Eternal Flame Ceremony to Rekindle and Recall Ideals

By Jennifer Ogar
Staff Writer

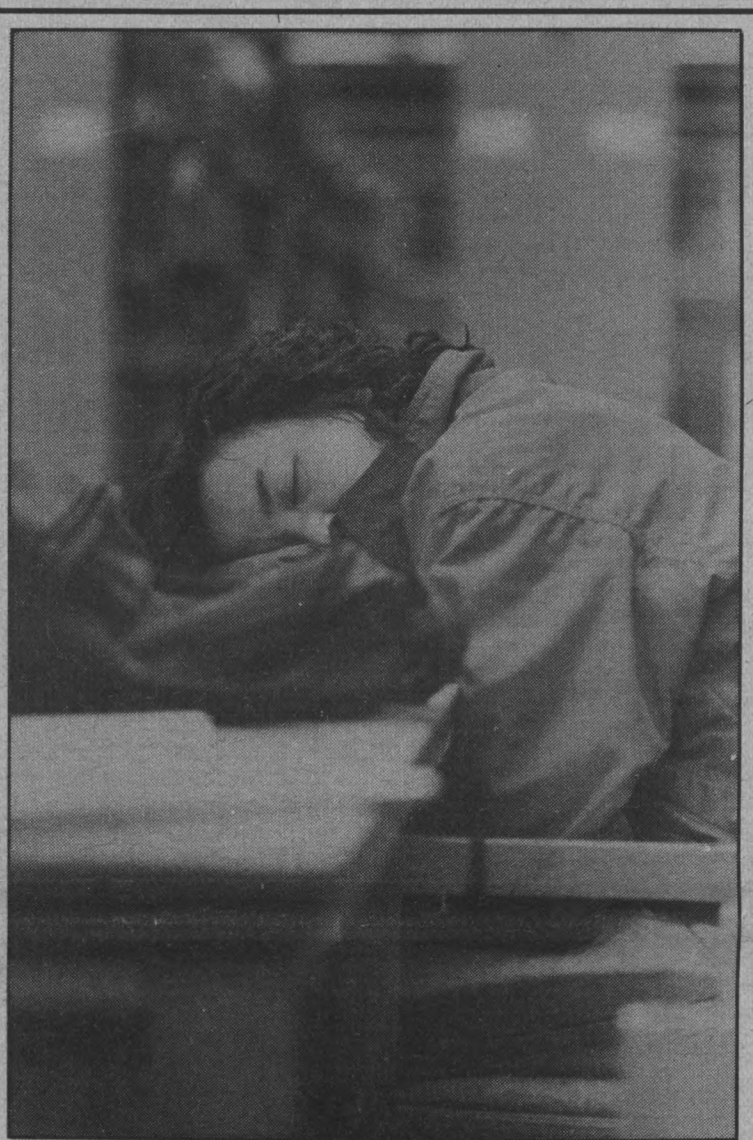

In what may become an annual celebration of peace at UCSB, a survivor of the 1945 bombing of Hiroshima will relight the Eternal Flame monument located near Ellison Hall today using a flame which originated in a 1959 peace gathering.

The ceremony, scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. will feature speakers including Chancellor Barbara Uehling and Hyman Johnson, assistant director of the Educational Opportunity Program.

The event is being jointly produced by the university, the Mesa School and the school's executive producer, Isla Vista peace activist David Crockett Williams. Crockett said the gathering will focus on "messages about global survival in a spiritual unity summit on nonviolence."

The Mesa School, established in 1985, is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to produce various projects and publications "to help change the course of history off the path towards total destruction and onto the path tow-

Campus Development Plan Receives Support

Faculty Legislature Gives Endorsement; Some Are Concerned

By Joel Brand
Staff Writer

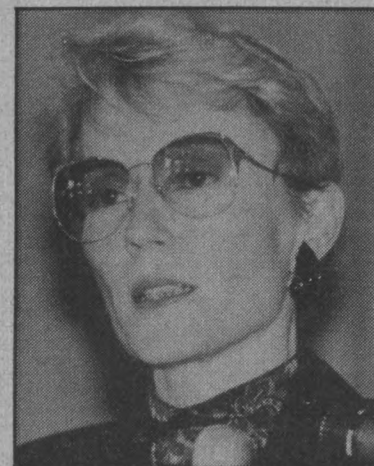

In a move which may expedite campus expansion, UCSB's Faculty Legislature endorsed the school's Campus Development Plan Tuesday.

According to history Professor W. Elliot Brownlee, the Faculty Legislature approved a resolution endorsing the plan because of an urgent need for construction of new buildings to meet present and future demands on the campus.

"There are some critical needs (for more space)," said history Professor Hal Drake, a member of the Faculty Legislature. "There are classes with no rooms to meet. There are faculty with no offices."

The resolution's conclusion states that "the Faculty Legislature ... urges that the review of the plan be completed with dispatch."

UCSB Chancellor Barbara Uehling, a supporter of the resolution and an advocate of the entire Long Range Development Plan, commented after the meeting that the faculty were saying with the resolution: "Let's get on with our planning, we want to address the future. I see that in no way suggesting that we can't be as reasonable as we have been and will continue to be with (addressing the community's concerns)."

However, the legislature's endorsement would mean little if disputes surrounding the environmental impacts of campus expansion resulted in a time-consuming lawsuit by Santa Barbara County, said sociology Professor and legislature member Richard Flacks.

Uehling, who said she was encouraged by the meeting, said "I think the statement will be very helpful in our discussions with the county."

Chancellor to Address Leg Council On LRDP Tonight

By Kim Kotnik
Reporter

UCSB Chancellor Barbara Uehling will speak about the 16-year Campus Development Plan, a component of the controversial Long Range Development Plan, at tonight's Associated Students Legislative Council meeting.

Uehling will make a brief presentation and answer questions about the plan. "It's a great chance for students to ask questions and submit comments," A.S. President Mike Stowers said.

However, A.S. Internal Vice President James Siojo said he does not expect Uehling to make any changes in response to student concerns voiced at tonight's meeting.

"I don't expect her to do anything except give her usual spiel and not reveal anything. She can't make a unilateral concession without her committee's approval. She's there for public image, to appear as a responsive chancellor," Siojo said.

Uehling was not available for comment.

Siojo, who was a member of the LRDP Steering Committee, is also scheduled to present a student response to the LRDP.

Siojo will also gather student input at five open forums to be held in the University Center through Jan. 17. He said he hopes the meetings will encourage more students to become involved in the process even if they haven't read the weighty proposal. "We can't expect students to read a 400-page document," Siojo said.

Since tonight's meeting is the first Leg Council meeting of the quarter, there are no bills scheduled to be discussed. However, UCSB staff member Rosemary Holmes will present information on the Committee to Save Perfect Park in Isla Vista. She hopes to gain Leg Council endorsement for efforts urging the Isla Vista Recreation & Park District to secure the land and maintain it as a community park, Holmes said.

The Associated Students Legislative Council will meet in the UCen Pavilion at 6 p.m. tonight.

New Facility For I.V. Clinic Should Allow More Services

By Alex Salkever
Staff Writer

In an effort to meet the medical needs of more Isla Vista residents, the Isla Vista Medical Clinic moved Dec. 12 into roomier facilities provided by a new building in the Social Services complex located on Embarcadero del Mar.

"We are thrilled to be moving into the new building," Clinic Director Carole Edson said, adding that the new building will provide 500 square feet more room than the old facilities.

According to Edson, the increased size will allow the clinic to expand its services and treat more patients.

Planning involved in the clinic's expansion has been taking place for several years, Ed-

Lithuanians Demonstrate in Favor of More Autonomy

MOSCOW (AP) — Lithuanian demonstrators demanding independence for their republic confronted the visiting Kremlin ideology chief Tuesday in a prelude to rallies planned for Mikhail S. Gorbachev's expected visit.

"You want to leave the Soviet Union?" Vadim A. Medvedev asked a crowd of protestors on the snowy square near Kaunas, Lithuania's second largest city.

A woman responded that she favored independence within the framework of the Soviet federation of 15 republics.

But Medvedev, in a scene broadcast on Soviet television, repeated the question and before receiving another answer, said, "For being independent, having rights, so that sovereignty was filled with real content, we are for that, we aren't against that. We are for that and that's what reforms are for."

But by his question and tone, he implied that the Moscow leadership favored granting Lithuanians these rights as part of the union and remained opposed to Lithuanian secession.

Medvedev's visit to the Baltic republic is intended to help defuse one of the most serious political crises facing Gorbachev. On Dec. 20, the republic's Communist Party voted to rupture ties with its national parent, the first such break since the Communists took power in Moscow in 1917.

North and South Korea to Strike Deal for Closer Ties

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea was reportedly weighing a deal to supply electricity to North Korea, and North Korea wants to deliver new reunification proposals to the Seoul government, news reports said Tuesday.

North Korean Premier Yon Hyong Muk proposed that officials of the two nations meet at the border truce village of Panmunjom on Friday to discuss procedures for sending the envoys to Seoul, North Korea's official news agency said.

The North Korean envoys would carry a letter detailing President Kim Il Sung's proposals to unify the peninsula, the communist nation's Korean Central News Agency said in a dispatch seen in Tokyo.

In a New Year's speech, Kim urged the dismantling of barriers to free travel and a "full opening" between the two nations.

In a statement Saturday, South Korea's Defense Minister accused North Korea of trying to mislead world opinion by creating the false impression that South Korea had built a barrier like the Berlin Wall and was responsible for the lack of free travel.

Chinese Leadership to Lift Martial Law From Beijing

BEIJING (AP) — Chinese leaders were preparing today to end martial law in Tiananmen Square, the cradle of the crushed pro-democracy movement, and possibly lift the restrictions elsewhere in the capital, sources said.

The end of the 7-month-old emergency would be mainly symbolic because troops already have been withdrawn from city streets.

It would not mean greater freedom of dissent, because most activities banned under martial law, such as anti-government demonstrations and speeches, are illegal under other laws.

However, Communist authorities hope it will reassure foreign governments and the World Bank that stability has been restored and that soft loans should be restored. The loans were frozen in June after troops cleared the city center of pro-democracy protestors, killing hundreds of unarmed civilians.

Civil Rights Leader's Birth To Be Honored Worldwide

ATLANTA (AP) — Bells in 144 countries and the 50 United States will ring out Monday to honor Martin Luther King Jr. on what would have been the slain civil rights leader's 61st birthday.

For the first time, the day will be celebrated on a large scale in white-ruled South Africa. Pro-democracy demonstrations around the world last year also added impetus to the holiday by mirroring King's tactics and philosophy.

In King's hometown of Atlanta, center of yearly King Week celebrations, the 1990 federal holiday comes amid death threats that followed last month's mail bombings of civil rights and judicial targets in three states.

"With the Klan and the mail bombs, this year it has a more special meaning for everybody," said state Sen. Arthur Langford, who portrays King in a yearly production of Langford's play "Life of a King."

"People must understand that, in the words of Dr. King, we must learn to live together as brothers and sisters or we will perish together as fools," he said.

Bush Wants to Put Bible Back on the Blackboard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush Administration urged the Supreme Court Tuesday to allow student Bible and prayer groups to meet on public school grounds, arguing that such a ruling would preserve religious freedom.

However, a lawyer for Omaha, Neb., school officials, whose refusal to approve a Bible-reading club led to the case, said education administrators must have the authority to make such decisions.

Solicitor General Kenneth W. Starr, the administration's chief courtroom lawyer, urged the court to interpret expansively a 1984 federal law aimed at permitting religious clubs in public high schools.

As envisioned by Congress, the Equal Access Act's "primary thrust was to protect religious liberty," Starr said during an hour-long argument in the Nebraska case. "It's quite clear the purpose of the act was to eliminate discrimination against religious groups."

Opponents of the 1984 law say it violates the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

But the justices, expected to announce a decision by July, focused on a narrow issue — the scope of the law.

Space Program Opens New Decade With Shuttle Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Shuttle Columbia opened a new decade of space travel Tuesday with a letter-perfect launch and the start of a search-and-rescue mission for a scientific satellite drifting back to Earth.

After three weeks of delays, the shuttle lifted off precisely on time just after dawn at 7:35 a.m. and began chasing the satellite, which was 1,500 miles ahead of the shuttle.

"I don't think I've ever seen a cleaner countdown and launch," said Richard Truly, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "What a marvelous way to start the 1990s."

The flight begins a decade in which shuttles will transport astronauts and materials to build America's space station. The station is an essential step for a return to the moon and expeditions to Mars envisioned by President Bush.

Columbia's mission is scheduled to last 10 days, the second-longest since shuttles began flying in 1981. The ship is being modified gradually for 16-day journeys and the extended mission is to be a test toward that objective.

Lockheed Wants to Take Over Surplus Calif. Airbase

CALABASAS (AP) — Lockheed Corp. wants to establish a maintenance facility for commercial aircraft at Norton Air Force Base, one of 86 military bases scheduled to close nationwide by September 1995.

The company announced Monday it has submitted its proposal to a community committee attempting to foster commercial use of the 2,500-acre base in San Bernardino County, about 65 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

The plan would then be forwarded to the Pentagon. "The business is growing so fast that we decided to expand," H.T. Skip Bowling, president of Lockheed Aircraft Service Co. in Ontario, said. "As more and more airlines are turning to outside maintenance, we see an opportunity."

The Calabasas-based aerospace company wants to start maintenance and modification work on Boeing 747 passenger jets in a Norton hangar complex by 1991. The firm hopes to take over four aircraft bays, and would employ 970 workers by 1994, Bowling said.

Dick Nixon Celebrates the Big Double Seven Birthday

YORBA LINDA (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's 77th birthday was a bi-coastal celebration Tuesday with city workers in his hometown getting a paid holiday while the former president planned a quiet family dinner.

The Nixon Presidential Library and Birthplace Foundation used the occasion to invite reporters on a brown-bag lunch tour of the nearly completed $20 million library. It will be dedicated during opening festivities in July.

On the East Coast, Nixon put finishing touches on a book due in April.

"President Nixon spent the morning putting the finishing touches on the galley proofs for his new book 'In The Arena,' paying special attention to new sections about (Soviet leader Mikhail) Gorbachev, China and Eastern Europe," Nixon spokesman John Taylor said from Woodcliff Lake, N.Y.

Butterflies Lose Battle For Winter Home to Developer

PACIFIC GROVE (AP) — A prime winter site for monarch butterflies may be lost to make way for a subdivision after the City Council here approved a rezoning plan for the privately-owned property.

The site is one of only two winter roosting sites left in the city, which celebrates the orange and black butterfly with a parade on its main street every October. Molesting a monarch is a crime that carries a $500 fine.

Voters will get a chance to consider a bond issue to purchase the 2.7 acre site in this city known as "Butterfly Town, U.S.A." located about 70 miles south of San Francisco.

"This is a prime site. It's the oldest known overwintering site in California," said Katrin Snow of the Xerces Society, which leads the national campaign to protect monarch habitats.

Correction

In a page three story in Tuesday's Nexus, UCSB lecturer Anne Johnstone was identified as the victim of a hit-and-run drunk driver. She was killed by a driver under the influence of tranquilizers.

A headline in Tuesday's Reader's Voice reading "One Finger Salute" should not have appeared over the letter it did.

The Nexus regrets these errors.

Colleges Report Appallingly Low Basic Skills in Students

By Judy Tachibana
McClatchy News Service

SACRAMENTO — One-third of the students in a Cosumnes River College arithmetic class failed a simple multiplication test.

In an American River College developmental writing class, students were tested on identifying nouns and verbs.

This spring, Sacramento City College will offer one college-level class in American literature, one in English literature and one in creative writing, and 44 sections of basic-skills courses in reading and writing.

These remedial classes cover materials so basic that they can't be used for transfer to a university or for an associate degree.

The number of remedial classes is growing, with about 75 of California's community colleges adding new basic-skills courses, according to a report from the Chancellor's Office. Most of the new courses are in math, reading, writing and English as a second language.

The new courses are a result of mandatory testing, which began in 1987, of incoming students' math and English skills, said Kathleen Warriner, basic-skills analyst with the state Chancellor's Office.

"There are many more students who need basic-skills courses than we realized," Warriner said.

Community College District — American River, Cosumnes River and Sacramento City colleges — and Sierra College in Placer County have been assessing students for years and have seen a steady flow of students enrolling to learn what they should have mastered in high school.

Between 60 percent and 70 percent of those tested on the Los Rios campuses take remedial courses before they are ready for English 1A, the basic college composition requirement.

"We have had to create new courses over the year, reading courses below the seventh-grade level," City College instructor Delbert Prescott said. "There are people who begin the semester as non-readers, some of those are high school grads."

Of the Los Rios students who take the math assessment test, about 40 percent need remedial classes in arithmetic or pre-algebra before they can take elementary algebra, the equivalent to first year of high school algebra.

Roger Fryer, a Cosumnes River math teacher, said a third of his arithmetic class failed a timed multiplication test.

Some students in remedial math classes at Sierra College cannot add and subtract whole numbers, said instructor Linda Atoms, who also is coordinator for the learning skills and writing centers. "We are talking about the most basic levels."

Richard Haro, City College dean of science, math and engineering, said there was no "algebra readiness" class at City College 20 years ago.

Now his department is designing a remedial math class for students below "algebra readiness."

"The curriculum has changed to accommodate people with less preparation," Haro said. "A good percentage of our students are coming with no skills at the fourth- to sixth-grade arithmetic level."

"Right now, we are just trying to get basic skills across to the students," Haro said. "Until we have been able to conquer that deficiency in the students, we will be teaching remedial classes for a long time to

New Mexico

A dormitory resident advisor has been fired from his job for allegedly making racist remarks, according to a resident of the former R.A.'s hall.

Duane Schmitt was allegedly in front of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity house, a traditionally Black organization, last Saturday evening carrying a bottle of vodka and sharing it with members of the fraternity. Schmitt, who wanted money for the alcohol, did not get his bottle back.

An Alpha Phi Alpha member, Kermit Pearman, said Schmitt returned to the residence hall, making racial slurs towards members of the fraternity.

According to Alpha Phi Alpha member Stacey Blake-more, Schmitt was upset because he did not get his bottle back.

After Schmitt's remark, an investigation was conducted by the university to determine action against him.

Randy Boeglin, associate dean of students, would not disclose information regarding Schmitt's discipline, but said the investigation had been concluded and some action had been taken against the R.A.

An employee of the residence hall said Schmitt no longer lives in his room and that he is no longer a resident advisor.

"He's been released from his job," the employee said. He refused further comment.

Iowa

A marijuana plant which led to the arrest of three University of Iowa students on charges of possession of a controlled substance will not be admissible as evidence in court, an associate district judge ruled last month.

The marijuana plant was seized on Sept. 24 after police noticed it in the window of an apartment.

The plant was visible from the street through a lighted window, according to the police report.

Several officers, who all agreed the plant appeared to be marijuana, were called to the scene.

After knocking on the apartment door and hearing the residents say "Come in," the police entered the apartment where the two defendants and six friends were playing Trivial Pursuit.

Once police entered the apartment, they saw the marijuana plant and a bong, according to court records.

Police searched the apartment after the resident told them they could look around.

Since the search was conducted without a warrant, the state must prove the officers had a right to seize the plant because it was in plain view.

For a plain-view seizure to be valid, there must be a reason for police to enter a constitutionally protected area, the incriminating nature of the object must be immediately obvious and the discovery of the object must be inadvertent.

The police had a right to enter the apartment since they were invited in, but their presence in the apartment was not inadvertent, according to court records.

Arizona

An 18-year-old University of Arizona student reported last month that he was assaulted by a bicyclist while sitting in his car near the university, police said.

The student told police he was stopped in traffic when a bicyclist rode up beside him, grabbed his face and swore at him.

The man told the student he would "teach him to cut people off," before denting the hood of the student's car with his fist and riding away.

Officers said they searched for the man but were unable to locate him.

Student senators are concerned that a student leader's recommendation to offer financial aid to student campaigners will prejudice them against their peers.

Christopher A. Worley, director of the Arizona Students Association, proposed last week providing 1,000 photocopies of an election campaign poster or $45 to have photocopies made at a local shop to student campaigners who demonstrate that they receive need-based financial aid.

"Every effort should be made to prevent campaign costs from becoming a deterrent when deciding whether to enter ASUA elections," Worley said in his proposal.

But student senators are worried that some students who need campaign funding assistance are not necessarily on financial aid, and will be discriminated against if only those receiving aid have access to the special funds.

Tennessee

A University of Tennessee graduate student has designed and built a physical therapy device to be used on children with balance and equilibrium problems.

E.J. Asbury, graduate teaching assistant in mechanical engineering, delivered his balance center stimulator Dec. 4 to East Tennessee Children's Rehabilitation Center in Knoxville, where it will be used for vestibular stimulation therapy, he said.

"The vestibular system is your balance center and this device stimulates the balance center," Asbury said.

This system affects balance and equilibrium and lets us know where we are bodily in space, said Karen Goss, physical therapist for the developmental and genetics center at UT Hospital.

The system is made up of three inner-ear canals which send messages to the brain. Balance center therapy, which uses repetitive stimulation, gives children better balance, she said.

Asbury's device, a heavily padded chair with safety straps, sits inside a bright blue fiberglass enclosure and is mounted on a lightweight aluminum tubing frame. It is powered by three electric motors and controlled by a computer program written by James Euler, professor of mechanical and aerospace engineering.

TESTS: Even High School Grads Failing Basics

While the reasons are complex, "the biggest problem is they don't learn what they were supposed to learn in the high school and elementary school," Haro said.

Also, math requirements at both community colleges and universities have increased.

Since 1983, community college students must either pass a math examination or complete first-year algebra for an associate of arts degree, said Sam Sandusky, City College dean of admissions and records.

For those students who previously were not eligible for California State University and instead attended a community college, the requirements for transferring to a CSU campus have gotten stiffer since 1988, said CSU spokesperson Anne Ambrose. They now must pass an advanced math class, beyond intermediate algebra.

Many students coming directly from high school do fine in non-remedial math classes, Haro said. It is the dropout student or those who did not do well in high school and the re-entry student who is in a remedial class.

Such students are more motivated than they were in high school, Cosumnes River's Fryer said. "I have taught high school, and I would definitely say that the maturity factor is significant," he said.

California's 107 community colleges often are where students go for help and a second chance at education. The two-year schools are required to take any high school graduate and any person over 18 years of age who will benefit from community college education.

Students with specific learning disabilities who have the motivation and potential to succeed are offered special assistance in community colleges.

Robert Harris, president of SCC, said that community colleges offer a second opportunity for re-entry students and those who need to build up their basic skills.

"We are taking the challenge seriously," Harris said. "We believe remedial/developmental (education) is part of our mission, and we are going to do it." Harris pointed out that in California, a third of the students entering community colleges read below the eighth-grade level.

In a development writing course at American River, students learned about basic sentences, verbs and adverbs, punctuation and capitalization, and nouns and modifiers.

Robert Frew, ARC dean of communications and humanities said that through the years, a consistent percentage of students test into basic-skills classes. He disagreed with other educators about the steady decline of the skill levels of those in remedial classes. Frew said high schools today are doing a better job of preparing students.

"We definitely did see a change beginning in the late 1960s," said Frew, who began teaching at ARC in 1962. "We started to see a decline in students at all different levels. The problem seemed to be that they weren't writing enough in the high schools and weren't prepared adequately in the high schools. In 1985, the slide stopped."

FLAME: Peace Focus of Ceremonial Relighting

ards paradise on Earth," according to a press release from the school.

"The idea of the ceremony is to bring the minds of the people into harmony and to make the (Eternal Flame) into a peace monument," Crockett said, adding that if all goes as planned, the second week of each January will be set aside for similar gatherings in the future.

The Eternal Flame monument was a gift from the class of 1969 and is dedicated to Martin Luther King Jr. and John and Robert Kennedy.

The flame that will be used to relight the monument originated in an Aug. 6, 1959 gathering in Hiroshima, Japan to mark the fourteenth anniversary of the atomic bombing. In a candlelight vigil, participants in the original event put their candles together to begin an eternal flame which has been kept there ever since.

This flame was carried to the U.S. in 1982 for the United Nations Special Session on Disarmament, and is currently being kept in a Buddhist temple in Los Angeles.

Buddhist Monk Daisen Yamato, a scheduled speaker, said the flame is not only a symbol of peace but also one of healing power and can be a focal point "to purify the minds of the people and bring peace to the world."

Johnson echoed this desire for the contemplation of peace in the modern world. "We can redesign structures and change policies but we need to educate the full person; one has to be motivated from a belief within," he said.

"The ideas are old but they're not accepted unless it's convenient," Johnson said of the ceremony and its purpose. "They're basic themes but it seems like they need to be repeated over and over."

CAMPUS REGULATIONS PUBLIC FORUMS

The University of California at Santa Barbara Campus Regulations Applying to Campus Activities, Organizations and Students are being revised. The new regulations are scheduled to become effective Fall Quarter 1990. Two committees spent last quarter drafting changes in the regulations. The drafts are now ready for distribution and public forums.

January 16, 2-4 p.m. in Ucen 2

A forum will be held to address the section pertaining to campus organizations and activities (white pages of the regulations). The committee has recommended changes that will affect such topics as the free speech areas and amplification regulations, posting, scheduling of facilities, vendor row, and definitions of religious/political organizations.

January 17, 2-4 p.m. in UCen 2

A forum addressing the section pertaining to student conduct (blue pages) will be held. Recommended changes in this section affect such areas as racial/sexual harassment policy, conduct violations and sanctions, and hearing procedures.

Copies of the draft campus regulations are available for review in the Dean of Students office, Campus Activities Center, and Associated Students main office.

ENDORSE: Faculty Approves CDP

Drake interpreted some of Uehling's comments made during the meeting as indicating that she intends to use the resolution "as some sort of ammunition to take a harder line" against the county, he said.

Uehling, in an interview after the meeting, insisted that only Flacks had voiced concern about the resolution appearing opposed to the county's bid to extend the review period of the plan and to revise the EIR.

However, Drake said in addition to Flacks, he and many other legislature members were concerned that the resolution might sound confrontational.

Despite concern over sounding confrontational, the resolution says nothing about the EIR or any environmental impacts. "The faculty was not expressing any opinion, as I understand it, on what environmental impacts there might be connected with the plan," said Brownlee, who chairs the Academic Senate. "It was not expressing an opinion with regard to what mitigations might or might not be desirable. Those are matters that the faculty is leaving to the administration to negotiate."

One paragraph was removed from the resolution by a vote of 24-4. "What was wrong with (the part that was taken from the statement) was it was sort of writing in stone a faculty position that it must be 'this much enrollment,' it must be 'this much space,'" Drake said. "This would make it appear that the faculty are saying to the administration 'don't cav in, don't negotiate, stonewall'" the county in its demands.

The legislature also voted to create an Academic Impact Review to ensure physical expansion is congruent with the campus' academic goals as designated in the Academic Plan. "The faculty is worried about a process, down the road, in which the physical plan of the campus gets detached from the Academic Plan," Brownlee said. A joint AIR committee will be set up between the administration and the faculty to review future projects. Buildings already in the planning stages would not be included in the new process.

All campus writers, wanna-be campus writers, and long since forgotten friends — please join the Trio of J's (that would be Jen, Jeff n' Joel) for the appropriately scheduled Campus Writers Meeting Thursday at 6 p.m. Don't even think of using that monotonous excuse that you have too many classes Winter Quarter, because we know nobody got classes this quarter.

CLINIC: Medical Services Expand

scn said. "The board of directors (of the clinic) has thought for quite some time we needed to expand and modernize." The old offices had imposed some size limitations on the operations of the clinic, she said.

With the expansion, the clinic hopes to attract new patients from all income levels, Edson said.

The variety of services will also be augmented, with possible expansions in pediatric services, internal medicine and health education hours, Edson said. The service expansions are "still in the process of figuring," she said.

Because the clinic exists largely to serve the needs of low-income residents, patients will not bear the financial burden of funding the new facilities through rate hikes. While the Isla Vista Medical Clinic has never been a "free clinic," it has based its rates on the family size and income of the patients and their families.

The current expansion was funded largely through a low-interest loan from the California Health Facilities Financing Authority, a state organization which provides loans to health care facilities which are financially strapped. The Isla Vista Medical Clinic, like many organizations receiving CAHFFA loans, provides care for the poor and homeless and is often unable to collect enough in fees to cover the cost of daily operations, said Dr. David Bearman.

Bearman, who was the first director of the Isla Vista Medical Clinic, now heads the Santa Barbara County Health Services Administration.

The granting of CAHFFA loans to aid community clinics is a new development, resulting from extensive lobbying of the state legislature by the State Organization of Community Clinics. Previously, the state would not award CAHFFA loans to community clinics. Bearman credits this change in state policy to the former director of SOCC, Kim Judson, a former mer Isla Vista resident now studying at Harvard University.

Judson has been involved in the funding and planning of the new clinic from the outset. Bearman believes Judson deserves credit for the original idea of a new building.

An additional $15,000 for construction of the new building was donated by Southern California Edison. This grant was contingent upon the installment of energy-efficient lights and air conditioning in the clinic. Further funding came from the Santa Barbara Foundation and a contribution from actor/director Michael Douglas, a UCSB alumnus. A final $8,000 came from direct mailing donations and telephone fund raising drives, Bearman said.

While more patients will be served with the new facilities, Edson does not believe that the characteristics of the center's clientele will be affected by the expansion.

In the past, the clinic's patients have been roughly 25 percent students, 60 percent non-students from the Goleta and Isla Vista area, and 15 percent non-students from various other locations.

Bearman provided some historical perspective to the development of the center. "The clinic has always served large numbers of people. I feel that the expansion of the clinic is a tribute to the spirit of the staff and of the community. The Isla Vista Clinic has always been a community organization.

"In the construction of the new building, help has come from all segments of the community," Bearman continued. "From the beginning, the people have wanted a place where this energy and idealism could be directed to positive goals."

One of these goals, according to Edson, is the hiring of additional staff members for the clinic, although the hiring of new personnel is contingent upon the future financial standing of the clinic.

The old offices of the clinic will continue to be rented by various local organizations, including the university. "The future of this space (rented by the university) is not yet certain," said Mark Chaconas, an aid to Third District Supervisor Bill Wallace. Some of the space could be used for an off-campus Associated Students office, a greek council office, a conference room and either a community housing or Foot Patrol office, Chaconas said. The Mediation Service and the Isla Vista Community Advocacy Committee office will retain their office space in the old building.

The clinic will throw a party to celebrate the opening of its new offices on Jan. 21 at The Graduate from 6 to 10 p.m. A formal dedication, attended by state Senator Gary K. Hart (D-Santa Barbara), Assemblyman Jack O'Connell (D-Santa Barbara), and Wallace will take place at the clinic on Jan. 26 at 2 p.m.

Democracy? It's Not So Easy...

Editorial

For the past few months, those living in the West have witnessed and celebrated the miraculous transformation of Eastern Europe from totalitarian, sometimes brutal, dictatorships into fledgling democracies. Unfortunately this victory of the masses, with its hundreds of thousands of demonstrators crowding city squares and physically demanding change, does not bode well for certain minorities in an ethnically diverse region.

Freedom in Eastern Europe is casting light on a variety of problems long covered up by communist regimes: environmental disaster, economic stagnation and outmoded infrastructure. But also being exposed are more emotionally charged issues; centuries-old ethnic, regional, and religious hatreds festering for years under strict state control. In Bulgaria this week, for example, massive demonstrations protested liberalization of discriminatory laws, graphically displaying their distaste for Bulgaria's Muslim minority. Sometimes free expression can be ugly.

More than one million ethnic Turks and Muslims are citizens of predominantly Orthodox Christian Bulgaria. If democracy is to succeed in Bulgaria the rights of minorities must be respected. True democracy is a constant working out of conflicts between the dominant voice of the majority and the essential protection provided to the minority. As a nascent democracy, the people of Bulgaria have failed to recognize this.

During the Cold War, an important goal of the United States was to "export" the ideals of freedom and democracy, and to an extent, the U.S. was successful; many people in Eastern Europe, and in many other parts of the world, desire to have the freedoms of Americans.

Yet in America's intellectual and philosophical trade, only the big concepts got through: grand words like Freedom and Democracy. It is other, more subtle ideas of democracy that didn't quite make it — at least not to Bulgaria.

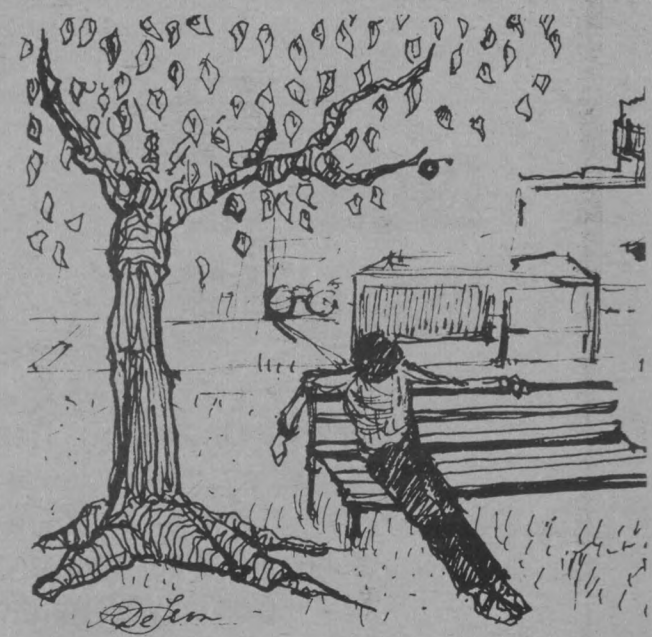

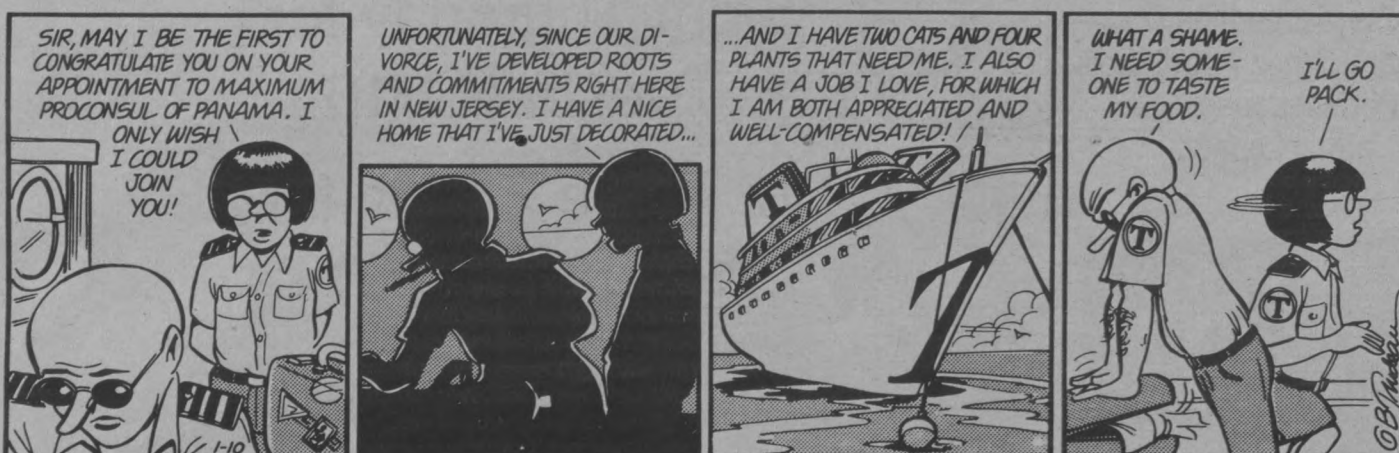

An important facet of democracy is the realization that a minority will always exist, and a fundamental part of living in a democracy is the understanding that simply because the majority of the people want something, does not make that thing right. The opinions and needs of the minority must also be acknowledged, and if possible, accommodated. Democracy does not just happen; it is a constant struggle and must be cultivated. When we live in a democracy, we give up certain rights and liberties so there can be freedom for all the people.

It is important to remember that America can claim no stranglehold on the moral high ground when it comes to minorities. Thirty years ago it would be difficult to distinguish between this country and Bulgaria on such an issue. American Blacks had to fight for what now seems to us the trivial right of eating at the same table as whites. Today civil rights are still being actively fought over, issues such as abortion, flag burning and gay rights being prime examples. Even here on campus new smoking restrictions have stirred outrage amongst smokers in the minority.

Martin Luther King Jr., whose birthday we celebrate Jan. 15, preached a message of peace, freedom, equality and tolerance, a message which is applicable not just in the United States, but in Bulgaria, Romania, Czechoslovakia, and every other nation in the world.

A Dirty Little Drug War

Jan David Breemer

It's a war out there folks! Or so our illustrious president and his stiff-collared lyricists declared way back in September. I had been keeping track, deriving perverse joy out of screeching in public: "Day Six or Seven in the drug war, everybody," as I took a slug from Bud, Jose, or Mr. Meister and exercised my right to get insanely stupid on legal intoxicants. But alas, I lost count on Day 13. It was disappointing too, losing track of the drug war. My exclamations had brought some very stressful glances, glances that said: "Who do you think you are, dirtbag?" "Why are you screaming like Barbara Walters on acid?" "Are you on acid?" and "Please don't come over here." I had to laugh. It was what I expected.

Now, in December, they are sending a 22-year-old man on a permanent, all-expenses-paid vacation to a dark hole somewhere in sunny California. Richard V. Winrow, a young Black man from beautiful downtown Los Angeles, was sentenced to life in prison for being in possession of five and a half ounces of cocaine. Five and a half ounces! Nixon downed five and a half ounces of brandy before the cock even crowed, but then again that was brandy and he was president, at least for a while.

U.S. District Judge David W. Williams, in meting out justice, claimed to empathize with the defendant despite his draconian decision. It seems that the 79-year-old Black judge grew up in the exact neighborhood that produced Mr. Winrow. The judge assured the defendant he knew the neighborhood and how tough it is. Why, hell, he said, it was tough when I lived there. Maybe so, judge, but I'll bet my left gonad that "Uzi" didn't mean anything when Coolidge was playing croquet on the White House lawn. How about "AK-47"? Did you spend your school recesses dodging bullets with your buddies? Or perhaps you wore the wrong color clothes on day and soon found yourself picking up what used to be your face. I don't bet it. It was real tough back when you lived there, all right. I can imagine how rough it was, always being on the lookout for those pesky drie-by rock-throwings. Those damn horse-and-buggies sure moved fast, didn't they?

It doesn't really matter what the circumstances are though, does it? As the judge so ably put it: "Congress has gone to battle the drug war and this man is one of the enemies." Away with the traitor! It's probably better that way anyway. All poor Richard had to look forward to anyway was welfare checks and basketball, right? Well, now he can anticipate piles of cockroach dung, big dudes named Bubba, and basketball.

GREG MAGNUSON/Daily Nexus

we better learn to like it. We may be the enemy, but if we all dig in and make the right purchases we can be a united enemy. Do it for Richard, or, if that doesn't appeal to you, do it for George.

Jan David Breemer is a senior majoring in English.

Girl Watcher

Denis Faye

Over the past several weeks, I have noticed an uncomfortable trend rippling through the pages of the Daily Nexus.

I am referring to the abundance of "anti-men" articles in the editorial section.

As I write this, I am sitting on a bench in front of Phelps Hall. The young lady sitting next to me has on what some might call "a much-too-short jean skirt." I can't help but look at her legs. It's obvious that she takes pride in them. If she were to catch me, I might blush a bit, but I would have no apologies. Tell me, am I so evil? Have I just purchased a wholesale ticket to hell? If she were to catch me, would she do as so many writers to the Daily Nexus would, and whip out a pair of scissors, and arrange it so that the only thing I would ever do to a girl again is look? I don't know. Ladies and gentlemen, I have one message for you. It's not tactful or poetic: Lighten up.

Last I checked, I lived in the United States of America. You remember, as in "the land of the free" and "Oh say, can you see?" Well, I feel if you had it your way, I wouldn't be free to see anything.

Now, don't misinterpret me. I am in no way pro-rape. It is a ghastly and vile thing. However, it is not the fault of Penthouse, or every 18- to 22-year-old male in the country. Actually, I believe a major factor in the number of rapes in this country is the intense amount of suppression of sexuality that occurs here. In France, for example, there is nowhere near this amount of problems with date rape, yet television, magazines, billboards and all other sorts of media are packed with images of naked women. What will that tell you?

As for justifying being the "girl watcher" that I am, I have bad news for you. If you believe in God — He or She made the human body to be attractive. He or She did not intend for man and woman to be two brains in mobile jars, sitting around comparing notes.

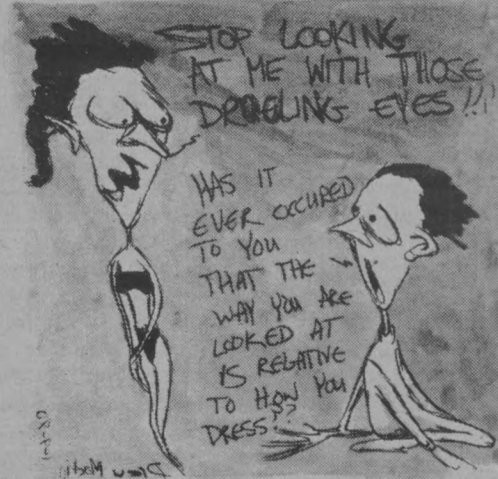

If you choose to believe in evolution, the human body has been custom designed to attract the opposite sex. It's natural. If you, as a female or a male, aren't semi-aroused by either the sweaty jocks playing volleyball across from the Delt House, or by the nubile, young lasses prowling in bikinis on Sands Beach, I'm not sick, you are.

However, before I continue my protest, I do support one statement you have made. A woman has the right to do what she wants with her body. Therefore, if a woman wishes to shed her robes to show the men of the world what she fancies attractive about herself, more power to her. You take pride in your minds, thus you have, just as I am now, laid your souls bare for all to see in the centerfold of the Daily Nexus. If these women believe their bodies are among their stronger attributes, let them try to prove it, just as you have tried with your literary expertise.

In many ways, your line of reasoning resembles that of an old Ohio-based communal society called the Shakers. This was a group of people who decided that sex and anything related to it was a sin. Men and women wore huge, baggy outfits, so their bodies would not be exposed. The most moronic law of the Shakers was that no physical contact, sexual, casual or other, was allowed. Needless to say, the Shakers have all but died out. Is this a fate that you are intending for my comrades and I?

Thus, ladies and gentlemen, I have presented my case. I doubt that I have changed your convictions, just as you did nothing except strengthen mine. I do hope, however, that before you hang the Archetypical Male American Young Adult with a rope of censorship and suppressed desire, you can step off your soapbox and consider something. You need to stop pummeling us with attempts to have us open our eyes and respect your beliefs, and open up your eyes, thus respecting ours.

particular aspect of these malcontents is language. Each ism seems to have its own linguistic snags. I wish to address the "sex-ism" labeling problem.

For a number of years I have been stuck with this difficulty — is she a "woman" or a "girl"? Do I feel strange calling some 20-year-olds women? What would she choose? Does she care, and if she doesn't, why should I? The word to oppose "guy" doesn't exist. "Gal" is not quite hip in these parts. "Chicks" might get me thwacked.

Furthermore, the view that "wo-man" is a derivative of "man" (or vice versa as I see it) has caused a stir among theoretical feminists. For some "gynecos," to be labeled woman is almost derogatory.

For those of you who do place importance on linguistic structure and its effect on interaction, I propose a solution. As you undoubtedly noticed, the word gyneco was slipped into a sentence above. This is a word that is unquely feminine ("fe-male"). Also included below are a few other fun offshoots for the radicals amongst us.

- gyneco: (from Greek "gyne") woman/female.
- gyneclexis: sexual selection as determined by the gyneco.
- gynecocentric: having its center in, or organization issuing from gyneco.
- gynecocracy: the dominion of gyneco; gyneco supremacy.

gynecocrat: gyneco who rules
I realize that such a major language habit like saying "girls" — a collective shudder, please — is not likely to be broken by an article in the Nexus. Considering that 95 percent of the gynecos campuswide call themselves girls, I suppose it's impossible. Despite this difficulty, for those who constantly attempt to rid themselves of what is essentially a variety of institutional sexism, this proposal could be a stepping stone in the effort to find more suitable terms.

THE BIG WEST PREVIEW

SAN JOSE STATE

By Scott Lawrence
Staff Writer

What to Look For: Ashes from a charred 1988-89 campaign still smolder under the basketball foot at San Jose State, where nearly the entire roster walked off the squad midway through last season in the midst of conflict with then-Head Coach Bill Berry.

So with 15 newcomers, and a first-year head coach in Stan Morrison, the new-look Spartans look to be the Phoenix of the Big West in 1989-90. But what do you do when you have a plethora of young players unfamiliar with one another's games — and only three of whom had seen any Division I game time prior to this season?

"I throw up a lot," quipped Morrison, a former head coach at Pacific and USC, and freshman coach at San Jose State in the 1960s. "What you do is you coach them and you stay together and you don't point fingers at anybody and you're a family and you stay this thing together."

Currently 4-8 overall, 1-2 in league, the Spartans have already matched their '88-89 conference win total by beating UC Irvine on the road last week, 75-69 — breaking an 18-game Big West losing streak.

How to Beat 'Em: Early, self-proclaimed weaknesses within a Spartan squad deep at the guard and wing positions include not playing for the full 40 minutes, a still-budding inside attack, and inconsistent shooting from the field. Nonetheless, the Spartans are just one win away from equalling their win total of a year ago (5-23).

But goals for a team still trying to feel its way through a rough and tumble league slate don't include upsetting its way to the NCAA tournament, but rather focus on the more immediate ones.

"We really want to stay out of the bottom four of the league, especially for the Big West Tournament, where we would have to play the first night," said returning senior Tom Desiano. "I think we're continually starting to gel — it just takes time. It's tough, but it's to be expected and I think we'll do well."

Big Man on Campus: Heading the list of new faces is 6'3", 195-pound Troy Batiste, a junior college transfer leading SJSU in scoring at 12.6 points per game. Other key additions include 6'3", 170-pound JC transfer Andre Brooks (8 points), as well as 6'8", 200-pound sophomore Rodney Scott.

"We're coming together," Scott said recently. "We're

Here's your first installment of our scouting report on the teams the Gauchos will be running with in the coming weeks. We decided to work from the bottom up — today's section features UOP, SJSU and UCI. But be damn sure not to overlook any of these "lower echelon" teams: all of them are set to re-prove the old cliché "On any given day..." is alive and well in the Big West. Stay tuned for more insider scouting reports in the days to come!

all a family. Our goal is to just go out there and play hard, give 100 percent every time — don't go out there saying just because we're underdogs, we're going to lose; we're going to go out there and try to win every time."

The Scoop on the Spartans: The road to doing 'well' involves a trip through the battering effects of infancy, inexperience and frustration, all of which need to be kept in their proper perspectives.

"The toughest thing for our guys to understand is that they are improving," Morrison added. "And to understand improvement while you're losing is the single most difficult thing there is in sports.... We keep our heads up, we keep enthusiasm up, and we really work hard at meeting short-range goals."

Last season, the Spartans lost to Fresno State in the first round of the Big West Tournament, 64-60, and haven't seen post season play since they lost to Texas-El Paso in the first round of the 1981 NIT. And with post-season possibilities not yet a viable goal, the task at hand is foundation-building as well as accruing new respect.

"I think (San Jose) has good personnel," UCSB Head Coach Jerry Pimm said after his Gauchos roughed up the Spartans

UC IRVINE

By Craig Wong
Staff Writer

What to Look For: Don't expect much out of Irvine in 1990 — and that's no understatement. After watching his team lose to equally lowly San Jose State 85-79 on Jan. 4, UCI Head Basketball Coach Bill Mulligan was quoted in the Los Angeles Times as saying that his team was "the weakest in the league."

Center Ricky Butler added after the same loss that the team "was headed straight for the cellar. Everybody is looking at us as a win."

Even the team trainer, Paul Gardikas, wasn't too optimistic, saying that this team "isn't going to turn it around this year."

When your trainer is bagging on the squad, you somehow get the feeling that the Anteaters have thrown in the towel before the fight has even begun. You can't blame them if you check the statistics. With a team field goal percentage of 36 percent and a team free throw clip of 58 percent, you can put one and one together and come out with a 2-10 overall record and 0-3 league mark.

How to Beat 'Em: Let Irvine get a 10- or 12-point lead and then watch it fall apart. UCI amazingly comes down with a cold during the middle of the game and then shoots its way into the dumper. In several games this year, most recently versus Utah State, the Anteaters have had a double-digit advantage only to squander it away because of miserable shooting. Your best bet in putting Irvine to sleep is to let it shoot the rock from the perimeter. Pack your big guys in the middle and within minutes, the 'Eaters will be as cold as Minnesota in January. To make things worse, the turnover bug has got its bite on UCI which has been averaging almost 17 giveaways a game.

Big Man on Campus: In conference play, it has been Butler, the team's load of a center at 6'7" and 255 lbs.. The junior has been scoring at a 16-point clip while hauling in 8.3 boards per game. He feels that he could still be better.

The Scoop on the Anteaters: If UCI could put the ball in the hoop, it might be going somewhere. With its team shooting percentages placing it dead last in the Big West,

PACIFIC

What to Look For: After the University of the Pacific finished the 1988-89 campaign with a dismal 7-21 record, the Tigers have nowhere to go but up in 1989-90. And up is exactly where they seem to be headed.

Head Basketball Coach Bob Thomason returns for his second season at UOP and has already led the Tigers to an impressive 8-5 start. Although UOP lost its first three conference games (to UNLV, Long Beach State and New Mexico State), the Tigers scored a major victory Sunday night, routing UCSB 75-53 at A.G. Spanos Center in Stockton. UOP is fortunate that it is the only team in the Big West to have all five of its starters returning, although only three, center Don Lyttle, off-guard Dell Demps and power forward Ron Tabron, have actually been receiving the nod this season. "We have much better depth this season," Thomason said. "We are a much stronger, physical team."

How to Beat 'Em: The key to beating Pacific is to wear them down. This team became notorious last year for blowing games in the final minutes. Often, they simply seemed to run out of gas. They are good outside shooters, so letting them have shots from three-point range is not wise. By far, their biggest inside threat is center Don Lyttle. Double-team him and you should be OK.

Big Man on Campus: Anchoring the Pacific attack is junior center Lyttle, a good inside scorer who led the team with 12.5 points and 7.1 rebounds per game last season. Lyttle shot .516 from the field and also had a team-high 38 blocked shots (1.4 per game). He scored 21 points against the Gauchos.

The Scoop on the Tigers: Pacific's backcourt is strong. Starting at the off-guard position is sophomore Dell Demps who burned UCSB with 25 points Sunday. Supporting Demps off the bench is speedy senior Chris Fox, whose 11.2 points per game made him second-best on the team last year. Fox also led the team in three-point field goals (.377 percentage). The starting point guard is newcomer Anthony Woods, a junior transfer from Kings River College, where he was All-Central Valley Conference and his team's MVP last season. His backup is senior Reggie Ricks, who averaged 11 points and 2.8 assists per game for the Tigers in 1988-89. Ricks also made 77 three-point baskets. His .352 percentage from three-point range was second-best on the team.

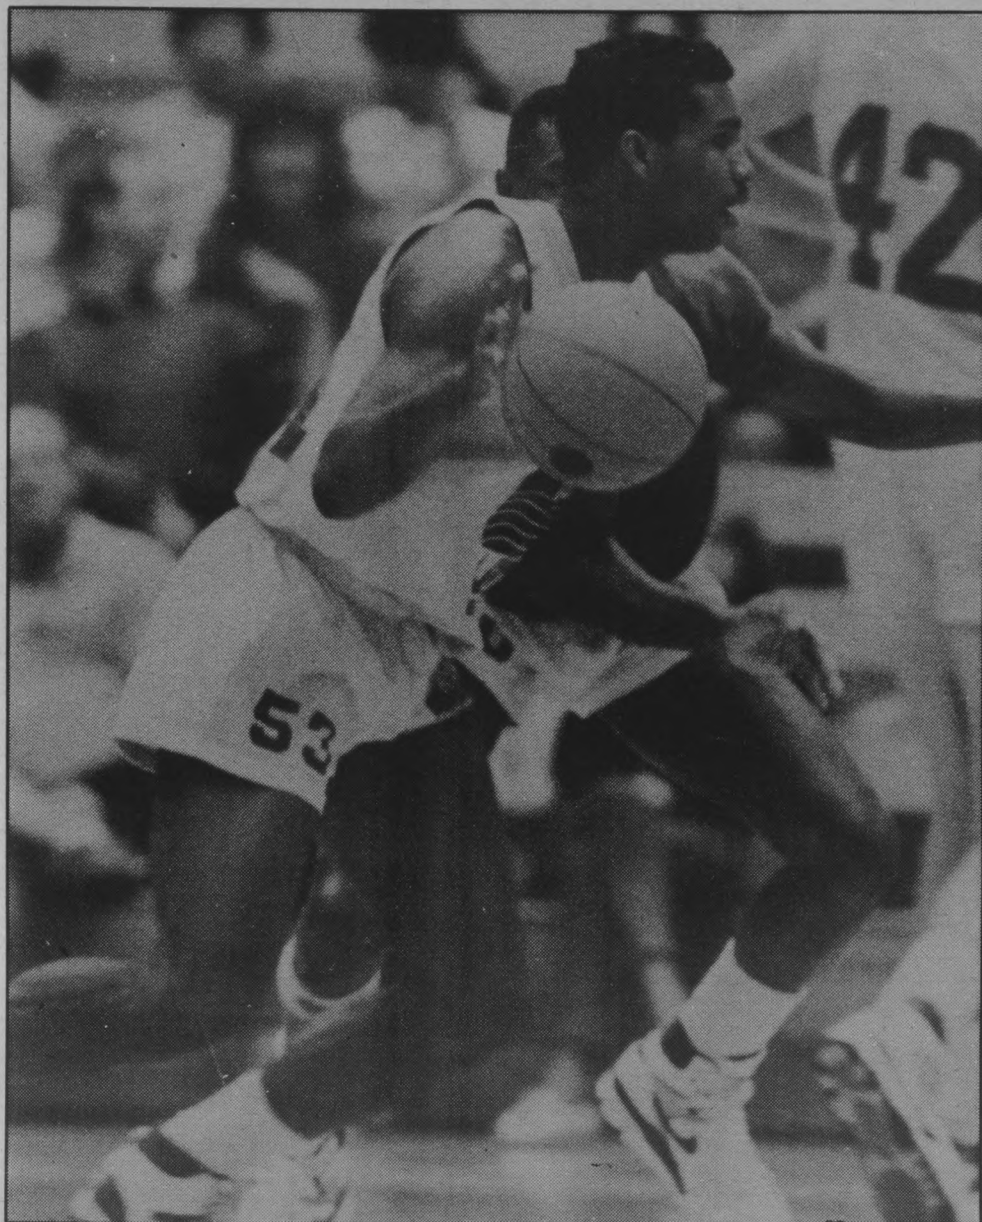

According to Thomason, the guards hold the key to UOP's success as a team. "We need to take better care of the ball and play more as a team," he said. "We have to have the desire to be suc-

A BAD BREAK — Back up point guard Mike Elliott, who spent most of the preseason as the Gauchos' first man off the bench, has been relegated to the role of a mere spectator due to a stress fracture in his shinbone. The most optimistic predictions have Elliott out at least two weeks.

Stress Fracture in Tibia Takes Toll on Gaucho Guard Elliott

By Tom Nelson
Staff Writer

Despite the aesthetically pleasing December home stand of the UCSB men's basketball team, which saw the team run up a 3-0 record against Eastern Washington, Oregon and Boston University, bad news in the form of an injury brought down Mike Elliott's Christmas cheer.

The back-up point guard has not played since the Oregon game on Dec. 19 and varying reports from an orthopedic specialist, the team trainer and Elliott himself cite a stress fracture in the right tibia as disabling him for two to six weeks.

"It's an area in which the bone is, in effect, overloaded and a microscopic fracture develops," said Dr. Kirt Kimball, an orthopedic specialist who serves as a consultant to the university for sports injuries. "In most cases they heal uneventfully with no alteration of the patient's activity length. There are some stress fractures which, instead of healing uneventfully, become worse and turn into a full-blown fracture throughout the bone and that's the problem with Mike."

Kimball predicted Elliott, who is currently wearing a supportive brace on the affected area, could come back in "two weeks at the soonest."

"It has to heal completely," team trainer Harry Callihan cautioned. "It's the magnitude of it and the place that it is located and the weight bearing. It's a fracture that's going into what's called the cortex of the bone and when it gets to that point, it can get very critical."

Callihan noted that Elliott will not be able to take part in any practices for at least three weeks.

Elliott, who had been the Gauchos' sixth man coming off the bench to spell Carrick DeHart, said a severe throbbing pain reverberated throughout his lower leg when he exerted pressure on it. The 6'3" defensive specialist had seen action in seven games this season averaging 1.4 points per game and 2.1 assists.

"I can remember as far back to September at preseason conditioning and my leg was hurt and I thought it was shin splints or something — I didn't know it was so severe," Elliott said. "I went to the doctor Friday and he said I need to wear (the brace) at least a month to six weeks and that it could take as many as three to four months to completely heal."

The injury forced UCSB Head Basketball Coach Jerry Pimm to reorganize his bench rotation as Big West play commenced.

"Our bench is hurt right now because of the loss of Mike Elliott; he was a very key figure in our team. It doesn't look like he'll be back right away," Pimm said.

The injury means more playing time for players previously relegated to "garbage" minutes, including sophomore Kason Jackson.

"It's a good chance for me to show I can play point about as good as he can and possibly better if I can get more time," Jackson said. "To see how competitive I am they have to put me in when the game's on the line."

Elliott's absence did not have a major effect on any of the Gauchos' first three games: two blowouts over San Jose State, Utah State and a drubbing at the hands of Pacific.

"As far as that goes, we have a lot of talent on the team and I think the freshmen will pick it up a lot," Elliott said. "We have a tight team and I think we'll get through it."

Depending on his recovery time, UCSB may petition to preserve a year of Elliott's eligibility by having him declared a redshirt for the 1989-90 year.

UCI

it's not surprising that as of press time, the team was in the basement of the conference. Mulligan needs consistent production from his top senior, former UCLA player Rod Palmer. The 6'3" play maker has been averaging more than five assists per game to go along with his 12 points a contest.

Another key member is 6'6" shooting forward Jeff Herdman who has been averaging 14 points a game, while Mulligan's biggest surprise has been freshman Ben Rishwan who has slowly earned a good deal of playing time, averaging more than 20 minutes a game in the past several contests. The 5'11" guard from St. Mary's High School in Stockton is picking opponent's pockets almost three times a game.

"This losing is like a sickness," Rishwan said. "We just got a down attitude. We've been playing pretty hard as a team but we haven't executed. We haven't been shooting. The one game we shot over 50 percent, we won."

The schedule for UCI is brutal for the next two weeks as it faces the Big West's first division — Long Beach, New Mexico State, Vegas, UCSB, and Fullerton. As Marv Albert would say, "Oooh, That's gotta hurt."

Ressa's backup is senior Daryl Wolfe, one of the best sixth men in the Big West.

Don't be a Nobody

"Youth is wasted on the young," some old guy said once and maybe he had a point. Fortunately for most of us he didn't have a whip.

Before you know it you'll be living in Montecito with 2.8 kids, an overweight spouse and a Ford Festiva in the garage and you'll think of all the great times you had here.

You'll probably kick yourself (or Junior) and say, "damn, why didn't I write for Friday Magazine when it was an obscure bastion of creative slander, instead of the planet's most read dental journal? Why didn't I go into the Nexus office, beg Tony for the job and go through some rigorous hazing? Why didn't I? WHY? WHY!"

Associated Students LONG RANGE DEVELOPMENT PLAN STUDENT FORUMS

Are you effected by:
Overcrowded classes?
L.A.-style bikepath traffic jams?
Inadequate parking?
An impacted major?
High-cost, substandard housing?
Water restrictions?

If so, these and many other issues concerning the quality of education and student living at U.C. Santa Barbara will be discussed in open forum on the following dates:

Wed. Jan. 10, 11am-1pm UCEN Rm 1

Fri. Jan. 12, 9am-11am UCEN Rm 1

Tues. Jan 16, 2pm-3pm UCEN Rm 1

Wed. Jan. 17, 11am-1pm UCEN Rm 3

Did you know that in a year...

An average paper mill consumes 180,000 tons of wood;

Uses enough energy to light Las Vegas for a week;

Disgorges 8.2 billion liters of liquid waste;

Discharges an average of 62 grams of dioxin.

An average American discards 84 lbs of plastic;

Uses 37,000 gallons of water;

Discards 1,300 lbs of garbage.*

Gaucha Cyhaniuk Scores Trip To NCAAs

In any sport, as a season progresses a head coach can begin to determine who his or her best performers are. This season, it's no problem for UCSB Head Diving Coach Mike Lewis.

"Pat Kaufmann, Evan Cyhaniuk and Amy Dalziel are my best divers," said Lewis, who watched Cyhaniuk, a freshman, break the UCSB school record on the three-meter dive in Hawaii and in the process qualify for the NCAA regionals. "Our goal is to send all three of them to the regionals," he said.

Along with Cyhaniuk, Dalziel has a ticket to the postseason too. Only Kaufmann has yet to qualify, but should do so before the regular dual meet season is over, according to Lewis. Kaufmann missed qualifying by one point at a meet last month in Santa Clara.

Along with this impressive trio, Lewis also praised his number three male diver Jeff Ritchie and female diver Andi Ignoffo who just recently became eligible for competition.

"Andi won't win right away but she will still give us some points, and Jeff is a solid backup," Lewis said. "This is the most injury-free and consistent team that I've had here in eight seasons."

A Silent T-Dome?? It Could Happen If You Don't Read This

By Tom Nelson
 Staff Writer

OK. It's about 7 p.m., you've just grabbed some grub and you're out the door on your cruiser to meet some friends at the Thunderdome to help cheer the blue-and-gold clad hoopers to victory.

Sound like a good plan? Nope, your game day plans are subject to a little revision.

Although admission for the Winter Break games was first-come-first-serve — show your reg card and you're in — a new student ticket distribution policy will be in effect for tomorrow night's game against New Mexico State.

Here is a recap of how students can get their hands on one of those hot little tickets which will grant admission to the Events Center:

- Students holding registration cards will be required to line up at designated areas of Harder Stadium on the day of the game. Tickets will be distributed between the hours of noon and 4 p.m.

- Registered students can pick up two student tickets — one with their own reg card and the other with a friend's.

- Each student ticket will be numbered. The first student in line will receive ticket number one, the second student will receive ticket number two and so on, up to number 2,500.

- After receiving a ticket on the afternoon of the game, students will line up in areas outside the ECen corresponding to the number on their ticket.

- Students will be allowed into the ECen through the student entrance one hour before game time. The order in which students will be admitted will depend on the number on their ticket. Students with lower numbered tickets will have priority in choice of seating. Students will not be allowed to hold seats for other people.

- Students will be assured admission only if they arrive at the ECen 15 minutes before the doors are scheduled to open (6:15 for tomorrow's 7:30 game). Students arriving late (after their number has been let in) can enter through a separate door at the student entrance.

- Any student with a reg card who does not pick up a ticket at Harder Stadium will be able to purchase one at the ECen for $5.

The above policy will be in effect for the remaining games on the Gaucho schedule.
