SB Council to Vote on Wilcox Measure

By Tom Burkett
Assistant News Editor

Santa Barbara County residents will receive another chance to determine the fate of the Wilcox Ranch property, the last parcel of undeveloped coastal land within city limits, if the Santa Barbara City Council decides to place a multi-million dollar bond measure on the upcoming June ballot.

Located just east of Arroyo Burro Beach, the land is tentatively slated for construction of a 100-unit retirement community by its current owner, Santa Barbara Capital. However, if the city council decides to place the $7 million to $8 million bond measure on the ballot, the 69-acre Wilcox property could be purchased by the city and saved from development. The council has until Feb. 9 to make its decision.

A similar measure seeking authorization for the city to sell $11.6 million in bonds to purchase the parcel of land was defeated at the polls in November. Known as Measure M, the proposal fell only 575 votes short of the 66-percent voter approval required, according to Sue Higman, president of the Small Wilderness Area Preserve's Santa Barbara chapter.

The acceptance of Measure M by 63 percent, or more than 11,300 of the county's voters, encouraged numerous preservation organizations working to save the parcel from development to continue their efforts, according to Higman. "There are a good percentage of us who care to keep the land open," she said. "We can win the needed votes with broader-based support by getting members of the Chamber of Commerce on

Peers and Associates Hail Departed Regent

By Robert Jablon
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Sheldon Andelson, the millionaire gay political leader who died last month from complications of AIDS, was praised Sunday by Sen. Edward Kennedy and others as a tireless champion of homosexual rights, education and liberal causes.

The former University of California regent, who died Dec. 29, "understood the power of ideas, especially the power of justice," Kennedy told a crowd of 1,500 people during a memorial service on the UCLA campus.

In his eulogy, Kennedy described Andelson, 56, as a friend and a pioneer in the national fight for gay rights.

"In a different and better America, he might well have held one of the highest elective offices," Kennedy said, "for he had a quality that compelled people — that made them listen to him, learn from him — and most of all, march with him, whatever the battle, whatever the enemy, however long the odds."

The senator pledged to use his

Activities Honor Martin Luther King

By Steven Elzer
Editor in Chief

Rededicating UCSB to the principles espoused by Dr. Martin Luther King will be the focal point of a week-long celebration honoring the late civil rights leader's birth.

Daily activities will commence today as groups from throughout the campus community pay homage to King by sponsoring video presentations, art and book displays, noon speeches in Storke Plaza and a candlelight march, among other planned engagements. King would have been 59 this Friday.

Organizers hope that, through the events, participants "will gain a greater understanding and awareness of the work of Martin Luther King and just what it stood for," said Mark Armstrong, a counselor with the black component of the Educational Opportunity Program.

"It's going to be a learning experience," said Danon Cartet, co-chair of the Martin Luther King Celebration Committee. "If people don't know much about him, now is the time to learn his ways." But, event leaders do not want their efforts cast away after the week is over.

"I'm hoping that the faculty, the staff, the administration and the students — anyone in a position — can generate ourselves to a new conversation. A conversation that becomes the climate, the environment, the spirit of our time. I'm hoping that this week will be a catalyst to create a new climate, a new era that calls into action those in a position to take action," said Armstrong, who cautioned that the celebration is not a one-week event. Organizers are not just hoping for a recommitment to King, but rather what King stood for, he said.

"As long as there is injustice anywhere in the world, and that can be South Africa, or that can be Iran or Nicaragua ... we have a civic duty of carrying the torch forward in our time here.... We need to gain insight into how we can move forward in '88," Armstrong said.

Moving forward while offering unique perspectives on King and his life will be one highlight of the week of events, as speakers from the campus community gather daily in Storke Plaza from noon to 1 p.m. through Friday.

Dr. Gerald Pigeon, associate professor of black studies, will address today's noon rally, asking "When Will it Begin?"

Gorbachev Calls for Summit in the First-ever Chinese Interview

MOSCOW — Mikhail S. Gorbachev praised the state of Chinese-Soviet relations and called for a summit with China in what appears to be the first interview a Soviet leader has granted a Chinese news organization.

The official Tass news agency on Sunday issued a short account of the interview, which it said was published in this year's second edition of the weekly Liaowang magazine.

A report on the interview was also the lead item Sunday night on the national television news program Vremya, during which a copy of the magazine was shown in the background.

"Mikhail Gorbachev expressed satisfaction with the accelerating Soviet-Chinese cooperation," Tass said in its commentary on the interview. "A political dialogue is established. We believe a Soviet-Chinese summit could be its logical extension."

Fugitive Berlin Woman Plants Bomb in Disco for Palestinians

BERLIN — Police suspect a West Berlin woman working for Palestinian terrorists planted the bomb that killed two U.S. soldiers and wounded 229 people in a West Berlin discotheque, authorities said Sunday.

President Reagan had blamed Libya for the April 5, 1986 La Belle discotheque attack, which also killed a Turkish woman, and ordered the retaliatory bombing of Tripoli and Benghazi 10 days later.

West Berlin justice department spokesman Volker Kaehne said police were seeking 27-year-old Christina Gabriele Endrigkeit, who has been missing since the bombing. He issued a photo of the woman, who had long, dark hair.

Kaehne said an arrest warrant was issued for her on Dec. 30 and that authorities were offering a $93,000 reward for information leading to her capture. West Berlin security sources said Endrigkeit, a German born in West Berlin, was believed to be hiding with her three-year-old son.

Central American Peace Plan Deadline Likely to be Extended

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Leaders of five Central American nations are expected this week to extend once again the deadline for compliance with a regional peace plan mired in controversy and continued bloodshed.

The leaders of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica meet here Friday in a summit originally meant to measure the five-month-old initiative's progress.

Some participants and most observers now agree the peace plan is stalemated by the failure to achieve lasting cease-fires in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala.

American Nuclear Scientists Fly to Primary Soviet Test Range

MOSCOW — Twenty U.S. government scientists flew Sunday to Kazakhstan for a tour of the Kremlin's main nuclear test site, a visit that could lead to ratification of two 1970s treaties limiting underground nuclear explosions.

The visit to the Semipalatinsk test range in Central Asia is the first by American officials.

The visits, agreed to during last month's summit in Washington, are aimed at working out joint verification experiments tentatively scheduled for April. The experiments will test Soviet seismological devices, similar to those used to measure earthquakes, and a new American system called CORREX.

MX Missile Guidance Systems Failing Tests at Alarming Rate

WASHINGTON — The guidance systems used for aiming the MX nuclear-tipped missiles are continuing to fail in tests at an alarming rate, the House Armed Services Committee said Sunday.

"We are still dealing with a decidedly unguided missile," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the panel which has been reviewing the problems with the nuclear-tipped weapon which is at the heart of the Reagan administration's defense build-up.

The report by the Democratic-controlled panel was critical of Northrop, which is building the guidance system, known as an inertial measurement unit.

Tony Cantafio, a Northrop spokesman, said he had not seen the report. But he said Northrop has taken steps to ensure that it will meet the Air Force's goal of having enough guidance systems by next October for all the MX weapons the service plans to deploy.

The problem involves the reliability of the units and not their accuracy, Aspin's report noted. The accuracy of the missile has been repeatedly demonstrated during 17 test flights and is better than had been projected.

West Virginian City Replenishes Water Supply by Using Barges

WHEELING, W.Va. — City officials on Sunday cautiously resumed pumping water from the Ohio River even though it was still choked by a million-gallon diesel oil spill crawling by at less than a mile an hour.

Sponge filters were put over water intakes before water was drawn from the river to be mixed with water stored in a reservoir, Assistant City Manager Nancy Vapner said.

Most businesses remained closed Sunday in an effort to conserve water, except for several restaurants that arranged to have water trucked in. The effort appeared to be working.

FBI Says Woman Tries to Have Mother Killed to Inherit $2 M.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — The FBI has charged the daughter of an heiress with trying to hire someone for $25,000 to kill her mother so she could inherit $2 million.

Mildred Margaret Trammell, 39, of Huntsville, was arrested Friday on a charge of using interstate communications to solicit a murder-for-hire, FBI agent Allen Whitaker said Saturday. She was freed on $5,000 bond.

"Ms. Trammell stands to inherit approximately $2 million from her mother, who at one time was a major stockholder in Gulf States Paper Corp.," Whitaker said.

The FBI alleges that Trammell had three telephone conversations last year with a person she believed would kill her mother, Joan Van Zele of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., for $25,000. Mrs. Van Zele was not harmed.

Anxious Stock Market Awaiting a Monday of 'Interesting' Trade

NEW YORK — Like a patient who left the hospital too soon, the stock market finds itself in a precarious state, starting the week deeply shaken by a major plunge eerily reminiscent of one that preceded Black Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed out last week with its third-biggest loss ever, 140.58 points, or 6.9 percent of its value. That left the closely watched indicator at 1,911.31.

More than $144.7 billion in stock valued was wiped out, or about 5.67 percent of the Wilshire Associates index of 5,000 stocks.

Twin Offers Own Bone Marrow to Brother Infected with AIDS

SAN FRANCISCO — Doctors have taken the healthy bone marrow from David Franks and transplanted it into his identical twin, Doug, in an experimental AIDS therapy effort that gives new meaning to the phrase "brotherly love."

The 35-year-old twins have traveled repeatedly to the National Institutes of Health research center in Washington, D.C. to carry out the painful exchange that both men hope will help Doug Franks fend off further ravages of the fatal acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"How could I not do it?" asked David, a minister at Oakland's Lake Merritt Methodist Church.

"Regardless of the outcome,"

Doug agreed, "it was something we had to try. It's a unique opportunity. I would have done the same thing for him."

The experiment for which the two brothers volunteered will test whether David's healthy, transplanted marrow settles into Doug's tissue and rebuilds his immune system, while anti-viral drug therapy is used in an attempt to keep the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, from replicating.

Doctors won't know the impact of the transplant for months or maybe a year.

4 California Lawmen Shot This Weekend in Head, 3 Survivors

LOS ANGELES — One of four California lawmen shot in three incidents during the weekend died and two others were in critical condition with bullet holes in their brains, authorities said Sunday.

Three people were in custody in connection with shootings in south-central Los Angeles and San Diego and authorities sought a man for questioning in the shooting of a California Highway Patrol officer in northeast Los Angeles.

Los Angeles County sheriff's Deputy Jack B. Miller, 33, who was shot in the head Friday night during a drug raid, died at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, said Deputy Dan Cox.

San Diego police Officer Jerry Hartless, 24, who was shot early Saturday during a foot pursuit, had a bullet lodged in his brain and was on a respirator, said Lt. Lesli Lord.

CHP Officer Gary Baker, 32, shot by a motorist he stopped Saturday morning in the Eagle Rock area of Los Angeles, had a bullet removed from his brain and was in critical condition at Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena, said nursing supervisor Betty Romero.

NASA Proposes the Use of SDI Weapon to Launch Mini-Craft

PASADENA — Technology being developed for a "Star Wars" anti-missile weapon also could be used to launch dozens of spacecraft the size of coffee cans to explore the solar system inexpensively, a NASA engineer says.

The "micro spacecraft" envisioned by Ross M. Jones would each weigh about two or three pounds, NASA said in a news release. They would be launched from an electromagnetic launcher, commonly called a railgun, in orbit around Earth.

Railguns use brief but powerful electrical pulses to generate strong electromagnetic forces that can accelerate projectiles to extremely high speeds. That means there would be no need to haul large quantities of rocket fuel into orbit to push a spacecraft away from Earth's gravity field.

"Jones estimates that 2.2-pound spacecraft launched by an orbiting railgun would achieve an exit velocity of about six miles per second," NASA said, "giving the probe enough velocity to travel about 750 million miles — about the distance between Earth's and Saturn's orbits — in two years."

Chancellor Defines Goals to Guide UCSB's Future

Increased Emphasis on Research, Greater Graduate to Undergraduate Ratio Planned

By Sean Ryan
Reporter

Placing a stronger emphasis on research and increasing the ratio of graduate students to undergraduate students are two goals that define Chancellor Barbara Uehling's plans for UCSB's academic future.

The development of a "mission statement," one of Uehling's primary goals since arriving at UCSB last summer, was the topic of a November meeting held between Uehling and key members of the campus community, including administration, Academic Senate and student body members.

The 45 people in attendance at the meeting addressed academic planning matters to formulate a mission statement to guide the university into its future. In addition, the group discussed ways in which physical planning could attract high-caliber faculty and students.

"Their purposes were to do two things at that meeting: to work on developing a campus mission statement and identifying campus goals, and to agree upon the environment in which we plan," Assistant Chancellor of Planning and Analysis Dick Jensen said. "In other words... the factors affecting us ... the things that influence the campus and higher education, and the University of California."

Participants at the meeting decided that an emphasis on research is necessary to enhance the university's academic caliber, Jensen said.

"I think it's generally agreed that excellent quality research leads to excellent quality instruction," Jensen continued. "Students, given a choice, would prefer to be at a major research university, as distinct from one that had other objectives."

Another step to raise academic quality discussed at the meeting was increasing the ratio of graduate students to undergraduate students, Assistant Dean of Students Joe Navarro said.

In dealing with additional topics, the question of future enrollment policies prompted some debate, according to Donaldson.

Although trends indicate that because of an overall increase in the number of students in the UC system, enrollment at UCSB is expected to rise, "there was a disagreement over how much growth there should be — some did not want it at all," Navarro said.

The primary determinant in defining the goals outlined in the mission statement was the desire to see UCSB become a "top-rate research institution," which would benefit the students by increasing the university's reputation, according to meeting participant Debbie Donaldson, a UCSB undergraduate who chairs the Registration Fee Advisory Committee.

"I think it's generally agreed that excellent quality research leads to excellent quality instruction."

— Dick Jensen

When completed, the mission statement should provide "a good feeling for what this campus is and should be," Uehling said.

A draft of the mission statement should be prepared within a month from now, according to Jensen. Currently, a set of "key phrases" has been formulated, from which an editor will "make something which is both economical of language and disciplined in thought," he said.

In the process of editing the "key phrases," a subcommittee on objectives will ensure that the goals outlined at the November meeting are present in the mission statement's final version. The subcommittee, which should finish its phase of work by the end of January or mid-February, will also consider "quality of life and physical/community qualities" while formulating the statement, Jensen said.

Irvine

UC IRVINE — A woman died after receiving an experimental brain graft for treatment of Parkinson's disease at UCI Medical Center.

The 60-year-old woman, whose name has been withheld at her family's request, had undergone surgery in which a graft is taken from the adrenal gland and injected deep into the brain. The treatment is hoped to lessen the disabling symptoms of the degenerative disease. The woman had been doing well after the surgery on Dec. 18 when, without warning, she had a heart attack and died, said Leslie Kahan, a UCI neurosurgeon.

The death has raised questions about whether the experimental procedure will be performed on other patients as a treatment for Parkinson's disease.

An autopsy did not reveal the precise cause of death, so before neurosurgeons go ahead with other scheduled surgeries, they will "need to get as much information about it as possible — to see whether it was preventable or predictable," Kahan said.

San Diego

UC SAN DIEGO — UCSD's Fifth College was inaugurated Wednesday night at a reception attended by several San Diego City Council members of San Diego's international community.

Chancellor Richard Atkinson then spoke briefly and remarked that "the college system has served us well. We've reached a point in time where we've had to expand... Of course Fifth College is in context with UCSD's efforts to focus on international relations."

Atkinson also noted in an interview the importance of developing support in the community for the new college. "Over the long haul, it is important for people in the business community to know about it so students are recognized when they graduate," Atkinson said.

Harriet Marsh, the new dean of Fifth College, described the inauguration as an "opportunity for community people to get involved (with Fifth)... We invited people we hoped will become acquainted with the college."

Jamie Lyon, the provost for Fifth, described a main focus of the college as pushing its students to spend some time abroad either studying or working. "We worry about ethnocentrism.... The (Fifth students) will not be studying international relations.... They will go on with an international focus."

Riverside

UC RIVERSIDE — For the second consecutive year, applications to UCR have increased significantly. Officials project next fall's count to be over 7,000 applications up from this year's record of 6,554.

According to Fred Zuker, associate vice chancellor for enrollment management, UCR had received 10,037 applications from prospective students as of last Tuesday. High school seniors submitted 9,125 of these applications, with the remaining 912 applicants holding advanced standing. This year's increase marks a 35.9 percent increase over last year's 41 percent increase.

Officials expect to offer admission to about 7,000 students on Feb. 1 in what is called the first wave of acceptances, and between 1,000 and 1,500 more applicants in later waves.

It is not yet known how many students will actually choose to attend UCR, but preliminary estimates put the number at 1,900 to 2,300 freshman and 400 students with advanced standing.

Under university policy, UCR is required to accept any student who meets the UC admission requirements and who submitted an application in November.

Davis

UC DAVIS — The death of UCD professor Richard Coe has prompted university officials to suggest that any person who had come into contact with Coe seek precautionary tuberculosis tests.

Before his death on Dec. 30, Coe contracted an active case of tuberculosis. He was 64.

"Those who had been in close contact with professor Coe, who had been in the same air space for a prolonged period of time — perhaps students in a seminar or co-workers in the same office — should go to their private physicians or to the health center for TB testing," said Dr. Richard Clark, staff physician at the center. Though not highly communicative, Clark said, tuberculosis "can cause a lung or bronchial disease."

According to the French department, Coe did not teach any courses during the period in question. Coe, however, instructed comparative literature courses as recently as last quarter.

Santa Cruz

UC SANTA CRUZ — A lawsuit filed against UC Santa Cruz in November by the Santa Cruz City Council went through a court-negotiated settlement just prior to the trial date in December.

The city council argues that the university submitted an inadequate environmental impact report that included plans to build a new college.

our side."

Higman and other proponents believe that preserving the Wilcox Ranch, which contains some of the last remaining coastal oak tree groves in the county, is essential for preservation of the area's beauty, of Santa Barbara's history and for the enjoyment of future generations.

"This will be for the education of the public, all ages. There is no place to really see what a natural area is in the city limits," Higman explained. "We will have a coastal Botanic Gardens, (a) coastal preserve."

"Let's do something for (the benefit of) the people coming after us," she continued. "Maybe this will be the last spot of oak groves on the county's coast."

Opponents of the measure, however, believe that the Santa Barbara government should address more pressing and timely issues, such as the city's homeless problem or the establishment of park space in certain areas — projects they feel would benefit a broader section of the community.

"The city doesn't seem to talk of the pressing needs," said Keith Kruger, a member of the anti-Wilcox group COM-PACT. "The city's recreation department needs repairs, and there are areas that need parks that don't have them. The lower east side doesn't have one, nor does State Street."

Creation of a committee to explore placement of the bond measure on the upcoming ballot was initially approved at a Jan. 5 city council meeting, according to city council member Hal Conklin. The council is now seeking to authorize an appraisal of the Wilcox property to determine its current monetary worth and to negotiate a sales figure with Santa Barbara Capital, he said.

The development firm currently plans to sell the land to the city for $10.1 million, according to Santa Barbara Capital owners David Grottenhuis and Wayne Siemens.

In addition to the possible funding from the bond measure, Conklin said the county may soon receive $7 million of state funds, $3 million of which may be used for purchase of the Wilcox Ranch.

"The chances look pretty good (that the measure) will go on (the ballot)," Conklin concluded.

Do You Thrive Under Deadline Pressure?

The students at the Daily Nexus do. And they are currently looking for reporters and photographers to assist them in meeting these deadlines.

That's right, the Nexus is hiring student employees for Winter Quarter posts. And the application deadline is rapidly approaching. Briefly, each post offers a chance to learn the inner-workings of a daily newspaper, whether you're covering the trial of former Chancellor Bob Huttenback, snapping photos of drug dealers in action (something the Nexus has yet to get) or presenting new insights into how your fellow students cope with the rigors of Isla Vista living.

If this appeals to you (and we hope it does), applications can be picked up at the Nexus offices under Storke Tower from our helpful receptionists. Once completed, turn those for news writing into Training Editor William Diepenbrock and those for photography into Photo Editor Mark Stucky.

Also on hand were members of Andelson's family and many of the top city and state leaders, including state schools Superintendent Bill Honig, state Controller Gray Davis, Attorney General John Van De Kamp, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, and several Assembly and Los Angeles City Council members.

Undercover Agent Leads to Police Arrest of Eight Policeman Pretends to Be Student

By Gretchen Kell
McClatchy News Service

SACRAMENTO — A Roseville policeman's 3-1/2-month undercover stint as an Oakmont High School student led to the arrest last week of eight young men on felony charges of selling narcotics.

Arrested for peddling marijuana, LSD, methamphetamines and codeine to the 20-year-old officer — both on and off campus — were seven Oakmont students and a Roseville resident who is not in school, authorities said.

Police named Brian Peter Ruhkala and Jon Adam Genzlinger — both 18-year-old Oakmont students — and Shawn Clayton Perry, 19, the non-student, as among those arrested. They were booked in the Roseville jail.

The names of the five juveniles, who were taken to Juvenile Hall in Auburn, were withheld.

At a press conference at the Roseville police station, Detective Sgt. Joel Neves said more arrests are expected and that warrants exist for two other young people who could not be located.

"I can say this is only the tip of the iceberg," said Neves. "I'm not saying we're doing this" at Roseville's three other high schools.

Neves said Oakmont's drug problems, which prompted the department to plant an officer there when classes began August 31, are "probably no worse than at other schools."

No one at the 1,650-student high school — part of the Roseville Joint Union High School District — and few members of the police force knew until this week that the policeman, whose name was not divulged, had enrolled at Oakmont, he said.

"We were concerned for his safety, definitely," said Neves. The officer's last day at school was Friday.

After the 9:05 a.m. arrests were made — six on campus, two off campus — most faculty members and students reacted favorably to the idea of a police officer posing as a student to crack down on drug traffic.

"Who needs 'em?" said Kevin Maylor, 16, of drugs. "They screw up your brain, your life, your grades. If you're a cop, you have to be at schools because that's where the things are going down."

"We're not afraid of what this brings to us," said Oakmont principal Patrick Godwin. "We're part of a community and a nation with a drug problem. To find police here is not a surprise."

Godwin said he learned of the secret investigation for the first time earlier in the week in a meeting with Roseville authorities.

Although his reaction was "generally positive," Godwin admitted a couple of the officer's teachers were "in shock" after learning he wasn't really a student.

"They can't believe he's old enough to be an undercover agent," he said. "Also, he's a good actor. The teachers made comments that he seemed to be incredibly immature and managed to get into disciplinary trouble. He played his role very well."

The officer, who provided false information about himself in order to enter school last August, nearly flunked his classes on purpose and attended parties and football games to (See POLICE, p.13)

SINCERE SKEPTICS and CHRISTIANS

Here's an awesome class!

Sponsored by Campus Ambassadors

If you would like to have your questions about Christianity answered. If you would be interested in learning the logical and evidential basis behind the Christian faith. Also, if you want to accurately understand the message Christ gave to the world, and how to share it effectively; then this class is a must! It's called Evangelism Training and is guaranteed to make you think; Christian or not. A major emphasis of the class is to provide very satisfying answers to any type of question you might have about Christianity. Thus, if you are not a Christian, but rather someone seeking, you will still feel very comfortable in the class, and find it interesting. Many, many students down through the years have taken this class, and have benefitted tremendously. Some get a desire for God that they never had before. Others, finally resolve their doubts about Christianity, and become convinced of God's reality more than ever! This class is taught in an informal setting, and is a great way to meet other Christians and other seekers.

The class will be meeting at 760 Embarcadero del Norte no. 11, Isla Vista on a weekly basis from 6-8 pm Two different class times will be offered. One class will meet on Monday's, the other class will meet on Wednesday's. They will begin next week: Mon., Jan 18th and Wed., Jan 20th respectively. If you can't make the first Monday meeting because of the holiday, simply give us a call. Otherwise, just show up. Sign ups will extend up to the 2nd class week. Dave and Patti 685-5780.

Relatively Unknown
Campaign Hopefuls Offer Voters Choice
in Presidential Race

By Jim Haynes
 McClatchy News Service

SACRAMENTO — Voters unhappy with the major presidential candidates may want to look at other contenders among the 230 who have filed with the Federal Election Commission.

Kip Lee of Redding, Calif., pledges, if elected, to "allow the space people to come down and help us."

On the more down-to-earth issue of the economy, Lee said in a telephone interview last week that he wants to replace the nation's monetary system with bartering.

Perhaps not surprisingly, there are more long-shot candidates from California than from any other state. Twenty-seven California residents are in the race, followed by 17 Texans who want to be president. One candidate is a real dog.

Punch B. Berger of Chapel Hill, N.C., has tossed his collar into the ring. The half-German shepherd intends to end restrictions on imports of foreign beef. Scandal-wise, the candidate is clean as a hound's tooth, said his campaign manager and owner, college student Laura Van Sant.

"He's never smoked pot and he's neutered, so he's never had any affairs," she said.

The presidential timbre also includes Vanna Lite and Snow Lite, both of Raleigh, N.C.; the Rev. Levi Martin Luther Gasking of Bay City, Texas; and Gene Autry Griffin of Jackson, Miss.

Others in the race are Mick Zager Apollo of McLean, Virginia; and Billy McGee of Starr, S.C.

Are any of these lesser-known office seekers serious?

Lee described himself as a genuine contender "if I get the money and support."

A wildly varied crop of candidates will vie for Ronald Reagan's job in November.

Van Sant said, "I just saw how easy it was in this book that came out after the 1984 election and filled out the form" on behalf of her dog.

The book was "Everybody for President" by Gil Campbell and Martha Gorman, both of Boulder, Colo. "I am probably responsible for more presidential candidates than anyone in history," Campbell said.

The sincerity of the candidates is not always easy to gauge.

Charlotte "Myrtle" Montgomery of Sacramento registered as a presidential possibility.

But Montgomery — like many of the lesser known candidates — has no listed phone number and could not be reached to discuss her campaign.

David Freigh of Long Beach said he is a private investigator "who had to get some information from a source who would only give it to presidential candidates."

Freigh would not provide any details on that case. Asked if he was really running, he answered: "If elected, I will serve."

Chico Party Fate Debated

By Jim Haynes
McClatchy News Service

CHICO — Most of the non-students in this college town are glad the annual Pioneer Days celebration was canceled after last spring's rioting, while more students regret the move, according to a poll released last week.

Fifty-five percent of those who said they did not attend classes at either California State University, Chico, or Butte Community College supported the cancellation of the traditional CSUC event.

But 57 percent of the students questioned disapproved of the action by CSUC President Robin Wilson.

Wilson banned the event indefinitely after rioting broke out during last year's celebration. More than 2,000 drunken revelers started bonfires in the street, threw bottles at police and broke shop windows. Seventy-three students and other young people were arrested.

"I think it's fair to say the townspeople had a completely different view from the students," said Jim Gregg of the Survey Research Center at CSUC.

The center, a professional polling organization affiliated with the university, interviewed 615 people in Chico, Cohasset, Durham and Forest by telephone during the last week in October. The poll contained a sample error of plus or minus 4 percent, Gregg said.

More than 75 percent of both students and non-students said they would support a city-sponsored festival to replace Pioneer Days.

Despite the "town versus gown split" over Pioneer Days, the overall view of non-student residents toward the university's influence was positive or very positive.

PRESIDENT

The serious and the whimsical alike can file statements of candidacy with the FEC without paying any fee, although few actually end up on the various state ballots.

In California, the names of the generally recognized candidates are placed on the ballot by the secretary of state.

It is possible to otherwise obtain a spot on the ballot by circulating nominating petitions, but that is difficult and rare, said Oliver Cox, an attorney in the secretary of state's office.

The candidates can, however, run as write-in candidates, he said.

The FEC makes a distinction between candidates who have raised or spent at least $5,000.

"We don't keep track of anybody that does not go over that $5,000 threshold because we have no jurisdiction over them," said Sharon Snyder, a spokeswoman in Washington for the commission.

Only 34 of the 230 candidates who have filed with the commission have raised that amount.

John Oertel, also of Redding, Calif., is still listed in the race, but said he has dropped out despite an initial surge of interest in his single-plank platform: Promoting pizza parties.

In fact, both of the Redding candidates are barred by the Constitution from taking office as president because they are under 35.

Lee, 33, said he was getting a head start on building name identification for 1992.

Oertel, 28, sidestepped the constitutional nitpicking.

"It only says you have to be 35 to serve, not how old you have to be to run for president," he said.

Oertel, a radio reporter, said he launched his candidacy several months ago as "a journalistic endeavor."

Within weeks, he began receiving letters from all over the world, he said.

Members of a U.S. Air Force squadron in West Germany solicited his views on national defense; a political science teacher from the Midwest wrote asking about the campaign; and a telephone company offered to sell him communications systems, he said.

"As soon as you run for president you get an outpouring of junk," he said. But, he said, nobody sent money.

"It's real easy to run for president. All it takes is a piece of paper and a 22-cent stamp," Oertel said.

Who would have believed that the Gauchos would be featured for two days in a row on page one of the Los Angeles Times Sports Section?

It's true. Friday and Saturday — Page One. National news, national upset. And whether you believe in the magic of hardwood or not, every Gaucho has a right to stand proud this week. Our soon-to-be-top-20 ranked hoopsters appeared for their debutante ball in Las Vegas and they awed the crowd with an unforgettable bow.

Now it's time for our road warriors to return to the Thunderdome (ECen) to treat a hungry UCSB crowd to some stellar basketball performances.

Conference play has just started and the men are 3-0 in PCAA action, posting an impressive overall record of 11-1, including an 18-point victory over North Carolina State.

Let's be optimistic, but not overly so. The season is far from over and Head Coach Jerry Pimm and his team have plenty of hurdles ahead. But, let's recognize that the Gauchos have electrified this campus community. Hell, students were screaming in the streets following Thursday's win.

UCSB has other things to celebrate now. We are no longer relegated to happiness over building dedications or a price slash on beer kegs. We can now boast with the best of them.

While basketball may be the most popular sport on campus, we must remember it is by no means the only example of our outstanding athletic program. UCSB consistently produces fine athletes in most, if not all, areas in which we compete. The football team performed extremely well this past season, going 8-2 after being back in intercollegiate competition for only two seasons. UCSB's baseball team was recently ranked 18th in a national preseason poll. Our water polo, rugby, surfing, volleyball, lacrosse, softball, tennis, golf and swimming programs have all produced fine teams with outstanding overall records.

But what does this mean for the students and the school? It means national media attention without an embarrassing scandal. It means a big boost for the athletics department as well, as they seize the opportunity for an increase in ticket sales and alumni donations, which also translates into the recruitment of top high school athletes to UCSB.

With the help of the Gaucho teams, people are beginning to recognize UCSB as more than "THE place to be" on Halloween, or the closest UC to Rincon point.

The athletes themselves are to be congratulated for their recent performances. May the wind stay behind the team.

Six of the next eight Gaucho games will be played at UCSB. That includes a rematch with the UNLV Rebels on Feb. 6. The game is already a bonafide sellout, but 2,500 tickets are available for STUDENTS. But, there's a catch.

The first 2,400 students to enter the game against Utah St. on Jan. 16 at 1 p.m. will receive a ticket to the UNLV home game. One hundred more tickets will be raffled off during halftimes at every game leading to the UNLV showdown. That's about 15 per game, but only those who attend the Utah State game and do not receive a ticket are eligible for the raffle drawing.

The Gaucho basketball team is miles away from a championship, but support is one key to a winning team. Join Gaucho Joe in the THUNDERDOME and, as Athletic Director Stan Morrison says, "Gauchos Kick Ass!!"

December 10, 1964
Oslo, Norway

Your Majesty, your Royal Highness, Mr. President, gentlemen:

I accept the Nobel Prize for Peace at a moment when the United States of America are engaged in a creative and moving with determination and a majestic scorn for the reign of freedom and a rule of justice.

I am mindful that only yesterday in Birmingham, Alabama, out for brotherhood, were answered with fire hoses and high pressure water. I am mindful that only yesterday in Philadelphia, Missouri, to secure the right to vote were brutalized and murdered.

I am mindful that debilitating and grinding poverty chains them to the lowest rung of the economic ladder.

Therefore, I must ask why this prize is awarded to a man who is beleaguered and committed to unrelenting struggle for the very peace and brotherhood which is the essence of the prize.

After contemplation, I conclude that this award is not for that movement is profound recognition that no other crucial political and moral question of our time — the question of oppression and violence without resorting to violence.

Civilization and violence are antithetical concepts. Following the people of India, have demonstrated a powerful moral force which makes them more patient, Sooner or later, all the people of the world will join together in peace and thereby transform this present world into a psalm of brotherhood.

If this is to be achieved, man must evolve for all men to reject revenge, aggression and retaliation. The goal is love.

The tortuous road which has led from Montgomery, Alabama, to witness to this truth. This is the road over which man must find a new sense of dignity. This same road has led to an era of progress and hope. It has led to a new city in which, convinced, be widened and lengthened into a super highway. White men in increasing numbers create alliant problems.

I accept this award today with an abiding faith in the future of mankind. I refuse to accept the present nature makes him morally incapable of the "oughtness" that forever confronts him.

I refuse to accept the idea that man is mere flotsam and jetsam.

Glasnost: A

Francis Wall

Mikhail Gorbachev's latest victory in the war for good PR was a substantial one. Mr. Gorbachev has long enjoyed good press in Western Europe, where in popularity polls he often out-scored President Reagan. Now he has defeated Reagan on his own turf! Unfortunately, there seems to be too many in Washington and the media who view the strides Mr. Gorbachev has taken as propaganda coups or as competition for ... well ... man of the year. In fact, Mr. Gorbachev has put the wheels in motion for a change at home and abroad; whether one sees this as purely pragmatic or as an attempt to "democratize" the USSR, the United States should encourage this trend rather than hinder it.

Mr. Gorbachev's program, of which glasnost (openness) and perestroika (restructuring) are the most well known, is as much a product of the strained relationship between the two superpowers as Reagan's "Star Wars" program. The conflict began in earnest during the aftermath of World War II: This was a time when the Soviet Union, facing an adversary with a nuclear monopoly, found itself in a sink-or-swim situation. Of course, the Soviet Union was a relatively young nation and competition with the U.S. for military and political dominance exacted a heavy toll on the USSR; that is, in the area of production and distribution of consumer goods.

With each new advance in military technology, the Soviet Union, already burdened with keeping its Eastern European satellites in line, found it more and more difficult to obtain parity with the United States. Finally, according to U.S. government sources, the Soviet Union achieved military parity with the U.S. in the late 1970s. As Mr. Gorbachev notes in his book Perestroika: New Thinking for Our Country and the World, this event coincided with the lowest levels of efficiency and morale in the USSR since the revolution in 1917. Mr. Gorbachev has recognized these and other shortcomings in the Soviet Union and is working for viable alternatives. He is attempting through glasnost and perestroika to modernize the nation, take advantage of global trade and decrease the necessity to compete militarily with the U.S.

Glasnost is a necessary evil in that it encourages subordinates to question the party line, thereby placing the party's authority in doubt. Soviet leaders must face this prospect of diminished power in their drive for modernization. Modernization is necessary for several reasons: to increase the standard of living at home, to quell dissent, to increase efficiency and enable the USSR to compete in the global economic realm. To achieve this last which surrounds him. I refuse to accept the view that mankind is so tragically bound to the starless midnight of racism and war that the bright daybreak of peace and brotherhood can never become a reality.

I refuse to accept the cynical notion that nation after nation must spiral down a militaristic stairway into the hell of thermonuclear destruction. I believe that unarmed truth and unconditional love will have the final word in reality. This is why right temporarily defeated is stronger than evil triumphant.

I believe that even amid today's mortar bursts and whining bullets, there is still hope for a brighter tomorrow. I believe that wounded justice, lying prostrate on the blood-flowing streets of our nations, can be lifted from this dust of shame to reign supreme among the children of men.

I have the audacity to believe that peoples everywhere can have three meals a day for their bodies, education and culture for their minds, and dignity, equality and freedom for their spirits. I believe that what self-centered men have torn down, other-centered can build up. I still believe that one day mankind will bow before the altars of God and be crowned triumphant over war and bloodshed, and nonviolent redemptive goodwill will proclaim the rule of the land. "And the lion and the lamb shall lie down together and every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree and none shall be afraid." I still believe that we shall overcome.

This faith can give us courage to face the uncertainties of the future. It will give our tired feet new strength as we continue our forward stride toward the city of freedom. When our days become dreary with low-hanging clouds and our nights become darker than a thousand midnights, we will know that we are living in the creative turmoil of a genuine civilization struggling to be born.

Today I come to Oslo as a trustee, inspired and with renewed dedication to humanity. I accept this prize on behalf of all men who love peace and brotherhood. I say I come as a trustee, for in the depths of my heart I am aware that this prize is much more than an honor to me personally.

Every time I take a flight I am always mindful of the many people who make a successful journey possible, the known pilots and the unknown ground crew.

So you honor the dedicated pilots of our struggle who have sat at the controls as the freedom movement soared into orbit. You honor, once again, Chief Luthuli of South Africa, whose struggles with and for his people are still met with the most brutal expression of man's inhumanity to man.

You honor the ground crew without whose labor and sacrifices the jetflights to freedom could never have left the earth.

Most of these people will never make the headlines and their names will not appear in Who's Who. Yet, the years have rolled past and when the blazing light of truth is focused on this marvelous age in which we live — men and women will know and children will be taught that we have a finer land, a better people, a more noble civilization — because these humble children of God were willing to suffer for righteousness' sake.

I think Alfred Nobel would know what I mean when I say that I accept this award in the spirit of a curator of some precious heirloom which he holds in trust for its true owners — all those to whom beauty is truth and truth beauty — and in whose eyes the beauty of genuine brotherhood and peace is more precious than diamonds or silver or gold.

Positive Step

al, the USSR must have the ability to produce chnology at the national level, which of course kes time (in terms of building capital such as ants and equipment).

Therefore, in the interim, technology must be ported from the West. Thus, glasnost is ecessary as an incentive at home: political eralism in return for sacrifices in the economic ere. It is also required abroad: as a quid pro quo
r the West. Aside from this pragmatic view, story shows that economic reform necessitates litical reform and vice versa; a lesson the inese government learned last year as protesters owed the streets, demanding greater potential edom to coincide with economic reforms.

What should the United States reaction to this orm movement be? The Reagan administration, an attempt to recoup its losses of earlier acles, welcomed the INF treaty with open arms.
t, there seems to be little it has done in the way of omoting Gorbachev's moves. The U.S. would nefit by being true to its traditions and pitalizing on this chance to enhance the actions of Soviet leader.

The U.S. stands to gain in the area of trade if it ourages Gorbachev's program. To put it simply, e USSR is one big, practically untouched market, d with the trade deficit at its present levels, it is in r best interest to have the Soviet Union as a trade rtner. The INF treaty has shown that we can ercome ideological barriers through negotiations d that the very survival of the planet depends on healthy relations between the superpowers.

Further, trade with the USSR may provide the S. with greater leverage in influencing certain licies within the Soviet Union. For example, in the st, West Germany exported much-needed chnology to the USSR in order to achieve a ssening of travel restrictions on East Germans.
ch an arrangement could possibly be worked out etween the U.S. and USSR resulting in, for ample, greater leeway in emigration, travel, etc.
These paths lead to a relationship which is not aught with hostility, tension and senseless competition. Both sides can benefit if they're willing to ver their guards. It would seem that Mr. Gor-chev has done just that, leaving Mr. Reagan ndering his next move.

This all may appear idealistic, but it is not often at a world leader steps forward to admit that his/r nation's system is faulty. It is possible that Mr.
orbachev has ulterior motives, as any leader ight, but it does appear to be a step in the right rection. We can only hope that our next residential administration will be more willing to gaze in such a mutual effort.

The Reader's Voice

Hallelujah! Deregulation!

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Burris De Benning's article on airline deregulation dated January 7, 1988, is so far from the truth that I feel the Nexus could greatly benefit from a correction. If the Carter administration did anything positive for our economy, it surely was the deregulation which has allowed air travel to be accessible to more Americans than ever before. It was because of deregulation that airlines were for the first time forced to compete with each other in order to gain passengers; in other words, the airlines have found themselves in a "sink or swim" situation. Mr. De Benning misses the point of all of this and that is: Through competition, the airlines are forced to produce a product, air travel, at the lowest possible cost, and the carrier who fails to will find itself unable to survive in the market, such as Braniff and People's Express. In contrast to what Mr. De Benning stated, the consumer is the one who benefits from such competitive market strategies as "fare wars" and the airline's continual need to restructure themselves so as to provide maximum efficiency. Air travel since deregulation has more than doubled and many Americans who, prior to 1978, could never afford to make it home for the holidays have now been able to enjoy the luxury. Who loses in deregulation? One could say the airlines, in terms of their profits and, as we have seen, inefficient carriers who fail to provide the service that the bird next door can at the same cost. I personally have benefited from deregulation because every time I go back to Miami to visit my family I pay half what I did before the government stepped out of the picture. I agree some negative consequences have resulted, such as crowded skies and less-than-glamorous service. The former is more a problem of the increase in private aviation and an inappropriate number of airports to meet today's growing industry increase. The latter ... well ... some say you get what you pay for, but I say who cares whether your chicken is served on china or a plastic tray; just think of all the greens you saved and can spend once you've reached your destination!

Students for Students

Editor, Daily Nexus:

There are 60 people crammed in the weight room, numerous field-related injuries on Storke Field and not enough swim-time hours at the Campus Pool. What's wrong with this picture? The answer: UCSB has inadequate recreational facilities to suitably accommodate a student body of 18,000 people. We as students know this and the campus administration knows this. Evidently, we are faced with a problem that only students can solve.

Last year, the Student Fee Referendum was defeated by a 52 percent to 48 percent margin, thus coming short of the mandatory two-thirds vote. This year, members of Students for Improved Recreational Facilities (SIRF) hope to initiate a similar proposal, with the notable exception of the issue of the UCen expansion. This year's proposal includes: a new recreational facility, an aquatics complex and an extension and lighting of Storke Field. All of which are in desperate need to suit the students' needs. As a member of SIRF, we hope to bring to surface this measure on the spring ballot. Currently, members of SIRF are circulating petitions to get the measure on the ballot.

SIRF is a student group, run by students, to give students an opportunity to express ideas and opinions; there are no politics about it. We are faced with a problem that will not go away as UCSB continues to expand without the benefit of proper recreational facilities. SIRF hopes to get interested students, who care about the future of their university, involved in the decision-making process. I am a senior with really nothing to gain but the satisfaction in knowing that I helped bring this university to a more prestigious level to compare with its academic excellence. We as students have a voice, a strong voice which shall be heard. Students who have this desire to better their university and care about its future are strongly encouraged to attend SIRF meetings every Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in Rob Gym 2227. If your schedule is too busy to attend the meeting, please sign the petition as a gesture that you care about the future of this campus. Remember, this petition is just to get the measure on the ballot. The progress and the hope for tomorrow begin with you ... today!

Cruel Credit Caper

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Currently, there is a flyer being posted around campus that claims to be from the UCSB administration, offering a credit refund of 20 percent for paperbacks and 40 percent for hardback books purchased at the UCen Bookstore. It states that this refund will be issued through a credit to your BA/RC account by putting your perm number on your receipt and mailing it to the Billing Office.

This flyer is not true. The UCSB administration is not responsible for its origination and, unfortunately, it is a cruel prank designed by someone who is obviously unhappy with UCSB's bookstore policies.

The Billing Office wishes to apologize for any inconvenience caused for UCSB students by the actions of this unknown person. My staff and I strive to uphold our reputation for good service because students are our business and it is important that it be recognized.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter. I hope we can count on you to assist us in putting a quick end to this unfortunate situation.

KING JR.

Political science department Chair Dr. Cedric Robinson is also expected to offer his insights as he discusses "The Day After King."

Dr. Keletso Atkins, associate professor of history, will speak Wednesday on the subject of "King in South Africa," and on Thursday, Shirley Kennedy, who has worked as coordinator of the Santa Barbara Martin Luther King Jr. Society, will offer her views on "The Militant Martin."

Student speakers and other guests will fill out the plaza series, which will be accompanied by a pledge-signing drive in front of the UCen every day between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The pledges will be filed with a national organization on the East Coast as a permanent record of commitment to King's way of life — non-violent disobedience, love and peace, Armstrong said. "Pledges will go on file as a declaration to the world that the individuals who signed are willing to be soldiers ... officers of justice and equality in the society that we live in. And, they are taking a step right at home, right here at UCSB, because we have some work to do here," he said.

Other activities planned for the week include "A Visual Tribute to the Legacy of King" sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta. This presentation will be held Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. in Storke Plaza.

Following the visual tribute, the Activities Planning Center has scheduled a two-hour video entitled "Martin Luther King Jr.: A Personal Portrait." Included in the video are scenes from King's acceptance of the Nobel Peace Prize and from the Vietnam conflict, as well as from his family life, his struggle for civil liberties from Selma to Montgomery and a discussion about his assassination.

The video is expected to begin at 1 p.m. in UCen Room 1.

Also on Thursday, EOP Assistant Director Dr. Hymon Johnson will offer his insights on the "Essence of Dr. King's Message." The presentation will combine text from various King speeches with photographic slides. Sponsored by EOP, the lecture will begin at 3 p.m. in the Multicultural Center.

In rounding out the week's activities, various campus groups will lead a candlelight march to UCSB's eternal flame Thursday, where a relighting ceremony is expected to take place, Carter said.

March participants will converge on Storke Plaza following Johnson's presentation at 5 p.m. The group will then depart for the flame, where there will be singing and an open microphone for community members who wish to remember King.

Organizers are also hoping to secure the UCSB Gospel Choir for the event.

On Friday, Alpha Kappa Alpha will host an open microphone in Storke Plaza at noon. A special carrillon performance has also been scheduled.

Board of Education Trustee May Oversee Lax Schools

By Ray Sotero
McClatchy News Service

Not only might the teacher have someone looking over his or her shoulder.

So might the principal, and the superintendent, AND the board of trustees.

That someone could be Bill Honig himself, or someone from the state Department of Education appointed as a trustee to take charge of maybe 30-percent of those schools that haven't shown improvement, a phase of state school chief Honig's phrase, "accountability standards."

Under a proposal by Honig being considered by the state Board of Education, a trustee would be put in charge of a school that has not made the grade in the eyes of the state.

Those grades are based on mostly academic factors, such as improvement in mandatory annual state test scores, enrollment in certain academic courses, and the percentage of those taking enrichment or college-prep tests.

Those standards show that about a third of the state's schools are tops in the state.

Another third are improving.

The bottom third haven't done a thing, Honig said in a keynote address to about 5,500 educators during an annual convention of the California School Boards Association.

"The question being asked, here and in Sacramento, is, 'What are we going to do about those schools that haven't taken off?'"

At least we know who they are," Honig said.

People know because school results are part of the yearly California Assessment Program tests for students in grades 3, 6, 8 and 12, plus annual accountability reports, all public information available from school principals.

Several school board members and superintendents said they shuddered at the thought of someone from outside the district taking control of one of their schools.

In the past, however, they favored other moves by Honig, such as increased graduation requirements and stricter standards for teachers.

"If kids aren't learning, 'business as usual' does not apply," Honig said after his address.

Honig also said he's pushing for:

— Increased standards for middle schools, or junior highs.

— Improved teacher training, to perhaps include one- or two-year internships for the expected 160,000 entry-level teachers expected to be hired over the next decade.

— More money for buildings. There currently exists a need for $11 billion in new schools.

Honig suggested the legislature must do more to solve the building-construction measure on the ballot next November.

"There's an understanding of the current problem in Sacramento," he said. "The question is, are they going to do anything about it?"

POLICE

win teenagers' acceptance, said Neves.

While undercover, he made numerous drug purchases — in small amounts such as an ounce or less of marijuana or a couple hits of LSD — both on and off campus, said Neves, from students and non-students alike.

A non-student involved in selling drugs allegedly delivered them to school dealers, said Neves. He added that the seven Oakmont students arrested for dealing drugs "did not know each other."

Police arrived at the school to make six arrests. Godwin said three administrators removed the students from their classes and quietly turned them over to authorities, who placed them in a paddy wagon.

Another student was arrested at his home about the same time, said Neves, and Perry also was taken from his residence just outside Roseville.

"It scares me," said Kary Bright, 16. "I don't do drugs, but just the idea of someone you thought was a high school student" spying on you is uncomfortable.

Godwin said police will be handing him a list of up to 50 other students that the undercover officer observed either in possession of drugs or "talking freely about drugs." He said the school will contact those students' parents.

The students arrested will probably be expelled from school under the state's education code, said Godwin, which requires expulsion if a student is selling narcotics on campus.

The rest of the student body discussed the arrests in their first period classes, said Godwin.

"We want to quell any rumors that are inaccurate," he said, "and we want to ... take advantage of the moment to reaffirm our commitment as a school to providing an environment free of drugs and alcohol."

Art and reason

When Mark and I decided to spend the weekend at his mother's house, I never imagined I would be walking into a mouse's nightmare. There were cats everywhere.

Cat plaques, cat statues, cat clocks, even a cat mat. I couldn't begin to duplicate her collection of kitty litter if I spent a year at a garage sale. Conspicuously absent, however, was a real cat. Strange. I thought, and began to fear that a weekend with cat woman could be a lot less than purr-fect.

But then she came home, and Mark introduced her. She was dressed surprisingly well—no leopard pants. In fact, you could say she was the cat's meow, but I'd rather not.

She offered me a cup of Dutch Chocolate Mint. Now that was something I could relate to. Then she brought it out in the most beautiful, distinctly unfeline china I'd ever seen. As we sipped, I found out that Mrs. Campbell has my same weakness for chocolate, loves the theater as much as I do, but, incredibly, never saw "Cats." So Mark and I are taking her next month.

No Let-down for Gauchos; Beat Titans 3-0 in PCAA

By Scott Lawrence
Assistant Sports Editor

FULLERTON — The true test of character for the still-airborne Gauchos may have been Saturday night when they traveled to Fullerton for their third straight PCAA game.

Many expected the Gauchos (11-1, 3-0 in league) to drop hard following their electric upset win over UNLV just two days before and perhaps fall to the Titans of CSUF. But, the Gauchos showed they could handle success.

They went on to record a 67-55 victory behind sophomore Carrick DeHart's 15 points and Eric McArthur's 10, along with his 14 rebounds.

The Gauchos grabbed a 3-2 lead, thanks to a three-point play by freshman Gary Gray (10 points, three boards), and UCSB never looked back.

Junior Carlton Davenport was summoned to take over the team's point guard chores following two quick fouls in three minutes by senior Brian Shaw, which forced him to leave the game and spend time on the unfamiliar bench.

Shaw is averaging 36 minutes a contest, but played just 26:56 against the Titans, scoring eight points and grabbing three rebounds.

Davenport took over where Shaw left off and paced the Gaucho offense to 30-23 halftime lead. But, filling in for the PCAA's top all-around players can be a pressure-packed task.

"I felt the pressure a little bit but, y'know, that's my job," Davenport said. "I gotta come in and keep the team going when Shaw goes out. I run the offense a lot in practice, so I wasn't too nervous."

The Gauchos were leading 22-12 before Fullerton guard

Richard Morton hit two consecutive three-point buckets, which narrowed the

UNLV Tix to be Given Out at Utah St. Game Jan. 16

The rematch with UNLV on February 6 will be here before you know it and it's essential that you take the necessary action to ensure your place in it.

The game is an official sellout and has been for awhile. However, 2,500 tickets to the event have been set aside for the UCSB student body. Exactly 2,400 of those tickets will be distributed to the first 2,400 students in line for the Gauchos' game with Utah State on Saturday, January 16 at 1 p.m. in the "Thunderdome".

Raffles will be held during home halftimes prior to the rematch, where names will be drawn and the remaining 100 tickets given away. Forms can be found at the "Thunderdome" entrance during all home games following San Jose State and prior to UNLV on Feb. 6.

Being one of those 2,400 is the final way you can ensure your spot in the "Thunderdome" as UCSB tries to make it two straight against the Rebels.

Also, the student entrance into the "Thunderdome" for home games has been changed to the entrance closest to the ROTC building, to the left of the entrance now used by Gaucho fans.

'Gaucho Fever' Hits I.V.

By Patrick Whalen
Sports Editor

An epidemic of large proportions raged through Isla Vista last Thursday night, but hardly anyone grew deathly ill and no one was hospitalized.

The increasingly contagious affliction, known in the area as "Gaucho Fever," was credited with causing simultaneous celebration, whooping and high-fiving in the streets, and a boom in alcohol sales after 10:15 p.m. According to some accounts, many of those suffering from the epidemic did not find rest until early Friday morning.

The UCSB men's basketball team was identified immediately by investigators as the cause of the harmless but intoxicating epidemic. The Gauchos' 62-60 upset on the road of the 13th-ranked Rebels of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas was said to have collectively knocked the college basketball world on its duff.

But other areas of the nation reported no similar outbreaks of the "Gaucho Fever" epidemic. The fever is believed to be purely a regional occurrence.

KTMS-AM sports broadcaster David James was questioned by authorities as to his involvement in the epidemic. It is speculated that James' broadcast from Las Vegas was received by upward of 10,000 people in the Santa Barbara area.

"We really have no idea how many people were actually listening (when the epidemic occurred)," James said. "But I assume it was a lot.... AM broadcasts are weird. If the clouds are right, people anywhere up and down the state may be able to hear it. I even heard of one guy up in San Jose who listens to (UCSB basketball) games through all the static."

Those afflicted were said to have erupted from apartments and other hovels in the Isla Vista area in a elated frenzy, shouting and yelping amongst one another. Many headed for local establishments for refreshment and celebration.

"We sold a lot of 12-packs (of beer)," said S.O.S. Beer employee Tom Sydes, who was working when the epidemic (See HOOP-LA, p.17)

Titans Trounce Gauchos Turnovers Damage Women: Lose Fourth in a Row

By Patrick Whalen
 Sports Editor

FULLERTON — The UCSB women's basketball team surrendered 12 unanswered points at the outset of Saturday night's game against the Cal State Fullerton Titans en route to a 73-59 defeat, the team's fourth setback in a week.

The loss was the Lady Gauchos' fourth consecutive Pacific Coast Athletic Association loss this season, dropping them to 7-5, 0-4 in the PCAA. Fullerton is now 7-5 with the victory (2-1 in the PCAA).

UCSB was able to keep up with the Titans for almost the first three minutes, before Fullerton rattled off 12 points in the next five minutes to put them ahead to stay at 16-4. At halftime, the Lady Gauchos trailed 44-28.

Fullerton's Stacy Hunt led all scorers with 23 points, including four three-pointers. UCSB's Kira Antopher put in 18 in the losing effort, and, along with Titan Eugenia Miller, had

Morton and forward Henry Turner combined for 48 of Fullerton's 55 points, with just two other Titans reaching the scoring column.

After the intermission, UCSB was able to maintain 10 and 11-point leads throughout the second half, but were feeling the effects of three games in six days.

"All of us were a little tired," said Head Coach Jerry Pimm. "We didn't play with the same quick feet and didn't have near the intensity we played with in Vegas. We had good point production and I was pleased with our inside play, but we have to have more aggression."

Coming in, UCSB's main weaknesses throughout the past few games has been their performance at the free-throw line. After nearly losing to the Rebels Thursday because of failing to convert on three consecutive one-and-one situations, they went into Titan Gym and sunk 81 percent from the line (21-26) compared to CSUF's 56 percent.

The Gauchos shot 50 percent from the floor to the Titans' 37 percent and outrebounded Fullerton 25-17.

In the process of building leads of nine in the first half and 15 in the second, UCSB was led by sophomore Carrick DeHart who, after missing a clutch free-throw late in the game against Irvine Monday, went on to drop all eight of his attempts Saturday night.

DeHart finished with a team-leading 15 points, going 3-9 from the field and 1-1 from three-point range. Brian Johnson was 1-3 from 19 feet and finished with 10 points, along with McArthur, Gary Gray and sophomore Mike Doyle.

DeHart is a key threat in an intensified UCSB defense, which helped pace the 62-60 win over UNLV and helped drop Fullerton's record to 4-9 overall, 0-4 in the PCAA.

"I think we have one of the best back courts in the country," DeHart said. "We go pretty much four or five deep, so we have a real good back court with some fine bigmen. (The defense) is what we've been doing all along and it's just now starting to gel."

"We're starting to jump to the ball a little more. Our offense didn't win the game for us tonight or in Vegas; we're just playing excellent defense and rebounding."

The Gauchos are now 5-1 on the road and will play six of their next eight inside the campus Thunderdome. They'll host San Jose State Thursday night (7:30 p.m.), followed by Utah State on Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m., which could decide first-place in the conference if both USU and UCSB win this Thursday.

HOOP TALK

The Gauchos have now won five of their last six meetings from Fullerton and are 6-16 overall versus the Titans ... The win over CSUF marks the first time UCSB has put together three straight road wins since the 1980-81 campaign and is the first time they have started 3-0 in league since the 1970-71 season ... The 11-1 record is Coach Pimm's best start since 1980-81, when he was the head coach at the University of Utah. His Runnin' Utes started that season with 10 straight victories ... The Gauchos have trailed at halftime on two occasions and have come back to win both times. Last year the squad came back to win only once when trailing at the half and are presently 9-1 when leading at the break ... The only teams to lead the Gauchos in the second half were Oregon State and Stanford ...

MEN'S VOLLEYBALL
Gauche spikers won two matches Saturday in the Saskatchewan Volleyball Tournament. The squad beat the University of Alberta 15-10, 8-15, 15-6, 15-7 in the final match of pool play to take third in pool action.

UCSB then downed the University of Regina 15-0, 15-2, 13-15, 8-15, 15-10 in the first round of crossover playoffs.

Jose Gandara had 19 kills for the Gauchos against Alberta, and Rick Weissinger had 17 kills against Regina. Gandara added 15 kills and six stuff-blocks against Regina.

SWIMMING
Terry "Bird" Asplund paced UCSB by winning the 100 butterfly consolation final in 52.7 seconds and placing second in the 200 freestyle consolation event in 1:43.0 on the first day of the Cal Invitational swim meet Saturday at UC Berkeley. The UCSB women were led by Sophie Kamoun's second-place finish in the 200 freestyle final in 1:54.0.

TO THE BEAT:

Woof-woofing to be New Thing

Picture this:
You're sitting in the "Thunderdome" (official tag of the Campus Events Center) minutes before tip-off of the Gauchos' PCAA home opener. It's Thursday night and you see the Spartans from San Jose State warming up at the south goal.
You've done your time in the line outside and are partying on a seat right next to the home hardwood. You haven't seen the guys in blue and gold for at least five games and you're ready to woof it up with the 11-1 Gauchos.

Scott Lawrence

This is how it works:
Eric McArthur gets a rebound off a missed three-point attempt by the Spartans' Ricky Berry. He outlets to Carrick DeHart, who takes it past the 10-second line on a three-on-one fast break.

DeHart cross-courts to Brian Shaw, who head-fakes toward the baseline but cuts in the lane and dishes it off to the trailer McArthur, who McSlams it home reverse style.

The crowd goes batty. And then it starts.
The standing-room-only crowd of 6,000-plus gets on its feet and begins to execute the new and soon-to-be famous sign of appreciation: "Aro-o-o-o-ff! Aro-o-o-o-o-ff!!"

It's called woofing.
The outdated mode of screams and yells is about to be replaced by a more animal-like, almost beastly way of cheering on the home squad.

When you see a big play by the Gauchos, or a turnover or foul by the other guys, don't be shy. Just woof-woof — and keep on woofing (arooofing) to the Gaucho Beat.

Other schools have their claims to fame. Duke has its painted faces. North Carolina has its Tarheel tattoos. There's even some small school in the East where fans inundate the court with toilet paper after their team's first bucket.

UCSB fans don't really have anything to propel them among the ranks of the elite in terms of college faithful.

"Gaucho Joe" is great, but wouldn't it be nice if the crowd would get something going themselves at key moments during the game? "Joe" can't always be there when something big goes down, so take it upon yourselves and "woof" when the time is right.

It's the start of something great.
We've got a winning program, a nickname for our house and now, a stylin' new cheer. The win over UNLV and votes for the top 20 mean people are starting to take notice of us. We've got to give 'em something to remember us by.

People from all over will say, "Yeah, in Las Vegas they shoot fireworks out of the 45-second clocks, but in Santa Barbara they 'woof.'" Aro-o-o-o-ff!

HOOP-LA

struck.
"Business was pretty dead until after the game and then we had a big rush, mostly people who wanted more beer," added Sydes. "People were having a good time."

At Pizza Bob's, a steady throng was kept at peak level as they awaited score updates via ESPN, the Total Sports Network, on the pizza establishment's wide-screen television.

"People were flowing in during the game and right after," said Sean O'Riordan, an employee of Pizza Bob's. "It was quite packed, mostly rowdy drunks looking to raise some hell and root for the Gauchos."

Other liquor establishments reported increased sales volume as well, although that did not cause problems for the Isla Vista Foot Patrol.

"There's nothing in the log that said anything strange happened Thursday," said a Foot Patrol officer. "I assume people didn't get too out of hand, or I'm sure we would have been notified."

Some victims of the epidemic were not driven from their homes, however.

"We started screaming, then we sat for a minute in disbelief. Then I called my dad and told him, and he was pretty excited," said Dari Shuquem, who listened to the broadcast with his four roommates.

"People everywhere where going crazy," Shuquem added. "We opened the door and kept up our screaming, and then a friend called and he was so excited he could hardly talk. The guys upstairs were going pretty hog-wild too."

There was an estimated group of about 500 victims of the epidemic who flocked to Las Vegas for the UCSB basketball game and followed the team to Fullerton for Saturday night's game at Titan Gym.

"It was definitely a big Gaucho weekend," said "Gaucho Fever" casualty Jason Meyer. "We stayed at the Aladdin and Dunes (in Las Vegas) with the team on Wednesday night, partied and went crazy at the game, and then flew into L.A. where we heard about the Fullerton game. We decided we had to see both games to make it a complete weekend."

"It was like a dream come true," Meyer added. "I've still got my ticket stub from the Vegas game; there's no way I'm letting go of it. It's going to go on my wall in a frame."

The epidemic is expected to remain on hold at least until Thursday when the basketball team entertains the San Jose Spartans at the Campus Events Center (or "Thunderdome") at 7:30 p.m.

LOSS

 a game-high 14 rebounds.
 "Fullerton just shot the ball exceedingly well from really long range," said UCSB Head Coach Mark French, noting Hunt's long distance success. The Gauchos did not attempt a three-point try during the game.

 UCSB connected on 48 percent of its shots in the contest, compared to Fullerton's 45, and out-rebounded the Titans 33-30. But the thorn in the side of the Lady Gauchos continued to be turnovers, as UCSB gave away the ball eight more times than Fullerton, 23 to 15.

 Said French of his team's high rate of turnovers: "A lot of our players are just not in the good habit of taking good care of the basketball. (But) looking at turnovers now as compared to our preseason, the stats are about the same, which means we have improved, since we have been playing against better athletes. However, we still haven't got it down to a level where we're gonna be able to win and be competitive in the PCAA."

The Gauchos were 7-1 before beginning conference play a week ago Saturday against UNLV, and suffered large losses to Long Beach State and San Diego State before Fullerton. These teams are quite a bit better than UCSB's preseason foes, which included such heavyweights as Cal State Dominguez Hills and Sacramento State.

"Obviously, whatever I've been trying to tell the team hasn't been tremendously effective in terms of eliciting a change yet," French said. "But I think the last four games — once we got into league play — we've faced teams with elevated athletic ability from what we're used to and we really haven't adjusted to it very well."

The Lady Gauchos will return to action Saturday Jan. 16 at the Events Center against the University of the Pacific at 4 p.m.

THANKS TED. I JUST WANNA SAY THAT I HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH THOSE UNGRATEFUL RIOTERS. THEY JUST DO WHAT THEY PLEASE NOWADAYS.

...AND I'D JUST LIKE TO EXPRESS MY SORROW ON THE PART OF THOSE WHO HAVE DIED THUS FAR.

THEY USED TO RESPECT ME YOU KNOW, AND NOW THEY SAY I'M OUT OF TOUCH, AN IRRESPONSIBLE LEADER AND A TERRIBLE DRESSER.

I DON'T ENJOY THIS JOB AT ALL. IT'S REALLY BAD PUBLIC RELATIONS FOR US TO BE SHOOTING UNARMED, 17-YEAR OLD REFUGEES.

MIND IF I SHOOT A COUPLE OF THEM FOR YOU?
