Brutal Weekend Attack in I.V. Hospitalizes 3 Male Students

■ Victims Say Group Was Armed With Clubs, Bicycle U-Locks, Rocks

BY MARISA LAGOS
Staff Writer

Three Isla Vista residents were reportedly assaulted by 10 to 12 male suspects at the intersection of Camino Pescadero and Pardall Road at approximately 2 a.m. on Saturday, May 19.

UCSB students Jesse Jecman and David White and SBCC student James Ford said they were walking southbound on Camino Pescadero when a group of Hispanic males, all approximately 18 to 22 years old, assaulted them with clubs, socks filled with rocks and bicycle U-locks.

White suffered a broken arm, head lacerations, and cuts and bruises to the neck, arms, shoulders, back and hands. Ford, who was knocked unconscious for the majority of the altercation, sustained injuries to his face, including a broken nose and cheekbone and chipped teeth. Jecman said he was struck in the head, chest and back with clubs and other weapons, and suffered bruises and internal bleeding.

White said the incident began at approximately 12 a.m. when a group of subjects standing on Camino del Sur "taunted" and harassed a group of his friends, including 20-year-old John Farhang. At about 1 a.m., White, Farhang, Jecman, Ford and two other subjects were at Freebirds Burritos when they recognized three of the males from the altercation earlier and decided to follow them out of the restaurant, according to White.

"We were at Freebirds when we saw the three guys," White said. "Those guys, and 10 others, were stomping their feet and being assholes to our friends earlier. Six of us that were eating at Freebirds followed them and said, 'We know you guys were causing trouble.' They said, 'Oh, no, it wasn't us.' We walked to Silvergreen's, and they were on their cell phones, calling their friends to kick our asses, but we didn't know that yet."

Ford, Jecman and White split from their friends and were walking home toward Sueño Road when they were attacked, White said.

"When they went to hit [Ford] I didn't realize they had weapons," White said. "They formed a semicircle around me and I put up my fists, and then realized they had U-locks for bikes and other weapons. I tried to punch a guy to get

Authorities Discover Child Pornography in Santa Ynez Residence

UCSB student Kyle Lopin was charged with felony distribution of child pornography on May 17 after a month-long police investigation.

UC Police Dept. and Santa Barbara Sheriff's Dept. detectives located the 21-year-old Lopin's residence, in Santa Ynez off-campus university housing, and seized his computer from his residence for examination. A forensic search of his computer revealed photos of pornography, child pornography and bestiality, according to a UCPD statement.

The investigation began on April 19, when the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children traced the suspect's computer operation to the UCSB area with the help of an anonymous tip.

The National Center notified the UCSB police, whose detectives collaborated with the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's High-Tech Crimes Detectives to investigate the location of the operation. After completion, the investigation was forwarded to the Santa Barbara County District Attorney's office, where the felony charges were filed Thursday.

Lecturer Advocates Union of Social Responsibility, Science

BY JOSH BRAUN
Reporter

Technophiles and humanitarians found a rare common ground Friday in Isla Vista Theater in the lecture of renowned physicist and science writer Freeman Dyson, who spoke on technology and social justice as part of the "Science, Religion and the Human Experience" series.

Nobel Laureate Walter Kohn introduced Dyson and gave a brief overview of his impact on the field of physics. Dyson's greatest achievement was mathematically uniting the opposing theories of Richard Feynman and Julian Schwinger in the field of Quantum Electrodynamics in the 1960s. Kohn described Dyson as a "scientific marriage counselor" in his role of uniting the two theories. Since that time he has made continued contributions to the field and become known as a great popularizer of science.

Dyson's lecture focused on the ways in which technology can be used to improve the condition of the poor.

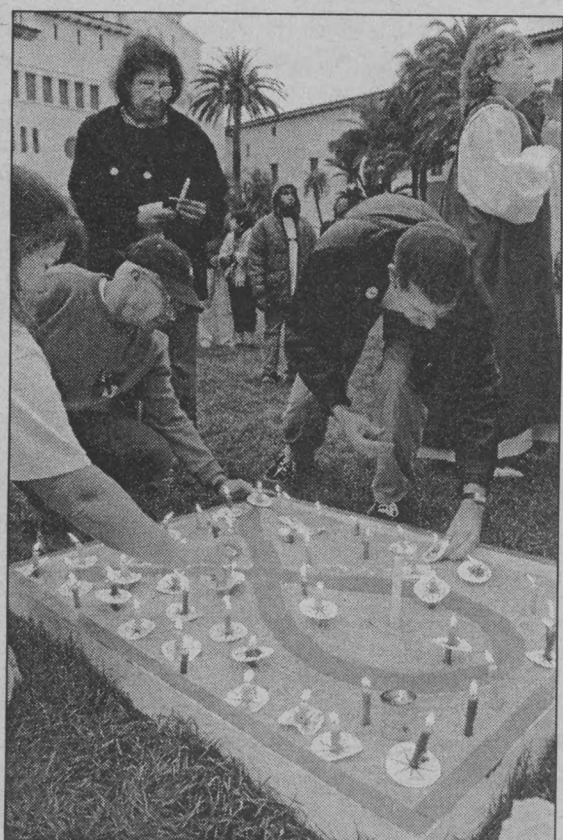

"If the miseries of the poor in Africa and elsewhere are to be alleviated, tools derived from science and ethical principles derived from religion are both essential," he said. "That's an area where science and religion can fruitfully work together."

"I hold it to be ethically unacceptable to tolerate the gross inequalities that prevail in the world today," he said. "I hold it to be intellectually unacceptable to abandon the pursuit of scientific knowledge and the technological power that scientific knowledge inevitably brings with it."

However, Dyson said that in order to make progress on either front, people must ask two questions.

"First," he said, "can we pursue

Cheney Backs Bush's Gas, Energy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capping electricity prices or pressuring the Oil Producing and Exporting Countries (OPEC) to cut oil prices will not solve U.S. energy problems, Vice President Dick Cheney said Sunday in defending a Bush administration energy plan that stresses production over conservation.

While Democrats want immediate relief for California's power crisis, there were few encouraging words from Cheney, who led a task force that developed the Bush plan.

"They got into trouble in California over a period of years, and it's going to take two or three years to get out of it," Cheney told CBS' "Face the Nation." "There are going to be blackouts this summer."

For the short term, the administration has approved California Gov. Gray Davis' requests to expedite permits for new power plants and has ordered federal offices in the state to reduce energy consumption this summer by 10 percent.

Sen. Barbara Boxer said she was appalled that President George W. Bush is not considering price caps or investigating com-

If dairy farmers sought as much profit as oil companies — in some cases, 1,600 percent — a gallon of milk would cost $190, she said.

Cheney said the answer to longterm price stability lies in building more oil refineries in the United States and in reviewing a is some kind of conspiracy, whether it's the oil companies or whoever it might be, instead of dealing with the real issues," Cheney told NBC's "Meet the Press."

He criticized Davis for what he called a "hare-brained scheme" to use the state's budget surplus to buy power.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott said Congress should look into at least temporarily suspending the federal gas tax, which is 18.4 cents per gallon.

Cheney, however, said that would pose problems for the nation's highway trust fund, which relies on that tax to build and maintain the country's transportation infrastructure.

Describing himself as a "pretty good environmentalist," Cheney also responded to criticism from some environmental groups that he did not meet with them before issuing the energy plan, because he is beholden to energy producers who gave millions of dollars to the Bush campaign.

EU Considers Banning Tobacco Ads From Media

out earlier planned restrictions.

The latest proposal should be finished by early next month, despite opposition from Germany and Austria, EU Health Commissioner David Byrne told Die Welt.

Byrne said the measure is meant to reduce smoking among people under 18, who make up about 80 percent of new smokers. "We have to protect our youth," he said, according to an advance copy of an article to be published Monday.

The previous ban, which was to have taken effect this year, would have prohibited advertising of tobacco products on billboards, in movie theaters and on promotional items like umbrellas and ashtrays used in hotels and restaurants.

The European Commission had argued it wanted to end unfair trade advantages since some EU nations already prohibited tobacco advertising. But the European Court of Justice overturned the ban last October, saying the issue at stake was not trade but public health, over which the commission has less regulatory authority.

Byrne said the new draft would take careful account of the ruling, which "defined very exactly the room for maneuver that we still have."

The commission has greater powers to rule on advertising in newspapers, magazines and the Internet because they are often run in more than one of the EU's 15 member states, he said.

Germany, which has no advertising ban, voted against the original ban. It led the court challenge along with several tobacco and advertising companies, who have warned that thousands of jobs will be lost across the EU because of anti-smoking legislation.

The industry protested in vain against tough new legislation on tobacco marketing adopted Tuesday by the European Parliament. The measures will force companies to cut the level of tar and nicotine in cigarettes and could oblige them to print color photographs of stained teeth or diseased lungs on packets.

Byrne has said he wants to cut the number of smokers in the European Union to one-fifth of the population instead of the current one-third.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The world's largest record company said Sunday it is acquiring MP3.com for $372 million in cash and stock, eight months after beating the online music provider in court.

Paris-based Vivendi Universal said the deal will advance its efforts to create an online digital music subscription service.

Vivendi said it was a friendly transaction, approved by the board of San Diego-based MP3.com, and it expects that more than 50 percent of the company's shareholders will vote for it.

MP3.com shareholders will be paid $5 for each share they own or receive stock in Vivendi worth $5, or a combination of both, Vivendi said. Shares of MP3.com traded at $3.01 on the Nasdaq stock exchange at Friday's close.

Vivendi Universal owns Universal Music Group and Universal Studios, a 51 percent stake in European pay-TV provider Canal, and other holdings.

The company said its acquisition of MP3.com will let it reach more than 40 million more registered users on the Internet.

BEIJING (AP) — Rescuers in southern China were trying Sunday to reach 29 gypsum miners trapped below ground by a collapse, but said the chances of finding any alive were fading. At another Chinese mine, officials said rescuers were trying to save 38 miners trapped when a shaft flooded.

"Although the hopes of finding miners alive are dim, we believe some miners could have survived," said an official at the gypsum mine in Beihai in the Guangxi region of southern China, where the cave-in trapped the miners Friday morning.

"We are trying our best," said the official, who gave only his surname, Duan. So far, no bodies or survivors have been found, he said.

State media reports previously said the trapped miners probably had about two days of air in the mine, where official Xinhua News Agency said temperatures rose as high as 104 degrees.

How the University Buried the Broida Bikepath Unans

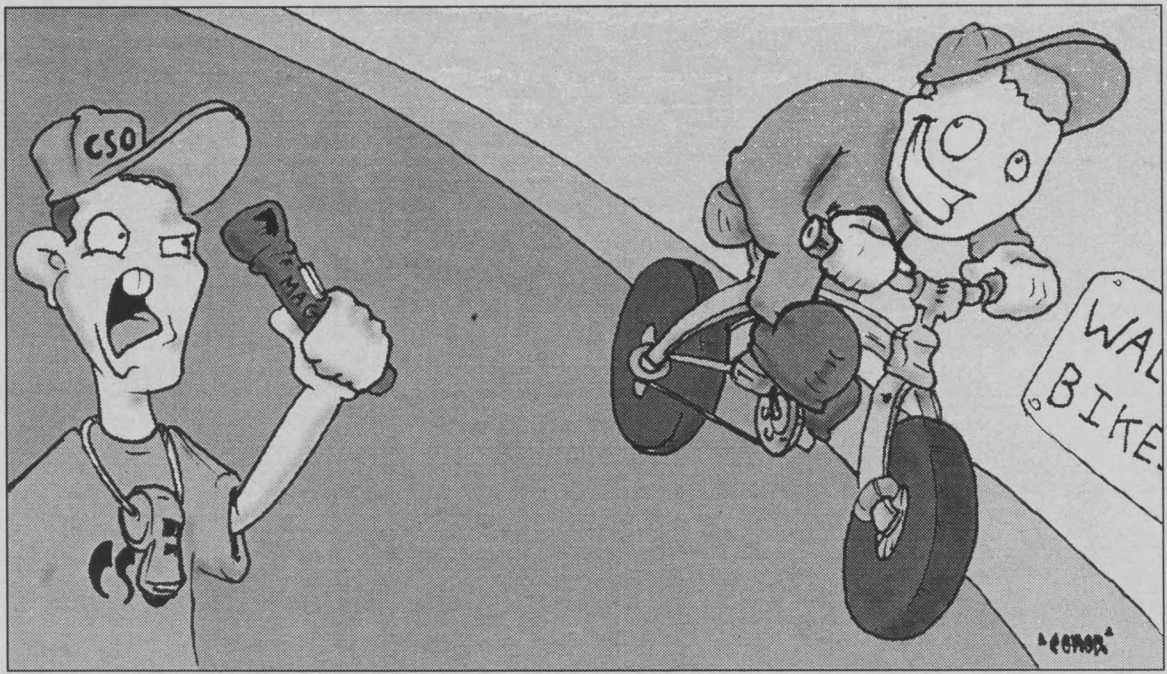

JIM DALTON

I am writing in response to Tye Simpson's letter (The Reader's Voice, "Design Review Committee Backs Bikepath Concept," May 15). I found the letter to be a misrepresentation of the facts. It is true that, in theory, the Design Review Committee claims to approve of completing the cross-campus bikepath. Last year the DRC commented favorably on a plan that would require a complete redesign of the Broida Plaza. Specifically, the removal of all five "temporary" Engineering trailers was required. To fail to acknowledge the reality that there is no anticipated date for the removal of these Engineering trailers and the admission by most administrators on campus that the trailers will be there for the foreseeable future is to overstate the DRC's approval of a Broida bikepath.

The reason the DRC delayed the proposed modified Broida plan was not, as Tye Simpson said, due to the stripped down nature of the proposal but due to the development of long-range area plans that the DRC requested by a team of outside consultants. In private conversations with the outside consultants, I found them to be urging the campus to reconsider the priority bikes have on campus. One individual even went as far as to suggest the solution to this would be to ban bikes from campus altogether.

The plan the DRC rejected was not a stripped-down version. It was developed at a cost of approximately $20,000 by a reputable design firm, RRM Design. These designers were selected for their familiarity with bikepath design and are recognized in their field. The plan would have moved one trailer, cut down one fungus infected pine tree and one small eucalyptus tree and redesigned both ends of the bikepath and the seating area outside Webb Hall. The path would have been buffered on both sides by landscaping and protective hardscape to ensure the safety of pedestrians. The projected cost of this project was $400,000.

I will stand behind my statement that the DRC did indeed indefinitely delay any cross-campus bikepath.

CONOR BUCKLEY / DAILY NEXUS

The plan presented was not a stripped-down version with a strip of asphalt through the plaza, as stated by Tye Simpson. It was a professionally designed plan that could have delivered a bikepath within 14 months. Instead, it seems we will have to wait for the removal of the trailers in Broida — five to 10 years — or wait for the area plans to be adopted and the biology buildings removed — 10 to 20 years — before this project is completed. Currently, without a bikepath in place, hundreds of bicyclists are forced to ride illegally through this area every day. Some make it through unmolested. Others receive a $77 ticket for riding on the sidewalk. Enforcement works temporarily, but a much better option is to design an effective system.

Also, UCSB is a custodian for a segment of the California Coastal Bike Trail. This trail runs between the Engineering and Chemistry buildings. This bike path will be closed for several months during the summer and currently no alternative route has been identified. On the one hand, members of the administration claim to support bikepaths; on the other hand, actions speak louder than words.

I know there are both faculty and administrators who would like to see a bike-free campus. I think they are wrong. When students were asked to support bikepaths on campus with a lock-in fee, 84 percent voted in favor. The most often requested improvement is the Broida expressway — over 1,000 students have signed petitions. Both the Graduate Student Association and the Associated Students Legislative Council have passed resolutions in support of this path, and now, four years after my advocacy for completion of this missing segment, we are perhaps farther from success than ever before. Every bike on campus is one less car. It's time to get proactive and support bicycle commuting and transportation at UCSB.

PUT A SOCK ON IT — LEARN ABOUT CONDOMS AND HEALTHY, SAFE SEX

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Two years ago at my family reunion, my 16-year-old cousin confided in me that she was dating the boy across the street without her parents' knowledge. Three months later she was pregnant. She had her child and eloped to Reno with her child's father. Currently, she is 18 and seven months pregnant with her second child. As a peer health educator, trained in sexual health, I want to grab her and scream "Birth control! Condoms! Norplant! Whatever it takes!"

Since it is too late for my own family, I turn to you, my fellow students of UCSB. The goal is to enable all students to be in control of their own sexual activities. The point is to prove that we may be sexually charged young adults, but we are sexually charged young adults with enough sense to think of our future at the same time. There is too much at risk not to.

Safer sex deals not only with preventing unwanted pregnancies, but also with preventing the spread of sexually transmitted diseases. The most recent statistics from our own Student Health Center show that the human papilloma virus (HPV), also known as genital warts, is the number one STD on our campus. An amazing 75 percent of UCSB women have genital warts, and 3 to 9 percent do not show symptoms at all but are still able to transmit the virus through skin-on-skin contact. HPV is a virus, so it never actually goes away, but it can be treated and it may go into remission where it is not contagious. Other popular STDs include herpes, chlamydia and gonorrhea.

In order to protect ourselves from unwanted pregnancy and STDs we have to be prepared to use prevention methods. The most effective method for protecting against STDs is the male condom with spermicide. Spermicide contains Nonoxynol-9, which has been shown to kill some sexually transmitted viruses. As for birth control, condoms are 86 percent effective against pregnancy. Birth control pills and other oral contraceptives are estimated at 99 percent effective. The Student Health Center has a ton of safer sex options for you and your partner to choose from.

On Tuesday, May 22, the sexual health peers will be putting on our annual Safer Sex Fair in Storke Plaza. The fair promotes all safer sex practices. Peers will be at hand to answer any of your safer sex questions. Anything from "How effective is a Norplant?" (99 percent) to "Does jumping up and down after sex get the sperm out?" (No) can be answered. And while you are there, why not play a game of "woody bowling" or "condom darts."

Also, keep your eyes peeled for sexual health peers in bright orange shirts passing out free condoms during our CONDOM ALERT on Monday, May 21. So this is my call to you, UCSB: Empower yourselves! Be in control of your body, your health and your future (there will be free condoms). Even if UCSB students not having sex, you can protect your cousins, just in case.

ATTN: BIKE THIEVES BACK MY BELOVED

Editor, Daily Nexus:

It's Monday, 9:20 p.m. About two hours ago I was in Studio 4D class to find an empty space to study. I knew you know the feeling — "kinda shitty" — and swallowed my desire to grab the nearest bike. I walked into my head accompanied by the realization that I had to swallow that desire again.

I walked home fuming. My roommate asked me, "Did you steal a bike?" Everyone has been fucked up or another; in fact, this isn't the first time.

Hence the letter to the Nexus. I'm writing this paper each day and considering the fact that at least a few of these readers must be you, your ear if you're one of these people.

I loved my bike. It was a new and shiny. I had a basket on the front. My dad bought it for me. I inscribed my name all over it for just such a day.

So if you've stolen yourself a nice bike, please, please, take a look down at the back of the bike. "MEGAN MESSINA" on them? Yes? That twinge of guilt and now be decent. If you're in the CSO office or hell, email me at <missm@ucsb.edu> you a dirty look when I come to pick it up for you; you didn't spend $150.00 on it.

Unanswered Questions Should Euthanize the Death Penalty

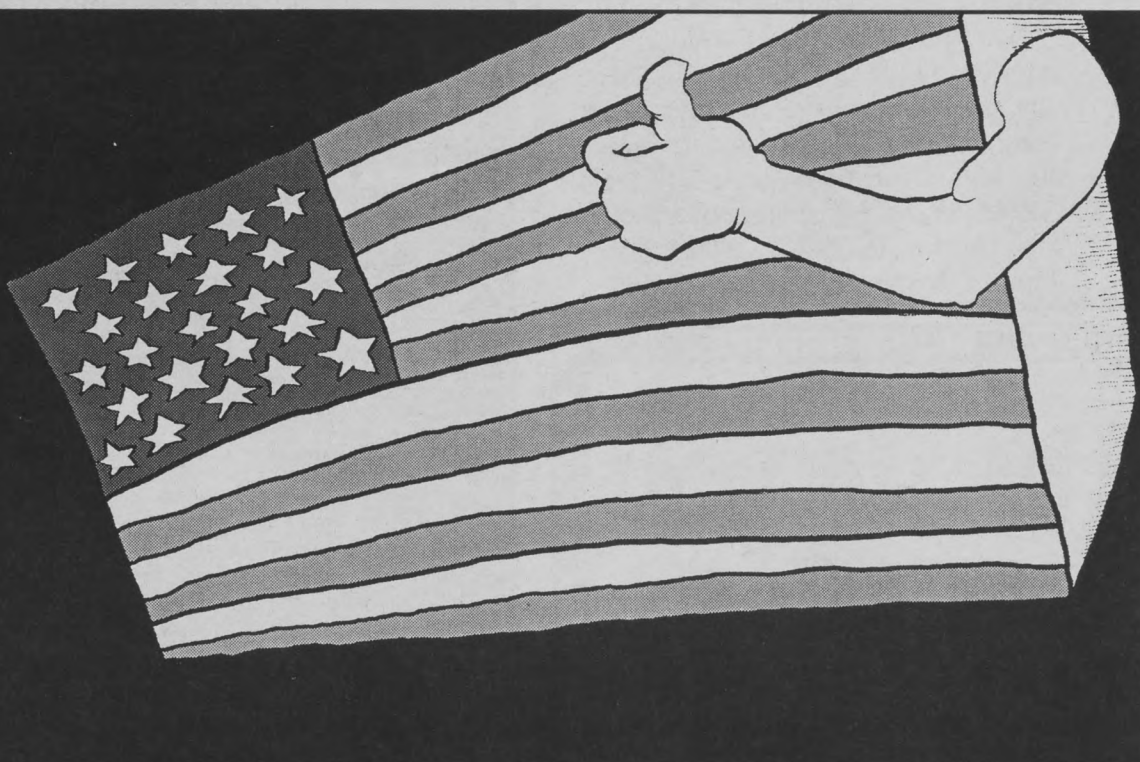

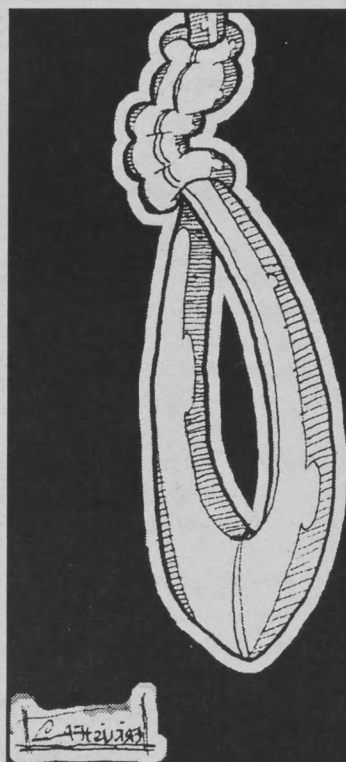

STEVEN RUSZCZYCKY

Timothy's latest incarnation of evil, Timothy McVeigh, has had his execution stayed after yet another appeal. He grew up by the FBI, following in the footsteps of his father, a member of the White Aryan Circle. Also during that time, tapes of executions from Georgia were released. Both occurrences seemed to bring capital punishment back into the spotlight, with the majority of Americans demanding blood.

The evidence, which amounts to a little over 3,000 pages, was discovered two years ago, but news of its existence trickled into Washington, proving once again that the truth does tend to fess up to their mistakes. News of the evidence reached the ears of the media, and General Ashcroft and President Bush were informed the day, and it was then that McVeigh's execution was delayed. It sent many people into a frenzy demanding that McVeigh be executed as the same week that the McVeigh evidence was released, audiotapes from actual executions in Georgia were broadcast on the radio, filling the ears of Americans with the sound of death. Some of the recordings were of executions that went as well as could be expected. Others were far more haunting. The tape of Ivon Ray Stanley, for example, was played by Georgia State Prison officials, speaking in a southern-accented voice, as they executed Stanley before he could finally die. The tapes were played and heavily nationwide.

It's just, pure and simple — and America needs a case of it. Popular support for the death penalty has decreased some over the years, but the majority of Americans still back its use. It's a understatement to say that the moral question — of whether or not it is right for a nation to take the life of another human as punishment for a crime — is a tricky one. There seems to be little reason why the death penalty is necessary other than its use as a therapy for the collective psyche of the country; it makes us feel better about ourselves by allowing us to get the final word in.

Any other practicality arguments for the use of executions don't even come close to adequately justifying the taking of a human life.

The death penalty's symbolic use as a crime deterrent isn't effective in the least. Murderers and terrorists don't suddenly realize that they could get gassed, fried or injected and then miraculously go straight.

You can also forget about using it to reduce the numbers of inmates in prisons. Many prisoners on death row probably will spend their last days in a jail cell due to appeals.

Perhaps the only real use for a death penalty is to make certain that these criminals don't get a second chance to wreak havoc on the world. There are problems with that argument as well because you run the risk of making the prisoner a martyr. Some nut-job wrote a requiem for McVeigh and got permission to play it for him, via radio, during his execution.

Even with the new evidence, it is unlikely that McVeigh's fate will change. His execution will be rescheduled for a new date and America will get its blood. However, it's debatable whether or not he should be executed. His death will not bring back the dead; it will not suddenly provide closure or miraculous emotional relief to those who are still suffering. All it will do is make certain that one more evil is eradicated from the face of the Earth.

Seeing as how there is so little certainty about death and execution, it seems strange and near disturbing that we keep using it as a means of punishment. With so many questions left unanswered about the moral and practical uses of execution, perhaps it is best to stop employing it until we can make a firm, solid stance that it is good, that it is right. Before that time is reached, it seems we should forfeit on the side of life.

DESA SANDERS

MEVES, PLEASE BRING BACK MY HUFFY CRUISER

About two hours ago I walked out of my Art 101 class to find my bike had been stolen. Yeah, "my bike" is an understatement. I stood there for about the nearest person and harm him or her. Then tomorrow's 8 a.m. class popped up, and I realized that I'd be walking to it. I'm well aware of how many people read this, and I'm sure that the amount of bike theft on this campus must be contributing to it. Lend me a hand.

My roommate sympathized. Who doesn't on campus? I've been fucked over in this manner at one time or another. The first time it has happened to me this year. I'm well aware of how many people read this, and I'm sure that the amount of bike theft on this campus must be contributing to it. Lend me a hand.

A new and shiny Huff Cruiser; it even had a name. I bought it for me and took the time to name it just such an occasion as this.

A nice blue and yellow bike in the last couple of years. Do you see the name? Yes? Okay, then that bike is mine. Feel free to return it. Drop it by the time I get to class. I might give you a ride on it but I won't turn you in. No loss on it, right? On the other hand, if I do see you riding my bike (and keep in mind I CAN tell due to the whole name-inscribing thing) I'm afraid I will not be able to swallow the previously mentioned desire.

Whether or not this letter produces any results, which I seriously doubt it will, the point is I am sick of this bullshit. Have people never heard of karma? Stealing someone else's mode of transportation is just not okay so STOP FUCKING DOING IT!

PRESIDENT'S TAX PLAN THREATENS STUDENTS' FEDERAL AID PROGRAMS

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I am writing this letter for the thousands of UCSB students who have federal student aid. More attention is needed on how these tax cuts will affect low-income students, student parents and YOU.

The House and Senate have passed a budget resolution that could paralyze spending on federal student aid. The budget resolution dedicated $1 billion less than the president's budget — which was already inadequate — to education. This means that much-needed increases to programs like the Pell Grant, SEOG and LEAP (grants to low-income students), GEAR UP (early intervention for low-income middle-schoolers), CAMPIS (campus childcare) and the National Family Planning Program are in jeopardy. Many programs will even face cuts.

The budget set aside $6.2 billion for programs that address national priorities. We know that education is America's top priority, so we must make sure that the $6.2 billion goes into education. The best way to make that happen is to make sure the Appropriations Committee dedicates the $6.2 billion to the labor, education, and health and human services.

Call Sen. Barbara Boxer, Sen. Dianne Feinstein and Rep. Lois Capps today! Even though our federally elected representatives may seem distant from us, the power to protect your student funding is just a phone call away. Call their offices directly or through the Capitol Switchboard at (202) 224-3121. If they are members of the Appropriations Committee, tell them to include the unallocated $6.2 billion in the labor, education, and health and human services subcommittee's allocation. If they are not members of the Appropriations Committee, ask them to contact the Appropriations Committee with the above message. Not sure if they're on the committee? Go to www.studentaidalliance.org for committee lists and other information.

Don't underestimate your power for change; call your representative today!

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

By Linda C. Black

Today's Birthday (May 21). You sure do know a lot, but you don't know everything yet. You'll get a lot closer to your goals, and you'll realize just how far you have to go. No point in giving up. You can't anyway. You're smart. Now prove you're up for a challenge.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Today is a 7 - You're getting stronger and quicker, both mentally and physically. You still have a few weights to lift, however. You used to think of them as burdens. Surprise! They're what's causing this magnificent transformation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Today is a 6 - If you've noticed a growing concern about finances, congratulations. This is part of why you're so successful - or why you will be. If you're not making what you're worth, you're about to raise a fuss about it. Prepare facts that support your argument.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) - Today is a 6 - There's a pile of stuff to be done. Don't put it off any longer. Opportunities beyond your wildest dreams could arrive in a day or two. Don't be doing your sorting and filing when your ship finally comes in. Get ready!

Cancer (June 22-July 22) - Today is a 6 - There's something going on that you can't even talk to your best friend about. It's wise not to. Wait until you understand a little better. Something you think is bad might actually be good, or vice versa. Mull it over a while longer.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Today is a 6 - A group you're working with is getting stronger every day. They're not quite ready to perform yet, but it won't be long. Enforce the rules. Allow no slack. The more discipline they learn now, the more freedom they'll have then.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Today is a 6 - What you'd like to do and what you get to do are two different things. You're not a complainer, but you're sorely tempted. Steal a few moments for yourself, but comply. You're outvoted or out-ranked this time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) - Today is a 9 - You're the lucky winner of life's lottery. You get romance, travel, even an interesting lesson to learn. Don't go out and spend a lot of money. That's the one thing you could do to mess things up. Hold onto it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) - Today is a 6 - A talk about money may be in order. You've set the goals, now how are you going to achieve them? Some may have to be discarded or postponed. Talk this over with your partner, as unemotionally as possible, but with compassion, of course.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) - Today is a 6 - The same old daily grind is easier if you share the load with a good friend. Some things you can't give away - only you know how. Other things, your friend can do better. Don't be jealous. Delegate.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Today is a 6 - The suffering you're enduring may not be worth the money. You can steal a few moments for love, but not many. That's the whole problem. It'll get worse before it gets better. Keep your chin up.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) - Today is an 8 - Your passions may be getting difficult to control. You'd stay up all night talking if you could. Maybe you can, either tomorrow or the next night. Tonight, you'd better get your beauty sleep. You'll want to look your best.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) - Today is a 6 - A friend can teach you how to do a chore at home that has been giving you fits. You would have done it years ago if you'd only known how. Don't be ashamed to admit it. A breakthrough in your education is close at hand.

I hold it to be ethically unacceptable to tolerate the gross inequalities that prevail in the world today. I hold it to be intellectually unacceptable to abandon the pursuit of scientific knowledge and the technological power that scientific knowledge inevitably brings with it.

— Freeman Dyson
science writer

DYSON

high-tech science and technology without widening the gap between rich and poor? Second, is there a practical way to combine technological progress with social justice? These are the crucial questions that must be answered if we want the public to believe that science and technology have anything to do with social justice."

Dyson said society is polarized into groups of technophiles and humanitarians, both with little regard for the other's purpose. "I happen to belong to both and that's why I ask these questions," he said.

His lecture consisted of a collection of case studies in which people had attempted to help the poor through the use of technology. He concluded that three precautions must be taken in attempting to help the poor with technological projects.

First, Dyson said, people should make a careful attempt to understand the problems of the poor and to take steps to give them control over such projects. Second, people must proceed cautiously, sounding out the effects of their actions in a step-by-step manner. "Step-by-step experiments provide the best chance to avoid failures and find unexpected routes to success," Dyson said.

Finally, Dyson said, many different groups must work together to achieve success. "If we're ever to solve this problem it can only be by a working alliance of people who are experts in different areas."

Panelist Paul Hansma, a professor in the UCSB Physics Dept., agreed with Dyson's analysis and said he believed it was important to remain open to different possibilities for progress.

"For us the path is always unexpected," he said. "If we knew where we'd end up — we'd start there."

HUMAN NATURES: GENES, CULTURES, AND THE HUMAN PROSPECT

featuring . . .

PAUL R. EHRlich

The Bell Curve, The Moral Animal, The Selfish Gene — these and a host of other books and articles have made a seemingly overwhelming case that our genes determine our behavior. Now, in a new book that is sure to stir controversy, one of the world's leading evolutionary biologists shows why most of those claims of genetic destiny cannot be true, and explains how the arguments often stem from a fundamental misunderstanding of evolution itself.

Paul R. Ehrlich is Bing Professor of Population Studies and Professor of Biological Sciences at Stanford University. He is the author of hundreds of scientific papers, and numerous books including The Population Bomb and Betrayal of Science and Reason. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, and recipient of the Crafoord Prize, the Blue Planet Prize, and many other international honors.

Hillel 9 pm-10:15 am Monday. All Night Shavuot Celebration at Hillel. This annual celebration requires endurance... an all nighter, studying Jewish texts with Rabbis, students and community members. Some people stay all night, but most stop by for a few hours to get their fix. At sunrise, we meet at Goleta Beach to read from the Torah with the first light of day.
