About 1,000 mourners gather around a memorial site erected at the scene of the tragedy Thursday night. People brought flowers from the memorial in Storke Plaza and placed them with those accumulating since Saturday morning.

When my wife Dilling and I arrived at the accident, we wanted to do all we could to console and comfort those who were at the scene, and to grieve with them. On the streets of Isla Vista on those early morning hours, we witnessed some extraordinary examples of courage, compassion, and humanity.

Community Grieves Together at Campus Memorial

■ Individuals Share Emotions at Open Mic Before Procession Into I.V. for Candlelight Vigil

BY JENNIFER B. SIVERTS
Staff Writer

Thursday was a day of remembrance for approximately 5,000 people who gathered to celebrate the lives of the four victims of Friday night's fatal incident.

The vigil, organized by Associated Students, began at 4:30 in Storke Plaza with key speakers, followed by close to 30 community members addressing the crowd during an open mic period. At dusk, A.S. passed out candles and flowers, and mourners proceeded to the site of the incident.

UCSB students Nicholas Bourdakos and Christopher Divis, Santa Barbara City College student Ruth Levy and San Francisco resident Elie Israel were all pronounced dead on the scene after they were struck by a speeding car on the 6500 block of Sabado Tarde Road on Feb. 23. Albert Levy, Ruth's brother and a San Francisco resident, is still in critical condition at Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital.

UCSB Chancellor Henry T. Yang opened the memorial, offering his condolences to the community.

"I first want to say how much it has meant to the families and friends of the victims of last weekend's tragedy to have your sympathy, your support, your unconditional love. ... I know that in this time of grief, we also want to remember and memorialize three other students whose untimely deaths this past year add to the sense of loss that our campus now experiences," he said. "Miyaka Geh, Patrick Hsu and David Lindsay all were important members of our community. They are all missed. And they are all remembered. The family of Albert Levy is praying for his recovery and they have asked that we join them, that we keep him in our thoughts and in our hearts, and we will."

"When my wife Dilling and I arrived at the accident, we wanted to do all we could to console and comfort those who were at the scene, and to grieve with them. On the streets of Isla Vista on those early morning hours, we witnessed some extraordinary examples of courage, compassion and humanity," Yang said. "Later, this observance will become a candlelight procession to the scene of this horrible tragedy, where we have made memorials all week, including the tree we planted [Wednesday]. This tree will grow tall, strong and wonderful — just like Ruth, like Elie, like Nicholas, like Christopher. Its branches will become arms, reaching out to embrace us, just as we have embraced each other this week. We will take comfort in that."

Third District Supervisor Gail Marshall said she is proud of the way Isla Vista has pulled together in this time of tragedy.

"Each of us in some way was forever changed by the loss of these four young people, individuals who should have had long and full lives ahead of them," she said. "I am reminded of a passage from author Leo Buscaglia that I'd like to read: 'Death teaches that the time is now. The time is now to pick up a telephone and call the person that you love. Death teaches the joy of the moment — it teaches us we don't have forever. It teaches us that nothing is permanent. It teaches us to let go, and it tells us to give up on expectations and let tomorrow tell its own story.' ... Because time is fleeting, let's seize this moment to begin our healing process."

Administration Halts Vieques Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration suspended Navy bombing on the Puerto Rican island of Vieques while negotiators pursue a permanent solution to the bitter dispute over U.S. military use of the island Thursday.

The decision, revealed by Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld, is a concession to the new Puerto Rican government, which wants the Navy to withdraw entirely from the training range it has used on Vieques for decades. The Navy has resisted, saying Vieques is vital to training for its Atlantic fleet.

Rumsfeld discussed the matter with Puerto Rican Gov. Sila Calderon on Tuesday.

On Vieques, the decision was cheered by opponents of the Navy's presence.

"This triumph is a momentary triumph and not an eternal victory," said anti-Navy activist Ismael Guadalupe. "We need to redouble our efforts now to try to transform this suspension into a halt to Navy bombing on the island forever."

"What we want is the

What we want is the Navy to leave and give us back our land.

that this becomes a permanent cease-fire on the entire island and that we can then begin the long road to helping the people of Vieques get their lives together again."

Navy Capt. Mike Brady, a spokesperson at U.S. Atlantic Fleet headquarters at Norfolk, Va., said the decision to suspend training on Vieques affects the USS Enterprise aircraft scheduled in late April, Brady said. They will use the waters off Puerto Rico to do other training, but they will not be able to use Vieques for practice bombing and naval gunfire training.

In seeking to retain the Vieques training range, the Navy has argued that it is the only means of providing the training to ensure that battle groups begin their overseas deployments fully ready for combat.

After meeting with Rumsfeld in the Pentagon on Tuesday, Calderon told reporters that she asked him to delay Navy training exercises on Vieques until he reviews a study suggesting noise from the bombing has caused heart disease among residents.

Asked about the state of discussions with Calderon, Rumsfeld told reporters Thursday, "The Navy is going to proceed with some aspects of their training but not using the inner range, pending the discussions that are taking place."

Navy to leave and give us back our land," he said.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. Jose Serrano, a virulent critic of the Navy for persisting in its use of the range, greeted Rumsfeld's announcement with cautious optimism but urged the Pentagon to stay off the island forever. "We appreciate what's happening," Serrano said, "but we hope mountain.

The ruling Islamic militia said they sought to purge the nation of idolatrous images, but their closest ally — Pakistan — said the action could be a backlash against Afghanistan's international isolation, including U.N. sanctions.

Pakistani Interior Minister Moinuddin Haider told The Associated Press the Taliban's order "may have been an act of defiance brought on by the isolation they feel."

As troops fanned out with everything from rocket launchers to tanks to destroy statues, cultural leaders worldwide expressed horror.

The head of UNESCO asked other Islamic nations to pressure the Taliban to stop, while the director of the Metropolitan Museum in New York pleaded with Afghan officials to give the artifacts to foreign museums.

"In Afghanistan, they are destroying statues that the entire world considers to be masterpieces," UNESCO

Director-General Koichiro Matsuura said. "This iconoclastic determination shocks me."

"All officials, including the ministry of vice and virtue, have been given the go-ahead to destroy the statues," the Taliban's Information Minister Qadratullah Jamal said Thursday. "The destruction work will be done by any means available to them."

"All the statues all over the country will be destroyed," he said.

It was impossible to confirm what Taliban troops had destroyed so far — particularly whether they had begun demolishing two huge Buddha statues carved into a cliff at Bamiyan. One of the statues is 175 feet high and dates to the 5th century; the other is 120 feet tall and dates to the 3rd century.

The Taliban's supreme leader, Mullah Mohammed Omar, ordered the destruction in an edict Monday, saying such images were contrary to Islam.

"These idols have been gods of the infidels, who worshipped them, and these are respected even now and perhaps maybe turned into gods again," his edict said.

The Taliban, who espouse a strict brand of Islamic law, rule about 95 percent of Afghanistan and have been battling northern-based opposition forces for years. Only Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates recognize their rule.

ISO Finds Wholesalers Overcharged Companies for Power

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Electricity wholesalers have charged excessively high prices for power in recent weeks — roughly $550 million — and should have to refund the money, California power grid officials said Thursday.

Wholesale prices for emergency power bought by grid officials to avoid blackouts in December and January were unreasonable even when soaring natural gas prices are considered, the California Independent System Operator's report says.

The ISO asked the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to order wholesalers to refund prices that exceeded a reasonable rate.

The report's release came as California won another reprieve from power alerts. The ISO imported enough power to call off a Stage 2 alert declared Wednesday when four plants around the West shut down unexpectedly, cutting state reserves to around 5 percent.

Plant shutdowns for scheduled and unscheduled maintenance have been among key factors in California's daily power scrounge, along with high wholesale prices, high demand and a tight regional electricity supply.

To determine if wholesalers were gouging grid managers buying power on the spot market, ISO officials estimated reasonable costs for each plant, then asked their owners to provide further information to justify the wholesale prices they charged.

Anjali Sheffrin, ISO's director of market analysis, said generators have not supplied that additional data.

"We're not saying that all generators are overcharging ... but we want more information," Sheffrin said.

"Those are preliminary numbers. We are welcoming the suppliers to give us more information to make better estimates," she said.

The state's two largest utilities, Southern California Edison and Pacific Gas & Electric, say they have lost nearly $13 billion since June due to high wholesale electricity costs the state's deregulation law barred them from recovering from their customers.

Local Fraternity House To Celebrate Diversity With 'Cultural Crossroads'

BY SARAH HEALY
Staff Writer

There's only one free on-campus show a year that features the belly of a dragon and the bellies of dancers.

"Cultural Crossroads" will feature six acts from community and campus groups such as the Polynesian dancers, the Sherwood Players, the Chinese Lion Dance Club and a mariachi group, and begins at 7 p.m. Saturday in Campbell Hall. Several organizations, including the MultiCultural Center, Residence Halls Association and the office of the vice chancellor for student affairs, are sponsoring the event, which is free to the public.

Sigma Chi Omega organized the performance, which fraternity President Gabe Enriquez said is one of the only annual events representing a number of cultures, as opposed to concentrating on one cultural group.

"I can't think of another event where you get such a diverse group of people under the same roof," he said. "We did this to show our commitment to diversity. There are other events that are specifically for one culture, so we want to include everything."

This is the third year Sigma Chi Omega has organized this event, and the second year it has been held in Campbell Hall. Organizers switched to Campbell Hall, which seats 800 people, after 100 students were turned away from Lotte Lehmann Hall the first year. Enriquez said students filled Campbell Hall last year, and he expects similar success Saturday.

"It's gotten bigger in the past two years, and I'm hoping it will continue that way," he said.

Fakshuns Entertainment, a Los Angeles-based group, will perform a piece on hip hop culture featuring turntables, break dancers and a graffiti artist. Senior business economics major Raj Persaud, a member of Fakshuns, said he came up with the piece because hip hop is becoming more recognized.

"I wanted to do a piece about hip hop culture because it's become part of our culture slowly but surely. I think it's transcending from music into a way of life," he said. "We wanted to do a break from the norm and we think it's definitely something the people will like. It's full of music and it gets the crowd going."

The Chinese Lion Dance Club will also perform a dance based on Chinese tradition. The dance, which dates back to ancient times, was believed to ward off evil spirits and bring good luck, said Fabian Aguirre, a junior psychology major and dancer.

"This is a way to bring out Chinese culture," he said. "It's a dance in which you depend a lot on two people. It's unique in form, and there's this big gigantic head you're dancing with."

Opinion

The Community Mourns

Most Never Knew the Victims, But None Will Forget

HENRY SARRIA

It doesn't matter where you are or what you're doing at the time, bad news always sucks. It was Saturday, and I was at the SoCal BMX Nationals in Ontario getting ready for a practice lap when the mom of one of my racing buddies broke the tragic news to me. When you hear such terrible news there's always an initial selfish reaction that makes someone say, "Please God, please don't let it be anyone I know," and there was no exception on my part. My mom was no exception either. She left me a frantic phone message checking on my well-being, so a call was made immediately to assure her that her only child was nowhere near the carnage of Friday night.

As my mom and I spoke, I expressed sorrow for those innocent young people killed and injured, and anger toward the suspect who caused this. Most of us never met any of the people involved, but that didn't matter. It hit so close to home.

As we watched the ghastly images on the grainy home video tape played on CNN, the full impact of the carnage started to hit me, and my friends could see it. Very seldom do I cry or does my voice choke, but this time it happened.

The next phase is when you try to make sense out of the tragedy. Why did this happen? These kids were so young with promising lives. Why? Anger started to well up inside me again, but not only at the evil individual that chose to take four innocent lives and critically wound another. My anger was also directed at the media's portrayal of my hometown. It wasn't even a day before all of the "investigative reports" from major networks started to materialize, saying that it was no surprise this tragedy occurred due to Isla Vista's "party nature" coupled with narrow streets and crowded conditions.

As a longtime resident of this town I could agree with those observations made by ignorant outsiders whose sole intention is to boost their network's Nielsen ratings.

I could, but didn't, based on the facts. While the above conditions do exist, there also exists motor vehicle codes that prohibit driving under the influence of any intoxicating substance — though whether or not the culprit was intoxicated is still unclear — and prohibit driving at excessive speeds through residential neighborhoods. Basically stated, this tragedy could've happened anywhere, but this time it happened here, in our little haven, away from places where these things usually occur.

Saturday was an ugly day. It rained all day long, we raced in ankle-deep mud, it was cold, my BMX bike was caked with mud and the event dragged on way past midnight. We were wet, tired, cold and hungry, but things could have been so much worse. I could've been in my hometown of Isla Vista on the night of the tragedy, and been either a witness or victim to the tragic series of events that unfolded. Anywhere was better than here in I.V.

It sometimes takes a tragedy such as this one to make you realize the beauty of everything around you, and give you a fresh perspective on the meaning of life.

This weekend the opportunity to think about many things was presented to me and thoughts on the four victims plagued me incessantly. These were four good people who never did anything to anyone, that most of us never got to meet, and thanks to someone's evil act, we will never get to meet them. The loss is truly ours.

At 1 a.m. on that cold and rainy night my fellow racers and I got up to the gate pad for our main (final). Time seemed to go slower than usual and this compelled me to do something I don't believe I've ever done. I've never been religious or much of a praying person, but before we got up on the starting gate, the time was taken to say a prayer for the four young people most of us never met and for the safe recovery of the injured victim. I didn't even know their names at the time, but that didn't matter. I just felt that it was finally time to say something, anything, to whomever it is that will listen to such prayers. My only hope is that they were heard.

As this is written there are still tears in my eyes. Coming back home on Sunday was like never before. Something had been taken from our little community, and we'll never get it back.

This is written in loving memory of Nicholas Bourdakakis, Christopher Divis, Ruth Levy and Elie Israel. We never met, someday we will. We all miss you and always will.

Henry Sarria is a longtime Isla Vista resident.

BEARING BAD NEWS: THE REGRETS OF DELIVERY

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Some days I really hate my job. It's an easy job. I just deliver newspapers. You know, like the Daily Nexus.

I hate my job when the maintenance guys blame me for newspapers blowing around the campus bus stop. Hey man! I just deliver.

I still have not forgotten the front-page photo of the L.A. Times the morning after a major earthquake in Afghanistan. The picture was of a crumbling church with a stack of black coffins, of varying sizes, in the cold morning mist. My heart ached each time I tossed a paper into your driveway. I hated my job that day.

Another day, I was sorry to deliver the Daily Nexus when I read that three co-eds, under the influence of whatever, on a joy ride down Gibraltar Road, careened off the road, over the mountainside, killing themselves.

They were our friends and daughters, sorely missed.

That was years ago. I am still recovering from the images of a dying Jennifer with me helpless to intervene. I hated my job that Monday morning — what a sad story to deliver.

Last Monday I hated my job more than ever. The news that day told of some maniac who murdered four of our friends and neighbors on Friday night in a self-indulgent, under the influence of whatever, driving spree!

I wonder whose smile is missing today. How many more?

Action, a Permanent Scar," Feb. 27). They wrote, "and, equally so, to the problem of alcohol and drug abuse in our community."

Why are you overshadowing a week of reflection that should be set aside strictly for mourning the tragic loss of four innocent victims with substances we don't even know were involved in the accident?

If A.S. wants to be helpful, why not take the suggestions posted by Sally Jo Divis and make them a reality? Offer classes and discussions about mental illness, the signs of people who need help and what to do if, in fact, you think someone needs help.

Then, if A.S. still feels the need to sponsor a drug and alcohol awareness week, by all means go ahead, but not on the same day or week as the memorial. Let family, friends and members of this community take the time to mourn and deal with the great loss that they are feeling!

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

By Linda C. Black

Today's Birthday (March 2). Your house looks like an interesting place to be this year - frustrating sometimes, but interesting. In March, use the pressure you're feeling as motivation to get something you've always wanted. Your boss has big ideas in April, so find a way to fit into them. Experience is your teacher in May - watch out! Love and business clash in July, but business can wait. Cruise through autumn on the strength of what you've already accomplished. A breakthrough at work in December creates new possibilities, including a challenging assignment in February.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19). Today is a 6- Everything seems to be going along fine, and then - WHAP! - you run into a problem you hadn't anticipated. It could be something you forgot all about. That's why it's good to be on a team. Check with teammates to make sure you're headed in the right direction.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Today is a 6- You could get a raise or some sort of a bonus today. But don't brag about it. One of your friends is in a delicate financial situation. That sad-eyed look will make it hard for you to keep from giving him a loan. And you just know a loan isn't going to be good for him, don't you?

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Today is a 6- You can have a lot of fun today. In fact, too much fun. Don't get too rowdy, even if you think you can. The odds of the boss coming back unexpectedly are too great. Just assume somebody important is watching you.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Today is a 5- You need to do some work for someone else, and you have a lot of chores on your own list. What about fun? Don't you get any time for that? Actually, no. Not until Sunday. Schedule a hot date for then.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Today is a 6- You're so popular that it's hard to make time for practical matters. But if you don't, you could accidentally get yourself too far into debt. It can happen so quickly, too, so you'd better balance your checkbook before you go out.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Today is a 5- If you think everybody around you is crazy, well, you're right. You're the only one exercising any common sense. Your first instinct is to lay low, but that may not work. At least remind them of what they're trying to accomplish. Nicely, of course.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Today is a 7- You may get an enticing invitation, and wouldn't you love to just drop everything and go? Unfortunately, you haven't finished your work ahead of schedule. But don't fret: If you finish tomorrow, you can go.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Today is a 6- There are ways to save that you haven't discovered. You could be wasting resources or paying too much interest. Go after those pennies with a magnifying glass. You'll be delighted at how many you find.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Today is a 6- Your roommate wants one thing and you want another. All you can agree on is that change is necessary. You care enough about each other to work out a compromise. Explain that to a concerned yet innocent bystander.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Today is a 6- You're a hard worker, and never more so than now. You may have to do a job over again due to someone else's mistake. The good news is, you should be paid well for the work you're doing. You deserve it, because it's interfering with your social life.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Today is a 7- You'd like to shower your loved ones with goodies, and you'd also like to fund a worthy cause. But you're not made of money. Don't worry: What they really want is your attention. Still, dividing that up between them will be hard enough.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Today is a 5- Do you feel like everybody's leaning on you and there's not enough of you to go around? Well, you're right. Guess it's about time for you to set some limits. If you don't, who will?

[R]ather than dwelling on the horror of this tragedy, I would like to dwell on the beauty of life, of all the people around us.

— Michael Vos
Christopher Divis' roommate

everyone affected by the accident to appreciate his or her life in memory of the victims.

"On Sunday morning I went out to the beach here in Isla Vista and looked out at the ocean and saw how beautiful it was, and I just realized the beauty of life. And rather than dwelling on the horror of this tragedy, I would like to dwell on the beauty of life, of all the people around us. ... We have been given free will, and some of us use our free will to do evil, but a whole lot more of us can use our free will to do good," he said. "And I just want all of us to recognize the beauty of life and to use our free will to do good in memory of my friends Nick and Chris. ... I want to live a better life and I hope that all of us can live better lives in their memory as well as in the memories of the other victims of this horrible accident."

Mark Fox, a UCSB student and resident on the 6500 block of Sabado Tarde Road, said his friend

TRUC BUI / DAILY NEXUS

Close to 5,000 people crowd Storke Plaza at a memorial dedicated to the four victims and the injured. An open mic was provided and several people spoke, sang and read poetry.

Ryan Wood, who gave Albert Levy CPR at the scene of the incident, is responsible for shedding some light in this time of darkness.

"He is the gentleman, friend and savior, who not only saved the life of Albert Levy by administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but he also saved the hopes and dreams of the Levy family and friends. And through-out it all, maintained not only humbleness and grace and compassion, but also maintained a desire to receive no credit for his glorious actions."

Aida Clark, a SBCC student, said she lost her son to a drunken driver.

"I would hope that this community will support the parents two or three months from now," she said. "The grieving really comes later. ... The grieving comes around the kid's birthdays and holidays and stuff like that, and everybody's going to be busy about their business, and I just pray to God that this community will try to stay in contact with these parents, all the time."

Approximately 1,000 people proceeded to the site of the incident with candles and flowers, which were quietly laid in front of five memorials in Little Acorn Park and along Sabado Tarde Road.

Does your credit card bill bring tears to your eyes?
Is it getting hard to avoid people you owe money to?
Does your car need a new muffler, wheels, stereo, A/C, wipers, headlights, transmission and engine?

Register Now for Philosophy 6: "Business and Professional Ethics"

The class should be of interest to those planning careers in business, academia, medicine, law, politics, or computer technology. The first section of the course shall deal with affirmative action in businesses and colleges. We will look at the Court's decision in the famous UC Regents v. Bakke case, and then will examine articles that champion opposing sides regarding preferential treatment. The second section of the course will deal with moral dilemmas concerning privacy, secrets and deception. We shall examine issues surrounding bluffing in business, corporate insider trading, lying to very ill patients, and public exposure of a politician's private life. The third section of the class will deal with the topic of professional integrity. The dilemmas that a role morality and an adversary system of law present for ethical members of the bar will be investigated. We will also consider the difficulties that physician-assisted suicide and active euthanasia pose to the understanding doctors have of themselves as practitioners of a healing craft who have taken oaths to do no harm. Then we will look at the debate concerning the social responsibility of those running businesses. The fourth and final section of the course will deal with issues of economic justice. We shall examine the following topics: what is it that makes a contract exploitative; whether the distribution of wealth should be governed by egalitarian norms; or if differences in wealth can be justified on either the basis of merit, entitlement or utility; how intellectual property rights can be justified; and whether there is a need for a new sui generis intellectual property rights paradigm to protect computer programs. The student's grade will be determined by a short paper, section participation, and a multiple choice midterm and final. Outlines of class lectures will be posted on the web. The assigned essays will be collected in a course reader which can be purchased from Grafik Arts Copy Center for around $20. This course, Philosophy 6, was incorrectly listed as just "Business Ethics" in the spring schedule of classes. It is a course in business and professional ethics. If the course is full, come to class in the first week and pick up an add code. For more information, email the instructor at dbh11@mail.ucsb.edu

Gauchos Get Defensive; UOP Wilts

BY MATT HEITNER
Staff Writer

The UCSB women's basketball team does not particularly care for Pacific, and the Gauchos demonstrated their displeasure Thursday night at the Thunderdome.

Santa Barbara (18-8, 11-2) opened the second half with a 21-5 run to blow open a tight game, rolling to a 66-55 win. With the victory, UCSB clinched a share of the Big West Title and ran its winning streak to five games, yet the Gauchos aren't satisfied by any means.

"We don't want to tie with anybody," junior forward Kayte Christensen said. "We want to win [the conference title] outright, so Long Beach better be ready on Saturday."

Santa Barbara jumped out to an early 9-4 lead in front of a rambunctious home crowd of 2,146. However, UCSB then went cold and was held without a field goal for the next 10:08. The Gauchos were forced to rely on their defense to keep UOP within striking distance.

Led by the inspired play of senior forward Nicole Greathouse, UCSB stepped up its defensive pressure, forcing the Tigers into ill-advised shots.

The Gauchos used the charity stripe to their advantage, shooting 12-13 from the line in the first half. Pacific (16-10, 9-4) was unable to match UCSB's proficiency and finished only 6-13 from the stripe.

Greathouse finally ended Santa Barbara's field-goal drought with a layup to put UCSB up 25-21. But the Tigers caught fire, taking a 31-30 lead. Pacific point guard Selena Ho then punctuated the first half with a three-pointer to give the Tigers a 34-31 halftime lead.

Despite the Gauchos' defensive intensity, Pacific was still able to shoot 12-24 from the field in the first half. That statistic, however, only served as motivation for UCSB in the second period.

"I think it was definitely a memorable second half," Greathouse said. "[Pacific] was shooting .500 from the field, and that gave us automatic inspiration to play defense."

In the second half, Santa Barbara found its groove, dominating the Tigers in the final 20 minutes. UCSB began the second stanza with a 21-5 run and surged to a 51-39 lead. But the Gauchos' defense enabled them to take control, holding Pacific scoreless for a span of five minutes; Santa Barbara also forced the Tigers to 7-24 shooting for the period.

UCSB received clutch contributions from Christensen, who finished with a game-high 18 points, and sophomore guard Jess Hansen, who rang up 12 points.

"We were back on our heels in the first half," UCSB Head Coach Mark French said. "But Jess Hansen came out with fire in her eyes [in the second half], crashing the boards and shooting the ball well."

The Gauchos will now prepare for their Senior Day matchup with LBSU. A victory would give UCSB its fifth-straight, regular-season conference title.

"We're very excited about Long Beach coming to the T-dome," French said. "It will be fun — time to honor our seniors. There is nobody that we would rather play than Long Beach."

USU Ruins Santa Barbara in Second-Half Demolition UCSB Hopes to Oust #3 Buckeyes in Dual Meet

BY KIM CANTOR

If basketball was played in only one 20-minute period, the UCSB men's basketball team would have given the Aggies a run for their money Thursday night at Logan, Utah.

The Gauchos fought for one solid half of basketball against Utah State before tumbling in an 83-50 Aggie avalanche at Dee Glen Smith Spectrum. The Aggies' senior center Dimitri Jorssen led his team with a career-high 17 points and 10 rebounds, using an assortment of low post moves to make himself a dominant presence. Junior guard Tony Brown added 11 points for Utah State, drilling 3-6 three-pointers.

"They shot lights out on us," UCSB Head Coach Bob Williams said on 1250 AM. "Jorssen had a career night. He got his confidence as his team did. ... Our inability to respond when the game gets physical is the difference. We really seem to struggle in those games."

For the first time all season, Santa Barbara (13-13, 9-6 in the Big West) did not have one player score in double-figures. Junior forward Mike Vukovich and freshman swingman Branduinn Fullove led UCSB with nine points apiece.

Sophomore point guard B.J. Ward was a bright spot for UCSB, going 4-4 from the free throw line, dishing three of the team's nine assists and grabbing a team-high six boards.

The Gauchos kept the game interesting for the first half. The Aggies (23-5, 12-3) jumped to a quick 7-0 start. USU went up 12-4 behind Jorssen's six early points before UCSB started chipping away at the lead. Santa Barbara jumped ahead 25-23 on a trey from freshman guard Nick Jones with 3:26 in the opening half.

"I liked how we could control the game [at times in the first half]," Williams said.

UCSB forced the Aggies into 10 first-half turnovers, and the Gauchos only trailed 31-27 at intermission. But the Aggies knuckled down at the onset of the second half.

The Aggies went on a 12-0 burst, the second of their big runs; USU was ignited by guard Dion Bailey's layup, who replaced senior forward Curtis Bobb within the first Aggie possession. Bailey's shot had a domino effect, and Utah State outscored the Gauchos by an astounding 52-23 in the final 20 minutes of the blowout.

The Gauchos will battle Boise State on Saturday at 7 p.m. in the regular season finale.

"[BSU] is always very good," Williams said. "They're awfully physical, and it will be their senior night. They come at you tenaciously."

Gauchos Trounce Loyola Marymount

The UCSB baseball team returned to action Thursday afternoon, destroying Loyola Marymount, 15-4.

Santa Barbara opened the scoring in the second inning with back-to-back home runs from senior third baseman Dave Molitor and junior first baseman Tyler Von Schell.

UCSB then added a run in the third, before scoring three more in the fourth inning, including sophomore center fielder Skip Shumaker's first home run of the season.

The Gauchos then exploded for eight runs in the fifth inning. Senior shortstop Jeff Bannon hit a three-run homer.

Von Schell then finished UCSB's scoring barrage with his second home run of the day in the eighth inning.

Junior pitcher James Garcia picked up the win for Santa Barbara. Garcia pitched six strong innings, giving up only two runs while striking out five.

UCSB Hopes to Oust #3 Buckeyes in Dual Meet

BY KIM CANTOR
Reporter

After a successful meet against Air Force on Feb. 25, the UCSB men's gymnastics team hopes to continue to rise to the occasion for a dual meet with #3 Ohio State tonight at 7 in Rob Gym.

As a result of the Gauchos outstanding score of 197.350 that placed them second in the triple meet, their latest meet proved to be triumphant. Sophomore Geoffrey Howell, who is currently ranked 11th in the nation, led Santa Barbara. Howell recorded a first-place tally for the parallel bars with a score of 8.80 and finished with an all-around score of 49.150.

Freshman Andre Badilla also performed well for UCSB while competing in the vault, garnishing a first-place score of 8.90. Sophomore Daniel Levine finished second all around in the triple meet.

The Gauchos are looking forward to competing against the Buckeyes and hope their strong performance last week will propel them tonight.

"[The team is] loaded mentally and physically," UCSB Head Coach Mircea Badulescu said. "We want to do great and keep up the same way. ... We are very focused."

Santa Barbara is also strongly concentrating on its technique and routines.

"At this point in the season, we all have our routines down, so now it's just a matter of perfecting them and smoothing all the rough edges," Howell said. "We're mainly focused on hitting our routines as a team and keeping the team spirit strong."

Although Ohio State is considered one of the top squads in the nation, the Gauchos will try and continue to keep a positive attitude.

"We are pushing really hard," junior team captain Michael Kelley said. "We are competing against ourselves [in practice] and there is really no pressure. ... This year we are training harder than the last two years. ... Intensity is up."
