

Buffer Zone Suggested For EIS

By DAVID PETRY

The psychological, recreational and ecological Buffer Zone directly off the coast of Santa Barbara is being recommended for an Environmental Impact Statement for oil and gas development.

Lease Sale No. 68 will be conducted in June of 1982, and includes land off the Santa Barbara coast set aside in an Ecological Preserve and Buffer Zone by Executive Order in 1969, following the January 28, 1969 oil "blowout."

Dev Vrat, Santa Barbara County energy specialist, said, "It is an insult even to have the area put into the EIS." Once in the EIS, he said, "it's very easily sold."

On March 21, 1969, former Secretary of the Interior, Walter J. Hickel, issued an Executive Order establishing the preserve in federal waters from UCSB to Summerland. The purpose of the preservation of the area was to "protect and preserve the values of this area...for the benefit and enjoyment of this and future generations."

Supervisors Sign Oil Lease Letter

By PATRICIA TURNER

The Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors voted yesterday to sign a letter addressed to Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus asking that a meeting be held with Andrus before he determines whether the Santa Barbara Channel should be leased for oil drilling.

"The oil companies want (to implement) the federal buffer zone of three miles," said Supervisor Bill Wallace. "Since the spill of 1969, it's (the channel) been off limits to the oil companies."

Andrus was asked to decide the matter after the Bureau of Land Management asked the secretary to reconsider the leasing of oil tracts within the channel.

"They've made recommendations to the secretary that all those tracts be leased," said Wallace. "We're joining other Southern California counties to request to see Andrus before he makes a decision."

In other business, the board voted to table the issue of whether to revise Air Pollution Control District Rules 305, 306, 307, for the North County until January of 1981.

The proposed revisions would require new corporations, or the expansion of existing ones, to employ strict pollution controls to cut down the amount of particulates — small particles of dust — being released into the atmosphere.

Currently, due to the large amount of agricultural dust present in the North County, controls on particulates are limited.

"In the South County, we have very stringent rules that the North County does not have," said Wallace.

A vote on the proposed revisions has been postponed until the Environmental Protection Agency releases its control standards on particulates.

The proposed revisions are expected to be met with strong opposition from North County companies. "Generally, any company that has smoke stacks would be against it," Wallace said.

Wallace supports the revisions, (Please turn to p.9, col.1)

Welfare Bill Passes First Test in Senate

By NEILL J. STOKES

A bill designed to restructure California's basic welfare system by removing employable persons from the welfare roll passed its first legislative committee last week.

State Senator John Garamendi (D-Walnut Grove) authored SB 1476, and it is co-authored by 21 state legislators including State Senator Omer Rains (D-Santa Barbara). "The bill would create two basic welfare categories," stated a press release from Rains' office.

"One (category) would include persons who cannot work because of age or grave disability; basically a continuation of our present welfare system.

Access for U.C. Students

Attorney General's Opinion Sought on Student Records Bill

By CAROLYN FRIDAY PAUL

A bill that would guarantee U.C. students the same rights to their records that are enjoyed by every citizen was withdrawn from the Assembly Education Committee last Wednesday until an opinion from the Attorney General could be obtained.

Presently, California student's rights of access concerning their records are set out in the federal Family Education Rights and Privacy Act. Students are not included, however, in the 1977 Information Privacy Act, which provides civil remedies and penalties for employees who violate the provisions of the act while acting in their official capacity.

The question to be submitted to the Attorney General is whether or not students have rights similar to those provided to all California residents in the IPA.

The bill, AB 3107, sponsored by Berkeley Assemblyman Tom Bates, is designed to fill in gaps in the laws regulating students' rights to their records by amending the education code to include enforcement procedures for wronged students.

"The university claims it already has such procedures in its present policies," said Bates. "But we want to make sure."

According to U.C. Student Lobby Coordinator Amiel Jaramillo, the issue is not the university's compliance with the present state and federal laws. "I am impressed with the effort the university has made in attempting to comply with such laws," said Jaramillo.

Unfortunately, Jaramillo contends, the existing laws and policies do not go far enough and what is needed is a vehicle for student records.

"By applying criminal or disciplinary potential for the wrongdoer within the IPA, the Legislature intended to ensure policing ability by those who are wronged themselves rather than relying solely on government intervention. This same enforcement vehicle should be accorded to students," said Jaramillo.

The Bates bill would provide wronged students with the possibility of suing the college or university in a civil court within two years of the violation of the student's rights. The court would also be empowered to award a minimum of $2,500 in damages to students, and order the wrongdoer to pay a minimum of 50 percent of the litigation costs, up to $10,000.

New Isla Vista Traffic Safety Survey Now Scheduled for Improvement of Condition

By CATHERINE BOWMAN

To improve traffic safety in I.V., the Isla Vista Planning Commission, with the aid of over 180 volunteers, will conduct a traffic survey in the commercial district on April 15 and 16.

Mark Isaacson, community planner, said the study will provide data on "age-old issues dating back to 1971, when I.V. government started." The consulting firm of Wilbur, Smith, and Assoc., of Los Angeles, will provide an analysis of the data that will be completed in June.

The study, funded by the university, will cost $6,000. Although four consulting firms were interviewed by the I.V. Planning Commission, some with estimates of $11,000, the "low cost" was made possible by the cooperative efforts of the volunteers.

Four major areas of concern include: the Embarcadero loop, Pardall, Del Playa, and El Colegio Road. Two potential solutions to the safety hazards being examined are changing the Embarcadero loop to a one-way route, and a partial or full enclosure of Pardall to create a mall.

Isaacson believes that "most people who use Pardall, if stopped and asked, will say yes, Embarcadero del Mar and Embarcadero del Norte are the worst intersections as far as safety." Although he said that merchants do not feel traffic is a problem, Isaacson said, "Sufficient data will provide the necessary information to make merchants willing to change."

The Planning Commission will also study the possibility of a partial or full barrier to auto traffic on Del Playa. "It is my feeling that there is a problem on Friday and Saturday nights on Del Playa," said Isaacson. However, there is "no concrete evidence to take to the county." He also noted that a barrier would tend to discourage high school "cruisers" rather than limit I.V. residents from attending parties.

Possible expansion of El Colegio Road to a four-lane street is due to "a long standing desire of the county to alleviate traffic," said (Please turn to p.9, col.1)

The Isla Vista Planning Commission will conduct a two-day study of traffic in Isla Vista to analyze possible solutions to the community's growing traffic problems. The study will cost $6,000 and will be headed by the consulting firm of Wilbur, Smith, and Assoc., a Los Angeles-based firm.

SACRAMENTO—Governor Jerry Brown, who has been thwarted in his efforts to transfer $135,000 from the state Office of Emergency Services for his battle against licensing the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant, has decided to use funds from his own office. Gray Davis, the governor's chief of staff, said in Sacramento that the money "will come directly" from the governor's office if the Legislature thwarts Brown's attempts to get the funds from the Office of Emergency Services. J. Anthony Kline, the governor's legal affairs secretary, said Brown entered into a contract of up to $75,000 with Hill, Christopher and Phillips of Washington, D.C., for the law firm to oppose licensing of the 2,200-megawatt power plant in San Luis Obispo. The $1.7 billion Pacific Gas and Electric Co. plant is virtually complete but has not been licensed by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

SAN FRANCISCO—A moderate earthquake shook buildings in San Benito and Salinas counties but no injuries or property damage were reported, authorities said. The University of California's seismographic station at Berkeley estimated the magnitude at 4.7 on the Richter scale. The quake appears to have been centered between Hollister and Monterey and was felt in parts of Monterey, Salinas, Hayward and San Francisco.

YUCAIPA—Bloodstains on a carpet and a bedsheet led to the arrest of a Yucaipa man suspected of having murdered two little girls and stuffing their bodies into a supermarket trashbin. The bodies of Linda Christine Hubbard, 7, and Teddy Elizabeth Engilman, 10, were found enclosed in plastic bags and partially concealed in the bin about three hours after their parents reported them missing. A search had been started when the girls failed to return from a Saturday afternoon visit to a park. At about the time the bodies were found, firefighters from the state Department of Forestry were called to extinguish a fire that had partially destroyed the home of Phillip Louis Lucero, 34, across the street from the park. Upon discovering the bloodstains, the firemen reported them to the San Bernardino County sheriff's substation.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—One day after voting to boycott the Moscow Olympics, the U.S. Olympic Committee on Sunday announced a retrenchment of its operations, saying it will close its training center in Squaw Valley, California. "These are hard times and we must face bottom-line considerations," USOC Executive Director F. Don Miller said in announcing the closure of the center near Lake Tahoe. The USOC will maintain its larger training center here in Colorado Springs. Miller, concluding the annual USOC House of Delegates meeting, urged USOC members "not to be discouraged" by the decision not to field a U.S. team in the Summer Olympics for the first time since the modern games were organized in 1896. "Our mission has been put aside temporarily," Miller said. But, he added, it will be revised and USOC fund-raising efforts ought to be intensified.

WASHINGTON—The number of physicians in the United States is growing at such a rapid rate that the nation may have more doctors by 1990 than it needs, a government report asserted Sunday. The report by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare predicted that the number of physicians needed for the century's final decade will range between 553,000 and 596,000. But it said the supply of doctors is expected to number about 60,000. It said the number of physicians increased by 17 percent between 1970 and 1978. There were 379,000 physicians in 1978, compared to 323,000 eight years earlier. Based on current data, the HEW study said, the supply will be adequate or slightly in excess of need for serving the American population in 1990.

WASHINGTON—The United States expects its allies to help punish Iran with economic sanctions "within the next few days," Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher said Sunday. Intensifying the Carter administration's pressure on the allies to take a stronger role against the Iranian government over the hostage issue, Christopher said, "We are looking for action from them, not words. We are talking about what good allies, good friends should do," he said on the ABC-TV interview program "Issues and Answers."

The World

TEHRAN—In an apparent softening of their attitude, the militant students holding 50 Americans captive at the U.S. Embassy on Sunday invited representatives of the International Committee of the Red Cross to visit the hostages Monday afternoon. Simultaneously, the ambassadors of the European Common Market countries prepared to leave Tehran, after Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr rejected their plea for an immediate release of the hostages. In keeping with the view expressed Friday by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini favoring more visits to the hostages, the militants said Sunday they have invited the Red Cross, the Iranian Red Lion and Sun Society (Iran's Red Cross), Health Minister Moussa Zargar and Ali Khamenei, Tehran's principal religious leader, to visit "all of the hostages" yesterday afternoon.

LEBANON—U.N. peacekeeping troops went on full alert in southern Lebanon after a clash with Lebanese Christian militiamen in the disputed village of Tiri, U.N. officials reported in Israel. At least two people were reported killed Saturday, one a U.N. soldier from Fiji. Meanwhile, spokesmen in Tel Aviv said Israel completed the pullout of its forces from southern Lebanon, ending the incursion that began last Wednesday.

INDIA—The prime minister called for a 12-point emergency plan to prevent famine in seven Indian states suffering from severe drought. Indira Gandhi's plan calls for strong measures against black marketeers, profiteers and hoarders, intensification of a food-for-work program and the appointment of a full-time relief officer to the districts most seriously affected by food scarcity and unemployment. One of these is the state of Bihar, among India's poorest, where 30 million people are short of food.

Questions have arisen over the policy of leaving graded papers and exams where they might be too easily accessible.

Violation Of Privacy Act Occurs As Papers Are Left Unattended

By leaving graded papers unattended outside their offices and thus subject to casual inspection or theft, UCSB teachers are violating the Privacy Act of 1974.

The violation occurs under federal and university laws which state that grades may only be released to the general public with the students written permission. The distinction between paper grades and class grades is not made in UCSB's Procedure For Use and Release of Student Data.

Dr. Stanley Anderson of the Department of Political Science called the problem a "violation of privacy and plagiarism."

Two years ago an "A" paper was stolen the same day it was left in the hall to be picked up. After numerous complaints, Anderson, who then served as political science department chair, made it department policy never to leave papers in the hall.

Presently, other departments continue to leave papers outside their offices. "Basically, it's a matter of convenience," said Dr. Anderson. "We (the teachers) set up the system to suit ourselves. It can be a nuisance to have students coming in asking for papers."

Indicating that returning papers was a problem with no real solution, Bob Evans, director of Student Services, said, "The department offices are really too busy to return papers, and asking students to submit a stamped, self-addressed envelope seems like too much trouble."

Both Evans and Anderson feel it is important that teachers are made aware of the problem. "I feel teachers should keep the papers for students, or that students should come directly to some responsible person to get their papers," said Anderson. "It's not that the problem is that large, but it would be best to remove the temptation."

Evans said that complaints were rare. "Occasionally someone will take an 'A' paper and put their name on it and turn it in. That is when I hear about it."

Effects of Bakke on U.C. System Unclear

By ROBERT HOPKINS

Concerning the effect of the Bakke decision on the number of minority students applying and enrolling in the University of California, a report released last month by the U.C. President David Saxon's office, has determined that "the evidence is still inclusive."

Compiled by the staff and office of the academic vice president, the report was written in response to fears arising from the Supreme Court's opinion that "assignment of a fixed number of places to a minority group is not a necessary means" for affirmative action purposes.

However, according to the report, "There is no statistical basis for assuming that the number or percentage of minority students applying for admission to the University or entering the University has been adversely affected by the Bakke decision."

For example, the percentage of minority students (American Indian, Black, Chicano/Latino) entering the U.C. medical schools rose from 15.3 percent in the fall of 1978 to 17.4 percent in the fall of 1979. Likewise, minority students entering the U.C. law schools increased from 15.1 percent in the fall of 1978 to 16.0 percent in the fall of 1979.

Results from a survey in "The Chronical of Higher Education," conducted a year after the decision, showed that minority student admissions from 1979 had increased in some graduate and professional schools.

The Association of American Medical Colleges and the American Bar Association also found an increase in the enrollment of minority students. However, the report added, "Minority enrollment was uneven across the various schools and disciplines, and had declined at some institutions."

The report also pointed out the difficulty in assessing the exact relationship between the Bakke decision and the changes in minority enrollments in the University of California which followed the decision.

Equal Opportunity

A bill which would require state and community colleges and request that the University of California to develop regulations ensuring equal athletic opportunities for male and female athletes was unanimously passed by the Assembly Education Committee last week.

Authored by Leroy Greene (D-Sacramento), the bill has yet to be approved by the full Assembly and the Senate before it becomes law.

We support this bill and urge the legislature to pass it. While the U.C. Board of Regents, because of state constitutional provisions, cannot be mandated by legislative action, we hope they will also comply with the bill should it be passed.

No doubt university compliance with Title IX regulations has boosted opportunities for female athletes, but much remains to be done before male and female students actually have equal athletic opportunities.

Big draw sports like men's football and basketball generate income for many universities while most women's sports do not, thus, it is male football and basketball players who benefit from athletic scholarships.

Greene's bill provides that athletic scholarships be made available in proportion to the number of male and female athletes qualifying for this financial assistance. We feel this move encourages equal athletic benefits for members of both sexes.

We also support Greene's proposal that public education institutions do a systemwide survey of their athletic programs to determine the level of participation which would occur if the act passed. If financially feasible, this survey would enable school systems to get a good indication of how athletic funds are used on different campuses.

English Needed

Each year newspapers, magazines, television and radio all shout out how poorly the new batch of college students do on the tests of English comprehension and grammar. Horror stories abound of students who cannot put together an understandable sentence or figure out basic punctuation.

It is in this light that the recent news of the possible elimination of the Intensive English program and one of its brightest members, Mark Ferrer, is so disturbing.

English is one of the fundamental departments at any university. In recent years its duties have changed somewhat as it now becomes more and more a way to remedy the problems and errors of poor elementary and high school teaching techniques.

Teachers are faced with the monumental task of re-educating an entire lifetime of problems, or possibly no real education at all; not an easy task. This chore becomes even more difficult when the tight constraints of a university quarter are also imposed.

Teachers within the Subject A and Intensive English programs face these difficulties every day, working with problems that just don't exist in other areas of study.

While most of these university teachers are good at their jobs, it is especially encouraging when one is recognized as a true highpoint in the program. Ferrer's credentials are impressive, but beyond this, he has the support of teachers as well as present and former students. It speaks highly of his success in a field which offers so many difficulties and possibilities of failure.

Anyone with such capabilities most definitely should not be taken from his post — he has earned it. We feel that some type of answer must be worked out, not only on the issue of Ferrer, but also on the entire question of the Intensive English program.

An answer must be formulated. Any loss in these classes would be disastrous to the university as well as the students who desperately need its services. The department and the administration should realize the importance of the situation and work together to achieve an answer that will be agreeable to both sides. It is much too important an issue to ignore or let simply stand as it now exists. Like the ad says, a mind is a terrible thing to waste.

Letters

Big Business Day

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Does the idea of a corporate job interest you? The Coalition concerned about Corporate Power is aware that many students will be seeking jobs with large firms, corporate firms and various American businesses. In these times when one does not get hired by the small businessperson as an apprentice, those interested or experienced in economics, math, business, the sciences, or accounting will seek a job with employers who offer a reasonable salary. Often it is the corporation one will seek, which is why I have written this letter.

Last year over 100,000 people died from cancer they got on the job, in the air and in their food. Yet big business has launched a propaganda war to undermine OSHA, the Clean Air Act, and Pure Food Laws. While prices jumped 13 percent last year and are already at 18 percent this year, take home pay for employees rose less than 9 percent.

We believe big business is responsible for abusing their control in the marketplace by concentrating both wealth and power through highly organized and efficient bureaucracies. Our point is that at the same time that the corporation has become more powerful and more organized than big government, it is also true it is accountable to less people since less people are involved in the important decisions in corporate policies, practices and plans.

We are therefore seeking to challenge big business on those issues which we feel they have abused their power. From 1975 to 1978, giant conglomerates increased by three-fold the number of smaller businesses they gobbled up. Yet big business opposes new anti-trust laws as violations of the "free market."

As far as we are concerned, the uprisings and subsequent cultural changes of the '60s and the Vietnam war have not been resolved. There still exists a climate of reformist and revolutionary change; and, unless the issues which affect the multitude of American citizens are sufficiently addressed, there still exists the possibility of drastic depression, unruly poverty and unemployment levels, and even mass unrest due to impending possibilities of war.

Because the government is not dealing successfully with these problems (one need only note the 18 percent inflation and 18 percent interest rates) and because their power is being usurped through property and income tax revolts we can only turn to business — big business — to resolve these problems. Yet it is obvious that they are not designed to deal with such problems since their interests run contrary to welfare for everyone and everyone's children. So the burden falls on us — the taxpayer, the homeowner, the renter, the student, and the resister and server of wars.

We think it's time for the victims of corporate abuse to join together to work for what made America great. Its working people. Its moral standards. Its natural heritage. Its competitive enterprise system.

As a kickoff, we've decided to concentrate our energies on one day, April 17, 1980. Big Business Day will raise the questions of what the '80s will look like for renters, taxpayers and energy concerned citizens. Corporate codes of ethics, farm worker struggles, LNG, real estate speculation, alternative energy, cooperatives, and draft resistance will be the focus of the day. All events are being held in UCen II between 9-4 pm. Feeling ripped-off by corporate power? Be there! Wondering what all your peers are up in arms about? Come and find out.

Iran and U.S.

Editor, Daily Nexus:

The Iranian hostage situation continues to drag on, and it has since become apparent to me that no progress will be made in their release until Washington's approach to the problem drastically changes. But in attempting to rectify the hostage situation, a few simple facts about the former regime are needed before we can fully understand just why the use of forceful economic and political pressure will not produce any worthwhile results.

The ex-shah's regime was put into power when the U.S. government, acting through the CIA, overthrew the popular and legitimate government of Mossadegh's in 1953. The U.S.'s primary purpose then, as now, was to secure the area from communist influence given Iran's strategic geographic position on the border of the Soviet Union. Since from 1953 on, the government of Iran had taken on a monarchist form of dictatorship which was fully supported by the U.S. government. The survival of this dictatorship required that several repressive agencies be set up in order to deal with the uncooperative civilian population. One such agency was SAVAK (the secret police), whose main task was the identification and destruction of all those who in any way opposed the shah's regime. SAVAK was established in 1957 under U.S. supervision with both the CIA and FBI lending technical assistance. As a result of the political repression practiced by the shah and enforced by SAVAK two major civilian uprisings occurred. One took place in June of 1963 when over 1,000 unarmed demonstrators were killed by the shah's army. The other occurred in September of 1978, towards the end of the regime, when 3,000 were murdered in a clash with the shah's troops at Tehran's Jaleh Square.

When the price of oil shot up in 1973, the shah took full advantage of his increased wealth to provide his army, navy and air force with some of the most sophisticated military hardware in the world. Thousands of millions were spent on the latest weaponry in the shah's blind attempt to become a military power in the area. The beneficiaries of this oil-for-weapons deal included the shah, his armed forces and the U.S. arms manufacturers who supplied the arsenal. Unfortunately, the Iranian people failed to derive any benefit from these enormous military expenditures.

Due to these forms of repression and neglect imposed by the shah and supported by the U.S., it has become evident to me that the Iranian people will not respond to the incessant demands and threats from Washington for the release of the hostages. What the current administration must do is face up to the fact that they and former administrations have supported a despotic regime for 25 years. Only until the U.S. submits a public apology acknowledging its wrongful support of the shah can the hostages ever hope to be released.

Feeling ripped-off? Did you just buy a lemon? Perhaps your electricity bill just skyrocketed due to an increase in rates or a chemical company recently dumped hazardous waste dangerously close to your family's house?

On Thursday April 17 in UCen II UCSB will host Big Business Day, a day which we can protest corporate power and abuse and learn just how some of its facets work. Basically we'll be talking about how corporate power runs our lives. We're exposing the plan so to speak. Workshops on corporate control of energy, housing, the environment, the tax structure, military spending and other sectors are planned as well as a variety of multi-media presentations.

Planned by various consumer and student groups and sponsored by Associated Students the program will be part of a nationwide kickoff of a decade of education and action concerning corporate monopoly power and abuse. A decade in which the citizen as consumer can find viable alternatives to monopoly control.

From Seattle to Washington D.C., major events will include disclosures of top executive salaries, corporate crimes and an indictment of the worst local polluters. In San Francisco winners of a contest called the California Corporate Hall of Shame will be publically denounced. A "shadow board of directors" will also be formed in cities all over the nation. This "shadow board of directors" will be formed of local progressives who will monitor corporate activities in their own cities.

Big Business Day creators Ralph

We encourage all interested students, staff and faculty of UCSB, as well as members of the surrounding community to write letters to the Daily Nexus editorial page commenting on any topic.

Due to the continual inflow of letters we cannot guarantee that each and every letter will be used, or run in its entirety. We reserve the right to edit letters to accommodate space limitations and where certain language can be construed to be libelous.

All letters that are turned in must be typed on a 60 space line, signed, and include a current phone number. Letters should be limited to no more than 300 words (600 words if it is to be considered for the FORUM section).

All letters remain property of the Nexus.

Nadar, Barry Commoner and John Kenneth Galbraith see the day as more than educational however. The day will also act as a forum in which to unveil the "Corporate Democracy Act of 1980", legislation that would bring corporate accountability to the public. Included in the act is a provision requiring a majority of boards of directors to consist of consumer representatives.

Big Business Day will give us a chance, as students and as citizens, to stand up and say no to corporate monopoly abuse. By showing us how the corporate structure works, the day can only help us in our fight against its rip-offs.

I.V. Housing Survey

Inflation Hits Isla Vista as Apartment Rentals Increase

By DIANE SZABO

Isla Vista apartment rentals are on the rise for the 1980-1981 year, according to Joan Mortell, UCSB housing director.

Each year the Community Housing Office conducts surveys on the I.V. housing situation. These surveys are based on the average rent for an apartment per month, according to Mortell.

Studio apartments increased 9.4 percent, one-bedrooms increased 9.2 percent, two-bedrooms increased 6.2 percent, and three-bedrooms rose 8.7 percent, added

Mortell.

Most of the apartments in I.V. have month-to-month or year rental agreements. There are few monthly leases beginning in September.

According to Mortell, an advantage to a year lease is that the average monthly price is less expensive than the nine month lease. However, difficulties arise with a year lease because students may have to alter their summer plans.

According to some I.V. rental agencies, many month-to-month rental prices will not be established until summer. With a monthly rental, there may be a better chance of availability for students arriving late in the fall.

The apartment owners have not indicated the possible price of these apartment rentals. They could raise them every month which could be a severe blow to late arriving students, according to Mortell.

A survey from the rental companies in I.V. has alerted the housing office that they are renting faster than ever this year. According to Mortell a lot of the I.V. apartments are rented for the fall. "Embarcadero Co. is 80 percent rented, Proper One is 90 percent rented, Ron Wolfe is 75 percent rented, IPM is 85 percent rented, Rentals Etc. is 80 percent rented, and Ventura Enterprises is 70 percent rented," stated Mortell.

Many students have their apartments selected for the fall, however, are still looking for roommates. The housing office board lists these vacancies and will continue to do so. Also published is a summer list of I.V. apartments. To date, there are still numerous vacancies.

"Students are encouraged to come to the housing office and speak with us about their rental concerns," said Mortell. Written resources as well as personnel are available for rental counsel and assistance to students at the Community Housing Office.

Career Day Held in Plaza on Wednesday

Representatives from over 100 different career fields, including communications, business, real estate, science, education, engineering, and interior design will be on campus this week to participate in Careers in the '80s.

Anyone interested in the various career options available to students upon graduation from college is invited to attend this event on Wednesday, April 16, at Storke Plaza from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

According to Regina Ward of the Counseling, Career Planning and Placement Services, "If you have a vague idea about a career and want to know more about day to day working conditions or if you are just curious about the potential uses of a college education these days, you should come and participate in this informational bonanza."

Ward commented that this is the fourth time a career exposition has been held at UCSB. The last three years were from 1976-78. Ward said that "This year there is a strong influence in business, education, and social services."

In addition to the representatives, a speakers forum consisting of three people, will speak and provide more information about what employers expect from recent college graduates. The speakers are: Dennis Grindell from Bank of America, speaking from 11-12 noon, Sandy Sakamoto from Pacific Telephone, speaking from noon-1 p.m., and George Skidmore from Hewlett Packard, speaking from 1-1:30 p.m.

Van Ness to Discuss Draft

"Uncle Sam Wants Me?," a panel discussion concerning the possibility of American military involvement and women's roles in the draft, will be presented by the Women's Center on April 7 at 3 p.m. in the UCen Pavilion.

Among the speakers will be Bill Van Ness, a pastor at the University Religious Conference, who will discuss services that the center offers for people who feel they would like to be conscientious objectors.

Sherry Studley and Dianne Leonard, members of the UCSB Coalition to Stop the Draft and the Women's Caucus to Stop the Draft, will discuss the activities of their groups. They will also discuss the draft as it relates to the Equal Rights Amendment.

Lisa Kelley, a history graduate student, will discuss historical aspects of the draft and the implications of war and peace for women.

Columnist Says Women Should Draft

"For too long, warfare has been seen as men's business only," commented syndicated columnist Ellen Goodman, expressing her belief in the current (May) issue of Redbook magazine that if the draft is reinstated, women should be included. "There are simply no reasonable grounds for a male-only draft today," declared Goodman, who suggested that if women were in a position to start as well as to stop wars, the very complexion of war might change.

Emphasizing that she is opposed to war for any reason other than self-defense, Goodman said that she is not in favor of anyone — male or female — being registered or drafted unless there is a genuine crisis. "But if there is a draft again, it can't touch just our sons, like some civilized plague that leaves daughters along to produce another generation of warriors."

"But perhaps, stripped of its maleness and mystery, its audience and cheerleaders, war can finally be deglorified. Without the last trappings of chivalry it can be seen for what it is — the last deadly resort," Goodman asserted in Redbook.

Housing Co-op Has Orientation Meeting

The Rochdale Housing Co-op held its orientation meeting for fall 1980 housing applicants last Thursday night, and approximately 60 people attended.

With the acquisition of five new buildings, the co-op memberships will be expanded to 200 to 225 people. Administrative Manager Patty Newman announced that all those present at the meeting would be accepted for next year.

In addition to the existing co-ops on Madrid and Cervantes, there will be three new ones on Picasso, Embarcadero Del Norte and Embarcadero Del Mar.

The Rochdale Project is not an ownership co-op; it leases the buildings, according to Newman. However, actual ownership is the next step. As Co-op President Mark Williams stated, "Hopefully, we are on the threshold of that."

Williams said that leases have been signed for the five new buildings and verbal agreements have been reached with the owners of the two original buildings.

The meeting was centered around a slide show presentation entitled, "The Wind Through The Pines." The show described examples of the 33,000 co-ops across the U.S. by combining the old wave of co-ops started during the Great Depression with the new wave co-ops started in the '60s.

Statistics Center Predicts Rise In Campus Enrollment Until '81

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The National Center for Education Statistics, in its annual survey, is predicting that college enrollment will hit an all-time high in 1981 before falling to levels that could pit four-year private colleges against two-year community colleges in a battle for older, part-time students.

The NCES expects 11.69 million college students to enroll in 1981, a record number. By 1988, however, it sees enrollment shrinking to 11.048 million.

It projects that small private colleges will lose the greatest percentage of students. Private school enrollment should fall to 2.294 million in 1988, down from 2.49 million projected for 1981, and 2.478 this year.

NCES analysts predict that the private four-year colleges will have to attract more older, part-time students to compensate for their losses.

Two-year community colleges, though, have been the most successful recruiting older, part-time students. One reason, according to the study called "Projection of Education Statistics to 1988-89," is that community colleges are usually in urban areas convenient to commuter students.

Older, part-time students currently account for 40 percent of the nation's two-year college enrollments. The NCES expects two-year college enrollment to decline "only slightly" over the next eight years precisely because of the community colleges' attraction to part-timers.

If private four-year colleges can't compete effectively with two-year schools for the older, part-time students, NCES warned that "many of them could face closure."

The agency's projections for four-year public colleges and universities were less drastic. It

UCSB Korean Week to Feature Lectures, Exhibits And Music

In the second annual Korean Culture Week, a series of lectures, films, music, self-defense demonstrations and an exhibition of Korean dolls and pottery will be sponsored this week by the UCSB Korean Students Association.

Activities began on Sunday, April 13, with a demonstration of the traditional martial art of "Tang Soo Do" in Rob Gym. Jinku Park, one of the 15 KSA members working on the cultural week, said he felt "last year's martial art demonstration was more successful because of better facilities and less budgeting problems." However, he also noted that he was looking forward to this week's events and the prospect of more student participation.

At 12-2 p.m. today there will be a film presentation depicting traditional aspects of Korean life at the UCen 2275B. There will also be an exhibition of traditional clothing and games of Korea at Storke Plaza from 12 to 1 p.m.

Parks said, "People from the United States know very little about Korean culture. Often they confuse Korea with Japan or other Asian nations. Part of our goal is to define our culture as separate."

An exhibition of Korean pottery and other historical artifacts will also be displayed on the first floor of the Main Library.

"The purpose of our Student Association is to remind ourselves of where we came from," Parks said.

"Hopefully, through this celebration, we can let people know we are around and no one will have to ask: Korea? What is it? They will know."

Anti-Pot Brigade Dropped

(ZNS)—The New York Times reports that the nation of Colombia is abandoning its American-assisted efforts to curb shipments of marijuana to the United States.

The Times says that Colombia's 12,000 person anti-pot army brigade, a multi-million dollar program subsidized in large part by the U.S. government, will be replaced with 6,000 national police officers.

Ernesto Samper Pizano, President of Colombia's National Association of Financial Institutions — a Bogota research center critical of the U.S.-Colombian anti-pot venture, said "The withdrawal means (the program) has failed. If the army couldn't do it, nobody else can."

Commanders of the anti-pot brigade have reportedly become demoralized by their lack of success and by the corrupting power of an estimated $100 million in protection money annually distributed by pot smugglers.

Traffic Safety Survey

Isaacson. However, because "the overwhelming concept of I.V. is to reduce auto traffic, I.V. has been traditionally opposed to this, feeling it will mean greater use of El Colegio Road. I don't feel there is a latent desire to suddenly use it," said Isaacson.

Currently, trucks servicing the off-campus dorms on El Colegio have to park next to the red curb, forcing cars to swerve into oncoming traffic to avoid them. Expansion of El Colegio, in addition to two extra traffic lanes, would include "pull-outs" for bus stops.

Cars and bicycles will be counted at designated intersections of streets leading into the traffic congested areas on Tuesday. Volunteers will be conducting traffic interviews in which motorists will be asked questions at certain stop signs on Wednesday. There will also be mechanical counters on Del Playa and Trigo to record traffic flow for one week.

The volunteers helping in the study include members of the IVCC and the Isla Vista Planning Commission, student interns, and individuals from the community. Both Lee Marking and Diane Oshima, from the I.V. Planning Commission, noted that the major difficulty of the study was finding enough volunteers to help out.

but is concerned about the cost of the pollution control equipment. "I'm in favor of the rule changes, but the only consideration...is whether it is cost effective," he said.

Scott Johnson, a representative from the Isla Vista Municipal Advisory Council who spoke at the meeting, considers the equipment not only affordable but essential to the health of North County residents.

"These companies are producing dust that is not background (agricultural) dust but dangerous toxics," Johnson said. "Under the present technology... it is cost efficient to get the dust down to the levels required."

expects total public college enrollment to fall to 8.754 million in 1988 after a 1981 peak of 9.2 million. Public colleges' larger base should allow the bigger schools to survive the coming era of limits.

Most experts expect college enrollments to decline because of the dwindling number of current school-age children. Other studies predict enrollments will start to grow again in the 1990s, when the children of the post-World War II baby boom reach college age.

Florida May Suffer If Cocaine Restricted

(ZNS)—Federal officials say that the state of Florida would suffer a serious economic blow if the United States could halt the expanding cocaine market in the U.S.

The Journal of the Addiction Research Foundation says that so much coke-related cash is generated in Florida that numerous Florida banks have become dependent on the illicit coke market.

According to one federal official quoted by The Journal, the real estate market in Florida would "fall flat" if cocaine traffic were suddenly halted.

Welfare Bill Passes Committee

The second category would cover employable recipients which would be placed in an Employment Preparation Program administered by the Employment Development Department. EDD would find jobs for recipients or provide training which would lead to work.

Recipients would receive benefits similar to existing welfare grants, but "acceptance or training would be required," stressed the press release.

Authorship of the legislation was originally recommended by the County Supervisors Association of California, the California Welfare Directors Association, and the National Association of Counties.

According to Garamendi's adviser Dennis Flatt, "All of these groups agree that the state welfare system should not reinforce dependency on welfare in its beneficiaries.

In the present system, welfare applicants are required to sign up at the Employment Department. However, there is little or no follow-up."

Rains agreed, "There is no doubt our current system is inadequate; it contains neither incentives nor opportunities for recipients to leave the welfare rolls. This must be changed."

According to Flatt, Garamendi believes the new system will be financially feasible, even taking into account the effects of the expected passage of Proposition 9, the income tax-cut initiative on the June ballot.

"County welfare departments are funded by the state. In the event of a drop-in welfare case load, proportional funds are automatically transferred to EDD, who provide the assistance and training for employment," Flatt said. Thus, theoretically, "no additional funds will be needed," except for the initial monetary output for the structural change in the welfare system.

Though the bill passed through its first legislative committee last week, it is not expected to become law for some time. "Because of the proposed change in the basic format of state welfare and EDD, waivers must be obtained from both Health and Welfare and the Labor Departments in Washington D.C. before the bill can go to the floor of the state legislature," Flatt stated.

Computers May Be Used for Homicide

(ZNS)—Are you ready for "Murder by computer?"

Computerworld, the magazine of the data processing trade, says that the use of computers to commit mass murder is becoming "a frightening possibility."

The publication, in its March issue, says that the programming of computers to commit mass homicides is not only a real possibility, but that detection of foul play in some cases might be impossible.

Writer Kenniston Lord lists possible computer-related homicides, ranging from the sabotage of air traffic control systems — causing air crashes — to tinkering with computers that control the mixing of drugs, thereby turning out poisons instead. According to Lord, this latter type of homicide "could be used to kill people on a random and nearly untraceable basis."

Economic conditions and the job market for graduates are other factors which make such findings almost impossible.

However, despite its inclusive findings, the report pointed out that the Bakke decision caused the university "to take concerted action to ensure the continued strength of its student affirmative action programs."

This action involved the re-examination of its affirmative action policy to ensure legal compliance with the Bakke decision; the dissemination of information about the affirmative action programs to prospective students and the public; and the formation of a task force to recommend general university guidelines concerning minority access to graduate and professional programs.

Records

allow access by declaring the records confidential in nature, or to release records unauthorized to the student are a violation as stated in the Bates bill.

According to Steve Arditti, the U.C. lobbyist in Sacramento, the bill is not needed because the university already has an adequate grievance procedure.

"The Bates bill would provide incentives for students to go on litigating endlessly just to collect $2,500. We do not argue that people should not be able to go to court, but there must be limits," Arditti said.

Two Hot Teams Plan to Sizzle Today at Campus Diamond

Defending National Champ Fullerton Comes to UCSB

The UCSB baseball team, which was streaking before the three-loss series to Cal State Los Angeles, faces defending national champion Cal State Fullerton on UCSB's home diamond today at 2:30 p.m.

UCSB head coach Mike Simpson's squad won their 13 of 15 games before the Los Angeles series. The Cal State school swept the Gauchos and put their momentum at a lull.

Fullerton is hot. The Titans are second in the Southern California

Baseball Association and have marked up a 17-3-1 mark in their last 21 games. Overall, they are 30-7-1. In the conference, they are 4-3.

Centerfielder John Christensen is the one to watch today, as he leads the Titans in many categories, with 14 doubles, seven home runs, 37 RBIs and batting at .371.

UCSB is 16-11-2 overall, including wins in the last 13 of 18 games.

UCSB's victories have been led by Maury Ornest, who drove in 18 runs in his last 14 games, while hitting a .388, with eight homers and 31 RBIs.

Don Pierce has been the star reliever, (5-0 on the year), and has allowed only one earned run in his last 13 innings. His ERA is .66.

Today's game will be broadcast live on KCSB-FM, 91.9, with air time set at 2:20 p.m. Dennis Rodericks will describe the action.

The UCSB baseball team has had its ups and downs of late. For 14 games, they were up, posting 12 wins against Cal State L.A., 10-2, University of San Diego, 3-0, Loyola, 5-3, U.C. San Diego, 6-3, Irvine, 9-3 and 4-1, University of the Pacific, 5-4, University of San Francisco, 11-8, 11-6, 17-6, Loyola, 9-8 and Cal Poly SLO, 5-2.

UCSB started out slow, but has grown into one of the finer teams in the SCBA. When UCLA crushed the team in their season opener, 4-2 and 15-0, it looked like things could only get better.

Bill Figart winds up, as will be the pitching staff today at 2:30 p.m. against Fullerton, who are the defending national champions of the NCAA. The Titans possess a 30-7-1 mark and have won 17 of their last 21 games. UCSB also is streaking, winning their last 13 of 18 games.

Mercer Signs

The UCSB basketball team has announced that a letter of intent has been signed by David Mercer, a 6-foot-8, 210 pound forward from Highland High School in Bakerfield.

Mercer garnered all-league honors, averaging 19.6 points and 12.5 rebounds per game during his senior season.

Asked about why he decided to go to UCSB, Mercer said, "UCSB has a lot going for it and that's why I chose to play for the Gauchos. The players and coaching staff were very nice to me. I'm looking forward to the challenge of competing for a starting berth next year."

Mercer was a highly touted recruit, and was sought after by such schools as Portland, Santa Clara and San Jose State.

Mercer joins Aaron McCarthy, who signed earlier with the Gauchos.

Women's Polo Team Wins S.B. Tourney

Victorious in the second annual Santa Barbara Water Polo Classic, the UCSB women's team opened their 1980 intercollegiate season by soundly defeating San Diego State University on Sunday afternoon, 10-2, and taking first place. SDSU took second place and Stanford ranked third. The other participating teams were UCSD, Redlands, Fullerton and Berkeley.

The Gauchos started the tournament with a big win over UCSD, 17-3 and continued to dominate the tournament by defeating Fullerton, 6-1. UCSB then advanced to the championship game on Sunday with a decisive win over the San Diego State Aztecs. It was the strong driving offense that got the Gauchos on the scoreboard, but the outstanding defensive plays held San Diego to only two goals. The Gauchos came out on top, 10-2.

UCSB players, Simone LaPay and Dione Dickenson were chosen on the All-Tournament team, with Marla Smith named Honorable Mention. MVP also went to Dickenson.

Next week is the Stanford Invitational.

A Ken Preston Turnaround Spiker Coach Has Never Spiked Before

By JOEL JONES

In only his second year as head coach of the UCSB men's volleyball team, Ken Preston has turned a floundering program into a nationally ranked team.

Largely as a result of his efforts, UCSB is now ranked third in the nation, and is a potential NCAA champion.

Friday, at the Mikasa Classic at UCLA, Preston directed his Gauchos to a thrilling upset over USC. Pepperdine was another victim of the Gaucho fire on Saturday night. Then two weeks ago, the Gauchos were victorious over visiting University of Hawaii in a non-league game.

How did someone who never played major college volleyball become coach of such a prestigious volleyball school as UCSB?

Preston is a local boy; he graduated from San Marcos High in 1966. Oddly enough, his sports in high school included football and diving. He started playing volleyball his senior year, then went to USC in the fall.

"I wanted to be a dentist," Preston said. "Then I started coaching volleyball in summer camps, and found I liked dealing with people better than with molars."

With his career goals changing, Preston transferred to UCSB. He received his B.A. here, then took off for a year and a half to work for the forest service and to travel.

Enrolling at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, he got his masters and teaching credential. "I thought I'd better have the degree in case I wanted to go into coaching some time," Preston said.

"While working on my masters, I played for San Luis, but when the sport achieved intercollegiate status I had to drop out. Rather than disassociate myself from volleyball entirely, I offered to coach the team which was kind of funny, because at the time I knew practically nothing about volleyball," said Preston.

Preston was coaching the women spikers at Cuesta Jr. College in the fall, and men at San Luis in the winter and spring. With a more refined knowledge of the game, he also coached at Wright

State for a year. The following summer, he assisted the U.S. national team, as he continues to do today.

When he can find the time, Preston plays team sports for recreation and individual sports for competition. "I don't just jog, I run," he said.

Preston's wife, Beth, plays a major role in all his athletic endeavors. "She's very supportive in anything I do. She gets involved and helps in innumerable ways."

Preston prefers coaching at UCSB to San Luis because of the better financial support and quality of players at UCSB.

"Kids never went to Cal Poly to play volleyball. They were mostly Beach State #4.

"We have a real good chance to qualify for a regional berth in the NCAA playoffs. We could even move into the pole position if someone else upsets USC," he said.

UCLA will probably have a bye for the regional tournament, since they will most likely be the league champions.

Asked about our chances of winning a NCAA crown, Preston said, "we're very capable of winning the national championship."

It's nice to have most home games covered on national TV. "The effects of EPSN (cable two) coverage are all positive. And they're felt not only by the volleyball program, but by the increased publicity for the school as a whole," he said.

It's obvious the grueling pre-season workouts are paying dividends now. Players learned to push themselves from the start; you learn what pain is," he added.

Although he always tries to remain positive, Preston admits "there are times when you have to give players a good kick in the rear to get them going.

"I'm a fairly democratic coach, but my say goes," added Preston.

engineers or architects. That is not to say that athletes coming to Santa Barbara are not interested in an education — they're into both," he said.

Preston feels the volleyball budget at UCSB is adequate "to build a fine program," but there is always room for more money to cover the little things that should be done, but aren't. Hiring statisticians and ball boys are two examples of "little things."

He also stressed the amount of cooperation going on in the athletic department, particularly with athletic director Ken Droscher. "If I have a problem, Ken and I can sit down and talk it out."

"I really like the way UCSB fans are supporting us this year. I like the spirit the cheerleaders are showing, too. We might even get the band for our big home games," said Preston.

Preston ranked the top four volleyball teams in the nation: UCLA #1, USC #2, UCSB #3, Long Marty Hogan of racquetball fame was upset Sunday by 20-year-old Mike Yellen in the $15,000 Racquetball Championship in Beverly, Mass. The number one seeded Hogan lost to Yellen from Southfield, Michigan, 21-16, 21-11.

The L.A. Lakers can wind up their series with Phoenix tonight at the Inglewood Forum. The Suns have won twice in the past six years, but Coach John MacLeod was optimistic after his team's 127-101 victory over the Lakers in Phoenix Sunday. The Lakers lead the series, 3-1.

The defending champion Seattle Supersonics and the Milwaukee Bucks are tied in the second-round NBA playoff series, 2-2.

Softball

Today, the women's softball team hosts USC at Dwight Murphy Field. Last weekend, the Gauchos scored their first intercollegiate victories by beating USIU, 3-2 and 6-3.

In the first game, Mary Valentine had a perfect game going until the fifth inning. Valentine only allowed one hit, but had the score padded when Lil Vance's game-winning RBI single in the seventh won the game. Vance remained hot in the second game, hitting .500, while Mary Barsaleau scored the Gauchos' other three hits.

The Hourglass

Buffer Zone Recommended in Impact Statement

Sale No. 68 in the December of 1979. The areas they recommended for sale and study included the Buffer Zone.

Michael Wootton, Congressman Lagomarsino's district assistant, said the BLM was asked by the Department of the Interior "to consider the amount of oil and gas (in a given region) and the interest that oil companies have shown in the area." He commented that the Ecological Preserve was chosen "because the area indicates substantial amounts of oil and gas, and because oil companies have expressed interest for development in the area."

Vrat said the BLM was also told to balance other concerns, such as local business and environmental concerns, with the expected oil yield and industry desire. The BLM, Vrat speculated, is under "Carter's pressure to develop the nation's energy resources no matter what the cost."

The BLM has consented to meet April 21 with local concerns to make up a "negative nominations map" to supplement the "positive" nominations sent to Secretary of the Interior, Cecil D. Andrus on April 7. A decision which will direct the fate of the Santa Barbara Buffer Zone is expected from Andrus' office near the end of this month.

A letter from Robert Hedlund, Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, listed the effects of developing this preserve. The list includes: "breach of public trust and violation of long-term protection guaranteed by Executive Order; destruction of Santa Barbara's scenery by oil platforms; significant change in atmosphere from resort community to industrial center;" losses in tourist industry; hotel and restaurant business and in real estate values, and "increased oil spill risk and loss to fishing industry." Finally, the lease would bring about an "increase of less than one month's U.S. oil supply."

Hedlund said later that he felt the BLM was being "completely arbitrary, without clear identification of the county's problems or desires."

The County Board of Supervisors, Congressman Lagomarsino, and the Chamber of Commerce have all strongly protested the inclusion of the Buffer Zone.

Wootton said that "it's up to the Interior Department now to decide whether it will be in the lease sale or not" and that it will be "up to local communities until then to build a case for excluding certain areas." The communities of Santa Monica and Palos Verdes are also protesting the sale of regions close to the coast there.

The County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously on March 31 to request "concerned citizens of the South Coast to write to Secretary Cecil Andrus, urging him to honor the Executive Order creating the Federal Ecological Preserve."

All that would be required to override the existing Executive Order, said Wootton, is that Andrus "would have to issue another Executive Order" to the effect that "these waters are hereby open for mineral development."

To date, 128 separate outer continental shelf leases have been purchased by the oil industry and only three have been brought into production. There are 15 of these leases that have never been explored. Lease Sale No. 68 proposes 125 new OCS tracts, bringing the total to over 250. The Buffer Zone consists of 14 of these tracts.

Vrat is bothered by the fact that the industry was not interested in the same area in a 1968 lease sale and that the industry "can't even keep up with the number of leases."

Vrat said that if the preserve is sold in June 1982 it will be because the oil industry is "forced to do it," simply because the attitude is "if we don't get it someone else will." The companies don't feel they have many chances to buy the leases they want because lease sales are so few and far between.

A number of local groups are protesting the move by BLM and writing to Secretary Andrus. Network, GOO, the Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce and the County Department of Environmental Resources have all urged that citizens write to:

Honorable Cecil D. Andrus
Secretary of the Interior
18th and C Streets, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20240.
