MECHA protests RHA lettuce policy, Council asks boycott and referendum

By CY GODFREY DN Staff Writer

A call to boycott lettuce, a condemnation of President Hitch and UCSB Dining Commons, the resignation of Rick Thorngate and a request for student opinion on U.C. involvement in Atomic Energy Commission labs - all spiced the most hectic and tense meeting of Legislative Council so far this year.

In its last meeting of the quarter, Leg Council, along with RHA, fell under heavy attack from MECHA concerning the purchase of "scab" lettuce by dining commons. campus MECHA members packed the meeting room Wednesday night to voice their opinions regarding RHA inaction and Leg Council's responsibility for action.

Rep-at-Large Robert Garcia introduced the original resolution which condemned RHA for taking no action on the use of non-UFWOC (United Farmworkers Organizing Committee) lettuce in the dining MECHA had requested more than a month ago that the situation be rectified. RHA President Harvey Levin disagreed, however, and strongly defended RHA by placing the blame on President Hitch.

HITCH LETTER

Levin stated that he had received a letter from Hitch declaring that no political considerations could be used in the purchase of food for the dining commons. Such a move, according to Hitch, would jeopardize the "tax-exempt" status of those facilities and therefore, all food must be purchased solely on the basis of quality and price.

Levin further added, "We can't resolve the issue by holding a referendum, like MECHA wants, because the results won't make any difference anyway...The way to successfully resolve the issue is

German measles immunization held

Members of the Health 40 class have been involved in organizing and publicizing the County Health Department's effort to immunize children against German Measles (Rubella) this

A representative of the County Health Department spoke to the class, explaining the outbreak of Rubella which occurs every seven years. The fact that the last outbreak occurred in 1963 caused health officials to initiate this statewide campaign against the disease.

Children from the age of one to 12 will be innoculated at the Isla Vista Elementary School by County health officials.

to hold a boycott which would effectively stop the purchasing of lettuce of the dining commons."

Levin continued, "We have been conducting an informational drive on the boycott for several

MECHA disagreed vehemently, as expressed by Castulo de la Rocha, "Basically, Harvey is telling us he hasn't done anything. Now, if Leg Council is a body that represents all the students, then it's time for it to provide guidance and leadership... we are asking you tonight to take such a position of leadership."

It was the form of that leadership which became the main subject of debate for the Council. Executive Vice President Kati Perry objected to the motion in its original form. "We should address ourselves to the problem itself, instead of simply condemning RHA...and the problem is President Hitch and Larry Barrett, the manager of the Food Services."

AMENDMENT PROPOSED Consequently, IVCAB Co-Chairman Linda Bond amendment proposed an recommending that RHA initiate the immediately referendum requested MECHA, that the results of the referendum be made public and sent to Hitch and should the results warrant, dorm students would be urged to boycott

"scab" lettuce. The amendment apparently didn't satisfy the assembled MECHA members, for they felt it was necessary for Leg Council to condemn RHA's inaction and impose sanctions on them.

further Finally, after deletions, amendments and Council adopted a resoltuion which condemned the actions of President Hitch and Larry Barrett and called for an immediate boycott by dorm students of all non - UFWOC lettuce.

Council also voted to accept

Linda Bond's original amendment calling for a referendum and a boycott if the referendum vote warranted such action.

members MECHA Those apparently were disappointed by the outcome, for they left the room while the final vote was being taken. Ernesto Perez remarked, as they left, "I guess we'll just have to wake Cheadle up from his afternoon naps."

THORNGATE RESIGNS

Also last Wednesday night, Rick Thorngate resigned from his one year term saying he was dropping out of school. "The process whole anti-educational," Thorngate remarked in his resignation

"Leg Council is not living up to what it could be; it's just passed a lot of resolutions and (Continued on p. 3, col. 2)

A forcefully worded resolution "strongly urging that Chancellor Cheadle and President Hitch immediately provide Professor Zeitlin with the privileges and prerogatives of his appointment until such time as the court decides the issue," was passed at the Dec. 1 meeting of the Graduate Student Association.

GSA President Brad Smith stated, "We had been specifically asked to not involve ourselves in this matter and to let the courts decide, but the issue is clearly becoming confused in the courts because of the University's action. We felt it necessary to make our position known."

Smith went on to say that "Zeitlin could be used, being a research sociologist, as a resource of help to graduate students.

He stated, "It appears to graduate students that the reasonableness and patience of Dr. Zeitlin and the Department of Sociology and their conscientiousness in keeping the issue above rhetoric and confrontation has been met only with the Administration's intransigence and bureaucratic inertia.'

Dorothy Lang, a graduate student in sociology, who spoke to the motion, stated after the meeting that "Senator Nelson's aide's letter stating that Dr. Zeitlin's actions in question did not offend the Senator, convinced me that (Wisconsin) Chancellor Young's original letter, charging Dr. Zeitlin with inappropriate conduct, was contrary to

"Consequently, I went to the GSA and asked for a statement of support for Dr. Zeitlin's position.'

Chancellor Young in a subsequent letter forwarded to the Santa Barbara Superior Court stated that Zeitlin had, in fact, not forced his way to the platform at the Wisconsin rally, but spoke following a request to do so.

The GSA resolution also charged the Administration of "Prima facie lack of good cause for its action." It cited the University's decision to appeal to a higher court rather than to follow the Superior Court's ruling asking them to hold a hearing demonstrating good cause for the withdrawal of Zeitlin's appointment.

Those opposing the resolution argued that it would be unwise to consider the issue while judicial proceedings were still in progress. However, the majority opinion was that the court had already ruled in Zeitlin's favor.

The Graduate Council also unanimously passed a motion urging that Academic Senate bylaw 188, which prohibits student voting in University and department government, be deleted from the bylaws of

Strikers charge Da-Com with poor work conditions

By LEE McEACHERN DN Staff Writer

"There's no such thing as a strike."

is the statement attributed by strikers to Robert Schaefer, President of Data Communications Corporation, located in Goleta.

Recently, some of the workers at Da-Com, led by Bob Moore and Pat Melly, decided to unionize in order to improve their lot. Several informal demands have been placed before the management by the new union, Data Communications Workers. Among these are better working conditions, job security, elimination of forced overtime and establishment of a program for raises and advancement.

Moore asserted, "Most people are in support but a lot of them are in departments where they can't join the strike." Leaders claim 90 per cent "voice support" in the three departments involved, including 75 per cent actually striking. This amounts, they say, to about 30

Official recognition of Da-Com Workers has come from the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB). Chief among other support has come from Channel Disposal and General Telephone truck drivers who have refused to cross picket lines.

A group of organizers, calling themselves a "negotiating committee," recently spoke to Schaefer in his office in order to explain their position. They informed him that their support amounted to a majority of his

"He refused to recognize us at all," exclaimed Moore. "He said, 'I'll run this company the way I see fit.' "

Striker Ron Courtney added, "He just showed complete contempt for the rights of workers. . . He said he couldn't care less what the workers inside wanted to do."

"The only way he'd recognize a union is if it's shoved down his throat," Moore declared.

"And we plan to shove," added striker Greg Bergeron.

Another development of the picketing strikers is the information which the management disseminates those still on the job. Courtney contends, "They're telling them that we were fired for walking off the job, not for striking." Bergeron declares, "They're brainwashing the other employees."

Schaefer was unavailable to reporters to respond to any of the charges leveled by the union. Likewise, other management officials gave no comment.

Further developments in the strike may come soon. Those involved in the walkout expect support from the Isla Vista Department of Justice. Additionally, they are looking forward to more action from the NLRB which is expected to "initiate legal action" in response to claimed management violations of federal labor laws.

Vice Chancellor Gardner to take U.C. Extension post

By CY GODFREY DN Staff Writer

David Gardner, Executive Assistant to Chancellor Cheadle will be leaving UCSB at the end of the quarter to become Vice President of Public Service Programs and Dean of the University of California Extension.

Gardner, 37, has been Vice Chancellor here since 1969 and a close advisor to Chancellor Cheadle. The NEXUS interviewed him earlier this week and his comments are a fascinating look at the University of California.

His new job gives him the opportunity to help the University work toward regaining whatever respect it has lost.

"I've felt for a long while that the only way the University is going to get its story across - the way it's going to recover its ability to act in a constructive way - is for the University to go into the community; and I don't think there's any substitute for that."

Gardner feels that University Extension has a unique opportunity to promote this exchange between the University and the community, and through such activity, regain whatever rapport U.C. has lost with the people of the state.

U.C. will be able to, and should, encourage society to reap the benefits of its knowledge, and the community should be able to reasonably interact and influence the University.

So far, Gardner doesn't expect any political opposition to his plan, for he feels the credibility of the University's research has never been in jeopardy.

"I think the disagreement is not over what the University should be...they all agree on the fundamental mission of higher education...but people who agree on that point disagree about what emphasis the University should place on its varied objectives."

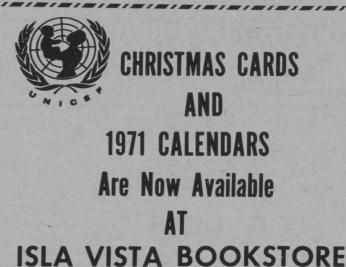

Gardner is an optimist about the future of the University. He feels campus violence is in a period of decline, or will be in the next two or three years and that in the next ten years the University's esteem will rise greatly. "To think any other way," he contends, "is to disregard the cyclical history of higher education in country."

One of the major revisions in the University will occur in the area of undergraduate education. Gardner feels Graduate Schools have held too much dominance and influence over the curriculum of undergraduate colleges, and this will change. Unfortunately, the change will take about ten

Election boycott forces new concepts in Chicano politics

By MIKE GROSSBERG DN Staff Writer

(Editor's Note: This is the third segment of a three part analysis of the recent Chicano election boycott,)

"I am very strongly convinced that we could not have done anything else as effective as boycotting the election," Dr.

News Analysis

Jesus Chavarria of the UCSB Chicano Studies Department concluded in assessing the results of Huelga '70.

The most immediate effects of the boycott were felt by local democratic candidates. According to Carpenteria City Councilman Olly Olivas, as many as one out of four Chicano voters abstained from the election. He said there are about 130,000 Chicano voters in the tri-counties, meaning that over 30,000 voters did not vote.

While feeling that Huelga '70 cannot claim to have effected all of those non-voters, Olivas claims the boycott must have been in their minds. He added, "Mr. Palmer and Mr. Hart are now well aware that what we said we could do we followed through with."

In a similar context Arthur Avina, a Santa Barbara Chicano political organizer, commented on I.V.'s claim to have elected John Carpenter as sheriff. He said Thomas Thronton carried the Chicano community in the primary. "I could have gotten 600 votes for Thornton myself if there had been no boycott," Avina claimed.

On the broader goals of the boycott, Huelga '70 leaders all (Continued on p. 7, col. 2)

Sugar-cured pork

By RICHARD TRUSSELL

The instigation of foot patrols in I.V. has been heralded as a progressive step towards better student-police relations that will stimulate communication and ease tension. But somehow many residents of I.V. are apprehensive of these sugary words sprinkled on them by administrators, the County Board of Supervisors, the Sheriff's Department and other "friends of youth."

Hard experience has conditioned many people to be wary of sweet words and sudden changes of heart by our paternalistic "friends."

Currently the foot patrol consists of two to four smiling policemen who roam the loop area memorizing faces. They do it five days a week, but if things work out, the foot patrol will be a seven day a week operation eventually expanding into residential I.V.

Added communication? Sure, go up to the friendly cop on the street. Shake his hand and tell him your name. See him at the next demonstration, rally or get-together in the park. See him two weeks later testifying against you in court.

How are the foot-patrollers fundamentally different from the prowl car police? They are still armed. They are still enforcing what many regard as an alien value system. They are still responsible to a corrupt structure 10 miles away and must cater to that structure.

So even if an individual lawman is a nice guy at heart, he must still take orders from men far removed from Isla Vista, most of whom are committed politically and financially to the more reactionary forces in the socity. Most hideous is the Madison Avenue mentality behind the foot patrol program. By keeping the prize porkers at a distance in prowl cars and placing slick P.R. types on foot, the authorities figure they can deceive people into believing meaningful reform has been achieved, when in fact all they have done is tighten their grip on I.V.—a more polished form of oppression.

If the people with the power were sincerely interested in solving problems, they would admit that increased law enforcement is merely an effort to keep the natives down and will never cure the deep-seated problems of Isla Vista or the rest of the Country.

Genuine reform would be a community police review board with final authority. Make the police answerable to this community and train them to serve Isla Vista and its people. Get the narcs out and all the plainclothesmen, including the FBI. Abolish prowl cars except for real emergencies. Cease prosecution, busts and intimidation of those who speak out with and for the people.

And once again, beware of the "friendly foot patrol." Sugar-cured is still pig-no matter how you

JIVE head: recall Grant

I was very happy to see in the Nov. 30 edition of the NEXUS that the Recall Dan Grant campaign was again underway. The Goleta and Isla Vista areas truly have an opportunity here to demonstrate their displeasure with the man who has never adequately represented their views and hopefully to oust him

Dan Grant's shortcomings are well known. He has opposed the Police Review Board in Isla Vista. He supported the broad curfew during I.V. 3-widely recognized as a contributing factor to the intensity of the violence.

Against the recommendations of the Planning Commission, he has supported rezonings in Isla Vista, which if unchecked will increase the population density even more. An example is the one that changed acreage in the Estero Lane area from R-2 to R-4. Against the wishes of local residents, Grant approved a zone change on North Fairview Ave. that put a gas station right next to a residential area.

He has consistently opposed County support for the Perfect Park, maintaining that the Isla Vista Beach is an adequate park for densely populated I.V. In short, he has represented only the big-money elements of his district and has very rarely acted for the students and working men and women of Goleta Supervisor Grant was conspicuous by his absence during and after the three Isla Vista riots. He did call together a "Blue Ribbon Commission" after I.V. 1, but to my knowledge his commission never acted upon their findings. I never saw him at any of the community meetings during the winter and spring in which residents discussed the problems besetting the Isla Vista community.

In my capacity as Chairman of JIVE, I have had numerous opportunities to view Supervisor Grant in action. On the last occasion, he stated what has apparently been his view for a long time, that he wished "...Isla Vista would quickly sink into the ocean." (Direct quote)

I cannot speak for JIVE, which hasn't met yet about the new recall drive, but I can speak as one who has worked in Isla Vista for three years. In my opinion, Dan Grant considers Isla Vista as the bastard child of Santa Barbara County and has never supported the views and needs of I.V. and the Goleta Valley when they conflict with his own.

I have signed the Recall Dan Grant petition and encourage all other registered voters in District Three to also sign by the deadline, Jan. 1. Dan Grant must be recalled if Isla Vista is ever to evolve into the community it can be

Attacking U.won't change society

Amusement is often my reaction upon observing the political attacks and counterattacks of the editorial contributors to the DN. Such dialogue, albeit largely unnoticed by the larger sections of our multi-culture, is nonetheless a fundamentally constructive activity on this campus, if for no other reason than serving to bring the issues before the students and faculty.

I must, however, respond at this time to a type of writing which I feel to be largely irresponsible and essentially destructive. The article involved is titled "The Fesod Eber" by Joe Cardinali (DN 12-2-70). In this article, Mr. Cardinali attacks what he considers to be the "shallowness of thought" and "twisted ... perceptions" of Mr. Eber. Without a doubt, it is Mr. Cardinali's right, indeed, his duty to voice his criticism of Mr. Eber if he feels so motivated. Yet, it is Mr. Cardinali's own "shallow thinking" and oversimplification of the situation in which the University finds itself to which I am responding.

Mr. Cardinali claims that the University functions as a driving force behind the acts of violence carried out by this country in its foreign and domestic policies. The University was said to promote 'violence at a much more efficient and subtle level

... (by) ... teach(ing) the technology of war." I would have to say, assuming that the University's act of teaching is manifested largely in the form of research, that there is little if any research on this campus which is not war-related.

By the same token, the research on this campus is not specifically aimed at war applications. The largest portion of the research here only serves to uncover truth about some fact of our universe. The application of this truth is not predetermined by its nature. Atomic power can supply the world with relatively clean electric power for hundreds of years, and research into a particularly virulent strain of bacteria may provide answers to the halting of some future epidemic; however, the same new knowledge could be collectively used to destroy the world.

It is the society which determines the application f this knowledge, not the nature of the knowledge. nor the research facility from which it arose.

There is a burden of responsibility which the individual researcher must recognize, that being that the knowledge he uncovers can be dangerous if put in the wrong hands. Society forces the researcher to find answers to problems, but the researcher must have a conscience regarding his work, doing his best to avoid giving the world another doomsday machine.

Irregardless of the nature of the research done and the facts uncovered, it is the society which directs its application. Society created the university, and is drawing out the knowledge that it wishes for both excellent and despicable applications.

Attacking the University will not change the negative goals of society which direct knowledge into cruelties and acts of hatred between men. The positive goals of society must be brought to dominate over negative goals. If men in society are to change in such a fashion, then "logic and wisdom" seem to be our best hope, and our finest education is done by habit," Gardner explains, "and if we experience any beneficial gains from the turmoil we've been through, it will be to rearrange our prejudices with respect to the educational process. I look to see in the '70's an accomodation of forces within the University that have heretofore not been resolved.

"The overall effectiveness of lower division curriculum is wanton and it could be much improved if people dedicated to improving it. I recognize that's generalization, but if you take the objectives of General Education, you'll see we presently fall far short of them.

"The courses of instruction offered to the freshmen and sophomore students are too fragmented, too departmentalized, too discipline-oriented and are developed less with the student in mind than with the needs of the Graduate School.

Gardner feels, however, that the changes will occur. "They'll occur in increments," he predicts, the process accomodating everyone will take the better part of ten years."

Gardner's appointment will be effective January 1, 1971. He is a graduate of Brigham Young University in political science, history and geography; he received his MA from Berkeley in political science and his Ph.D. four years ago from Berkeley in higher education.

The truth on crabs

Correction to the article by Dr. Dave Bearman on Crabs and Scabies.

Numerous errors appeared in the initial column "The Doctor Is In" in regards to crabs. To try and clear up the confusion, let's try again:

How do you get rid of crabs? Crabs are phthisus pubis or crab louse. It can be acquired through sexual intercourse or by contact with objects like toilet seats, clothes or bedding which are infected.

This parasite is a louse, it is large but not usually easy to find. It lays it's eggs at the base of hairs.

It is treated with benzl benzoate and DDT, or with gamma benzine hexachloride (Kwell). Occasionally persistent infestation may be found in the eyelids and the eyelashes. Yellow mercuric oxide may be helpful here.

Clothes and bedclothes should be laundered throughly or drycleaned.

Most of the information (or misinformation) in the last article concerned scabies not crabs. It was accurate for scabies except that it is treated with Kwell and not benzl benzoate. Scabies is a mite which tunnels into the skin whereas crabs is a louse which does not.

I apologize for any inconvenience that anyone man, beast or louse may have been caused.

1315 State Street Santa Barbara (Continued from p. 3) concur that it met its goals. Community members were forced to consider their political voting habits and to think of the directions Chicano politics should take. "It was the first decisive step which the Chicano community has taken in the tri-counties," Chavarria contends.

They feel their community's political consciousness was affected by the boycott and once consciousness is effected then political action will be affected. The boycott awakened Chicano community members to the use of pragmatic politics toward immediate problems such as police, education and welfare.

Through the boycott, Chicanos throughout the tri-counties were reached. These new contacts will provide a continuing basis for future political activities. In organizing the boycott in these diffuse areas many Chicanos who had no previous knowledge of running political campaigns are now versed in the areas of fund raising, the media and voter education all ready to be tapped in the future.

This heightened political interest will begin to bear fruit in the interim before the next general election in 1972. Already such Chicano leaders as Olivas have been contacted by Democratic leaders as to the reason for the boycott and their future plans.

There is a new determination to follow key pieces of legislation and scrutinizing much closer the action of local representatives. The November election saw a second Chicano elected to the Assembly and through him Chicanos hope to see such measures as a voter registration pamphlet in Spanish pass the legislature.

Since the election, Olivas has been contacted to work in organizing a Chicano legislative advocate to further aid their treatment at the hands of Sacramento and Washington.

Because of the boycott Olivas feels, "In 1972 we're going to have a very significant voice in the planning and implementation of campaigns, the selection of candidates and the voter education programs."

The exact manner in which Chicanos can best apply their newly found political muscles is being examined and evaluated by many Chicano groups. They are looking into the possibilities of a third party composed solely of Chicanos or of establishing in dependent political organizations.

Chavarria has likened these political organizations to the nineteenth century political clubs formed in major American urban centers by immigrants. They would act as an intermediary between the Chicano community and various political bodies.

What could be critical to their future plans, especially thoughts of a third party, is the possibility of the thirteenth Congressional district being redistricted in the upcoming reapportionment battles. This is just one of the variables Chicanos must consider while trying to decide what is the best path for Chicanos to take within the bounds of electoral politics.

However, Chavarria cautions that all the theorizing will depend "upon the extent the Chicano community is willing and wants to organize on a permanent basis for what has to be done."

Whatever decision Chicanos arrive at as a result of Huelga '70, they have made themselves a political force to be reckoned with in the tri-counties.

Life's measure and web

(Editor's note: This is a review of "Rosebloom," by Harvey Perr. enacted at an official press performance on Nov. 4. "Rosebloom" will continue to play at the Mark Taper Forum in Los Angeles through Dec. 20.)

By JACKIE STANTON

Three characters, each carrying on their 'inner' conversations simultaneously, were rather shattering illustrations of the loneliness and suffering all humans must encounter in these times of alienation and apathy. As an example of contemporary theatre, Harvey Perr's play of becomes "Rosebloom", dramatic portrayal of the myriad microcosms of pain and sadistic humor in the human, social experience.

A crippled son becomes a metaphor for man's inability to accept himself, his painful life and the people he loves and hates. The technique movement from the wheel chair frustrated jerks creates an added emphasis on the cripple, Mark (Ron Rifkin) as the main source of the dramatic evolution of the play and as a sort of human barometer who acts as a gauge to the interplay of explosive emotions. Mark's enactment of the terrible betrayal of his human dignity by his pathetic, frail body is a painful, poetic moment in the play.

As each character (Mark; Sylvie, his mother; Enola Gay, his wife; and Harry Rosebloom, Mark's ex-con father) becomes a figure capturing the schizophrenic aspects of man-his outer stability in a super-ego and his inner, passionate self found in his id-the stage is filled with a sense of the strange searching man enacts in life toward an ultimate goal of realization of himself wholly.

The opening tempo of the play was sluggish and awkward for the spectator to witness, due to the dependence upon a chaotic character conversations for exposition of the plot situation, mood and for introduction to the characters' complex personalities. Carrie Snodgress, as Enola Gay, gave a performance that was, at best, tepid and, at worst, a gross miscalculation of that character's potential depth and passion. Miss Snodgress creates a sauntering nymph whose erratic moods of pensive perusal and vulgar verbiage seemed strained and superficial when contrasted to the intensely provocative character of Mark by Ron Rifkin. In the tragic, passionate scene where Mark reaches out for an almost attainable compassion from his family, there is a sense of the alienation of 20th century

"Rosebloom" offers serious, strange drama in a creative, geometric stage design, but at times lacked the ability to be profound in a universal sense. In dealing with the minute, typical moments of modern life as signs of the tragic, "Rosebloom" is a T.S. Eliot rendering of how one dramatically visualizes the "measuring of one's life in coffee spoons." The explosion of hostility which Mark directs against his "loved ones" is a symbol of the Eros/ Thanatos theme often explored in socio-psychological drama of today. As a theatrical device for enthralling the audience, these outbursts of love-hate were colorful and vigorous catalysts to the plot development, but at weaker moments demonstrated an underlying nature of shallow superficiality in the play. A grim exposition of Mark's childhood past and future leave one wondering about the existential notions implicit in man portrayed as a being bound within an aging body while his spirit and mind struggle to escape into the world of other people who appear whole. Perr never quite reaches into the abyss of existential questions about man; he doesn't explore beyond the social being of man in a family web of relationships.

At best, I was painfully moved by the need for love, communication and depicted in the tragic, alienated figure of Mark. At worst, I was bored with cliche vulgarity, slang and sexual gestures. Playwright Perr gives modern theatre a poignant and vicious sensitivity to the drama in the daily life of a "freak". Mark feels like an oddity of nature in his life just as many in our society feel estranged and misunderstood in their family situation. Aberration may become the common theme for modern drama, as if only distorted, ugly views of life can reveal the antithetical beauty hidden within pain and suffering.

TV flick goes box office

Earlier this year, 20th Century-Fox studio entered the field in producing 90-minute made-for-television productions. One of these films was titled, "Tribes," produced by Marvin Schwartz for ABC—TV. The teleplay, written by Schwartz and Tracy Keenan Wynn (the son of Keenan Wynn and grandson of Ed Wynn) was released last Nov. 10 over the ABC-TV network. The Neilsen ratings racked up by the one-night airing proved to be the highest in the movie of the week category in the history of the network.

The response of the film has led the 20th Century-Fox sales department to schedule "Tribes" for nationwide and foreign theatrical bookings. As a "Tribes" will be showcase. released Dec. 9 in Ithaca, New York; Sacramento, California; and in Santa Barbara at the Fairview Theatre. The film, directed by Joseph Sargent, stars "Tribes" is contemporary as today's headlines. It asks the question: Can a yoga-practicing, long-haired hippie from a rural commune find happiness as a private in the United States Marine Corps as a "boot" going through the tough recruit depot? The question is, indeed, answered; however it leaves chilling doubts in the mind of the viewer whether he be establish ment anti-establishment.

Darren McGavin is starred as a "loud, beefy Marine drill instructor" whose latest crop of recruits includes a lad with long hair, beads, and a Hindu robe -aone-time Peace Corps member now drafted in the Marine Corps.

training, including his ability to endure horrendous physical strain, brings the other recruits eager to learn his methods and even a grudging admiration, unadmitted, by McGavin.

UCSB opera

By FRANCESCA CERNEA Now is usually about the time during which the UCSB Music Department presents its fall opera production, and many UCSB opera aficionados are doubtless wondering what happened to it this year. Fear not-just hang on a few more weeks-Pergolesi's "Lo Frate 'Nnamorata' ("The Brother in Love") will be given on Jan. 13-14 in the Lotte Lehmann Concert Hall.

When asked about the delay, Carl Zytowski, the producer, said that henceforth there will be only two operas given each year at UCSB, in order to give "sufficient preparation time for both. We may also sometimes give a children's opera in tandem." In addition, there will occasionally be graduate student-produced operas: for example, Mike-Mitchell's production of Haydn's "L'Infedelta Delusa" ("Deceit Outwitted") next quarter. The second opera of this year will be Bizet's "Carmen."

Pergolesi's "Brother," with a libretto by Federico, was first staged in Naples in 1732 but has not been revived until the last decade. The version which UCSB will be using is Zytowski's. It is a three-act comic opera which takes place in a suburb of Naples. Singing members of the cast include Alis Clausen, Steve Gifford, Elaine Webster, Gail McEvoy, Floyd Rigby, Camille Cooley, Barry Armstrong, Lani Johnson, Suzanne Champion and

Xmas sings new piece with glee

Three UCSB choral groups will combine for a concert of Christmas songs and the premier performance of a new composition by Prof. Carl Zytowski at 8 p.m. Friday Dec. 4 in Lotte Lehmann Concert Hall.

The public is invited to attend the event which will feature the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs and the Repertory Chorus.

Zytowski will direct the 40 member Men's Glee Club in the presentation of his "Tripos," an experimental work employing melodic, harmonic and rhythmic overlap in an improvisatory manner. The text is adapted from the quotation of the Kennedy-King-Kennedy eternal flame, a memorial gift from the class of 1969. The memorial is located on the mall between Ellison Hall and the UCSB library.

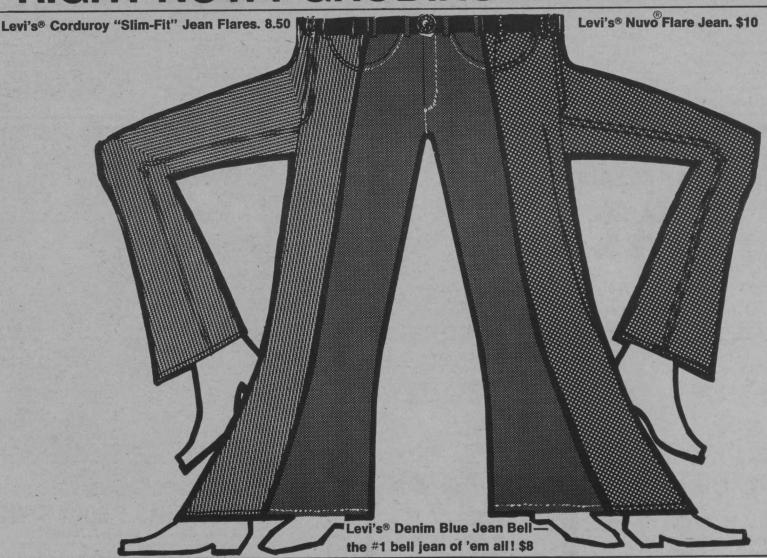

The Glee Club also will perform works by Sweelinck, Bach and Heinrich Gattermeyer.

Gauchos trounce Rebels, 96-67, play Baylor Sat.

For the Rebels of Texas, it was a disappointing end to an even more disappointing road trip. They lost Tuesday night to New Mexico State, 107-82 and their All-American prospect Sherman Evans injured his shoulder in an automobile accident last Saturday, and while seeing limited action against New Mexico, didn't even suit up for our game. Their high scorer was Ulysses Floyd, a forward, with 14 points, and their center, Willie Elverton, led the Rebels in rebounds with eight.

Tomorrow at 8:05 p.m. the

with eight.

Tomorrow at 8:05 p.m. the Gauchos take on Baylor, led by another All-American candidate, center William Chatmon. The Bears play UCLA tonight and may well be shell-shocked upon their arrival in Robertson Gym (that sounds like an old Loyola trick, schedule a team the night after they play UCLA).

Also, the Gauchos play eight games after Baylor, and before the start of next quarter they travel to Utah St. and Colorado next week, then come home to meet Cal Poly, U.C. Riverside, Humboldt St., Temple and then play two games in the Winter Classic.

By STEVE HENZEL

Awesome. That's the only word to describe the Gauchos Wednesday night against Texas Arlington. True, they slacked off a little in the second half, but they showed the fans at Robertson Gym enough outstanding basketball in the first half to last all night.

night.

They came out fighting, and by the time the first twenty minutes were over, it was obvious to all present that the Gauchos are for real. The final score was 96-67, but 27 of the final 29 point margin was established at the half, when the score was 55-28. Most importantly, it was a team effort; it can be argued that some individual statistics were more impressive than others, but that's always true. Everyone performed well, and everyone on the team should be proud of the victory.

everyone on the team should be proud of the victory.

There were some surprises in the game, but they were all pleasant. Junior forward Bob Shumaker sinking the first shot he took in a Gaucho uniform; Jim Edmund sinking seven of ten from the floor for fourteen points as a substitute; Bobby Mason, in uniform and making some of the fantastic shots he's become known for, on his way to ten points; Earl Frazier picking off ten rebounds and looking very good while bringing the ball down the floor at his new forward spot; and Steve Rockhold in uniform and taking layup practice with the squad (Coach Barkey hopes that he will be able to play by the Cal Poly game, a week from tomorrow).

Also, the situation at guard has turned out remarkably well. Ron Allen sank eight of fourteen and two free throws for 18 points (second highest on the squad). Ron has got to be one of the best shooters this campus has ever seen; he sank 16 in a row last year, and Wednesday night he blew the game wide open early, when, with the score fairly close at 7-4, he sank eight straight points and the Gauchos never looked back. Bob Shacter, the other starter, is a natural team leader on the court, filling the gap left by Larry Silvett; he brings the ball down, sets up the plays and is unselfish as he was credited with six of the team's fifteen assists.

Perhaps one of the most important

Perhaps one of the most important moments of the game occurred at the very beginning, and very few, if any people were even aware of what was happening. Doug Rex needed only four points to tie Tom Lee for the all-time UCSB scoring record, and he did it in typical Doug Rex fashion. He got the first two points of the game on a jumper and then he was fouled the next two times he took shots, giving him four free throws. True to form, it took him all four shots to get the necessary two points.

Matmen pinned

By DOUG AMSTUTZ

Showing tremendous strength in the lower and middle weight divisions, the Bruin grapplers downed UCSB 24–15 despite a strong comeback by the Gaucho heavyweights Wednesday night in the Old Gym.

The Bruins ran up a quick 19–3 lead in the first six matches with only Gaucho Jim Galvan (134) able to pick up three team points with a 5–0 whitewashing of Steve Weiss. The Bruin's Ed Oquendo (118) and John Meikle (126) scored second period pins over their Gaucho opponents. Then, after Galvan's win, UCLA garnered nine more team points on three decisions as Ken Wright (142) shutout Scott Endicott, Ed King (150) downed Dan Thomas 6–3, and Bill Drennan (158) defeated Bruce McCampbell 3–1.

Matmen Volleyballers host SB YMCA

By TOM WALSH DN Sports Editor

The UCSB volleyball team coached by Rudy Suwara opens its home season today at 8 p.m. when it hosts the powerful Santa Barbara YMCA in Robertson

In the most exciting match of the evening Gaucho John Feeley (167) came up with a takedown in the last period to edge Bruin captain Damon Zumwalt 3—2. This seemed to ignite the Gaucho matmen as 177 pounder Gordon George defeated Jeff Johnson 4—2 while Ken Linn (191) stuck Bruin Bob Swanson with a cradle. The Bruins came back though as heavyweight Dan Widmer pinned Gaucho Dennis Kelly in the third period

This Saturday the Gauchos travel south to San Diego for a 2 p.m. encounter against UCSD followed by a 7:30 p.m. match against PCAA rival SDS. Last year the Gauchos downed the Aztecs 25–9.

Gym. The Junior Varsity will tangle with the YMCA Masters team at 7 p.m.

Suwara, who is in his first year as Gaucho mentor, is a former Olympian and All-American and is in the process of teaching his team a new offense that is similar to the one used by the UCLA Bruins.

The Gauchos, who won the NCAA Volleyball Championship two years ago and were fourth last year, will be led by All-American Tim Bonynge who, according to Suwara, "has the potential to be one of the greatest volleyball players in the country."

The YMCA team that will oppose the Gauchos tonight won the YMCA National Championship in Hawaii last year and boast such greats as ex-Gaucho All-American Jon Lee.

Why doesn't General Electric sell new ideas to the cities instead of new gadgets to the suburbs?

After thirty years or more of neglect, there's no question our cities need help.

But what kind of help?

Will another thousand sanitation men be the answer to dirty streets?

Will doubling the police force finally bring crime under control?

Can new rent laws force landlords to provide more low-income housing?

All the old, obvious ideas have been tried. What's needed are new ideas and new technological developments.

General Electric has been working on the problems of cities for a number of years now. And in that time we've come up with some things we think will help.

Garbage

General Electric research has come up with what is probably the most revolutionary idea in garbage disposal in years. Our scientists are working toward a process by which a special strain of bacteria converts garbage into a high-protein food for cattle.

The process is still something of a "laboratory trick," but it could be in the pilot-plant stage in as little as three years.

Crime

You might not expect a company like General Electric to be doing anything about crime.

But the fact is, GE has been working with the Syracuse police, looking for a new approach to the problem. Our scientists there came up with a whole new concept in police organization called "Crime Control Teams."

In their first year, these teams were credited with cutting crime 62% in one large, representative neighborhood of Syracuse. And the concept has since been adopted by a number of other cities.

Housing

To meet the critical need for new low-income housing, General Electric is participating in the Department of Housing and Urban Development's Operation Breakthrough.

While GE has no intention of going into commercial home building, we do hope to supply the builder-developer with new products needed to improve his efficiency.

We now have several design prototypes of advanced, modular homes that can be assembled in a matter of hours.

These are just a few of the new ideas General Electric has come up with to help cities at the same time that we continue to improve 'gadgets' to help people.

We don't think our home products are at all unnecessary or frivolous. If they seem that way, it's because people have forgotten how much they rely on them. To wash dishes. To wash clothes. To keep warm. To keep cool. To entertain. And on and on.

New ideas for the cities and new "gadgets" for the home both have the same end in mind, after all. To help people live better.

Why are we running this ad?

We're running this ad, and others like it, to tell you the things General Electric is doing to solve the problems of man and his environment today.

The problems concern us because they concern you. We're a business and you are potential customers and employees.

But there's another, more important reason. These problems will affect the future of this country and this planet. We have a stake in that future. As businessmen. And, simply, as people.

We invite your comments.
