ROAD TERMINUS TO CROSS LEMON LAND UNLESS PROTESTED

Bliss Warns Property Owners Affected to Immediately Register Opinions

THE so-called "rumor" concerning the Carpinteria terminus of the Maricopa road (which dealt with a route change by which the road would intersect some of the most valuable lemon acreage in this district) not only has a basis of fact, but is a strong probability, unless property owners concerned get busy and voice their protest to the legislature at once, Assemblyman George Bliss stated this week in an interview with a Chronicle representative.

"My first inkling that Carpinteria people were not aware of the road's probable route, and had evidently been mis-informed concerning the highway department's plans, was had when my copy of the Chronicle reached me at Sacramento," Bliss said.

"The highway department's map definitely shows the road following the route the Chronicle outlined in its account of the project's local terminus," he continued. "Fred Grumm, route engineer for the state department, indicated to me the state's reasons for not following the county line. He pointed out that such a route would entail the building of two bridges crossing Rincon creek, at a probable cost of over $100,000, that the number of curves would render it impractical from a highway standpoint, and that possibilities of future high water damage weighed heavily in the highway department's consideration of the project."

Bliss reiterated the fact that neither he nor other members of the assembly have anything to do with determining the terminus.

"However," he said, "If the property owners concerned are opposed to the route plans, they have only to send me a protest signed by themselves, and I will see that it receives the department's consideration. But they must get busy at once, before the state has expended any more funds on the proposed route. Otherwise it will be too late for any protest to change the plans of the engineers."

When a Chronicle representative suggested a route to cross over the hill south of the Carton ranch, on through the Buell property and thence to a point near the intersection of highway 101 with the old Rincon grade, Bliss stated that such a plan should effect a happy compromise.

"The road would then be fairly straight, avoid the expense of bridges and heavy fills in Rincon creek, and cross through property which, while not such good lemon land, would make a fine subdivision site," he added.

When informed that a supervisor of a northern district had been quoted as discounting the rumored road change, Bliss stated that, while there is nothing secretive in the work and plans of the state engineers and the highway department, they "naturally cannot meet with every supervisor, particularly when his district is not concerned, and submit their plans to him."

"In fact," he concluded, "Any discounting of the Chronicle's story concerning the road's probable route should not be heeded by those who are opposed to having their land intersected by the Maricopa road. They should get busy at once and inform me of their wishes on the matter."

E. H. Canedy, night watchman, states that in case of fire, prowlers, or any trouble of that nature, Carpinteria residents should phone 3011. If no one answers, call again in a very few minutes.

FREE PLAYS TO BE GIVEN BY PLAYERS NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Whitney May Judge Offerings Of One-Act Plays Here

THE Community Players will close their season a week from tonight when they present four one-act plays in the high school auditorium, curtain at eight o'clock sharp.

"These plays are to be, in a sense, competitive," said E. A. Southworth, director of the group, yesterday. "Arrangements are being made to induce Paul Whitney, of Lobero theater fame, to act as judge at next Friday's presentations. Plays will be judged on the merits of presentation alone, rather than emphasizing the plots or the settings."

Those presenting, in the judge's opinion, the best play will receive some sort of honorable recognition or award, the exact nature of which has not been decided as yet.

The four plays, their casts and directors, follow in the order of presentation.

"Thursday evening"—directed by Lenore Giddings and enacted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Betts, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stubbs and Mrs. Harry James.

"Rose of the Alhambra"—a fantasy directed by Earl Southworth and enacted by Elizabeth and Neal Furby, Marian Linkey, Dorothea Lynn, Donald Stockton, Ralph Smith, Katherine Osterman, Isabel Rice and E. A. Southworth.

"Poor Old Jim"—under the direction of Phil Mills, with a cast composed of Sybil Baker, Curtis Linkey and Phil Mills.

"Suppressed Desires"—a drawing room comedy directed by Aubrey Crawford and enacted by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Nelson and Ida Sinclair.

Admission will be free and the public is invited to be present.

Start Work on New Women's Club House

All Local Labor to Be Used

Work on the new $3,000 home of the Carpinteria Women's club will begin early next week, it was announced by the directors of that organization following their meeting Wednesday.

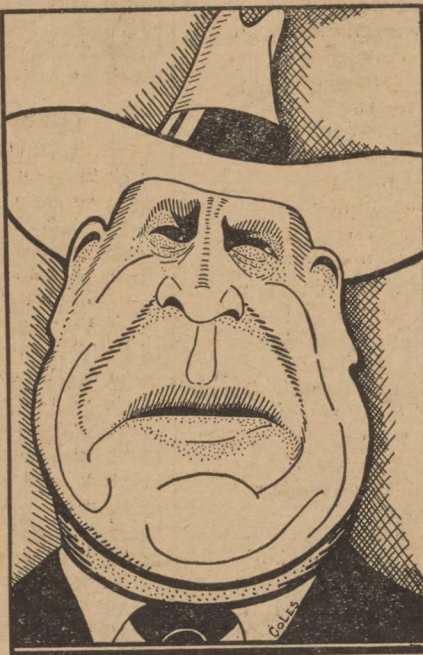

All work is being let to local contractors who include the following: Joe Hendy, Victor Stubbs, Frank Hobel, John Furby and the Carpinteria Lumber company, the latter furnishing lumber and building materials for the structure.

The building will be on the club's property on Vallecito road, and will be a frame and stucco edifice, features of which will include an auditorium 45x28 feet, with a stage and a large fireplace, a kitchen 12x16 feet and two dressing rooms.

Ye Kronikal Almanack

Presenting the first of a series of caricatures of prominent Carpinterians from the ruthless pen of Butler Cole, whose work speaks for itself.

We are happy to announce that these drawings will be a weekly feature of the Chronicle, and that hereafter practically no one will be spared. So if you see a slinking figure following you, carrying a camera or pencil, rest assured that your visage, for better or worse, will soon adorn the columns of the Chronicle.

The be-hatted individual to the left is—hadn't you guessed it?—none other than our able supervisor, Tom Dinsmore. Those lines of care, so ably caught by our artist, were caused, gentle reader, by your troubles and mine. For if we can't carry our civic criticism to our own supervisor, then what is the purpose of this thing called Democracy?

BRENTNER'S HILL TO BE SETTING FOR CARPINTERIA'S SIXTH ANNUAL EASTER SUN-RISE SERVICES SUNDAY MORNING

Rev. Moore to Conduct Early Morning Worship; Choir Singing and Instrumental Music Will Be Features of Service

THE people of Carpinteria valley will greet the dawn of Easter Sunday from the top of Brentner Hill, where the annual sun-rise Easter service will be held, under the direction of Rev. C. P. Moore.

Next Sunday's services will mark the sixth milestone of this appropriate custom, the first having been held in 1928 at the beach where the second was also held. Easter, 1930, was greeted from the hill-top of the Santa Barbara Boy's school, and since that time the ceremony has been held on the summit of Brentner's Hill, three miles south-east of Carpinteria.

Owing to the fact that he has just had several teeth extracted Rev. Leon C. Kirkes will be unavoidably absent.

Just at sun-rise a young people's procession, composed of all local choirs, will open the exercises. Following is the rest of the program:

After the professional Community singing will be led by Mrs. Guy W. Stockton and Dr. Genevieve Shorley. Scripture lesson and prayer by Rev. C. P. Moore; Violin solo by Fred Greenough; Easter message by Rev. Wade Hamilton; Community singing; Prayer and benediction.

The Sunday school will meet at 9:45 and will have a worship service of Easter music before class period.

At 11 o'clock J. F. Nellany of Santa Barbara will speak on "The Resurrection and What It Means Today." A special program of music will be rendered. Among other numbers will be Nolt's "Joyous Bells of Easter." The Easter Mite Banks are to be returned at this service as an Easter offering. So don't forget your Mite bank.

The Intermediate and Senior Christian Endeavor societies will meet at 6:30 p. m.

Santa Barbaran Meets Death in Auto Crash

Chas. Platt Dies of Injuries

Charles J. Platt, 2609 Hollister, Santa Barbara, was killed and six others were injured Monday night in a car crash on the highway near the entrance to Sandylane Cove.

Mrs. Belle Platt, whose marriage to the deceased is denied by a woman who claims to have been his wife, sustained a broken leg and severe cut and bruises, and is now in a serious condition at the Cottage hospital.

The accident is said to have occurred when Platt's car pulled across the highway from the Sandylane Cove road and was struck by a north-bound car driven by R. L. Cooper of San Marcos ranch. Four people were riding in the Platt car when it was struck, and three in Cooper's. The left sides of both cars were demolished, and all who survived sustained bad cuts and bruises.

According to reports, Tuesday night a blind woman claiming to be the widow of Charles Platt arrived in Santa Barbara and denied that the injured woman known as "Mrs. Belle Platt" was the wife of the man who was killed. The injured woman has not yet sufficient strength to be told of Platt's death or later developments.

District Attorney Heckendorf and representative of insurance companies involved were busy at the scene of the wreck Tuesday morning, taking

KDB IS MADE TEST RADIO STATION OF COASTAL NET-WORK

Manager Credits Chronicle for Local Interest in Station

STARTING this week KDB, Santa Barbara's radio station, becomes the official test station for the Pacific Coast network, according to information received Monday by Herb Witherspoon, manager of that station.

"This means," said Witherspoon yesterday, "That any new electrical transmissions will be first broadcast over KDB, and that local artists on our programs will have excellent opportunities for national contracts, inasmuch as their programs are apt at any time to be put on the entire network."

In a check-up, just concluded by the Radio Research Bureau for the purpose of determining the size and responsiveness of radio audiences, the Santa Barbara station scored highest in the state. Cards were sent to representative radio owners throughout the west asking them to please list the radio station they listened to most frequently, and on the basis of this test KDB easily placed first with an 85 percent "coverage." That is, the replies indicated that more than four-fifths of the radio owners in this territory were regular members of KDB's audience.

"Carpinteria registered the highest interest in our programs," Witherspoon stated, "And we do not hesitate to attribute that fact to the Chronicle. Our mail shows that you have already built up a reader interest that is amazing, and that practically your whole valley not only reads the Chronicle but tunes in on the weekly programs."

"Two hundred cards were sent to Carpinteria by the bureau," he added. "Sixty-five replies were received and every one indicated KDB as the station whose programs were most consistently followed."

Other interesting figures brot to light by recent research include the fact that radio ownership has increased 27.6 percent in California since 1930, which means that 231,000 new radios have been purchased by Californians in less than three years. The increase ratio for the Pacific coast was 31 percent since 1930.

"The Changing Fabric of Japan," will be the subject for study by the Missionary society of the Community church at its meeting next Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. John B. Hudson will lead the topic, and Mrs. Albert Jarvis will have charge of the devotionals. The hymn study will be led by Dr. Genevieve Shorley. Hostesses will be Mrs. Roland Ogan, Mrs. Cornelius Vaughan, Mrs. L. F. Thompson, Mrs. Phil Doerr, Mrs. C. A. Talmadge and Mrs. Dora Bower.

INDICATIONS POINT TO BIG TURN-OUT AT C. OF C. MEETING

Coming Election of Officers And Re-Organization Plans To Be Discussed Monday

INDICATIONS point towards a big turn-out at the chamber of commerce meeting to be held Monday evening at 7:30 in the Masonic temple. Every resident of the valley is earnestly urged to attend, and to take part in the discussion of plans for future activities and contemplated projects.

"We hope to have Secretary Heron of the Santa Barbara chamber of commerce and possibly Herb Witherspoon, manager of KDB and members of the Santa Barbara chamber's publicity committee, come down and give short talks pointing out the possibilities of chamber of commerce activities here," said Earl Chaffee, president of the local organization yesterday.

"If we can effect a re-organization that will put the powers of the chamber of commerce in the hands of every member we will have gone a long way towards stimulating community-wide interest in the body's doings," he added.

"People are too prone to leave the work to a board of directors. If we can change our by-laws so as to abolish such a board and make the chamber a thoroughly democratic organization throughout, I feel that a civic feeling will be engendered."

"With the election of officers only a few weeks away (election in June) and in order to have thoroughly representative officials we need the support and interest of everyone," he concluded. "Please emphasize the fact that we want the chamber's scope to be widened and to include all the ranchers and out of town residents in the valley."

Secretary Jones stated that with the election of officers in June the officers and directors favor an entirely new personnel and the re-writing of the by-laws.

"Changing the policies of the method of governing the chamber will stimulate community-wide interest in the body's doings," said Jones. "The scope should be widened to include all the residents of the entire valley."

"On the completion of the Maricopa-Carpinteria highway rapid growth and development of the Carpinteria valley can be expected," he stated. "As a resort and recreational center, Carpinteria with its long wide beach and a total absence of undertow, our fifteen acres will attract an increase in visitors each year."

"At the height of the summer season Carpinteria valley should set aside a day for celebrating, why not a LEMON DAY? And a big parade from the beach up Linden avenue thence on to Franklin Canyon, the ideal open air theater, where the ancient history of Carpinteria valley could be portrayed."

Are you satisfied with the present fire and police protection—Monday evening the 17th at 7:30 will be a good time to discuss those matters.

Cabin Ship Treats Local People to Scenic Flight

Pilot Praises Local Airport

"Morrell's Pride II," new $23,000 Lockheed-Vega six-passenger cabin plane belonging to Morrell and company, eastern meat packers, visited the local airport Tuesday, and made six sight-seeing flights carrying dealers from Carpinteria and nearby localities.

The pilot was warm in his praise of the local landing field, and enthusiastic concerning the scenery hereabouts.

"If tourists could see the valley from the air they'd come here in flocks," said the flyer. "This is certainly the garden spot of a beautiful region."

Contemplated flights from Santa Paula were cut short by high winds, and the Goleta airport was judged too small for the big ship, so passengers from both areas were taken up from here.

Carpinterians who enjoyed flights included Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pulliam, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Verner and C. B. Davis.

ANNOUNCING CHRONICLE LEASE

With this week's issue Linn Unkefer becomes the lessee of the Carpinteria Chronicle, which, in the small city newspaper world, has already become famed for its meteoric rise in popularity since its establishment eight weeks ago for in that time it has become an accepted public institution. The owner and former publisher, being extremely confident in Mr. Unkefer's ability, urges Carpinteria valley residents to accord him their continued support, and believes the community can have no better a man to further its interests through its leading publicity medium. The success of the Chronicle already attained is largely due his efforts and vision.

So far as the public is concerned, there will be no change whatsoever in the Chronicle. Its policies and progressive plans for the growth of the community and itself will remain the same. From its inception its managers have realized that true newspaper success can be realized only by fullness of service rendered. With the constantly growing support of Carpinteria merchants, and subscribers, a further enlargement of this service will be assured. One item alone, our weekly broadcast, has already given the community much favorable publicity, which is reacting by increased sales at local business establishments and renewed interest in the Carpinteria valley by outsiders. The Chronicle's program for the consistent promotion of harmony among its business and social leaders, its fight against factionalism, cannot but result in the community's ultimate growth and its reputation for friendly unity.

Its policy of backing to the utmost the Chamber of Commerce and its activities, giving to it a voice (as well as other civic organizations), has already been pledged, and will be energetically adhered to.

The Chronicle is unique in its constant effort to maintain a sparkling freshness in its treatment of community news, at the same time printing only facts. This style of journalism usually is found only in metropolitan newspapers, and entails much more hard work, but results in far better publicity. It also has a strict regard for accuracy in its advertising columns, and its editorials are printed only after much consideration and study.

The writer, groping for words to adequately express his sentiment, can only say he is extremely grateful to Carpinteria people for their support of the new publication, but more particularly of their kindnesses to him personally, and in closing, can but wish them the prosperity and happiness which he knows are their just dues.

MUD PIES OR BUILDING BRICKS

God gave us a garden spot. Nature gave us a climate unsurpassed anywhere in the world. Our forefathers gave us a Constitution which made everyone of us a part of the machinery of self-government. But 'way back somewhere in this noble lineage the devil or somebody slipped in and left us this inexplicable thing called Human Nature.

That little item ruins many a good plan for civic and self betterment. Technocracy would have given us a Utopia—but Human Nature had been omitted from the fabric of its structure. Because of that one point Technocracy already has been relegated to the realms of fads that have passed.

Two men find a bed of thick mud, moist and sticky and pregnant with possibilities. To one man the mud represents only something to throw, something to dig into and use as a missile. The other man quietly sets to work and out of the mud he builds something, perhaps a house to live in, a crude wall around a garden—something that makes the region a better place for humans. The difference between those two men we call Human Nature.

Monday evening the people of this valley meet to revise and reorganize the chamber of commerce. Much can be accomplished at this meeting. Communities lacking many or most of the natural advantages for which Carpinteria is justly famous have, through their civic organizations, built something for themselves. Fuller community life, better understanding among neighbors, happier living conditions, more economical handling of civic affairs, all these can be brought about by utilization of such bodies as the chamber of commerce. But it all depends upon that tricky characteristic called Human Nature.

If you or the fellow reading over your shoulder have any criticism of the plans and hopes of your chamber of commerce it is your duty to attend the meeting Monday evening and voice your opinions so that any sound reasoning they contain may be acted upon.

If you fail to do this you have no moral right to criticize what is done by those who possessed enough interest in their community to aid in its betterment. Monday night is the time to air your views, not a few days, weeks or months later.

And before you express your ideas ask yourself whether you are throwing mud or molding building bricks.

The Carpinteria of 1938 or '40 will be the result of our building between now and that time.

See you at the meeting Monday night!

HO, HUM! (Spring)

Ho, Hum! Spring, the seductive creature, tip toed into the valley last week, leaving her footprints in splashes of wild lilac and mustard on hillsides already green. She seems particularly pleased with Carpinteria this season and has nearly outdone herself in helping with clean-up week by be-decking vacant lots and gardens with bright flashes of poppies and other flowers whose names we can neither spell nor pronounce. (Time out for a good s-t-r-e-t-c-h.)

She believes in advertising, does this lovely lady, which is doubtless one item contributing to her popularity. (I'm yawning again!) Every bush, bird, tree, roadside and field is part of her propaganda, and if you don't think its effective why are you wishing right now that you were just starting on a week's vacation—and stop yawning—you've got me doing it!

Even old Rincon smiles at the sparkling Pacific and yawns, and says sleepily, "Well, she's here again the giddy creature, and she's even more gaudy than usual. I suppose now the young people will be holding hands and looking cow-eyed at each other, the ladies will put their husbands to work in the garden, the men will begin scanning maps of vacation tours, and in no time your beaches will be swarming with sun-burned swimmers. All the humans go a little bit crazy at this time of year, but as for me—I'm going to have another nap. You and I—we've seen too many Springs to get giddy over this one."

If the chamber of commerce could bottle this weather and send out samples, we'd have the world knocking at Carpinteria's front door.

County Social Agencies to Hold Annual Session

An achievement in public welfare of great significance in the face of present social and economic conditions, marks the yearly report of the Santa Barbara County Council of Social Agencies, which is aided in its welfare program by Carpinteria organizations, according to Mrs. Eve Gilmour, executive secretary. The end of the fiscal year will be observed at an annual meeting to be held in the court house at Santa Barbara Tuesday afternoon at 3:30.

The successful functioning of the council is due, it is pointed out by members, to the continuity of thought and action manifest by the executives of the affiliated agencies, and the confidence maintained by more than 300 directors representing units of community life that are pledged to the best interests of public welfare in Santa Barbara county. The object of the council is to co-ordinate public welfare work with city and county governments, supplemented by the social agencies maintained privately, and to create an understanding between the sponsors of social work and the public they serve.

More than 15 years of continued development work in county welfare activities have culminated in the present council, it is pointed out, with the county departments of welfare and probation as a background for the combined leadership.

Carpinteria is officially represented on the council by the Hon. George Bliss and James A. Lewis, president of the local Community Chest, ex-officio members, and Mrs. Curtis W. Cate of the county welfare commission, and Miss Arianna Moore, as directors.

The yearly meeting is open to all county citizens interested in furthering the social welfare program as well as executives of the various social welfare organizations.

The total cost, including administration, to the county was $21,749.73 and the Reconstruction Finance corporation funds used amounted to $28,595.89. There were 145 single men in the San Marcos, Lompoc and Wesioja camps. Administrative and service cost in March was $5,054.69, or approximately 10 per cent.

Spring Is Here

A golden carpet of California poppies on the John Young ranch, just north of Foothill road, has attracted sightseers and nature lovers as well as a number of artists during the past two weeks.

Approximately eight acres are covered with flowers and the slope of the land renders them particularly noticeable from the highway. The Santa Barbara, Los Angeles and other newspapers have commented upon the sight, which no one in the valley should miss seeing.

Louis Nash, Palo Alto artist who is staying in Carpinteria in order to put some of the valley's beauty on canvas, has been urged by friends and admirers of her paintings to exhibit her work locally. Some of her portrayals of Carpinteria scenes may be viewed in Paulsen Visel's office.

Bennett Is Bad Business Visitor Merchants Find

Carpinteria 5, Santa Paula 3

Santa Paula's Junior Merchants found business rotten here when it came to running bases Sunday afternoon. Brickwall Bennett saw to that, and in seeing to it he added 16 more strikeouts to his remarkable record, bringing the total to 57 in 41 innings, during the course of which he has allowed but 12 earned runs. Page Mr. Ripley.

Bennett received a well-earned ovation when, with bases full due to errors, and no outs, he fanned three in a row. That, children, is known as real tomato-tossin' back on the old sandlot.

We'd almost forgotten it, but the final score was Carpinteria 5, Santa Paula 3, and how it got that way is told in the box score below.

Manager Stemper announces a tough game for this Sunday when his hopefuls cross bats with the Santa Barbara Unemployed, at 2:30 on the home grounds.

No Beer Shortage Seen Although Sales Large

City Prices Beyond Reason

Although local dealers state that they have enjoyed a good business in beer during the past week there seems to be no danger of a shortage of the beverage locally. Dealers here are almost obliged to take whatever brand is available when deliveries are made, and then only are allowed a few cases, but owing to the wide variety of brands available most local retailers will have enough to last over the week end.

Harry Russell, of the Mountain Distributing company said this week that not only is their present stock exhausted but they have already had orders for more beer than they can obtain for the coming week.

"A carload coming within three days has already been sold, and we are refusing scores of orders a day," Russell said.

Some idea of the volume of beer business transacted in Carpinteria may be gathered from the fact that one of the five licensed retailers stated yesterday that their establishment had sold over 2160 bottles since Friday noon.

The price here remains at 15 cents for an 11 ounce bottle, while in Los Angeles and metropolitan areas it is said to be as high as three short pints for a dollar.

Chronicle Broadcast

Tomorrow night's Chronicle Quarter-hour over KDB will be a surprise program, the nature of which will not be divulged until 5:45, when the program goes on the air.

Much favorable comment from all parts of Santa Barbara and Ventura counties followed last week's program, which featured Frank and Fred Greenough in highlights of harmony. Their violin and piano selections, mingling popular with the semi-classical, were rendered in typical Greenough-esque style, and the Chronicle is proud to have presented these artists on its program. If you have any comments, criticisms or suggestions to make concerning these weekly offerings please telephone or write them to either KDB, Santa Barbara, or the Chronicle, Carpinteria.

Business Conditions Show Steady Gain

Business activity in Southern California during the last week in March was generally equal to and in many instances in excess of that during the comparable period in February, according to the latest Monthly Summary of Business Conditions compiled by Security-First National bank of Los Angeles and released for publication this week.

"While the local trades and industries were adversely affected by the nation-wide bank holiday during the first part of the month and experienced an abnormal flurry of activity following resumption of banking operations, business toward the close of the period was again on a normal basis," the Summary reports. "Moreover, a perceptible improvement in public sentiment, expressing itself in a more hopeful attitude toward the future of economic affairs, has been noted by many observers throughout the southern counties during the past two weeks."

Satisfactory progress in the work of reconstruction is being made by the communities affected by the earthquake of March 10, according to the business review and in most instances business affairs are now proceeding as if no interruption had occurred. In some localities the building industries have been benefited by repair work occasioned by the temblor. The value of building permits issued in Los Angeles, which was only slightly affected by the shock, showed an increase of $256,862 over the total of February and amounted to $958,441 the Summary reports, continuing in part as follows:

"While it appears that the aggregate volume of retail trade in Southern California cities during March was not equal to seasonal expectations, the showing is not unfavorable in view of the unusual occurrences which feature the month. Data for Los Angeles department stores covering the last week in March when conditions were again near normal indicate an improvement as compared with February."

"General industrial conditions in this region displayed the same tendencies as in previous months, the most favorable records being made by concerns supplying consumers goods. Unusual activity developed in the local brewing trades as a result of the legislation of beer by Congress. Producers of bottles, refrigeration machinery and associated equipment are also benefiting from this development."

"Prices of a number of agricultural products, important to southern California, registered advances during March. Among these were beans, wheat, barley, lettuce, lemons and livestock. While speculative buying following the banking holiday produced some of the increases, other factors more stable in character were influential in several instances. "Agriculturists are disturbed by the prospective shortage of rainfall this season, the total for Los Angeles to date amounting to 10.64, as compared to a normal expectancy of 13.61 inches."

"After the heavy volume of transactions which naturally followed the ending of the holiday period, financial activity returned to normal levels throughout southern California and public confidence, in the opinion of observers throughout this region, has shown marked improvement as compared with February."

Fred Greenough, Jesse Hawley and Calvin Yaggy have completed the titling and cutting of the films taken of this year's Russell Cup track meet. These scenes, together with pictures taken of the Armistice day football game with Fillmore last fall will be shown to the student body shortly after school reopens next week.

Mrs. Elmer Pulliam played three piano solos, which received a hearty response.

President Chuck Verner appointed Marc Latham chairman of the convention committee, Frank Smith the chairman of the stunts committee and C. P. Visitors at last night's meeting were Mrs. Bud Davidson and Ralph Smith. The program was in charge of Bill James and Merton Lewis.

A Reader's Thoughts:

(The Chronicle is glad to publish communications of public interest. All letters must be signed, but writers' names will be withheld if desired.)

Editor Carpinteria Chronicle: One of the most unfortunate and inexplicable situations occurred last week—the dismissal of Miss Mabel Spizzy, county school supervisor of music. This action taken by the county school superintendent, Mrs. Murial Edwards, came as a complete surprise. A very indefinite explanation appeared in the Daily News. Mrs. Spizzy is under contract, such a one not subject to breaking save for two charges: incompetency and immorality. All who have known Mrs. Spizzy realize that she is not guilty of such charges or inferences. The outlook appears to be that of doing away entirely with the music supervision in the county, and thus subtly being able to show an economy cut. However, such a move is an unnecessary sacrifice. Certainly, out of all the fields of supervision, it seems drastic to deprive the children in Santa Barbara county of music education, and especially of the capable supervision of Mrs. Spizzy.

Mrs. Spizzy has this year compiled and written without remuneration an excellent "Curriculum for Music Instruction." Teachers all over the county relied upon this as a daily help. Mrs. Spizzy's constant contact with the school officials, children, and P. T. A. all over the county has left a very definite proof of excellent supervision marked by extremely versatile abilities. Other communities are rising up in indignation and protest against such a dismissal. Can't WE do something about it? (Signed) A READER.

more. "Liberty" would give them five stars.

The Stepping Sisters harmonized sweetly and injected Boswellian rhythm into their offerings. We liked it so much we hope soon to present them on the Chronicle broadcast.

All in all it was a grand show, and if you missed it you really missed something. Over $90.00 was netted by the Mariners, who sponsored the entertainment for the Outdoor Theater fund.
