Mel's Bar

By Mortimer Trousers

There are lots and lots of places to drink in this world. Funny enough many of them are right around where you are reading this now. Just look around, see all those establishments serving up beer and nachos? Ale and grapes? Wine and brie? Funny enough, they don't all work equally hard at giving you just what you want.

But there is one place that gives you exactly what it is you need when drinking is what needs to be done. So grab a cab, a bike or a bus and find yourself on State Street bordering Paseo Nuevo Mall. Because this is where Mel's Bar, home of the best drinks in town, is to be found. I said "grab a cab, a bike or a bus" because driving wouldn't be such a good idea. You see the drinks there are real, none of this mostly rocks, soda and a drip of rum stuff. No sir, Mel's is a four-finger type of service. That's right: extend your four fingers (leaving the thumb bent behind) set them down on the table and observe how far off the table they tower. That's how much rum your rum-and-coke gets, or how much vodka your greyhound will hold. Yup, if you want to drink fine and well Mel's is the place to be.

One thing to watch out for is the cool people. Mickey Rourke would be caught dead here. This is very much the professional drinker, two shots for breakfast establishment. Smoke, shot glasses and a miniature pool table that lets even the far past inebriated run the table. No sharks though, just fans. And music? They got lots of it. A radio's grooves fill the joint, or you, the customer, can make that jukebox play your favorites.

Just think when the late

Charles Bukowski gave a reading in Santa Barbara a few years ago it was here that his hosts entertained him before the big event. You of course understand why. It's the drinks. Some places are very crowded on Friday and Saturday nights serving pretzels and Zimas to the just-21-and-silly crowd. Not at Mel's, just the same regulars sipping their drinks, ready to have a good conversation. They don't pry though, just good and clean American talking. Nothing bad here, folks. Actually you could you just drive there yourself, if you intend to check-in indefinitely. I recommend it. Mel's is located in the Paseo Nuevo shopping center in Santa Barbara.

ELEPHANT BAR

By Ladella Godessa

If you haven't made it over to the Elephant Bar in Goleta for one of their great meals or refreshing drinks, you've missed out on one of the better dining experiences in the area.

Lola and I discovered this one evening when we were off to the movies. When we glimpsed the restaurant just across the street next to the airport, our hunger lured us in to check it out. Actually, I could have held out until the end of the movie, but Lola was foaming at the mouth. She's like that — her monster appetite rules the agenda.

So Lola and I headed into the Elephant Bar, and right away as aromas hit us and the hostess directed us to the bar, we decided to scrap the movie idea. That place could keep us happily occupied for hours!

To start off, I asked for a strawberry margarita from the bar while Lola dove right in and ordered the artichoke dip as an appetizer. As I sipped my frozen drink, which was a perfect juicy slush, I listened to the happy buzz of waiters and patrons around and noticed that people really seem to enjoy themselves here.

"People really seem to enjoy themselves here," I said to Lola, as she began to dig into her dip that the waitress just brought over. A creamy blend of spinach, cheese and artichoke, this thick and steamy dip had me looking long at the dish with fresh tortilla chips scattered around it.

"Do you want some," Lola asked.

"Yeah," I responded.

As Lola and I devoured the appetizer, the waitress came back to direct us to our dinner table. Overwhelmed by the variety of meals to choose from on the menu, we decided to split two entrées, the shrimp and chicken fettuccini and the fish tacos.

As we started in on two new drinks — this time cold iced tea — two heaping plates of pasta and Mexican food arrived at our table. The fettuccini was a mound of noodles and meat chunks smothered in red sauce, and the tacos came with fresh warm tortillas, beans and rice.

Lola, who claimed she was still stuffed from the artichoke dip, couldn't keep up with my turbo-charged fork.

"Hey, save some for me!" she exclaimed.

"You snooze, you lose," I responded with a mouth full of food.

Although we gave it our best shot, we couldn't finish the plates. After we requested a box for leftovers, Lola and I sat back and reflected upon the meal that had left us so content and satisfied.

"Wow, I don't think I've ever had tacos with so much flavor before," Lola said.

"We should come here more often. The service was prompt and our waitress was really nice," I added.

Lola, who really knows her food, then proclaimed that it was the best meal she had partaken of while living in Santa Barbara. The Elephant Bar is located at 521 Firestone Rd. in Goleta. Hours: Monday-Thursday 11 a.m.-midnight, Friday-Saturday 11 a.m.-2 a.m., Sunday 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

747s are really cool, especially when they move super slow as they take off from Santa Barbara Municipal Airport and look like they're going to take out K-Mart, or maybe even Lucky. No wait, that would be bad.

End Notes:

Hiya Folks! Well we're back in business so I hope you can find something cool to do in your leisure time. There's lots going on, but nothing that I personally would endorse. Actually, Fishbone is playing at the Red Dog Saloon with Indica and M.I.R.V. on Thursday, April 14. Also Friday the 8th, the UpBeat plays at Toe's with special guest Paint. These guys are more than personal friends, they rule the ska/skankite wasteland! Oh yeah, if you're going to dwell in I.V., check out Threshold this Friday at 6613 D.P. Supposedly these guys are so gnarly that their psychotic blend of metalized mayhem will melt your melon. Late.
