Spikers' Shot at Title Falls Short in Finals

Jump Out to a Commanding 2-0 Lead, but Concede Championship to #1 USC in Five

By Dan Vason
Assistant Sports Editor

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — After match point in the fifth and decisive game of the NCAA Men's Volleyball Championship Saturday, the volleyball court inside the Allen County War Memorial Coliseum here was a study in contrast.

On one side of the net were the USC Trojans, 1988 National Champions, who had just completed a three-game comeback defeat of the UCSB Gauchos 15-17, 14-16, 15-10, 15-11, 15-9 before a crowd of 6,207.

On the other side of the net were the Gauchos, crestfallen after seeing a national title wrested from their hands.

There was UCSB's junior middle blocker Jose Gandara, who knelt on one knee at the net and held his brow as tears welled in his eyes. Across the net was USC's junior middle blocker Tom Duke, under a mass of Trojans who had dog-piled him in celebration.

Then there was UCSB's senior outside hitter Pat Pennington, who crossed to USC's side and waited patiently for the Trojans' party to subside so he could offer congratulations. He had to wait and watch junior outside hitter Lawrence Hom, a key player in USC's comeback, ecstatically jumping up and down and hugging his teammates.

Trojan freshman middle blocker Bryan Ivie, whose 29 kills and .500 hitting percentage did the most damage to UCSB's title hopes, was holding his arms aloft saluting the USC crowd while the Trojan band played its anthem.

Finally, there was UCSB's senior outside hitter David Rottman, who had just completed the last collegiate volleyball game of his career. Rottman stood with his hands on his hips and looked up into the rafters of the coliseum with a blank stare on his face. Then came the tears.

When it came time to shake hands, Rottman paused in the line and wrapped his arms around USC's junior setter Mike Lauterman, who was one of Rottman's teammates at Loyola High School. Lauterman hugged his former teammate in return, then the two moved on.

UCSB Head Coach Ken Preston, making his first Final Four appearance in his 10 years of coaching, was understandably frustrated and disappointed about the outcome, having brought his team all the way to a 2-0 lead in the NCAA finals only to see the title slip through his team's fingers.

"We came up one game shy of having a remarkable finish to this season," Preston said at a press conference following the match. "We'd been playing as well as anyone in the country, I felt, and we just couldn't get it done in the last three games ... (but) it's an honor to have been here, to represent UCSB in the finals of the championship."

Only one other team in the 18-year history of the tournament had recovered from a 0-2 game deficit to win the championship — UCLA in (See RUNNER-UP, p.10)

CIA Protest Proceedings Conclude in a Mistrial

By Todd Hartwig
Reporter

A mistrial was declared Friday in the case of 35 UCSB students charged with trespassing during a November protest of the appointment of Senior CIA Officer George A. Chritton Jr. to the political science department.

The conclusion was reached by Santa Barbara Municipal Court Judge Frank Ochoa after juror Cynthia Stoddard announced that the jury of eight men and four women was "hopelessly deadlocked" and unable to come to a consensus on the counts of trespassing and eight additional counts of resisting arrest.

Stoddard said four ballots had been taken on the trespassing charges and two on those of resisting arrest, with no signs of an agreement on either. Several jurors had said "there would be no way they would change their minds at all," Stoddard added.

The final ballot on the trespassing charges was nine for acquittal and three for guilty. Regarding the second count of resisting arrest, the vote was closer with five for acquittal and seven for guilty.

"(The verdict) wasn't unexpected," according to deputy District Attorney Gerald Alonzo, who prosecuted the case. "It's an emotional issue and it's hard to get 12 people to go one way," he said, adding that in a case of this nature there would be a hung jury in "a (See CIA, p.3)

Survey: UCSB Students Less Religious than Others in U.S.

This is the first of four articles examining religion in the UCSB/Isla Vista community.

By Adam Moss
Contributing Editor

UCSB is the only campus in the University of California system to offer B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in religious studies. It also has fewer students who declare a religious preference than most universities in the United States.

In a 1985 poll of incoming UCSB freshmen, 25 percent of students questioned stated their current religious preference as 'none.' In comparison, only 13.9 percent of incoming freshmen at other 'select' public universities nationally have no religious preference.

A similar poll in 1986 revealed an increase in the number of incoming freshmen nationwide who said they had no religious preference. The poll, which examined more than 1,300 incoming UCSB students, found that 31.9 percent of males and 24.6 percent of females chose 'none' as their religious preference.

UCSB's department of planning and analysis had not kept track of religious statistics prior to 1985 because they are rarely needed for planning, according to enrollment and data analysis administrator Dario Caloss. Discrepancies between UCSB statistics and national averages might be explained by the greater numbers of students in eastern and southern sectors of the U.S. who are more closely affiliated with specific religious denominations, Caloss said.

Also, a more informal practice of religious beliefs in California may be a factor in the religious statistics, according to UCSB religious studies Professor Richard Comstock. In California, there is much interest in religion, but less "actual church membership," Comstock said.

Rev. George Hall, a minister at St. Michael's Church in Isla Vista, believes it is difficult to measure students' religious preferences. "Surveys are not very accurate," Hall said. "When I was in college, some days ... I would say, 'I'm very religious,' and the next day ... I'd say 'What are you talking about? I'm not religious.'"

Hall was actively involved in the formation of Isla Vista's

University Religious Center in 1957. Like UCSB's religious studies department, the independently supported URC is a one of a kind organization, housing the offices of congregations of several different faiths.

The formation of the URC has made the task of ministering religion to students easier, Hall said. "When the denominations got together (at the URC), particularly the three major streams — the Roman Catholics, the Protestants and Jews — ... it enabled the clergy to minister to the students, which it had not been able to do before."

UCSB Gaucho Christian Fellowship religious adviser John Bauer shares Hall's distrust of surveys. "I'm always at odds with surveys," he said.

Bauer questions the accuracy of the incoming freshman religious preference surveys, believing that a response of 'no religious preference' is difficult to interpret. (See RELIGION, p.5)

Official Denies Briefing Bush on Allegations about Noriega

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — U.S. Ambassador Everett Ellis Briggs on Sunday denied reports that he had briefed Vice President George Bush in 1985 on allegations about drug trafficking by Panamanian Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

"I could not have briefed the vice president on Noriega's drug running, drug smuggling or money laundering activities because we simply did not have evidence of those activities at that time, and so any statement to the effect that I did brief him on such matters at that time simply is not true," Briggs told a news conference here.

The New York Times, in its Sunday's editions, said Briggs told Bush during a Dec. 16, 1985, meeting about cables sent to the State Department recounting allegations of Noriega's involvement with drugs.

Briggs was ambassador to Panama at that time. He is now the ambassador to Honduras.

Groups Challenging Official Monopoly Meet in Moscow

MOSCOW — Soviet police on Sunday tried to interrupt meetings of scores of dissidents seeking to challenge the supremacy of the Communist Party and detained 20 people as they left one of the gatherings, dissidents said.

Editors of 30 non-official journals hoping to break the government monopoly on publishing also met in Moscow to formalize their cooperation by establishing the Independent Publications Club.

On Saturday, 148 people attended an initial meeting to form an alternative political party called the Democratic Union. On Sunday, they broke into groups to discuss the party's political platform and socio-economic and organizational questions.

Yevgeniya Debryanskaya, who hosted the meeting about the group's political platform, said police arrived at her north Moscow apartment in about 30 cars Sunday evening and tried to enter while about 50 people were jammed in her living room, thrashing out the group's political goals.

Mitterrand is Re-elected as Socialist President of France

PARIS — President Francois Mitterrand was re-elected Sunday to a second seven-year term in a resounding victory over conservative Premier Jacques Chirac.

The socialist president pledged to fight the anguish, difficulty and uncertainty facing many French people.

"You have chosen to accord me your confidence," said Mitterrand, 71.

"There is too much anguish, too much difficulty and too much uncertainty for too many in our society for us to forget that our first duty is national solidarity," he said. "Because the life of humanity depends on it, I will act passionately in your name for the development of poor nations, for disarmament and peace."

Thatcher Says Some Men Do Resent Her Leadership

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says some of her male colleagues resent a woman running the country.

"Yes, it is rather patronizing. The best compliment they can give a woman is that she thinks like a man. I say she does not, she thinks like a woman," Mrs. Thatcher said in an interview with the Sunday Times.

Mrs. Thatcher, 62, last week marked nine years in power, the longest of any prime minister this century.

Donald Regan's New Book Portrays Reagan Astrology

WASHINGTON — Donald T. Regan, former White House chief of staff, on Sunday portrayed President Reagan as a hesitant and unassertive chief executive controlled by a scheming, image-conscious first lady who depended heavily upon an astrologer's stargazing predictions.

Regan offered a sometimes bitter account of his stormy days at the White House in a memoir, For the Record: From Wall Street to Washington, published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich and scheduled to go on sale in bookstores on Monday.

"Virtually every major move and decision the Reagans made during my time as White House chief of staff was cleared in advance with a woman in San Francisco who drew up horoscopes to make certain that the planets were in favorable alignment for the enterprise," Regan wrote.

He did not identify the woman, saying Nancy Reagan referred to her only as "My Friend," but Joan Quigley, a San Francisco astrologer, said in a telephone interview, "I can't deny that she has consulted me." She said that after the assassination attempt on the president in 1981, "Mrs. Reagan asked if she could consult me because she was worried about the president's safety, as well she might be."

Asked about the circumstances of his departure from the White House, he said, "I was disappointed. I thought that he was a generous, considerate person with loyalty down as well as expecting loyalty up. I still am puzzled by it. It's not characteristic, and that's the disappointment."

Jesse Jackson Delivers New Attacks on VP George Bush

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Democratic presidential contender Jesse Jackson delivered a fresh attack on George Bush Sunday, saying the vice president has "started to panic."

Last week, Bush referred to Jackson as a "hustler from Chicago." Jackson has been excoriating the apparent Republican nominee ever since.

"Now as we get closer, the opposition hears our footprints and begins to panic," Jackson said. "Vice President Bush has begun to panic and has begun to call me names. ... He's panicking with indecision. He's panicking with selective memory."

"Why would anyone resort to name-calling?" Jackson said. "A combination of constipation of the brain, deafness of ideas and diarrhea of the mouth."

Bush made the "hustler" remark on Friday as he campaigned in Lincoln, Neb. His campaign staff said there was "nothing derogatory" intended in the remark. Spokesperson Stephen Hart later said it was meant as a comment on how hard Jackson worked.

Retired Argentine General Ordered Publisher's Arrest

LOS ANGELES — A retired Argentinian general who was sent back to his homeland to face murder charges acknowledged ordering the 1977 arrest of publisher Jacobo Timerman, a newspaper reported Sunday.

Carlos Suarez Mason made the statement Saturday before he was extradited from jail in San Francisco to face 39 murder charges in Argentina, the Los Angeles Times reported. He faces life imprisonment if convicted.

In a legal deposition, Suarez Mason discussed his role in Argentina's military government during the 1970s, the Times reported.

The ex-general was interviewed Friday and Saturday by Joanne Hooper, working on behalf of plaintiffs seeking damages in federal court for victims of the Argentine junta. The junta has been blamed for the deaths of thousands of people.

500 Stage AIDS 'Die-in' in Protest at the Capitol Steps

SACRAMENTO — About 500 people staged a "die-in" on the steps of the state Capitol Sunday in a somber tribute to the thousands of people who have died of AIDS.

As organizers read the names of approximately 5,000 people who have died of AIDS, participants in the noon event lay down on the Capitol steps and outlined each other's bodies in chalk. Silhouettes quickly filled the block-long area from the Capitol doors to the sidewalk as friends and family of AIDS victims memorialized their loved ones.

"It hurts," said Richard Herber, 26, of Orange County, who has lost many friends to the deadly disease. "Some of my friends are dying as we speak. Some have already died."

The die-in was part of three days of protests in Sacramento organized by gay leaders and AIDS activists. Participants are calling for increased funding for AIDS research and treatment, an end to discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, and legislation that would prohibit discrimination against people with AIDS.

AIDS-related Assault Trial Shapes the Military Justice

SAN FRANCISCO — A naval officer goes on trial by a court-martial Monday on charges of AIDS-related assault and adultery in a case that shapes up as a major legal dispute for the military justice system.

Petty Officer 2nd Class John E. Crawford, 27, will be tried at the Navy's Treasure Island base.

The Navy contends he had unprotected sex with his girlfriend one month after testing positive for the antibody to the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, but failed to warn her of his condition.

If convicted, the Magnolia, Ark., native could be stripped of rank and privileges, dishonorably discharged and sentenced to as many as 10 years in the stockade.

Gang Violence Leaves Three Dead and Six Injured in L.A.

LOS ANGELES — Three people were killed and six wounded in a rash of weekend shootings and stabbings throughout Los Angeles County, and authorities said Sunday at least two of the attacks were gang-related.

In one of those attacks on Saturday, Delvin Clemons, 27, of Los Angeles, was stabbed to death about 9:25 p.m. as he and a friend walked through Will Rogers Memorial Park, said county Sheriff's Deputy Delta Roberts.

Correction

In a page-one article in Friday's Daily Nexus, it was incorrectly stated that Chancellor Barbara Uehling moved to postpone a decision by the Santa Barbara chapter of the Academic Senate on the implementation of an ethnic and gender studies requirement. Uehling actually moved that a final statement from the senate be prepared for and presented at its next meeting.

Also in Friday's paper, a story on the death of retired Sgt. Major Douglas Malone incorrectly stated that Malone's son, Michael, is a student at Fresno State University. Michael Malone is actually a UCSB student who lives on campus.

In addition, as the result of incorrect information supplied by the UCSB Police, it was reported in the Police Report section of Wednesday's Nexus that UCSB student Joshua Berman was cited by campus police for vandalism and joyriding stolen bicycles. Berman was not cited, but was listed as a suspect by police. The Nexus regrets these errors.

CIA: Jurors Can't Reach Consensus

great, great majority of the cases."

One reason Alonzo felt the jury was deadlocked was that the "students looked like real nice people. No one looked at them and felt threatened by them; there was a certain amount of sympathy for them and what they were protesting."

Defense attorney Richard Frishman was pleased with the proceedings and was not disappointed that the defendants did not gain acquittal.

"I'm very pleased with the verdict," Frishman said. "A lot of the evidence that we wanted to present in terms of the CIA's covert activities and personal experiences of CIA officers in terms of recruiting were ruled inadmissible by Judge Ochoa. So I felt like we only presented about half our case to the jury, and to wind up with nine votes for acquittal I think is a great victory." Associated Students Student Lobby Annex Director Jamie Acton, one of six defendants chosen to represent the 35 demonstrators, was also pleased by the outcome.

"I'm extremely excited that it turned out the way it did," Acton said. "We were hoping for an acquittal, but we realized that what we were doing in the first place in terms of getting the necessity defense is almost unheard-of and then doing good with the necessity defense is almost unheard-of, especially with intangibles playing here like academic freedom, integrity, stuff like that."

Defendant Janet Perry echoed Acton. "I'm happy... I would have rather that they had found us not guilty, had an acquittal, but I think that they came out nine to three in our favor is really good. And I feel really good about the fact that the jurors came over to us afterwards and were hugging us and were telling us to stick to our convictions and that they had a great deal of respect for us ... it's instilling my faith in the court system and in what we did."

However, juror George Gerth, who voted for conviction of the protesters, did not believe that the students had used all means open to them before breaking the law. "The problem certainly was important ... however, I think the students had other alternatives to pursue; more of the same demonstrations, write to the Board of Regents, get signatures on a petition," he said. "The cause for necessity simply was not met."

Alonzo said a decision on whether or not to retry the case would be made by District Attorney Thomas Snead and the Chief Trial Deputy Robert Calvert and that their decision would be announced Tuesday.

Los Angeles

UCLA — Charges of racial discrimination have been filed by a former UCLA employee against seven UCLA employees and administrators, including Chancellor Charles Young and Vice Chancellor Peter Blackman.

Byron Benedict Waters claims he was denied a permanent position as a communications and records assistant with Campus Architects and Engineers in April 1987 because of his relationship with a woman of a different color who worked in the same office.

"I believe I was denied the ... position and terminated because of my race (black) and because of my association with a Caucasian woman," Waters claimed in an official complaint filed with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing. Waters is currently employed as an administrative assistant in UCLA's International Studies and Overseas Programs.

Waters — while working as a temporary administrative assistant for A&E for six months — said he was approached by Barbara Corona-Sutton, former executive assistant of the department, after she observed him walking with his arm around his girlfriend, Nancy Ridley, during their lunch hour on Jan. 22, 1987.

According to Waters, Corona-Sutton warned him not to be seen again on campus either holding or touching Ridley because Corona-Sutton found such behavior "unprofessional."

Waters and Ridley's "behavior did not properly represent the A&E office," stated Corona-Sutton during an interview with the UCLA Staff Affirmative Action Office. The interview was conducted during the Affirmative Action Office's investigation into Waters' complaint.

Corona-Sutton could not be reached for comment because she has since moved to Florida and her new address could not be obtained.

Following the denial of the permanent position and his subsequent termination as a temporary employee, Waters said he mailed several letters to both Chancellor Young and Vice Chancellor Blackman, informing the two administrators of the incident.

Santa Cruz

UC SANTA CRUZ — If it were taking place in Reagan's cabinet it would be called Gruhngate. In the last three months UC Santa Cruz's acting Academic Vice Chancellor Isebill "Ronnie" Gruhn has been at the center of a controversy in which she is charged with abuse of power and nepotism.

But while allegations against Gruhn and counter-allegations against her accusers have been flying around the UCSC campus and in the local press, up to this point no one has filed any formal charges against Gruhn and few people are willing to speak out publicly; many faculty members contacted refused to be quoted due to a hesitation to become involved in a highly politicized debate. On all sides, people acknowledge that the atmosphere among UCSC's campus faculty and administrators is unhealthy, and some describe it as poisoned — but not for the record.

Controversy is no stranger to Gruhn; from her first days in office her style and priorities have won her a host of enemies. But an embroglio recently covered in the press grew out of a seemingly simple exchange that occurred before she ever took over her position. Gruhn's husband, Dale Johnson, is founder and chair of Oberlin's East Asian studies. When she accepted the academic vice chancellor position on an acting basis for two years, she told Chancellor Robert Stevens that she "should not be able to commute and do the job." The chancellor in turn "made no guarantees" about finding Johnson a job, Gruhn told City on a Hill, but said he'd do what he could to hire Johnson. Out if this informal agreement all hell has broken loose.

Both Stevens and Gruhn acknowledge the exchange took place, but after that there is little agreement on the events that followed. The most serious charges are that Gruhn manipulated the allocation of tenure-tracked faculty positions, or FTEs, to get her husband a permanent position on campus. Even her most vehement critics, however, can offer no evidence to back up this charge. Rather, they point to decisions made by Gruhn that could be construed as a conflict of interest.

Davis

UC DAVIS — Despite accusations by animal rights activists of the misuse of and cruelty to laboratory animals, UC Davis scientists maintain that the animals are treated humanely and that the research often benefits other animals.

"Animal rights activists get a hold of the bad cases (of animal misuse) and blow them out of proportion," said Mark Kittleson, assistant professor at the UCD School of Veterinary Medicine.

Kittleson said the animals he uses in his research are treated as well as or better than pets. His studies involve dogs and cats; his research consists of feeding the animals taurine, an amino acid, every day and monitoring their health.

"We found that the addition of taurine to their diets reduced cardiomyopathy in cats," he said. Cardiomyopathy is a condition wherein the heart enlarges, weakening the cardiac muscles.

"Our treatment of animals is outstanding," UCD researcher Quinton Rogers said. "Sometimes an animal isn't as perky as he could be due to a dietary deficiency, but this is seldom painful."

Rogers, a nutritionist at the UCD veterinary school, studies eating disorders such as gluttony, bulimia and anorexia.

Animal research is essential to solve certain kinds of diseases, he said. "We cured a heart disease in cats. There is no reason for them to die of this anymore."

Animal research is not essential in every case, however, Rogers said. "For example, without animal research, we probably could have found a vaccine for polio in 50 years, but using animals, we were able to do it in 10."

In each case, the benefits have to be greater than the risks, he added. "One shouldn't do research blindly; there should be goals."

San Diego

UC SAN DIEGO — When a mid-level researcher at 3M Corporation discovered an unsuccessful glue formula and used it with little sheets of yellow paper to create the enormously successful Post-It Notes, he probably had no idea of the trouble it would cause at UCSD's central library.

Since the beginning of the academic year two people have been fined $15 each for damage to books caused by these unassuming little pieces of paper.

"We are in the process of evaluating the Post-It situation," central library's billing department head Lydia Ybarra said. "It's never happened before ... the problem has developed just in the last few months."

"I don't think we faced this problem until recently," agrees Terry Allison, preservation librarian.

The main problem with the offending notes is the time and manpower required to remove the Post-Its from returned library books. However, there have been two cases in which Post-It notes were used almost every other page, and in one case, the incident was combined with actual defacement of the book from writing on the pages.

"Of course, we wouldn't know if people are using them and taking them out before they return them," Allison said. This makes finding a Post-It perpetrator difficult. Usually the culprit is discovered simply because the notes have been left in the book. When the Post-Its have been combined with writing, Ybarra, who has taken courses in graphology, performs a penmanship analysis of the suspect's handwriting. If proven guilty, a $10 damage fine and a $5 billing fine is assessed.

RELIGION: Poll Shows Lower Student Interest

Students who responded 'none' may simply have wanted to avoid being contacted by religious groups, he said. Most churches in Isla Vista have mailing lists of students who list religious preference on documents such as college applications.

Also, marking 'none' does not necessarily mean a student is atheist. "When I talk to students, the high majority are agnostic. I don't know how to interpret a 'none' response," Bauer said.

Regardless of the survey results, Bauer and Hall agree that students' religious beliefs have changed since the founding of the URC and the 1960 establishment of the UCSB religious studies department. Bauer, a UCSB student in 1958, cited several differences between the UCSB student of the 1968 and the UCSB student of 1988.

One of the most evident differences between students of today and those

20 years ago is the importance of materialism, Bauer said. "It was assumed in 1968, 'I will have what my parents had,'" he said. Also, when Bauer was a UCSB student, joining the Peace Corps after college was "very big," he said. "I think the question was 'What are we going to do with our lives that will make a difference?'"

Today, however, society and the university communicate a different message to students, he believes. "What's being communicated non-verbally ... is that we live in a society now that says you want to use people and love things, your car, your home, etc ... (while) the gospel basically says we are to love people and use things to love people.

"What's amazing to me is how stark the contrast between the gospel and the values of society have become."

Although he believes society may be more materialistic in the '80s, Bauer suggested that there appears to be a greater need for religion now than in the '60s, given that students have more difficulty with family and social problems today.

"Students are more deeply scarred relationally," he said.

Hall agrees that spiritually, students have become less accepting of traditional answers and ask more probing questions. "I think students are asking many of the same questions but have a more penetrating attitude than they had in the '60s or when I was in college," he said.

"And I think the (students) who are religious are more deeply concerned about the spiritual politics ... than students in my day. The students who are members of our church are more committed and give more of their time, talent and their money ... than they did 25 years ago."

Booty Reaped by Protesters

Editorial

Back-to-back victories were scored last week for community members opposed to the CIA's affiliation with UCSB.

Last Tuesday, George Chritton was given the proverbial boot by members of the political science department who voted to send the CIA officer-in-residence to more covert academic pastures, and a hung Santa Barbara jury was deadlocked in favor of acquitting 35 students who claimed the defense of necessity while protesting against the UCSB/CIA connection last November.

The activities of the week may put an end to more than six months of controversy that has both polarized and unified different segments of the campus. But whether you support the CIA or not, credit must be given to those who sacrificed themselves to bring attention to an issue that required intense scrutiny.

The students were protesting the presence of the CIA on university campuses in general, not just UCSB.

And because the jury was unable to reach a unanimous decision, the judge declared a mistrial. Unless the Santa Barbara County district attorney decides to retry the case, the issue will remain a victory for the participants, who commandeered Chancellor Barbara Uehling's outer office last November 5. Even if the case is reopened, the jury was overwhelmingly in favor of an acquittal and the likelihood exists that future juries would feel similarly.

But regardless of jury sentiments, the students risked a possible jail sentence and/or civil fines by continuing their fight against the CIA in court. They did not settle for a plea of guilty, however; they stood up for what they believed — that having a CIA officer on campus was a bastardization of academic freedom. Right or wrong, for this integrity and perseverance all 35 students should be commended.

This is not to say that taking over the chancellor's office is a proper means of resolving problems. It's not. But obviously this protest has proven to be an effective means of publicizing a point.

Still, students and administrators alike can learn much from this unique court saga that will stand as a legacy for future protesters. The necessity defense worked because the jury sympathized with the protesters and perceived the administration to be cold and uncaring about student concerns.

And just as the administration should recognize its flaws in this debacle, all the participants must acknowledge the lower court's imperfection of confusing fact and emotion. If the decision were appealed to a higher judicial body, a conviction would be a distinct possibility.

Perhaps for the future, the district attorney, UCSB Police and administration can devise and implement a policy that addresses non-violent protests of conscience: a policy that does not waste taxpayer money on cases that clog and burden an already overworked legal system.

A Fox on the

Hunter S. Thompson

"Throughout the centuries, the red fox has left a record symbolizing cunningness, sagacity and courage.... It has left a mark on the pages of literature and legend, even to modern slang, which applies the name to sly, sharp-witted people, for example, 'He is a foxy fellow,' or 'He out-foxed me.'" — New Hunters' Encyclopedia, Pg. 147.

Well, folks, let me tell you a story about the red fox, and how I came to know him. It is a tale of treachery and violence and vengeance rarely encountered in a family newspaper — or even by me, in my own life, which has not been entirely free of these things.

But even dumb brutes can learn, and I have long since quit even violence, which I used to enjoy as a sport (but that passed when I realized that not everybody feels that way, and some people want to hurt you).

Vengeance went the same way. It was fun to plot and to talk about, but the real thing required more time and energy than being saddled with a terminal disease, and not even best vengeance ever paid the rent.

The English language is not crowded with words beginning with the letter "v" that suggest anything but trouble. After violence and vengeance, there is also vulgar, vicious, victim, vermin, vain, vacant, vile, vampire ... the list is long, with not a lot of smiles.

Right. And never mind these arcane drifts of language. We will leave them to villains and vissionmongers like Edwin Newman and Robin MacNeil.

What we are talking about now is the hideous death in the life of a red fox, considered by many experts to be one of the smartest beasts in nature.

"The fox has a distinct personality. His exceptional cunning, amounting sometimes almost to genius, has been responsible for many exaggerated stories of his extreme resourcefulness." — Ibid.

BUT NOT FROM me. There is a whole nest of those vicious little red buggers about 200 yards

The March Thru

Allison Starrett Pinto

Right now my hands are shaking and I'm finding it hard to put pen to paper. My mind is reeling and I'm not quite sure where to start. Tuesday night, I had thought about attending the march on BOHICA Hall after receiving a hand-out that day explaining the situation and the "silent candle light march." I talked to many of my friends who thought the entire shirt was blown out of proportion (maybe so). At a Composite Hall meeting before 8:00 I talked to my fellow Comp Hall attendants and they allowed me to march on BOHICA Hall.

As I walked over to Santa Cruz Residence Hall, my mind was going nuts. My pace would quicken and then decrease at my ambivalent thoughts: freedom of expression vs. humanity. I believe in freedom of expression, but not when it crosses a line of decency toward others. I got to Santa Cruz at about 8:00 expecting there to be candle lit marchers... They were late, so I took a walk around the grounds. These are some of the things I heard: "We oughta B.A. the bitches." One girl commented, "This is sick, this is so stupid." In response to the girl's comment: Yes, you are right this is sick and what is so stupid? The shirt or the march? I guess I'll never know to what she was referring.

At any rate, the crowds outside Santa Cruz Residence Hall mounted and people spoke of what they were to expect. "Rowdy, white-sheeted bitches with candles..." What actually came were approximately 100 normally clothed men and women (most of whom attend UCSB), with small white candles in plastic cups. Calm were they in their voices and action as well.

So there were people expecting violence — as much violence as their shirt demonstrates? Anyway, the marchers were asked to refrain from talking and to proceed up the stairs of Santa Cruz to BOHICA Hall, slowly and silently, and to leave out the oceanside of the hall. I walked through behind all the marchers and C.S.O.s and in front of the following onlookers. I heard more comments, across the field from my front porch, and I am now in the process of killing them. I got the big one a few days ago and the others have gone into hiding.

The Run: as Good as Dead

They went all to pieces when the old man finally returned from his last trip across the field. He was blind in both eyes and covered with a hard crust of feathers and peacock dung, and he was leaving a trail of blood from the stumps of his hind legs.

It was midafternoon and the carrion birds were just beginning to think about feeding, but they were not in any hurry. There is no lack of food around here. The peacocks eat well — even at 20 below — and so do all the scavengers. There is always plenty of wheat cracked corn and French fries.... They will eat anything that bleeds, including their own kind, like sharks in a feeding frenzy. If one of them gets wounded, he will be quickly devoured by the others. They eat the eyes and entrails first, and then they get into the meat.

"Certain outdoorsmen consider it a sin to kill a red fox; such enthusiasts view it solely as a coursing animal, and are content to let it remain such forever." — Ibid.

ON ANY MARKET survey with a "chic scale" from one to 10, the red fox will run about eight. He is a very stylish little animal, with a neo-valuable pelt and a social cachet on the level of mean horses and fast dogs.

Even George Washington loved the red fox. He "spent many happy hours running foxhounds over the wooded areas of his Mount Vernon plantation."

On some farms they will settle for lesser prey, like the gray fox — one of the lower and uglier strains in the Vulpes vulva family; it has eyes like warts and hair like the spines of a sea urchin, and a brain like a chicken on speed.

There is also the coyote, which is hunted or at least chased now and then by gangs of nouveau riche hunters in places like Vail and Palm Springs.... But it is not quite the same, because the coyote always wins.

He is not a vain little punk like the red fox, with its bitchy little temper and its pampered way of life. The coyote is a mean, solitary meat-eater who will eventually kill any dog who can follow it far enough.

But I have never had a problem with coyotes, although the valley is full of them. In 15 years of relentless coexistence, not even a rabid coyote has ever come up on my front porch and killed one of my family animals, or even chewed up one of the peacocks.

The red fox has a different attitude. He was arrogant and greedy and rude, and somewhere along the line he developed a taste for Salisbury steak. He also killed the family cat and took to roaming brazenly in the yard and even up on my porch in broad daylight, sniffing around the peacock cage.

The Hav-a-Hart trap is a heavy metal box about four feet long, with doors on both ends and a nice little food tray in the middle. When the animal gets far enough in to eat the Salisbury steak, both doors clang shut and lock firmly. Escape is impossible.

When I found the red fox in the cage I talked to him for a while as I prepared a mixture of feathers and peacock dung, which I then began shoveling through the bars and into the cage with him. The fox became hysterical as he thrashed around in the mess, trying to bite off the end of the shoyel. Every once in a while I sprayed him with liquid glue and then a final shot of Mace in his eyes before I let him go.

He looked more like a racoon than a fox at that point. The glue had set up quickly, producing a layered effect with the drug and the feathers. The beast dragged himself out of the cage, yapping and howling and ran awkwardly across the field in the general direction of his den in the briar patch.

On his way across the field, the hideous, stinking, half-blind, brain-shattered animal had to pass between two yearling peacocks who were pecking around in the grass for bugs, paying no attention to this thing that they didn't even recognize as a fox. I was stunned, however, to see the fox veer off his course and make a kind of staggering, dumb-vicious pass at one of the birds. So I shot him from behind with a load of double-O buckshot to help him on his way. The last time I saw him he was covered with blood and two huge red-tailed hawks were circling overhead preparing to take him into the food chain.

Through Halls of BOHICA

perhaps much easier to say once most of the marchers had passed: "Come again." "I'll fuck 'em." "This can only happen in California." "Boy, they sure sent their biggest C.S.O." "Come back soon." As I walked through, I saw many friends and acquaintances. Some of the people had their doors open and were blaring music — it was very loud in the halls. Many were out in the halls, some with their arms folded — in the "I'm a tough guy" ches' eyes..." wouldn't you feel upset if studies proved that shirts like the BOHICA shirt perpetuate negative attitudes against women... like your mother, sister or friend? There are studies BOHICANS should read: Take Back the Night, editor Laura Lederer or Question of Pornography: Research Findings and Policy Implications, authors Donnerstein, Linz and Penrod. Or perhaps you should view the movie Killing Us Softly. Yes, it's only 70 shirts but it's the principle that sexism is acceptable — it must be stopped. With the education you've acquired I hope you all would seriously reconsider the printing of BOHICA. One-third of all women will get raped in their lifetime. Chances are you will know one.

I'm not asking to deny BOHICANS their constitutional rights of freedom of expression. But I am asking them to be educated. We're here to learn and help each other. When some of us are not educated about important issues and studies, we should help one another. I'm sorry this incident was so hyped and that we could not sit down and discuss the consequences of your shirt's blatant sexism. I'm also sorry for the people who choose not to be a part of BOHICA-mania but are still labeled as such.

I'm not a feminist. I do not look for sexism, I'm not defensive about women and I don't undermine men. In fact, I don't agree with many feminist views and actions. However, feminism is important, representing the sensitivity that many of us lack.

Do you really want this shirt to represent the good friends and fun times you have had in your residence hall? Do you just want this shirt for all the attention you've received? Are you actually going to wear your shirts around campus, in front of your family and around your home town? Was it really fun to be so put down and disrespected and "marched upon?" These are all questions you will have to consider.

If I was as inept as some BOHICANS seem to be, I might see the shirt as a mere cartoon — a hall t-shirt. But it's much more than that and I hope you become more educated about this.

stance. Some of my friends out in the halls waved to me and I can honestly say at that time, I was utterly embarrassed to know you!

As I was walking down the steps (after I had decided not to say anything but only be an onlooker), I heard this guy bothering the marcher before me. She was explaining to him how the depiction of violence against women can eventually lead to exactly that. He said his shirt had its emblem, but he didn't believe in violence against women. There is an indirect correlation between women's portrayals of being inferior and liking physical punishment and the accompanying acts. Studies show women's inferior portrayals in ads can promote and perpetuate negative attitudes.

After promising myself not to get involved I tried to elaborate on her views to this man. He jumped all over me, with his friends behind him and said, "Hey you, you're wearing a leather jacket. Some murderers and rapists wear leather jackets. Do you support rapes and murders?" Despite the idiocy of the comment, I responded, saying I did not support those acts of violence. Seeing the other marchers were already outside the building, I left.

In response to, "Look at the hate in those bit-

Go On, Taste the Wine If You Are Responsible

Editor, Daily Nexus:

The members of Mortar Board Senior Honor Society and Students Teaching Alcohol/Drug Responsibility wish to invite UCSB faculty, staff and students of age to our Fifth Annual Wine Tasting Festival. It will be held on Friday, May 13 from 4:30-7:00 p.m. at the Faculty Club. Tickets will be available in front of the UCen the week of May 9-13 and at the APC and Alcohol/Drug Awareness offices. This event is also sponsored by the offices of Chancellor Uehling and Acting Vice Chancellor Kirkelie.

In an atmosphere of responsible drinking, education and relaxation, you can taste a variety of wines from eight Santa Barbara County wineries: Babcock Vineyards, The Brander Vineyard, Byron Vineyard and Winery, Carrari Vineyards, Santa Barbara Winery, Santa Ynez Winery, Trader Joe's and Zaca Mesa Winery. There will be light food, non-alcoholic wines and punch, chamber music, a CHP officer with a breathalyzer and a speaker on the art of wine tasting. In addition, this year we will be presenting the Annual Mortar Board Professor of the Year Awards. So plan to come, relax, taste fine wines and learn about area wines and wine tasting.

Here Comes GENERIC! Read and be Informed

Editor, Daily Nexus:

An overwhelming 43 percent of the students in our recent elections voted that they didn't know what our student government was doing. Of the 261 student groups registered with APC, how many groups do we hear from about what they're doing? What's wrong with this picture? We don't know enough about what's happening in our student groups, clubs, and organizations at UCSB. How then, are we expected to get involved at UCSB "to round out our college career" or "have a voice in our student community?"

Much of it isn't the fault of the groups (or anyone else for that matter). A group that isn't involved in a "big" event, or a controversial one, often lacks the money to publicize their projects. Except for an announcement of when and where the group is meeting on the Nexus Calendar Page, students very rarely have ways of finding out what goes on in the groups. Now there's an answer....

Have you heard about the GENERIC yet? Well, it's time you had! The GENERIC is a newsletter that will begin being published this fall and will distribute 5,000 copies around campus the second week of school. It will be made up of eight pages purely of what student groups, clubs and organizations at UCSB are up to. Every two weeks we can catch up on what's going on... until the next issue hits the stands!

Sound exciting? It is! The GENERIC will reach out to more students than almost any other student group next year and is definitely something unique to our campus. It looks like it's going to be a great paper and a great time! If you want to get involved with it....

The Advertising & Publicity Board will be publishing the GENERIC; if you are interested in publishing, managing or writing for the GENERIC next year, this is the committee you want to join. Applications for both chair of the committee (editor in chief) and voting members are in the A.S. Main Office on the 3rd floor of the UCen. Apply as soon as possible! (Call 961-2566 for more info.) There are no limits to the number of non-voting members and no experience is needed, so come on up and get involved!

Meetings for the GENERIC are every Tuesday from 4-5 in the Advertising & Publicity Board Office on the 3rd floor of the UCen. Hope to see you there this Tuesday!

Definition of Ethnicity

Editor, Daily Nexus:

MAY 6, 1988 — It was reported in the Daily Nexus (5-3-88) that on Thursday evening (4-27-88) a member of the audience at the Multicultural Center charged that the South African/Azanian Student Movement (SAASM) is only for certain so-called ethnic groups from South Africa/Azania. Since the thorough response given by the national president of SAASM was left out by the particular reporter, we consider it important to write this. The issue of "ethnicity" is of great significance because of its divisive nature.

The speaker's main point was that SAASM is largely for "Coloureds" and "Indians" who are studying in North America. We could certainly adopt this person's "ethnic" or narrow nationalist mentality and argue against her by pointing out that the majority of SAASM's (800+) members are "Africans." But this is not the point!!! If we begin to count how many of a so-called ethnic group we have in SAASM, then we are falling into the trap of the apartheid mentality! Apartheid aimed at using "ethnicity" to divide and exploit black people. However, the country would not have been in the present organic crisis if this backward mentality had been a significant force. The consciousness of the oppressed have triumphed over the attempts to divide them on the basis of insignificant characteristics. Abilities and contributions to the struggle are the important characteristics. Our struggle exposed the "ethnic" mentality as a myth, as a social product aimed at dividing. And we are determined to build one, undivided nation in South Africa/Azania.

The oppressed people of South Africa/Azania have a very progressive definition of "black" (like those of Britain). This definition of "black" focuses on those who are economically, politically and socially oppressed. And in fact this has been a very effective mobilizing element in South Africa/Azania. Let us also add that being a black South African does not automatically mean that the person is in the camp of the liberation forces. There are a few non-white South Africans (they are unworthy of being called "black") like Buthelezi, Hendrickse, Mangope, Matanzima, Rajbansi and Sebe who are puppets of the apartheid regime.

We submit that this member of the audience exposed an apartheid mentality that has been almost completely destroyed in the black townships. Only a few naive people and/or puppets still accept this mentality. This specific South African had been invited to three SAASM meetings but claims never to have been informed and thus never attended. Not that one should need an invitation to participate in the struggle in the first place!

We are determined to move forward. The aim of SAASM is solidarity amongst the political tendencies/inclinations — clearly reflecting the advanced nature of our struggle. We will build one nation. Victory through solidarity!

Re-evaluating Apology

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In response to the pseudo-apology submitted by ex Delta Tau Delta member Ian Lebrant, I think you need to re-evaluate your views about what racism really is exactly.

I have trouble believing that a person who views this assault as a "minor prosecution" can actually claim, as you do, to hate racism as much as the women you attacked. If you have never been on the receiving end of a racial comment such as this, I don't see how you can have a full grasp of its seriousness. In your position, claiming to hate racism as much as they do puts you on very shaky ground. I suggest you take another look at what you have really done.

As for their "desires for revenge," I am so very sorry you got kicked out of your fraternity, but did you really expect them to let this racial incident slide because it might have been damaging to your relationship with the bros? I would hardly call it "revenge." I think you got what you deserve.

Gaucha Nine 86 49ers: Record Sweep in Last League Series

Landphere's Bat is Red Hot, Gauchos No Longer in Cellar

By Steve Czaban
Sports Staff Writer

When the UCSB baseball team finally gets around to swallowing its difficult 1988 season, last weekend's 17-2, 11-10, 4-2 sweep of Long Beach State might be the spoonful of sugar that helps it go down a little easier.

It marked the first time this year the Gauchos (23-39, 6-15 in the PCAA) have won a conference series. More importantly, UCSB avoided both a 40-loss season and a dead-last finish in the league, leaving the 49ers (14-45, 4-17 in league) alone in the cellar.

Game one on Friday pretty much set the tone for the entire series. Long Beach arrived late and missed batting practice due to bus problems, with its day only getting longer from there.

Scott Longaker (2-5) started on the mound for the Gauchos and looked more like a seasoned veteran than the redshirt freshman he is, going the distance in pitching a near-flawless game. The only real scare he got was in the fifth, when a Shane Larker grounder caught him in the knee, leaving him limping for a few minutes. Longaker shook it off and finished the game, allowing only 2 runs on 7 hits, while balancing 5 strikeouts with five walks.

"It was great to go out with a complete game win to end the season," he said.

The Gauchos started out quick, touching Long Beach starter Chad Holmes (2-8) for four first-inning runs. The game was already out of hand by the time Jess Feathers relieved Holmes in the seventh, when things quickly degenerated into a reel-to-reel Gaucho highlight film.

Designated hitter Ed Landphere launched his weekend hitting assault by going 3 for 3, with a home run, a double and an RBI, while scoring five runs. About the only thing he didn't do was run the concession stand — and he was just getting started.

Not to be outdone, light-hitting Joe Ferrone lashed a three-run triple to the gap in right in the seventh inning; then, reserve outfielder Kenny Genilla stroked a three-run pinch homer to right field, his first of the year. When the dust finally cleared, UCSB was on the happy end of a 17-2 decision.

"About the fifth inning, I turned to Bob (Brontsema) and said, 'It seems like old times,'" Head Coach Al Ferrer said. "It was like 1986 (UCSB was PCAA champs), when all the breaks were going our way."

In game two, the 49ers came out fired up and chased starter Brian Raum (5-3) by racking up six runs on seven hits in the first two innings. Dave Boss (6-7) entered in relief and steadied the boat long enough for the Gauchos to get back into it. UCSB mounted a five-run fourth inning sparked by a Landphere triple that tied the game at seven.

In the eighth, UCSB had to rally, taking the lead, 10-9, when leftfielder Dan Campbell led off with triple to the gap. Landphere doubled in Campbell and freshman Eddie Pierce followed with a clutch RBI single. The Gauchos would need to call on Campbell and Pierce once more in the ninth to secure the win.

Boss, who had been nearly unflappable in allowing only one earned run on four hits in seven innings of work, was prepared to wrap up the win in the ninth — but stumbled. With one out, he walked Long Beach's #8 hitter, Larker, and beamed #9 hitter Chris Gill.

Ferrer looked to extinguish the fire, bringing in Pierce from left field to close. And although Pierce managed to end

UCSB DUSTS CSULB — The sluggers waited until the last league series of the season to record a sweep. Their weekend wins over Long Beach St. got them out of the PCAA cellar and stopped them short of a 40-loss campaign (23-39). Doug Williams (above) steals second base in the 7th inning of Saturday's 11-10 win and Mike Czarnetski (left) was safe on a close play at third base in the sixth. the inning with a pair of strikeouts, a pair of walks brought the tying run home.

The Gauchos got two aboard in their half of the ninth when Craig Middlekauff walked and Ferrone was beamed. Mike Czarnetski then beat out a slow bouncer to third to load the bases.

Campbell came to the plate 4 for 5 on the day with a double, a triple and three RBI's to his credit. Was he looking for a walk? No way, but Long Beach pitcher Todd Cook (0-1) missed low for ball four as Middlekauff trotted home with the game-winner, despite the protests of 49er Head Coach John Gonsalves.

His slider was bewildering Long Beach hitters as he pitched five shut-out innings, striking out seven (four looking). The Gauchos jumped out to a 3-0 lead courtesy of who else but Landphere.

The designated hitter's towering two-run homer in the third, his 10th of the year, was the crowning jewel in an incredible weekend in which he posted some eye-popping numbers.

"I'm still pinching myself," he admitted later. Once the league office finds out that Landphere's series totals of 9 for 11 hitting (.818), four doubles, one triple, two homers, seven runs, and eight RBI's, are not misprints, he's almost a shoe-in for PCAA Player of the Week.

Bryand's only mistake of the game came in the sixth, when Manny Benavidez clocked a two-run dinger to left; but that would be all runs the 49ers would get. Bryand threw a complete game, striking out a career-high 11 batters.

UCSB got an insurance run in the seventh inning when, would you believe it, Ferrone launched a solo shot to left that floated over the fence for his first career round-tripper. The rare occurrence brought the Gaucho bench to its feet in celebration.

Even though the season-ending sweep had only symbolic importance for the Gauchos, Ferrer wasn't about to take it for granted.

"I needed them the most," he said. "They'll make my summer go a lot easier."

Sunday was seniors day and before the game Steve Pratt, Tim McKercher, Doug Williams, Campbell, and Renay Bryand were honored before their final game as Gauchos.

Baker, Norville Shine at Nick Carter, Help Men to Seven Firsts

By Scott Lawrence
Sports Editor

Minutes after the final event of UCSB's Nick Carter Invitational at Pauley Track over the weekend, chants of "Utah! Utah!" emanated from a gathered UCSB men's track team.

The display was in part a result of the Gauchos' excitement for next weekend's PCAA Championships in Logan, Utah, and part a result of satisfaction in their performances on Saturday.

UCSB ran to seven first places in the 18-team invitational, finishing its home and season schedules.

Two Gaucho standouts on the day were Scott Baker and Mike Norville. Baker scurried to a first place in the opening heat of the 800-meters with a time of 1:51.18. He holds the school record in the 800 with a 1:50.35 and his run Saturday helped earn him the Outstanding UCSB Athlete of the Meet trophy.

"I really didn't expect to get it," Baker said. "But toward the end someone mentioned it and I started thinking it was possible."

Baker, currently second in the PCAA in the 800-meters at 1:50.4, had already been selected to go to the championships, which made his day more relaxed.

"There was no stress for me in this meet or for the guys who knew they were going to the PCAAs," he added. "I was about as relaxed as I have been all year. It was the last meet of the year and it was in front of the home crowd, so I just wanted to run a good race."

"I feel pretty good about my time. I got hurt after the Mt. SAC Relays and haven't had many quality workouts, so I wasn't sure what I could do."

Norville, holding the 8th spot in the conference in the 400-meters at 48.82 seconds, took first in his 400- and 200-meter races with times of 49.50 and 22.37 seconds, respectively.

"I wasn't so much concerned with the times; I just wanted to have a good feeling," Norville said. "I felt strong and relaxed and later when I talked to Sam (Adams, men's coach) about it, I was happy with the times. I really wanted to tune up for the conference meet and wanted to race against the kind of competition I'm gonna see there."

The second race of the 1500-meters went to UCSB's Peter Weinerth, also a UCSB cross-country standout, who recorded a 3:56.65. However, in Logan, he'll be competing in the 3000-meter steeplechase, in which his personal best is 9:25.

"I feel great, ecstatic about my time," he said. "I had some pretty good competition, but I was in the second heat, which wasn't a fast heat. It was definitely the kind of competition I wanted."

Other firsts for the Gauchos came in the third race of the 100-meters, the third race of the 1500-meters and the second race of the 800-meters.

Troy Vigil, also headed for Utah, ran a personal best of 11.23 seconds in the 100, while teammate David Seborer ran a 4:04.60 in the 1500. Tim Corbin recorded a 1:55.00 and a first in the 800-meters.

UCSB failed to take any firsts in the field events, but did grab a second place when Paul Kim recorded a hurl of 188' 5" in the hammer throw. Kim is presently seventh in the league at 177' 11".

TRACKING DEVICES — Men's track closed out its home and season slates at the Nick Carter Invitational at Pauley Track on Saturday. Darren Robuck (top) finished 4th in the shotput with a toss of 53-6 1/4, and third in the hammer throw at 185-2. Matt Wallace (top right) goes for it in his first attempt at the high jump, while Mike Norville (right) finishes first in the 400-meters with a time of 49.5 seconds. Norville also won the 200-meters with a mark of 22.37.

Fellow Gaucho Darren Robuck finished third behind Kim with a throw of 185' 2", while taking fourth in the shotput with a toss of 53' 6 1/4".

He currently holds the conference's third spot in the shotput at 54' 6", while maintaining the league's second spot in the hammer throw at 193' 11".

Robuck and the rest of the shotput field found stiff competition in Athletics West's Dave Laut, a 1984 bronze medalist. Laut, working his way back from injuries in both knees, took first place with a throw of 66' 7".

When asked about his chances of making the 1988 squad, the UCLA grad said, "It's always tough making the team and I'm just trying to get to a competitive level for the trials in July."

Gaucha Gary Covington finished second in the pole vault portion of the meet, clearing 14' 7 1/4", while David Ramey earned fourth in the triple jump with a mark of 45' 10". Ramey is third in the PCAA in the triple jump with a mark of 48' 3 3/4", while teammate Os Tyler is 10th at 44' 8 1/2".

Also in the PCAA top-10 are Andy Sheaffer, fourth in the discus at 162' 8" and eighth in the hammer at 174' 5". Ares Cruz is ninth in both the 110-meter hurdles (15.07) and the 400-meter hurdles (54.79).

Sandy Combs and Jeff Jacobs sat out the invitational because of physical ailments. Combs, 7th in the PCAA in the 200-meters (21.56), will travel to Utah, while Jacobs is out due to a shoulder injury. The team leaves for Logan this Thursday, competing on Friday and Saturday.

RUNNER-UP: Spikers Denied Volleyball Title

1972 over San Diego State.

"I'm impressed with the way my guys hung in there; I think it shows a lot of character," Trojan Head Coach Bob Yoder said. "This was a great victory for us and for our school."

Sophomore outside hitter Jen-Kai Liu was chosen as the tournament's most valuable player after his 32-kill, 22-dig and four-block performance against the Gauchos. In addition, three other USC players, Duke, Ivie and Lauterman, were named to the All-Tournament team, along with UCSB's Rottman and junior setter Jon Wallace.

"Maybe I could have done something or our team done something that would have made the outcome different, and I'll have to live with wondering that for the rest of my life," Rottman said. "On the other hand, I'm really proud of our team because I think we earned some respect. It's bittersweet."

Rottman finished the match with 32 kills, 12 digs and three blocks.

Considering the Gauchos 28-11 overall record and their mid-season losses to CSUN and Loyola, the simple fact that they played for the title is a great indicator that the team had overcome its adversity.

"I'm disappointed that we just had one game left and could've won it; but I'm really happy with the way our team has come along," Wallace said. "Knowing all the players and what we went through this year, it's just phenomenal that we made it here."

Wallace finished the match with 93 assists, two solo blocks, and three block assists, and led the Gauchos defensively with 19 digs.

The Trojans jumped out to an early 7-1 lead in the first game. After hitting his first attempt into the net, Pennington caught fire with a string of eight kills and sparked a Gaucho rally to 10-10. Gandara's two kills and then his stuff block were also responsible for the UCSB comeback.

"Like the rest of the guys and coaches, I'm disappointed; we started behind in every game but in the first two we were a lot stronger," Gandara said. "From then on I think they played a little bit better than us, but I don't think we ever gave up. We'll be back next year."

"Keno" finished the match with 19 kills, two aces, 17 digs, five block solos and seven block assists.

Rottman's block of Liu's spike attempt, coupled with consecutive USC hitting errors, led to a 14-11 Gaucho advantage. The Trojans fought off two UCSB game-point opportunities and then rallied to 14-14. The Gauchos gained the advantage with two quick kills by Rottman and Gandara. McKeough's errant spike attempt ended the scoring.

Back-to-back stuff blocks by Wallace and Gandara opened the second game that stayed close up until Ivie went on a tear with three kills, sparking a 6-0 Trojan run. USC's 12-6 advantage was short-lived, however, as Rottman got the Gauchos going with consecutive kills and a stuff block.

UCSB tied the game at 12 and then went ahead by one, but then Duke's dump shot ended the eight-point Gaucho run, as the Trojans again forced a 14-14 deuce. Another kill by Rottman made it 15-14 and then Lauterman's errant set made it 16-14.

"In retrospect, I felt that we played a good solid match," Preston said. "I don't think that's as good as we can play but it was good enough to win the first two and fight for it. The tide just turned."

In similar fashion to the prior two games, UCSB made a comeback from being down 11-5 in the third game to 11-10. Only down by one point and five points shy of the victory, UCSB appeared to be on the verge of winning the title. As it turns out, USC had written a different ending to the story.

"I'm disappointed, but I'm not unhappy," Pennington said. "USC showed what true champions they are by holding strong and coming back to take those last three games."

"P-Squared" finished the match with 25 kills, 14 digs and two block assists.

The third and fourth games were nearly identical. The Trojans jumped out to a 10-5 lead with the help of Hom's five kills and Ivie's two stuff blocks. Once again, UCSB ran off five points to raise the score to 11-10, and it was deja vu — one point down, five points shy of being the national champions. The eventual outcome was the same as before.

USC jumped out to a quick 10-5 lead in the fifth game, but fought off the Gauchos' late rally, unlike the prior four games of the match.

A given in the game of volleyball is that the setter will go to the hammer at crunch time. With the Trojans serving for the match, Wallace set high outside to Rottman, who was making his approach from the far right side. Rottman totals well over 500 kills this season and 1,000 in his career, but this was one kill that eluded him. USC's triple block forced him to hit line and his spike went wide.

"It was a hard-fought match; maybe the outcome would be different if we played them again," Rottman said. "But tonight they won and they're the national champions."
