Black Studies Group Hits 'Non-committed' Cheadle

By Chris Redgate

A statement issued by an Ad Hoc Black faculty, staff, and student group has brought the controversy over the fate of the Black Studies Center to even larger proportions. The statement addresses itself to the administration's failure to meet the needs and support not only the center but also the general academic and social needs of the Black Community.

The decision to draft a statement came in response to an official bulletin issued by Chancellor Cheadle last Monday titled "Status of the Center for Black Studies." The bulletin presents a "reconstituted" version of the Black Studies Center. The new center would be "community service" oriented while the research responsibilities would be placed in the domain of the Black Studies Department under the official title of "Minority Faculty Development Program."

Committee Report

The basis for this reorganization is a confidential Review Committee's report which, after careful examination of the center, concluded that the center had not fulfilled its purpose as an "organized research unit."

The statement which follows is co-authored by William Alexander, Assistant Professor of History; Gerard Pigeon, Chairman of the Black Studies Department; Lillian Ashcraft-Poe, lecturer in the History Department; Shirley Kennedy, Academic Advisor to the College of Letters and Science; Edna Bell, Administrative Assistant for the Black Studies Center; Cristyne Lawson, Associate Professor of Dramatic Art and Dance; and other Black staff members and students.

"For several years the Black community at UCSB have clamored for a constructive response to their academic and social needs. The various Black programs that were established in 1968-69 have faltered for want of an active commitment from the Administration and campus; the enthusiasm and sense of promise that greeted the birth of these programs has been succeeded by widespread frustration and alienation. UCSB Undergrads

Applications Closed For Student Regent

By Doug Irminger

Five UCSB undergraduates have applied for the newly-created student regent position to be filled in July. The deadline for applications was April 15.

David Palmer, Carol Mock, David Wilson, George-Ann Mitchell, and Conrad Damien Giedt were the undergraduate applicants. A complete listing of graduate applicants was not available.

Applications from UCSB will be sent to the Southern Regional Nominating Commission meeting at UCLA on April 25 and May 5.

This commission will be composed of both one graduate and one undergraduate student from the Riverside, Irvine, San Diego, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara campuses.

An ad hoc committee was set up at UCSB consisting of current A.S. Leg Council members Kathy Tuttle, Mikie Chavez, Howard Robinson, and Jim Motroni and Rich Sonntag from the Student Lobby Annex to select the UCSB undergraduate representative for the Southern Regional Nominating Commission.

Gay People's Rights On Docket of Solons

By Martin Chorich

Two measures which would affect rights for California's gay people are nearing crucial tests in the state legislature tomorrow. Assembly Bills 489 (Brown) and 633 (Foran) will be voted upon on the Senate and Assembly floors respectively, Thursday.

AB 489, perhaps the most far reaching of the two pieces of legislation, would legalize all previously prohibited sex acts between consenting adults. Passed by the Assembly, the bill made it through the Senate Judiciary committee with the help of an affirmative vote by Senator Omer Rains. The bill will go to the Senate floor for its third and final reading tomorrow afternoon.

Testifying for the bill in committee was UCSB Assistant Director of Learning Resources Gary Hess. Hess was asked to testify as a private citizen by Senator Moscone, the bill's carrier on the Senate side.

The proposals' sponsors expect passage of the bill and quick assent by the governor.

LABOR LAWS

AB 633 would amend the Labor Code to prevent employment discrimination based upon sexual orientation. The bill cleared the Assembly Labor Relations Committee April 7 and made it out of the Ways and Means Committee yesterday. It is expected that the full Assembly will also act upon the bill Thursday.

After its expected passage, it will be considered by the Senate.

UCLA Chancellor Seeks Funds From Iran

By Jim Morris

UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young met with the Shah of Iran and his advisors last December in an unpublicized effort to court "a substantial amount of money" for a joint UC-Iran education and training venture.

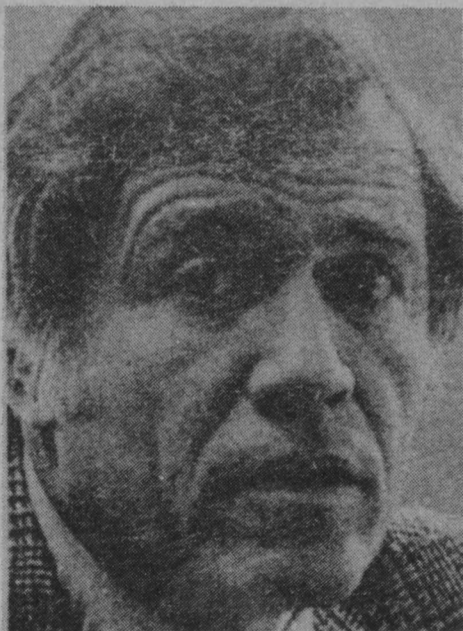

Young has stated in an interview with the Daily Cal that the purpose of his meeting was to discuss Iranian funding "for an endowment for our Near Eastern Studies program, not to form a binding agreement with the Shah." Specifically, such an "endowment" would be channeled into the UCLA Near Eastern Studies Center for the establishment of a special Iranian Studies program.

MONEY FROM SHAH

"I am hoping we will receive a substantial amount of money from the Shah within six months to a year," Young said.

However, this is just one of numerous projects currently under consideration by the University. Another proposal comes in the wake of a whopping $15 billion trade agreement in which the United States has agreed to sell Iran eight nuclear power plants over the next five years.

trained for the project "and with the University of California's background I'd think they'd have a better than fair chance of participating in it," said an unidentified State Department official in the Daily Cal interviews.

A Berkeley radiology Department

application has already been submitted to the Iranian Ministry of Energy asking for a $142,000 grant "to support a field survey to study the ways in which the University of California might assist the Ministry with research and high level manpower training."

According to Allen Hershfield, assistant vice-president of academic and public service programs at UCLA, the grant application was submitted to the Ministry but at the time of the deadline had met with no response from Iranian officials.

Closely following upon the heels of rising Iranian oil prices has been an escalated interest in American technology.

In the spring of 1974, Iranian officials met with administrators of the UCLA School of Public Health to discuss a joint paramedic program. Under the proposed terms, UCLA would work in collaboration with the newly instituted Free University of Iran.

So far, the proposals are still in the exploratory stages but Elwin Svenson, assistant chancellor at UCLA, said that the School of Public Health is in a good position to assist the Free University in comparative studies due to its experience and to the data base there.

Although most Iranian students in this country are studying in technical fields, Svenson said that the Chancellor's talks with the Shah concentrated on "the importance of cultural arts and humane studies, which we feel are as important or more important than petrochemical studies."

ILLEGAL?

A still smoldering controversy has developed over the legality of the Iran trip. Helen Disbrow, the University's assistant director of development, said that Young may have "technically" violated the UC policy requiring approval of the Regents before any University contracts with a foreign country can be negotiated.

Prior to the trip Young discussed it with University President Charles Hitch. He did not, however, seek regent approval because the talks were intended to be "only exploratory conversations, not negotiations."

Donald Reidhaar, attorney for the Board of Regents, expressed doubt that Young violated the provisions of the UC policy. "As long as no obligations were incurred on behalf of the University, I would assume there was no violation."

Government Options Statement Sent to Local Body by IVCC

By Scott Larson

A statement detailing Isla Vista's progress in exploring possible governmental options will be presented to the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) this week by the Isla Vista Community Council (IVCC).

Included in the statement is a request that LAFCO waive the $500 application fee for submitting incorporation proposals from Goleta, Isla Vista and Hope Ranch. The fee was instituted after LAFCO accepted the proposal to annex the Goleta Valley to Santa Barbara to be placed on last March's ballot.

The statement, which will be subject to amendment before presentation, was prepared by IVCC member Carmen Lodise and approved by the council Monday Night.

The first part of the statement discusses the March 4 election in which the annexation proposal was defeated by a large margin.

ROADBLOCKS

"It's as if a trial by fire has been set up for citizens of Isla Vista," says the statement, "roadblocks which we must overcome before LAFCO will grant what most citizens think was guaranteed to us by the American Revolution 200 years ago, that is, the right of governmental self-determination when requested."

It is noted that the annexation proposal was defeated 3 to 1 in Santa Barbara, 2 to 1 in Goleta, 10 to 1 in Hope Ranch and in Isla Vista, and 25 to 1 "on the campus of UCSB where Vernon Cheadle and Donald Winter had supported annexation before LAFCO in the name of 'the University.'"

The statement criticizes the University administration's role in the election campaigning and calls attention to the conviction of five Isla Vistans resulting from a sit-in protest on the day of the

The statement details Isla Vista's involvement with a Goleta committee to explore the possibility of incorporating Goleta and Isla Vista into one city, while at the same time preparing a separate proposal for I.V. incorporation.

A section of the statement, which is subject to amendment after a Goleta Steering Committee meeting this week, tentatively says that "all the Isla Vistans who are participating in these meetings are becoming discouraged about participating in municipal government in a city of Goleta which includes Isla Vista."

I.V. WOMEN

The statement continues, "It appears that ideas expressed by Isla Vistans are too quickly, almost automatically, discounted" and that "Isla Vista women are generally passed over in discussions, presumably because Goleta males don't expect women to have anything to say."

A waiver of the $500 application fee from LAFCO for

Hope Ranch, Goleta and Isla Vista is requested because "LAFCO has already had these (incorporation) proposals before you, and you put them off in favor of the annexation plan, even though several LAFCO members announced publicly that they didn't think that the annexation plan would pass."

A second justification is that "the County has already spent a lot of money at LAFCO's request in favor of one of these very interrelated proposals... and it would be unfair to change the rules now."

The statement concludes by asking LAFCO members to watch closely the results of the May 27 Isla Vista plebiscite on governmental options.

"We hope," it states, "that LAFCO members are ready to look at proposals for changing local government which are closer to the sentiments of the citizens of Santa Barbara County's South Coast than was evident by your actions which put the annexation question on the ballot."

Editor, Daily Nexus:

The fanatical Nexus editorial of April 18 endorsing Neil Moran is a stunning example of irresponsible journalism. In the early days of space exploration, the ranks of the American space program were staffed largely by German scientists, whose efforts before 1945 had been primarily directed toward the destruction of London. But there is reason to suspect that the space program was not the only refuge for our erstwhile enemies. I believe that some German architects, former designers of coastal defenses, tank traps and gas chambers, must have come to this country — to eventually find their way into the employ of the University of California, which they have since adorned with their prodigious efforts.

The latest example of Germanic architecture at UCSB is the Learning Resources Center evokes the safety of a bomb-shelter, the however Germanic the building's architecture, its name could only have been devised by a University bureaucrat.) Its architectural style can only be described as "Neo Siegfried Line," though traces of other styles are evident, such as the Late Maginot Line and Early Omaha War Room. With its concrete construction, its turrets and ramparts, the Learning Resources Center evokes the safety of a bomb-shelter, the authority of the Pentagon, and the grace of a 16-inch gun emplacement. It lacks only a minefield. Indeed, one must wonder about the uses this building will serve when complete.

UCSB Plan Poses Severe Problems

By Vincent Berg

The UCSB administration is now in the final stages of preparation of its Long-Range Development Plan (LRDP), which describes projected curriculum changes, construction of new buildings, and enrollment plans for the next ten years. While less than previous estimates, the projected enrollment of 15,000 is an increase of 2,000 over present levels. Though this might not at first sound like much of an increase, it poses potentially severe problems in housing and water supply which could have severe adverse affects on the whole Santa Barbara area.

The first problem posed by these 2,000 new students is where they will live. In the past, about 12% of UCSB students have lived in university-owned housing, 50% in I.V., and 25% in Goleta and Santa Barbara. First, let's consider the 500 new on-campus students. Before constructing the new Married Student Housing, UCSB negotiated a special arrangement with the Goleta Water Board to allow these new water hookups on campus, despite the water moratorium, but the university now has a ceiling on its maximum annual water use. Present consumption is already so close to this limit that the needs of new on-campus housing probably can't be met by the present allocation of scarce Goleta Valley water. Yet the LRDP calls for 2 large new apartment complexes on university property.

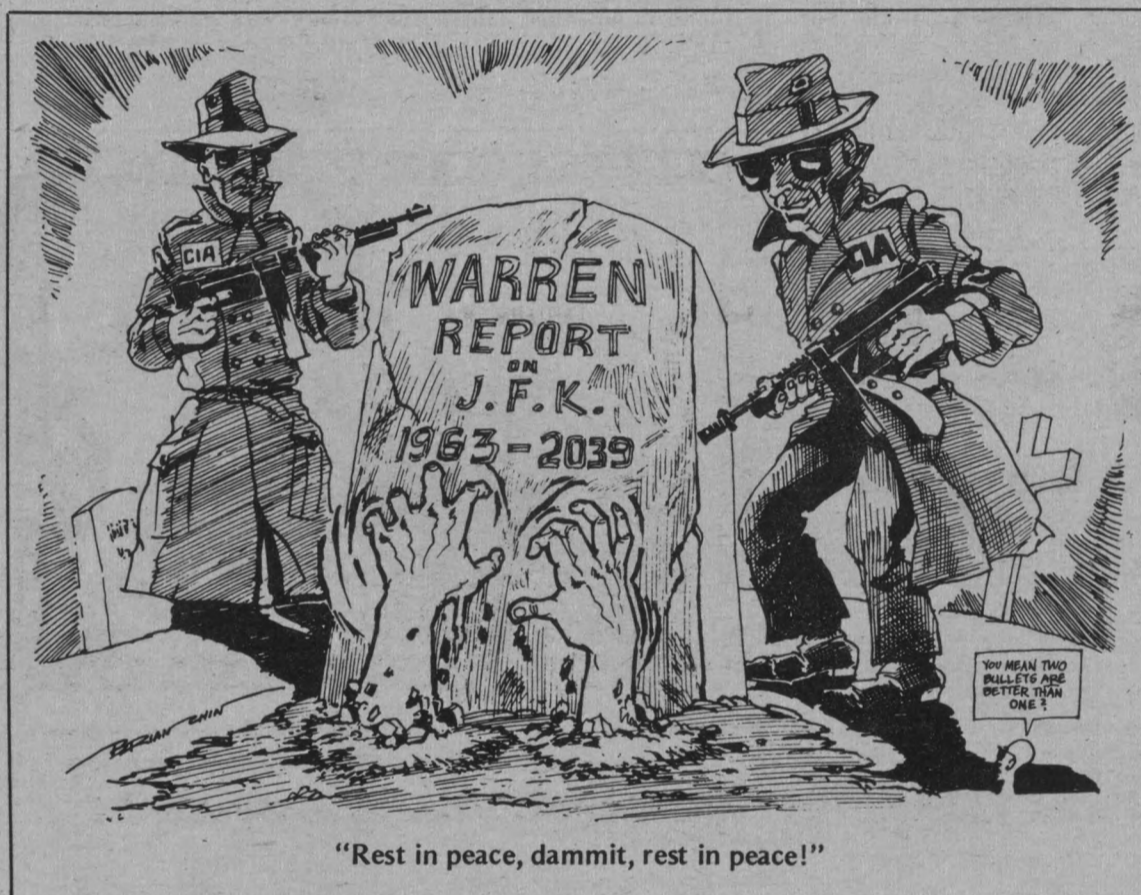

Then there are the estimated 1,000 of these new students who would be expected to live in I.V. Even at present enrollment levels, demand for housing is so high that the vacancy factor in I.V. is less than one per cent. The water moratorium approved two years ago by the voters forbids any new construction of housing. These two factors, high demand and low supply, are the primary cause of the high rents charged in I.V. Landlords know that if you refuse their price, someone else won't. With 1,000 new renters, will you be among those who can afford to live here?

Also, the LRDP expects 500 new students who would choose to live in Santa Barbara or Goleta. The present shortage of housing there has already caused rents to rise, and many welfare families are moving into I.V. Once again, students must compete for minimal housing and water supplies.

But the problem is greater than just new students. A Population Impact Study commissioned by the city of Santa Barbara says that each new enrolled student generates an additional person (e.g. service employees) who locates in the South Coast area. That makes at least 4,000 additional people with no housing and little water, by the early 1980's.

This plan of continuous growth implies an expectation or plan that plenty of water will be available, allowing an end to the water moratorium, and unlimited housing construction. In presenting a preliminary LRDP to

presented a different aspect. There were great expanses of open ground, with spacious lawns and groves of trees. The presence of dogs on campus went largely unnoticed. And the long, low buildings with red-tile roofs were, if not friendly, at least innocuous and somnolent, and hence suited to Santa Barbara. But the University, under the carcinogenic influence of Steelreinforced concrete, reclaimed the open land for the more useful purposes of buildings and bikepaths. As there are no trees, the dogs must relieve themselves on the corners of buildings. And the quaint old buildings are lost among the high-rise pill boxes — such academic fortifications as the Administration Building, Phelps

Hall and the South Hall Annex. An exception, however, can be granted in one case. It is only fitting that the Psychology Building should be Germanic, as Freud was Austrian and the founder of psycho-analysis. It is even more appropriate that the Psych Building, with its medieval and windowless facade, should appear as open and coherent as the subject itself.

You'd probably think that this infestation of concrete and steel was some frightful bureaucratic blunder, the kind of mistake that becomes Policy and hence unassailable, because no one will admit responsibility. Not at all. Somewhere in the Master Plan for Higher Education, there is surely a provision that the University should model itself on the Siegfried Line, the idea being that the next time we have a Revolution, the University will again be able to ignore all questions, dismiss all demands, and retreat behind its walls, that it may sleep undisturbed.

UCSB Plan...

the Regents last November, Chancellor Cheadle said, "A matter of importance to this campus is the discussion about growth in this whole South Coast area. It has been triggered by the water shortages, both actual and possible, and this includes the question of whether or not to import water from the State Water Project that makes Northern water available to Southern California...We are not ready to make recommendations to you about this matter at this time." (This was last November.)

If the State Water Project is extended to the South Coast, Goleta Valley would lose our only means of controlling growth, and the cost of an aqueduct would be so high that to be economical, our local population would probably have to double. Other people don't have the university's same vision for the future. Goleta Valley has been successfully limiting its growth by The Water Moratorium, and Santa Barbara recently passed an ordinance to change zoning to only allow 85,000 residents within city limits.

It would seem that the simplest way to solve the housing and water problems of UCSB students would be to not increase enrollment beyond present levels, or even to lower enrollment. The birth rate is falling, and there are over 130 other institutes of higher education in California. Why must more students come here, where we can't supply their physical needs? In his farewell speech to the Regents, retiring president Charles Hitch said, "Excellence in the university based on growth and financial support...is over for as far ahead as we can reasonably project, and a profound rethinking of our entire joint enterprise is urgently required."

Perhaps this profound rethinking should be applied to the Long-Range plans for this campus, to bring them into line with the desires of local residents and government planners for a population limitation, and a consideration of the ability of our local resources to provide for our students' physical needs.

Nexus Self-serving...

as a political weapon rather than as a source of information for the UCSB community. The Nexus endorses the rejection of an alternative newspaper, and Neil Moran, a candidate with close ties to the Nexus, receives the strongest of endorsements. These two Nexus endorsements can be seen as self-serving.

I believe the editorial "An Obvious Choice" and the accompanying cartoon show the need for the Nexus to abstain from political endorsements in the future. When the members of the editorial board decide to endorse their crony for the office of external president and urge the student body to reject the idea of a competing newspaper, they are clearly misusing their power. The Daily Nexus exists as the major source of information about campus politics and elections. Its endorsements can prejudice the student body because of this status as the major source of information. The Nexus endorsement of Neil Moran and the smear of Murv Glass comes off as a crude, blatant attempt to prejudice the student body and swing the election to their man at the critical moment.

I have lost all respect for the Nexus because of the editorial "An Obvious Choice" and cartoon of the April 18 issue. If, in the future, the Nexus should persist in endorsing candidates, I strongly urge students to go to the polls and vote the exact opposite of the Nexus suggestions.

Legislators in Washington and Sacramento have been busy recently with legislation affecting consumers. Let's do a quick review of the issues involved.

Senator Edward Kennedy recently introduced a bill to ban use of the controversial drug diethylstilbestrol (DES) as a cattle growth stimulant and prohibit its use for one year in the morning-after pill.

Some of the criticisms of the drug, specifically its cancer causing attributes, were discussed in a previous column. Kennedy charged laxity on the part of the Food and Drug Administration in not monitoring the use of DES.

Senate and House subcommittees are considering legislation to repeal two federal laws which permit states to pass fair trade laws. Thirty-six states, including California, now have fair trade laws, which allow manufacturers of distributors to set minimum prices for products such as housewares, clothing, hardware, and photo supplies. Manufacturers fear that repeal of the laws will result in price wars which will kill off smaller competition, but various sources estimate a savings to consumers of from $3 to $6 billion a year.

MILK PRICES

The California State Department of Food and Agriculture just announced a two cent reduction in the price of a half gallon of milk, effective Sunday. The retail price cut affects most of Southern California. In the Sacramento area, price minimums will be completely suspended as a test. However, a state official has admitted that stores may raise other prices to compensate for the reduction.

Finally, the state assembly has overwhelmingly approved a package of legislation designed to allow more public input in the Public Utilities Commission rate-setting process. One of the bills would require public hearings before the increase of most utility rates, eliminating automatic approval by the PUC. Here in progressive Santa Barbara, PUC hearings will be held next Monday on gas rate hikes.

Connors Band Jazz It Up

Jazz drummer Norm Connors and his band appear for one performance only on Saturday, May 17, at 8 p.m. in Campbell Hall, jointly sponsored by Arts and Lectures and AS Concerts. The concern will feature the vocal talent of Jean Carn.

Connors has worked with an enormous numbers of jazz musicians, and in 1972 formed a group with Nat Bettis, Airto, Billy Hart, Herbie Hancock and Cecil McBee to cut his first LP, "Dance or Magic." He is a drummer and percussionist, but an artist first. "I don't look at music from a drummer's point of view, I stopped doing that years ago. I try to enjoy the whole concept of what's happening. I don't take things apart anymore."

He has recorded "Dark of Light," "Love From the Sun," and "Slewfoot," in addition to several records with Pharoah Sanders, Archie Shepp, Sam Rivers and Carlos Garnett. It is the association with Pharoah that has produced what he feels to be his most rewarding sound. Their performances together have played to standing-room-only crowds.

Student Regent

Administrative vice-president-elect, and John Vian are competing for the position and Leg Council is expected to confirm the ad hoc committee's choice Wednesday.

On Tuesday, April 8, the Council of the Graduate Students Association approved its Executive Committee's selection of Ed Tafoya as the voting graduate representative and John Goldberg as his assistant to the commission.

A Northern Regional Nominating Commission, representing the Berkeley, Davis, San Francisco and Santa Cruz campuses, will interview candidates at Berkeley on the same dates.

On April 25 the commissions are expected to screen the applications. On May 5 they will interview the remaining candidates.

The two regional commissions will send nine applications to the Student Body Presidents Council (SBPC), which will meet at Santa Cruz on May 10-11 to interview the remaining applicants.

On May 15, the SBPC will submit three names to the Regents who will be meeting in San Francisco shortly afterwards to interview the three finalists.

One representative from the SBPC will be allowed to attend the Regents' meeting. Outgoing UCSB External President Kathy Tuttle will be the SBPC representative.

Tuttle stated that she wants to assure that the regents "apply the same criteria to each applicant" and that they "select the final one as a result of his or her qualifications and not anything else."

Tuttle is looking for a student to represent a student perspective, with substantial experience with University affairs, and the ability to write and speak very well.

Black Studies

regular Black faculty have not been augmented since 1969; initial steps to recruit Black graduate students have been diluted; and the enormous attrition rate among minority students continues in the absence of adequate counseling and support services sensitive to their needs.

The Chancellor proposes a reorientation of the Center from an organized research unit to an agency essentially concerned with community service activities. His rationale for this change is superficially accurate, that the Center has not generated enough research to justify as an Organized Research Unit. Yet, we would have appreciated a further word from the Chancellor as to how research can be produced without a trained and experienced research staff and budget.

"Originally it was assumed that much of the necessary expertise would be provided through the Department of Black Studies; but support for the Department has not been forthcoming either. (And does the Chancellor expect us to believe that a revised Center would receive the backing he refused to the original unit? The vagueness of his proposal tells the story.) From its inception the Center has been virtually programmed to failure; it was quite superfluous for the

Gay Rights Bills

So far the main opposition to the bills has come from an ad hoc group of Baptist ministers who fear that passage of the bills will contribute to the moral decline of the state. Apparently figuring that any such decline would be minimal, or that further decline is impossible, Governor Jerry Brown is considered to be supportive of the legislation.

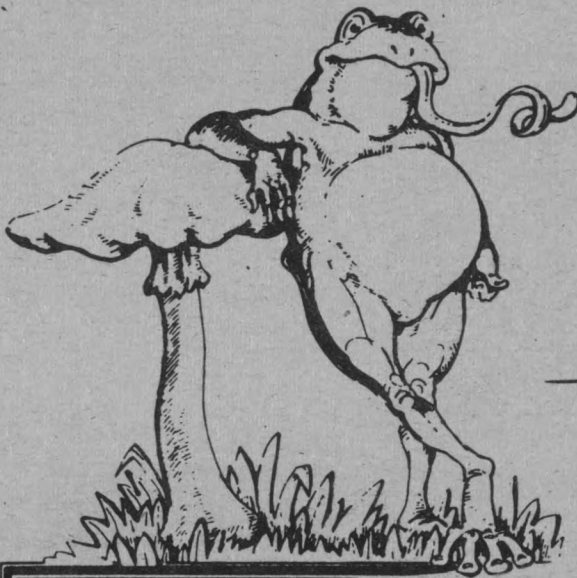

"Confidential Review Committee" to prepare a bureaucratic obituary for what was in fact a preordained stillbirth.

"The other part of the Chancellor's statement is equally tenuous. He suggests a "Minority Faculty Development Program" in which a predoctoral or postdoctoral student would be appointed to a temporary position in the Department of Black Studies and would enjoy a half-time teaching load, with the remainder of the person's time devoted to research. This token gesture would hardly speak to the needs of the department, which desperately awaits regular and not part-time personnel. In the six years of its existence, not one Afro-American has served in a full-time position, at the junior or senior level, in the Department of Black Studies. Instead of facilitating ladder appointments to the department, the Administration proposes to add another temporary soul, one who would have to labor under the burden of excessive reviews and scrutiny in a department existing without senior faculty personnel and adequate campus support. While it may appear to some as an accomplishment, to us it hazards the sacrifice of yet another Black scholar and fails to alleviate any of the real problems.

"Once again we sincerely enreat the Chancellor and the campus to recognize the real predicament of Black programs at UCSB and to speak to these needs with sensitivity, candor and genuine commitment."
