

UC Regents Convene On Campus Today

UC Student Lobbyists To Present Ethnic Economic Aid Proposals

By RICH ZEIGER
EG Editor

Regents of the University convening on this campus today and tomorrow will most likely be met by students, some from the Davis campus, lobbying for increased economic aid for minority students.

Members of the Davis Martin Luther King Coalition, who presented their demand last month that the Regents "recruit and support 100 minority students each quarter for the next four years," have been promised by President Charles J. Hitch that he would study the problem and report at this meeting. Possible alternate proposals along similar lines have been circulating on this campus during the past week, including one on behalf of the Associated Students to form a joint Regent, administrative, faculty and student committee to investigate a "long-term plan that might benefit all campuses of the University of California."

The A.S. proposal is an offshoot of a program offered by the Gandhi Group and the Bellamy Society. The two groups have also called for a "peaceful demonstration" to show the extent of student concern.

MEETING IN UCEN

To accommodate the large number of interested students the Regents will hold their Friday general business session in the UCen Program Lounge instead of the overcrowded quarters in the Administration Building. Students from this campus will be given priority over those from other campuses in obtaining seats at the meeting.

Today the Regents' Buildings and Grounds Committee will meet in the morning; the Committees on Educational Policy and Finance will meet in the afternoon.

The Regents will convene in executive session tomorrow morning; the general session will get underway at 1 p.m.

NOT SINCE LAST YEAR

There has not been a Regents' meeting on the Santa Barbara campus since last year when the Board turned down Governor Ronald Reagan's proposal to charge tuition during this year. Reagan was the only regent voting in favor of the proposal at that time.

Also a possibility for re-consideration at this meeting was the resolution passed at the previous meeting banning the Vietnam Commencement from taking place on the Berkeley Campus. A judicial ruling that could place an injunction on the resolution is expected sometime today.

General Counsel for the Regents, Judge Thomas J. Cunningham, believes that the resolution is legal.

ONLY WITH RALLY FORMAT

Berkeley to Allow Vietnam Commencement Rally

UniPress--The Dean of Students Office on the Berkeley campus will permit the Campus Draft Opposition (CDO) to hold its Vietnam Commencement rally on Sproul Hall steps Friday--but only if the program retains the character of a noon rally and not that of a commencement.

Jan Blais, Assistant Dean of Students, explained that CDO had only been granted permission "for a normal noon rally," May 17, which would include speakers and some musical groups. Although the administration has not yet defined what particular content or staging would differentiate a rally from a commencement, Blais said, "We can't very well approve it (the Commencement) in one location when the Regents have banned it in another."

Last month the Regents ruled against the Commencement being held anywhere on campus.

A statement issued April 19, explained their position: "Because of the history and format of the proposed Commencement," it would be widely regarded as being a University ceremony if held on the campus, (and therefore) it is the determination of the Regents that permission should not be granted for the holding of the proposed Vietnam Commencement."

Despite the position of the Dean's Office, however, Bruce Kirmmse, CDO steering committee member and political science graduate asserted, "There is nothing in Friday's Commencement that has not already been done at our rallies on the steps. The only thin difference is the name, and if the administration wants to make a thing about the name, that's their problem."

Blais admitted, "The program CDO described in their application for facilities is identical to what they've been doing in other rallies."

However, he said, the rally could become an illegal program should "little bits and pieces" give the appearance of a "formal commencement."

Blais continued, "If they hold the rally as they intended, that's fine. Their literature is a bit ambiguous as to the exact program however. But we have to

Racial, Ethnic Distribution at UC Crux of Student Proposal to Board

By BECCA WILSON
EG Staff Writer

A proposal to set up a "committee of inquiry" to find ways of "altering the ethnic and income class distribution" of the University's student and faculty population will be presented to the Regents tomorrow by A.S. President Greg Stamos.

Originally conceived and drafted by the campus Gandhi Group, the proposal (actually a "petition" to the Regents) is an effort to "assure that the University of California will make a lasting contribution to the minority and poverty problems of California and the nation."

Several student groups besides the A.S. government are actively supporting the proposal. The Bellamy Society was involved in drafting the proposal, and one of its members plus a member of the Gandhi Group, are scheduled to speak to the Regents. Students for Peace and Freedom, Youth for McCarthy, the Che Guevara Society, and the Martin Luther King Fellowship are backing the proposal. Also endorsing the proposal is UCSB's Academic Senate.

As proposed, the committee would consist of three Regents, one administrator, and two students from each U.C. campus (nine of the student representatives would be "from a minority or low-income background.")

REPORTS IN OCTOBER

If formed, the committee would meet two weeks after its implementation, and its subcommittees would continue meeting throughout the summer. Initial "findings and recommendations" would be reported at the October Regents meeting, and would be reported regularly thereafter.

Three major "task areas" are outlined in the proposal:

- recruitment and admission of minority and low-income students.

- supportive programs to aid these students in meeting the academic, social, and financial requirements of University attendance.

- alteration of course and curriculum as well as faculty and administrative ethnic distribution, so as to offer all students in the University a better understanding of the minority and low-income people of California and the nation.

In a letter to U.C. President Hitch from Greg Stamos concerning the proposal, he points out that the University "will be judged as irrelevant embroidery on the tapestry of the established elite by those who are presently oppressed" if it does not "act so as to provide an example for others by acting in good faith" to meet the "present social crisis in this country."

trust them to perform the program as intended."

Currently, the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has filed a suit against the University Regents on behalf of the CDO, charging that the Commencement ban illegally limits the freedom of speech and assembly and, in addition, poses a prior restraint upon the actions of the CDO.

The Federal District Court in San Francisco has ordered the Regents to appear in court Thursday, May 16, to show cause why the Vietnam Commencement should not be held as planned in the Greek Theater.

If cause is not shown, the court will issue an injunction allowing the Commencement to proceed.

Asked why it took so long for the CDO case to appear in court, Kirmmse replied that the legal machinery was "immediately put into motion," but that a few weeks elapsed in the process of understanding the Regents' ruling and in filing the proper papers.

"Actually, it's been brought to a speedy hearing,"

Project Action Mobilizes Students

By DON BOEKELHEIDE
EG Reporter

"We are young Americans, black, brown, and white, and we are appalled at the use our nation is making of its most precious resource--its youth." A petition now circulating at UCSB begins with these words. They represent the verbal foundation of Project Action, the latest attempt to mobilize American Students into an organized and effective force.

Another petition, more nice words, and yet another group of dissatisfied students. What is the point of another movement? Are there not already more than enough, particularly when one considers the student organizations which have mushroomed following the report of the President's Commission, the assassination of Dr. King, and the decision to draft seniors and grad students?

Project Action answers this question by providing a larger base for action, both through the integration of existing local groups into its statewide organization, and by attempting to appeal to the less radical but nonetheless concerned student. From this wide base the members of Project Action plan to work toward the creation of a general student lobby at Sacramento.

Also, Project Action representatives feel that money is the root of revolution and a broad base of young and potential voters will help extract that money from the Urban Coalition, and the Department of Labor and Congress. All of the

Easing the Traumatic Experience

It seems that the Regents cannot meet on this campus without some sort of major traumatic experience in the offing. As a matter of fact, it seems that they cannot meet anywhere without such an event to liven up the proceedings.

Today and tomorrow the Regents will be pressured not only by students from this campus but also by a roving band from Davis who believes that the composition of the University, in terms of minority students, must be changed. There is much truth to their assertions. The University should reflect and serve all portions of the state population not just the upper middle class.

We believe, however, that the Regents should not take the narrow view to the problem that is offered by the Martin Luther King Coalition from Davis. Certainly their program will aid their campus, and some action should be taken, but all campuses need such aid. It must come now, and it must come massively.

The Associated Students, in conjunction with the Bellamy Society and the Gandhi Group have offered a much more reasonable and practical method of approaching the problem. Their proposal calls for a committee, composed of Regents, faculty, administration and students that would be directed to "finding an effective program for altering the ethnic and income class distribution" of the University.

The committee would take into account all proposals submitted, such as the one from the Davis campus, as well as existing programs, such as the Economic Opportunity Program, in its attempt to find the best possible solution.

There is a sign that the Regents are willing to listen to all proposals in the fact that the meeting location has been changed to a room larger than the totally inadequate Regents' Meeting Room in the Administration Building.

We also approve of the decision to give priority to students from this campus in getting into the meeting. For, although a large group has come from Davis, it is only proper that UCSB students be allowed to have their chance to hear and speak to the Regents as well.

An unparalleled opportunity to improve the University is available to the Regents. We hope that it is not spoiled by inaction on their part, or for that matter, by the inappropriate action of over-zealous supporters of the programs.

Davis Delegation
Violence Threat

By RICHARD BAUME

As was noted in a recent EL GAUCHO article, there will be a delegation from UC Davis coming to our campus to hear firsthand the Regents' decision on their proposal concerning the establishment of racial balance at UC Davis. The notion of racial balance is based upon the proportionate numbers of the various minority groups in the state of California. The reasoning being that the student body of the University (UC Davis) should reflect closely the racial composition of the state.

This seems to be a valuable proposal although the specifics of the plan are open to question. My concern, however, is not with the proposal itself but rather with the delegation from Davis. There are those on campus who, not knowing the full intentions of this group, fear the possibility of too open and demonstrative a response if the Regents do not approve of their proposal at this session.

POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS

In light of the frequent use of violence on college campuses, student demonstrations and violence have taken on political implications which affect state colleges and universities especially.

Although there is no reason to anticipate violence at UCSB, the fact that situations such as this arise in which violence is possible, only points to the fact that the University is ill-equipped to handle its own problems in an orderly manner.

At U.C., as well as at other universities, whenever issues of importance are considered there is always the possibility that an appeal to violence may gain more adherents than any other proposal. The use of violence, however, is normally resorted to only when all other channels seem to be blocked; but the University, because of its lack of communicating ability and proper organization of students, has a built-in mechanism for insignificant or futile negotiations and possible conflict.

THREAT OF VIOLENCE

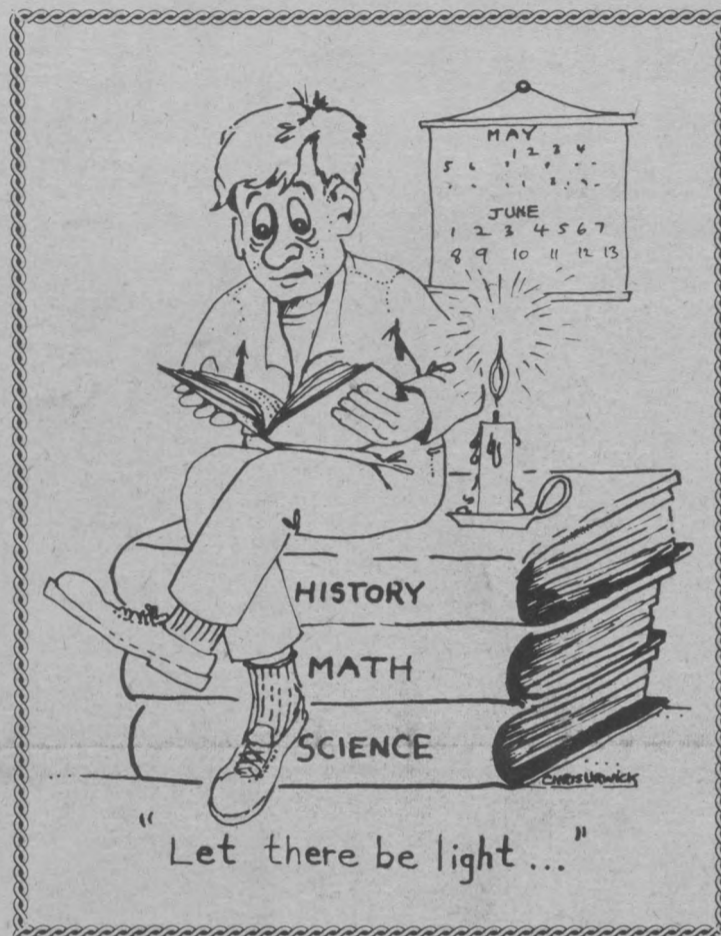

We can anticipate that the threat of violence in similar situations will continue. There is no reason for this threat to dissipate because during each new period of unrest and anxiety, students must react spontaneously and form new ad hoc committees to deal with the latest crisis. Spontaneous reactions, meaning honest reactions, are to be encouraged but there is danger that this type of reaction will result in emotional excess to the detriment of those involved as well as to their cause.

There is an obvious and pressing need for a formal, but not so formal as to suppress spontaneity, student organization which can effectively channel and coordinate student activism.

Leg Council and the other formal student organizations now in existence are hopelessly unrelated to the needs of the students and are often part of the Establishment.

From the spirit of the March to Sacramento, there was hope that such a student organization would emerge, but I am afraid that our campus political leaders have failed us as we have failed ourselves.

Until we are willing to establish an effective student organization free from the self-interest and egomania that is characteristic of present political affairs, we will be forced to thrash around for patchwork solutions to desperate problems. Only when we have effectively organized in search for the fulfillment of the University promise can we hope to realize our strength as students and to make a coherent effort to deal with the meaningful problems of our society.

LETTERS

Kallam Rise

To the Editor:

I am writing to protest the really vile misdeed perpetrated by your paper, although I have no doubt that the action was done without your knowledge. I am referring to an article allegedly written by Clay Kallam in which the writer denounces the ability of UCSB to educate students and offers himself as a horrible example of the ignorance and sloth which the University allows to flourish and graduate.

The demonstration is, of course, thoroughly convincing.

If Mr. Kallam has not yet protested this outrage, I assume that it is because he has not seen the article and that his friends were either too embarrassed to mention its existence or were helping to perpetrate the joke. Thus I will briefly summarize the contents for Mr. Kallam: the writer says that he has managed to pass a great diversity of classes without ever learning anything about them, and further that these subjects have nothing to do with what he will do after he graduates (presumably in June).

What is more appalling than the pastiche of cliches, however, is that they are arranged to seem as if the writer, "Clay Kallam," believes that it is the University's responsibility to educate its students and not the students' responsibility. The writer would further have us believe, it seems, that he has been at a University for four years and only recently noticed that students do not get such things as "a working knowledge of the business and financial circles of West Covina" (his example), nor does he seem to realize that people neither expect the University to teach such a course nor think the University capable of teaching such a course and that (naturally) no one expects a University graduate to have such knowledge.

The combination of cliches and the muddled thinking which appears to organize the cliches cleverly draws what must be a libelous portrait of Mr. Kallam, and I sincerely hope that something will be done to atone for this lamentable incident. If, however, EL GAUCHO ignores my request, I suggest that Mr. Kallam probably has very good grounds for legal action.

ROBERT DENNEY

Personal Attack

To the Editor:

Having read Mr. Navarro's letter of May 13, I cannot resist commenting on it.

I found that nowhere in the entire text of his monologue does he make any direct refutation of statements made in the letter on which he is commenting. He, apparently, is unable to find any fault with the logic; hence, he falls prey to the fallacy of argumentum ad hominem, i.e. I will attack the person and discredit him thus discrediting what he says.

The first step in his attack is to classify, stereotype and generalize, e.g., "... your super sneak racism ... your so called conservative realism ... and I know what you realistic conservatives are all about." Mr. Navarro has no possible way of knowing what someone is like with whom he has never talked nor has ever met.

He should be aware that this is the type of thinking that propagates racism and denies people treatment as individuals. I would suggest that if he wished to help end the problems with which he seems concerned, that he, in the future, shake off this urge to classify people and learn that each person is an individual and must be judged as such.

The majority of his monologue is spent in wandering away from the subject of the letter he purports to comment on. The original letter was strictly a personal judgment that the goal does not always justify the means (as in the case of the recently passed amendment) and carried no value judgment whatsoever on the intrinsic goodness or badness of the goal. Mr. Navarro seems to find it impossible to differentiate between the means and the goal; to him they are one in the same.

I would appreciate it if, at this time, he would reread the original letter, but this time without preconceived notions of what it says.

TOM PERHAM
Chemical & Nuclear Engr. Dept.View of 'Madigan'

To the Editor:

"Elvira Madigan" is a film which I enjoyed very much. I find it lamentable that it could inspire disgust from someone else as is evident in the reviewer's remarks in this paper. He must have been on his own bummer that night. The experience of seeing the film and reading the review was much like watching a bird in flight and then turning to see a trail of hunting arrows streaking after it.

The camera work was terrific: the lens with its own personality, focusing, blurring, resting quietly, chasing the textures of a girl's scarlet dress as she moved through a grain field. The symbolism was handled with the skill of grace notes in music; a bottle of wine tipped over, a handful of golden army buttons.

The music was Mozart's Piano Concerto #21, the second movement, and was not "background music" as I heard it. I mean when two masterpieces, each from a different medium by magic come into one another's orbit, it's an artistic celebration. They were transformed by one another, as Elvira and Sixten were by each other.

Most of a cinematic experience is untranslatable. I'll remember the quietness of their love, the quickness in the eyes of Sixten, the parted mouth of Elvira when she clung to him as they passed, in hunger, over the sand dunes. I think that it's a film worth seeing. I have severer concerns with the reviewer's statement that it was a world "beautiful with or without the film-maker's perception of it;" but I find my remarks inappropriate here.

HAROLD CAMPBELL

Panther Speakers

To the Editor:

Kathleen Cleaver, scheduled to speak at the lecture sponsored by the Santa Barbara Peace and Freedom Movement in Campbell Hall on April 30, was unable to appear. Her place was to be taken by Bobby Seele, Chairman of the Black Panther Party in Oakland.

Seele arrived an hour late at the Los Angeles Airport and then became involved in traffic and directional problems on the Los Angeles freeways. Because of the late hour, he asked to be driven back to the Los Angeles Airport and returned to Oakland.

The Santa Barbara Peace and Freedom Movement is disappointed in the fact that the large audience in Campbell Hall was unable to hear about the Black Panther Party from a spokesman for that group. Money donated that evening, however, has been sent as announced to the defense fund for Eldrige Cleaver, Minister of Information of the Black Panthers.

Santa Barbara Peace & Freedom Movement

'Pragmatic Leadership'

To the Editor:

I feel compelled to respond to Peter Blaikie's article "The McCarthy Euphemism." Senator McCarthy was described as a representative of "the Adlai Stevenson class" who believes that "war is irrational and peace is vital." Mr. Blaikie stated that what we really need is "pragmatic leadership, not idealistic conviction." I disagree.

In 1964 Johnson offered exactly what Kennedy is offering now -- pragmatic leadership and peace. The last four years have clearly demonstrated that "pragmatic leadership" and peace are incompatible. A man who wants to manipulate the government and unify the country must have a distorted vision of peace.

Peace will require a massive transfer of power away from the government, especially from the Presidency. Much of this power (resources, responsibility, etc.) must go to local communities -- primarily to the black community. Much of it must go to the United Nations which might then be able to deal with such world problems as genocide (Vietnam), the arms race, overpopulation, and development of the Third World. Peace will also require drastic changes in personal values and public institutions (abolishment of the draft). Can a man who promises strong leadership and unity promote peace?

McCarthy seems a more effective peace candidate if only because he doesn't offer strong leadership and unity. Certainly men like McCarthy and Stevenson will do more to realize the vision of lasting peace than men like Kennedy and Johnson.

Finally, after much procrastination, the evil faint-hearts of Leg Council have agreed to meet the courteous, brave and reverent Communications Clouters in a game of sheer skill -- slow pitch softball.

Matched against the Morgan-Le-Fays of Leg Council on the pitching mound will be the blushing beauties of EL GAUCHO, La Cumbre and KCSB. With only females allowed to pitch, the A.S. politics may have a chance to hit the ball.

After the Communications 14-6 victory in football, Greg Stamos and crew were reluctant but finally a time was set. Five o'clock this Sunday afternoon, the bells will toll for -- ah, but modesty forbids.

As always, the stakes are a tea-and-cookies party put on by the losers, and we of the Clouters look forward to a repetition of the fall's festivities.

Unfortunately, the stars of the football Beer Bowl, the Brothers Zant, will be (a) not playing and (b) hampered by a knee injury. The Pen is mightier than the Sword.

NAILING IT HOME Mr. IM?

BY GOLDHAMMER

One of the main events on the calendar of considerable interest is the selection of the most valuable athlete in intramurals. The winner last year was Bruce Williams and it could be that this year's winner will again come from the confines of the little brick house on Embarcadero del Norte.

Pete Hall is first on the list of prospective candidates for the award. Pete was a stalwart on the Sig Ep football team, and was an overwhelming choice for player-of-the-year. In addition to his exploits on the gridiron, Hall captured sixth in the cross country meet, first in badminton singles, and teamed with Craig Rubenstein for a second in badminton doubles. Pete was the steady influence on the all-school championship basketball team, Durango.

Another Sig Ep that rates high on the pollster's list is Bruce Williams, one of the mainstays on this year's intercollegiate volleyball team. Although he captured last year's award in a walk away, he will have a harder time this year as he has not played in any of the spring sports. Bruce was selected for the all-school team in both football and basketball, and it is he who made the famed Sig Ep double pass a weapon to be feared.

AND MORE SIG EPS

Two other members of the "Red Army," Craig Rubenstein and Joe Green, have guided the house to high place finishes. In football, Rube was the master quarterback and Green was a good receiver, both being named all-IM. Jumpin' Joe was the player-of-the-year in basketball and Craig was no slouch either as he was one of the most feared outside shooters. They are currently responsible for the fine showing in baseball.

The Cool Clutch Clan swept to another victory in the all-school trophy race and although this was more of a team effort, Steve Murray may be singled out for his excellent performance. Murray was the leader of the most powerful offense in football, one that averaged 41 points a game. He also was a fine bowler with an average of close to 200.

Jim Olson was just accepted to dental school for next year, and there are a lot of SAE's who are mourning. Olsen set the new football record for most points scored in a season and was an outstanding performer in basketball and volleyball.

MILLER FOR PHI DELTS

One of the newer houses on school, the Phi Delt, have had a successful season which was largely due to one man, Mike Miller. You name the sport and Miller has done it for the Phi Delt.

Bruce Morton is a similar case for the Lambda Chis, having paced them to a fine second place finish in football and to the semi-finals in basketball.

Jack Brigham was the anchor man for the Alpha Delt in basketball, as they just about defeated Durango in the opening round of the basketball championship. Brig was also a member of their fine football team.

The selecting board will not have an easy time of it this year in their attempt to select Mr. IM. There are numerous candidates, but assuredly every one of them would not be a poor choice. The voting ends on May 27 and the results will be announced shortly thereafter.

Gorrie All Smiles As Wasco Wins It

By ALAN GOLDHAMMER
 EG Sports Writer

Finishing off their most successful year in history, Gorrie's gang downed the Matadors from San Fernando by a 12-4 count. It was a day when two Gauchos were trying to hit the magic .400 mark, but they both fell short.

Steve Nonneman and Dick David both needed a couple of hits to accomplish the feat, but David went hitless and Nonneman was two for four, finishing at .398 to David's .391. Bill Reuss kept up his game RBI average as he drove in a run with a double, but the big sticks in the contest were Rich Emard and Gary Nelson.

Nelson, who sat out half the season with a knee injury received in a wrestling match, had two extra base hits, a double and triple which accounted for three RBI's, Emard who also closed out his career as a Gaucho, also had 3 RBI's, scored a pair of runs, and stole two bases.

The star-of-the-day award went to Wasco Permenter, who hurled 5-2/3 innings of one-hit relief. Freshman Mark French started the contest and had a good first inning but ran into control problems in the second when Permenter came in. Through his stint, Dick struck out three and contributed to the Gauchos' attack with a hit and some fancy base running.

Closing out the season with a 30 and 12 record, the Gauchos are the second ranked team on the coast behind USC. Perhaps there is some claim to the number one spot as the local crew downed the Trojans twice this season.

Vietnam Commencement

 he added. The administration has not yet decided what course of action it will take if the CDO loses its court case but nonetheless continues to call the Friday rally a "commencement," Blais said.

However, he intimated that problems with the program's legality would arise from the "substance behind the name, not just the name itself." The name is significant, Blais added, because it might imply that the Commencement is sponsored or approved by the University.

"I was specifically told by Professor Richard Strohmman when he turned in the application for the rally that it would not be called a 'Commencement,'" Blais asserted.

But Strohmman denied this. "I never said that it wouldn't be called a 'Commencement.' On the application it's just called a 'rally' because everything held on the steps is a rally. "However, on the application I clearly stated the purpose of the rally is to carry out the purposes and functions of the CDO." Part of the original statement approved by the University when CDO was made a campus group states that it was CDO's purpose to culminate the pledge-gathering activities with a public ceremony, according to Strohmman.

Martin Roysner, CDO steering committee member and senior history major, affirmed, "In that case we don't intend to substitute a rally for the Commencement. The important thing is that a public activity supporting draft resisters take place on the campus. Friday will see a Vietnam Commencement here."

CSDI SPEAKER

As planned now, the program will begin with an address by Robert Hutchins, director of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. Other speakers will be Ron Dellums, Berkeley city councilman, and draft-resister Christian Hayden and his father, actor Sterling Hayden.

In addition, citations of merit will be presented to the mother of army-resister Ronald Lochman, and to John Wells, a student here currently in a military stockade for refusing to report for army reserve duty. Wells' certificate will be accepted by his sister Judy.

There will also be a "mass reading" of induction refusal pledges made by many of the 600 students who have signed them as well as a reading of support pledges signed by professors and others, Roysner said.

He explained that the CDO letter to University President Charles Hitch requests that he (Hitch) "intercede with the Regents to defend the rights of his students to resist the draft by going to jail."

The letter also urged Hitch to "assure the State of California and the University that students who resist the draft by going to jail will be re-admitted to the University with no discrimination," Roysner continued.

Reg Cards

Today is the day for students with last names H-O to have their pictures taken. As you all know, these are the pictures which will appear on your fall reg card so they MUST be taken. Go to room 2292 in the UCen, and enter from the balcony side. Do not pass Go. Do not collect $200.

Project Action Petition

 above groups expressed interest if Project Action can prove that collegians support the program.

The petitions now circulating here and throughout the state will serve as the proof. The petition outlines a three-step program based on the assumption that America is "a racist society," that "to sacrifice our lives in Southeast Asia at the very time our nation faces civil war . . . is madness," and that "this is no time for a 20 year, long range plan."

The first step will be mutual education, an attempt to see beyond "the ghettos of attitude." The second will be community involvement, not as a Vista invader, marinated in the "white man's burden" orientation, but rather as a messenger to our own white community. Finally, Project Action intends to provide manpower for indigenously-run programs in underprivileged areas.

In the words of Marianna Stapel, "Project Action calls for a revolution in America, a non-violent revolution." Perhaps Project Action will weld the splinters of student dissent into a broadsword capable of changing the character of the United States.

Correction

There were several incorrect statements in the article on Santa Barbara housing (EG May 15). Fred Simmons did not mean to imply that the City Council was entirely made up of "old conservatives." He rather meant that conservatives in the past have run Santa Barbara. There is no County "Lower End" housing program; the program referred to is the Federal Low Rent Housing program. Furthermore, there is no "free rent for five years" included in the project; the federal government pays one-half of the rent and the owner pays the other half.

EL GAUCHO apologizes for these mistakes.
