Law Professor Anita Hill, who came to national attention through Clarence Thomas' Supreme Court justice confirmation hearings, spoke Tuesday evening on oppression and subordination in the 1990s, receiving a standing ovation.

Anita Hill Shares Views on Race, Gender

By Colleen Valles
Staff Writer

Addressing a sold-out crowd in Campbell Hall Tuesday, Anita Hill incited the younger generation to take an active role in working against harassment and oppression.

The lecture, entitled "Race and Gender Issues in the '90s," focused on these topics as a part of Sexual Violence Awareness Week, put on by the Rape Prevention Education Program.

Hill, a law professor at the University of Oklahoma, was the subject of a controversial sexual harassment case in 1991 surrounding the appointment hearings of Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas.

She noted both racial and sexual harassment have decreased very little since the days of Jim Crow, when signs prohibited women and people of color from entering certain facilities. "Harassment, in essence, takes the place of a sign, but the message is still the same," she said.

The professor believes a lack of concern for certain human rights worldwide has perpetuated sexual harassment and violence. Hill used Thailand's sex slave trade to illustrate her

Two Contending for Statewide Affairs Seat

By M. Jolie Lash

Two candidates are vying for the position of Associated Students external vice president for statewide affairs in the spring elections, campaigning on platforms to improve student representation across the University of California system.

Kris Kohler, current external vice president for statewide affairs, is running against A.S. Attorney General Brian Lawrence.

The individual to hold the position will work with the UC

Student Association to coordinate student interests within the University system, according to Election Committee member and Internal Vice President Cheryl Contreras.

"The executive vice president is the chief representative of all UCSB students to the University of California Student Association," she said. "A major component of the office's responsibilities is to represent the concerns and issues pertinent to students on a systemwide level, which could deal with University fees, recruitment and retention of students of color, and the quality of education in the UC system."

Kohler, a senior Black studies and political science major, is running for re-election to preserve a continuity of ideas within the UCSA board of directors, he said.

"I'm running again because I feel that there is a lot of institutional memory that's lost when an entire board of directors leaves and another board comes in. ... I think it's crucial that the external vice president for statewide affairs is someone who has experience dealing with this transition," Kohler said.

Affirmative Action Panel Planned

A panel discussion focusing on the controversial policy of Affirmative Action invites members of the campus community to Buchanan Hall for today's afternoon debate.

Organized by the campus chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the panel will consist of professors and students sharing their views on the issue.

"We decided to have it because of the legislation that's going through," said Telae Ellis, a senior law and society major and NAACP member. "We felt it was an important time to have it."

The panel will focus on topics surrounding the policy. "I want to address the issue, period, as a

Ellwood Development Plan Directed to CCC

Commission Will Consider 38-Acre Proposal

By Suzanne Garner

Santa Barbara County forwarded its conceptual approval of a 38-acre plan for Ellwood Beach development Tuesday, shifting responsibility for the approval process to the California Coastal Commission.

Although the board of supervisors changed the Ellwood housing proposal in January to allow for seven more acres of development of the 135-acre parcel, the appropriate mechanism for forwarding the new project to the CCC has been a point of contention among rival interests ever since.

Under urgings from developer Southwest Diversified and Coscan Partners, the board voted unanimously in favor of the 38-acre plan without specifying whether it will be considered a new proposal, a resubmittal or an adoption of conditions outlined in a previous CCC ap-

Plans to Open Costco/Price Club Near UCSB Under Way

By Nick Robertson

Plans to grace the picturesque skyline of Goleta with a new, student-accessible shopping center within two years are currently being developed by an enterprising university alumnus.

The center, to be located in the vacant lot on Storke Road and Hollister Avenue, is scheduled to include a Costco/Price Club outlet, a number of smaller shops and an additional anchor store. The project, developed by Wynmark Company, which acquired the land in November, is currently in the design stages, according to president and UCSB graduate Mark Linehan.

"We're still early in the planning process," he said. "We'll

Arafat Continues to Disarm Opponents

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Yielding to U.S. and Israeli pressure, Yasser Arafat gave the go-ahead Tuesday for disarming his Muslim militant opponents despite fears it might unleash a civil war.

Arafat's security forces rounded up dozens more suspected militants, for a two-day total of 150 detentions. A new military tribunal sentenced Omar Salah, a leader of the Islamic Jihad group, to life in prison for "inciting civil strife."

"I think we are entering a critical stage," Palestinian Justice Minister Freih Abu Medein said of the escalating confrontation between Arafat's government and the opposition.

The crackdown prompted cries of revenge from Hamas and Islamic Jihad, the two groups Arafat targeted after they carried out suicide bombings Sunday that killed seven Israelis and an American near authority."

Fatima Salah, mother of the Islamic Jihad leader sentenced Tuesday, reacted angrily. "After what Arafat did to my son, I am ready to kill tinian institutions in Gaza and Jericho have to have a commitment to the rule of law," said State Dept. spokesman Nicholas Burns.

Burns also said Arafat would be held responsible for making every effort to solve the two suicide bus bombings Sunday.

For his part, Arafat accused Israel of provoking Palestinian civil war by permitting weapons to be smuggled to Muslim militants in the Gaza Strip and West Bank.

"Occupation has opened a market for the sale of arms in the West Bank and Gaza Strip," Arafat said. "Israel's aim from this is to light the fuse to a Palestinian civil war."

"The Palestinian authority is crossing the red line," warned Ibrahim Nasman, a Hamas official and administrator at Gaza City's Islamic University. "There will be a spontaneous uprising against the Palestinian

The Clinton administration responded positively to Arafat's crackdown.

"He understands that if the peace process is to go forward successfully, those who control Pales-

Group Claims Border Patrol Abuses Those Entering U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Border Patrol agents routinely abuse people seeking to enter the United States from Mexico — legally and illegally — and they enjoy virtual impunity under a system that provides little oversight, a human rights group charges.

Human Rights Watch-Americas, in a report to be issued today, cites beatings, shootings, rapes and deaths alleged to have been incurred at the hands of Border Patrol agents. It also contends that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, a Justice Dept. agency, is doing little to remedy its "abysmal human rights record."

INS officials didn't return phone calls seeking comment Tuesday. But the agency has dismissed earlier reports by the group as a string of unfounded allegations.

The study is the third in a series of highly critical reports of U.S. immigration agents issued by the group. The study, entitled "Crossing the Line," was based on a fact-finding mission along the southwestern border last July.

"The Clinton administration has abdicated its responsibility to correct the ongoing abuse problem by failing to follow through with its pledges of reform and by refusing to consider alternatives, such as an independent review of Border Patrol agents," alleged Allyson Collins, a principal author of the study.

Report Takes a New Look at California Building Codes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Billions of dollars in earthquake damage could be averted if buildings were constructed to new guidelines that take into account specific risks and building contents, according to an engineering report released Tuesday.

The report, "Vision 2000, Performance-Based Seismic Engineering of Buildings," was written by the Structural Engineers Association of California. It was commissioned by the state Office of Emergency Services after the devastating economic results of the Loma Prieta and Northridge earthquakes raised questions about the adequacy of current building codes.

While the codes appeared adequate to help prevent loss of life and collapse of buildings, hundreds of structures were left unusable because their contents were destroyed. Plumbing, lighting, heating and cooling systems failed, ceilings collapsed and furniture toppled, while the buildings' infrastructures remained intact — small comfort to businesses knocked out of commission for months.

"Mechanical and electrical engineers aren't required to consider earthquake impacts," said Allen Paul Goldstein, executive director of the association. The report suggests that all aspects of building construction be part of its seismic safety review.

Ruling Allows Suit Against Gun Manufacturers in Killing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Superior Court judge dealt a blow to gun manufacturers Monday, ruling that the maker of guns used in the 101 California Street high-rise massacre can be sued for the deaths their products caused.

But whether the manufacturers of the magazines and ammunition contained in those weapons can be included in the suits will not be decided until this summer.

San Francisco Superior Court Judge James Warren refused to dismiss a series of lawsuits against the makers of the guns and ammunition Gian Luigi Ferri used when he burst into the Pettit & Martin law firm on July 1, 1993, and sprayed its offices with bullets.

Using three guns, including two semi-automatic weapons and hundreds of rounds of ammunition, the 55-year-old

Ferri killed eight people and wounded six others before turning a gun on himself.

Warren ruled that gun manufacturer Navegar, Inc. may be liable under legal theories of strict liability and negligence. Strict liability allows damages to be awarded for any harm caused by a dangerous product.

Navegar attorney Ernest Getto disputed that, saying the semi-automatic guns Ferri used were made legally in Florida and sold to Ferri in Nevada — both states without bans on assault weapons at the time.

Pilots With HIV Sue United Airlines After Their Dismissal

WEST HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two pilots announced Tuesday that they have sued United Airlines, alleging the airline fired them in violation of federal law after it learned they were HIV carriers.

R. Christopher Prilliman, 38, and Paul Rafalowski, 33, were fired last year after nine-year careers with United. Prilliman was fired in October and Rafalowski in June.

"United forced two airline pilots into medical retirement based on unfounded fears and stereotypes," attorney Peter F. Laura, who represents Prilliman in the case, said during a news conference.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court here on Friday, seeks unspecified monetary damages under the Americans with Disabilities Act. It named United and a Federal Aviation Administration physician identified as Daner Reider as defendants.

Laura said the lawsuit was aimed at forcing reforms of United and FAA policies.

"They're behind the times," Prilliman said.

"They're not up to date with this disease."

Dr. Gary Kohn, medical director at United's Chicago headquarters, said the FAA informed the airline that the pilots had several health conditions that mandated their dismissal under agency regulations.

Weather

Even though the number of candidates for this year's Associated Students elections has dropped lately, there are still a whole slew of contenders ready to have you pay their fees (OK, that's just the executives). This can be rather daunting for the prospective voter sleeping within you (or with you).

To mitigate this confusion, I propose two simple solutions. The first, and easiest, is this: Vote for me! That's right, I'm using today's column much as Pete Wilson used the governorship — as a springboard to higher office. Consequently, I'm declaring my candidacy for A.S. president, as well as declaring my intention to seek the Republican nomination for U.S. president (readers of yesterday's Weather will know who my running mate will be).

My second proposal is that we follow the primary system, which as Paul Tsongas can tell you is without flaw. I say that we have the A.S. candidates campaign in some out-of-it sector of the campus community and have them control the fate of the nation. Say, the third floor of San Nicolas (my old haunt), which is kinda like New Hampshire. Let them whittle down the list and then we can vote unencumbered by a wide range of choices. Yeah!

Expect continued sunny skies, with highs in the low 70s. I'm going to the beach.

I.V. Park Board Welcomes New Asst. Managers

By Mary-Allegra McKinnell Reporter

After accumulating years of experience under his green thumb, a local resident was promoted in February to assistant general manager of the Isla Vista Recreation and Park District.

A six-year IVRPD worker, Derek Johnson progressed his way through the ranks to his current administrative post. Formerly a work-study employee while attending UCSB as an environmental studies and biology major, he was promoted to groundskeeper II, a position in which he managed other maintenance workers.

"Slowly, over time, I was familiarized with all the projects and procedures," Johnson said. "It's a huge learning process."

Johnson is the most capable person for the task, according to General Manager Roger Lagerquist.

"I hired him and I feel he has sound judgment," Lagerquist said. "He has the qualifications for the job."

Although Johnson has experience in the field, the former ultimate frisbee athlete has yet to master the more technical aspects of the job, he said.

"We have two functions — run the office and the grounds. I know everything about the parks, the maintenance part. Now I'm trying to adjust to the administrative part," Johnson said.

"Hopefully, I can be a mediator between the two political spectrums. I serve the board and carry out the instructions of the general manager. I really have no allegiances to anyone."

As assistant general manager, Johnson is required to maintain impartiality at all times.

"The biggest challenge

is to remain neutral and remember I'm here to serve the board and the public and to try not to let my personal opinions get in the way of getting the job done," he said.

Johnson's main goal is to maintain and beautify the parks. "The most enjoyable part is providing beautiful parks for the students and residents of Isla Vista," he said.

The assistant general manager has been a dedicated worker for the IVRPD and will carry this ethic into his new position, according to board Chair Pegeen Soutar.

"It's been wonderful working with him," she said. "He's been really good to work with. He's worked his way up from the bottom."

The first true test of Johnson's capacity began Tuesday, when Lagerquist embarked upon a vacation to Germany.

"His job is to learn to do everything I do," Lagerquist said. "I have no qualms about going on a two-week vacation. This is Derek's chance to do everything."

Johnson hopes he can use his new authority to keep the recreation areas well maintained for Isla Vistans.

"Hopefully, I can be a constructive force in the park district," he said. "We'll be busy. Since we're a small staff, there's always something to do. ... I'm stoked."

"The slave trade is financed mostly by European and Asian businessmen," she said. "What we do when we wink and nod or we ignore it is, we take part in it as well."

Hill also addressed the issue of Affirmative Action, calling for re-examination of the policy.

"Before we engage in any retroaction regarding Affirmative Action, we need to take a long, hard look at our past," she said.

The topic of domestic violence, which Hill exhorted the audience to work against, figured largely in the lecture. "If you want to promote family values, let's put an end to domestic violence," she said.

The professor ended the lecture with a plea to the young people in the audience, whom she termed "Generation X."

"You will be defined by what you leave, not by what we project on you," she said. "I ask only that you keep in mind that the choices you make not only affect you, but impact your society."

Chancellor Henry T. Yang, present for the lecture, expressed satisfaction with the presentation.

"I think she has given a very inspiring and impressive talk," he said. "Her talk has given in-depth perspectives to both men and women and all generations and racial backgrounds."

Marisela Marquez, a political science graduate student, noted the importance of Hill's lecture.

"She serves as a mentor," Marquez said. "It's important — women of color speaking their minds and becoming faculty members and role models as well."

The lecture was sponsored by various campus groups, including Arts & Lectures, according to Danielle Arcidiacono, a Rape Prevention Education Program member.

Organizations Fighting to Keep Avocado Boycott

By Giovanni Andolina
Reporter

A recent proposal to lift a quarantine on Mexican avocados has California farmers concerned over the prospect of contaminated fruit infiltrating the market.

Mexican farmers, backed by their government, have been working rigorously on a compromise with the United States Dept. of Agriculture to remove the 80-year-old quarantine, which prevents the large-seeded fruits from entering American markets.

Although Mexico usually produces a high annual avocado yield, the produce has been boycotted from trading across the border because the government lacks stringent inspection standards, according to Larry Parks, owner of local farm Parks, Land, and Cattle Co. Santa Barbara.

"Mexican farmers do not spray their fruit or vegetables. In fact, they literally don't have any rules when it comes to quality," he said.

Parks is a fourth-generation avocado farmer, concerned over the proposed plan. "If Mexican avocados were to enter the California market, we would be exposing our healthy crops to some major risks," he said.

Risks include the seed weevil, a bug that bores a hole into the avocado, exposing the fruit to bacteria and disease, and the Oriental fruit fly, which virtually eats the crops alive in swarms, according to Parks.

"Both insects are not native to California and the price of spraying would be devastating to my farm," he said.

However, economics should not be a deciding factor when debating a quarantine lift, according to Bill Gillette, Santa Barbara County assistant agricultural commissioner.

"A quarantine is always established as a precautionary measure against possible biological damage that may occur from import of out-of-state fruit or vegetables," he said. "It must be recognized that it is against the law to lift a quarantine for any other reason than the biological aspect."

For the ban to be lifted, Mexico is required to devise a safe and efficient way to export avocados to the U.S. without exposing California crops to insect infestation, according to terms laid out by the Dept. of Agriculture. However, this may be easier said than done, according to Gillette.

"There is no safe way to import Mexican avocados," he said. "Once they cross the border, there is

A.S. to Talk About Ballot Initiative Statements

By Tim Molloy
Staff Writer

Associated Students Legislative Council will assemble tonight to address statements for spring election ballot initiatives as well as a bill on recycling.

Pro and con statements will be addressed regarding the election initiatives that will be included in this year's ballot, according to Internal Vice President Cheryl Contreras.

"We will have a discussion on the pros and cons of the amendments' reaffirmation and plebister that will be on the ballot," she said.

As always, the meeting is open to the public. University-owned Housing Rep Jennifer Brown encourages students interested in the content of the pro and con statements to attend the meeting and provide input.

"Legislative Council will be discussing with any students present at the meeting about writing pro/con statements for the ballot initiatives," she said. "If anyone is interested in writing or having input on pro/con statements, they should attend the meeting."

The recycling bill, the only new business on the meeting's agenda, endorses increasing Leg Council's use of consumer-recycled paper, according to Off-Campus Rep Cami Cooper. "As of now, there's a gross waste of paper going on," she said.

The bill advocates copying on both sides of paper for all documents, according to Off-Campus Rep Marianna Pisano.

"What we wanted to do was make it so Associated Students would have to double-side everything," she said. "Not only A.S., but all A.S. groups, like Environmental Affairs Board, would have to do this too. It would affect all student groups who get money from A.S." The bill's goal is not merely to effect change in A.S. policies on the purchase of recycled materials, but to establish a precedent for other campus groups, according to Cooper.

"We're hoping that not only will it change things in Associated Students, but it will be sort of a guide for departments and the administration to use more recycled paper and to be more conscious of recycling," she said.

Leg Council will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the State Street room of the UCen.

probably spend a couple of months having community meetings to get their input."

The land parcel was originally protected from construction under the Goleta Community Plan, which places a limit on the amount of annual building in the unincorporated area. However, the plot was declared exempt from the ordinance in spring 1993, according to Mark Chaconas, aide to 3rd District Supervisor Bill Wallace.

"The Community Plan set a cap on the amount of development that could occur every year so that we wouldn't go through the boom and bust periods," he said. "Since this location has always been eyeballed as a regional shopping center, the [Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors], under Willy Chamberlin, exempted the area by Storke and Hollister."

If Wynmark Company succeeds in erecting a Costco/Price Club outlet, it will be the only bulk-product store in the county and all sales taxes will therefore remain in the area, according to Linehan.

Sophomores Jack Reese and Thad Nicholson are envisioning the future shopping center that may spring up near campus that is expected to house a Costco/Price Club outlet as well as other merchants.

"As a general rule, Costco/Price Club says that they bring in a million dollars a year from one store in sales taxes," he said. "It's certainly not sensible to earn your money in Santa Barbara and spend it in Ventura to help their fire department and police department."

Although the new complex will be located across from the Kmart shopping center, Linehan believes the incoming merchants will actually increase revenue for everyone in the area.

"Most businesses are in some degree enhanced by having a regional shopping center, according to regional surveys," he said.

Because of the site's proximity to Isla Vista and UCSB, the new center could become invaluable to local residents. An electric shuttle system could be set up for commuters, according to Wallace.

"I always hoped that it could be a kind of Paseo Nuevo West, where people could bike up to it and sit in the sun," he said. "We want to see that the property is essentially pedestrian-friendly, not just another sea of parking lots."

A planning committee is currently deciding which stores will inhabit the center, and will release its findings in approximately three weeks, Linehan said.

no way of tracking the avocados."
Mexico's proposed plan is to ship the fruits to Ventura and then send them in gas-sealed boxes to 13 northeastern states. Because these states do not grow avocados, Mexican botanists believe the pests will not pose a problem.
However, the risk to California fruit still remains because of smuggling, according to Bob Gloeckler, field representative for the Santa Paula division of California Avocado Growers Association (CALAVO).
"To think cheap avocados will stay on the East Coast is completely ridiculous," he said. "When the avocado leaves Mexico, it is worth 18 cents. When it reaches the East Coast, the avocados are worth 60 cents, and if they make it back to California, they can be sold for up to 80 cents ... an incentive to smuggle, I think so."

Organizations such as CALAVO are working in conjunction with local and state farmers to fight the quarantine's lifting, according to Parks.
"We sell to Israel, South Africa and a bit to Australia," he said. "If any of these buyers found out they were getting unsprayed fruit, they would look at California as an unsafe market and most likely take their business elsewhere."
If Mexico provides a powerful argument against the pest risk, California may see Mexican avocados on the market in less than a year, according to Gloeckler.
Parks reiterated the severity such political action could have on state farms.
"If this thing passes, California farmers are screwed and tattooed."

Lawrence, a junior political science and sociology major, is running to protect secondary education, he said.

"I am running because I believe that the future of higher education is in grave danger, and I want to do something about it," Lawrence said.

If elected, both intend to devote more attention to student groups and interests.

Lawrence will aim for greater outreach to student organizations through publicizing his potential office hours and posting messages to students through e-mail.

"I want to help educate students on the decisions that affect their education and solicit their ideas on the problems we face," he said.

Kohler also hopes to increase involvement throughout the student community. "I want to make A.S. more inclusive of student groups and the general campus population, and that will enable students in general to have more power at the student level as well as at the local level," he said.

Lawrence believes his current A.S. position and his job as Residential Halls Association president last year provide him with experience for future action.

Kohler also listed experience he believes will benefit him in the position—a two-year membership in the Student Committee on Racial Equality, service as former chair of A.S. Student Lobby and Legislative Council rep-at-large, and current executive positions as vice president for statewide affairs and a UCSA executive council member.

He believes Lawrence lacks the necessary background to serve successfully. "I do not understand why someone who has never been to any UCSA meeting, conference, caucus, summit or press conference and has never been to any UC Regent meeting would feel qualified to represent 18,000 students on a statewide level," he said.

However, Lawrence believes Kohler is too great an extremist to represent student interests. "I think the incumbent has good intentions, but I wouldn't be running if I didn't think I could do a better job," Lawrence said. "The incumbent's radical attitudes are out of step with the vast majority of UCSB students."

whole and with the university as far as hiring and enrollment," said Tiffany Tate, campus NAACP chapter president. "They will discuss how Affirmative Action has benefited, where it has failed and what improvements can be made."

Panelists include Affirmative Action Office Coordinator Raymond Huerta, 1995-96 Student Regent Edward Gomez, NAACP adviser Janelle Williams and mechanical and environmental engineering Professors Walter Yuen and Amer Rahn. Affirmative Action opposing panelists include mathematics Professor Charles Akemann and College Republicans adviser Garrett Hardin, a biological sciences professor.

"It's a nice chance to have both sides. I want to hear both sides and get a broader and deeper insight. The whole campus can benefit," Tate said. "It's good to hear other people's opinions. Education is not just in the classroom."

The panel discussion will be held in Buchanan 1930 from 4 to 6 p.m.

Nick Robertson

Now, I may be overreacting here, because what I'm writing about today is based on a rumor, and nothing else. However, I firmly believe that rumors have to start somewhere, so I want to address this as soon as possible, which is also why my column is running today rather than its usual Friday slot.

What I heard, and keep in mind I only heard this, was that somebody's going to put a McDonald's where Time Out used to be. If this rumor turns out to be true: NOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO!!!!

Christ, first Burger King, and now McDonald's?!? WHAT THE HELL IS THIS TOWN COMING TO?

Let me digress a little bit. You see, when I was choosing which college I wanted to attend way back in spring of '93, one important aspect I was looking at was where I would be living. When I first saw Isla Vista, I was pleasantly overwhelmed by the small yet complete village adjacent to campus where thousands of students resided, free of outside commercial influences and presences.

It was obvious within my first walk down Pardall that this was a community based on people. Each store was novel and different, catering to student business. Each restaurant had its own personality and style. It wasn't like the area around San Diego State, laden with fast-food chains and gas stations and shopping centers. Isla Vista reminded me of an Old West town that boomed but maintained its own flavor. Basically, it was completely unique.

And so I decided to come here, and have enjoyed the choice I made wholeheartedly. When I first learned that Burger King was coming here, I thought, no problem, the students here are liberal enough that they can see what evil multibillion-dollar corporations inherently possess, and they will boycott the smelly, orangeish building as I will. Soon they will realize the mistake they made when their doors grow cobwebs and the deep-fat fryers remain cold.

But lol! Every time I pass that heinous place, I see lines going back to the door! What the hell is wrong with you people? Don't you realize that you can get a great burger at no fewer than two other places in I.V. where the re-restaurants actually have a soul? Don't you realize that if Burger King remains successful, other fast-food chains will see this success and do whatever they can to score a location here?

The thing is, freshmen this year likely have never seen Isla Vista the way it once was, when the restaurants were the product of a proprietor cruising through the college town and thinking, "Say, this place could really use a burrito joint," and then going to the bank to float a loan to get a building, and taking their chances with capitalism.

Now, we have little weasels coming out here from Conglomerate Headquarters and doing studies on where they can make the most money by doing whatever gullible people want them to do. Quality is sacrificed for efficiency. Individuality is sacrificed for a fast buck. City aesthetics are sacrificed for a corporate fatcat who only knows of Isla Vista as a place to increase his fortune.

If we allow this trend to continue, it won't be long before every open square inch of I.V. is besotted with commercialized chains, and the seaside village once known for its small-town atmosphere will become another King

City. Do we really want to live in a town reminiscent of Reseda, or do we want to continue to actually have the opportunity to know who's cooking our breakfasts?

Basically, it's up to you. Yes, Burger King is cheap. Yes, its burgers aren't bad. Yes, it's convenient to go there when you've got the drunken munchies at 2 a.m. and you're sick of burritos. But as long as one chain does well, like cockroaches or rats, others will follow, and once they get here, it's a helluva lot harder to get rid of them than it would've been to prevent their arrival in the first place.

At any rate, if you really don't care about Isla Vista and the people who live there who see the ugly fast-food buildings as the beginning of the end of a great town, continue to eat at Burger King, and, if the rumor I heard turns out to be true, eat at McDonald's, too. If you consider selling your soul for an order of mass-produced onion rings worthwhile, I pity you.

The Lord's Corner

God

Hello and welcome once again to The Lord's Corner. My Holy Ghostwriter reports that since I began dictating this column, a lot of people have been asking him what it's like to do business with a deity. He replies with the honest, straightforward answer that I am a great and merciful God to work with. But apparently, sometimes these people remain unconvinced that I actually communicate with a mere mortal. Many of them, it seems, are under the false impression that he is writing the column instead of Me.

Such a notion is insulting, to say the least. I put a lot of thought into each one of these columns. Let's face it: I'm a pretty busy God. I don't have to be spending My precious time doing this. I could be off spreading famine or creating world peace or something. But instead, I choose to grace these pages with My presence and this is the kind of thanks I get! Believe Me, we'll meet one day, and we'll see who'll be laughing then. (All you have to do to see that I have a wacky sense of humor is to look in the mirror. Ha! I crack Me up!)

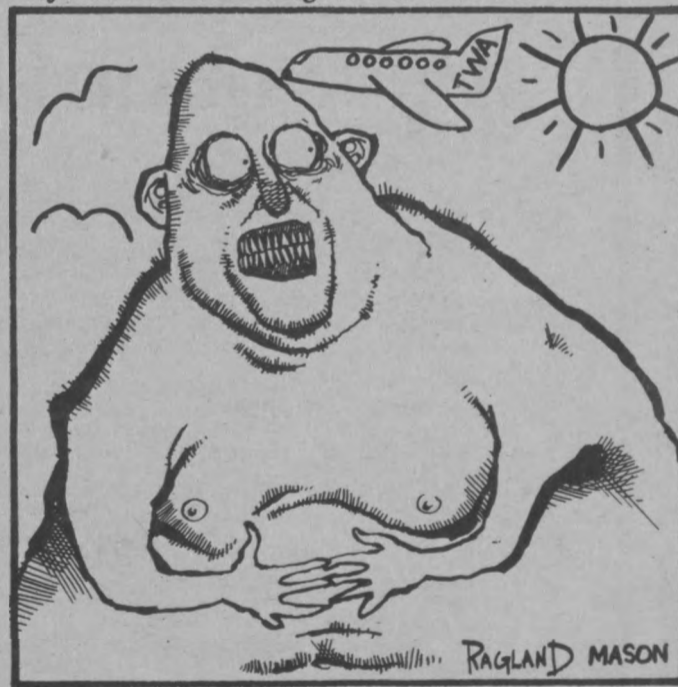

But seriously. For this week's column, I had planned to reveal My plans for the next thousand years, but instead I'm going to address a subject of more immediate concern to some of My readership. Many people have been asking Me lately why I always write in a male voice. If I am a supernatural being, not of either sex, why am I portrayed as male?

This is a very valid question. Let's face it: If you flip through any of My novels, you'll see that everything is "He smote so-and-so" and "He commanded such-and-such." This, of course, begat pictures of Me in churches and museums with My flowing robe and bushy beard, which begat the notion that My Son and I, J.C., always have pale skin, since all the artists who made these pictures did also, and they obviously liked to think that they were created in My image. You know how moody and egotistical artists can get.

Actually, the reason I always portrayed Myself as male is surprisingly straightforward. You see, even before I begat time and the universe, I always knew that I would want children. I also knew that it would be traumatic enough for My kids to grow up in a single-parent household. Despite having Me as their parent, the kids at school would tease them endlessly: "My dad's a den-tist, and your dad's a clou-oud. Naa, naa-naa, naa-naa."

No parent would ever wish this kind of torture on their own offspring, especially in My case, since I am great and merciful, after all. So when I begat J.C., I decided that He needed a father figure in His life, since He conveniently already had a mother. Thou shalt not forget that I am the Creator of "family values."

Anyway, looking back, I realize that I made the right decision. I'm sure that if I wasn't there for J.C. in His formative years, He'd be a constant pain in the neck. It's bad enough once a year when He strolls into My office and shoves His scarred arms on My desk and whines, "Dad, why did You forsake Me?" And as part of our annual ritual, I answer back, "Enough already with the crucifixion! It's been almost 2,000 years, for Chrissakes!" And He has the nerve to raise His voice at Me by yelling, "Don't You dare take My name in vain, Dad!" Then I always shout back, "Who begat whom, young man?! You're so spoiled! Do You think every kid has their own religion with billions of followers?"

MATT RAGLAND & SUE MASON/Daily Nexus

Then He just wanders back into His room, cursing at Me under His breath.

OK, so I'll admit it. I haven't been the perfect parent. But as My Holy Point for this week proves, I did one thing right by choosing to be a Father to J.C. If I begat Him today, I'm sure that He would've ended up on Ricki Lake's show talking about guys who have long-distance relationships with their fathers. Knowing J.C., He'd be resentful and angry despite the fact that I am great and merciful. That kid'll do anything for attention!

On that note, J.C. is nagging Me right now to remind all of His followers and His former friends to enjoy their respective holidays this weekend. What a considerate boy I blessed Myself with! It's impossible to stay mad at Him.

God is a Nexus columnist. His Holy Ghostwriter, William Yelles, was begat by his parents, Marvin and Joan.

... and the Mirror

by Olaina Gupta

Olaina Gupta

It took us an hour and a half to trudge up the mountain, and 30 minutes to return, but I still think it's easier to go up than down. Mostly because no one fell while going up, but going down is another story entirely — kind of like life.

It's easy to climb. The farther you get, the more people praise and encourage you, and the more confidence you gain. But it's harder to go down. People rarely say, "Good job, I'm glad to see you're doing less." But while you're climbing, it's "Wow, I can't believe it! Congratulations! That's amazing! You can do it!"

I remember in third grade I wasn't the best at memorizing my multiplication tables; in fact, I was really bad at it. I just don't have the mentality for memorization, which unfortunately is a key to elementary and secondary education — math theorems, maps, historical figures and dates, biological anatomies of plants and animals, the periodic table. ... But in third grade, I tried to justify my mediocrity by pointing out that even though I wasn't doing well, I was still getting better grades than one of the other girls in class. I found that consoling, until I was told that wasn't good enough, that I was comparing myself to the worst student in class and that I shouldn't do that because I didn't want to be just not-the-worst, I wanted to be the best. So I started climbing along, and when I did well I was praised, and when I didn't, I had to work harder until I did well again.

But back to the mountain. We were climbing up a fairly steep incline, and along the way we were getting all sorts of rewards. First we found a stream, and then we discovered some little blue flowers and I learned why bluegrass is called bluegrass. (It looks like grass, until the very top, where a little blue flower grows.) And I learned the name of those yellow flowers that grow everywhere, including my back yard. (Parents call them weeds and pull them out, but I say they're pretty and avoid that chore by refusing to weed up flowers. By the way, they're called oxalis.) Every few hundred feet, the view of the ocean grew more expansive and stunning. A little blue baby's blanket became a sheet, became a California king-size waterbed. And we were walking up the mountain and telling stories and getting tanned and pleasantly exerting our muscles — it was great and fun and easy.

And then we had to start back down. Everyone has their own theory about how to walk down a gravel-covered path without falling. My friend was zigzagging back and forth, but still going rather quickly, like a snake. She said her boyfriend thinks she's wasting energy by going back and forth so much, and he does a side step, crossing one leg over the other all the way down. I was taking careful steps, leaning back, maybe something like a horse would do. So she and I were walking down our own deliberate ways, yet both of us kept slipping.

The ocean view shrank, we saw all the same things we had been thrilled with before, only this time it wasn't a new adventure or a beautiful surprise, but more of a comforting sign that we weren't lost.

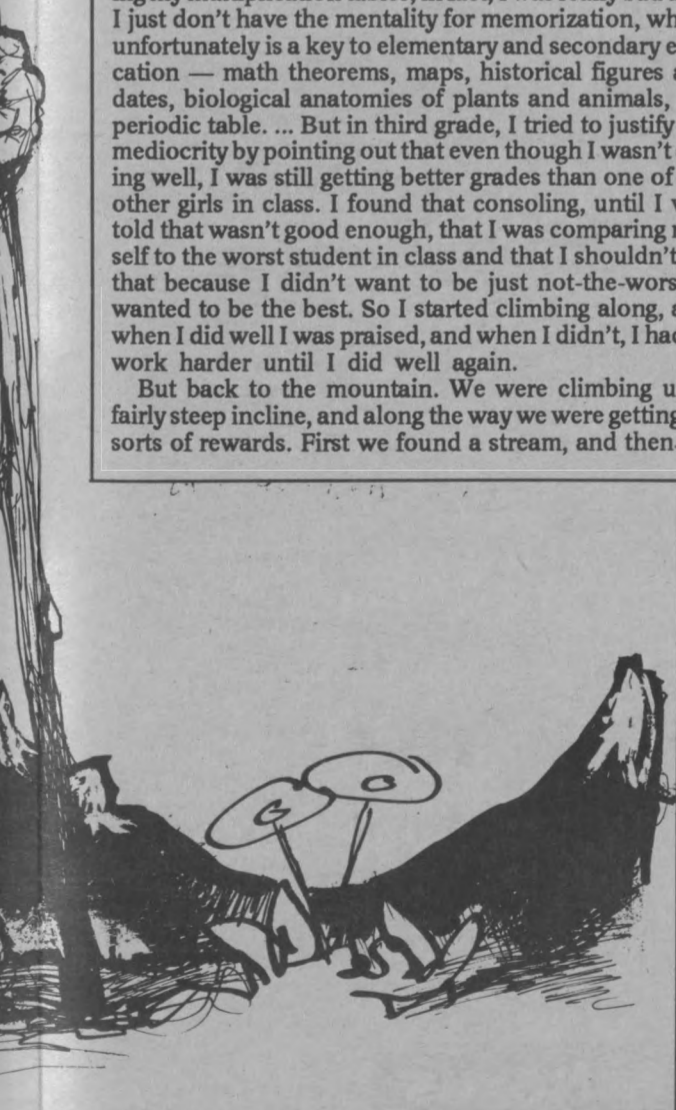

The funniest part of the hike happened while we were sidestepping and winding our way down. One of the hikers was expounding on the idea that it really is easier to go up.

"Just like in real life. You start climbing up and no one ever says it's a bad thing, if you're doing it well. But going down is so hard. It's hard on your ego to give things up or admit you can't do something. And no one ever notices you when you start quitting things. Like I want to be perfect. ..." And she fell. Right in the middle of the word. Like a sign or a warning or a deity laughing at her.

I don't like to give things up. I don't like to quit. And I don't like to fail. I think people might actually have to learn how to do that. Lessons are given all the time in how to be a better business person or a better student or how to accomplish all your goals. But I don't think it would be such a bad idea to teach some of us how not to do well, how to make mistakes and not think the world is going to start revolving backward because of it.

Because sometimes, even when you're giving things up for good reasons, like ballet because of health or an extra job because the days really are only 24 hours long, and people say things like, "That's OK," and you know it's for the best, there's still a part of you that feels it's really not as good or impressive as when you were climbing well.

Softball Hosts 20th-Ranked Cal Poly SLO Today

At the end of a 14-game homestand — played in a matter of 12 days — the UCSB softball squad looks to keep up its hitting streak to down a visiting Cal Poly San Luis Obispo team today at 1 p.m. at Campus Diamond.

The Gauchos were swept, 3-2, 8-2, in their double-header against the Mustangs back in February, and will be looking for a little payback.

"We're looking to win, we want some revenge," said freshman third baseman Tracy Nelson. "They're a rival and we want to win."

Santa Barbara has definitely improved since February, with the bats coming alive and the pitching settling down. However, SLO wasn't ranked in the nation's top 25 in the first meeting, but has since gone on to earn a spot at #20.

"The first time we played them, we should have beat them," said UCSB Head Coach Liz Kelly. "We're a better team now, but so are they. We just have to execute and keep on hitting."

The Mustangs boast two strong freshman pitchers who kept Santa Barbara off-balance enough in the first meeting. But since then, the Gaucho bats have come alive.

Senior second baseman A.J. Vitulli, junior right fielder Jennifer Merlo, Nelson and junior center fielder J.J. Cannon have all seen their batting averages rise.

"I'm more focused at what I'm doing, but everyone on the team is hitting well," Cannon said.

Combined with sophomore catchers Michelle Ray and Johnna Mike and junior pitcher Stacy Atwood — who jointly form the backbone of the UCSB offense — the Gauchos will definitely present problems for the Mustang pitching staff.

SB Rugby Finishes Regular Season With Perfect Record

Coming off a big tournament victory two weeks ago in the annual Santa Barbara International Rugby Tournament, the UCSB rugby team looked to end its regular season with a perfect mark as it traveled to Cal Poly San Luis Obispo last Saturday to take on the #2-ranked Mustangs.

With a great offense and a shaky defense, the Gauchos (16-0 overall, 8-0 in the Pacific Coast League) were able to end their regular season undefeated by destroying Cal Poly, 29-15.

"We are glad that we are the first team in UCSB history to finish the regular season undefeated and the first team in the league to do it in a decade," junior forward-captain Max Goldstein said.

UCSB set the tempo of the game when junior Marc Palazzo scored the contest's first try 15 minutes in, making the score 7-0. After a try by Goldstein, the Gaucho squad cruised into halftime with a 14-0 lead.

This successful first half could be attributed to the UCSB defense, which continued its streak of not giving up a try in the last four and a half games.

Despite an inconsistent defense in the opening minutes of the second half — which gave up two quick Mustang tries — Santa Barbara was able to regroup, as Goldstein put the contest out of reach with his second try of the game.

"Cal Poly wasn't going to make the playoffs so they didn't care and were trying to start fights with us the whole game," Goldstein commented. "The game wasn't as close as the scoreboard showed."

With the victory, the squad landed the top seed in the Southern California bracket of the Pacific Coast playoffs which will be held April 21-23 in San Diego.

Continued from p.16 lot of things well. Our relief did a good job, our young pitchers threw well."

In the top of the ninth with Santa Barbara nursing a one-run lead, sophomore reliever Clint Pearson worked himself into a jam by putting men on second and third via a walk and a double with only one out. However, Pearson was able to induce the next batter to ground out to third base, and then struck out catcher Steve Ashley, giving him his fourth save of the season.

"I got squeezed a couple of times by the home-plate umpire," Pearson said. "I just had to fight through it and get the next guy."

Another nerve-wracking moment for the Gauchos came in the eighth inning with one out and a Pepperdine runner on second base. A single into right field was picked up by UCSB junior right fielder Wynter Phoenix, who showed off his cannon with a perfect strike to catcher Dave Willis. The sophomore then executed a Mike Scioscia-like block of the plate to nail left fielder David Newhan for the out. Despite the out, Willis injured his knee on the play and had to leave the game. It is not known if he will be available for this weekend's series at the University of Nevada, Reno.

"It's no secret that it would be a major loss if he [Willis] is unable to play," Brontsema said. "It's no knock against the guys behind him, but he's a great leader and he's having a great year."

It looked as if UCSB was in for a long game when the Waves jumped out to a quick 4-0 lead off Gaucho sophomore starting pitcher Steve Cain. However, Santa Barbara roared back with two runs in the third, sixth and seventh innings, putting the team ahead for good.

Senior left-hander Ryan O'Coynne (1-0) picked up the win in relief, while Pepperdine reliever Tim Vasquez (1-2) took the loss. UCSB freshman right-hander Matt Klein pitched 2 2/3 innings of scoreless relief to keep the Gauchos in the game until they took the lead in the sixth.

Senior center fielder Doug Smaldino led the way at the plate with two doubles, two runs and two RBI.

ROMEO

Continued from p.16 cently put an advertisement for the position in the NCAA News Chronicle of Higher Education with a June 1 deadline for applications. While Romeo is not a member of the selection committee, he will offer any assistance that would be necessary.

"I'm happy to help in any way," he said. "The athletic department is very important to me and I only want to see it be successful, and if I can help make it successful, then I'm glad to do that."

Waves Come Crashing Down in SB Win

By Curtis Kaiser
Staff Writer

Doubling up on the Pepperdine Waves in more ways than one, the UCSB baseball team posted a narrow 6-5 victory over its rival in a home contest Tuesday afternoon.

Having defeated the Waves (22-14-1 overall, 12-2-1 in the West Coast Conference) earlier this season in a 10-inning thriller, the Gauchos (17-13, 4-5 in the Big West) relied on strong relief pitching and five doubles to hold off Pepperdine and earn a sweep of the season series.

"I thought it was a team win," said Head Coach Bob Brontsema. "We did a

One down, three to go. The UCSB women's tennis team defeated Fresno State by a score of 7-2 Tuesday at Fresno in the first contest of a four-match road trip.

Santa Barbara has defeated the Bulldogs in seven of their last eight duels since the teams' first meeting in 1989. The Gauchos won, 9-0, in last year's matchup.

UCSB (7-14) swept Fresno (9-14) in singles competition as junior Jean Okada, the Gauchos' #1 singles player, defeated Marta Pitarch 6-3, 6-2. Santa Barbara's #2 singles player, senior Lynn Coakley, beat Amy Gallagher 6-2, 6-2. Only two of UCSB's six singles victories went into the third set.

Santa Barbara's doubles matches did not fare as well as the singles play. The Gauchos fell to Fresno in two of the three doubles matches, with the only win coming from the team of junior Amelia White and senior Kelly Spencer. Ranked 19th nationwide as a doubles team, the Gaucha duo beat Ann Papi and Pitarch 6-3, 6-2.

UCSB will take on the University of Nevada, Las Vegas Friday in a game that will be closely watched. Santa Barbara expects some stiff competition from the Rebels when the Big West championships roll around April 26.

Head Coach Pete Kirkwood has predicted a victory not only against the Rebels, but also against the remaining two teams, the University of Utah and University of the Pacific, that UCSB will face on its road trip.

Men

In a match that could decide the seeding of the UCSB men's tennis team in the Big West Tournament, the Gauchos will put their two-game winning streak on the line as they play host to San Jose State today at noon.

Santa Barbara (7-7 overall, 2-1 in the Big West) needs to beat the Spartans in order to have a chance at the second seed for the conference tournament, to be held April 28-30 in Ojai. The Gauchos are currently battling New Mexico State, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas and University of the Pacific for the number two spot — all of which are trailing top-seeded UC Irvine.

"We need to defeat San Jose State if we want to get the second seed," UCSB Head Coach Don Lowry said. "It would be nice to get the second or at least the third seed so we can stay away from Irvine."

"Right now we are playing as well as we did earlier in the season, and we're capable of beating Irvine in Ojai," junior John Bowerbank said.

In the event of a tie between schools, the head-to-head records are used to break the deadlock. However, UCSB has not and will not play any of the schools it is jockeying with. Thus, it will have to rely on its record vs. common opponents to break a tie.

Santa Barbara will take to the court with its consistent lineup of #1 singles player freshman Alex Decret, second seed sophomore Eddie Weiss and juniors Joe Barbarie, Simon Kurth, Bowerbank and Doug Nau.

Romeo Passes Up Candidacy for A.D.

By Daniel Solomon
Staff Writer

The official list of candidates for UCSB's athletic director post remains blank after Acting Athletic Director Jim Romeo decided Tuesday that he would not be a candidate for the position.

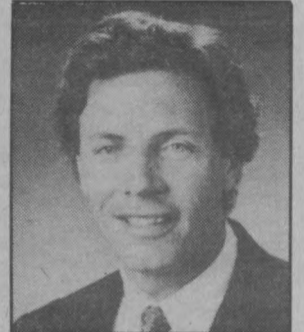

Romeo has served as the acting A.D. since Jan. 14, 1994, when John Kasser left Santa Barbara to accept the A.D. position at UC Berkeley.

"I've done this for the past year and three months, and it's been a very enjoyable experience," Romeo said. "I think it has gone well. I have gotten a lot of gratification out of it. I've just come to realize that the experience was well worth it, but it's really not what I want to do."

A member of the Gaucha athletic administration for the past 11 years, Romeo came to UCSB in 1980 as an adjunct lecturer in the Physical Activities Dept. and currently instructs the kinesiology course. He said his desire to resume teaching was an influential factor in his decision not to be a candidate.

"I first came to UCSB 15 years ago to be a teacher and I really like teaching," he said. "I started teaching again this quarter after a year off and I really enjoy it. [The A.D. position] is a different direction for me, and I miss teaching. It really boiled down to that."

With Romeo's one-year term having already been completed, the committee to select a new director re-

UCSB Looking to Eliminate Bagel From Perfect Conference Mark of Top-Ranked UCLA Bruins

By Jenny Kok
Staff Writer

With only two league matches left on its schedule, the #5 UCSB men's volleyball team's matchup with top-ranked UCLA tonight at 7 in Pauley Pavilion will be a big test for both squads, as the players set their sights on the national title.

This contest won't be the first time these two teams have met this season, with the Gauchos (16-7 overall, 13-4 in the MPSF) having fallen to the Bruins (22-1, 15-0) in both of their previous meetings. However, UCSB is not the same team it was earlier this season.

"Our transition is much stronger and we've learned to take advantage when given the chance," said UCSB Head Coach Ken Preston. "Donny [Harris] has improved a lot, which has been the key to our offense. But he isn't the only one. Everyone has improved since the last time we played UCLA."

The Bruins will be entering the game as the odds-on favorite, but according to a few of the Gaucha players, this could give Santa Barbara the advantage.

"Yes, realistically we are supposed to lose, but that puts all of the pressure on UCLA and none of the pressure on us," senior middle blocker Carter Reese said. "For the first time, we realize that UCLA is beatable. We've played competitively against them in the past. We want this more than anything."

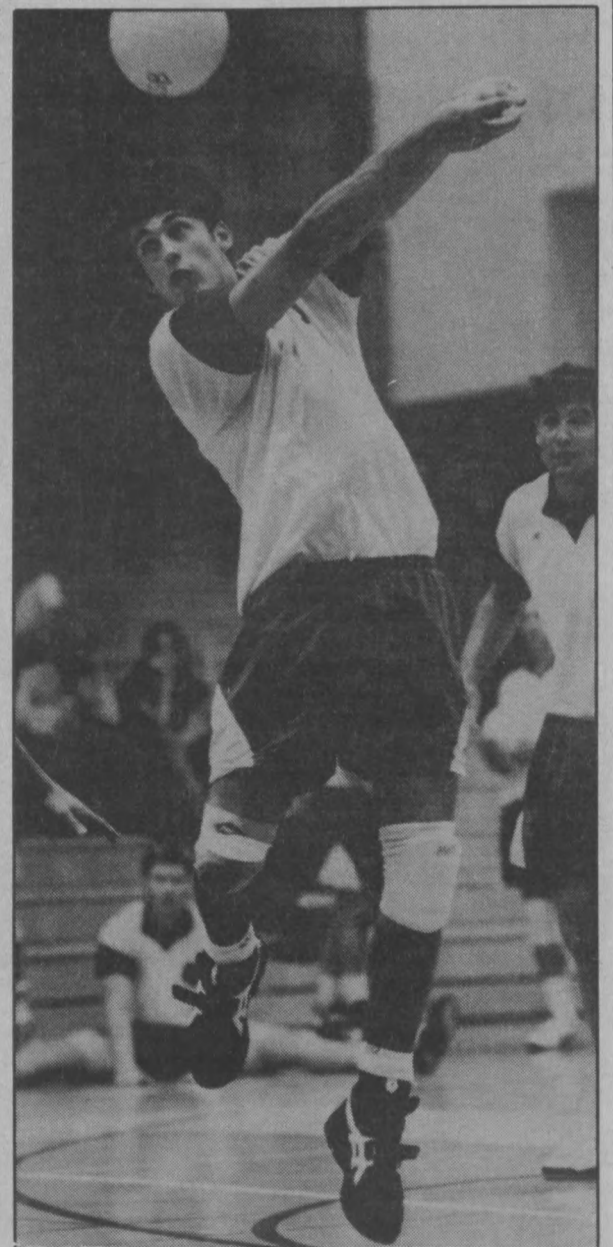

"We are really fired up for this match not only because we hate losing to them, but because this might be the last chance Darren [Torbet] and [Reese] get to beat them," said junior middle blocker Doug Hughes. "UCLA is definitely beatable and I think we are the team to beat them."

The Bruins feature two of the nation's best players in Paul Nihipali and Jeff Nygaard. Nihipali leads the team with 5.8 kills per game and averages 1.18 blocks. Putting up 2.04 bpg, Nygaard will be an integral part of stopping the Gaucha offense. The senior All-American is also pounding out 5.4 kpg.

For UCSB, strong serving and good passing will be necessary against what is considered the best all-around team in the country. Led by three juniors — setter Todd Roger and outside hitters Morgan Chapman and Amaury Velasco — the defense will have to be ready to pass consistently and dig a lot of balls.

Along with teammates Reese and sophomore middle blocker Robert Treahy, sophomore outside hitter Harris will need to continue his strong offensive performance. He leads the squad with 6.6 kpg at a .341 hitting percentage.

"This match is going to be a testing ground for us to see how much we have improved," Preston said. "We have nothing to lose. This will be kind of a measuring stick for us as we enter the postseason."

JARROD BRADLEY/Daily Nexus

Junior outside hitter Morgan Chapman leads the Gauchos with a 2.7 digs per game average.
