Supervisors Want New LNG Hearing

By DEBBIE YORK
A motion requesting the deferral of onsite trenching until offsite work is completed and the reopening of hearings on Pt. Concepcion as a site for a liquefied natural gas terminal was passed by the Board of Supervisors on Monday.

Supervisor Bill Wallace introduced the motion, which was passed unanimously, to request that the California Public Utilities Commission reopen hearings, basing it on the recently released U.S. Geological Survey report on seismic safety conditions at Pt. Concepcion. The PUC has jurisdiction over an LNG terminal site.

Although Al McCurdy of the Department of Environmental Resources stated that the DER has not "fully evaluated the report", and Western LNG has not yet responded, opponents of the site believe the report contains information which could potentially prevent the building of an LNG terminal at Pt. Concepcion.

The report is a technical evaluation of geologic and seismologic reports relevant to the proposed LNG facility at Pt. Concepcion. A scientific report by USGS geologists is expected to be published early in 1980.

The report claims the Pt. Concepcion area as lies "in a region of active north-south compressive deformation, characterized by through-going, north-to-northeast dipping reverse faults". It suggests that "faults such as F1 and the Santa Ynez be considered as potential generators of earthquakes of at least Richter magnitude of seven and one half".

The report also cites several deficiencies in existing information and makes five suggestions to the PUC on how criteria requirements for onshore and offshore investigation "could be more closely met". It does not suggest any additional trenching.

The Board is also sending a letter to the PUC regarding the contracting of county services during the construction and operation of the proposed LNG facility. The county will accept only direct contracts with the PUC which specify "the provisions for reimbursement for time, materials, travel, and overhead in accordance with the cost of county materials and labor". It states also that contracts must "include provisions to indemnify the county from liability".

In other actions, the board once again postponed decisions on proposed industrial and business parks for the Goleta Valley area, this time for six months.

A DER report released last week raised doubts about the accuracy of predicting population increases which might be caused by new employment opportunities. The

Municipal Airport Master Plan Scheduled for Release in May

By KENNA HIMES

A master plan for the development of the Santa Barbara Municipal Airport is scheduled to be released by next May.

R. Dixon Spees Associates, a large firm based in Los Angeles, is writing up the plan at a total cost of $88,500. The firm, which has planned over 100 airports in the country, was chosen after interviews with four other firms.

"We wanted people from the outside who are not tied to the community to tell us what they think would be the most viable plan for our community," said airport manager, Patrick Murphy.

Since the commencement of the plan last July, "city officials, environmentalists and would-be developers appear to have adopted a wait-and-see attitude on use of the 953-acre city-owned property, pending the results of the new study," said the Santa Barbara News-Press last week.

Boundaries of the property include Fairview to the east, La Patera to the west, Hollister

Avenue and the railroad tracks to the north, and Los Carneros south of Highway 101.

Currently, the land north of Hollister is zoned for heavy industrial or commercial use. It lies outside of the coastal zone and thus residential development is prohibited. The land south of Hollister is zoned for airport commercial use, and airport approach and primary surface use.

According to Murphy, "The Santa Barbara City Council does not know what the plan for possible development will be. If it is approved, the 20-year plan will be developed over five-year periods."

The News-Press reported, "There are conflicting reports that the city has promised Goleta business leaders, who are concerned about potential competition from new stores, that no commercial development will take place on the airport property."

City Councilman Lyle Reynolds and Goleta County Water District president Donna Hone said that an understanding to that effect exists.

However, Murphy "denies having seen such a pact," stated the News-Press.

Release of the draft Environmental Impact Report on the proposed Overlap Agreement between the city of Santa Barbara and the Goleta County Water District stimulated interest in the development of the airport property.

Transportation Center Rejected Because of High Property Costs

By BRUCE WISHART

Plans for the proposed Transportation Center which was to have been built at the Santa Barbara Amtrac Station were tentatively rejected by the city council last week.

The city council will, instead, consider the allocation of funds toward the building of a parking lot on Cabrillo Boulevard.

Under the original plan, the center would have served as a station equipped to handle Greyhound and MTD buses as well as provide facilities for train passengers.

Property to be used for the center has become too expensive for the Santa Barbara Redevelopment Agency to purchase because Martin Smith, an Oxnard developer, has recently negotiated with Southern Pacific, the present owners of the land, to build a restaurant-bar there.

With the old depot being converted into a restaurant, Southern Pacific has announced plans for a new facility to be built west of the Moreton Bay Fig Tree in Santa Barbara.

Richard Thomas, a county administrator, said that the higher cost of the property was "the final straw" in a series of problems associated with the acquisition. He also mentioned that West Beach residents had complained about the "additional traffic" that would result if the center were built.

Santa Barbara Mayor David Shiffman recently proposed the building of a transportation center on property in the Garden-Salispuedes district. Thomas agreed that this plan had "a lot of potential" but cautioned that it could only be implemented in conjunction with the planned freeway reconstruction project.

Thomas said, "People have been talking about it (the Freeway Project) for the past 20 years...that's what worries me."

Currently, the City Council is considering the possibility of using some of the funds that were to be spent on the center in order to construct a parking lot at Cabrillo Boulevard and Santa Barbara Street.

Thomas explained that although the city would lose a $1 million state grant towards the building of the Transportation Center, the cost of the parking lot should be considerably less expensive than even the first phase costs of the center. A cost estimate for the project would be made available "in a few months," said Thomas.

Development of Evangelical Church Traced

Twelve Years of Theology Change Moves Away From Anti-Authority

By STEVE BARTH

In order to understand the Evangelical Orthodox Church as it exists now, it is necessary to understand its development from the time its leaders left the Campus Crusade for Christ.

This article is a rough attempt to chronicle 12 years of theological evolution which has gone from anti-authority and anti-religion to just the opposite. This history is based on talks with church leaders, former members and associates of the EOC and its founders, as well as a paper prepared by Randy Thompson, a divinity student at Yale.

Because of the complicated development of the group, a short article affords only a rough sketch.

In 1968, Jon Braun, and many other present leaders of the EOC decided to leave Bill Bright's Campus Crusade for Christ. These men had all been in the "upper echelons" of Crusade leadership and, because of their individual talents, had brought the Crusade to its apex.

Braun's work as national Field Coordinator for the Crusade gave him the reputation as "one of the greatest evangelists in the country." Braun has also been described as "the most charismatic person alive."

Braun and the others had become disillusioned with institutionalized Christianity and had come into conflict with Bright over Braun's concept of grace. Braun and his associates were also frustrated at having no direction to offer the students they converted at college campuses all over the country.

They were looking for a Christian movement which would have less emphasis on structure and authority and more emphasis on spontaneity and community.

Searching for a direction, the former crusaders met at various times throughout 1968 and into 1969 but were unable to agree on any specific plan. Keeping in touch through their friendships, they went their separate ways. While some went into business, many set up ministries, seminaries or churches in different parts of the country.

After spending some time in Washington, Braun moved to Isla Vista in spring of 1970. In I.V. he found precisely the type of "church life" for which he and the other ex-crusaders had been searching.

The group which has revolved into what is now referred to by non-members as the "Brothers and Sisters," was led by Gene Edwards, a former Southern Baptist evangelist who had also been affiliated

Carter Cuts American Import of Iranian Oil

AP— President Carter has stripped Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini of a major weapon in his psychological battle with Washington. Carter yesterday ordered an end to U.S. purchases of Iranian oil. That means the Ayatollah will not be able to threaten a cutoff of oil to the United States in his effort to force America to return the Shah.

And it appears Carter acted just in time. In Tehran, the Iranian oil minister is quoted as saying that even before the Carter announcement, the revolutionary council had decided to stop shipments to the U.S.

As for the effects of the oil cutoff in this country, that's not yet clear. Iranian oil accounts for as much as four percent of U.S. consumption. But white house officials are not ruling out the possibility that the U.S. will buy Iranian oil from other countries. The catch is that it would cost more.

In any case, the American Petroleum Institute says it will take four to six weeks for the U.S. to feel the effects of the oil cutoff. Meantime, President Carter is re-emphasizing the need for conservation. And California Governor Jerry Brown says odd-even gasoline sales will be going back into effect Sunday.

The siege at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran is in its ninth day, and there were some conflicting signals today about the prospects for an end. A Palestinian delegation gave up its efforts to negotiate the release of the nearly 100 hostages. But Iran's foreign affairs chief said the revolutionary council will discuss "a proposal concerning the American Embassy."

New Odd-Even Plan

California Returns to Rationing

AP— Californians were told yesterday they are going back to odd-even gasoline rationing Monday at 12:01 a.m. after President Carter ordered an embargo on the purchase of all Iranian oil. However, oil executives say Carter's order won't have much effect on the amount of available oil.

Governor Brown, speaking to a group at the Bonaventure, said he will reimpose the odd-even plan "As a move to further the conservation effort of this state and make sure that California does its part as part of a national effort of solidarity."

Odd-even gas sales were imposed in 14 of California's largest counties last Spring, but all those counties have since discarded the plan.

John McCabe, Group Vice President for Los Angeles-based Getty Oil Corp., says the decision by Carter will, in his words, "Make no large change in the oil supplies to the U.S."

McCabe says the approximately 800-thousand barrels a day the U.S. will lose because of the embargo can be made up by purchasing oil from other countries.

Atlantic Richfield Company spokesman Al Greenstein says "We see no immediate impact at the (gas) pump."

Greenstein says it will take time for any impact of the oil buying halt to be felt, but added that Arco, like most American oil firms, has become less dependent on Iranian oil.

Greenstein says his company imported 25-thousand to 35-thousand barrels a day from Iran this year, compared to 120-thousand barrels a day last year before the Shah was overthrown.

Iran's daily output of oil recently has been about three million barrels a day, with U.S. firms buying "about" 25 percent of the output.

A spokesman for Union Oil also said the decision would have little impact on his company.

"We refine very little Iranian oil," he said.

Experts estimate about 400,000 barrels of crude oil a day are bought directly from Iran by U.S. companies. They also buy another 400,000 barrels of oil or gas which is produced in Iran but refined elsewhere.

Counseling for Locals Available at Clinic

Low cost counseling services are now available to residents of Santa Barbara, Goleta and Isla Vista through the UCSB Counseling Psychology Clinic. While faculty and staff are welcome, UCSB students are not treated.

Assistance is provided in many areas including treatment of personal, vocational, educational, marital, sexual and familial problems. There are also a number of special programs which will be held throughout the year.

In addition to providing quality services at affordable rates the clinic serves as a training facility for masters and doctoral students majoring in counseling psychology.

Once students are accepted to the program, they spend their initial quarter in a strictly observational capacity. Upon completion of this phase of training, students are matched with clients. All counseling procedures are then under the direct supervision of the counseling psychology faculty.

The process of selecting counselors is a careful and methodical one, encompassing a range of criteria. Final judgement on prospective counselors is, according to clinic Director Dr. Elizabeth Holloway, "based on academic information, experience information and interviews with faculty and students participating in the program."

The clinic's academic approach to treatment has its drawbacks, for despite the strictness of confidence that is maintained, the knowledge that they are being observed is hard for some clients to handle. Counselor Steve Brady stated, "The fact that people are watched sometimes unnerves them and they go elsewhere." This is not a common occurrence, however. The clinic's methods, in general, leave an impression of freshness and innovation, according to the clinic's staff.

Appointments can be made by phoning 961-3375 or dropping by the clinic at Phelps Hall 1110 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Day and evening sessions are available.

Fees are $8 for individual and $12 for couple and family sessions. Lower rates can be arranged based upon the clients ability to pay.

FOR YOUR HOLIDAY TRIP HOME.
It's easy.
All you have to do is cut out, sign and send the letter below.

Dear Mom and Dad,

How are you? I'm fine, and the doctor says I'll feel even better when I get a few days' rest and a couple of home-cooked meals. But with the condition of my wallet, it looks like I'll have to hitchhike home for the holidays.

My roommate just made plans to go home with Greyhound and says Greyhound is a great way to fight inflation because their fares are so reasonable.

Greyhound even makes it possible for someone to prepay a ticket in one place so someone at another place can just pick up the ticket and come home. You can even send along a small cash advance with the ticket. Greyhound will take care of everything for just a small fee. Boy — is my roommate lucky.

Well, I have to run to pick up some more of that expensive medicine. I miss you all very much and hope to be home next weekend.

Love and kisses,

History of Theological Evolution

with Witness Lee's "Local Church". The "Brothers and Sisters" were anti-organizational and non-doctrinal, and stressed only "experiencing Christ."

Braun was so impressed by Edward's group that, at his invitation, many of his friends and followers also moved to I.V. to join the group, including another former crusade leader Richard Ballew. The Isla Vista group grew rapidly until it had a membership of almost 300 people.

However a few basic conceptual differences kept the two groups from mixing completely. Braun, Ballew and others began to disagree with the direction in which the group was going. Since both groups were opposed to authority, Braun and Ballew had no control in the group. Even Edwards moved away from the group for nine months to emphasize that the group should have no real leader.

But during his absence, Braun and Ballew, because of their experience, had taken on more responsibility within the group. When Edwards returned, the theological differences were becoming wider and what has been described as a power struggle ended only when Braun and Ballew left the group in the fall of 1972, eventually followed by about 80 others.

Again looking for direction, Braun and Ballew began meeting with Terry Thomas and several months later, with Jeff Harkin, then director of the University Christian Center in Isla Vista. The most important concepts produced by these meetings were: small "home-churches" to be affiliated with one another; an "apostolic" ministry to travel among these home churches teaching and preaching; and a system of "covering".

Covering, implied that everyone should be under the authority or discipleship of another.

Even though their experience with the Crusade left them opposed to authority, Braun and Ballew liked the concept of covering as an alternative to the "anarchy" of the group they had just left.

In June of 1973, Braun, Ballew and Thomas formed the Grace Catholic Church. After a time, Ballew and Braun appointed elders in their church, freeing them to teach, preach, and primarily study in the UCSB library.

In the meantime, ex-crusaders began meeting again and developed what became the New Covenant Apostolic Order in 1974. The executive council of this order was made up of seven former crusaders: Braun, Ballew, Jack Sparks, Ray Nethery, Peter Guilquist, Gordon Walker and Ken Bervin, acted as their apostles.

Guilquist became the president of the NCAO executive council and later the presiding bishop of the EOC. The mission of the NCAO was to teach, guide and preach to the churches under their ministry.

Also during this time, Jeff Harkin left the Christian Center and started the Calvary Way Christian Fellowship. But Harkin had abandoned his belief in covering and because of this and other conflicts with Grace Catholic teachings, the two churches grew apart and eventually had nothing to do with each other.

Sparks involvement with the NCAO had brought his organization the Christian World Liberation Front under the NCAO but some CWLF staffers objected and Sparks left the CWLF and moved to Isla Vista to join the Grace Catholic Church.

While Braun, Ballew and later Sparks were developing theologies in the UCSB library, Ray Nethery, another apostle, was also developing theologies at his Grace Haven Farm in Mansfield, Ohio.

While the direction of their philosophies sometimes differed, they were still a united movement. As Nethery put it, "We were willing to work in a tension."

In the summer of 1977, however, Eastern churches refused to teach the theologies developed in Isla Vista. A forum called in January of 1977 to resolve the issue ended with Nethery splitting from the and taking many of the midwest churches in the NCAO with him. Sources disagree as to whether Nethery "left" the order or was "put out."

With Nethery out of the order,

Grace Catholic Church became the center of the NCAO. After that, Guilquist and Walker moved to I.V. which made it even more the center of the order.

At a conference here in Feb. 1979, leaders of the NCAO decided to form a new denomination with the churches that had previously been under the guidance of the NCAO. The apostles of the NCAO became the bishops of the Evangelical Orthodox Church.

Because the Santa Barbara Diocese has the position of being the center of the denomination, it serves as a model for the other churches in the EOC. Other EOC churches around the country are also forming their own residential communities.

The concept of authority in the church is now universal throughout the denomination.

New Hearing Request

report recommended that the board "not agree to a fixed ratio of potentially new employees to housing units as a mitigation strategy, at least until the in-depth, six-month socio-economic (jobs-housing) study is completed."

"Direct to indirect employment is as issue as well as filter down indirect multipliers," McCurdy said. However, Stan Hatch, attorney for Raznik & Sons, who wish to build the Santa Barbara Business Park on Storke Road, stated that the DER study "has completely ignored the factor of out-migration. In fact out-migration over the past two years has been greater than the in-migration."

Carolynn Hatheway, of the Local Homeowners Association, spoke against the two proposals. She pointed out that Hatch was using county-wide statistics and urged the board to "encourage new business to locate in the North County where unemployment is higher and housing is available".

The board recognized the severe problem posed by the need to allow local business to expand in face of the critical housing shortage. Yet, Supervisor David Yager said, "No decision should be made without the availability of all the pertinent information. The DER report is scheduled to be ready in six months."

The board also voted to postpone the fees for the proposed Del Playa seawall. Proponents of the seawall want to create an assessment district, including all the land on the ocean side of Del Playa in order to get 100 percent support from the property owners. Before they can form the district, they would have to get an environmental review and pay $350 in fees.

An environmental review would assess whether an Environmental Impact Report must be done. The fees are postponed until a district is formed.

Carmen Lodise, member of the I.V. Park Board, called the decision a good compromise. He testified to the board that "overwhelming public sentiment has been against this project".

Me, take another exam? Are you crazy?!?

Q. The Navy Officer Qualification Test (NOQT) is a piece of cake, right?

A. Not necessarily.

If you're majoring in engineering or another technical area, we would expect you to do better on the test than an Inner Mongolian Cultural Arts major, but you won't hear us telling anyone that the test is easy. The NOQT is an aptitude exam dealing with number and letter comparison, instrumental interpretation, word analogy, practical judgement, mathematical reasoning, and mechanical comprehension involving gears, levers, pulleys, fluids, etc. For those interested in an aviation program, there is an extra section dealing with aircraft orientation.

The Navy Officer Information Team will be administering the test on campus Nov. 12-16 at 8 a.m.

Tests will be scored immediately and an Officer will be available to discuss your results and the various programs you may want to consider.

Taking the exam in no way obligates you to the Navy, but it just might tell you something about yourself. Come in and give it a shot — you might even pass!

New Findings

The demand for natural gas thrust LNG upon the Santa Barbara community, pitting businesses in the natural gas industry against the opposition of Indians, environmentalists and homeowners. Only a week ago the siting of an LNG terminal at Pt. Concepcion seemed imminent.

But a report released by the U.S. Geological Survey last Monday cited the possibility of severe damage to the terminal in the event of a major earthquake, 7-7.5 on the Richter Scale, occurring on the Santa Ynez fault. In such an event, subsequent tremors along either of two tributaries located nearer the site, the Arroyo and Beach faults, could result in a rupture of the ground causing damage to the structure of the terminal.

The Public Utilities Commission gave its approval to the site in July 1978, pending more seismic study, currently being attempted against local opposition. In concurrence, the state Resources Agency requested the Geological Survey to conduct a study based on existing findings. Their report was the compilation of that study.

We urge the Federal Department of Energy to reconvene open hearings to assess this new evidence. With local opposition growing more fierce, and the influx of new information, we believe it a necessity that the DOE reconsider its decision to build a terminal at Pt. Concepcion.

We agree with Marc McGinnes, attorney for the Chumash Indians, who said, "it's not too late."

A Bright Plan

The proposal to establish housing coops in Isla Vista, as a joint venture between the university and students is a positive step toward alleviating some of the housing problems plaguing the campus community.

We support the energetic plan and applaud the united efforts of the students, Rochdale Housing Coop, Isla Vista Community Development Corporation and most importantly university administrators. The plan, which remains to be finalized, calls for a non-profit title holding corporation to be established by the university and Rochdale, to purchase the buildings for the coops. This corporation, to be guided by a board of directors, would face an annual review for approval by the university. The board would be nominated by coop members.

Coops represent a viable alternative to regular apartment life. The success of the Rochdale Housing Project has been the model chosen to guide the proposal, and it is a good model.

In theory, a housing coop will give the students more individual control within the larger Isla Vista housing market. With rising rents and declining quality of apartments constituting two critical problems in Isla Vista, the coop concept allows students to take responsibility for these affairs of the residency.

We eagerly await approval of this proposal. It represents the much needed cooperation of the students and the university to combat the dilemma of housing in the campus community.

Anniversary

Today at noon on the UCen lawn, students will have the opportunity to learn of the controversy surrounding the 1974 death of Karen Silkwood.

Silkwood died in a car accident, the cause of which is still undetermined. It was known that she possessed documents detailing health and safety deficiencies of the plutonium and uranium fuel fabrication plant where she worked and intended to publicize the information.

We feel this controversy deserves the attention of this campus for it raises questions of ethics and responsibility in the nuclear power industry which have yet to be answered. We hope those who are concerned with such questions will attend the presentation.

20-20 Hindsight

As of this Sunday night about 60 Americans in Tehran have no rights. The Saudis have publicly expressed confidence that the good offices of the P.L.O. will have the embassy staff free within 48 hours. I fervently hope they are free before this column sees print. I fear they will not be. Do the Iranian people have the right to such actions?

There are no rights in Nature. Everything has the same opportunity to spread its genes around, from sharks to skunk cabbage. Rights are human inventions, made by people for people. Rights do not exist except with the mutual consent of people. It is a sad comment on the human condition that consent under duress is not excluded. It was my extreme good fortune to be born in a nation where the right to freedom from duress has been established. I was born with constitutional rights, courtesy of our forebears. The people of Iran are in the process of defining their rights, having only recently won the privilege.

How many people died at the hands of the SAVAK, the Shah's secret police? How many people died in the streets of Tehran to overthrow that monarch? Thousands? Tens of thousands? How many years of his dynasty and our good will did Reza Pahlavi buy with oil and the blood of his people? For all that he would have reformed Iran in the image of the west he claimed absolute monarchy and backed it up with absolute repression. When I find myself becoming outraged at the plight of our embassy staff in Tehran I try to remember the bloodbath the Shah left in his wake. I cannot forgive terrorism. But I will not forget that American support of the Shah may have been the greater evil.

Iran threw Reza Pahlavi out on his ear in 1954. We put him back in at the expense of the moderate Mossadegh government. Once back in power he made a cruelly bad job of it. In short, we backed a vicious loser, and everyone involved is still losing. Occupation of our embassy compound and victimization of American personnel in Iran is the consequence, to some degree, of our machinations in another nation's internal affairs. Having set in motion the political forces which insured that Iran had to choose the most radical of its domestic opposition groups we must now pay the piper.

We must hold our tongues and our anger until the fate of the hostages has been decided one way or the other. The sad fact is that we cannot give in to terrorism, no matter how justified it may be. To do so is to sanction the right of the terrorist to engage in terror tactics. For all that we must hold some measure of responsibility for the cruelty of Pahlavi we cannot return the ex-Shah to his people under these circumstances. Not because he is worth defending, but because we must uphold our right to be free of such coercion. Quite simply, to give in to any terrorist is to give in to all terrorists. If the people of Iran wish to try Reza Pahlavi for his crimes they may begin legal extradition proceedings. Once the hostages are free, or dead, we must remove our presence from Iran, unequivocally and immediately. Iran has earned the right to decide its own fate as long as it can.

Retribution against Iranian nationals in this country would deny the very rights we take so much pride in. To resort to vengeance against innocents lowers us to the level of those who would use terror against us. All that we can do in good conscience is exert whatever diplomatic pressure we can on the occupiers of our embassy and hope for the best. That, and remembering that we will have to pay the price for our imperial policies sooner or later. Both countries will lose as a result of this action. Diplomatic relations will probably be broken. While this will have the immediate effect of depriving this country of some fraction of its oil purchases, I suspect the breach will have a far greater impact on Iran. There will be no more student visas to America. Iranians in this country will be forced to choose between political asylum, which may endanger their families at home, or to return to a nation reduced to anarchy. It is a tragic set of circumstances. We have given Iran much of the worst of what we have to offer and they have responded in kind. There will be no winners.

Oil Workers Not Slaves

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I would like to use this space to repudiate Mr. Peter Shapiro's unsubstantiated hearsay that there may be "human slaves" still working in the Arabian oil fields.

As a past field administrator involved in fully integrated engineering and construction operations concerning "on site" hydrocarbon modification; I feel qualified, if not obligated by patriotism to speak out against such rhetorically negative speculation.

There are workers from over 72 nations partaking in the effort to build Saudi Arabia, and extract the oil. There are more people living in L.A. County than are estimated to be living in an area almost one-third the size of the U.S. It is the Saudi Government concern that there are more people of non Saudi origin than Saudis themselves.

How is this situation controlled? Very carefully.

Over 20 passport photos must go to almost as many government agencies to keep track of your whereabouts at any given time. All ports of entry are closely guarded by the military, (I was greeted by machine guns). You are not allowed entry into the country unless sponsored by an American and Saudi counterpart firm. There are constant, armed road blocks checking for personal identification, company affiliation and working capacity. This goes on all night and all day anytime of the year.

There is only one road leading across a vast uninhabitable wasteland of blowing sand, in a country in which not one single river flows. The chance of existing without company affiliation is nil. There are no life support facilities anywhere near the oil rigs, except for self contained, air-conditioned trailer camps that rival Fort Knox in security.

At first glance, there appear to be inequities concerning the living conditions (afforded at company expense) for different types of workers. The fact is, all the trailer camps for sub-contractors start out the same. There are cultures that see nothing wrong with sleeping five to a 9 x 12 room, or washing their feet in the sinks, or washing their clothes in the toilets, or cooking dogs in the hallways. This is their business and no attempts are made to change it, or Westernize it.

The point is this: There is no slavery or underground work force involving even the lowest paid workers doing the most mundane tasks. I have personally been with

Equally Ruthless Leader

Editor, Daily Nexus:

At this time last year, there were daily protests in front of the UCen by Iranian students advocating the overthrow of the Shah. I can't help wondering how these students feel now that a new tyrant has succeeded the old one.

The Shah's actions should not be condoned, but neither should the Ayatollah Khomeini's. His revolutionary regime has also abused human rights. The Ayatollah has gone too far now that he has supported the actions of a group of Iranians holding a number of Americans hostage hoping to force the U.S. to extradite the Shah to stand "trial" in Iran. Iran has gone beyond anti-American rhetoric to blatant aggression, endangering the lives of American citizens.

It is time for the U.S. to oppose the revolutionary regime with every non-violent means at our disposal. Our government should immediately sacrifice its oil imports from Iran (which they have threatened to cut off anyway) and impose an embargo on all exports to Iran. Diplomatic relations should be severed unless they are needed to negotiate the hostages release. Steps should also be taken to cancel all privileges of Iranians in this country with the possible option of deporting them.

We can not allow our country to become a puppet, acquiescing to the demands of tyrants.

Mitchell Bard

Workers

the workmen on the drilling platforms, under the ground blasting, welding pipe five stories up and in their living quarters. It was my job to know who worked in these places and when. The environment is so inconceivably desolate and hostile, where would one keep "slaves" anyway?

I am duly impressed with Mr. Shapiro's ability to quote 41 year old statistics. If there was a way to arrive at a solution, I would be all for it. There are no easy answers, only intelligent solutions to the corporate and financial disparities Mr. Shapiro is so well aware of. I for one am a little tired of this constant negative attitude towards the multi-faceted problems we as young people face today.

I give this advice to Mr. Shapiro: Cut the negative political rhetoric, take the degree off your wall, have your eyes surgically opened, and catch the first plane out into the real world to see what it's all about.

Soccer Team Finishes at 7-8-3

By ELIZABETH WEISSENBORN
It's the end of a long and winding road for the UCSB soccer team, as they traveled north to face San Jose State in their final league game, and returned home with a frustrating 3-0 loss.
"The game was much closer than the score sounds," coach John Purcell said.
It was 0-0 going into halftime. Purcell cautioned the team to be extra alert in the second half because the play off hungry Spartans would be fired up.
San Jose found the goal within the first 15 minutes, but the Gauchos did not fold. A missed penalty kick hindered an opportunity for UCSB to even up the game.

The action see-sawed back and forth throughout the rest of the game, until the Spartans punched in two goals late in the match to cap off the day.
The swan song for the Gauchos is missed opportunities and non-connecting plays, which was the extent of the first half action.
"They missed several open shots within the six yard line," Purcell commented.
"I was only disappointed because our final 45 minutes of the season weren't as strong as I'd hoped," he added.
During the booters 7-8-3 season, they won only one of seven overtime games.
Purcell noted that the team as a whole gave 100 percent effort during the year and because of all the overtime matches, no team really "blew us out."

Looking toward next season, Purcell was enthusiastic about recruiting prospects in San Diego and Saratoga and intensive weight programs for the returnees.
"The guys returning from this season are going to have to work hard to make next year's squad," Purcell said, referring to his recruiting plans.
Returning next season are four of this year's consistent standouts: Bruce Fischer, Mike Aufricht, Steve Daluz and Vince Tubbs.
"We've all learned a lot this season," Purcell said. "We were beaten and kicked around this year and we'll be a lot better prepared,

End of Line for UCSB Harriers

Last year, UCSB men's cross country team beat U.C. Irvine by four points to win the PCAA Championship. The year before that, UCSB had been last. Some thought it was a fluke that a team could come from last to first in a single year.

Last weekend, coach Tom Lionvale and his Magnificent Seven proved that it was no freak accident.

At the NCAA Region 8, Division I Championships, held at Stanford, UCSB shot down the PCAA championship for the second year in a row, demonstrating one of the best distance running programs in the West and the reason why Lionvale was chosen Coach of the Year in the PCAA.

"You have to gamble. You have to throw out the book. In such a talented race, the book is useless," Lionvale said.

Throughout the 10,000 meter course, the UCSB harriers stuck close together and maintained their high position among the leaders of the race.

"They all ran smart, gutsy, courageous races," Lionvale also said. Chris Hughes came within two seconds of qualifying for the National Championships (contrary to what was previously reported), by finishing 14 among the crowd of world class runners. He was UCSB's first finisher and second in the PCAA with a time of 31:18.3. Tim Holmes of Fresno State did qualify to go to Pennsylvania. His time was 31:16.0.

Joe Ebner, Ernie Reith and

Spikers Play Waves

The UCSB women's volleyball team travels to Malibu today to take on the Pepperdine Waves.

Last time these two teams met on Oct. 5, UCSB pulled one of their many upsets, downing Pepperdine 12-15, 15-5, 15-12, 15-13.

After winning league, it might seem that this game seems unimportant, but now it's time to be seeded in the Regionals, and a win over Pepperdine could mean a higher seed.

Don't forget to listen to the game tonight on KCSB, 91.9 FM on your radio dial. Airtime is 7:15.

Mark Hilton came in fourth, sixth and tenth in the effort for UCSB and even though Manuel Guaderama was the fifth UCSB man to cross the finish line, he was the key to their victory as he beat a pack of Fresno runners.

UCSB won the race with 39 points while Fresno followed 10 points behind with 49 points. In third place was Long Beach State who collected 76 points.

Contrary to what was printed yesterday, the PCAA Championship signals the end of the cross country season for UCSB. Already looking towards next year, Lionvale wants to narrow the gap between UCSB and the Pac-10. To do that he'll be doing some hard recruiting of "men with great metabolisms."

A career in law— without law school.

After just three months of study at The Institute for Paralegal Training in exciting Philadelphia, you can have a stimulating and rewarding career in law or business — without law school.

As a lawyer's assistant you will be performing many of the duties traditionally handled only by attorneys. And at The Institute for Paralegal Training, you can pick one of seven different areas of law to study. Upon completion of your training, The Institute's unique Placement Service will find you a responsible and challenging job in a law firm, bank or corporation in the city of your choice.

The Institute for Paralegal Training is the nation's first and most respected school for paralegal training. Since 1970, we've placed over 2,500 graduates in over 85 cities nationwide.

If you're a senior of high academic standing and looking for an above average career, call the Institute collect at (215) 732-6600 to arrange for an interview.

Municipal Airport Master Plan

Approximately 53-acres, a major part on the northern side of Hollister Avenue, could be built on if the EIR's estimates are correct. If the building occurred, the report says that 1,582 new employees could be added to Goleta.

Hone said, "The airport can be developed three different ways. The city could use its own well, lay a pipe along Fairview Avenue to the south coast conduit, or the city could execute the Overlap Agreement.

"If the Overlap Agreement is used, the water deficit will be wiped out because supply and demand will equalize each other. If we can apply new water, there would be a possibility for new growth," said Hone.

More importantly, the Overlap Agreement provides that the city water would serve the airport and make development of the airport property possible. "There would be a detachment of portions of the Goleta District and annexations to the Santa Barbara City. Future guaranteed sales of water to Goleta from the city, commencement of cooperative use of local ground water supplies beneath both Goleta and Santa Barbara would result as well. Lastly, modification of existing pipelines in the Goleta-Santa Barbara boundary area would be possible," states the agreement.

A public hearing on the Overlap Agreement is scheduled for Nov. 15, at 7:30 p.m., in the Goleta Valley Junior High School Auditorium. The agreement is available for review at the Goleta County Water District, the Goleta Library and the UCSB Library.

Miami Banks Deluged With Drug Money

(ZNS)— A new government intelligence report says that the illegal drug trade in Colombia has resulted in an incredible inflow of cash to federal banks in the Miami area.

The 102-page report estimates that $400 million in cash flowed from Colombia into the federal reserve system's bank in Miami during a recent 12-month period. Most of this money is alleged to be connected to the illegal trafficking of Colombian marijuana and cocaine.

Federal banks in the Miami area are said to be accepting large cash deposits with "no questions asked." The report noted that one bank readily accepted a deposit of $950,000 mostly in $20-bills. Another bank reportedly credited $20 million in one month to the account of known or suspected drug dealers.

According to the report, "The payments in the second case were usually brought into the bank in bags, boxes or suitcases, carried by young men who appeared to be U.S. citizens, casually dressed in jeans and t-shirts who refused to show any form of identification."

HeadShop Closure Sought

(ZNS)— The head of the drug enforcement administration is attempting to coordinate a nationwide effort that, if successful, would close down the 15,000 to 30,000 "Head Shops" in the United States.

DEA Chief Peter Bensinger, along with justice department lawyers, has drafted a four-and-a-half page single-spaced "Model Act" designed to outlaw the sale and promotion of drug related "paraphernalia."

The so-called "Model Drug Paraphernalia Act" attempts to outlaw the use or promotion of such things as "scales and balances" used for measuring controlled substances; "blenders, bowls, containers, spoons, mixing devices"; as well as water pipes, other kinds of smoking pipes and roach clips.

Bensinger charged in a recent speech that the paraphernalia business is a "parasitic industry" that is turning innocent people into drug users. The proposed law, which already has been adopted by North Dakota, was drafted as a model for each of the 50 states and other local jurisdictions to follow.

One person who is not very happy with the DEA's plan is Sid Crown, the publisher of Paraphernalia magazine in Los Angeles. Crown says he is "appalled" by the government's efforts to use tax money to promote a law that, he says, has been proven constitutional.

Crown insists that it is impossible to draft a bill that can outlaw something so vague as paraphernalia. "How can some pipes be legal, and others not?" he asks.

AS A NAVY ENGINEER, YOU COULD BUILD A HIGHWAY, A PIER, AND A HOSPITAL ALL IN YOUR FIRST YEAR.

As a Navy Civil Engineer, you get responsibility the moment you get the stripes. Responsibility on a wide range of projects. Responsibility in every area of construction and engineering management. Responsibility all engineers dream about, but most spend their first few years waiting for.

You enter the Navy as an Ensign, with the option of either a three- or four-year obligation. You'll be a Navy officer and a Navy engineer and you'll get immediate, hands-on experience.

Speak to a Navy recruiter or contact your Professor of Naval Science on campus. They'll be glad to tell you how building for the Navy is the best way to build for yourself.
