SIMONS SINGS WITH TWILIGHT
GROUP TOMORROW NIGHT

"Music of Western Plains" is the theme of the Twilight Sing scheduled for tomorrow night in the Quad. Sam Simons, popular campus baritone, will offer a group of selections from his repertoire, which will include "Shortin Bread" and others.

The enthusiastic group that gathered last week for the "preview" of Fiesta songs indicated that they would like to sing some of them again. In the program will be included some of these songs.

Sam, who has had experience singing opera with a group in Los Angeles, also has had many roles in local musical productions. Everyone will recall him in the Roadrunner Revue last Spring in which he did a specialty act aping the popular conception of an operatic soprano. Through the hilarious burlesque the audience could distinguish his fine baritone voice.

Currently, Sam is working on the Fiesta operetta, "La Noche Serena", composed by H. Klyne Headley, member of the Music Department Faculty.

The weekly Twilight Sings are under the direction of Helen M. Barnett, associate professor of Music.
