BREAKFAST DONE THE AMERICAN WAY

RACHEL WEILL/Daily Nexus

At Egghead, the Long Lines Are Worth It

By Bunyan Valentine

Breakfast comes to you like the clear light of revelation. It cuts through the fog of early afternoon, drags you by the nose from your twisted comforter and rumped mattress. Coffee calls, and you listen. Omelettes beckon, and you obey.

You spill out the door of your apartment, and you go to Egghead.

Because when it comes down to it, you want your coffee mug refilled as fast as you can empty it and your homefries stacked tall. You want to choose between nearly 20 different omelettes. You need to.

Perched on the second floor of one of downtown Isla Vista's few two-story commercial buildings, nestled between a hair salon and a computer outfit, Egghead dishes up breakfast like you imagine your Aunt Mabel might on those early spring mornings when the Nebraska sun still hasn't warmed the wheat fields, if you had an Aunt Mabel.

The omelettes are thick, golden blankets cradling cheese, tomatoes, avocado, chili, onions, sausage and just about everything else that might legitimately get wrapped in between three light, fluffy eggs. The homefries, laced with onion and spices, anchor Egghead's heavenly platefuls to its formica tabletops. The coffee comes hot and quick, nothing really special but just what you need to free up any sticking mental cylinders.

With two small dining rooms, each overlooking bustling I.V. streets (unless you get there early enough), Egghead commands a long line of empty-stomached students each weekend, when the queues have been known to stretch the length of an adjoining outdoor hallway and down into a stairwell. What they're waiting for is what Americans have always been willing to wait for: a good helping of bacon 'n' eggs.

The folks at Egghead live up to that quintessentially American tradition. As a nation, if we've got nothing else going for us, we know how to cook a breakfast. John Steinbeck once wrote that during his travels across the U.S., he never encountered a bad one. There were bad lunches and dinners, but never a bad breakfast. At Egghead, the rule holds fast.

They specialize in omelettes, the thicker the better. The cooks won't hesitate to cram one full of whatever you'd like, and their specialties — most notably the Egghead omelette — redefine what Americans (even midwesterners) mean by hearty. Just wash down a modest tomato, avocado and cheddar cheese omelette with a cup of joe and tell me you aren't ready to roll over and have your stomach scratched.

Of course, there's more, as is usually the case with little breakfast nooks that draw enormous crowds every weekend morning. Egghead has outdone your usual would you like homefries and toast or pancakes? breakfast combo, instead offering up grapefruit, muffins, refried beans, cinnamon rolls and fresh fruit, among other things. And you get to choose two.

Egghead is located at 900 Embarcadero Del Mar. Phone 968-1993. Open 7 a.m.-1 p.m. weekdays, 7:30 a.m.-2 p.m. weekends.

PIZZA PIZZAZZ

Invention didn't come to CPK out of necessity — they just made a good thing better

By Mortimer Trousers

Pizza. Gotta love it. You know Darwin must have loved it. I mean, for all its Italian heritage, today's pizza has changed so much, it's surely as American as it is Italian. In the last few decades this dish has been experimented with and expanded upon so much by demanding and hungry peoples that very few similarities remain between the pizza of Milan and the pizza of Santa Barbara.

Which brings us quickly to the California Pizza Kitchen — the Paseo Nuevo Mall's chic response to quick but fine dining. This is a restaurant where we can eat an Eggplant Parmesan pizza coupled with a Romaine and Watercress salad during our brief lunch hour and still have time left over.

While pizza parlors have come to fill a place in every quaint hamlet and metropolis across the globe, with fine Italian names and continental decors, the CPK is an original approach in its own right. That is, the CPK has no scruples about rejecting the notion that the pizzeria must remind you of Mama Maria back in old Verona. They simply serve their pizzas within a modern, airy, clean and comfortable decor.

But ambiance and atmosphere only facilitates a dining mood — the platters of food will have to stand the test themselves. And it's a test the CPK passes. Indeed, Esquire deems the California Pizza Kitchen "one of the 10 outstanding restaurants in the United States" and Businessweek sees it as "taking pizza way past pepperoni."

And that it does. The salads — more filling than mere appetizers — are high piled lettuces and greens topped with rich dressings and fiery peppers. My salad, a Shrimp Louie, topped a bed of mixed leaves, hard-boiled egg, tomato wedges, Mediterranean olives and a tangy homemade dressing with luscious chilled Canadian Bay shrimps. Get it going with a Bass on tap and we're talking atmosphere.

The pizzas themselves define decadence. Every single-serving pizza is cooked in a specially devised wood oven that is the centerpiece of the CPK kitchen. Reflective of California's cosmopolitan influences, the varieties of pizza available combine a number of not so Italian cuisines, coming up with very tasteful creations. Where else could you order pizzas such as the Southwestern Burrito, Rosemary Chicken-Potato, Caribbean Cheese, Buffalo Mozzarella Calzone or the spicy Peking Duck?

Usually us vegetarians have little choice when it comes time to order, but at the CPK I had to go through that process all you carnivores are so familiar with. There were too many dishes to choose from, so I twice had to send the waiter away for more Bass, trying to buy time. I finally chose the Five Cheese and Tomato pizza. The Buffalo Mozzarella, Fontina, Smoked Gouda and Romano cheeses were enveloped with fresh sliced tomatoes and basil leaves creating a luscious swirl of cheese that teases the tongue with delight.

The California Pizza Kitchen is located on 719 Chapala Street. Open Mon.-Thur. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Fri.-Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m., Sun. 12 p.m.-10 p.m. Phone 687-9753.

You walk into California Pizza Kitchen and there they are, waiting, smiling, just like it ought to be.

PINO'S KNOWS

By Talleen Berberan

My friends Terra, Jack, Luther and I have hungered for an authentic dining experience, yet so many times our expectations have been dashed, burned to a crisp in amateur frying pans like so many cholesterol-laden appetizers.

At last our trail of disappointment came to an end when we were greeted with a resounding "Buonasera!" upon entering the fragrant haven of Pino's Restaurant. No inert cash register drone here, on the contrary, Pino Ferraro himself, the man behind the name, warmly welcomed us at the door.

Our friendly waitress escorted us to a spacious table, where we were pleased to find cloth tablecloths and napkins (recyclable and classy too), not the kind that tear into little pieces when you wipe your garlic bread hands on them. We placed our orders as we enjoyed fine wine and conversation, and were pleasantly surprised when Pino spontaneously burst into song, serenading his guests with romantic melodies.

I can vouch for the freshness of the mushrooms, peppers, olives, tomatoes, seafood and fine cheeses that comprise the restaurant's cornucopia of savory delights. Pino's makes its own sausage, pasta, gnocchi and pizza dough. While touring the kitchen, I caught a glimpse of the wondrous peconillo tanda, a delicious cheese which Pino informed me is the pride of the island of Sardinia.

In what seemed like the blink of an eye,

Proprietor Pino Ferraro, the purveyor of perfect pastas, parcels out portions of pure pleasure, with sauce. RACHEL WEILL/Daily Nexus our food arrived. Pino exhorted us to eat with a hearty "Manchate!" and the adventure began. Pino's is the type of place that doesn't include salads on the menu with entrees, they just automatically bring them, understanding the tradition. Pino brought a mouth-watering serving of focaccia, a bread with olive oil and spices that is delicious dipped in the restaurant's special sauce.

Terra and Luther dined on Ravioli al Pomodoro, known in ordinary restaurants as cheese ravioli. Yet this is no ordinary restaurant. Here you will find no bite-size ravioli. Terra said it best: "The sauce was really thick. That's how I like it."

Jack dined on Fettucini Alla Pino, which features artichoke hearts, onions and parmigiano cheese with pasta cooked to perfection in a flavorful sauce. No overdone, microwaved egg noodles here. Pino's has been in business for 17 years. They know their pasta.

I enjoyed an ample serving of cannelloni, delicious pasta shells stuffed with a cheese and spinach filling, and covered with a rich tomato sauce. After the salad and focaccia, I struggled to finish the cannelloni, yet could not. My taste buds cried out for more, but my stomach said finis.

Luther, whose restaurant experience ranges from San Jose to Mazatlan to Queens, offered his critique of Pino's. "It was very Italian in the sense that it made you think of Italy. They give you something to look at." No doubt he was referring to the paintings and candles which create a warm glow that only adds to the charm of this family-owned establishment.

However, Pino said fresh ingredients, old-world recipes and a friendly smile do not a great restaurant make. "Over here we are real Italians. Don't let other people fool you."

Pino's is located at 5863 Hollister Avenue in Goleta. Lunch and dinner served daily. Phone 967-1933.

DOWNTOWN? GO CHECK OUT ZELO

By Stephen Lynne-Bachelor

Ever go walking down State Street? You have. It's pretty fun, you've generally had a pretty good time. It's fun.

Take in a movie, maybe, the kind you like. Stay downtown for three or four hours — drive in and out of the parking garage a couple of times so you don't ever have to pay any money. Every time you park your car again, you feel like you've gone to a new place, so it's just that much more fun. Go into a thrift shop or two and buy some quaint thing that you just can't believe. Such a crazy shirt!

And then the hunger sets in. You're not exactly used to walking around all day and not eating any food. A few snacks here and there — the prices you paid for popcorn at the movie theater qualified you to buy hammers for the government — and yet you're real, real hungry. But what can you do? You're downtown, on State Street. This is no place for a college student to start running around buying food. What about rent and getting the phone turned back on? Sure, there are some good restaurants down there, but you can't go blowing $20-$30 just for dinner for you and your super fine companion, can you? Well, you shouldn't, you know that.

And you know what else? You don't have to. Check out Zelo.

Because it offers some of the most diverse and diverting nightlife entertainment that can be found in Santa Barbara; Zelo has a built up a solid reputation as a dance club. I think most people would agree that Zelo is the best dance club in town. But dance club kind of stuff is college student friendly, stuff they can relate to. Night-living we know; the idea of going out to a good restaurant may be a bit more foreign to us I.V./Goleta types. This is where the dining at Zelo comes in. Too often, people consider going out for a great meal only on special occasions. This means, essentially: 1) your parents are in town, 2) you want the first date to be "special," 3) you won a large amount of money hustling unsuspecting and overtrusting friends, 4) your roommate works at a restaurant and can get you free soup, salad and ice tea but she'll/he'll be fired real soon or 5) you are just generally rich and can eat pretty much anywhere you want and you're kind of screwed up because your parents thought they could buy your love and all of your relationships are sick and pathetic and you'll never know real happiness. Not great options, huh? Check out Zelo.

The classy, hip atmosphere of Zelo is well-known about town for its pleasurable uniqueness. On any night you can see people of all age groups and social stratas enjoying the ambiance and great food. It definitely qualifies as a night out. And the prices. Not only do they have all kinds of specials (Tuesday night is Pasta Night for $6.95 and Wednesday is Locals Night, also $6.95) but you can usually get your hands on a super coupon that gets you dinner for

KARIN MALONEY/Daily Nexus

Not your usual restaurant decor, but then Zelo isn't your typical restaurant. It's better, and it's a dance club.

You could dance there, but not 'til you eat

two for $15. And I mean dinner for two. I mean a real dinner with interesting and delicious food. This is not food that you could just make if you wanted to (unless you were some kinda cook and then you should be making good food for your loved ones instead of reading this story). This is food you will have only if you have professionals make it for you. And the professionals at Zelo make it for you.

The food is zesty, healthy fare, food that seems to be paying attention to what's going on. Zelo offers a tantalizing collection of pasta dishes, salads, meat dishes somewhere in the California cuisine vein, though not exactly. There are unbelievable crab cakes, vegetarian lasagnes beyond belief and peppercorn tri-tips that excel. Indeed, it would be difficult to pigeonhole Zelo's fine entrees. I ate there for the first time only recently, and I can say that I was truly impressed. The value, the service and the food — right down to the haute cuisine-ish way it looks on the plate — is very affordable, detailed and scrumptious. Check out Zelo. You'll be dancing into the night.

Zelo is located at 630 State Street in Santa Barbara. Open 5:30-9:30 p.m. Sun.-Thurs., 5:30-10 p.m. Fri.-Sat. Phone 966-5792.

LOCAL COLOR Anaconda

Hardcore and punk-rock fans are in luck this Thursday night (March 9) when New York's Sick Of It All will take the stage at the Anaconda. They play a hardcore, punk-rock music that ridiculously earned them the responsibility of two deaths in Massachusetts because the deranged murderer happened to be wearing one of their t-shirts. This assumption, of course, holds no true validity, so don't let it stop you from attending the show. Opening for Sick Of It All will be the fast-paced sounds of Biohazard and Fear Factory. Check it out!
