Faculty to Be Written into Consultation Of Planning

By Joel Brand
Staff Writer

UCSB's Faculty Legislature announced Thursday that they have reached an agreement with the administration on wording for the Long Range Development Plan that will ensure faculty consultation on all further campus construction, including parking lots, buildings, and bike paths.

The Committee on Educational Policy and Academic Planning, which represented the Academic Senate in the discussions, announced the agreement at yesterday's senate meeting. CEPAP, a standing senate committee, is responsible for reviewing development projects for the faculty.

In January, the senate agreed to endorse the LRDP, which is UCSB's blueprint for growth through the year 2005-06, if wording would be included to create an Academic Impact Report for each project. The Academic Impact Report would formalize the manner in which the administration consults with the faculty on new development projects that could affect academics.

Previous wording authored by the LRDP steering committee was less specific about the vehicle for consulting with the faculty. The more direct wording is an outgrowth of faculty concern that the administration has been negligent in following shared governance of the university with the faculty.

The steering committee, made up of students, faculty and staff, was charged with developing the LRDP. The committee had refused to include the new wording, but an April senate vote implored the administration to reinsert the change.

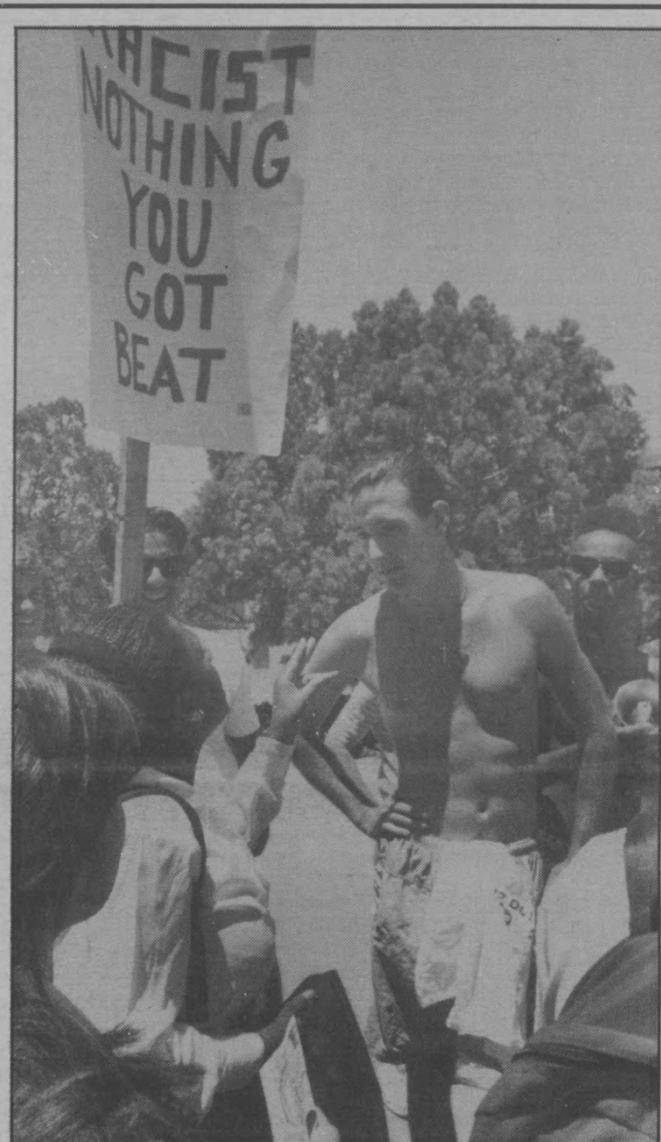

If the administration had not conceded to faculty demand for the wording, acceptance of the LRDP by the UC Board of Regents would have been jeopardized, according to CEPAP member John Cardy, a physics professor.

Representatives for the administration and faculty met last week at a CEPAP subcommittee meeting to develop agreeable wording.

"We just had to iron (the wording) out. We all wanted the same thing. We all had our favorite wording. The essence of the (faculty and steering committee statements) is in the one statement that has emerged," said Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs Gordon Hammes.

Hammes agreed with the faculty sentiment that it is essential they be consulted about planning

A rally Thursday, triggered by the alleged assault of an undergraduate last month, developed into a shouting match as students debated the issues involved in the incident.

Organized by the Asian Student Coalition, the rally, which drew approximately 150 onlookers, was held in protest of violence on campus and the manner in which UCSB administrators handled the incident.

Sophomore Tom Tieu, born in Vietnam of Chinese descent, was allegedly attacked by UCSB mathematics Teaching Assistant Jacob Sarvela April 7 in the television lounge of the San Rafael Residence Hall. Sarvela, a San Rafael resident at the time, reportedly continued to harass Tieu for more than a month afterwards.

Sarvela is scheduled to be formally charged with misdemeanor battery resulting in serious bodily injury May 25 at Santa Barbara Municipal Court, according to District Attorney Jim Kreyger.

Residents of the San Rafael floor where Sarvela formerly lived questioned allegations that the alleged attack was racially motivated. San Rafael resident Dean Roberts said, "What (they're) saying is unsubstan-

Conference to Examine Field of Chicano Cultural Studies

By Michelle Ray
Staff Writer

More than 20 Chicano and Latino studies scholars from throughout the United States and Mexico will take part in an unprecedented conference examining the new field of Chicano cultural studies today and Saturday at UCSB.

The conference, entitled "Chicano Cultural Studies: New Critical Directions," will feature the latest research in this "new and exciting area," UCSB Chicano Studies Department Chair Mario Garcia said.

Four keynote speakers will highlight the event, which is free and open to the public. All discussions will be held in the UCSB Library, room 8533.

The cultural studies approach is ground-breaking in that the research is broader than that of the traditional empirical approach, and incorporates interdisciplinary elements, Garcia explained.

"(This approach) no longer distinguishes between high culture and popular culture," he said. "Culture, especially in more developed societies such as the United States, is very integrated and very intertwined.... Culture's intertwined in all sectors of life."

Academic Senate Discusses Vote on Switch to Semesters

By Chris Ziegler
Staff Writer

In its final meeting of the quarter, the Academic Senate Faculty Legislature voted yesterday to postpone, until the end of Fall Quarter, a faculty mail-in ballot on a proposal to return UCSB to the semester system.

A senate special committee on quarters and semesters recommended to the legislature that UCSB switch to a 15 week semester calendar, and that the faculty hold a mail ballot by the end of this quarter.

The motion to postpone having a mail-in ballot by the end of this quarter was made by political science professor Gordon Baker, who expressed concern that non-legislature members of the faculty would not be adequately informed on the issue before voting, and that "more attention and more discussion of the academic

Goleta Wells Fargo Bank Branch Robbed on Thursday Afternoon

The Goleta branch of the Wells Fargo Bank was robbed Thursday afternoon by a man who did not display a weapon, but only verbally demanded money from bank employees, local police officials reported.

At 2:55 p.m., an unidentified white male who was described as being in his 30s entered the bank, located at 195 North Fairview, and demanded money from bank employees. The man "did not exhibit a weapon, only verbally demanded money,"

Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department Sergeant Sam Gross said. The amount of money stolen during the robbery was undetermined at press time.

After bank employees handed over the cash, the man reportedly exited the bank and drove away in a blue Dodge Dart, California license plate number CFG831, Gross said. Bank employees also noted that a Latino male, reported to be wearing a black hat, was waiting in the vehicle, police officials said.

Bush Decides Renewal of China's Trade Status Vital

BEIJING (AP) — President Bush's decision to renew China's preferential trade status averts what many Chinese and Americans had predicted would be a death blow to the 11-year-old relationship.

But even raising the issue as a way to punish China has undermined already crumbling ties. And some U.S. members of Congress have said they will fight Bush's decision, compounding the mutual frustration and resentment.

Chinese officials did not immediately comment on Bush's announcement extending China's most-favored-nation trade status for one year. It came well after government offices closed Thursday.

The only reaction came from the state Xinhua News Agency.

"A small number of Americans, under the pretext of so-called human rights, opposed the renewal of China's MFN status," the agency wrote. "Their arguments have been strongly rejected by the majority of American people, who cherish the long-term interests of relations between the two countries."

China had made clear that raising tariffs on its goods would lead not just to higher duties on U.S. products and a sharp drop in trade, but diminished political and cultural contacts as well.

Soviet Premier Says Ditch Centralization, Use Market

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov warned his citizens Thursday of the "painful processes" needed to rescue their stagnant economy, but he said there was no choice but to abandon central planning and adopt a market system.

Ryzhkov himself owned up to the catastrophic state of the economy and faced a barrage of criticism that climaxed with demands for his government to resign. His two-hour address to the Supreme Soviet Parliament was nationally televised.

He said there would be price hikes and unemployment — possibly in the tens of millions — but "our decision is made. We have to move to the market."

Ryzhkov presented the program as a compromise between Polish-style "shock therapy," which tries to keep the transition to a market economy short by taking more radical measures immediately, and appeals to return to the old-style centrally planned Soviet economy.

His vehement rejection of the Polish model led deputy Vitold Pokin to comment from the podium: "They've ruled out shock therapy, but now they're recommending an operation without anesthesia."

Immediately after Ryzhkov's speech, several dozen opposition lawmakers voted to demand a motion of no-confidence in his government.

Organizers Scrap Plans to Beam Protesting to China

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Organizers of the Goddess of Democracy radio ship said Thursday they have scrapped plans to beam pro-democracy messages to China because of setbacks in obtaining broadcasting equipment.

"It was a difficult decision," said Xu Tianfang, deputy secretary of A Boat for China, one of the main organizers. "We are forced to abandon the broadcasting project."

He said the ship would be sold at auction and tapes of the planned pro-democracy broadcasts would be distributed among radio stations that might be able to help transmit the messages to China.

Organizers said they would make a formal announcement of the decision at news conferences in Taipei and Tokyo on Friday.

Congress Hurries to Finish Aid Requests Before Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, headed out of town for the Memorial Day recess, struggled Thursday to finish work first on a $4 billion spending bill including aid President Bush has urgently sought for new democratic governments in Panama and Nicaragua.

The bill also included millions of dollars for domestic programs.

But from Bush's standpoint, the most important items were $300 million to bolster the struggling new government of Violeta Chamorro in Nicaragua, and $420 million to help the economy of Panama recover from U.S. trade sanctions and last December's invasion.

Bush asked for the aid months ago, and has repeatedly hammered Capitol Hill for what he said were delays that could jeopardize pledging elected governments in the two Central American countries.

But to Congress, where foreign aid remains an unpopular item, more important was more than $3 billion in new "emergency" spending for dozens of domestic programs, from food stamps and veterans benefits to a fish farm in Arkansas.

In what amounts to the first application of a "peace dividend" from reduced East-West tensions, roughly half of the new spending is being paid for by cuts in this year's proposed Pentagon budget — cuts agreed to by the administration.

Bush Vetoes Amtrak Bill, President's First of Decade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Thursday vetoed a bill authorizing $2 billion in spending by Amtrak, complaining that its expansion of federal regulation over railroad acquisitions "represents a step backward for the entire rail industry."

Bush took issue with a provision that would require the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve the acquisition of railroads by non-railroad companies.

"This requirement is an unwarranted regulatory roadblock to the financial restructuring of the railroad industry," Bush told Congress in a veto message.

Amtrak spokesman Clifford Black said the veto would have no effect on daily train operations because the railroad is working with money that Congress already had appropriated for 1989-1992.

But the veto, Bush's first in 1990, will indefinitely postpone plans for a commuter line between Washington, D.C., and its Northern Virginia suburbs, Black said. The bill contained technical provisions necessary for the project to open.

Young Girl Beats 9 Other Finalists in Geography Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The only girl among 10 finalists became the second National Geography Bee champion Thursday when she correctly named Antarctica as the continent where the Mount Erebus volcano is located.

Susannah Batko-Yovino, a diminutive 11-year-old sixth-grader from the Washington-Jefferson School in Altoona, Pa., won a $25,000 college scholarship.

More than 3 million students nationwide have taken part in the various levels of competition.

Correction

In Thursday's Nexus article "Alleged Bias in University Response to Assault Victim" it was incorrectly stated that the purpose of Thursday's rally was to charge that the attack on Tom Tieu was racially motivated. The actual intention of the the rally was to protest violence on campus. The Nexus regrets this error.

Son Sobbed to Emergency Service, Accused in Deaths

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — One of two brothers charged with murdering their wealthy parents in their mansion sobbed and gasped as he reported the killings to a 911 emergency dispatcher, a police tape revealed Thursday.

"Somebody killed my parents," were the first words choked out by the caller as a woman dispatcher asked repeatedly, "What's the problem?"

The caller apparently was Lyle Menendez, 22, who with his brother, Erik, 19, are charged with the Aug. 20, 1989, shotgun slayings of millionaire video executive Jose Menendez, 45, a Mary Louise "Kitty" Menendez, 44.

At least twice the caller yelled to Erik by name and a dispatcher, hearing the name, asked to speak with Erik. The second brother never took the phone but his cries could be heard in the background throughout the tape.

The recording was released by the police department at the order of Superior Court Judge James Albracht, acting on news media requests. The brothers' defense counsel opposed the release but did not appeal it.

The two-minute recording of the call consisted mostly of the young man sobbing and screaming while the woman dispatcher and then a male dispatcher tried to calm him down to find out what had happened.

Earth First! Members Hurt By Bomb Explosion in Car

OAKLAND (AP) — Two people identified as members of a militant environment group and organizers of a campaign to halt logging in Northern California's old-growth forests were injured when a bomb exploded in their car Thursday.

Authorities declined to identify the victims, but Earth First! spokesperson Daniel Barron said they were Judi Bari, 40, a passenger in the white Subaru station wagon registered in her name, and driver Darryl Cherney, 30 both of Ukiah.

Bari and Cherney were organizers of the "Redwood Summer" campaign to stop what some environmentalists say is excessive logging in California, Earth First! spokesperson Kelpie Wilson said.

Bari suffered facial injuries and a pelvic fracture and was in serious but stable condition at Highland Hospital, hospital spokesperson David Berry said. Cherney was treated for a minor injury above his left eye, Berry said.

The explosion occurred near the corner of Park and MacArthur boulevards near Oakland High School shortly before noon, according to an employee of the Oil Changers garage at the intersection.

Long Beach High Schooler Drowns in Pool Unnoticed

LONG BEACH (AP) — A 14-year-old Jordan High School student drowned while swimming with classmates during a physical education class, authorities said.

The unconscious Ryan Hardison was pulled from the bottom of the pool about 11:15 a.m. Wednesday by school lifeguard Mike Quigley, said Jordan Principal Alta Cooke.

There were three other adults in or around the pool at the time — two ROTC instructors and one physical education teacher, she said.

Quigley and paramedics tried unsuccessfully to revive the teen-ager, but he was dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital of Lakewood. An autopsy was pending.

Details about events leading up to the boy's death were sketchy.

"Kids were just in the pool, swimming and splashing," she said, adding she didn't know if Ryan, who was found near the 8-foot mark of the pool, knew how to swim.

Police homicide detective Roy Hammond said the youth's death "looks" like an accident.

Students Protest Public Camping Law

By Paul J. Covington
Staff Writer

Community opposition to a Santa Barbara city ordinance banning public camping has prompted some UCSB students to join a protest of the law, claiming it unjustly persecutes local homeless.

Members of Students for Let Isla Vista Eat, the California Public Interest Research Group, and other groups have recently begun collecting signatures for a petition requesting the repeal of the ordinance at the behest of the Santa Barbara Homeless Coalition, a group advocating rights for the homeless.

Volunteers from Students for LIVE, a local community group which collects food for homeless people, gathered about 500 signatures in two days last week at UCSB and in the local community, asking the City Council to repeal the ordinance.

The "no-camping" law has recently come to public attention as a result of a November 1989 Santa Barbara Superior Court decision which redefined "camping" as "temporarily living out of doors." Because the court's decision was automatically incorporated into the law itself, opponents of the ordinance claim that the law makes homelessness illegal. Office Manager of the Homeless

Coalition, Nancy McCradie, said the homeless issue and the no-camping ordinance have "become almost a civil rights issue."

The Homeless Coalition has been fighting the "no-camping" law along with the Legal Defense Center, a Santa Barbara law firm which has recently espoused the cause of the homeless in the courtroom, McCradie said. "The main goal this year," said McCradie, "is to abolish the no-camping law. To criminalize the homeless is bad policy."

"The struggle (to decriminalize homelessness) has just begun because if the city ordinance is finally repealed, a county ordinance outlawing the same thing will supersede the city one, and the battle will start all over again," Isla Vista Recreation and Park District Director Mike Boyd said.

The efforts of the Students for LIVE, the Homeless Coalition, and the legal battle of the Legal Defense Center are geared towards the eventual repeal of City Municipal Code Ordinance #1516060, the "Recreational Vehicle and Camping in Public Areas" ordinance, McCradie said. Among other things, the ordinance makes it illegal to live in recreational vehicles, sleep in public places, and prepare meals in public, she said.

CONFERENCE: Latest Research to Be Featured

The cultural studies approach, which originated in England, is still considered very new in the United States, said UCSB English Associate Professor Elliot Butler-Evans, acting director of the Black Studies Center, who will offer a keynote address at the conference. "In this country, I think it's still in the process of formation," Butler-Evans said. "It's interdisciplinary, it doesn't adhere to division between high culture and low culture, so... people can do research in popular culture, such as television.... And it's far more political than traditional academic disciplines."

Politics will be one focus of Butler-Evans' presentation entitled "Usable Marxisms: Doing Ethnic Cultural Studies in an Advanced Capitalist State" and scheduled to begin Saturday at 9 a.m. Butler-Evans will address the tensions between Marxist critical studies and popular literature, problems related to ethnic studies itself, the post-modern notion of ethnicity, and the "multiple addressees of the ethnic text," he said.

"Text not only speaks to members of the groups, but simultaneously to members outside of the group, which can lead to fragmented or disjointed text," Butler-Evans said. "The emergence of an ethnic cultural studies may very well promote a new nationalism. (It) may force people to become so concentrated on their own ethnic groups that they move away from broad cultural studies to concerns for the more traditional cultural studies."

The other keynote addresses will be:

• "Remembering the Border Through Cinema" — UCSB Chicano studies and communication studies Assistant Professor Rosa Linda

Fregoso — Today, 9 a.m.

• "Hybrid Cultures and De-territorialization: Two Problems of the Border in Contemporary Cultural Theory" — Nestor Garcia Canclini of the National Institute of Anthropology and History, Tlalpan, Mexico — Today, 3 p.m.

• "The Politics of Culture" — Ramon Saldivar, professor of literature, University of Texas, Austin — Saturday, 1:30 p.m.

Other discussions of the conference, which is scheduled to run from 8:45 a.m.-7 p.m. today and 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Saturday, will include examinations of literature, feminism, cultural subversion, politics of Chicano history, and pachuco identity.

Garcia described the featured speakers as among the top Chicano and Latino cultural studies theorists and literary critics in the world, and all panelists as scholars at the forefront of this realm of cultural studies.

"This conference will bring together a number of Chicano studies scholars who are doing some very exciting work in cultural studies," Garcia said. "There's never been a conference like this before. We thought the time was right considering the very exciting work these scholars are doing."

While the UCSB Black Studies Center held a similar conference last year, Butler-Evans agreed this event is unprecedented. "This has not taken place in the UC system and probably not in the country," he said, adding it will bring attention to UCSB as a leading institution in this field.

This conference, Garcia said, "makes a statement about where we've come in the field of Chicano studies ... and about being Chicano in the United States."

Students to Hold Second Homeless Benefit Concert Saturday

By G.R. Maier
Reporter

Students for Let Isla Vista Eat and local bands have collaborated to organize a second homeless benefit concert in Anisq' Oyo' Park tomorrow in order to collect canned food and clothing for Isla Vista's homeless and needy.

Organizers hope the event, which will run from noon to 6 p.m., will provide donated food and other items which will be used to aid Isla Vista's indigent population. "Bring canned food, bring clothes ... bring anything someone can use," Students for LIVE representative Beth Bittmann said. "Saturday is going to be another opportunity for the community to give."

According to Bittmann, a similar musical food drive held May 12 was so successful that Students for LIVE wasted no time in organizing another. "We saw just how giving the community can be," she said, "(but) needy people don't just disappear after one event, it's a continuous thing."

The homeless are in great need of items that are necessary for survival, Bittmann said. "They need to eat and dress from week to week just like we do," she said, adding that donating clothing is just as important as donating food. "Food is great, but people need clothes, too."

Bittmann noted that since many students will thin their wardrobes and closets as they move out of their residences next month, they could help out those in need by bringing their unwanted items to the rally. "Why not give them to us?" she asked.

The four bands that will be performing in the park Saturday are Key Lime Pie, the Phil Cody Band, Sound and Fury, and Tao Jones, Bittmann said.

The combination of a homeless benefit and live music came about as somewhat of a coincidence, Bittmann said. Students for LIVE and local band Key Lime Pie were each planning separate events for tomorrow — Students for LIVE had planned to hold a homeless benefit at the Red Barn, and Key Lime Pie had reserved the park for a community concert/food drive — but they decided to combine their efforts, she said.

Evan Palmer, keyboardist for Key Lime Pie, was informed by the Isla Vista Recreation and Park District of Students for LIVE's intentions for a homeless benefit. "It would've been ridiculous to have two food drives going on the same day, so we consolidated in the park," Palmer said.

Key Lime Pie then invited other local bands to join in the effort to help the community, Palmer said. "We just wanted to do something for the community," he added. "(Key Lime Pie) just had an idea (to aid the needy), and it snowballed to our friends who were also in bands."

UCSB's greek system has previously helped Students for LIVE get more community involvement in these events, Inter Fraternity Council External Vice President Doug Olsen said. "We're happy we helped plan and carry out the last event with Students for LIVE and the homeless," he said.

Olsen hopes that the greek system's collaboration with Students for LIVE will be "the first in a chain of philanthropic events to help the area's homeless and needy," adding that the greek system has a new philosophy: "Thinking Globally, Acting Locally."

Also on Saturday, vendors will be selling handicrafts and tie-dyed clothing, boxes will be set up to collect donated items, and there will be an educational table providing information on resources available to the homeless and needy, Bittmann said.

Spencer Maguire, an independent homeless activist, said that "students are starting to deal with homeless people, not just a homeless problem, and that's a good sign."

The Academic Impact Report will not directly address impacts on students, but Cardy said the senate committee charged with reviewing academic impacts will include a nonvoting student representative.

The new wording states that there should be "appropriate consultation" with students and staff on all development projects, but leaves the establishment of formal student procedures to those groups.

Tieu's supporters claimed Daily Nexus articles about the incident misquoted them, saying they believed the incident was racially motivated.

The Nexus "grossly misconstrued" comments made by Tieu and the ASC regarding allegations of "cultural overtones" in the case, Quan charged.

However, in a May 14 letter addressed to "Concerned Students," the ASC wrote, "If the incident itself does not obviously contain racial overtones, by not disclosing the information to the public, the process itself does show blatant mishandling and racial/cultural insensitivity on the part of the residential staff as well as the dean of students and other administrative bodies."

At the rally, Quan charged that the residential staff "did not follow 80 percent of (university) policies." She said the residence hall staff did not inform Tieu of the support groups and legal options available to him, and they did not check on Tieu for more than a week after the attack. Quan also charged that the staff did not inform Tieu of the university's course of action on the case for more than a month.

San Rafael Resident Director Robert Boehm was not available for comment on Quan's charges.

Speaking on behalf of the residential staff, Assistant Dean of Students Joseph Navarro defended the staff's actions. "I don't know where (Quan) got 80 percent," he said. "We followed policy."

Dean of Students Leslie Lawson said she could not speak for the actions of the residence hall staff, but assured those in attendance that the university had handled the case according to policy. She added that the response to the incident has sparked a concerted effort to re-evaluate current procedures.

"Whether it was racially motivated or not, if the student felt he was treated improperly then we need to examine our systems and make changes where appropriate," Lawson said.

Honoraria of KCSB Executive Officers Raised

By Tony Pierce
Staff Writer

The incoming KCSB executive officers, announced earlier this week, will have an added benefit awaiting them when they begin their assignments this summer, other than their titles. They will all be getting raises.

According to outgoing KCSB Associate Manager David Chin, because of a KCSB By-Law change proposed by the college radio station and passed by the Associated Students Finance Board in early March, all of the Executive Committee members will receive hikes in their honoraria.

1990-91 KCSB General Manager Rich Stephens will earn $3,000 a year and 1990-91 Program Director David La Delfa will receive $1,800 a year — a $600 raise for each of their positions.

The KJUC manager, KCSB business manager, music director and promotions director will all garner $1,200 annual salaries; four times the amount the positions received last year, except for the business manager who will receive a 140 percent raise.

According to Stephens, the positions, which on average require 20 hours of work per week, deserve higher salaries because without the increases, lower income students may not be able to apply for the positions. Stephens said that he wants the station to remain diverse and available to all backgrounds.

"It's not a lot of money, but it helps," Stephens said.

"When compared to how much (employees) at the Daily Nexus or LaCumbre make, (KCSB employees) will finally be on that same level," Chin said.

According to Chin, during the past year KCSB spent the majority of the money received from the station's recent increase in A.S. lock-in fees towards new equipment for the station. When planning a budget for the 1990-91 year, he said, the salary increase seemed reasonable.

"This year we had bought a new phone system and new equipment for the stations ... a one-time expense," Chin explained. "When it came around to what we were going to do with that money (for the '90-91) year we decided to pay the new (Executive Committee) members better."

KCSB Advisor Elizabeth Robinson agreed with the proposal and is pleased that the executives will be receiving better pay, saying that the students work very hard and deserve the raises.

Stephens noted that the by-law passed easily through Radio Council, Associated Students Legislative Council and Finance Board, with only one KCSB staff member opposing the proposal.

"I was opposed to it because I felt that KCSB is a volunteer organization like most college radio stations," stated the KCSB member, who wished to remain anonymous. "However, after noting (that) fellow UCSB students involved in media, like the Nexus and La Cumbre, are paid on a consistent basis for their work, I felt KCSB should have a similar incentive system."

CAMPING: Many Petition for Homeless Rights

The law does allow, however, sleeping on sidewalks, McCradie said. "I can't figure that one out ... (it's) legal to sleep on the sidewalk but nowhere else," she said.

Under the terms of the ordinance, McCradie herself is termed "homeless," because she has been living in her recreational vehicles for about eight years. "It's illegal for me to sleep in my RV, but not out on the sidewalk. So I'd have to get out of my warm bed and sleep on the sidewalk," McCradie said.

McCradie originally became "homeless" when she took her four-year-old child out on the road to escape an abusive, alcoholic husband out of fear for her and her child's safety. "There's a lot of us women out here (who are homeless) with children," she said, "and a lot of pregnant women with nowhere to go, who can't find affordable housing."

The struggle to decriminalize homelessness is not something new, Boyd said. "In the 1970s, there was a teepee village in Isla Vista. County Health cracked down on it because there were no plumbing facilities," Boyd said. This was the same reason that the IVPRD was forced to tear down homeless structures near the Red Barn in Isla Vista in the past, Boyd said.

"There are about 200 people living in Isla Vista who are 'homeless,' because they are living in illegal dwellings, storage units, cars and some have no shelter at all," Boyd said.

"I'd say that about 25 percent of (the homeless) are students at UCSB, and about 50 percent are homeless by choice," Boyd added. "What really is needed is a place with a bathroom and showers. I think it is in the best interest of everybody to provide access to these facilities to the whole public," he said.

Camping? You Call This Camping?

Editorial

It is illegal to be homeless in Santa Barbara County.

Under a law which ignores the reality of homelessness, the homeless are refused a human right usually taken for granted, a right integral to human survival: the right to sleep.

Santa Barbara County's "no-camping" law was redefined in November 1989 by the Santa Barbara Superior Court as "temporarily living out of doors." Among other things, the ordinance makes it illegal to live in recreational vehicles, sleep in public places, and prepare meals in public.

If you have no home, and sleeping in public is illegal, then you cannot legally go to sleep, except in a shelter. It's really that simple. You will be cited and fined, which is a heavy burden on a homeless person.

If the shelters are full, or if one finds them hopeless and frightening — as many homeless do, especially women — you must be careful not to fall asleep until you live in a house some day. You also had better not live in an R.V. or car, nor can you even have a nice little picnic in the park — legally, that is.

The picnic example highlights the elitism of the no-camping ordinance. If any "decent-looking" Santa Barbarans have tea and crumpets on county property, it is highly unlikely they'll be busted for preparing meals in public. Ditto for a clean-cut UCSB student who falls asleep in the park one warm night. But if someone who appears to have a history of "temporarily living out of doors," falls asleep in public, he or she will likely be wide open to prosecution under the no-camping ordinance. The ordinance is used to target "undesirables" and make it clear that Santa Barbara is not a place to be homeless, no matter what the weather.

While it is obvious that parks, beaches, sidewalks and public buildings are community assets which shouldn't be turned into shantytowns, this ordinance goes much further than simply zoning recreation. It has been used to harass the homeless in places where they pose no annoyance to the local community.

For example, the legendary "Jungle" — an overgrown and unimproved downtown county lot — was a sanctuary for homeless who found overcrowded and dismal shelters less of a "home" than the bush. They were chased out by police, and the Jungle was mowed down, presumably as part of a not-so-subtle campaign to rid Santa Barbara of its large homeless population.

There is now a mounting campaign in Santa Barbara to repeal the ordinance. Homeless and their supporters have been "camping" in front of City Hall for a couple of months now, sleeping on the sidewalk in protest (a bizarre loophole in the ordinance allows sidewalk sleeping). A signature drive organized by Let Isla Vista Eat is also circulating a petition to repeal the ordinance.

The homeless in Santa Barbara County have been trapped in a Catch-22 situation. On the one hand, shelter space is inadequate — the I.V. Transition House, for example, often turns people away — and on the other hand, living in public is illegal. Homeless people not ensconced in a shelter are thus forced to continually find new hiding places to sleep, sometimes living on the run like escaped slaves.

America was once a land where Europeans came to escape from — among other things — stiff vagrancy laws in Europe. Now it would appear we have come full circle; we are regulating the homeless in an attempt to write off the problem. Homeless people will continue to exist — and sleep — as long as we tackle society's problems with such asinine solutions.

Because the School Lacks Diversity, I Have to Leave

Debi Thompson

I am poor, but not ashamed of it. After all, I see no reason to be. Like any man or woman I have goals and desires, wants and needs.

I came to UCSB hoping to fulfill at least some of them. Back in high school I thought, "Yeah, ... I'll go to that gorgeous beachside campus, make lifelong friendships, become enlightened, get my degree, and maybe even break out of the shell of shyness that encloses me." But I think differently now.

Don't get me wrong. I am grateful for having the experience of attending a UC directly out of high school. And I'm extremely grateful to Dr. Claudine Michel and Black Studies 2 and 15, as well as Dr. Denise Segura of Chicano Studies 1B, who secured for me the enlightenment aspect of my collegiate dream ... but I just don't fit in here, I don't belong. So I'm packing my bags and transferring to what was my fourth-choice college, just so I can enjoy the diversity — both racially and economically — that I was accustomed to at my high school in Los Angeles. Every possible culture existed there, with few racial clashes (that I ever witnessed). In fact, not long ago, students from all backgrounds staged a walkout demonstration to protest the relocation of a Black principal. The population at the school was roughly 38 percent Black, 26 percent Mexican/Latino, 17 percent white, and so on. That was an accurate representation of the community, without bussing. I live for that kind of diversity and UCSB just isn't able to provide it for me.

As I said, I am poor. I wouldn't even be here if not for the Educational Opportunity Program, along with the generosity of the California state and federal governments. My mother, a waitress of 34 years (since her 13th birthday) managed to raise her five children on minimum wage, but couldn't stretch it to send me off to "some fancy school" where I would learn to use "fourteen dollar words" and get a degree. There were tears in her eyes when she told me I'd have to do it on scholarships but that she would help as much as she could. Unlike many of the students here, I was the first in my family to graduate from high school in the traditional way, and obviously the first to go on to a university. Of all my cousins even, I am the only one getting a "higher education." The closest anyone ever came is Michell, who is in cosmetology school. The rest are truck drivers, clerks or laborers of some sort.

Because of this, the hardest thing I'll ever have to do is write my grandma to tell her I'm leaving this university. I cannot even tell her why — I haven't the guts. How does one tell a proud, Southern woman that one is leaving school because it is practically all white, in many ways racist and classist, and mainly just uncomfortable? I can't say to her I can no longer stand to have people lean towards me to whisper something so racist and crude as to make me nauseous. She wouldn't understand how my spirit and determination could be broken by a conversation with one of my roommates in which she admonished me for being a part of EOP and not either working my way through school on loans or just going to a junior college that I could afford.

What I am ashamed of is not staying here and joining the fight against racism and elitism. It is difficult to find a place in the struggle when one doesn't qualify as a minority even though one feels the weight of the burden. You see, my skin is as white or more so than those from whom I'm fleeing. I don't look the typical anti-racist. I am lost at UCSB.

I can no longer stand to have people lean toward me to whisper something so racist and crude as to make me nauseous.

However, my approach to the problems is a departure of protest. Just as I boycott Coca-Cola and other companies for their support of apartheid in South Africa, I boycott UCSB for its failure to do whatever is needed to correct the situation on this campus. Give Dr. Michel her tenure, recruit more persons of color as both students and faculty, admit to, and erase, the racist policies and become a true public university, one which represents the population it serves.

Perhaps, if the situation here improves, I'll come back for my grad work. It so amazes and saddens me that such a beautiful campus could be home to the ugliness and cruelty of race- and class-inspired bigotry.

And one more thing — if you aren't part of the solution, you're a part of the problem. I'm doing my part. It's your turn.

Friendship Betrayed by Alleged Rapist

Os Tyler

Reginold White was my friend. We played pool together, we talked together; we both laughed over his driver's license, how Reggie had posed as menacingly as possible, just for kicks, and how contrary his personality was to the photograph.

I knew him for three months, and he was almost always congenial and friendly — "a nice guy," I said Saturday, "really nice, pretty cool." I was at his apartment last Friday, for a couple hours.

And I hope never to see Reggie again. I hope he spends years in prison: maximum sentence for rape and sexual assault. The only reservation I hold regarding this statement is a frail lip-service to "due process" and the concept of innocent until... But the facts appear irrefutable. The woman had been punched in the nose; her screams brought the men who, what, saved her? No, stopped him.

I do not wish to overlook or in any way mitigate the devastation this woman must feel. However, I write from the viewpoint of an individual who knew, befriended, even trusted this man, this alleged rapist. I can only express the way that I feel, and I stress this point: My frustration and anger do not even resemble the anguish I am sure this woman is feeling.

But I am ashamed. Ashamed, and embarrassed to admit that I have associated with Reggie White. His alleged crime is heinous, perhaps the most vile act possible, and I consider it a moral and physical affront against me, against women and, truthfully, against the entire human race.

It is demeaning and disorienting to understand that I did not perceive this person as what he really was. As a result of this event, I question my ability to judge character. I fear that I cannot accurately identify others who share my moral beliefs — beliefs which vehemently oppose any intrusion upon another's will, which violently oppose even the resemblance of rape, which cringe at its mention.

Yet statistics indicate that one of every four women at UCSB will be raped sometime during her college career. Odds are, then, that you and I associate with potential rapists everyday. It seems that everyone from your next door neighbor, to any of your daily acquaintances, could someday be a rapist.

It's a numbing realization. Through the sustained barrage of desensitizing acts which we witness every day, it becomes so difficult to feel, to care, to believe. Too many jarring forearms to the back of the head leave compassion lifeless, hope disoriented, and humanity subhuman.

One of the essential qualities which distinguishes humankind is the ability to honestly overlook individual desire; to supplant an instinctual drive with empathy, with love. Rape violates the privacy, the individuality, the essence of the victim. And the rapist renounces his claim to humanity.

In "The Mission," Jeremy Irons plays a Jesuit priest. At one point he says, "maybe, maybe might does make right ... and there is no place for love in the world. But if so, it is not a world in which I wish to live."

Might, however, does make right: force and power dominate. And love can only limp along behind, sorting the carnage, picking up the refuse, nursing the wounded. There are those who gain power, and who will use it against you, against your will. For its inadequacy, love offers only consolation.

I hope, for you, that consolation is enough. I like to imagine that it just might be.

So you're probably saying, "OK fine, but aside from this pseudo-philosophical mush, what's the point?" This is a plea, to any of those who have power and would consider using it against others, against their will — in any fashion, ranging from using authority over employees or subordinates as leverage, to violence, to rape — please think again. It hurts a lot of people, a lot more than you or I know.

Once again, get this straight. "No" means no. "Yes" can even mean no. "OK" definitely means no. Only accept "Yes Yes Yes," a fervent, unconstrained, definitive and comfortable expression of mutual consent.

RACISM

Name Names If You Have Facts But Please, No Libel

Daniel H. Jeffers

Racism. Big, bad, nasty word. Heavily laden with emotional impact, a brush which stains deeply whatever it touches.

The power of the word to wound its target is based on its nastiest, most insidious meaning. A racist is someone who hates a particular segment of society solely because of race. Or, a racist is someone who unconsciously has different expectations of someone because of his or her skin color.

Or a racist is anyone who notes, in any way, the race of another person when it is not specifically brought out by the subject at hand.

A flexible word, the perfect weapon with which to wound. You can call someone a racist, raising in people's minds the spectre of the harshest connotations of systematic repression, and when that person responds, asking you for any solid evidence, you can retreat to a very mild definition of the word.

Call someone a bigamist, a wife-beater, a murderer, thief, or drunk, and you might have to back it up. Call them a racist and you are safe.

In his letter to the editor, Neal "The Only Non-evil Man" King makes just such an accusation against an individual at the Nexus (Daily Nexus, Reader's Voice, May 24). King — angry about the Nexus' printing of an accused rapist's photo — says, "But the fact that you chose to do so only when the accused is a Black man is just the sort of brainless racism..." I'm not sure King is completely safe from legal problems, but he is safer than if he had said, "the fact that you are a communist/rapist/child molester, etc." In those cases, King could be forced to prove his allegations or shut up.

The burden of proof would normally be on Neal "I Am So Right" King, but it can't hurt to look at the story he mentions. The story, which ran on the front page, concerned an alleged rape at Goleta Beach (Daily Nexus, "Police Catch Accused Rapist in Goleta Beach Parking Lot," May 22). Though the story itself never mentioned the race of the suspect, the picture showed him to be a Black man.

I wasn't involved with this story, but I used to edit on the county desk and I think anyone can see why this particular story ended up on the front page. It ranked higher than "Students Complain of Mild Nausea After Library Visit," and a Sober Graduation pre-write, both of which ended up inside; but lower than a discussion of an I.V. noise ordinance and the new manager of KCSB, which were more prominently placed. As is consistent with Nexus policy, the race of the suspect was not reported in the story because it wasn't relevant. The only exceptions to this are when a suspect is still at large, or if racism is itself part of the story.

Any time a story is run on the front page some attempt is made to run a photo. When I covered the Hope Ranch murder in the fall, I obtained a picture of the suspect from the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department. When two men were arrested in Isla Vista after a chase, we ran photos of the arrest. When the sheriff's department says it has a photo of a suspect, naturally we send someone to pick it up. The Nexus has run police sketches of at-large rapists in the past, and the paper would run pictures of any rapists, regardless of their race, if photos were made available. In this instance, no one at the Nexus was aware of the race of the suspect until the photo came back.

To my mind, handling this story just like any other does not constitute racism. If it had been bounced to a back page, or the photo had been repressed, that would have been racism. Anyone who reacted to the story differently because of the photo is at least partially under the influence of racist attitudes.

The mechanism of applying the alleged guilt of one individual to a whole group of people of the same race, ethnic group, or gender is always the enemy of clear thought. However, a newspaper cannot assume that the readers are too stupid to be treated to the bare facts of a case. We have to trust readers to make their own judgements, or we will become part of some patronizing "Big Brother" system.

Journalism is a field in which people are particularly vulnerable to charges of racism. Maintaining objectivity and satisfying public opinion are two goals that keep all journalists awake many hours after everyone else, including Neal "Guys Suck, but I'm OK" King, is asleep.

It's probably good that actual incidents of racism can bring down the careers of people like Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder, Jimmy Breslin, and "The Greaseman," a shock radio disc jockey in Washington D.C.; but the vulnerability of these public figures shows how deeply these charges can wound. Even the reputation of H. L. Mencken, once so high, will probably never recover, forever tainted by the racist remarks found in his diary.

If Neal "I Know What is Really Going On" King really wants to run around calling people names, he should either stick to accusations against man as a whole gender, or back up his individual attacks with facts. Otherwise he should spend some time with a dictionary looking up words like "slander" and "libel." There may be a quiz some day.

The Reader's Voice

Not Just a Fight

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Only less than a week ago was I made aware of the horrible incident that occurred in the San Rafael resident hall on April 7, 1990 between Tom Tieu, an Asian-American student, and a Caucasian graduate student who is employed by UCSB as a teaching assistant in the mathematics department. I was only made aware through a letter addressed to concerned student organizations, which invited students to a meeting to learn more on the subject.

At this meeting I heard the details of the brutal assault and battery upon Mr. Tieu. I was both saddened and frightened that such a grossly violent and unprovoked attack could occur here on our own campus. This was no minor incident, this was not "just a fight." Mr. Tieu was grabbed from behind and repeatedly punched in the face to the point of needing reconstructive surgery. He was then continually harassed by his attacker almost every single day thereafter (until the assailant was finally evicted one month later). I can only begin to know how it must have felt to be so severely physically battered and then allowed to be mentally battered as well, by having my attacker follow me all the time, turn others against me, stare at me, and try to intimidate me in almost every way he seemed able. I shrivel up inside when contemplating all of this.

Why was the torture allowed to continue for so long?

Why was Tom not referred to any support services? Why were students, in the resident halls and otherwise, not clarified or made aware of the incident? Why did the residential staff and/or the administration not take immediate and appropriate action? Why was nothing done to help this man?

Hypocritical Nexus

Editor, Daily Nexus:

What the Nexus says and does are two different things. The Nexus writes editorials condemning racism, but what does it do? Let us examine the facts: a Black man allegedly rapes a white woman; a white graduate student allegedly beats up an Asian. The Nexus reports the rape a day after it happens and even includes a picture of the Black suspect (Daily Nexus, "Police Catch Accused Rapist in Goleta Beach Parking Lot," May 22). The Nexus waits six weeks before it reports the beating (Daily Nexus, "Dorm Fight Leads to Arrest of UCSB T.A.," May 23). It appears that the real racists are not just the ones who scribble anti-Semitic jargon on the bathroom walls, but the Nexus itself.

FRANK E. GUERRA

Editor's Note: The Nexus did not learn of this incident until mid-May, when the paper began its investigation.

Not a Racial Incident

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I am writing in response to the article about a fight between Jacob Sarvela and Tom Tieu, (Daily Nexus, "Dorm Fight Leads to Arrest of UCSB T.A.," May 23).

So far, everything we have read about the fight is only from Tom's point of view, and everyone seems to believe that Jack is a bad guy. As a close friend of Jack's, however, I must say that Jack is not the type of guy whom the Nexus has been describing.

The point I want to make is that Tom, as well as the Asian component of the Education Opportunity Program, is doing the wrong thing by exaggerating this incident as a racial issue. Tom is claiming that Jack, and all the residents on the San Rafael sixth floor, harassed him after the fight. Ironically, most of my neighbors on the sixth floor do not even know who Tom is. All the neighbors are being blamed for something they are not even aware of right now.

As far as I know, both Tom and Jack agreed at the hearing that this incident had nothing to do with racism whatsoever. I do not understand how this incident has escalated into a racial issue at all.

I also know that some of the Asian guys came to Jack's class and stared at him while he was teaching in front of the class. It was really irrational behavior which would cause more misunderstanding and violence than rational resolution. I, myself an Asian, understand that I am in an uncomfortable situation between my friend Jack and Tom. Yet, I believe friendship goes deeper than just skin color and nationality. Therefore, I would like to say that Jack is not a bad person, and it is quite ridiculous to view the whole incident as racially motivated.

Poem to the Nexus

Editor, Daily Nexus:

A little poem to the Nexus, concerning the coverage of the alleged rape (Daily Nexus, "Police Catch Accused Rapist in Goleta Beach Parking Lot," May 22):

If a "white" man assaults a student you pretend not to know it.
If a "Black" man is suspected of rape
that's when you show it.

Spare Further Destruction

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Few would dispute that Isla Vista needs as much open space as it can get, especially in the downtown area. The property at the south end of the I.V. loop (known for years as Perfect Park) is one parcel in particular for which community residents have voiced a strong, heartfelt desire to keep free from development. Isla Vistans have spoken with a near unanimous voice against any development on this property; the only dissenters being the developers themselves.

Fortunately, Isla Vista's elected park board has responded to the mandate of its constituents and is in the process of condemning the land, purchasing it, and returning it to public enjoyment.

Sadly, in the interim, the developers continue to yank out trees and indiscriminately bulldoze every living thing and its habitat into oblivion. To our frustration, we observe as they expend large quantities of our scarce water and other materials in preparation for applications of asphalt and concrete.

More Jackson Responses

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In response to Roger Jackson (Daily Nexus, Reader's Voice, May 18), I would like to say that I am impressed with your attempts at rationality, but I cannot, for your arguments lack any truly intelligent thought.

First, with regard to your blaming U.S. Jews for U.S. policy in supporting Israel, all I can say is that your argument makes no more sense than blaming all U.S. Caucasians for U.S. policy in South Africa. I find it odd that your problems with the Jewish population would lie in the policy-making of a government that is predominantly white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant males. If, however, this truly is the case, then perhaps you should be writing your congressman and not the Nexus.

As to your other arguments, namely your claim to the right of free speech, you are correct in part. You do have the right to say, feel, think, or believe anything you want. You have the right to hang swastikas on your wall, and to share your views with anyone who will listen. You do not, however, have the right to destroy anyone else's property by spray painting over signs, or carving on university desks. As you are a graduating law and society student, I would have thought you knew the difference between affirming your own rights and infringing upon those of others.

I feel sorry for you, as a hatred as awesome as yours can only be indicative of great internal suffering. I wish you peace. Shalom,

RACHEL BARACK

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I wish to congratulate Roger Eugene Jackson for his insightful, well-documented expose of the "pervasive Jewish influence ... upon our federal economic and political parties," (Daily Nexus, Reader's Voice, May 18).

Now that Mr. Jackson has opened the lid on this "undetected malignant cancer," I feel it is my duty to come clean and admit not only its existence, but its scope and agenda. As a matter of fact, I have long felt extremely guilty over the domination my people have exerted over American policy and world affairs. You can fool some of the people some of the time, but it's obvious we can no longer fool Mr. Jackson.

Now for the facts.

What began as a simple lox and bagel lunch in a New York deli between Murry Schwartz and Abe Goldberg (yes, I'm prepared to name names) soon escalated into a worldwide conspiracy. The year, 1947. Funded by the American Jewish Appeal and the B'nai Brith, thousands of Jewish children were trained to take over the American Bar Association, the American Medical Association, and Major League Baseball.

Although very successful in our attempts to dominate the ABA and AMA, we were unsuccessful in stealing away America's favorite pastime. In fact, the retirement of Sandy Koufax signaled a new, more diabolical approach.

The evolution of this process cannot be detailed in three or four paragraphs, and I will not attempt to do so here. However, be aware that at this very moment teams of elite, Jewish retirees are assembling in Miami Beach. Trained in paramilitary use of guilt, these commandos are preparing a letter-writing strike, deep into the heart of this nation's capitol. Their mission, to take over the Social Security Administration through the sophisticated use of guilt aimed directly at their congressmen! Here's just one excerpt I was able to obtain.

"Your own congressman, they never write, they never visit. You raise a representative and look how they treat you!"

Roger, (you don't mind if I call you Roger, do you?) you asked if it's a crime to hate. It's not a crime, it's simply a waste of time and energy. So get wise, Rog. Settle down, marry a nice non-Jewish girl and leave the world order to us Jews. Otherwise we'll take away your MasterCard, audit your taxes, and call you in for jury duty.

By the way Rog, be sure to double check your grades for this quarter. (We control that process too.)

Yet Another Ignored Vote!

Editor, Daily Nexus:

With the Spring Quarter elections, the student body strongly supported the resolution stating:

"We call upon the UC Regents to discontinue the university's contracts to manage the nation's nuclear weapons laboratories at Livermore and Los Alamos."

Of 3540 valid ballots, 69 percent voted "yes," and 31 percent voted "no." Previously, the Associated Students Legislative Council, the Graduate Student Association and the faculty had strongly endorsed this position. All of these bodies agree management of the laboratories functions as a public dis-service that diverts the university's efforts away from its primary objectives: quality public education, first rate research and public service. The classified laboratory activities are inherently inconsistent with the university's commitment to freedom of expression.

In spite of these considerations, the Regents seem likely to renew the contracts with the weapons labs when this item appears on their agenda, most likely during the September meeting. For this reason, we must let them know they will act against public mandate if they ignore better judgments of students, faculty and public. Everyone can communicate their opinions to the Regents by writing to:

David Gardner
President of the University
300 Lakeside Dr., 22nd Floor
Oakland, CA 94612-3550
Jeremiah Hallisey
Chairman, Regent's Committee of Oversight of DOE Labs
300 Montgomery St., Suite 538
San Francisco, California 94104

So far, the prevailing lobbyists seem to be the lab scientists who prefer the present situation that gives them free reign in their radioactive realm. Note also the only "con" statement submitted for the spring election resolution came from Livermore Lab officials. The regents even shy from public discussion of lab management. Although we invited each regent to UCSB to convey their positions, not a single one chose to attend the forum in November, 1988, or any of the three meetings during this Spring quarter. Let the regents know how you feel about this issue.

A.S. Leg Council Votes Unanimously to Foster More Monthly Forums

By Scott Lawrence
Staff Writer

An administrative policy stating that Associated Students should hold monthly student body meetings was converted into an A.S. By-Law Wednesday, following a unanimous vote by Legislative Council.

Internal Vice President James Siojo said that since the beginning of the school year, there have been approximately only five open student forums. According to the bill, authored by On-campus Representative Jason Wyland, the rule of having student meetings "would be more likely to be abided by if (it) were a by-law."

The bill states that the meetings are to be held inside the UCen Pavilion at a time and date to be determined by Leg Council.

Another bill clarifying the uses for money in the A.S. Capital Improvement account was also unanimously approved. A.S. By-Laws had stated that funds in the account may be used for equipment purchases, and start-up costs for programs and new business services.

The bill, authored by A.S. President Mike Stowers, came about after Stowers transferred $15,000 from the account to upgrade the A.S. staff position from 20 to 30 hours — a move questioned by Finance Board Chair Dave Lehr. Siojo said there will be an action item at next week's council meeting to retransfer the money, in order to make it legal.

In other business, a bill seeking an honoraria cut from $400 to $350 per quarter for future A.S. executive officers was tabled for the second straight week.

"I'm trying to confirm information I've gotten from other UCs," said Wyland, who authored the bill. Wyland is currently researching the honoraria, if any, of executive officers and representatives at other campuses, he said.

Earlier this quarter, honoraria for future UCSB Leg Council members was slashed from $250 to $200 per quarter. Wyland said he wrote the bill in an attempt to keep executive honoraria more in line with cuts endured by Council.

LEG COUNCIL FILE

Associated Students Legislative Council meeting, May 23, 1990.

Bill #113
Calls for the creation of an A.S. Student Advocacy Program, to serve as an educating tool on issues directly affecting students. The student advocate would be geared and trained to deal with individual student concerns, and would represent and bargain on behalf of them — Tabled.

Bill #114
Calls for revisions in the A.S. Collective Bargaining Committee to better deliver information to the students and the campus community. The CBC is charged with monitoring collective bargaining on behalf of students employed by the university — Tabled.

Bill #115
Attempts to have future Leg Council meetings conducted according to both Robert's Rules of Order and the ASUCSB Legislative Council Meetings Procedure Manual, with the latter taking priority over the former — Tabled.

Bill #116
Seeks to add to the by-laws a provision that all Leg Council Reps give at least two A.S. Info (Information network for outreach) presentations per quarter to student groups in conjunction with the A.S. info coordinator — Tabled.

Bill #117
Calls for the creation of a standing Committee on Committees to assist the executive committee coordinator, whose job responsibilities have been expanded and may be too great for one person — Tabled.

Bill #118
Calls for the expansion of the A.S. Communications Board to include an outreach coordinator, who could organize the best way to reach students on a more personal level through projects, advertising and grassroots organizing — Tabled.

Bill #119
Calls for the creation of an A.S. info coordinator under the auspices of the A.S. Communications Board in order to enhance communication between A.S. Leg Council, boards and committees and the student body — Tabled.

Bill #120
Would acknowledge in the A.S. By-Laws a Judicial Department, whose existence is currently not stipulated there. Reaffirms that Judicial Council operates independently of the executive and legislative branches, with the exception of the chair being appointed by the president — Tabled.

Bill #121
Would add to the A.S. By-Laws, the by-laws of the Faculty Course and Evaluation Survey Editorial Board — Tabled.

— Compiled by Scott Lawrence

He added that UCSB's executives are saying the school's council reps should be thankful they are paid at all, when compared to other UCs. He is also trying to confirm rumors that the registration fees of Berkeley's council members are paid for, he said.

Council also unanimously passed a bill expanding the membership of the Academic Affairs Board, and terminating the limitations in the board's voting membership.

community" needs to occur before a vote is held. "We have lived with the quarter system, for all of its failings, for 24 years," Baker said, adding that waiting a few additional months, until fall, would not be detrimental. In addition, Baker expressed the concern that more consultation with students needed to take place before action was taken on any calendar change.

The committee chair, English professor Michael O'Connell said, in an earlier interview, that solicitation of student opinions from Associated Students was not responded to by A.S., which was a source of some frustration to the committee.

The committee's report also mentioned that the recent Spring A.S. election, in which 77 percent of those voting supported retaining the quarter system, did not specifically address the early semester system, instead asking students only to state preference between quarters and semesters. The committee assumed that students were thinking, when voting, of the longer, late semester, which extends into January after Winter break, according to the report.

Despite the committee's report, Baker's motion for postponement was passed with 31 votes in favor, two opposed and two abstentions.

Held over from last month's senate meeting, because of a lack of a quorum to hold a vote, one potentially volatile resolution called for the senate's condemnation of the administration's handling of the Sedgwick property issue. Geography professor Helen Couclelis, chair of the senate's Committee on Educational Planning and Academic Policy, said the senate's consultation with the administration over the Sedgwick issue has improved and expressed the opinion that such a vote of no confidence was inappropriate.

Though Political Science Professor A.E. Keir Nash said that "I'm always in favor of a hanging, if you've got due process," he agreed that such a resolution was unnecessary.

The statement was decisively shot down, 24 votes opposed, none in favor, and one abstention.

The faculty argued briefly over wording of a resolution which expresses "dismay" and "concern" over the progress of the campus's Long Range Development Plan, and pressures the chancellor to resolve delays with the plan before approving an amended statement with 22 in favor, four opposed, and two abstentions. Although Chancellor Barbara Uehling said she believes the resolution was too negative, and is not the best type of support the administration is seeking, faculty who spoke expressed the view that the statement could be utilized by the administration as an example of the senate's sentiments on the LRDP when negotiating with outside community members.

Some discussion also occurred on the recommendation from the executive committees of Letters and Science and Engineering to "institute a 'W' grade on transcripts for courses from which a student has withdrawn after the deadline for dropping courses," according to a memo from Executive Committee Chair Frank Frost to Senate Chair W.E. Brownlee.

The new grading option, which was approved unanimously, is "thought to be an extension of a fully informational student transcript," said David Kohl, associate dean of Student Academic Affairs for the College of Letters and Science. According to Kohl, most uni-

The Shack Is Back; Ryans Are Galore

From Kirk Gibson to Gary Adcock, from Marla Maples to Doug Moe, and from Buddy Ryan to Kristie Ryan to Nolan Ryan, here are just one freshman's observations:

Adcock has been the man Al Ferrer relies on when the going gets tough, and he's proven all season that he can handle pressure, as his five complete games and eight wins prove....

Of course, he'd better be tough against an Oklahoma St. team that is batting .318 this season and is regarded as one of college baseball's most potent offensive teams....

Final score prediction: UCSB 11, OSU 9....

Final baseball note: it was 105 degrees yesterday in Tempe....

•What a lousy ending to "Twin Peaks"....

•Bad news for Gaucho volleyball fans: freshman star Kristie Ryan has a shoulder problem that could sideline her for all or part of next season....

We don't need to talk about how much she means to Kathy Gregory's team....

Sluggers, Cowboys Heat it Up Today in Regionals

By Craig Wong
Staff Writer

How appropriate that today, in the desert, two cowboys will conduct an old-fashioned duel under the glaring, hot sun of Tempe, Arizona.

Oklahoma State vs. UCSB, the Cowboys vs. the Gauchos.

To both teams, however, it is Game 1 of the NCAA West II Regional (3:30 p.m., KCSB 91.9 FM). And most importantly, whoever loses is one game away from elimination.

"We're going to have to play well. We can't play like we did in Stanford (a three-game sweep) even though Stanford's number one," UCSB Head Coach Al Ferrer said. "The scores were close but we played very poorly for what we're capable of.... I think Oklahoma State is definitely beatable. So are we. It's a matter of who has the poise and who makes the plays."

UCSB (40-17, #23 in nation, #5 seed), who finished second in the Big West, draws a tough matchup in OSU (49-16, #9 in nation, #2 seed). From what the stats say, the game should be a high-scoring shootout. Both teams hit over .300 but own paltry ERAs.

OSU scores runs, and lots of them. Not only has it outscored UCSB by almost 100 runs this year (547-452), it has drawn an incredible 501 walks, an average of almost eight a game.

Oklahoma State's Michael Daniel has 20 homers and 76 RBI to go along with a hefty .370 batting average and a .812 slugging percentage. Also providing punch at the plate are Jeromy Burnitz (.290, 12 HR, 59 RBI), Bobby Carlsen (.355, 6 HR, 55 RBI) and Mitch Simons (.345, 9 HR, 44 RBI, 27 SB).

The Cowboys can get lit up, though, as reflected by their team ERA of 4.53. They probably will go with ace Dennis Burbank (8-1, 3.43) on the mound and if they have a closer, it would be Gordie Tipton (8-1, 2.12).

The Gauchos were impressive none the less in the pitching-rich Big West, batting .308 in 1990 and stealing a league-record 156 bases. Third baseman Jeff Antoon (.345, 12 HR, 62 RBI) and first baseman Sean Luft (11 HR, 53 RBI) provide the power, while Jerrold Rountree (.324, 56 SB) and Mike Czarnetzki (.373, 4 HR, 44 RBI, 37 SB) contribute speed and base hits.

But it may be the pitching staff which decides if UCSB will be in Omaha for the College World Series. Santa Barbara's ERA of 5.35 tied for dead last in the Big West. It did not have a pitcher with an versities and colleges have similar grading options, and the "W" grade gives students more options than an Incomplete or F grade. Students would still have the option to drop a class within the first 20 days of enrolling in the course without requiring approval from the professor or the dean's office, although such approval would be required after the 20th day.

A.S. President-elect Michael Chester expressed concern that a "W" grade would carry equivalent weight, regardless of when in the quarter a student dropped a course, and that perhaps "W" grades should not be part of a student's public record, because that would leave potential employers or graduate schools "to determine for themselves what the 'w' means," Chester said after the meeting.

The legislature also voted nearly unanimously to endorse a report of a special committee on spousal hiring which recommended the university maintain a flexible approach to dealing with the hiring of faculty couples.

LAX Foursome Doing it All at UCSB

By Cliff Korn
Staff Writer

As UCSB's 1990 lacrosse season dwindled to a close, Mark Seppi, Keith Smith, Andy Redmond and Mark Burford found themselves in good company as they were each selected to the Northern Conference Western Collegiate Lacrosse League's All-Star Team.

To Seppi, Smith, Redmond and Burford, their collective success comes as no surprise.

They are, simply put, a unit. Not only are they teammates on the lax field, they were also members of an undefeated A league hockey team in IMs last fall, they live together, and they, of course, can have fun together.

Mainly because of their play, the Gauchos finished 15-10, scoring an average of over 10 goals per game while giving up less than a meager eight gpg.

"Our team had a surprising season," Smith said. "A lot of guys sucked it up."

And suck it up they did, to the tune of a berth in the WCLL finals, only to lose a heartbreaker to Arizona, 5-4.

Smith is the team's fiery stopper. Hailing from Suffern, NY, he played his high school ball at Suffern

MATT SUMNER Daily Nexus

Never a dull moment for this fearsome quartet.

HS. His East Coast vigor is apparent in every facet of his game.

"The first two hours before a game are devoted solely to getting psyched up," Chrissy Robinson, UCSB's all-time leading scorer on the women's side, said. "He is so psyched up you can't even talk to him before a game. His enthusiasm on the field really gets the fans going, too."

Smith's skill was rewarded with UCSB's Most Valuable Defensive Player (MVDP) Award.

"Smitty is our stopper," Head Coach Tom Chancellor said. "He is the man who we would put on the top offensive player from each and every other team."

Seppi was the team's top offensive player throughout the season, culminating in his MVOP Award. He finished with 18 goals and 16 assists for a team high 34 points.

"A real compliment to Seppi," Chancellor said, "in that he made the All-Star team as a senior. He hadn't played lacrosse until he got to Santa Barbara."

Redmond was the team's worker and runner. His hustle and stamina were essential in the team's success and for that he shared the team's MVP award with Burford.

"Redmond was our horse," Chancellor said. "He could run all day. If we were in a man-down situation, we would just give him the ball and let him run. His work ethic was great. Every day he would come to practice early and stay late."

Burford combined with Smith on the back line to do an effective job in the team's Goals Against Average. His success this past year and from the previous two have thrust him into a position of leadership. He is one of the team's most successful motivators because he commands the respect of his teammates.

Burford's love of the kind of camaraderie that lacrosse brings attracted him to taking a lead singing spot in the popular group, Goleta Waters Blues Band.

"It's definitely a commitment, just like lacrosse," Burford said. "I enjoy it because I like the guys and it's a lot of fun. The lacrosse guys hang out with the band guys because everyone gets along well."

•Kirk Gibson played his first minor league rehab game last night....

•So much for the Nolan Ryan "his arm is amazing" talk....

•It now appears that Denver Nugget coach Doug Moe is the frontrunner for the NBC commentating job on NBA games, even though he denies it....

Moe, along with NBC announcer Marv Albert, auditioned Tuesday night by announcing the Detroit-

Chicago game at NBC's New York studios....

•Thumbs up to first-year Athletic Director John Kasser for making an effort to restore the UCSB athletic facilities....

With a new scoreboard and improved seating, Coach Al Ferrer will be able to bring in more high quality recruits, and more top 20 opponents....

And bringing the softball team back to campus was a must....

Maybe the green badminton lines on the Thunderdome floor could go next....

The East and West tennis courts should be the next priority, since they have not been washed or resurfaced in six years....

And speaking of tennis, word around the athletic department is that women's Head Coach Ingrid Bridge, who did a fine job in her inaugural season, is getting married and won't be returning next year....

•Not much of a surprise department: Mike Fratello looks like he'll get the Clipper coaching job....

•The U.S. Television Fan Association revealed the results of its "Sexiest Athlete of 1989." And the winner is — Roger Craig....

By the way, that's Roger Craig, running back for the San Francisco 49ers, not Roger Craig, manager of the S.F. Giants....

CNN sportscaster Nick Charles finished second while Wayne Gretzky took third....

•Why does the NBA have to be on TNT?

•Finally, a quote from the wall of Philadelphia Eagles Coach Bud Carson's office: "If you ain't the lead dog, the scenery never changes...."

ERA under 4.16 and that belonged to starter Scott Longaker (5-6). Ferrer will start freshman Gary Adcock (8-6, 4.73) vs. OSU and Longaker on Saturday, but after that, Ferrer has no idea who will start Sunday. Of course, that's if the Gauchos make it to Sunday.

"The pitching numbers have me concerned," Ferrer said. "That's something we've dealt with all year long. We just have to use people the best we can."

UCSB, who will need good outings from the pen to back up the starters, is hoping that relievers Tim DeGrasse (7-4, 4.72), lefty Jon Gianulias (5-2, 4.89) and Jamie Davidson (4-0, 5.87) can pick up the slack. Shawn Loucks (9-2, 6.46) might be the third starter.

"I don't even know much about them (OSU) except the reputation," DeGrasse said. "We just got to do what we've been doing all year."

A UCSB win will pit them against the winner of Loyola Marymount vs. Washington State at 7 p.m. on Saturday. Should they lose, UCSB plays the loser of Arizona State vs. Penn State on Saturday at noon.
