Open Lot May Soon Turn Into Children's Romp-Site

By Dena Lerner

A lack of available resources for Isla Vista Elementary School students may result in the allocation of adjacent land for playing fields that could be used by the entire community.

The Goleta Union School District is proposing to share between four and six acres of a vacant 24-acre parcel with Santa Barbara County. The property is located across the street from Francisco Torres on the corner of Camino Corto and El Colegio roads.

A bond measure creating a special tax for property owners in the school district will be voted on next month. The additional funds will be used to pay development costs.

"Goleta Union School District board will hold a special election on March 7," said

GUSD Superintendent Dick Shelton. "We would be agreeable to developing the fields so as long as the county, I.V. Park and Recreation and the school district would have some joint responsibility for maintaining the fields, since the fields would be open to everyone's usage."

The vote's outcome will determine whether the school board has the necessary funds to make improvements to its facilities, which would include the addition of the playing fields and possibly some parking facilities for the school, according to Shelton.

"We need two-thirds of a yes vote to pass it. I think the major benefit is that outside I.V. school's one soccer field and the recreation field at the university, there is nothing available to the community," he

Fair to Feature Volunteer Agencies and Career Contacts, Blood Drive

By Dan Warren
Staff Writer

As part of Health Awareness Week, 20 service organizations will gather in Storke Plaza today for a dual volunteer drive and informational assembly.

The Health Fair targets students interested in health careers, helping establish contacts with volunteer groups, while also providing an educational forum for the campus, according to Ray Aragon, Community Affairs Board coordinator.

"We are trying to bring up some important health issues and some organizations which are bringing these issues up to the students," he said.

Pre-med students hoping to help their peers learn about agencies in different fields of interest were the primary players in developing the fair, according to CAB office manager Shari Geliardi.

"It is an excellent opportunity for students who are pre-med to get information on health-related organizations, and to aid the community at the same time," she said.

The Health Fair will feature booths from the American Red Cross, the Stop AIDS Now Project and the American Cancer Society. The band Alphabet Soup will provide entertainment at noon.

In conjunction with the fair, Sigma Kappa Chi sorority is hoping to collect 75 units of blood during a drive from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the UCen's Santa Barbara Harbor Room. Bagel Cafe and TCBY are donating food and gift certificates to participants.

According to Gina Nguyen, Sigma Kappa Chi community service chair, the sorority decided to host the event because of its positive experience with si-

Supes Discuss I.V. Congestion, Oil Revenue Increase at Tues. Meeting

By Michael Ball
Staff Writer

Examining possible parking solutions for Isla Vista and attempting to increase oil revenues topped the agenda at the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors meeting Tuesday.

The supervisors initiated steps toward a permit program by directing the county Public Works Dept. to draft a resolution expanding the agency's authority to cover parking issues in Service Area 31, which includes I.V.

Third District Supervisor Bill Wallace, who presented several recommendations on the subject to the board, hopes an all-embracing parking solution can be reached.

"We definitely need to move forward with a comprehensive program for I.V.," he said. "The main key is to allow for enough parking in I.V. that if we institute a permit program along with it, it will help improve the aesthetics of I.V."

According to Wallace, expanding the Public Works Dept.'s duties is an important aspect of developing a successful parking program, and could open the opportunity for additional funding.

"The other advantage of doing this to Area 31 is we could apply for grants," he said.

However, one supervisor expressed concern over the proposal, noting the board should be cautious about incurring too many costs at the program's onset.

"My concern is that whatever up-front costs are required, that this comes back to the board for a very careful look," said 2nd District Supervisor Jeanne Graffy.

Wallace's recommendations include increasing the number of residential-use spaces by collaborating with the university and local landlords. One option under examination is constructing a six-acre parking area at the corner of Los Carneros and El Colegio roads.

"There are a number of underutilized lots owned by UCSB and private parties in I.V.," Wallace said. "There's lots of room for cooperative movement and cooperation."

An increase in the number of available spaces would help lower the cost of permits, unlike a previous proposal considered by former Supervisor Willy Chamberlin, which focused mainly on sales, according to Wallace.

"I think it's important for the parking fee to be as low as possible," he said. "Most communities that have these kind of programs only charge $15 to $25. Fifty dollars is too high of a fee to charge."

The recommendations pre-

Record Label Begins Signing Local Bands

By Matthew Nelson
Staff Writer

Local bands hoping to make their mark on the musical landscape have a new place to turn, with Morninglory Music starting its own record label in an effort to promote area artists.

The Morninglory Music Group label, created to publicize and distribute music by bands from the local audio scene, signed the I.V. band The Cherries as its flagship entry into the music production industry in October.

"The idea has been going around for a couple of years," said Shawn Harris, downtown store manager. "There's a lot of local bands out there and basically when they put out their own CDs, it limits what they can actually do as far as getting it distributed."

Morninglory plans to release The Cherries' new album Candy Pants in the next three weeks, and will host a CD release party April 7, according to lead singer Annalee Woostek.

"We're going to try to get it on the radio before it goes into the stores to get some more fans," she said. "We would never had gotten the money together to make a CD ourselves. We can't even really afford guitar strings."

Events have fallen into place quickly for the band, according to Woostek, who works at Morninglory's downtown branch and was able to provide Harris a tape of her band.

The label will sign additional new artists in the future, but Morninglory plans to get The Cherries' album in stores before attempting to promote any other bands, according to Harris.

"Being our first venture, we didn't want to pick just anybody," he said. "We've had to be

Odd Transplant Planned to Fight AIDS

ATLANTA (AP) — In a sign of doctors' growing desperation in the fight against AIDS, a patient with the disease will soon receive a bone marrow transplant from a baboon to rebuild his ravaged immune system.

The transplant, described Tuesday at a conference sponsored by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is meant to re-supply the human bloodstream with baboon blood cells, which do not get infected with the AIDS virus.

"Given the fact that there is no treatment for AIDS, people have been very comfortable with moving ahead," said Dr. Suzanne Ildstad, who is directing the experiment.

One earlier attempt at the procedure has failed, but animal experiments suggest that this time the transplant might work, thanks to a new discovery in immunology.

Many questions remain, including whether baboon blood cells can carry out the same jobs fulfills everything we hope it will."

The experiment will take place sometime in the next few months at the University of Pittsburgh, where doctors say they have already picked has been convincingly shown to even slow the disease.

Collaborators on the experiment include Dr. Anthony Fauci, head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and Dr. Robert Gallo, a pioneering AIDS researcher at the National Cancer Institute.

AIDS wrecks the body's ability to fight disease by attacking its blood cells.

Researchers will transplant the baboon marrow cells, called stem cells, that manufacture new blood cells. If all goes well, these cells will survive and repopulate the blood with all kinds of baboon white cells, including T cells, as well as red cells.

Given the fact that there is no treatment for AIDS, people have been very comfortable with moving ahead.

inside a person as human cells do.

Dr. Fritz Bach, a cross-species transplant researcher at Harvard Medical School, said he doubts it will work.

"I have concern about how long the cells will survive," he said. "I would be surprised if it a terminally ill AIDS patient to receive the therapy.

That doctors would even consider such a seemingly outlandish approach demonstrates their frustration at fighting AIDS. Despite more than a decade of all-out research, no treatment

U.S. Signs Aid Plan; Mexico Agrees to Tighten Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Mexico signed an agreement Tuesday that will unlock $20 billion in U.S. support to stabilize the peso, but under tough terms that could cause economic and political distress in Mexico.

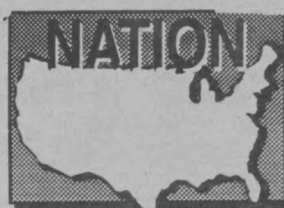

Officials in the Clinton administration and the government of Mexican President Ernesto Zedillo acknowledged that hard times lie ahead for Mexico. But they stressed the situation would be much worse without the support package.

"Under these agreements, Mexico should be able to take the steps necessary to end its liquidity crisis, and in time the Mexican economy, which is fundamentally sound, should stabilize," Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin said.

He added the agreement had taken political courage by Mexico in agreeing to the "kind of stringent economic medicine this program requires."

In order to receive the U.S. support, Mexico pledged to continue a tight-money policy that has seen interest rates soar to nearly 50 percent, run a budget surplus of 0.5 percent this year and move more quickly toward privating state-run enterprises.

"This program will only work, you know, if Mexicans put all their efforts to overcome this very difficult situation," said Miguel Mancera, head of the Bank of Mexico. "We have a strong program and we are committed to its full implementation."

Supreme Court to Decide on Homosexuals' Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court set the stage for its most significant gay-rights ruling in a decade, agreeing Tuesday to decide whether states can forbid laws designed to protect homosexuals from discrimination.

The court said it will review a Colorado constitutional amendment that would cancel local laws protecting gays from bias in employment, housing and public accommodations.

The amendment, approved by Colorado voters in 1992, was struck down by state courts for denying homosexuals an equal voice in government.

State officials say voters have the right to prevent homosexuals from being given "preferred legal status." Gay-rights advocates say local anti-discrimination ordinances extend civil rights protection to homosexuals, but grant them no special privileges.

"The rights of any minority should not be swept away by popular vote," said Kevin Cathcart of the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund.

Will Perkins, whose Colorado for Family Values wrote and campaigned for the amendment, said homosexuals are not entitled to the same civil rights protection as ethnic minorities or the disabled.

Voters in Oregon and Idaho defeated anti-gay-rights amendments last November. Eight states provide some sort of civil rights protection for homosexuals.

Mother Throws Young Sons, Self Into Los Angeles River

LONG BEACH (AP) — A mother threw her two little sons into the Los Angeles River estuary Tuesday and jumped in herself, triggering a desperate rescue effort that reached the youngest boy too late, authorities said.

Policemen alerted by a witness dove in and swam after the trio, and a passerby hurled a surfboard into the water to help before a marine patrol boat crew pulled the toddlers and the woman from the water.

Craig Alan Flemming, who would have been 2 years old on April 30, was dead on arrival at St. Mary Medical Center, said police spokeswoman Karen Kerr. His 3-year-old brother, Michael Robert Flemming, was in critical condition.

The mother, Donna Jean Flemming, 23, was treated at the hospital and was then brought to police headquarters. Kerr said investigators expected to book her for investigation of murder and attempted murder.

According to a witness, the woman was walking west across the Ocean Boulevard bridge over the Los Angeles River, pushing a stroller.

"She threw the stroller over, then she threw each of her two kids and then herself," Kerr said.

Ray Lyman was driving by with a surfboard in his van and stopped to help. "I grabbed my surfboard, threw it off the bridge and tried to get it as close to the lady and the kids as I could," he said.

Employers Looking Beyond Good Grades, Survey Finds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gone are the days when a 4.0 grade point average and a college degree guaranteed a job to America's graduates. A survey released Tuesday by the Education Dept. indicates that employers look more for a good attitude and strong work ethic in potential hires.

Of 11 criteria considered important to hiring decisions, attitude and communication skills topped the list. Years of completed schooling ranked seventh and grades ninth. Teacher recommendations were least important to the 3,173 plant managers surveyed.

"Employers do not value the schools as an evaluator of a graduate's skills," said Robert Zemsky, director of the Institute for Research on Higher Education at the University of Pennsylvania and co-director of the survey project.

Academics are so busy talking to each other about education for education's sake, that businesses perceive schools as disconnected from the workplace and uninterested in employers' needs, Zemsky said.

Bob Thies, who hires upper-level engineers and supervisors for the 4,000-employee ITT Automotive, agreed that teachers' opinions of a job candidate can differ radically from an employer's. But he still screens first for good grades and a good school.

Since you probably don't see how giving them a few thousand unwanted shirts is going to convince the powers-that-be that a fee increase on state universities is a bad idea, I've decided that it's up to me to help you end the madness if you really want to. No, step one is not to shave your head and poke holes in it.

First, realize that if your own parents voted for Gubernor Wilson (along with most of the state's citizens who bothered to go to the polls) simply finding out that "the students are really pissed off" isn't going to make an impact; in fact it would seem that many don't mind regular increases. Make a deal with them if they pay the bills: if your efforts succeed in preventing another 10% hike, get (step)Mom or (step)Dad to refund the savings directly to you. This will give you the incentive to try something effective, like inglorious work.

Second, find the taxpayers. They're where the money is supposed to come from ultimately, and if last year's election is any indication they are not motivated by pity. Nevertheless, it is to your advantage to know what they think, since it's these minds that need changing. You won't need to ask them if blocking traffic will make them sympathetic to the plight of UC students. You know the answer.

Tomorrow, which will be another gorgeous day (for you "big picture" folks), I'll provide a survey for your new friends in the real world. Friday: How to get in touch with your elected representative. Until then, stay cool and don't drool.

Viewers Learn From Officer

By Michael Abramson
Reporter

A UCSB Police Dept. officer seeking to provide a factual account of drugs and their effects, is putting on a televised program for the month of February.

The program, entitled "Alcohol/Drugs 101," features Community Relations Director Will Wood, and is being aired each Tuesday this month at 6 p.m. on Channel 18. It is similar to presentations Wood has given throughout the year, aiming to educate viewers on the effects of illegal substances.

"We discuss the substance, whether that be tobacco, marijuana, heroin or whatever, the ingredients in that substance, the symptoms while you're under the influence and then the long-term effects of the substance," Wood said.

Paul Nues, a resident assistant at Santa Cruz Residence Hall, arranged for Wood to give the presentation as part of an alcohol and drug awareness program earlier this year. Nues believes the approach taken is effective and appropriate for a collegiate audience.

"When people go drink with their friends or experiment with different types of drugs, they don't know what they are trying out," he said. "Instead of the program saying, 'Don't do drugs,' it's saying, 'This is what you are going to be taking, so be careful.'"

Wood believes that individuals properly educated on the effects of narcotics will be able to decide for themselves to refuse drugs.

"Hopefully by watching the program, they will have a more in-depth knowledge of the drugs and the symptomology and the long-term effects, so that they can make an educated choice for their lives," he said.

His experience with narcotics includes time at the Police Academy, training as an officer, and two years as a drinking driving team officer. Wood also taught a class on alcohol and drug awareness at Santa Barbara High School in 1992.

Frank Michel, a Santa Barbara Police Dept. officer, noted the importance of educating the public on drug-related matters.

"The less educated people are, the more naive they are, and the greater the probability of accidents and people becoming injured," he said.

The last program will be aired Tuesday, Feb. 28, at 6 p.m. on Channel 18.

Ruling's Guidelines to Be Discussed

By M. Jolie Lash
Staff Writer

Increasing student representatives' lobbying power is the primary discussion topic at the Associated Students Legislative Council meeting tonight.

Rep-at-Large Erin O'Brien and Off-Campus Rep Bo Thoreen authored a position paper responding to the UC Office of the President's guidelines for implementing Smith v.

Regents, according to Thoreen.

"The Smith v. Regents decision does not entail the resolutions the Office of the President has come up with," he said.

The bill supports conclusions reached by the UC Student Association Board of Directors, who calls the Office of the President's guidelines for implementation of the court ruling "overly restrictive."

The position paper also suggests allowing UCSA to lobby on behalf of students specifically on the issues of fee hikes and financial aid, according to Thoreen.

"UCSA has stated they are not going to follow the Office of the President's guidelines," he said. "We understand Smith v. Regents, and the Office of the President doesn't follow Smith v. Regents."

If passed, the bill would support allowing UCSA to lobby on any matter related to student

However, On-Campus Rep Jeff Provenzano, co-author of the bill, said council members will discuss changes proposed at last week's meeting before tabling the item.

Shifting Blame

Responsibility for One's Actions Should Not Be Passed Off

Editorial

It seems everyone nowadays is out to blame somebody else for their problems. The latest example is occurring in Florida, where the state government is suing the nation's biggest cigarette makers for $1.43 billion — the estimated cost of treating welfare recipients who get sick from smoking.

The tobacco manufacturers are of course fuming mad, and asked the Florida Supreme Court Monday to stop the state from filing the lawsuit, which is the result of a law passed last year by the Florida Legislature making it easier for the state to beat tobacco companies in court. The law allows courts to base judgments against tobacco companies on their market share instead of their degree of fault. It also excises the companies' most frequent defense, that health problems are the responsibility of the smoker.

While tobacco advertising seems to pervade the American landscape, it is no different than advertising for any other product. Joe Camel doesn't shove cigarettes into smokers' mouths. Rather, smoking is a personal habit, and tobacco companies shouldn't be punished for using effective marketing techniques. That is what a capitalist economy is all about.

Ultimately, people need to take responsibility for themselves. If an individual becomes ill from smoking, it is not the fault of the companies, but rather, the fault of the person who made a conscious choice to light up. Everywhere people turn, they are reminded of the dangers of inhaling tobacco smoke — it's not a secret. As long as there is a demand, there will be a supplier, and right now supplying tobacco products is legal in the United States. Instead of trying to search for someone else to pay the bill, Florida should look at the cause leading to the huge financial cost of treating smoking-related diseases — too many people are still inhaling.

Additionally, efforts to financially penalize tobacco companies show how transparent the state's motivations are. If Florida is truly acting in the public interest, then shouldn't the companies also be held accountable for the illnesses of smokers who do not receive welfare? And what about nonsmokers whose medical problems are traced to exposure to secondhand smoke? How about enacting strict nonsmoking ordinances like those in the state of California?

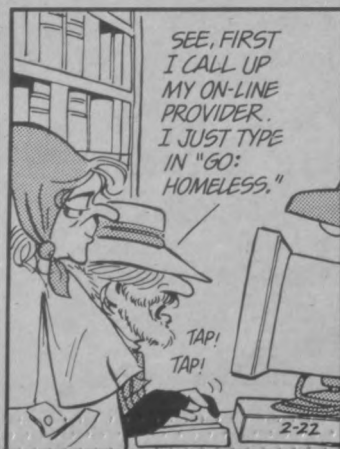

This lawsuit also sets a dangerous precedent. Business groups say it affects more than just cigarette makers, as it could expose almost any industry to a lawsuit. What other private enterprise will be punished for making a legal buck in a capitalist economy? Will government agencies next sue Pepsi to reimburse the state for the cost of paying for dentures for people whose teeth rotted away from too much sugar? Will they sue Burger King because a coronary bypass recipient ate too many fatty Whoppers? Will they bill Smith and Wesson for all the gun-related deaths in our society? What about alcohol, another legal drug? Should Jack Daniels be held responsible for liver transplants?

The lawsuit also signals the larger trend of trying to capitalize on one's own misfortune. Everyone seems to be suing each other over anything. After their child wandered into a restricted, backstage area of Disneyland and saw a worker wearing a Mickey Mouse costume minus the head, a couple claimed the child suffered through months of nightmares caused by the incident. Naturally, they sued the park and won.

One last concern of ours: If the newspaper ink from today's paper accidentally rubs off on your hands, we sincerely apologize. But please, don't sue us.

The Reader's Voice

Forrest Lump

Editor, Daily Nexus:

This is a response to the piece by Nick Robertson (Daily Nexus, "At Any Rate," Feb. 17). In his article, Nick bemoans the nation's seeming predilection with morons in television and the movies. He's right on with examples like "Beavis and Butthead" and "The Simpsons." Also, it's hard to argue with his indictment of Billy Madison and Dumb and Dumber. Indeed, the theme of his article was right on the money in almost every way. However, I take great exception to him lumping Forrest Gump in with these other examples.

Contrary to what Nick says, Forrest Gump does not "cater to an audience of idiots." Comparing the screenwriters of Gump with those of the other films is absolutely outrageous. It's true that Forrest succeeds despite his low IQ, but let's not take that too seriously. Forrest Gump didn't touch millions of people because it's about an idiot, it touched us because it's a wonderful piece of filmmaking. It's moving without being sappy, and dramatic without being self-important. I know I didn't love Forrest Gump because I "worship those of lesser mental capacity," I loved it because as a fan of the movie industry, I believe it was a monumental achievement. Forrest Gump was no Dumb and Dumber. The latter is nothing more than live action "Beavis and Butthead," the former is one of the grandest tales to come out of Hollywood in quite a while. Tom Hanks brought so much heart and soul to Forrest that we didn't give a damn how smart he was or wasn't. Tom Hanks made us love him, not a lack of brain power. It's not only unfair to put Forrest Gump in the same category as Dumb and Dumber and Billy Madison, it's inaccurate. These films are on opposite ends of the quality spectrum. It's true that with these lesser films Hollywood is trying to cash in on what they think made Forrest so popular, but that's their fault; the blame doesn't lie with the screenwriters of Forrest Gump. The movie struck a chord in the American psyche. Let's give the filmmakers some credit instead of writing it off to "an audience of idiots."

Like I said, I'm not arguing with Nick's sentiment. The fact that a comic book film like True Lies makes $140 million while wonderful, layered, intelligent works like Quiz Show and Ed Wood die early box office deaths does say something about the American audience. However, Forrest is not the example to use when making this statement. In answer to your question, Nick, your mental ability is not shrinking. Give yourself some credit. You loved Forrest Gump as much as the rest of us because you recognize a special achievement in filmmaking when you see one. So please don't compare Butthead's pipe mishap to Forrest Gump. As an avid, one might even say fanatical, lover of cinema, I find this to be insulting. I implore you not to belittle this wonderful film. As you well know, there are plenty of films out there that really need some belittling. Forrest Gump is not one of them.

Fuzz Buzz

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Okay, Gauchos, why does it seem the Official UCSB Band lately is The Fuzz? Are they the only band in 93117? Seriously, you put a few guys in cool retro shirts around one guy with skills on the saxophone (I'll give him that), and suddenly the masses think they have found nirvana. (No, not Nirvana, children, calm down.)

Not only do I object to the ubiquitous status the Fuzz has achieved in such short time, I question their originality and value as a band. They play without break or hook, seemingly unaware that the objective of a band in a live performance is to exude energy and provide a visual and audio show. Of the many times I have seen them perform, never have they introduced themselves or offered any semblance of structure to their show — just a bunch of guys playing half-ass music to the musically deprived (and depraved). The only thing the "success" of The Fuzz (and, guys, what's with the name?!) reveals is the sad state of affairs in Isla Vista. One marginal band has taken over a whole town, leading party-goers to actually remark in reference to other bands, "Oh, they're just trying to sound like The Fuzz." Back in the day we had bands that truly rocked (the Pub, too), including Indica, Ugly Kid Joe, Milgrim's Pilgrims. So, my fellow students, please explain to me, what IS the buzz with The Fuzz?

Terror in Transit

Olaina Gupta

I asked a friend for a column suggestion and he said to write about the train. I had a little nervous breakdown in the car on the way to the train station, and my mom said to make a list of all the things I have to do so I would know I can manage it all. I can think of nothing more sure to convince me that I would be better off killing myself than trying to successfully complete the quarter, than actually seeing it all on paper, so I decided to dive pen first into the therapy of writing. We'll focus on the first train ride, go somewhere this crowded holiday weekend. I sat in one of the four-people end seats so I could have all my stuff — my black Jansport backpack filled with newspapers, reporting notes, books, tape recorder, Walkman and tapes (a mix my friend made for me, Harry Connick Jr., this Rachmaninov) and my duffel bag — near me.

Across the aisle from me, this rather large guy had styrofoam carry-out boxes of food with him. He emptied most of a little one and then threw it away, dropping it into a slot marked "Trash" on the orange wall of the compartment. I tried to completely ignore him, but he grunted a lot. Lis-

OK. Back to the ride home. The boy was wearing headphones, so at least I was isolated from conversing with him. I planned to read, but I was in such a zombie-like state that I decided to just waste the time and try to rest.

Trains rock back and forth and go over a lot of bumps. They also stop frequently, causing a shift in momentum and your body's center of gravity, and this conductor guy goes by shouting out the location of each stop. Plus, I have spent a little too much time in New York City, and am convinced that if I fall asleep someone will steal my bags. But I dozed a little and even-

I peeked out of a squinting eye and saw this buxom African-American woman with long, reddish fingernails and gelled hair standing at my feet, which were on the bench across from me.

"You the only one here?" she bellowed in a Los Angeles accent.

"Yeah," I squeaked.

(Now the boys are having a farting contest and insisting they could run faster than this train. This, unfortunately, could be true. No wonder this two-hour car trip takes four by train. Anyway, I'll try to concentrate.)

"Then I'm gonna do like you're doing."

I was lying there, trying to make a clear physical appearance case for not being bothered and definitely needing the whole seat. I failed miserably. She sat down, she shifted around. I tensed up. In the first place, I have a hard time resting in the presence of strangers, but she was really close. What if they're watching? And making fun of me? And what if I drool?

"Don't mind me," the woman said, when I tried to sit up, in a vain effort to be lady-like. I realized I was probably eyeing this woman, warily looking, but really I just couldn't focus on her because I had peeled my contacts off my eyeballs somewhere after Oxnard. And I was thinking about how good I was getting at being miserable and I decided that my life was probably over, and there was no way I'd ever get my work done, and I'd probably never get to sleep again anyway, some people are stupid, and train rides could be romantic, but like New York City they are a lot better in the movies than in real life. And then the conductor came by to take the lady's ticket, and I must have looked really pathetic because he asked me if anything was wrong. I decided he probably didn't actually want to know just how wrong Everything was, so I just said, "I'm tired." Which was entirely true.

Right now some mother is telling her son Michael to stop doing something. And she's telling them to lower their voices. I have half a mind to tell Michael to stop it so I don't have to listen to her anymore, or I could just tell her to be quiet — Michael really isn't bothering me. Let the boy play.

I am so sane now I can even make a list. Of course, this probably isn't much of a column, but we all think these things now and then — I'm just letting you know you're not alone.

ZACK GROSSMAN/Daily Nexus

because focusing too closely on the one I'm taking right now would mean that I'd have to pay far too much attention to what's going on around me, and frankly, it's gross.

I'd rather pretend this is not happening — the runty boys in front of me aren't swearing up a storm, the air in here isn't so humid and rank, the large, acne-ridden man next to me does not smell of stale cigarette smoke and fatty sweat. I'd much rather try to sink into a bed of Rachmaninov and focus on the journey I took days ago.

Joy! The man got off on the second stop! Already the air is thinner and more tolerable.

But back to the trip home. I decided to flee the war zone for the weekend. Far be it for me to plan in advance, I sprinted to catch the last homeward bound train. I was looking forward to a peaceful ride home. Unfortunately, it was everybody's idea to tening to a boy make gurgling noises and knowing you will be on that train for four hours has to be one of the most aggravatingly dreadful experiences in the world. Almost as bad as still being able to hear these juvenile delinquents cursing in front of me, and hearing the boy whom I just saw walk by with a food box from the cafe car open a 7-Up and know (by odor) that he is eating a bean and cheese burrito. Nauseating.

Back to the focus — I'm so bad at this! Here I am on the train, "in the middle of nowhere." (Those were the ticket taker's words. You know that means nothing but trouble.) Trying to tell you about that boy/man. He was gross. Gross as the sound of the person ahead of me blowing their mucus-filled nose. But now the boys are calling each other food names. "Burrito, grapes, spaghetti." Did you do this when you were a child? Did I? (Turn Rachmaninov up a few notches.)

tually we were in Los Angeles. I know because I opened my eyes and hordes of people were streaming onto the train past the huddled lump under a sweater that was me.

By this time I was having those horrible semiconscious dreams where reality and fiction bleed together and life becomes a total nightmare. By the time we reached L.A. my Alpha Phi responsibilities were three times greater than they are today, my classes were all being failed miserably, I was begging for help from my advisers and they were just giving more work and more information, and I was running between their offices and my classes like a loon. Not to mention the way interpersonal relationships were bombarding me. It was hell, I tell you. Valentine's Day in triplicate. I was mentally screaming, "Just leave me alone!" Evidently, no one heard me. I just wanted to get home to my bed and wake up in a new world, but we were in L.A.

You Can Drive, but You Can't Hide

Jeff Brax

Leaving Lancaster is always the hardest part. It's not the leaving I mind — three days in my hometown is about all I can stand anymore. No, the hardest part about leaving Lancaster is the drive back to Santa Barbara, that two hours alone in the car, two hours trapped with my thoughts, the twisted, convoluted windings of my soul.

As Ernest Hemingway wrote in The Sun Also Rises, "it's awfully easy to be hard-boiled about everything in the daytime, but at night it is another thing," and that pretty much applies to my car trips as well. When one is occupied and busy during the day, there is little time to worry about life's larger problems. When one is trapped in a car for two hours, however, there is precious little else to think about other than how depressing your life is, how your scholastic career is going down the toilet and how lonely you truly are. As I discovered driving back last Sunday, one can only run from the pain and ignore the depression for so long — there is no place to hide from yourself.

I said my expected farewells that morning and climbed into my car with a familiar feeling of dread. I passed a billboard on the way to the freeway. "Is your mind troubled?" it asked. "Why yes, sign, it is," I responded. "Look to prayer," it admonished. I laughed. I may not always know exactly who I am or what I want in life, but I know I will never be one of those Christians who believe their religion somehow gives them the authority to dictate to the rest of us. And so I left Lancaster, with its pickup trucks, its "Impeach Clinton and her husband, too" bumper stickers and its Moral Majority behind. I don't belong in my hometown anymore, and it's questionable that I ever did.

As I made my way into the mountains south of town, the winds picked up, bouncing my car around like a little red pinball. My own thoughts had become equally turbulent. I have lived my life very simply — I work as hard as I can and live as ethically as I can, and most of the time I think I do all right. Yet sometimes I lie awake at night and pray that I'm doing the right thing. I find myself clinging frantically to the hope that someone, somewhere, will notice all my hard work, will reward me, respect me, understand me. I truly believe that what goes around comes around and that one day all the cheaters, liars and hypocrites will get their due, but it never seems to happen when I'm around. I try to do the best I can and blindly hope that I will be a success. I desperately don't want to be average.

As I hit the 126, I realized that the trip was driving me nuts and that I needed to think about other things. I turned on the radio, but it soon degenerated into Boys II Men, Mariah Carey and Morrissey, so off it went. Too many love songs. How do these people manage to find love when it seems I'll be spending the rest of my life alone? I don't expect to find the woman of my dreams standing outside Cheadle tomorrow waiting for me, but it would be nice if once in a while someone tried to understand me, accept me, maybe even care about me. When I find myself seriously attracted to someone, I'm filled with a thousand questions. Do I tell her how I feel? Do I risk destroying our friendship? Does she feel the same for me? What if she says no? What if she laughs? Inactivity. When you're surrounded by people the pain subsides, but when you're locked in a car for two hours, you can't help but realize that no one out there truly loves you.

I pulled onto the 101, the last leg of the journey, and my spirits lifted a little. Underneath the fear, the despair and the loneliness, there is only me, struggling with my problems and hopefully learning from my mountains of mistakes. All I can do is hold onto two things: my innocence and my integrity. Both take a long time to build up, and once you lose them, you can never truly get them back.

And so I arrived back in Santa Barbara, consciously aware that I worry too much. I'm not arrogant enough to assume that my problems are any different than anybody else's, or any more important. I know that to some extent, everyone has to grow up and work through their own private little hells of insecurity and fear. And although I know I'm a conceited, sarcastic troll, most of the time I try not to judge people on the decisions they make, I try to be humble. A lot of people around here have an overinflated sense of their own importance. I've met too many 19- and 20-year-olds who think they already know everything there is to know about life. I realize that I have traveled from Lancaster to Santa Barbara, and that I truly belong to neither. I'm an unpredictable liberal in Lancaster, an "uncool" Puritan in Isla Vista. Perhaps there is a place where I will fit in, perhaps someone who will one day understand.

"I truly believe that what goes around comes around, and that one day all the cheaters, liars and hypocrites will get their due, but it never seems to happen when I'm around."

BOARD

Continued from p.1 sented to the board will be forwarded to the I.V. Enhancement Committee for public hearings on the matter, according to the supervisor.

"The rest of the program will hear community discussion and hardcore talks with UCSB," Wallace said. "We're just setting the process in motion. If the landlords and homeowners think we're doing too much, they can step forward and say so."

In other business, the board approved the language of a proposed amendment to state law, allowing the county to increase its share of royalties from new oil development.

The resolution includes broader language that would increase the proposed sources of royalty revenue, more than a previous board action had allowed, according to John Butny, an aide to Wallace.

Environmental Defense Center attorney Linda Krop noted that additional funds available under the proposal could allow approval of environmentally questionable projects.

"Our concern is that the promise of royalty sharing with local governments will cause them to approve projects they wouldn't normally approve," she said. "We don't believe communities should allow themselves to be bought."

Local governments could be left stuck with undesirable projects in the event the state cuts the county's royalty share, according to Krop.

"Historically, when oil and gas royalty funds have been designated for specific purposes ... the state has taken the money back," she said. "This has happened repeatedly over the last decade. When the state gets in a budget crunch ... they take the money back and then you're stuck with a 25-year project."

The approved resolution will likely be carried to Sacramento by 35th District Assemblyman Brooks Firestone (R-Los Olivos.), Butny said.

LAND: Officials Await Final Votes

Continued from p.1 said. "It provides needed space for those people who live in the Isla Vista community."

According to Joy Hufschmid, land use planner for the County Planning and Development Dept., careful attention is being given to the preservation of environmentally sensitive vernal pools containing rare and endangered plants found at the site. The county would like to see development and a return on its long-term investment, however.

"The county bought it in 1988. They used CREF [Coastal Resource Enhancement Funds] to buy it from Texaco. The county was concerned that it would be developed," she said. "It kind of seems like a resource going to waste."

Hufschmid also stressed the need for more recreational fields in the seaside community.

"I think that the property would be enhanced," she said. "So aesthetically it would be nicer, recreationally it would be much more beneficial to the community because of much better maintained trails, possibly park benches or children's playground equipment, and there could be restoration of some environmentally sensitive communities."

If the bond measure is approved, the park would be open to the community on nights and weekends while reserved for the school children during the day. The area is also a significant transportation route by either bike or foot, Hufschmid added.

According to Mark Chaconas, aide to 3rd District Supervisor Bill Wallace, development of the property would benefit everyone involved.

"The I.V. School is so full that they need to expand," he said. "We are looking into the range of things that can happen, and we are excited about it because it is right near school. So it is a win-win for the community and the school."

The county will wait until elections for a clearer picture of the funding, Chaconas added.

"The key thing is the county and district are planning on holding a hearing for the master plan in mid-March, and we are going to ask the community what they would like to see out there," he said. "If the bond measure does not pass, they won't have money to fix up the school. We are waiting for that because it is a very important threshold."

The $17,000 in funding that the county has received to finance the project is good until the end of the calendar year, and county officials are hoping to have most of the improvements done by December, according to Hufschmid. She suggested that the I.V. Recreation and Park District put money in for play equipment and donate a work crew.

"Even if the bond measure does not go through, they'll try to fund it anyway," she said.

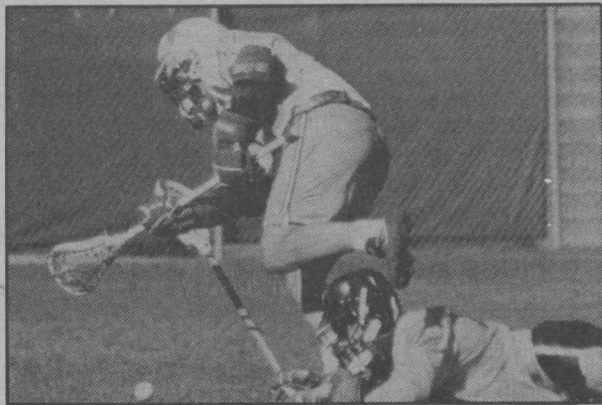

UCSB Downed by Cal, Rebounds Vs. UCD

By Michael Cadilli
Staff Writer

It was the matchup of the season last Saturday for the UCSB men's lacrosse team, as it took on the Western Collegiate Lacrosse League's #1-ranked squad, Cal Berkeley, at home in front of 200 fans.

The Gauchos came out strong in the first half, taking a 6-5 lead into the break, but folded in the third quarter, giving up five unanswered goals on their way to losing 13-10.

"It was a well-played game, both teams played strong," UCSB Head

J.E. ANDERSON/Daily Nexus

The UCSB men's lacrosse team was beaten by Berkeley 13-10, but defeated UC Davis 15-6.

Coach Brian Cook said. "You gotta give them credit, they picked up the tempo and got the job done."

The loss put Santa Barbara (3-1) in second place in the WCLL be-

Gauchos Size Up Track, Field at the Beach

The hot weather seemed to have little effect on the UCSB men's and women's track and field teams this Saturday, when they journeyed to Long Beach State to participate in the Long Beach Relays.

The importance of the meet, according to Head Coach Pete Dolan, was to familiarize the athletes with the field on which the Big West Championships will be run.

"Everybody liked the track," he said. "It's a nice facility. We had a good time, and I think everybody is pretty motivated."

Dolan also noted the field of competition at Saturday's meet. "Seeing two of our conference rivals, UCLA and Long Beach State, was good," he added.

Outstanding performances were given in the men's distance medley — in which the Gauchos were the first collegiate squad to finish in 10:16.8 — and by the Santa Barin two tight sets, 7-5, 7-5.

 "We play pretty much the same game," Weiss said. "[Olsen] is a baseliner, so he's used to being out there all day. It was probably my best match of the year."

Number 3 junior Joe Barbarie had the easiest time of any Gaucho, pounding Gonzales 6-3, 6-2. The other Santa Barbara singles win was by #6 Doug Nau, who was given an opportunity in the slot normally held by Dowling, and took advantage by defeating Daniel Brandt 6-4, 6-3.

 hind Cal, which upped its record to 3-0.

As usual, the Gaucho scoring punch was led by sophomore attackman Chris Goodroe, who put in three goals and added an assist. Also, sophomore midfielder/attackman Paul Peay pitched in with two goals and two assists.

Gaucho goaltender junior Dan Czukierman played big, stopping 14 shots by the Bears, but it was the Berkeley netkeeper who put a damper on the Santa Barbara offense by making 16 saves.

"Their goalie had a tremendous game," Cook said.

UCSB bounced back on Monday with a 15-6 home win over UC Davis at the "Pit." Once again, Goodroe led the Gauchos with five goals, while junior midfielder Craig DeVinney chipped in with four. Setup man senior Jared Karol also dished out four assists.

"We came out slow in the first half, but in the second half we stepped up play and buried them," Cook said.

Playing solidly in goal was Czukierman, who turned away 11 Aggie shots, while senior midfielder Rich Kreps tossed in two goals to help the Gaucho cause.

One of the best women's performances of the day was in the four-mile relay, according to Dolan, as UCSB became the first collegiate team to finish, coming in with a time of 20:35.7. The squad was anchored by Eva Mattson, who "took down UCLA on the last lap," Dolan said.

Junior Eli Gladden was the only Gaucho first-place finisher of the day with his distance of 45'10" in the triple jump.

Women's Gymnastics Defeats Bears Once, Aggies Twice in Road Swing

By Matt Gambee
Staff Writer

By making the most of whom it had this past weekend, the UCSB women's gymnastics team downed UC Berkeley once and UC Davis twice.

At the Berkeley meet, Santa Barbara narrowly edged the Bears for first place, totaling a team score of 186.925. California scored a 186.675 while Davis limped in at 181.425.

"The team went to the Bay Area fired up," Head Coach Randy Lane said. "We made strides without incurring any more injuries."

Most impressive for UCSB were senior Lauren Yee and sophomore Margie Hoeffler, who finished one (37.6) and two (37.575) respectively in the all-around competition. Both athletes fell off the balance beam, but continued to perform strong. Junior Britten Murchison competed in the all-around for her first time ever and finished fifth.

"It was such a long road trip," Yee said. "The whole team as well as our parents were excited that we had a winning weekend."

A 9.75 vaulting score at California was enough to give Hoeffler a Gaucho season-high, but only a fourth-place finish behind three Bear gymnasts. Hoeffler also tied for first in the floor exercise with Cal's Heather Schneider, as both scored a 9.675.

Santa Barbara placed three gymnasts in the top five on the balance beam. Murchison took second with 9.6, while senior co-captains Sarah Lucas and Dana Faircloth placed fourth and fifth, respectively. Yee grabbed the second spot on the uneven parallel bars, scoring 9.625.

"The team was more confident this meet," Faircloth said. "We really wanted to beat Berkeley."

Before the competition, California was ranked 35th in the nation while the Gauchos were 37th. Besides Schneider, the Bears' Candice Kwok won the balance beam and vault events with 9.65 and 9.825, respectively. Christine Nishiimoto took first on the uneven parallel bars with her 9.75 total.

On Sunday, UCSB traveled to UC Davis to take on the Aggies in a two-team meet. Despite the victory, however, Lane admitted that the squad was tired from the previous day's competition.

"We did not concentrate," he said. "I was hoping that we would perform better the second day. Instead, we were making excuses and this upset me."

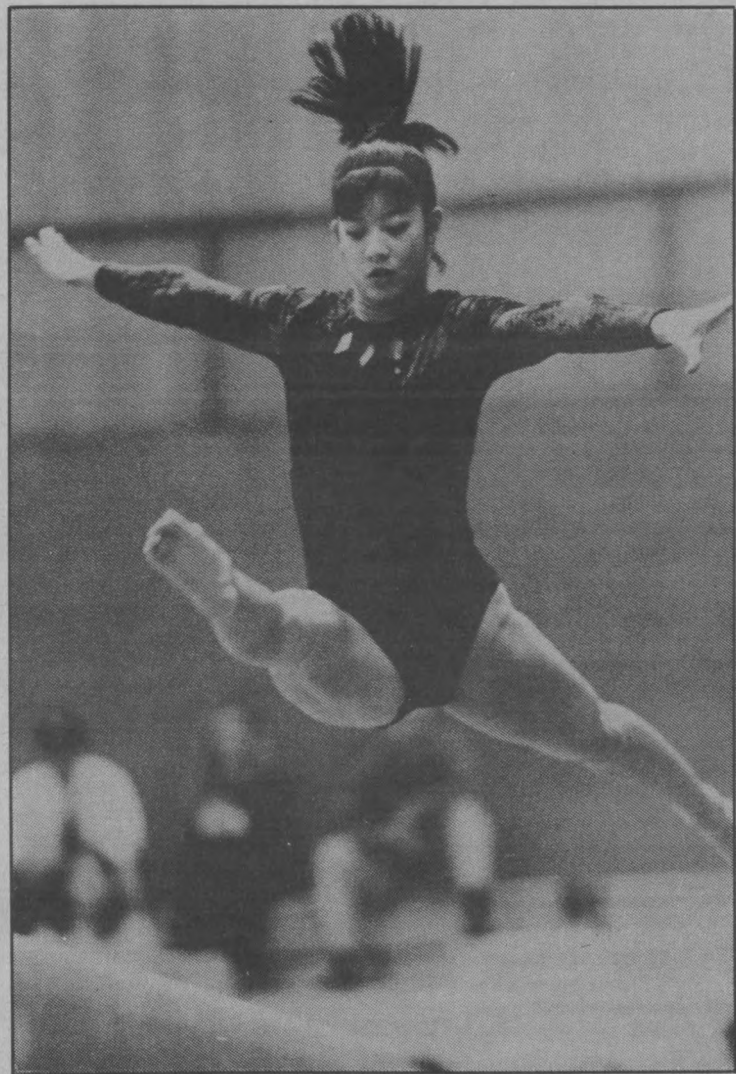

The Gauchos clipped the Aggies with team scores of 183.975 and 183.425. Yet again, Hoeffler and Yee would not let go of their stronghold on the all-around top spots. Hoeffler placed first, totaling a 38.275, while Yee captured second, scoring 37.175.

Murchison was used on the all-around event, as she stepped up to the task and earned a third place standing.

"We did good, considering we competed in two events in less than 24 hours," Assistant Coach Melody Jones said. "Regardless of our bumps, bruises and shortened roster, we stayed positive."

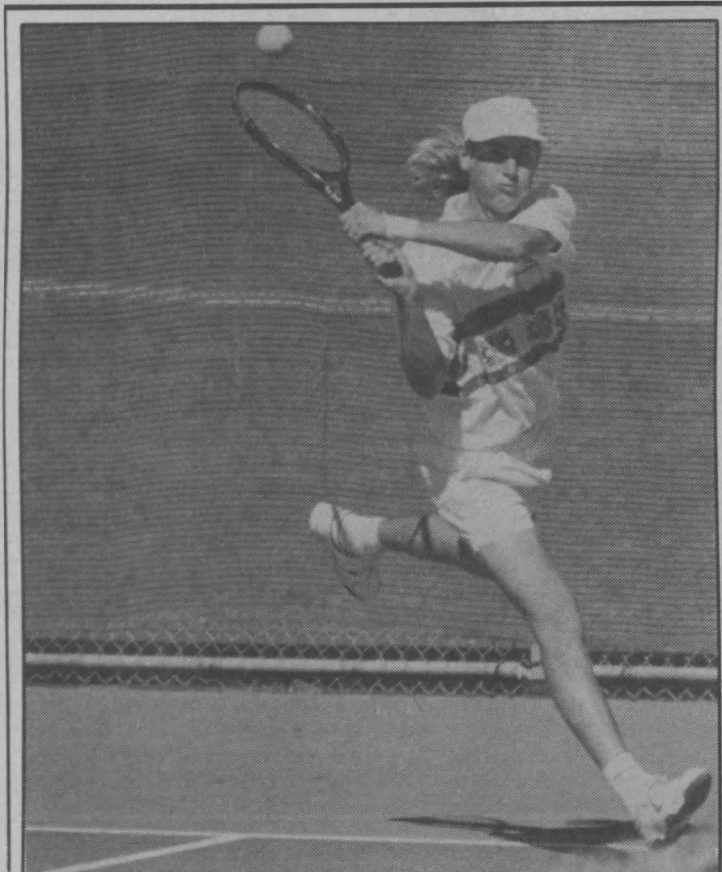

In both meets last weekend, the team was without the services of junior Emily Tripliano, a parallel bars mainstay. Tripliano will, however, compete this weekend against Alaska and San Jose State.

The competition against the two schools will take place on Saturday at 7 p.m. in UCSB's Rob Gym.

The UCSB men's tennis team defeated the University of the Pacific 5-2 in a home meet last Sunday afternoon.

Men's Tennis Tames Tigers With 5-2 Victory at Home

The UCSB men's tennis team realized on Sunday how much easier a match could be when the players win the doubles point.

The Gauchos had been unable to take two of the three doubles sets in each of their first three matches, placing the team in an early hole. However, against a talented University of Pacific squad, Santa Barbara grabbed the early advantage and made it hold up, defeating the Tigers on UCSB's East Courts, 5-2.

New combinations worked in the doubles for the Gauchos (3-1 overall, 2-0 in the Big West) as the #1 team of freshman John Dowling and junior Simon Kurth edged UOP's Adi Kremer and Jorge Abreu, 8-6. Meanwhile, the #2 pair of freshman Alex Decret and sophomore Eddie Weiss beat the Tiger team of Joe Gonzales and Mauricio Sovero by the same score.

In the singles matches, UCSB took four of six. In his first match since injuring an ankle last week against Pepperdine University, Decret, the Gaucho #1 singles player, dropped the first set to Kremer, 1-6, before roaring back, 6-1, 6-2.

In the #2 singles match, Weiss hooked up with Ole Olsen for nearly two hours in a baseline war before triumphing

SB Falls to Cardinal and Bears, Beats SJSU

The UCSB men's gymnastics team headed north this weekend for a semi-successful pair of meets. On Friday night, the squad defeated San Jose State 211.10-207.40, but fell to UC Berkeley (227.60) and Stanford (227.50) on Saturday in Berkeley with a score of 213.25.

With two strong road meets under their belts this season, the Gaucho gymnasts headed upstate a little more relaxed than usual. The judging in the north is much tougher, but the team did not have to worry, according to Head Coach Mircea Badulescu.

"It is really hard to score well up north," he said. "Judges up there are really hard to impress, but we really didn't have to worry about scoring high because we already have two road meets that we've averaged over a 9.0. Only two road meet scores and one home score count anyway, so we were relaxed."

UCSB came out on top Friday, despite running into some problems. Junior David Cassie and freshman Paul Mendoza placed second and third in the all-around with 53.5 and 51.6 total points, respectively.

Cassie set the tone on the floor exercise with a score of 9.4. Freshman Dusty Hyland led the meet on the rings with 9.4, and freshman teammate Gray Wetzler headed the competition with 9.25 on the pommel horse.

"Friday we ran into some trouble, but on Saturday we did much better," Mendoza said. "We competed well and were able to hit most of our routines. We didn't do well enough to win, but Berkeley and Stanford are two very, very solid teams."

Cal and the Cardinal may have prevailed, but the Gauchos came back strong and ended up having one of their best nights on four events — floor exercise, rings, vault and high bar.

"We aren't very solid on parallel bars, so we weren't expecting very much from that event," Badulescu said. "We usually score 37 points on pommel horse, but we had a bad night. What I was really happy about was that we were really solid on the other four events. That was a big step for us."

In the all-around, Stanford's Josh Stein and Keith Wiley led the way with a score of 56.660. Mendoza (53.650), Cassie (53.650) and Wetzler (52.000) placed fifth, sixth and seventh, respectively.

Mendoza led the way for UCSB with a 9.4 on floor and a 9.0 tie with Cassie on the vault. Junior Steve Koiles led the team on rings with a 9.45, while Hyland scored 9.4. Senior Reid Holbrook scored 9.25 on the high bar.

#5 Bruins, #6 Rebels Net Wins Vs. Gauchos; National Indoor Team Tournament Next

By Steven Large
Staff Writer

The UCSB women's tennis team was pumped up and ready to conquer its biggest weekend of the year, but maybe it just wasn't meant to be.

The Gauchos were defeated 5-4 Friday by sixth-ranked University of Mississippi at home, and then lost at #5 UCLA, 8-1, in the weekend's main attraction on Saturday.

"We were playing really well in the first set of all our matches," Assistant Coach Lisa Seemann said. "But after that, they pretty much dominated."

Santa Barbara, ranked 19th nationwide, is known for playing at a higher level against better teams, but the Bruins proved to be too much for the team to handle on Saturday. Despite the lopsided score, however, UCSB did play some good matches.

"Some days that happens. You just have to deal with the losses and move on to the next game," Head Coach Pete Kirkwood said.

None of the Gauchos' top three singles players were able to come away with victories at UCLA. Junior Jean Okada, the team's premier player, lost to Jane Chi 7-6, 6-3, while the squad's #2 singles player, senior Lynn Coakley, was defeated by the Bruins' Keri Pheeus 4-6, 6-2, 7-6.

"Our one and two players had really close matches," Seemann said.

Junior Amelia White, Santa Barbara's #3 singles player, lost 6-3, 6-2 against Stephanie Chi. The Gauchos' only win for the day came from the doubles team of White and senior Kelly Spencer, who defeated UCLA's Chi-Chi team 3-6, 7-6, 6-2.

"I told [White and Spencer] that we needed to get at least one point against [the Bruins]," Seemann added. "And they really came out banging. Everything was clicking for them."

UCSB's record now falls to 2-5, but because both Mississippi and UCLA are highly ranked teams, Santa Barbara's ranking may not fall even after the weekend's losses.

The team took off for Madison, Wis., Tuesday, as it prepares for its first ever entrance in the Intercollegiate Tennis Association National Indoor Team Championships. The tournament is comprised of some of the more elite tennis schools in the country. UCSB is the only team in the event this year that has never competed in the tourney before.
