We have to stick to our comprehensive plan. It has to include commercial and residential, agriculture protection, all the aspects of land uses, and we need to provide for the natural growth that occurs in our general plan," he said.

Dow also stressed the importance of living within limitations imposed by the water crisis and supports swift action. He opposes importation of state waters and is "concerned" with the raising of Lake Cachuma.

Dow favors the ground water basin management plan and raising

Bradbury Dam.

Speaking on rent control, Bycel said he opposes it "in every form (because) it simply doesn't work." He said certain government programs, such as rent control, have no place in the private sector, and proposed instead voluntary programs to unify landlords and tenants.

Dow "adamantly" opposes rent control. "There is nothing that smacks more of socialism in the violation of property rights than rent control," he said.

He added that he has a "different" perspective on the issue, as he managed an 84-unit Isla Vista complex while in college.

Rogers is "steadfastly" against rent control. "I do not support legislation where I thought that community solutions to our problems were a better alternative," he said.

Stoker has opposed rent control for the past five years in the Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce. "Mike Stoker has always been a person (who) believes in free enterprise, and free enterprise is not rent control," he said.

simply get angry and to forget that what we're talking about here fundamentally is a moral claim and a moral issue. We're saying that the University of California ought to divest, they must divest," Gold said.

Gold attacked arguments against divestment. "People claim that divestment is impractical, that we ought not to divest because, aside from being unprofitable, if you divest it's going to create a doctrine that our allies or someone else will uphold."

This argument is "not only absurd, but totally morally inadequate to the task," he said, calling it "morally erroneous."

Gold criticized another argument that divestment will only cause more violence in South Africa. "Violence may be caused by the situation, but violence is certainly not caused by divestment. The conditions in South Africa are so extreme that if violence is going to come about, it's not going to come out simply by our divestment."

Black studies Professor Douglas Daniels said he was not at the rally "to make you feel good. I don't think rallies are the place for that, the classroom either."

"I'm glad that all the people who had to go to class are gone, all the people had important things to do are gone ... I like dealing with the hard core rather than the soft fringe," Douglas said.

"I was up at Berkeley a few days ago ... and they asked me, are they doing anything in Santa Barbara? I said, 'Oh no, they're waiting to see what you do,'" he said.

"Divestment? Why? What for? What's wrong with making money from slavery? What's wrong with that? That's what made this nation great.... This nation was founded on slavery," he said.

"Slavery is alright. We can trace our heritage to slavery, to the Greco-Roman tradition. The Romans had slaves and that's where we trace our legal tradition to, so you know slavery must be alright," Daniels said sarcastically.

"Even in the twentieth century you got your forms of slaves.

You got people coming from south of the border. They come here, they pay taxes, they don't get no protection, people don't even want them to send their children to school," he said.

Daniels described a harsh reality. "People say we got a dog-eat-dog society ... but dogs don't eat dogs. People eat people. Humans eat people. That's what kind of a society we've got here.

Later Daniels turned to the issue of divestment, sarcastically describing some of questions about why such action should be taken. "So why do you want to divest? I mean, there's the glory of western civilization for you."

"Think about these things. Don't make the mistakes of other people at Berkeley. Don't act and then think. Think about what you're doing. Read. Take about 50 years thinking about it, and then think 50 more years. Don't actually do anything, you know?"

Many speakers, including black studies department Chair Cedric Robinson, Leg Council member Kim Alexander, UCSB Lobby Annex Director Mikhael Smith and a visiting Reverend from South Africa, presented views relating to apartheid and the strife in Central America.

Mark-Aid Pub Benefit Concert a Success

A benefit concert, called Mark-Aid, raised almost $3,000 Friday night in the UCen Pub for the medical bills of a UCSB student with a congenital heart defect.

The money has been donated to Mark Altmar, a former Pub employee who will undergo open heart surgery on Friday. Organizers had hoped to raise $2,000 for Altmar's post-operative costs. Most of the cost of the actual operation is covered.

Approximately $1,845 was raised through donations and T-shirt sales, and the Pub contributed $900 in proceeds to the cause. About 25 Pub employees donated their wages for the evening, and the Isla Vista Allstars played three hours of music free of charge.

Several Pub employees said it was the most crowded they had seen the Pub this academic year.

"I'm a physical wreck at this point from the whole affair. I'm just glad Mark's glad," said graduate student Mike Metcalf, bass player for the I.V. Allstars and one of the event's organizers. "I'm just glad that it worked out."

Altmar's condition was discovered last quarter after he collapsed from exhaustion on a Goleta bicycle trail. It was then that Pub Supervisor Jay Lee, Metcalf and others conceptualized Mark-Aid.

T-shirts are available in the Pub, and donations are still being accepted.

FASTING—The Physician Within!

The great Greek fathers of Western medicine—Hippocrates and Galen—both fasted and prescribed it. So did Paracelsus, the famed Swiss physician, who diagnosed fasting as "the greatest remedy, the physician within." So did Buddha, Moses, Pythagoras, Christ, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Gandhi, MacLaine, Streep and Lange.

Today, the Santa Barbara-based FASTING CENTER supervises California's largest, nonresidential fasting clientage, now stretching from San Diego to San Francisco (with out-of-State clients in places where supervised programs are simply unavailable: Seattle, Denver, Kansas City, Detroit, Boston, New York... even London and Paris). Why the modern rage for ancient wisdom? Modern Santa Barbarans explain:

"BEFORE my Fast, I suffered from chronic headaches, interrupted sleep, chronic anxiety, premenstrual tension, addiction to sugar and chocolate, over-eating, and chronic fatigue. DURING and AFTER fasting, I've had no headaches; deep, relaxed sleep; lessened anxiety; milder premenstrual episodes; broke the sugar/chocolate addiction; more normal eating patterns, plus more energy."
 —Bette Robinson, 40, psychotherapist

"My 20-day program left me feeling like a new person... like I've got a new body. I feel better about living in this Universe now... so much healthier. I wish I'd found you years ago; you're changing lives permanently!"
 —Laura Cook, UCSB student

"My prolonged fast was one of the most important bodily experiences of my life, something akin to giving birth — only now to me! Every area of my life has improved."
 —Betty Bottoms, over-50, grandmother-writer-educator

"Long before I undertook a prolonged juice fast, fasting seemed to make sense. Now that I've completed my 52-day program — losing 45 pounds — I wish I'd started years ago! I'm looking forward to the next one."
 —David Taylor, 43, English teacher, Santa Barbara Junior High School

"I feel great! Prior to my 26-day program, I felt like I was carrying around all kinds of poisons — literally! Fasting has made me cleaner and lighter, plus I don't have any more of the niggling little aches and pains I suffered — bursitis, headaches, post-nasal drip, etc. I've also stopped my high-blood-pressure pills, because my blood-pressure is now good — within normal. I'll use this great cleansing skill yearly."
 —Dorothy Padilla, 43, practical nurse

"I can't believe I broke three major addictions through my prolonged fast — to cigarettes, caffeine and junk food itself. At my age, I now feel lighter, have enormous new energy, and a great desire to once again be active."
 —Margaret Hope, 67, retired educator

"Self-esteem took a big leap for me. I did something few people have done, something many of the great teachers/masters of life did. The clarity, energy and self-acceptance are wonderful benefits — not to mention the loss of 25 lbs. during my 20-day program."
 —Richard Hurlbut, 44, producer-director, Estudio 19, and Tai Chi Chih instructor

"Fasting as a couple, Mark, who's a carpenter, and I have had some really profound changes, post-fast, because of our 20-day programs. It's changed our diet, given us greater awareness of our bodies and the effects food has on them, plus a new peacefulness within our bodies. We've removed refined sugar totally, which has ended all those weird physical, hypoglycemic-style ups-and-downs. So losing weight became secondary, plus my long-time neck-injury pain is gone completely."
 —Sara Stark, 31, psychotherapist

"I heartily recommend supervised fasting. I felt energetic and enthusiastic throughout my 20-day program, besides enjoying weight loss and a 'fresh' feeling. Also, chronic knee-achiness disappeared. I intend to make this experience a happy, twice-a-year treat!"
 —Diane Kirkpatrick, 47, speech and language specialist, S.B. County Schools

"To be honest, my 30-day cleansing changed my life. First, you become more aware of your body. That, in turn, opens up your perception of the world around you. With such heightened clarity, I always woke up feeling great! Still do!"
 —Geoff Richardson, 36, director, Kubicki Instruments, and musician

UCSB ARTS & LECTURES SPRING EVENTS 1986

BIG ART

MARIA BENITEZ COMPANY SPARKLES

The Maria Benitez Spanish Dance Company will light up the stage in Campbell Hall on April 15. Exquisite dancer and choreographer Benitez presents an anthology of Spanish classical dance including the virtuosic flamenco, accompanied by live guitar music. In addition to the Campbell Hall performance, Benitez and her company will give a free lecture-demonstration (Apr. 14).

MEXICAN POET OCTAVIO PAZ

Mexican poet and essayist Octavio Paz comes to UCSB this month as a Regents' Lecturer in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese. He will give two free presentations in Campbell Hall during his residency here (see calendar for details).

Octavio Paz has won distinction as an anthropologist, philosopher, historian and critic of art and literature. But it is as a poet that he is most celebrated. From the 1930s to the present, Paz continues to write — and to astonish readers with his great gift for synthesizing the rich diversity and complexity of his ideas.

The Labyrinth of Solitude (1950) helped to establish Paz's international reputation and has remained a key to understanding the life and thought of Mexico. His recent collection of essays, One Earth, Four or Five Worlds: Reflections on Contem- porary History, is now available in English translation. In this volume he writes about the state of the world with an informed viewpoint that covers a broad range of social and political topics.

Paz has been an important figure in the public life of Mexico for decades; he has served as ambassador to India and held other government posts and is highly respected as an interpreter of contemporary life.

Paz's Friday evening presentation follows the Second Annual Colloquium on Mexican Literature, an all-day event at UCSB that will focus on Paz.

FROM AMADEUS TO ZIGGY STARDUST: series tickets let you save 50 percent and see 13 great films in Campbell Hall beginning April 10.

STATE OF THE WORLD

"The State of the World," a six-week lecture series sponsored by A&L and the Environmental Studies Program, presents current viewpoints on global environmental problems by experts in law, ethics and the sciences.

Edith Brown Weiss, an associate professor of law at Georgetown University, will give the first lecture: "The Planetary Trust" (Apr. 8). Weiss's presentation will be the Sixth Annual Steven Manley Memorial Lecture.

According to Weiss, people have assumed that life would be better for future generations than for themselves. However, our capacity to harm the environment has increased, and we must become concerned about the natural and cultural resources of the planet that we hold in trust for future generations.

ANY QUESTIONS?

For more information about any Arts & Lectures event, stop by the Arts & Lectures Ticket Office in Building 402 adjacent to Campbell Hall. To charge tickets by phone, call 961-3535. All the details are listed in A&L's free brochures, available all over campus.

Vella's Two-Run Homer Caps off Sweep Gauchos in 1st; Bulldogs Whimper Home

By Scott Channon
Sports Editor

Greg Vella's two-run blast — and it was a blast — to deep right field in the bottom of the 10th inning gave UCSB a 7-6 victory over Fresno State Sunday afternoon at Campus Diamond. As Vella circled the bases for the second time on the afternoon, Gaucho players and fans celebrated the thrilling overtime victory as well as UCSB's three-game sweep of the defending Pacific Coast Athletic Association Champions.

On Friday afternoon, UCSB claimed a 9-8 victory in the bottom of the ninth on Scott Cerny's sacrifice fly, while the Gauchos captured a rain-shortened game on Saturday, 8-6.

UCSB (5-1 in the PCAA, 25-11 overall) is now tied with UNLV for first place in the PCAA, while the Bulldogs are tied for fifth with a 2-4 conference mark, 16-19 overall.

This year, PCAA teams play each other only three times, as opposed to six last year, which suits Gaucho Head Coach Al Ferrer just fine. "The thing is, we've got our three wins from Fresno, we don't have to play them again, and I don't care how hot they get."

Ferrer's gang has been on fire of late, winning 14 of their last 16. As well, Gaucho bats have been smoking, although UCSB lost the home run derby with Fresno State, 9-4. UCSB has a team batting average of .352, .368 in PCAA play.

"There's no real easy out in our lineup," said second baseman Cerny, whose .442 batting average leads the team. "I'd hate to pitch against us."

Cerny's two-out solo homerun, his first of the season, in the seventh inning Sunday tied the game at 4-4.

ROBERT AUCI/NEXUS

Gaucho Coach Al Ferrer talks to Greg Vella after he struck out with the bases loaded in the first inning on Sunday. Vella responded with two home runs, including a two-run shot in the 10th inning to win the game.

After Mark Leonard singled, Vince Teixeira (.444) brought him home on another single, giving UCSB the lead at 5-4.

Fresno State tied it up in the top of the eighth, and the Bulldogs went ahead in the top of the 10th on Kevin Evert's sacrifice fly with one out and the bases loaded. Bobby Orr, the pitcher, attempted to bunt over the runners on first and second one batter earlier, which he did, but he reached first base as well after first baseman Vella became confused after fielding the bunt.

"I should have had an out (at first base)," Vella said. "I let my nerves get to me."

Vella let out his frustrations in the bottom of the inning with his team-leading ninth homer of the year, scoring Teixeira ahead of him, who doubled to open the 10th.

In Friday's win, Cerny went three-for-four, scored three runs, and knocked in the game winner on his sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth.

UCSB trailed, 3-1, after two and one-half innings, but the Gauchos, who knocked out 17 hits on the day, roared back to claim an 8-3 lead after five innings. The Bulldogs cut the gap to 8-7 after their four-run rally in the sixth, and tied the game in the top of the ninth on Jody Allen's single.

Butch Seuberth was remarkable out of the bullpen, as he pitched UCSB out of a two on, no out situation in the seventh, and with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth, he got Harvey Hill to hit into a double play, leaving the go-ahead run stranded at third. Seuberth saw action in all three games.

Mark Leonard was the hero Saturday, as he went three-for-three with a two-run homer.

Cloudy Playoff Picture Improves for Spikers

By Steven Deeley
Sports Writer

Due to the overcast skies, this past weekend was dismal for sun worshippers in Santa Barbara.

For the UCSB men's volleyball team, however, the outlook for post-season play is looking much brighter after a pair of CIVA victories over the weekend. The Gauchos evened their CIVA record at 8-8 (17-10 overall) with a pair of wins in the Events Center.

Friday night UCSB routed the Aztecs of San Diego State, 15-10, 15-10, and 15-7, and the Gauchos returned Saturday night to rout a hapless St. Mary's team, 15-12, 15-3, and 15-2.

"I'm pretty pleased with the results this weekend," Gaucho Head Coach Ken Preston said. "We needed both matches, and we got them. I thought we played better against SC (Wednesday night), but we got the wins when we needed them."

The victories kept the Gauchos in contention for the final playoff spot in the CIVA regionals April 24 and 26 at Loyola Marymount. The Gauchos currently trail Stanford by one and one-half games in the race for the final spot. The Gauchos will play at Stanford Saturday night.

Friday's massacre over San Diego State bore little resemblance to the Aztecs' five-game victory over the Gauchos in early February. In each of the first two games, UCSB spotted the Aztecs five-point leads before putting the game away. In the final game, the Gauchos simply blocked San Diego out of the gym.

The Gauchos outblocked the Aztecs, 14-9, outhitting them as well. UCSB recording a hitting percentage of .361 for the match, to just .164 for San Diego State. Once again, it was John Kosty who led the UCSB attack. Kosty recorded 18 kills, with teammate David Rottman registering 14.

Saturday night's debacle with CIVA doormat St. Mary's was even more lopsided. After a 35-minute first game, the Gauchos chased the mighty Gaels out of the ECen rather quickly: one hour and three minutes to be exact.

After spotting the Gaels a 10-5 lead in the first game, the Gauchos finally caught fire and never looked back. Strong serving from Bill Mattias and Jared Huffman, and solid overall play from Lee Nelson and Mark Franklin sent St. Mary's home in a hurry.

"I thought Mark Franklin had an excellent weekend," Preston said. "He passed and hit well, and served very tough all weekend. I also thought Lee Nelson had a good match against St. Mary's."

Diego State in a thriller, 11-10, Saturday afternoon at the lacrosse field. Max Kemsley scored the game-winner with ten seconds left.

USA-France Spike-Off Set Tonight

By Steven Deeley
Sports Writer

The USA men's volleyball team, the 1985 World Cup champions and unquestionably the top team in the world, returns to the Events Center tonight to take on France at 8 p.m. in the annual Bud Light Spike-Off.

Activities surrounding the match will begin at 7:30 with a spike-off between the top hitters on each squad.

Tonight's match will be the fourth stop on a five city tour for the two squads. The USA squad routed the French in the first three meetings in Montana, but the French have been pointing towards tonight's match, and Wednesday night's clash in San Diego, according to French Coach Eric Daniel.

The French team has suddenly emerged as a challenger to the top teams in the world. After defeating the Soviet Union last year in the Korea Cup, the French team is now considered among the world's top five teams. The French will be pointing to knock off the top-ranked Americans before the World Championships in Paris later this year.

The USA squad returns a core of four players from the 1984 Olympic Team which captured the gold medal. Those players are Steve Timmons, Pat Powers, setter Dusty Dvorak, and the world's top player, Santa Barbara native Karch Kiraly.

Bill Ctvrtlik and Dave Saunders share duties at the outside hitter spot, which was once held by Aldis Berzins, who retired last year. Middle blocker Craig Buck, who retired last month, is replaced by Steve Salmons and Goleta native Doug Partie. Jeff Stork may see time in place of Dvorak, with Ricci Luyties, Bill Yardley, and Mark Miller rounding out Coach Marv Dunphy's squad.

The French National Team boasts one of the quickest offenses in the world behind setter Alain Fabiani. Powerful hitters Eric Bouvier and Stephen Faure are the most likely recipients of Fabiani's superb sets.

In a match in Montana last week, Bouvier hit Kiraly with what Kiraly called "the best facial I've ever had."

In Montana the unpredictable fast-paced French caught the USA squad off-guard at times, but the more predictable, and more powerful USA attack prevailed in the end.

Last year former coach Jean-Marc Buchel stated, "I train my team to have the technique of the Japanese, the solidity of the USSR, and the spirit of Brazil."

The comment stung some people associated with the top-ranked USA team as rather brash. But so far on this tour, it has been the French who have been stung, in addition to Kiraly's face.

Special thanks to Dr. Lazlo Kiraly for his assistance to this article.
