The ACLU argues that since the moratorium clause has never been removed and all subsequent acts have only been amendments of the original 1948 law, the moratorium clause applies to the 1971 law. Selective Service attorneys contend that the 90-day moratorium was only intended to apply in 1948 to allow President Truman to set up induction machinery.

The ACLU suit also contends that all induction orders issued after Sept. 28 are illegal since draftees were classified and processed under the old law. They further contend that these inductions should be cancelled, since the new law provides for more liberal deferment rules than the old law.

Draft officials fear that the suit may encourage federal judges elsewhere in the country to order induction halts. On Nov. 24, two justices of the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals issued restraining orders on inductions. Tuesday, three judges of the same appellate court nullified all previous temporary restraining orders, saying that nothing in the 1971 draft law prohibited induction until Dec. 28.

Douglas' ruling, however, reverses Tuesday's decision. The freeze on inductions is back on, pending a resolution of the federal district court case on its merits.

The Selective Service in Washington said that inductions would continue of men not registered in Southern California.
Planning Commission maps out...

A park for Isla Vista?

In January, the Isla Vista Community will make its case before the Santa Barbara Board of Supervisors to decide the county's role in acquiring a permanent park in Isla Vista. The site under consideration is the three parcels of vacant land on either side of the central block of Madrid Road (not Perfect Park). The total area of this site is 2.3 acres, including a section of Madrid Road. This site was selected by the I.V. community in the IVCC referendum of May 1971 and a large questionnaire of the Planning Commission in the winter quarter of 1971.

The county is the only agency that can apply for federal HUD grant earmarked for this project in Isla Vista: if they don't apply, the funds cannot be used. Federal funds will cover 50 per cent of the cost of acquisition and development. The other 50 per cent will come from the UCSB Regents funds and a private donation. The main problem to date is that the county is reluctant to apply for the funds. There is every reason to expect that the money is to be had for the asking, but it requires legal application by a legal government entity and neither the IVCC nor the University qualifies.

Why is the county government dragging its feet? Theoretically, they are our government and represent our interface with the federal government:
1) The county is unwilling to spend the necessary money for liability insurance and maintenance over the long term;
2) They fear the volatility of the I.V. scene and community safety. They feel they wouldn't be able to enforce standard park regulations such as the closing of the park at dusk;
3) They feel I.V. recreation facilities are adequate considering the county beach and UCSB facilities. They cite the low usage of the county park on Del Playa as proof of this adequacy;
4) They fail to see broad community sentiment for the park and feel that it won't be used by a cross-section of the I.V. Community. They fear a noisy rock band scene with drug use and violence.

Isla Vista residents who favor the park project can call or write to the Board of Supervisors, 105 East Anapamu, Santa Barbara 93101 (966-1611). Residents can also express their feelings at the upcoming Board of Supervisors' hearing.

As a part of this two-month experimental program, the I.V. Planning Commission will conduct a transportation study to evaluate the service and its effect on traffic circulation. Restriction of Isla Vista automobile traffic at the campus West Gate for the second month of the tram's operation is being sought to obtain a proper measure of its impact. We ask for your cooperation if the restriction is made.

Isla Vista tram debuts this spring

This spring Isla Vistans will have a pioneering alternative to the automobile and its attendant evils — an open-sided tram gliding through the town's streets. If you've been driving to campus or crosstown to the grocery store try this one out for size.

Three of these gaily-colored 22 seat trams will make loops through Isla Vista in approximately five minute intervals continuing to the North Hall bus stop on campus. The ride is free but a donation box will be provided for those who like the ride and have some spare change. The trams will operate daily from 7:30 a.m.-11 p.m.

Local business area needs general diversity

Isla Vista has a very dynamic business area. Businesses move in and out with great facility. Scholars of the subject agree that the reason for the great mobility is not that businessmen are overly wealthy. A recent survey showed that there are some 20 eating places in Isla Vista, only a few of which are on an even financial keel.

Moreover, small scale and high prices force Isla Vistans to flee to Goleta to shop for basic groceries. There are not enough of which are on an even financial keel.

The I.V. Planning Commission has stated that a healthy community. There are three basic areas that need improvement.

• Balanced provision of services exploitation of new commercial areas and cooperation among businesses. This involves regaining the summer tourist business, as well as outside customers, and the selling of "Isla Vista" rather than a specific good.

• Transportation to and from businesses. In most communities the answer to this problem is more parking lots. In Isla Vista this route would be a mistake, instead there should be an integrated bike, ped and tram system that will get I.V. residents and the UCSB community in and out of the shopping area efficiently.

• Aesthetics and general mood of commercial district. We believe I.V. citizens and businessmen have the inspiration to create a unique business area, Handcrafted street corner islands, pine trees, decorative sidewalks and a park could combine to form an interesting environment for shopping and strolling.

The general direction of I.V. business is yet to be determined. Today there is a predominance of food planes. Tomorrow perhaps we will see a handcrafts center, or possibly a more intellectual book and publishing industry. Whatever it is, planning for the future must start now.

What type of government?

Isla Vista Village? Incorporation? Special Service District? By June of 1972, Isla Vistans will have stated their preference for the best form of local government for Isla Vista and the implementation will be set in motion.

The Isla Vista Governmental Study Group will begin in January, 1972 to perform Phase II of the research needed to make the final decision on Isla Vista government. 15 Isla Vista residents, headed by Leo Jacobson completed Phase I of the study last June. Phase I offered several alternatives for I.V. government, ranging in cost from $200,000 - $400,000 a year and varying in degree of local authority for Isla Vistans.

Local residents are encouraged to participate in the study group as it examines governmental alternatives and economic and political feasibility. The study group will engage in intensive community education on local government as preface to a community plebescite on local government.

The final report of the study group will be presented for adoption to County Board of Supervisors; if necessary, special legislation will be sought from the state legislature to enact a governmental form suitable to the unique needs of Isla Vista. By summer, 1972, Isla Vista may be ready to take next step beyond IVCC towards local governmental control.
To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to the articles that have appeared recently in the NEXUS concerning University Center policies mainly with respect to minority hiring practices. I believe that as an employee of the Ucen I have some knowledge of the situation although I will admit I don't know all the facts.

I am an employee of the Ucen and am in a position so that I have frequent contact with the Ucen administration, including Don Jensen. I applied for my job last year and was interviewed by Jensen. I formed an opinion of Jensen at the time of that first meeting and my opinion has not only not changed but also has been considerably reinforced.

Jensen is a very dedicated man with the best interests of the Ucen at heart. He is concerned with the financial problems that the Ucen faces and the decisions he makes, I'm sure, are beneficial toward reducing these problems. He works many extra hours weekly and the work load that he faces is tremendously large. An eight to five, five day work week is not a path he follows.

I have some information regarding the hiring practices in effect at the Ucen. Very few members of minority groups apply for the "white collar" jobs even though hiring campaigns are carried out for almost all jobs. There were more than 15 applicants for the job that I now hold and not one minority student applied.

In fact at the direction of Jensen a position was kept open for a minority student. She was then hired for the position at the direction of Jensen.

During my working hours and other free time that I spend at the Ucen I observe the University Center custodians. There are two custodians who work the day shift, one who works the evening and six who work the graveyard shift. These men are responsible for all Ucen custodial duties.

I think that from what I see of the situation, the efficiency of the staff could be greatly improved if the men were to work a little harder. A custodian should be able to keep the Ucen clean if his time is budgeted properly. Perhaps they need more leadership and better direction, possibly from their supervisor.

In all, I draw the conclusion from my observations that Jensen has no racist policies and if anything is really true, it is that he believes in fair and just hiring practices for all. I think that the changes that have recently been levied against Mr. Jensen are unfounded and he is being unnecessarily criticized when he should be highly praised for the task he is performing.

To the Editor:

Upon reading the article headlined, "University becomes role as political activist for public projects" in Monday's NEXUS, one can only feel outraged or perhaps disillusioned: Was it the product of collaboration and conspiracy (did Vermin I. Cheadle write it under a pseudonym?) or was it simply the product of a rather casual attitude?

It was asserted that Professor Sullivan's research project represented the "first time the U. of C. is directly working with the People's Political Agency for Public Projects". This should read, U.C. is a political agency for the formulation of public policy which serves the interests of monopoly capitalism.

It is tempting here to survey in general the development of mass higher education in America to show its functionalist and political role in terms of the real reasons for our subsidized education; that would take too long, however. But one need only look at a few examples illustrating the more immediate and explicit role of the University, its non-educational one, to refute the myth of the objective ivory tower.

(1) U.C. was not the "creation of the people of California," as Sullivan says. It was specifically founded as a "land grant college" to serve the interests of Agribusiness. Since that time it has not only operated as a tax-paid clinic for this industry (in 1967 the University State Experiment Station spent more than $25 million of which less than $1.5 million was from industry), but has consistently played a part in farm labor union-busting.

(2) U.C. research is heavily dependent upon funds from the Department of Defense. U.C. maintains nuclear testing and weapons facilities at Livermore and Los Alamos. The computers in our own North Hall are tied into the ARPA network of computers serving the D.O.D.

(3) U.C., through such agencies as the ASI foundation, backed by ruling class institutions like the (Continued on p. 6, col. 1)

(4) Names are great; here are but a very typical few: R. Heyns, Chancellor at Berkeley, is local representative on the Board of Hunt Foods whose Chairman, Norton Simon, is a regent. Charles Hitch, an ex-official of the RAND corporation, was also McManus's assistant in C.W. Dovish's words, "If it would be hard to underestimate the importance of (the Council on Foreign Relations) in understanding the overall framework for American foreign policy."

And right here at UCSB we have approximately seven members on it, not the least of whom is our dearest Chancellor Chodlile.

A myth is in the creation. In the midst of unpopularity, the University is attempting to renew its image; but the success of this new myth — that the University is now coming to relate to the community, to the needs of the people — is dependent upon the belief in the old myth — that the University is a detached objective creator of knowledge.

To Sullivan’s question, “Can the University ignore government and go its own way?” One would have to reply NO, because as now constituted the University is the government. It cannot serve the

KCSB in need of new direction in programs

To the Editor:

As a radio station KCSB is a hodge-podge of non-direction in its programming. This is due to the diversity of views held by the students themselves. Among these views we hear calls for more classical programming, more rock programming, Uncle Bernie’s farts in stereo, and more recently, more music to seduce your girlfriend.

It would appear that everyone wants the station to go in his particular direction. To determine the direction of KCSB it is necessary to determine what the function of KCSB is. Some, as mentioned before, would have us believe that its function is to provide music.

But if you consider that KCSB is in the business of communication then surely the presentation by a radio station of one single mode of entertainment, say music, would severely inhibit communication.

If the station is to concern itself with communication, then KCSB would best serve the diverse elements within the student body and the populace of the Santa Barbara area by presenting diverse programming and not programming designed to please any particular group. So if there is any direction that KCSB should move, it should move in the direction of providing diverse programming for a diverse community.

KCSB offers a unique opportunity for the students of the University to express themselves politically, musically, culturally, etc. Yet we hear more rock music, more music to seduce girlfriends by, more classical music, more of everyone else’s culture but our own.

It is time to realize KCSB for what it can be, an instrument for any particular group. So if you feel the same way, please notify Communications Board Secretary Michele Hutcherson, 961-3829, or come to 1053 Storke Building.

Somewhat later, a task force will be implemented to consider the problems of "phasing" into such changes as are considered necessary. James L. Walters (Chairman), Brian M. Fagan, Roger L. Horton, Stanton Peale, John G. Skalnik, Lewis F. Walton.

Finally, another task force will be formed to consider the "budgetary" implications of all these changes.

The steering committee and the task forces are advisory to me and I shall refer relevant proposals from their recommendations to the pertinent Academic Senate committees for additional consideration before making any decision to present them to appropriate University-wide agencies.

As we struggle with the crucial implications of these challenges, it would help us greatly to have the widest possible advice. If you would write down any ideas you might have in any or all the areas covered by the task forces, we would very much appreciate receiving them. Communications may be addressed to the Chancellor's Office or they would be welcomed by members of the various task forces.

Editor's note: The statement above from the Chancellor's office deals with a new infrastructure for examining the future direction of this campus as a unit and as part of the University of California. Such an intensive examination of the University opens the door to a potential for change.

The undergraduates on the various task forces hope that other students who have ideas they wish to contribute to the discussions would contact them and make their voices heard.

Call for parent control at Child Center

To the Editor:

Although we felt that the NEXUS letters column was not the best place to discuss Child Care Center problems, we feel compelled to respond to the heated statements made by Mark Egger on these pages Wednesday, Nov. 24th. We do not think it useful to bore the community with a detailed description of the conflicts Mark alludes to; we do feel it necessary to point out, however, that the Child Care Center’s goal is to be parent controlled, not staff, or community or University controlled.

Total parent control is a goal, not a present reality; the reality of the moment is that the Center serves the needs of the parents whose children attend. If these parents are perceived by some of the staff as representing “the University’s corporate culture”, then, in fact, the Center will be perceived as an instrument of that culture.

Most non-parent, student staff members (volunteer and paid), however, understand the needs of parents for competent child care for a Center they can trust to be safe and healthy while providing a stimulating, creative environment for infants and pre-schoolers. Parents expect the adults at the Center to create and provide the kind of environment for the children that develops the benefits of social interaction among little ones, without neglecting the safety, security and warmth which the children’s own homes provide. To that end, the Parent Board has selected Directors and Teachers who, it judged, could make a worthwhile contribution.

The Directors and the Parent Board have agreed to a consensus process of decision making on important programmatic matters; the Staff has developed a Program Committee, by which its input can become part of the decision-making process.

The University’s role has been, on the whole, ambiguous and obstructionist. It has been dragged kicking and screaming into this Project, and has spent a good deal of time seeking to disassociate itself from it. If (the corporate “It”) does not understand the very notion of parent control and has occasionally sought to subvert it, it would indeed be a tragedy if the larger University-Isla Vista community also failed to understand and support that notion.

We welcome participation in the Center and on the Board by all segments of the University-Isla Vista community. We stress, again, that the Center exists to serve the needs of the children and parents of our community, and we have promised to work to make sure it continually does.

San Ardo does live!

To the Editor:

How can I express my surprise at the front page article concerning San Ardo in the November 29th NEXUS? Having passed the first 18 years of my life in this diminutive community, I am accustomed to people not knowing of its existence. I really never expected any major acknowledgement of my home town here, much less the appearance of this article.

You may be surprised to know that I am not the sole resident of San Ardo attending the larger University-Isla Vista occasionally sought to subvert it; the University-Isla Vista community also failed to understand and support that notion.

Esla Vista Game

Escape from I.V. and you win!

By Steve Belton

Any Isla Vistans looking for a unique Christmas present for friends or relatives might consider purchasing a new "Monopoly-like" board game, called, "Isla Vista Game." The creator of this game, Dave Vandenberg, is a junior at UCSB and a resident of I.V. himself.

"If the people playing it are stoned," says Dave, "it could last forever." Straight people can expect to complete the game in about an hour, depending on how much energy they put into it, the winner being the first person to escape Isla Vista.

After moving his homemade marker through what Dave calls a "microcosm of Isla Vista," consisting of a park with token trees and incepted agriculture, and rows of apartments filled with dopers, satanists, Klamath, Jesus freaks, jocks and various other assorted denizens — prominent among them, dogs — the players either suffer a terminal loss of brain cells or obtain a degree from the college, get a car, or somehow escape I.V.

Playing the game will require a certain amount of luck for the roll of the die, and an ability to create special trivia questions for the other players to answer. Vandenberg likes to think of this combination as a metaphor of life, in which "fate" is controlled by "free will," but the real secret of winning, he says, is to "Try to avoid being bummed out."

Half of the money for the production of the first 250 games was supplied by the I.V. Service Center in the form of a loan. Dave has pledged to donate half of the profits from the sales of the Isla Vista Game to the Service Center, up to $400.

The new game, which Vandenberg calls a "good way of introducing people to the realm of Isla Vista," will be legally copyrighted. In formulating the game, Dave was often influenced by his real-life experiences in I.V. The Isla Vista Game Health Center, for example, gives a $2 TB test to any major casualty — something he insists happened to a friend of his.

Anyone interested in purchasing a game set from Dave Vandenberg should contact him at his home, 6502 Sabado Tarde, Apt. 1, or phone him at 968-9351. The game should be on sale by the middle of finals week, and will cost $2. As Dave is quick to point out, "It's a real rip-off at twice the price."

Dave Vandenberg, creator of new I.V. Game.

Health Center opens first-ever art show

By CAROLE RICHARD

Student Health now features a new attraction to its formerly drab walls. Until January, the center is offering an art exhibit sponsored by the Goleta Valley Art Association.

The 94 paintings represent 10 artists in the association. Exhibited in the waiting areas and corridors, the paintings will remain until January at no cost to the Health Center. After that date, more artists may continue to donate their work on a rotating basis.

Paintings range in subject from nature scenes and landscapes to geometric designs. While the paintings are for sale, Health Center Administrator Bob Thacker says the exhibit is not a commercial endeavor. Recognizing the need to enhance the bare walls of the center, he hopes the works will create a warmer atmosphere for students.

More exhibits in the future are anticipated in the Health Center, especially with professional groups. The Health Center is currently looking into the possibility of exhibiting Art Department or photography displays.

Basketball prospects bright
Allen-Tschogl-Frazier head 'year of seniors'

By DEBBY OLSON

Sports action is maneuvering itself into the gymnasium for the winter months, and UCSB's varsity basketball team is ready to keep Robertson Gym a warm and winning place on their way to another successful season.

"We've peaked just where we wanted to as far as physical conditioning is concerned," evaluated Head Coach Ralph Barkey. "Our play is much improved, much sharper and our shooting and general alertness has been very good."

As a result of Barkey's scheduling, the Gauchos have been competing on an equal level with some of the best collegiate powers in the country. Last year they battled and trounced such cage openers as Baylor (95-68), Texas Arlington (97-67) and Temple (75-68) and just barely lost to Utah and Colorado State.

Also enhancing last season's play was the California Winter Classic Tournament Title that the Gauchos earned for the second straight time.

Remaining especially pleased with his starting six, Barkey was also delighted by the showing evidenced by his back-up men during the recent Frosh-Varsity scrimmage.

"The center position because of our low post offense is a critical spot for us," the head coach elaborated, "and Steve Rockhold is beginning to do some exceptional things for us which could make the difference. Our starting six are all playing very well."

"Dennis Rector's shooting and general offensive play continues to be consistently good and it appears Jerry Lee's considerable pick-up in performance will be of great assistance to us. I have a good feeling about their mental approach to the season," he concluded.

Tomorrow night's cage slate has the Gauchos tipping off against Georgia-based Samford University. A very respected small private school, Samford has intentions of developing a very strong basketball program. The Bulldogs, a 16-10 team last season also have experience as one of their main assets, with four starters and eight returning lettermen comprising their squad.

Monday finds UCSB on the road to challenge the Arizona State five, to return before Saturday, Dec. 11, when the second home game of the season will be held against Iowa State (who was the best team in the Big "A" Conference last year).

During the holiday break, UC Riverside's strongest team ever, journeys here Dec. 18 for a court battle as will Arizona University Dec. 27 and Chicago State University on Dec. 29. The early part of the Christmas week has the varsity on the road again to Montana for two matches against its state and university teams.

Meet the Gauchos’ first six

EARL FRAZIER

A late-comer to organized hoop competition, returning forward Earl Frazier is quick, refined and most important — big.

In his third year of varsity contention, Frazier didn’t join an official basketball team until tenth grade because he would rather have been a football end. Earl’s physique, however, lent itself more to basketball. He feels this is definitely a reason for his preference for defense in the game because, “I had to emphasize defense to make a name for myself.”

Switched from back-up center to forward last year, Frazier averaged 10.3 points per game and 11.4 points per game during tournament play. He’s a great jumper and uses his ability to dual purposes — shooting and rebounding.

Now commencing his final year of varsity basketball, Tschogl has two PCAA team nominations, Harvey Hubler Memorial Award presentations and the achievement of being last year’s second leading scorer (14.2 ppg.) as his recommendations for an even more impressive season.

Ron Allen’s player of the year nomination, second team All-PCAA honors, and being 1971’s second leading scorer make him even more impressive.

JOHN TSCHOGL

John Tschogl likes UCSB for many reasons. He feels Santa Barbara is a pretty place and likes the ocean, comparing this setting to San Diego which is near his home in Chula Vista. He enjoys surfing and body surfing and is part of the intramural volleyball program. He also favors basketball.

“I was impressed by the coaches and felt the team was an improving team and wanted to be part of it as it worked it’s way up,” are Tschogl’s reasons for attending Santa Barbara and becoming part of its very much improved and championship-headed team.

Now commencing his final year of varsity basketball, Tschogl has two PCAA team nominations, Harvey Hubler Memorial Award presentations and the achievement of being last year’s second leading scorer (14.2 ppg.) as his recommendations for an even more impressive season.

John Tschogl enjoys many activities such as football and track and is involved in intramural softball at UCSB. (Continued on p. 17, col. 1)

RON ALLEN

UCSB’s Most Improved Player last year, earning second team All-PCAA honors, Ron Allen promises even greater playing brilliance in this year’s championship race.

He played basketball center in grade school and progressed from an alternating forward or guard position throughout high school to his currently permanent guard status on the GaucO squad. Allen explains that the basic difference between guards and forwards is that guards have a definite responsibility to be a team player, initiate the action and run the show.

Standing 6’6” and 210 lbs., Allen feels he is weakest in defense and has devoted his training efforts to improvement in that direction. “The importance of a good defense just can’t be stressed enough — no team has yet to possess a foolproof defense,” he observes.

Offensively he commanded a consistent 13.6 shooting average last season and scored 16.1 ppg in the final 10 PCAA contests.

A man of many interests, Allen has also competed in football, baseball and track and is involved in intramural softball at UCSB.

First six

His non-athletic pastimes include music, especially jazz and his wish is to be able to play saxophone.

Allen is a graduating political science major with possibilities of completing his studies at Harvard Law School.

He considers this year's Gaucho crew as having "the ability to be a tremendously unselfish team. Every player has exceptional ability and won't pass up the good shot — but they're always looking for the pass first."

JIM EDMOND

"Basketball seemed the most natural sport for me," is Jim Edmond's response to what motivated him to compete in the sport.

The 6'2", 180 lb. guard, originally from Los Angeles, transferred to UCSB from Oregon State two years ago and is commencing his second season as a varsity letterman having red-shirted during 1969-70. He likes pressured lay-up shots best which probably accounts for his excellent jump shooting ability. Edmond would rather play away from the home court "because it's easier to concentrate on basketball and the game. When we play home there are usually classes and other responsibilities that can distract your concentration."

Listed bridge and really good science fiction as his non-basketball interests he is also one of the team's married men. Joy Lynn is his wife of two years.

A graduating senior this year, Edmond has chosen dentistry as his future occupation and has been awarded a four year graduate scholarship through the American Fund for Dental Education which is sponsored by the American Dental Association.

He foresees the varsity as a strong contender again this season based on the combination of tremendous unity, good height and rebounding skills the team possesses.

BOB SCHACHER

Bob Schachter is a 6'1", 175 lb. ball-handling wonder. Chosen for the All-California Winter Classic team last year, this junior guard faces his second season of varsity play.

A political science major with no definite future plans at this time, Schachter cites his interests as a wide variety of sports and girls. In the off-season he is active in intramural volleyball and softball.

Graduated from Westchester High School in Los Angeles he enjoys the fast break play and stealing the ball, excelling in both. Listing "scoring" as his favorite shot, Schachter can use either hand equally well for shooting, dribbling or passing.

His playing statistics prove him a tremendously unselfish player as he led the squad, far and away last year with assists numbering 113.

He finds it very hard to relax after a game and would rather play at home than away because of the familiarity of the court.

"We have good depth and a year's experience going for us," he reasons as the team's strong points, "we're a year older, know what the coaches want and what the league's about. We'll definitely be tough competition again this year."

FROM 78-73 VICTORS BUT...

Gauchos thrown for loss

By DEBBY OLSON

The Gauchos' cage season was duly christened last night with sweat and disappointment as a result of an upset loss to the Cal Poly Mustangs.

Poor playing and the especially problem-causing factors of lack of rebounding and abundance of foul trouble seem the prime causes of the defeat.

A ferocious scoring game most of the time (the score was tied-up on 10 occasions) UCSB controlled a good portion of the first half battle. The scoreboard registered a steady five to seven point margin towards halftime and the tally as the buzzer sounded was 40-35 — the Gauchos maintaining their slight edge.

First half scoring guns were John Tschogl, Steve Rockhold and Ron Allen with 13, nine and seven point performances respectively. Rockhold's defensive prowess was an important factor in the first half action as he forced many a Mustang shot with well-executed blocking.

Half time statistics evidenced only fair accuracy for either team. Sixteen of 33 ventured by UCSB gave them a 48.4 shooting percentage while Poly only managed a 36.1 per cent total for their 13 of 36 completed tries.

Four minutes into the second half the first blow struck as Tschogl, the Gauchos hot scorer registered a 50-35 lead for the home team. Poly fought back, but the score was only fair accuracy for either team in the second half. The clock showed 11:28 as the deciding turn of the game came over.

The defense and offense power of Steve Rockhold was removed because of his fourth foul. Poly, as if given a signal by this event, took off on an eight point scoring spree from which the Gauchos could never recover.

The varsity five excelled in the final three minutes of the contest, grabbing every rebound (the first time they had controlled the boards all night) and scoring like crazy in their effort to still pull off a victory but they were about 17 minutes too late and the game ended in the frustrating 78-72 defeat.

Coach Ralph Barkey, despite his bench warming still managed to account for 22 points and 10 rebounds to lead UCSB's scoring and Rockhold was not far behind with his 17 point offering and nine rebound total. Allen, off and on shooter during the night, compiled 12 tallies with five rebounds and led the crew in assists with six.

"They just beat us — in all phases of the game — we have no excuses, no alibis — we just got beaten," was Coach Ralph Barkey's initial reaction to the season-opening defeat. But realizing it was only one game down with 26 remaining to complete the season he continued firmly, "We'll start a new season Saturday. I believe that this team has the kind of courage and competitive spirit that will allow us to go on to a really good season."

Slough...

(Continued from p. 1) extensively for teaching and research purposes, and probably could manage it with little additional costs," commented Bennett.

"All the slough needs right now is a fence around it to keep out the dogs, horses and the motorcycles," she added.

Robert Montgomery, regional manager of the State Fish and Game Department, stated at the EQAB meeting that his department could not manage or maintain the slough but it could help provide funds for developing it.

The Fish and Game Department's $67,000 development plan calls for earthmoving to assure good water flow in the area and for establishing public facilities such as walkways, restrooms, parking lots and other accommodations.

It was this kind of development that Bennett opposed. She expressed hope that with University management the slough could be made less accessible and more protective for wildlife.

Montgomery, who said he did not object to UCSB management of the slough, said that his department had no intention of turning it into a "Disneyland type of development."

James Potter, chairman of the Airport Commission, said that he does not anticipate further need of the slough for airport purposes. But he expressed fears that an impending Corps of Engineers flood control project might restore the flow of water and bring in additional birds that would jeopardize airplane traffic.

"We had 12 times as many birds there in 1960 as we have now," Bennett replied. "More water won't help them back. All we're trying to do is save those that still remain."

Spock here

Dr. Benjamin Spock, the well-known baby doctor and anti-war activist, will be speaking at UCSB Thursday, Dec. 9, at noon on the UCen lawn.

In recent years Spock has been involved in the anti-war movement, and just recently, he was nominated to run for president on the Peace and Freedom Party ticket.

Spock is being brought to UCSB by Charles Brody, instructor at UCSB, who was recently elected chairman of the Peace and Freedom Party at their Texas convention.

There will be a news conference given by Spock on Thursday Dec. 9, at 11 a.m. in 2284 UCen. This is the same place the last few conferences have been given.

UC burden

(Continued from p. 8) real needs of the community for that would entail genuine social change of a fundamental order. This has been demonstrated locally by our University's actions in regards to the Child Care Center.

Thus, until the University meets the real needs of its students and faculty (7), until real power rests in their hands, one must look very critically and suspiciously at whose interests are really being served behind the rhetoric of "relating to the community."
