Supervisor charged with impropriety in I.V. rezoning

By JEFF WOODSTOCK

In response to accusations that he has been involved in numerous questionable business deals in Isla Vista, county supervisor Dan Grant has requested an immediate grand jury investigation into the matter uncovered by the "Probe," a local bi-monthly community publication.

In its current May-June issue, the Probe charges Grant, who represents Isla Vista and Goleta, with favoritism and conflict of interest.

In Isla Vista's most controversial rezonings, Grant's campaign manager and administrative assistant, Carl Chandler, has been cut in on the deal.

When reached at Grant's office, Chandler said "I am satisfied with what I have done, it has been open and above board."

According to the Probe: "If a land developer wants to make a killing in real estate in Isla Vista, he will find ways to double or triple his investment. This has traditionally been accomplished through a process known as rezoning."

The article describes the rezoning method which may increase the market value of a parcel of land by tens of thousands of dollars.

Pointing out that successful rezonings almost always require the favor of the supervisor in whose area they are listed, the article explains that rezonings in I.V. have almost always been decided in favor of the developers that have requested them, disregarding community protest.

The comprehensive Probe article, focuses on 1. Grant's re-election campaign in 1964 involving a decision by him to overturn a Planning Commission decision not to rezone some I.V. land which subsequently resulted in a 200 per cent increase in property value, and 2. the controversy which came to a head in 1967 concerning the spoiling of the Isla Vista beachfront view and the "battle of the bluff."

The article traces deals in which Grant has been involved in his 10 year span as supervisor representing I.V. and Goleta, and his connection with and contributions from real estate developers and parties in rezoning incidents.

Described in detail is one occurrence where Grant overruled protests of 99 I.V. residents, and recommendation from the Planning Department and the Planning Commission, and then made a motion approving certain rezonings.

Yesterday, Grant released a statement declaring that the Probe article is "...grossly distorted and replete with unsubstantiated innuendos."

According to Grant: "The decisions made by me as a member of the board of supervisors are not and never have been influenced by any pressure groups or other individuals."

Les Baird, president of the home owners' Isla Vista Association and in the forefront of the battle to save the bluff, said that "there must be some sort of extra-curricular association of Grant with developers" because "we have been overruled in almost every case (of rezoning)."

According to Baird, the supervisors and Grant have continually given developers the benefit of every doubt and have accepted their "tortuous reasoning."

A long-time critic of Grant's activities, Baird feels that "students have had a raw deal," and he welcomes the grand jury investigation into the matter, something he himself has been advocating for years.

Bonnie Adams, who edits the Probe and researched the article on Grant, said that "many people from Goleta and Santa Barbara, who have been specifically involved in rezoning battles with Grant, want to know what they can do."

A variety of actions to be taken are being contemplated, and the nature of these ideas may be known by week's end.

Senate funds cut

By CINDY HEATON

Legislators again vented their anger with California's system of higher education Tuesday when the Assembly Ways and Means Committee cut all UC Academic Senate funds from the 1970-71 state budget.

This cut, totaling $409,000, will reduce the Senates to their pre-1920 status of self-support and will eliminate funds which pay for secretaries and travel.

These punitive actions were taken by the Ways and Means Committee after virtually no debate upon the recommendation of a subcommittee assigned to study funding for higher education. Included in the motion which cut senate funds were requests to terminate the activities of the 10 year old Coordinating Council for Higher Education by eliminating its $531,186 proposed support, and a move to deny state college faculty members the 5 per cent across the board pay raise recommended by Governor Reagan for all state employees.

All motions were passed by the committee without dissent.

Action against the Senates was intended to terminate them completely by eliminating their funding. There is however, a possibility that President Hitch may fund the Senates through his office, but this action would put another heavy pressure on UC's already limited budget.

When asked the reason for their drastic move, Committee Chairman Frank Lanterman told newsmen that the fund slashing was intended to "shake them up."

"What does the Academic Senate do but make themselves obnoxious?" he asked, and then suggested that they "fund themselves out of their own dues."

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education which also had its budget clipped was created by the Legislature in 1960 as part of its master plan for higher education.

Its members are charged with the task of assuring balanced growth in all state educational systems and with the administration of a number of federal aid to higher education programs.

El Capitan protest organized

By MIKE SALERNO

Friday at 1 p.m. in St. Marks Church those interested in circulating a referendum opposing the rezoning of El Capitan will hold an organizational meeting. Everyone is invited.

Norman Sanders, assistant professor of geography, stated that, "since students are aware of the situation and involved in the decision we would like their help." He was referring to the many students who testified at the board of supervisors meeting in which the decision to rezone El Capitan was made.

Sanders stressed that all students, whether or not they have been involved in the project up to now will be welcome. He stated his objective as "trying to exercise the democratic prerogatives to try and make the system work."

There are two types of jobs to be done in working for the referendum. One is handling the mechanical aspects of the project, such as sending out letters and various other paper work. The second is a job for voters registered in Santa Barbara county and this entails door to door canvassing. Sanders explained that there are several thousand registered voters in Isla Vista and "if we could deliver those numbers we would be off to a good start."

Because of the board of supervisors rezoning decision which Sanders termed a "miscarriage of justice", he concluded that in order to reverse the decision "a number of avenues are still open and we intend to explore all of them before we give up."

G.I. war protestors refused Memorial Day march permit

Under the inspiration of UCSB student Bruce Petty, a group of local military veterans who oppose U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia have attempted to join the annual Santa Barbara Memorial Day Parade. Permission for the anti-war group to march was refused by parade marshal Milton Schmerzler.

The purpose of the parade, Schmerzler told EL GAUCHO, "is to show our respect for the memory of those who died in war. We don't wish to take up the matter of whether it was a just war or an unjust war."

Bob English, a veteran who has participated in anti-war activities during previous Memorial Day observances, remarked that "it is ironic and paradoxical that permission would be refused for this Memorial Day march. Most veterans groups have a vested interest in Memorial Day — and war."

'Musgrave' well written, directed, acted

Denying the evil logic of violence

By JOANNE O'DONNELL
 "Serjeant Musgrave's Dance" is a telling and compelling play about man and his tendency to violence. Playwright John Arden has said: "I think that many of us must at some time have felt an overpowering urge to match some particularly outrageous piece of violence with an even greater and more outrageous retaliation." For those who demand that art be relevant, who could ask for more?

Musgrave is the dedicated lover of logic and precision who leads three deserters on an almost evangelical mission ("I am a religious man") to a mining town in northern England in an attempt to teach its residents a lesson. What is the lesson? That violence is evil. How does he propose to teach it? With a Gatling gun and the kind of logic ("the mechanism of God") that would claim 25 lives in recompense for the lost lives of five others.

Musgrave's madness is reflected and set off by the characters of his three underlings, as well as by the characters of the women in the play. Richard Bey does a sometimes over-enthusiastic, but convincing job as Sparky, the bewildered and frightened young soldier who takes refuge in silly humor and boisterous antics. Joe Anderson is blusteringly effective in the role of Hurst, another bewildered and frightened young soldier who turns for respite to mighty temper tantrums. Attercliffe, as played by Karl Johannsen, is more bitter, and perhaps less bewildered, but just as afraid. All hate the violence of war, all follow Musgrave on his supposed mission to inform the town of the horrors of war, but none can face the violence that Musgrave would substitute for the war they have deserted.

If the soldiers are frightened and confused, Annie the whore is not. Played with embittered hostility by Paula Juelke, she is described by Attercliffe as a girl "with a heart like a horsecollar, open it up and let 'em all in." In the symbolism of the play, she represents all-encompassing compassion, in contrast to the biblically-inspired justice of Musgrave.

Dana Craig is excellent in the complex role of Musgrave, blending the necessary ingredients of madness and logic, dedication and self-righteousness into a believable whole. Here, as in the rest of the production, much of the credit must go to playwright Arden, who has beautifully drawn this confused product of the modern world with all its violence, hypocrisy, and crumbling religious values.

el GAUCHO ARTS

Director Stanley Glenn has turned this play into a fine production. Set changes that occur while performers are spotlighted elsewhere on the stage give the scenes an unusual sense of continuity. One particularly striking scene change from a market place to a prison cell is achieved by dropping several chains, representing prison bars, from the ceiling, separating the prisoners from the rest of the performers at the rear of the stage. Glenn also makes use of camera slides depicting a rose and an apple, symbols of death and life in the play, as backdrops closing out each act.

Performances as a whole are excellent, with the notable exception of Downing Cless, whose characterization of the major is stilted and singularly unimpressive. Nora Delaney is either very well cast or very well made-up in the role of Mrs. Hitchcock, the taciturn but compassionate tavern-keeper. Evan Cole demonstrates considerable ability and much humor as crooked Joe Bludgeon, the emissary between play and audience.

"Serjeant Musgrave's Dance" is a very good over-all production, but with due credit to director, cast and crew, John Arden gave them a lot to work with.

Production to play Sat.

The UCSB department of dramatic art has announced the re-opening of "Serjeant Musgrave's Dance."

This award-winning drama will play tonight through Saturday, May 30 in the Main Theatre, directed by Stanley Glenn. Tickets are $2 general admission and $1 for students at the Arts and Lectures Ticket Office.

After hearing the candidates for sheriff speak before two separate audiences - students at UCSB and adults in Goleta - it seems apparent that these men are not being entirely honest in terms of their proposed platforms. Seeing as how they have each turned into fairly deft politicians at this last leg of the race, it is not surprising that there is a great deal of discrepancy between their student and adult talks.

Speaking at UCSB on Monday, all five of the candidates exhibited a "proper concern" over Kevin Moran's death, to a greater or lesser degree. While not all of them were willing to cite negligence on the part of those involved with the killing (Frank Loper and Thomas Thornton refused to give their personal opinions), all showed regret and vowed: "It wouldn't have happened if I were sheriff."

In direct contrast to the students' concern over Moran, and the candidates' responsiveness to that concern, little mention was made of the Moran killing at the Goleta meeting by either candidates or members of the audience. The one reference came from a student in the audience who questioned the candidates as to whether or not they favor the type of weapons used to control the I.V. riots, for future riot use.

Each of the candidates reaffirmed the effectiveness of the rifle in a riot situation (whether for rioters or snipers) with the exception of McCune who advocated the shotgun as most feasible.

Other than the brief talk about weapons, Kevin Moran's death was an issue which was practically bypassed. The major concern of the meeting, both on the part of candidates and audience, was the question "How will you, as sheriff, get rid of the hard core people who are training the students in Isla Vista?"

Without exception, the seven men explained their "get tough" policies. Stan Otremba stated, "I would like to see 'participating in a riot twice' a felony". The rest of the men all described varying degrees of toughness in a policy to penetrate the student groups in I.V. to obtain advance intelligence information.

Loper stated: "These people have already been identified, but we've been unable to do anything with it. Perhaps, through legislation, we can rid the campus of these people."

Although the practice of infiltrating student groups is already being used by the Sheriff's Office, and the candidates stressed how they would "step up the intelligence operations," no mention was made of this to the students on Monday.

The question of drug law enforcement was also given double treatment by the seven candidates. Although the candidates admitted they had to uphold all laws, all of them, except Loper, made a distinction between grass and hard drugs, when they spoke to the students. Carpenter stated, "We must work on the dangerous drugs first." "There should be a distinction between marijuana and dangerous drugs," McCune commented.

Yesterday in Goleta however, the candidates grouped marijuana in with the hard narcotics. "Narcotics is the greatest problem we have," Thornton stated. None of the men indicated any priorities as to the enforcement of drug laws when talking to the adults in Goleta.

After listening to the two-sided speeches, it is perfectly clear that our new sheriff will not be an honest individual. In his campaign for votes he has indicated this already.

It is very doubtful that any of the candidates will remain true to what they told the students on Monday. If any of them decide to take a more honest approach to their job, the two who seem to be the lesser of the seven evils are Merlin McCune and John Carpenter.

The candidate whose talks varied the least from audience to audience is McCune, whose straightforwardness was rather impressive. If he does what he says he will, he can probably implement fair law enforcement better than any of the other candidates. He has been trying to get a community relations program in Isla Vista since 1965, but his superiors refused to take his suggestion. His emphasis does not lay in using force, as does that of most of the other candidates.

Carpenter, who probably stands a better chance of winning, perhaps due to his slicker approach, also has a feasibly fair program in mind. He is an advocate of walking patrols, a substitution with regular personnel, a sheriff's advisory council and citizen observers in police cars.

It is unfortunate that our choice for sheriff is limited to these seven men, but McCune and Carpenter seem to be the best bets.

Try to riot in Cicero, Ill.

To the Editor:

I read Dr. Cheadle's account in the News-Press, and his request that people should invite students who are active for a better understanding with the citizens of this country.

Are you kidding? How do we know whether such a student isn't full of dope? Since they are running around naked on the beaches and filthy in the store such as Disco? Burning banks and being arrested for indecent exposure?

The joke of the whole situation is that you want the privilege to vote at the age of eighteen. Why, you are not even house broken. A bunch of you piddled on the halls of North Hall. And now you are going to have a "shit-in" at a gas station.

Why don't you try rioting in Cicero, Ill.? Or any other steel towns?

It's easy here with a population of Senior Citizens.

State Scholarships in danger

The State Scholarship Programs may soon be dissolved at the University of California if the Governor's Department of Finance has its way. Eight hundred students currently receiving State Scholarships on the Davis campus will be denied partial support for the $150 fee increase if Reagan Administration spokesmen succeed in blocking an augmentation of the Scholarship Commission budget.

The law provides that the top two per cent of California graduating high school class who qualify under the strict financial need provisions may receive support at the California college of their choice. Finance spokesman Lowell Gano testified on Thursday, May 7, 1970, that University students holding State scholarships and facing increased fees should accept deferred payment. However, his proposal, of course, is in direct contradiction to the Education Code's intention in establishing the State Scholarship Commission.

The State provides no direct aid to the University of California to assist financially deserving students. The Scholarship Commission is the only means through which the State supports needy students attending the University. Even at this, only seven per cent of U.C. undergraduates receive the $300 commitment from the State. The State's entire support of U.C. students is only 1.5 million dollars. Governor Reagan's repeated pronouncements to the Board of Regents that it is the State's obligation and not the school's to support needy students lacks credibility in light of actual performance.

So what must be done? State Scholarship holders should write letters expressing their concern that the State does not wish to meet its statutory obligation to meet the increase in fees and that the Governor does not choose to practice his rhetorical stance in support of State assistance to deserving U.C. students. Letters should be addressed to:

Assemblyman Don MacGillivray
Room 6003
State Capitol
Sacramento, California

The consequence of neglectful malattention to maintained full State support will eventually lead to a total abandonment of any type of State support to students attending the University as fees inevitably continue to rise.

Tower unused

To the Editor:

I was appalled to read in Wednesday's EG that our dear old tower is now closed to students. I didn't know it ever opened. As far as most believed, the only time it ever opened was on Parents' Day, for three hours, which was to show them the wonderful creations our campus offers.

This mass of concrete which protrudes from our concrete plaza and looms over our great concrete campus is the greatest waste of money here.

If the Administration can spend a million dollars for an ugly protruding monolith instead of for scholarships, the least they can do is show us why. WHY HAVE IT ON THE UNIVERSITY IF THE UNIVERSITY CAN'T USE IT?

Support 'hunchback'

To the Victim of Tinnitus:

Although I have a great concern for your sanity, I disagree with your opinion of our "Hunchback's" musical talent. It is my opinion, along with many others that his music from the chimes provides a much needed period of relaxation on this campus, even though it is restricted to only a short period of time after dinner. I know little of who has the access to those "forbidden stairs" as you put it, but however I feel that this music does not occur at the "expense" of people's peace of mind, but rather serves to maintain it. Being a person ignorant of musical compositions, I don't know what type of music our hunchback is playing, but I do know that I like it, and I sincerely encourage him to continue.

You have probably been notified about the demonstration at Delano High School.

As a student of Delano High School, I feel the minority students have been discriminated against. Most of the teachers in this school are prejudiced. I feel there should be a minority board of trustees and there should be minority programs. I, for one, don't like to be called a dirty Mexican or a dirty wetback. Sir, I am asking for your support.

By MIKE CALLAHAN

A little-known fact, but one that is potentially very important to students and to the nature of the University, is that personnel at all levels are considering the possibilities and advantages of unionization.

The three groups involved give several reasons for these actions. Most of the causes given range from political repression to economic security. Most of those spearheading the movements find all of these to be valid concerns of employees of the University.

The motto of one of the three groups, the Union of Associated Professors (UAP), is "Improving Higher Education through Faculty Action." The UAP is well on its way to becoming a powerful voice in representing faculty members in California public higher education.

The new union, which held its founding constitutional convention on May 8 in San Diego, has replaced the College and University Council of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) and the State Council of the Association of California State College Professors (ACSCP).

Nearly 4,000 state college faculty members and more than 500 University professors have committed themselves to the formation of a majority faculty organization. More than 1,000 faculty members who belonged to neither of the sponsoring organizations have signed as charter members of the new union.

The goals of the UAP include improved working conditions, adequate fringe benefits and compulsory arbitration with the Administration in all disputes. Union organizers feel that there are non-economic issues which are much more pressing, however.

TA's, staff members consider unionization

The chief objectives of the UAP are concerned with a variety of problems which have arisen from without the University community. The union leaders agree that the Academic Senate has proved grossly impotent in dealing with the "politico-administrators" which they feel are threatening academic freedom.

Union representatives stress that they believe that the policies of Governor Reagan, the Regents and Chancellor Glenn Dumke and the Trustees have posed a serious threat to campus autonomy and professional integrity.

The leaders hope that by means of collective bargaining, the faculty can reach equality with the Administration. They hope to "fill the vacuum of leadership plaguing higher education in California through legislation and public education." Last week, the Student Employees Union (SEU) was instituted for all T.A.s, R.A.s, readers and other staff members. The union has taken a firm stand against "tuition and political control of our University." They also hope to establish viable grievance procedures by which better pay, working conditions and greater job security can be attained.

The SEU is currently looking into the possibilities and advantages of becoming a local of the AFT. They feel that an alliance with this national labor organization is where the strength lies. Such unions already exist at Berkeley, Wisconsin, S.F. State, Minnesota and at the City College of New York. Many other campuses are currently forming them.

In addition to enlisting support for an anti-war resolution this week, another of the three groups, the Ad Hoc Committee of Concerned Staff is in the process of studying the options of unionizing. There are about 1,200 non-academic independent employees at UCSB. One of the chief concerns of the committee is how to achieve unity so that they may insure their power without fear of reprisal.

Awakened by the antiwar movement and bolstered by legal precedents, the staff supporters of this movement now feel that "Staff Power" is a possibility. In pursuence of these goals, lawyers are being retained and the establishment of a cohesive staff organization, possibly union-affiliated, are being considered.

Many staff employees have come to the conclusion that they have no guarantees that they may express their opinions. As one secretarial worker put it, "If my supervisor doesn't like my politics he could make it very hard on me." Such have resulted in several fact finding committees striving to arrive at alternatives to what they feel to be a "very vulnerable situation."

All three groups find such action necessary at this time due to what they feel are infringements of their rights in the present University system.

Campus Stadium is the site of today's 4 p.m. encounter between the Chinese Bandits and The Strapp for the 1970 women's flag football championship. Each team is undefeated—The Strapp in eight games, the Bandits in five—each has an outstanding quarterback and two fine receivers, and a smooth, disciplined defense.

Last year, the same two teams met in the finals with The Strapp coming out on top, but the Bandits are a year older and wiser and The Strapp is a completely different team. Today's game is rated a toss-up, with the Bandits perhaps a slight favorite.

Julie McMichael, Kathy Gearhart and Jan Nelson lead the Bandits offense, a group that has racked up 156 points in five games while the defense—led by Nancy Chapple, Karen Shea and Linda Shumer—has given up only 20.

For The Strapp, who have outscored their opposition 304-12 in eight games (all 12 coming at the hands of the Pi Phis), Katie Molitor has totaled well over 100 points, while sister Mary has picked over 50 operating from the quarterback position. Jo Anne Stephenson has come on in the late season and led the Strapp to its 32-0 triumph over the 5 Gs in the semifinals.

Women's football championship

On defense, Barbara Lehman, Jonnie Finch and Shawna Dykes have been extremely stingy about giving up points, having shut out the opposition for the last five games.

However, the Chinese Bandits will be the toughest offensive team The Strapp has seen all year despite the knee injury to outstanding halfback Jan Bright. Nonetheless, with world class sprinter Jan Nelson at one end and last year's leading scorer Kathy Gearhart at center, plus Nancy Chapple, Linda Shumer and Giner Gainer as targets for quarterback Julie McMichael, The Strapp's shutout string seems doomed.

But the Bandits face the same problem—their tough defense is running into the most potent offense they have faced all season, so predictions are difficult. A key break—an interception, a penalty, a fluke touchdown, could turn the whole game around and be the deciding factor. Most likely, it will be that close.

In men's softball play-offs, Lambda Chi (6-1 winners over the Alpha Deltis Tuesday) will take on the GBAC at 5:30 p.m. Dave Chapple will attempt to pitch against the best hitting team in IMs after coaching the Chinese Bandits in the women's championship game, which will be quite a trick. At 4 p.m. the Canadian Club and Sigma Chi will play.

Committee cuts funds...

The move to eliminate its budget was made by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier from Pasadena.

There is a possibility that cut funds will be returned to the budget when it comes before the Assembly and Senate.

According to Lanterman, pay raise denials were made only so that the state would have a bargaining position but committee members seemed to feel that the pay raise would eventually be granted.

The fates of the Senates and Coordinating Committee are not so certain, however, since the Reagan administration has launched a continual campaign to take power away from campus administrators and faculty.

Veterans protest the war

former naval officer, has lent his support to Petty's effort. "There was sentiment in the community," he said, "that the Memorial Day Parade shouldn't even be held this year." Referring to some veterans, Atkins said that "for many of these people, patriotism is an emotional reaction."

Schmerzler denied that the parade has any political implication. "You will never find a veteran who favors war," he said.

According to Petty, anti-war veterans, including UCSB faculty members and veterans from the Santa Barbara area have held demonstrations for the past several years. Denied permission to join the parade, the demonstrators limited their protest to standing at intersections along the parade route.

A similar tactic will be employed this year, Petty said. Signs indicating protest against the war will be made available for dissenting veterans who would like to participate.

Interested veterans should meet at the intersection of State and Anapamu Streets at 9 a.m. Saturday. Veterans from Santa Barbara and SBCC are also expected to attend.

The Memorial Day Parade is slated to begin at 10 a.m., Saturday.

Nota Bene Nota Bene

• Emphasizing that Isla Vista must use their opportunity to vote in order to establish I.V. as a political force which must be dealt with fairly by politicians, members of IVCC are asking that residents help them canvass the community to register all potential voters.

Anyone who is willing to help should go to 6646 Trigo "A" tonight at 7 p.m. Canvassing will continue over the weekend. Also residents will have an opportunity to hear Merlin McCune who was endorsed by the council for sheriff-coroner tonight at 8 p.m. in Saint Mark's.

• Community Involvement Day is on today, and following is a list of workshops and teach-ins being held tonight for members of the community and parents of UCSB students.

6:30 P.M.

Interpretation of the meaning of U.S. intervention in Southeast Asia, Otis Graham, 1930 Ellison.

How people in the community can relate to the vision of students in the Movement, Martin Legassick, 1104 Engineering.

The military-industrial complex and the weapons system, Allan Krass, 1610 Physics.

The University-Community gap, or "What in God's name is going on in the campuses?" Homer Swander, 1910 Ellison.

A history of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia, Peter King, 1004 South Hall.

7:30 P.M.

Racism, nihilism, and the populus; racial awareness in the American college student, John Cotton, 1104 Engineering.

Future internationalization, specifically Cambodia, Stephen Hay, 1930 Ellison.

The University-Community gap, Peter King, 1910 Ellison. Experiences of a Vietnam veteran, 1610 Physics.

• Projects of students in the Mechanical Engineering Department will be on display today in 1104 Engineering.

Among the projects are a wheel chair that can climb curbs (the chair won first prize at the American Institute of Aeronautics and astronautics competition last week) and a "sonic selector switch system" which allows people paralyzed from the waist down to turn things like lights off and on by making sounds.
