Members of the student body definitely turned out en masse at the dance last Friday night and made it the biggest thing we have had as yet. Most of the faculty was there, too, to add to the evening’s enjoyment.

The sorority pledges all looked lovely and each sorority presented a very nice appearance. Highlight of the evening was, and naturally so, the crowning of the May Queen. After several weeks of wondering who the lucky girl would be, it was a pleasant surprise when Jackie Morrissey received the honor. She was a very gracious and lovely queen and Barbara Walker and Emily Stannard were charming and beautiful.

The whole affair was grand and worthy of continuance. However, we would suggest that in the future the place where the dance is held should be left in much better condition. There is no excuse for a group of grown people making such a mess of a building, especially one as beautiful as Rockwood. No one person was responsible for it, but it would seem that everyone would attempt to keep it clean.

The Senior Ball is being held on June 3 and all students will be invited to come. We honestly hope that it will be as great a success as the May Dance, but that the Country Club will be left in as good condition as it was found.

Don’t forget the student body election today. Every candidate for office is a good one and one who is capable of holding his office. In the past, not every student on campus has voted. Since you are allowed to vote for your own officers, please see to it that you get to the polls today.

The music department is giving many concerts and worthwhile activities at this time. The concert by the music organizations, given in the auditorium last night, was very good. A student recital will also be given next Thursday afternoon at 2:30 and all students are invited to come. This will be the last performance given by graduating seniors. You have all heard Mr. Lloyd Browning last week, was attended by an enthusiastic audience. The auditorium was full almost to overflowing.

Perhaps the most brilliant of the compositions was the Sonata, op. 5, first movement. Intermezzo, op. 118, no. 6 was characterized by chords that are, in this day, considered very modern. Intermezzo, op. 119, no. 2 was full of melody. Mr. Browning’s outstanding selection was Rhapsody, op. 79, no. 2. This composition is well known for its beauty and is known to pianists for its difficulty. However, Mr. Browning played it with superb technique and seeming ease.

The program was well chosen and arranged, featuring many changing moods. Mr. Browning played beautifully and everyone went away with the knowledge of having heard a great artist.

Mr. Browning is planning a concert of Chopin and Debussy to be given next semester.
