F.M. Interview with a Dancing Man

One of the most colorful Isla Vistas to strut the streets is Richard Price, better known as the Leprechaun. The Leprechaun is often seen during the day, pushing a broom or picking up trash, doing his part to help beautify the most densely populated square mile west of the Mississippi. Yet, the Lep does more than sweep ... he performs. All he needs is some loud rock and roll and maybe a cup of golden fuel and the magic begins. The broom jumps into his hands, transformed into the guitar of Jimmy Page, or maybe Keith Richards. His hands, wavering excitedly, gliding in unison with the sound waves that swell and crash through a timeless space. OK, so perhaps you might only see an old, sun-toughened street person acting the dancing fool. That may be a more real description but what you must keep in mind, and heart, is that reality is only an extension of individual perception.

F.M.: How long you've been in Isla Vista?

Richard: I got here the last week of August, 1969.

F.M.: How does the attitude of the town back then compare with the attitude now?

R: Well, back then it was more of a central network and people were out to help each other. Nowadays, it's every man for himself.

F.M.: What do you mean?

R: It's like this with many of the so-called "street (See LEPRECHAUN, p.7D)

Welcome (?) Back

Welcome back. It's a happy phrase you will hear a thousand different times over the next week. But whether you see it in the Daily Nexus, The Disorientation Manual or hear it spoken by freshly-tanned professors and smiling friends, it seems to have an almost ominous tone.

Oh sure, most people mean well when they bid you, as Winnie the Pooh would call it, greetings and salutations. But their smiling faces seem to imply a whole list of atrocities to be suffered over the next few weeks: you will soon have to stand in evil lines to get your books and to change your classes, not to mention the fresh batch of hangovers you will suffer and the fact that you once again will have to begin studying things like the history of Brazil.

Meanwhile, as more and more bodies begin to drift back into town over the next week, this quiet little beach town is once again transformed into a seething metropolis, complete with long lines at the grocery store and having to drive around the block 10 times to find a parking space. (Let's just face it, when the people who have lived here all summer say "welcome back," they probably don't mean it.) No, it's not a pretty picture we at (See INTRO, p.5D)

Mac Bob Speaks: The Angriest Student at UCSB

KEITH MADIGAN/Daily Nexus

I've always thought that spelling was objective; it was either right or wrong. I realize now that it's subjective and based on opinion and I'm tired of Webster's opinion. Who's Webster anyway? God? If that's the case then why are half the words in the Bible spelled wrong? Maybe Webster is the Antichrist and spelled the words wrong on purpose. But what do I know? I thought Reagan was the Antichrist.

Why should we all have to spell the same? We're individuals! We don't smell the same, dress the same or talk the same, but we spell the same. This is America, not Russia. I think this Webster guy was a pinko. An example is pinko. What's with the "k"? In Bob's

"j". An let's get rid of the second "f" and the "e"; they're only wasting paper.

The MacBob's dicshunary is efishint, no unesasary letters. Not only does it save paper, it saves time as wel. In this age of fast food, we need fast spelling. For thos of yu who typ 60 words

This is America, not Russia. I think this Webster's guy was a pinko.

it's spelled "pinco." The "k" is axed. There's no need for both a "c" and a "k." In the MacBob's dicshunary we spel things the way they sound. "Philosophy" is "filosofy." "Giraffe" is "jiraf." A "g" shooud sound lik a "g", not a a minit, 80 wood be eezy and 100 posibl.

I spel the way I speec. If yu beelev in America, a free America, then yu tu wil spel the way yu speec. If yu need help geting started, order yor MacBob's dicshunary today.

INTRO

Friday Magazine tend to paint but hey, welcome back!

While most of you were gone this summer, you missed some wacky escapades by members of our community. One of which was some more corrupt adventures by our friends at A.S. It seems that a few members of the staff thought it would be amusing to call up some 976 sex lines (we hope just as a joke) and in the process managed to run up few hundred dollars in phone bill. Friday Magazine thought it would be funny to call up one of the numbers and see what we were missing out on and then print what they said. However, it turns out it was just too offensive to be funny. (For the curious, dial 976-STUD; if you're produce-minded, push 3 for the banana story.) Speaking of corruption, it seems that Bob "fingers in the pie" Huttenback was found guilty of various acts of appropriation, but although he was found guilty he won't have to do any jail time. It would not have seemed so bad if it had not been for a photo in the News-Press of Bob grinning smugly at the sentencing.

However, fear not, as all is not as bleak as it may seem. We're here to help you through the madness and the dullness of the upcoming year. And "Why?" you may ask. Because Friday Magazine is your friend. As our drowsy summer turns into the daily grind of fall (there are no weather analogies that can be made in I.V., except maybe that fall means less fog) Friday Magazine is ready. We have all kinds of good weirdness planned and we are armed for any future strangeness. Remember, we have a perfectly plausible alternative to any good idea you might have.

F.M. Presents: Your First Week of School as a Computer Flow Chart

Here at Friday Magazine the belief is that human existence is highly overrated. For the most part, what may seem original or exclusive to your condition is really an unseen series of patterns (see Tony Ozuna's article on loops below), or to make a modern analogy: life is like a computer program. The problem is you only have eyes in the front of your head and therefore cannot see the program you are caught up in. Occasionally, though, you are provided with a rare glimpse of insight, a bird's eye view of your world. Follow our simple flow chart and see how most of us spend the first week of school.

Student Caught in Loop!

One thing that you should be aware of while at UCSB is loops. Loops are endless cycles of similar activities that human beings have a tendency to get caught up in; they are something like living in the symbol for infinity. Well, just to set things straight, loops are certainly not exclusive to UCSB or UCSB students. Freshmen may be starting this year in a loop anyway. Love loops, music loops, fashion loops. Smoke any pot lately? Loops. Loops are actually fundamental to our human existence. Loops are essential for continuity and stability. However, loops may also be dangerous by limiting your groups of friends or experiences. Be on the watch for detrimental loops: Looking around Isla Vista, I think the best example of a person in a loops would be "the mayor." The mayor has lived in or around the El Embarcadero Loop for eons. But, beyond his physical attraction to "the loop," the mayor is also in a beer and 60s rock loop. I walk past the mayor at least once a day and he's always drinking a quart of Budweiser and his radio is always playing some 60s throwback rock. Same thing, over and over, day in day out. In loops, there's motion but not progress. Get it? The mayor is probably the most obvious loop in Isla Vista, but, there certainly are others. Pizza Bob's loop. Sam's to Go loop. Count-down loops.

One special characteristic of Fall Quarter is that everyone appears to have just broken a loop of some sort. The summer loop is over. Everyone has new classes, new roommates and we're all meeting new people. Eventually, though, all of the newness will evolve into another loop. Not that loops are bad, but at least you should be aware of them. Watch out for falling loops. Loops come in all sizes and colors. Loops can last minutes, hours, days and years. I've been in a political science loop since high school. Imagine the caged gerbil frantically running in his exercise wheel. He's in a loop. Former Chancellor Huttenback is in a swine loop.

— Tony Ozuna

LEPRECHAUN

people." When someone has something people are always willing to take but when the takers have something they seldom give. I wish it was more of a sharing thing. I give when I can and it usually isn't much but at least it means that everybody has something and nobody has nothing.

F.M.: What about the attitude of the students? How has that changed?

R: They seem to be more conservative, like, like they all got short hair, and they all look clean.

F.M.: Do people treat you differently because of your appearance?

R: No, people usually treat me pretty good. I cut my hair and trimmed my beard in order to kinda fit in, and it came out OK.

This was true. The Leprechaun was definitely looking sporty in the pink button-down, the black cotton loafers and the wraparound glacier glasses.

F.M.: So what do you think about this time of year, just before classes begin, when the sororities are having rush?

R: Oh, oh yeah, it always blows my mind. I'm never prepared for it even though I know it's that time of the year and it's always gonna happen. You know, the other day I was over at Roma, where I have to go in a few minutes to clean the place. I'm standing by the phone booth trying to light a Pall Mall when all of a sudden I get a strange feeling that ... "What? Here comes 400 girls walking down the street. It's like 'wow,' I just kinda stand there dumbfounded, like 'what?' What can you say, a one-liner, to 400 girls that just happen to walk by and they're all wearing little nametags? I wish I had a nametag.

KEITH MADIGAN/Daily Nexus

F.M.: So what did you do?

R: I just stood there; well actually, I saluted, and I stood there for as long as I could and just waited for them to walk by and then I went "WOOO" ... and they cracked up and went "what?"

At this point I couldn't help thinking that these 400 young innocents couldn't have had a better initiation into I.V. than to be christened with a "WOOO" from the Leprechaun, his lucky whammy.

F.M.: Everyone knows that you love to rock out. Who's your favorite band?

R: Mmm, I think right off the bat ZZ Top.

F.M.: How come? Because you look like them?

R: No. Just ... the way they play. It's like get-down blues. You know, like try and ignore this. It gets right into it, you know, the mind of a rhythm guitarist. It puts you right there, and then all of a sudden ... (See LEPRECHAUN, p.10D)

EXISTENTIAL?

Probably the coolest thing that ever happened in Storke Plaza was the appearance of Rev. Jesse Jackson a few months ago when the place was packed armpit to earlobe on an early summer's sunny day. Other than that, not a hell of a lot goes on there.

During the schoolyear, there are loads of protest rallies and speeches by environmentalists, religious fanatics and activists in general at the steps nearest the UCen. Much eating of lunches amidst all this.

Since there's all that space out there that generally goes unused, the administration could do well to install some monkey-bars and see-saws etc. to give students something to do at lunch and between classes. Think about it, when you're in your formative school years, there's all this great stuff to play on during your free time. Now, you just sit around and get fat.

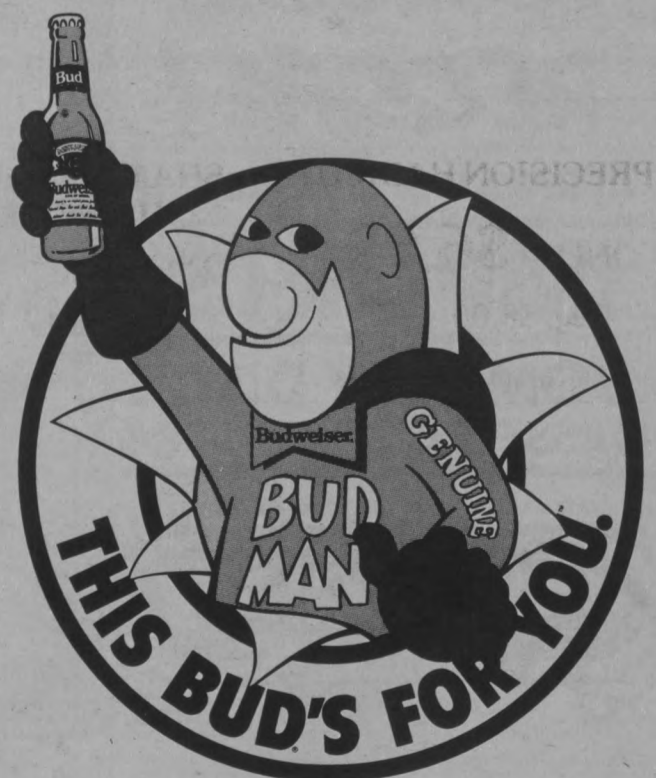

No one really knows what to do with the plaza's cement pond. There used to be a fountain in its middle that could be likened to plane crash shrapnel. But that was scrapped in favor of a lone Oddly enough the central place on campus is the best place to be left alone. It's not bad to look at if you don't like trees. Not to mention it has a pond, just don't look inside of it while you're eating.

Gazing carefully through the dense floatillas of scum which blow about the pond's surface, you may notice actual schools of fish that have either evolved from germs in a matter of months, or were abandoned by some stupid suck who was cutting town.

One has to wonder about the well-being of these guys. What does that blue tint stuff that's dumped in the water to make it look nice do to their systems? Imagine living in a blue world. The poor guys probably get real bad headaches from that stuff.

It's kind of a sick thought, but one has to wonder what it would look like if you sliced one of them in half. Would their little brains and guts be permeated with the blue?

Despite all the cheap complaints one can muster about the aesthetic and pragmatic lackings of Storke Plaza, it is one of several places on campus that are great to go to and do nothing. Perhaps that's what the late Pulitzer Prize winning Thomas More Storke had in mind when he kicked out a large sum of cash many years ago to build the plaza, the tower and all the communications offices at its base.

Thanks Tom.

LEPRECHAUN

WOOWOOO ... I can't help but react, and it feels good, you know, to dance around.

F.M.: So were you dancing around back when the riots were going on?

R: Well, let's see. When the bank was burning, I was standing across the street over at what used to be Borsodi's. Then, it was a Stop and Go market. So some guy comes up to me and says, "Hey, we're gonna torch this place tonight, you gotta see this." I say, "Huh, oh, cool." So I bought a bag of marshmallows and found a coat hanger in the meantime, and was standing across the street when all of a sudden the C2 went off, the dynamite went off, and a couple of hand grenades and whatever kind of explosive that you got...

F.M.: Hand grenades?

R: Yeah, some type of fragmentary thing. So anyways the roof blew. It just went "BOOM!" You know they raised the roof up ... four inches and then it caught on fire and burned all night. There wasn't a cop in sight ... ain't seen nothing but since ... but that's all right. Anyway, I'm standing across the street with the marshmallows and a hanger and well "FDIC." "Well, as long as we got a blaze might as well roast some 'mallows." So they took a picture of it and put it in the paper the next day and the headlines read something like MAN TOASTING MALLOWS WHILE BANK BURNS TO

Interview by
Trent Eldridge

THE GROUND.

F.M.: Wow! It must have been pretty wild hanging out in those days.

R: Yeh, I was just standing there watching all this stuff go down. Another time I was over on Pardall, in the street. There were all kinds of people in the street ready to riot. Over on campus there was some guy on top of the underpass. The whole underpass was lined with cops in riot gear. This one guy had a rifle, it was a grenade launcher, but instead of a grenade it was loaded with tear gas. So he leveled the gun and aimed it right between my eyes and fired. It was like 500 yards away and then all of a sudden I see this rocket coming toward my head. So I hit the deck and it hit a wall right behind me and tear gas went everywhere. People started scattering, the police started running ... and so did I. If I had been standing there it would have hit me right between the eyes. It was a perfect shot, 500 yards away. The guy was a marksman. It was scary.

F.M.: I can imagine. So how do you see your future? Ducking more rockets?

R: I think I'll be all right; as long as everybody just leaves me alone I'll be OK. I just gotta keep steppin'.

F.M.: Keep what?

R: Keep steppin'. You know, you gotta stay two steps ahead of people that are trying to put you in a cage or something, that try to bottle you up. I can feel it start to happen. When somebody wants to bottle you up even before they do it ... I'm gone. I disappear. I'm invisible.

Spiritual healing. There's so much more to it than the usual media images of "faith healing."

More love. More reason. More hard work. And yes, more evidence of actual healing.

Spiritual Healing in a Scientific Age looks at the broad experience of healing over the years in the lives of Christian Scientists. Not merely a denominational study, the book provides thoughtful perspective — and a moving body of testimony — on a subject that deserves to be better understood by people of all faiths.
