Emergency Meeting of Trustees Discusses Plagued S.F. State

By JOHN HANKINS
EG Staff Writer

A third "nuisance" bomb went off yesterday at San Francisco State while an emergency meeting of the Trustees was held in Los Angeles to discuss the Black Student Union's demands and the reopening of the college.

The bomb was set off in the College's main auditorium, causing only minor damage and no injuries.

Meanwhile, a bomb of another sort was exploding at the Trustees' meeting. Most of the Trustees want the college opened, yet Robert Smith, President of S.F. State, said the reopening carries "some kind of risk," and that "it would be a serious mistake if extra police had to be brought to the campus when it reopens."

REAGAN DEMANDS OPENING

Governor Reagan insisted the school be opened and Chancellor Glenn Dumke agreed, adding, "If this means maximum security against disruption and violence, so be it."

The opening date is now set for tomorrow, one week after its closing, and two weeks after the start of the student strike.

The strike at San Francisco State started when George Murray, a faculty member and Minister of Education of the Black Panther Party, was suspended by Smith on orders from Dumke.

Murray was suspended because he said, "Black and brown students should carry guns at all times to protect themselves from the racist administrators." This statement also brought an investigation of him by Smith, and eventually led to his suspension.

STRIKE JOINED

When Murray called for a strike by the Black Student Union on November 6, the Students for a Democratic Society voted to join them.

From there, events happened quickly. Students confronted Smith demanding the reason for the San Francisco police tactical force being on campus. A minor incident caused this when a television cameraman claimed he had been attacked by two black students.

ROCKS AND BOMBS

Other incidents, such as rocks being thrown at the police and small nuisance bombs being set off, caused the shutdown in hopes of resolving the issues.

The police action against the students united them, and many faculty members joined the strike. It even united Governor Ronald Reagan and Democratic Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh in condemning Smith's decision to close the campus. Even the quiet non-academic staff members got into the act by demanding protection from "vandals, ruffians, arsonists and amateur demolition squads," in the words of William Insley, chairman of the College's staff assembly.

BSU DEMANDS

The demands of the Black Student Union, which touched off the strike are:

- To open a Black Studies Department which will be fully accredited and lead to degrees.

- The right to hire professors autonomously for the program.

- A full professorship and matching salary for Nathan

Community Service Center Opens Tonite To Serve Santa Barbara Area Minorities

A Community Service Center for Santa Barbara, designed to serve the needs of the minority populations in and around Santa Barbara will open tonight at 423 N. Milpas Street. The Center will include such services as translation, referral to public agencies, a diagnostic medical clinic, tutoring for school children, consumer education classes, and voter registration and information seminars.

The Center will be operated by leaders of the Mexican-American community, who will in turn draw upon interested and concerned people to provide assistance.

The conception for such a Service Center came from the newly organized Mexican-American Community Action Group. Chairman of the organization is Arthur Avina, and leading members include Antonio Molina, George Guzman, and Ollie Olivas. The Center will be staffed full time by Vera Quiroga, a prominent leader of the Mexican-American community in Santa Barbara.

Also instrumental in the establishment of this Center has been a campus group, the Santa Barbara Action Corps. This group has been raising funds and offering assistance in the formation of programs for the Service Center. Chairman of the group, Roger Arbuckle, expressed confidence that University students will be able to make an important contribution to the programs of the Center.

The public is invited to attend the opening night ceremonies which will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Refreshments will be provided, and prominent local speakers will appear.

Western ROTC Leaders Plan Future Revisions

Representatives from the military and academic communities of the western states confronted each other in San Francisco on November 8 to discuss the future of ROTC on college campuses.

Upton Palmer, Associate Dean of Letters and Science, and Colonel Dewey of the Military Science Dept. represented UCSB.

The purpose of the discussion was to consider ways to improve the ROTC program, and methods of encouraging enrollment. Resistance to the program was also a major concern.

MORE ACADEMIC

"In general," Palmer noted, "there was a feeling at the meeting to make the program more academic and to discourage the training elements, such as tearing down an M-1."

Expressing his pleasure that the Army is considering re-vamping the ROTC programs, Palmer pointed out that "the Army must keep in mind the new philosophy that came out of the Nuremberg trials -- that the individual is responsible to his conscience before an officer or the state.

"About one-half the people who were there," Palmer added, "were concerned with the practical aspect of the military. They should give more concern to the possibility of total war rather than to limited war."

Palmer elaborated on how this shift of emphasis must come by trained officers who should study "more history, psychology and sociology. The best military man is the one who has understanding."

MILITARY SLOW

Convinced that the way to peace lies in a diplomatic vein, with war as a last resort, Palmer noted that "the military has always been slow to react, but is now eager to accept suggestions."

Many ideas were thrown around at the meeting, but it is unsure whether or not it accomplished anything concrete. Palmer stated, "the assumption is that the military will act on some of the suggestions."

More meetings might be held if the military deems this past one fruitful and necessary. The whole encounter was recorded and the speakers were asked to submit their views in writing to the Sixth Army.

Panther Speech This Afternoon

Bobby Seale, chairman of the Black Panther Party, will be speaking before the student body at 3 this afternoon in the stadium.

Seale has been highly involved with the black movement since meeting Huey Newton and Eldridge Cleaver at school in Oakland. He is considered by Ramparts magazine as the most eloquent spokesman of the black people.

Seale will be speaking here in lieu of Cleaver who has so far been unable to schedule an appearance on this campus.

The lecture is being co-sponsored by the Biafran Rescue Organization to Hasten Emergency Relief (BROTHER), the Black Student Union (BSU), and the Residence Halls Association (RHA).

Seale will arrive on campus this morning and spend the day addressing classes and meeting student groups.

Computer Speech Set For Thursday

"The Range of Uses of Modern Computers" will be the subject of Dr. Glenn Culler, UCSB professor of electrical engineering and director of the computer center, when he speaks in Engineering Building, Rm. 1104, 4 p.m. Thursday.

The public is invited to hear the talk which is part of the faculty lecture series on "Communication and Information Storage."

Culler has for many years been engaged in the development of techniques for using high speed computing machinery as a tool for mathematical research. Formerly working on on-line computation at the Thompson Ramo Wooldridge Corporation, he developed a radically new and productive approach to the solution of complex problems of mathematical physics.

A former consultant to Project MAC at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Culler also has been associated with the Radiation Laboratory at UC, Berkeley.

Cancellation

The lecture by architect Charles Moore, scheduled for Tuesday (November 19) in Campbell Hall at UCSB has been canceled.

Moore, chairman of the department of architecture at Yale and designer of UCSB's Faculty Club, said his administrative duties at Yale forced the cancellation.

Chancellor's Commission Offers Hope

ISSUE: Is the Chancellor's Commission to investigate problems of racism going to accomplish anything?

communication.

As organized, this commission does not have "original power"; it cannot mandate changes on its own desire. Instead, it is really an investigative body and a liaison. In the first capacity, it must take a good, long look at our campus in the area of racism; and in the second, it must make students aware of what the bureaucracy is doing and vice-versa.

In an investigative capacity, the commission should look not only at what has not been done, but at what is being attempted presently. It seems to us that programs should be subject to the criticism of students from those minorities it is intended to benefit; if they are excluded, there is too great a chance that the pro-

Almost immediately after the black student occupation of North Hall and the Computer Center, Chancellor Cheadle set up a commission designed to prevent the frustration which made the occupation inevitable by opening lines of gram will not take into account factors which are important, and which might be evident only to black or chicano students.

The commission should also attempt to make the Academic Senate aware of the desperate need for black and brown faculty on this campus, and attempt to bring minority students and faculty members together in order to find these people.

In a communication capacity, the commission, as it seems to be well aware of, must not become simply a group that hears complaints and excuses. The essence of communication is to finally begin to understand, rather than just become aware of, the feelings of other men.

More important than this is the need for this commission not to become a closed circuit; for the 10 members of the commission to understand each other is a beginning, but the goal must be for white students, faculty, administration, blacks and chicanos in general to understand each other.

As we said, the commission seems to be well aware of the problems it must cope with. Hopefully it will prove to be a step in the direction of more complete communication.

(Re: Yashinsky letter of November 13, 1968.)

Here are the reasons that I will request that that portion of my fees allotted to the EL GAUCHO be withheld next quarter.

I can no longer be at peace with myself thinking one thing about the function of a newspaper and in actuality giving it my financial support, I have to break through the barricades of society and stake out the terms of my own moral action. (Watch out liberal journalists!)

It is a relative moral line that I advocate--somewhere between Uncle Tom and the "Areopagitica." But it is so easy in this society for a man never to think, and to put his thought into a newspaper.

Others may of course get ahold of themselves (which is a rare event for American males, and which is exactly what I'm doing through my confrontation with the EL GAUCHO: Ah! the ecstasy of rebellion for truth's sake!) while continuing allegiance to the EG. I can't.

My money is too precious to me to throw it away in supporting Dan Yashinsky's want-ad testimonials and mock-sentimental masochism. It's too much like sour grapes.

Pushing Ayn Rand

There is no academic freedom at UC Santa Barbara. A year and a half ago, I and many others marched to Sacramento to protect from alleged external threats "our right" to freely inquire into the nature of things. I think that that right has been denied, but I think that the threats are internal.

"Our academic freedom" means that teachers have unlimited exclusionary powers and the right to compel students to think about what the teacher has previously determined to be "absolutely appropriate and relevant" subject matter, and no one can intervene, especially the administration. I say "compel" because bad grades lead to dismissal.

Grades are of course used to punish laziness, but they are also used to stifle dissent and creative reasoning. Every student is expected to study and learn over a "trap door;" one false move and you are out... "play the game" and "sell-out" or fail. "Academic freedom" for teachers only is academic slavery for students.

I, other students, and the Spirit of Sacramento have been and are being betrayed. I want objective standards.

A few weeks after the March to Sacramento, I stumbled upon a book called "Atlas Shrugged" and discovered Ayn Rand's philosophy of Objectivism. To the best of my knowledge, no one has dared to mention her name in EL GAUCHO or to recommend her works for study. Let me be the first.

To help formulate needed objective standards, let me also suggest, in particular, the following Objectivist works: Ayn Rand's "Introduction to Objectivist Epistemology" and "The Cashing-in; The Student Rebellion" in "Capitalism: The Unknown Ideal," and Leonard Peikoff's "The Analytic-Synthetic Dichotomy" in the May to September 1967 (vol. 6, nos. 5-9) issues of "The Objectivist" journal.

I am not "pushing a philosophy" as one pushes marijuana, nor am I interested in dogma (we get enough of that in class as it is). Rather than impose systems, I want people to become aware of what is inherent in the present system. I think that Objectivism is indispensable to academic freedom at UCSB and can help students to improve their own intellectual and academic condition. This school has a problem, and I would like to help point the way to a solution.

Mestizaje

By Joseph Navarro

Gold lured the Spaniards into the Southwest. As most of you know, once the Spaniards discovered that gold was not to be found in the area, they lost interest, and the borderlands were neglected and remained isolated from the sixteenth through nineteenth centuries.

Despite the fact that only a few Spaniards settled in the Southwest, and that only a limited area came under their effective control--the Spanish influence on the culture of the Southwest is nothing less than permanent and enormous.

In addition to their language, religion, law, and institutions, the Spaniards taught the "Indian" of the Southwest to hammer silver and copper; to work iron; to use plows and hoes; and how to build without timber by use of adobe, brick and stone.

The Spaniards introduced into the Southwest a variety of plants, goats, pigs, cats, sheep, cattle, and horses. The first wheels to turn in the Western Hemisphere were Spanish. I could go on at great length elucidating on the legacy of the Spanish. The important thing to remember is the vital role played by the Mexican and "Indian" in preserving and adapting Spanish culture.

Neglected by the prosperous urban centers in Mexico, the Spanish settlers intermarried with the "Indians," and from them also, learned to survive in the region. Carey McWilliams writes that the settlers "isolated in time and space . . . were compelled to plant things firmly in the soil.

"What survived may have later appeared to be scrawny, crude, and mishapen; but it was unquestionably tough, well-adapted, and indigenous. While the form or model was often Spanish, the ultimate adaptation showed unmistakable Mexican and Indian influences. If the Spanish were the carriers of seeds and plows, Mexicans and Indians were the planters and plow hands."

Frank J. Dobie, the foremost authority on the Southwest, indicates that "the Mexicans naturally inherited and assimilated Indian lore about plants, animals, places, all kinds of human relationships with the land. Through the Mexican medium, with which he is becoming more sympathetic, the gringo is getting the ages-old Indian culture."

Next time, we shall focus on California.

SAE Meets Delts Today As IM Playoffs Approach

By CLAY KALLAM
EG Sports Staff

In a do-or-die battle for perennial bridesmaid, SAE, the once-beaten fraternity takes on the top-ranked and undefeated Delts at 4 p.m. today to determine whether or not they will make the post-season tournament.

In another battle that will shake up the Century League standings even more, twice beaten Pass/Fail, winners of their last four straight, will challenge Sigma Chi (5-1), and if Pass/Fail should win there will be at least a two and possibly a three-way tie for second place.

The thought of all these combinations and permutations has student IM Director Jim Fitzgerald in a state of constant hassle. Everyone wonders who will make the playoffs and why didn't their team get in, etc. In a very tentative bracketing, it looks like seven dorm teams, all tied for first place in their leagues will make the playoffs.

MORE QUALIFIERS

From the Anacapa Division, Yuma and Pima have qualified; in the San Rafael League, Toyon, Sycamore and Yucca will make it; and Diablo and Sierra are in from the Santa Rosa-San Miguel League.

That leaves nine other slots open. In B Division, High Society and the Weasal A.C. from the Peninsula League could both qualify (provided that Weasal defeated 2-2 Francisco Torres number seven yesterday), as could the Lords and the Innmates from the Island League.

However, the Innmates have a game under protest with Charlie Brown, and until a decision is made there, that, too, remains up in the air.

MAE ON TOP

Mae's Marauders seem to have first place locked up in the Inland League, but they have not met one of the teams yet and they are not scheduled to play, so chalk up one more league as uncertain. However, if Mae's Marauders should tie that game that would throw that league into a three-way tie and Fitzgerald doesn't want to think about it.

If the teams with only one loss are taken from the B Leagues, a very tentative solution, that leaves four slots open for the A Division, the top two in each division. Which means, SAE must win today or start practicing basketball. Lambda Chi and the Sig Eps will both qualify in the Coastal League, but the winner in tomorrow's contest will have a better seed.

SEPUT TALLIES

In action last week, number three Sigma Phi Epsilon roared past the Canadian Club 27-7 with Mike Mathews scoring twice for the winners. Gary Seput strengthened his bid for All-IM end as he scored 19 points in a Phi Delt 38-14 rout of ZBT. Ruggers Whip Mustangs

Santa Barbara's rugby team, ranked sixth in the nation last year, got this year's season off to a flying start Sunday with a 21-0 slaughter of Cal Poly (SLO).

Pete Kerhli led the Gaucho scoring assault with two tries, while Steve Honneger, Jack Buttery, and Lee Rice all tallied one try apiece.

Two conversions were added by Dave Hardy, and one by Rod Sears, who coaches the ruggers but is eligible to play since it is not an official intercollegiate team.

The official rugby season does not get under way until February, although there will be practice games during January. Until then the scrummers will bide their time competing in seven-man tournaments (as opposed to the normal 15-man teams).

NAILING IT HOME
A Word of Thanks
 ALAN GOLDHAMMER

Even the radiant smiles of Queen Marty could not dispell the gloom that hung over the heads of Doug Barker and Stan Pareto Saturday. For them and the other seniors on the squad the battle had come to an end; one that was harsh and real.

Coming from the North Bay community of San Rafael, both Barker and Pareto had played together in high school before parting for a short period of time. Pareto decided to enroll at Oregon State while Barker came to Goleta. They were reunited after two years and both were instrumental in the Gaucho's performance of 1967.

Always a rugged blocker, Barker played tackle in the prep leagues, but when it was found out that he could catch the ball and run with the abandon of a run-away car he was moved to tight end. After spending his sophomore year playing in the shadow of John Keever, Barker assumed full control last year.

VICIOUS BLOCKING FEARED

He served notice to defensive linemen that he wasn't just a pass receiver who was placed at the position. His vicious blocking aided the Gaucho rushing attack so that the off tackle play became feared up and down the coast. Teaming with tackle Charlie Cruzat this year, Barker's line plays enabled Tom Broadhead to break his season rushing record.

But the season was not all roses and rainbows for the Gauchos or Barker. After the Texas game, which was one of Barker's best, the elevator took a quick drop down. Barker dropped a couple of passes against Nevada and Tampa and as a result his blocking suffered. Then came the sprained ankle which cut down his speed decidedly and forced him to sit out most of the Santa Clara and Long Beach games.

With the minor aches and pains he was in there against UOP and Cal Poly. But even with his yeoman performance the Gauchos could not quite pull it out of the fire.

Pareto is built along the same lines as Barker, strong and thick, but he is half a foot shorter. With a lack of size, one must be extremely aggressive which Pareto is. Displaying a fury that bordered on the psychotic, Pareto made the offensive backfield into a giant mumble-ty-peg game.

NOW YOU SEE HIM . . .

Knifing his way through the blockers from his weakside line-backing position, Pareto forced the quarterbacks into mistakes. The quarterbacks often didn't know what to think, as they either couldn't see Pareto because of his height or did not expect such quickness. How can somebody be blocked if you can't see him?

The last battle has been fought, and the wars are ended for these two and the others who finished out last Saturday. Although they won't go to Pasadena or Sacramento this year, it wasn't because they didn't have heart. When the going got tough they never gave up.

The thrills were there too. Who can forget about the catches of Jim Priest and Steve Moore or the stunning defense of Mike Cobb, not to mention the offense led by Broadhead and Jim Cur-tice. They all deserve a pat on the back and a word of thanks.

IM Ranking Realignment

After a week of upsets and surprises, the IM poll has changed around radically. Lambda Chi has snatched second place away from the Sig Eps and Sigma Chi snagged fourth from SAE. Pass/Fail made its first appearance on the poll, and Diablo recaptured the first spot in the final Dorm poll of the season.

Due to space limitations we are not able to print the top scorers today, but Art Lyons of the Innmates is first in both points and average with 109 points in seven games, a 15.6 average. John Fasola of Pass/Fail is third with a 10.3 average behind Tim Degani of SAE who is averaging 12.1.

Regents' Lecturers, Professors Recommendations Due Friday

The Arts and Lectures Sub-Committee for Special Lectureships invites recommendations from students, staff, and faculty for nominations of Regents' Lecturers and Regents' Professors during academic 1969-1970.

Regents' Lecturers are invited onto campus for a period of a month and are appointed by the Chancellor; Regents' Professors are invited onto campus for a quarter and are appointed by the Regents. No one having an academic appointment at another educational institution can be appointed to a lectureship or a professorship.

The Regents' Lectureships and Professorships have been in existence for a number of years. Those appointed to the positions are expected to give a few public lectures and to make themselves available for consultation by students and faculty and for participation in departmental seminars.

The idea behind the appointments is to bring onto campus distinguished authorities from all over the world in special areas, to increase and to enrich the courses and other opportunities already available.

Recommendations, signed or unsigned, should be submitted in writing to Mrs. Ruth Cole, secretary, Arts and Lectures Sub-Committee for Special Lectureships, Building 402, or to Professor Alfred Moir, chairman, Arts and Lectures Sub-Committee for Special Lectureships, Room 1212, Arts Building. Recommendations should be submitted not later than Friday, November 22.

The BSU has stated that it will continue to strike until every one of its demands are met. Smith, however, wants "to get the campus open and leave room to settle some of the outstanding issues afterward."

BSU's 'Gold Power' Tonite; 'Mind-Stretching Dialogue'

The Black Student Union of UCSB presents "an evening of mind-stretching dialogue bitterly entwined with passionate delineations of ideas that are essential to us all," tonight in Campbell Hall at 8 p.m.

"The ideas expressed in the play, 'Gold Power,' may not be new, but its author Cecil Rhodes has demonstrated that he can express them soulfully in both, even three sides of an argument," according to BSU spokesmen.

"In his play on Blackness there is a division drawn between the good fundamentalist's 'forgive them for they know not what they do' attitude and the black nationalist's creed of self-determination and separation from the 'white devil.' In the play, we find that the author is fair to the Christian argument.

"This play deals with the 'change it from within' school as opposed to the 'bring the system down' school.

"The play is subtitled, 'Once Upon a Time There Were Three Black Brothers,' and deals with three mythical sons of Martin Luther King who meet after four years of separation. One brother has been traveling the world from Cambodia to Cuba, from Hanoi to Moscow and is believed to be a Communist. Another brother is a Muslim who follows the doctrine of the most honorable Elijah Muhammad. The third brother accounts for the Christian element prevalent in black society.

"The action which the Communist brother intends to take is so ruthless that in spite of his motive being the avoidance of an all-out nuclear war, they (the other brothers) cannot support him. In the final analysis, the audience is left to make its own decision as to what must be done."

General admission is $2; $1.50 for students.

Seale Speech...

At 3 this afternoon Seale is scheduled to address the student body and the general public. The content of the lecture has not as yet been disclosed.

Cleaver recommended that Seale speak to the students here this quarter; he hopes to make it here himself next quarter. Saed Akashah, A.S. lectures Committee chairman, believes that the Seale lecture will be even better than the cancelled Cleaver lecture would have been.

Tickets for the lecture may be purchased in the UCen Information Booth or at the gate to the stadium for 50 cents. All proceeds for the lecture will go to assist the children dying of starvation in the Nigerian/Biafran war.

Students still holding tickets for the Cleaver lecture may use them at this time.
