Audit Committee Asks A.S. President to Resign

By Steve Elzer
Campus Editor

An ad hoc committee which investigated Associated Students expenditures recommended Wednesday night that Legislative Council ask A.S. President Jim Hickman to resign from office.

The committee's findings were disclosed at the first Leg Council meeting of Fall Quarter, after months of speculation.

Started in spring, 1985, the special group's inquiry into allegations that executive officers misspent student funds suggests that punitive campus regulations be applied to Hickman and 1984-85 A.S. President Darryl Neal.

According to the report, Hickman cannot satisfactorily account for $556.83 in American Express card expenses made during his 1984-85 term as external vice president;

Neal allegedly made $1,835.34 in unrecollectable credit card charges while in office.

"The recommendation requesting my resignation was a complete surprise," Hickman said after the meeting. "This recommendation is inconsistent with the A.S. Constitution and the campus regulations that are the foundation of the recommendations."

Neal said that he would "give a complete statement at next week's meeting and answer the alleged charges."

The student committee, composed of Internal Vice President Todd Smith, Finance Board Chair Rick Berry, and former council member Elizabeth Hunter, released its findings in a UCen room packed with students, faculty and administrators.

"I move that James Hickman submit his resignation to this Legislative Council by October 16, 1985," said Berry, the committee chair. Smith did not take part in the resignation discussion due to inherent conflicts of interest.

Council members are scheduled to discuss the issue at their meeting next Wednesday. No response is required until Oct. 16.

"It was my understanding that this matter was an internal matter and this ad hoc committee was to deliver recommendations on the audit, period. I feel that the committee overstepped its charge," Hickman said.

"This was not an auditor's report; this essentially was a prepackaged trial with a prepackaged verdict," he said, adding later, "It is regrettable that my peers have been pandered into this witchhunt."

In addition to the resignation request, the report suggests that council ask Hickman and Neal to pay back the unsubstantiated expenses incurred last year. Hickman agreed with the committee's findings on reimbursement, and tendered a check for the full amount a week ago in response to the committee's request.

"I wrote the check for those expenses that could be misconstrued as not being part of the American Express card policy, and those consistent with our common practice of reimbursement. My writing of the check is an admission of nothing," Hickman said.

The committee also suggested that council refer Hickman and Neal to the Student-Faculty Conduct Committee for "possible violations of campus regulations."

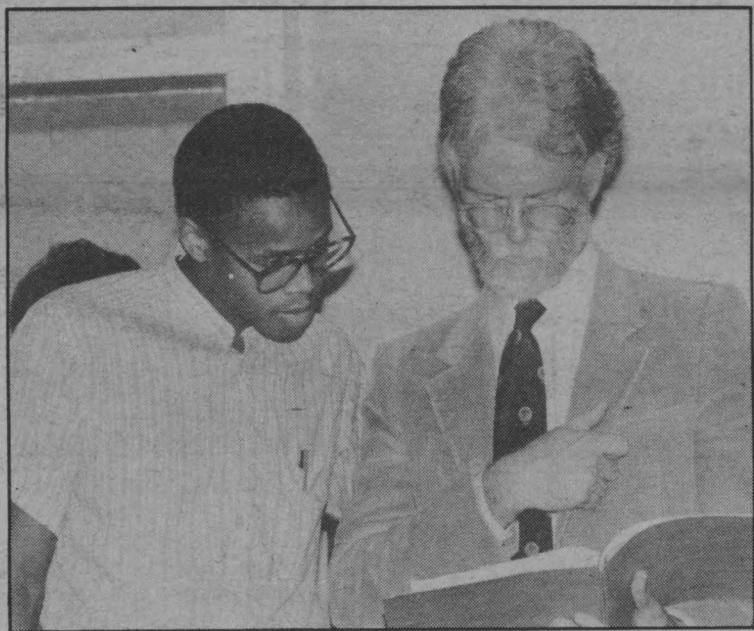

Hickman may be charged with "knowingly furnishing false information to the university" and a "violation of university policies or campus regulations."

Neal may also be referred to the conduct committee for alleged violations of campus regulations.

Should council members agree with the report, the conduct committee will determine whether Hickman and Neal used their official capacities for "personal gain." Personal gain is described in regulations as actions taken "to improve the personal and financial status of any person or group of persons involved in the sponsorship of the program...."

If the conduct committee is called to hear the matter, they will use the internal audit and the ad hoc report, which detail A.S. expenses not verified as student government business. The report was based on an internal investigation of A.S. prepared by UCSB Auditor Joseph Hackett.

Hickman feels that he did not violate any regulations. When the credit cards were distributed by then-A.S. Executive Director Joan Nordberg, she indicated that they "were a preferred method of transaction instead of purchase orders and cash advances that could be substantiated with itemized expenditure claims," he said.

"The executive director failed to formulate any strict policies regarding the use of the newly obtained American Express cards. She only indicated that personal ex-

Delegation of A.S. Power Long Overdue

By Marjorie Extract
Staff Writer

Associated Students President Jim Hickman claims university administrators have deliberately avoided sending him a letter that would formally enact the A.S. Constitution and place legal presidential power in his hands.

The process has not always been completed by letter, according to Edward Birch, vice chancellor of student and community affairs. "Sometimes we haven't done it at all, and it's been done verbally. The reason it hasn't been sent is because we've had a lot of things to do," he said Wednesday.

"We may be a little bit later this year. It's got to do with late registration.... Maybe we aren't as concerned as we should be," Birch said.

Although UCSB officials deny his allegation, Hickman said this delegation of authority is a responsibility which has been met for the past 18 years. In 1984, then-A.S. president Darryl Neal received his letter of delegation in mid-July.

Hickman feels the delay is deliberate. "Because I was elected by a two-thirds democratic process, I should have received that letter," Hickman said. "There are obvious reasons why it hasn't been released."

Hickman suspects one reason is the low degree of faith he believes administrators place in the student government.

"They certainly believe that we don't have the support of the students, but I'd like to ask them if they have the support of the system," Hickman said. "I question whether they ever had the students' interests in mind when they make that kind of assessment about the student government."

The student association is just emerging from a period of reorganization, partially due to questions of accountability for funds spent by executive officers in the 1984-85 session. Hickman served as external vice president during that term and has been implicated in the problems.

Birch denied that the delay is intended to keep Hickman waiting — without legal representative power — until administrators can take action on the results of the internal audit of A.S. expenditures.

"Oh heavens no," Birch said. "That's cruel. That's like holding someone hostage, and we would never want to be a part of that kind of thing."

Birch said that even if the administrators wanted to see Hickman removed from office, they would still send the letter. He added that they do not have the power to "throw him out of office."

Birch believes there is no problem with the process, and no underhanded dealings. The chancellor's letter is sent through Birch's office.

"I'm going to get going right now and get it moving.... Its not being out has meaning. Knowing that, we'll get it out immediately. It doesn't mean we're ignoring him or lessening the position," Birch said.

"The chancellor has to make certain that he's not inappropriately delegating responsibility or not giving enough responsibility," Birch said.

I.V. Participates in State Lottery

By Dana Anderson
Reporter

The California lottery begins today at 12:30 p.m. when the first authorized tickets go on sale. The tickets, which sell for $1 each, are available throughout Isla Vista.

Tickets can be purchased at Morninglory Records, Leopold Records, SOS Beer and the Six-Pak Shop. Three grocery stores — I.V. Market, Pruitt's and the International Food Market — will also sell the green and gold tickets. On campus, the tickets will be available from Mission Travel in the UCen.

Although merchants sell the tickets for a variety of reasons, most expect to draw more customers into their stores with ticket sales and promotional giveaways.

"We're hoping to use the lottery as a public relations tool," Mission Travel President Madeline Bickley said.

Bickley does not expect students to line up for tickets, but said that "there will probably be a brief flurry of people wanting to buy the first tickets, but nothing more."

There are too many outlets for the tickets in I.V. to expect any lines, said Pruitt's owner Bud Pruitt. Pruitt chose to sell tickets "because everyone else was — I had to stay competitive."

Greg Davirro, owner of the Six-Pak Shop, felt that ticket sales will increase business. "It (the lottery) will create more foot traffic. There's a possibility that we'll give out a ticket with a large purchase," he said.

None of the local retailers expects large profits from lottery ticket sales.

Hollywood Actor State Rock Hudson Dies of AIDS

LOS ANGELES — Rock Hudson, the cinema idol whose gallant admission of a yearlong battle against AIDS won sympathy and attention for victims of the disease, died Wednesday at his home. He was 59.

Hudson, star of Giant, A Gathering of Eagles and several frothy comedies with Doris Day on film and McMillan and Wife and Dynasty on television, "died peacefully in his sleep at 9 o'clock this morning," publicist Dale Olson said.

At the White House, President Reagan issued a statement saying: "Nancy and I are saddened by the news of Rock Hudson's death. He will always be remembered for his dynamic impact on the film industry, and fans all over the world will certainly mourn his loss. He will be remembered for his humanity, his sympathetic spirit and well-deserved reputation for kindness. May God rest his soul."

Elizabeth Taylor, friend and one-time co-star of Hudson's, was one of his closest supporters in his final days and co-hosted an AIDS benefit Sept. 19 with actor Burt Reynolds.

Hudson donated $250,000 to the benefit, which grossed more than $1.2 million for AIDS research, and sent his last public words: "I am not happy that I am sick. I am not happy that I have AIDS, but if that is helping others, I can, at least, know that my own misfortune has had some positive worth."

Funeral arrangements had not been announced as of Wednesday.

Deukmejian Vetoes School Bus Bill

SACRAMENTO — Gov. George Deukmejian, rushing to meet a midnight deadline Wednesday, vetoed a bill to make school buses safer and signed one to limit automobile towing charges.

He also signed bills requiring a health study of clove cigarettes and spending $118 million in anticipated federal offshore oil funds on dozens of "pork barrel" projects.

The Republican governor was acting on the nearly 1,000 bills sent him by the state legislature before it adjourned for the year early Sept. 14. Most of the signed bills become law Jan. 1.

The school bus bill, AB37 by Assemblyman Richard Robinson, D-Garden Grove, would have required all school buses to meet the 1977 federal safety standards and required the Highway Patrol to recommend whether school buses should have seat belts. The bill received added support last summer when one student was killed and dozens injured in the crash of a school bus near Fremont.

Deukmejian said it would cost an estimated $175 million to replace or remodel older school buses to meet the standards, which include high seat backs and reinforced roofs.

NASA Unveils An Advanced Computer

MOUNTAIN VIEW — NASA's Ames Research Center officials unpacked a four foot high supercomputer Tuesday that they hope will revolutionize aircraft research.

The Cray-2, billed as the world's speediest and most powerful supercomputer, is three times faster than previous generation computers and can perform 250 million calculations a second. It has a storage capacity of 256 million 64-bit words that surpasses its predecessors by 16 times.

Although the $17 million, 5,500-pound machine measure four feet in diameter, NASA spokesman Peter Waller said engineers expect it to give a huge boost to their aircraft design research that at Ames includes the space shuttle and oblique wing aircraft.

"You're basically flying a plane in a computer," he said, adding that despite the supercomputer's expensive price tag, it costs less than repeated wind tunnel construction and testing for research purposes.

Lebanese Terrorists Brutally Slay Soviet Hostage

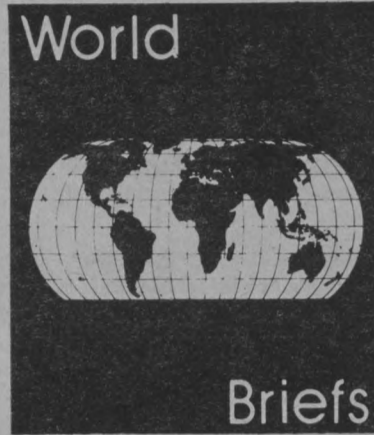

BEIRUT, LEBANON — Kidnappers of four Soviet Embassy employees killed one of them and said Wednesday the others will die unless Syrian-backed militias halt an offensive against Moslem fundamentalists in the northern port of Tripoli.

An anonymous telephone caller claimed a second captive had been killed, and another said Moslem extremists planned to blow up the embassy.

The battle raged on for control of Tripoli, where more than 500 people have been killed and 1,100 wounded since Sept. 15. The militias supplied by Syria, Moscow's main ally in the Middle East, have the fundamentalists cornered with their backs to the sea and Syrian artillery has joined the battle.

The body of cultural attache Arkady Katkov, 32, was found Wednesday, shot once in the head at close range. An anonymous caller claiming to speak for the Islamic Liberation Organization gave the location of the body in a telephone call to a Western news agency.

"We have carried out God's sentence against one of the hostages and we shall execute the others one after the other if the atheistic campaign against Islamic Tripoli does not stop," he said. The four Soviets were abducted Monday in two separate incidents in west Beirut, the capital's Moslem sector.

France and Russia Discuss 'Star Wars'

PARIS — President Francois Mitterand and Mikhail S. Gorbachev discussed the possibilities of "a serious, real reduction" in armaments Wednesday, six weeks before the U.S.-Soviet summit.

Mitterand's spokesman said the president and the Soviet leader also touched on the Reagan administration's Star Wars research program for a space-based defense system in their first private meeting.

Gorbachev is in France for four days, on his first visit to the West since taking over as Kremlin leader in March.

Congressmen Approve Measure Against the Spread of AIDS

WASHINGTON — With congressmen evoking Rock Hudson's memory, the House on Wednesday overwhelmingly approved giving the U.S. surgeon general the power to shut down public bath houses and massage parlors in the war against AIDS.

Rep. Robert Dorman, R-California introduced the bath house measure which passed on a 417-8 vote. "The potential for hurting our society is reaching almost catastrophic proportions," Dorman said, claiming that Congress and medical authorities have not moved swiftly against AIDS because of lobbying by homosexuals.

The bath house bill is an "opening shot" in what Dorman promised would be a series of GOP-led measures aimed at protecting the general population from AIDS.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-New York, chairman of a House health subcommittee, claimed the bath house amendment was unnecessary because the Surgeon General C. Everett Koop already had the power to shut down the facilities.

Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-California, is seeking support for a series of proposals, including banning children with AIDS from schools. Shirley Barth, a spokeswoman for the Public Health Service, said lawyers are trying to determine what the surgeon general's authority is. But she said bath houses have always been considered a local issue.

Bath houses have been targeted because they are considered to be sources of promiscuous homosexual sex, a major method of AIDS transmission.

FBI Agents Search for Suspected Spy

WASHINGTON — FBI agents searched a former federal official's home and car in New Mexico for code pads, microdots and other spy paraphernalia after obtaining a search warrant to seek evidence of a plot "to communicate documents and information relating to the national defense to a foreign government."

The search, which occurred between last Friday and Tuesday, became known as evidence emerged Wednesday that the official, Edward L. Howard, 33, who was assigned to

He repeated Soviet opposition to the space-defense plan in his arrival statement, speaking of the need to prevent "an arms race in space and end it on Earth."

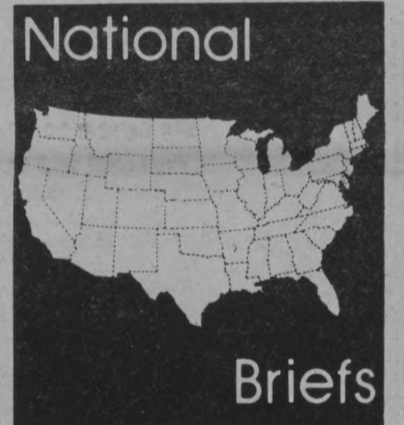

S. African Students Boycott Classes

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA — Thousands of black students boycotted classes on the first day of the new school term Wednesday, in a protest against apartheid.

In Soweto, the nation's largest black area, southwest of Johannesburg, students roamed the dusty streets as soldiers aboard armored personnel carriers took up positions in schoolyards.

No students attended classes at 174 of the 7,000 black schools in South Africa and attendance appeared to vary from 5 percent to 95 percent at others, said Job Schoeman, spokesman for the national Department of Education and Training.

Student strikes became a popular form of protest in early 1984. Anger over apartheid, the South African government's institutionalized racial segregation policy, escalated into rioting that has claimed the lives of more than 750 blacks since that summer.

the U.S. Embassy in Moscow as recently as 1983, flew to Texas more than a week ago leaving even his wife in the dark about his whereabouts. Howard is suspected of being a spy for the Soviet Union.

The CIA, the Justice Department, the State Department and the Senate Intelligence Committee all declined to discuss the case. The Senate panel and the State Department said they were awaiting an anticipated Justice statement, but Justice spokesman John Russell said: "Everyone wants us to make a statement and if we're going to make a statement, we'll make one when we're ready."

Although Howard was officially listed in the federal government as a State Department budget analyst in Moscow, some State Department positions are used as cover for CIA agents abroad.

Sailing Instructor Shows Students the Ropes

(Editor's note: This is the fourth in a five-part series on some of the interesting and out-of-the-ordinary professors on campus. Though there are many professors who also merit recognition, the Daily Nexus has chosen to focus on five professors in particular this week.)

By Deborah Nestor
Contributing Editor

As a balmy breeze blows off the Santa Barbara Harbor breakwater, E.W. Smith stands with his feet slightly apart on the UCSB dock and addresses his crew of apprentice sailors. "You've got to learn the rules of the road, or else you won't last too long out there in the harbor."

Students sit cross-legged as they listen and watch their instructor illustrate his lecture with chalkboard diagrams and wooden model boats on the planks of the smooth, well-scrubbed deck.

In 1966, Physical Activities Instructor E.W. Smith assumed command of UCSB's sailing program, which was founded by Terry Dearborn in the early 1960s. Today, the "UCSB Navy," as Smith affectionately calls it, consists of 13 Omega-14 sailboats, a Boston Whaler safety boat, Smith himself and the 250 or so students enrolled in the program each quarter.

Classes begin with the customary lecture on the points of sailing. Then students climb into the boats in groups of two or three, depending on class size, and the "hands-on" part of the instruction begins. Usually the sailors follow a course mapped out by Smith at the beginning of class.

Notable Professors

fourth in a series

Smith follows the sailboats out into the harbor in his Boston Whaler motor-boat and shouts comments at faltering sailors through a megaphone. "Stay away from the pier, number 5." "Come about, number 1." When he sees a team having difficulty carrying out his instructions, Smith cruises over in his speed boat and instructs the students individually.

Smith's methods of instruction suggest opposing personality traits. Although he gives the impression of being authoritarian when he shouts out orders through his megaphone, students find, when dealing with him on a one-to-one basis, that Smith is a very approachable instructor.

"He's a really easy-going type of person... very personable," said Robert Blair, a junior majoring in business economics.

The aura of authority and command surrounding Smith is probably a remnant of his 22 years as an officer in the United States Air Force, when he served as a pilot for the Air Rescue Service based in Guam.

"We used to do sea and air rescue for all kinds of downed aircraft of all nationalities," Smith said. The pilots would fly over the downed aircraft and drop supplies and life rafts.

Serving in the Air Rescue Service helped make Smith a better sailor, he said. "That's where I got all my knowledge about the ocean and weather conditions.... That's where I learned my respect for the sea."

After retiring from the Air Force in the early 1960s, Smith received his credential as a physical education teacher from UCSB in 1965. During his first year as an

This Week In UCSB History

Oct. 5, 1984: Sheriff's deputies confiscated over 7,000 mature marijuana plants from a remote area of Los Padres National Forest early Wednesday morning.

"This is the largest marijuana cultivation raid in Santa Barbara County," Senior Deputy Tom Nelson said.

Officials estimated the street value of the plants to be $21 million. Three men are being held in lieu of $50,000 bail. At least five suspects are believed to still be hiding in the rugged wilderness around the pot farm.

Authorities were tipped off about the operation by two hunters who were hiking through the San Rafael Wilderness Area. Aerial photographs were taken to verify the report before the raid.

Sept. 30, 1980: The UCSB administration has denied a request by the California Public Interest Research Group to use a negative check-off system to raise funds for their non-profit organization.

Under the controversial funding system, a student donation is automatically assumed and assessed with total registration fees unless otherwise indicated on registration forms.

The administration arrived at its decision after five months of negotiations. "The ethical considerations of a negative check-off (funding system) are antithetical to the whole CalPIRG idea," said Vice Chancellor Edward Birch.

Oct. 5, 1970: Policy changes relating to students and student organizations, use of university facilities, and nondiscrimination have been approved by the University of California Board of Regents.

According to the revised codes, students who participate in "mass disorder during times of campus emergency within one mile of the campus" are subject to university disciplinary action.

Revisions from the old university-wide policies, drawn up in March, 1969, came in the areas of standards for conduct, speech and advocacy, and student discipline.

Sept. 30, 1960: Questions have been raised regarding the rights of individual student officials to present their personal views on off-campus issues under the present Regulation of Student Government.

... The issue has been whether leaders of compulsory student organizations could seek to commit their memberships in the area of opinion and belief; and, if they did, whether the regents could continue to compel membership and the payment of fees.

... If officials of the student government or of the agencies thereof wish to take positions as individuals on off-campus issues and if such officials desire to indicate their membership on the governing board of the student government or agency thereof, they shall take reasonable precautions to make it clear that they are expressing their own views and not purporting to represent those of the university or the members of the student government or agency thereof as a whole.

instructor, he taught courses for the physical education department in "everything from archery to soccer" before beginning to specialize in sailing in 1966.

As a young man, Smith learned how to sail in a small boat in the Atlantic Ocean near Long Island. "I bought a little sailboat and some books and began to sail — nobody taught me." Learning to sail is not difficult, Smith said. He points to students who can sail around the harbor after a few hours of lessons.

"Sailing is more mental than physical," Smith explained. "It's all a matter of angles and geometry and a feeling of sensitivity to wind changes and being able to adapt to wind changes."

In a survey of physical activities courses, sailing was second in popularity, falling just below tennis. "It is a very popular program," said Jon Spaventa, director of the Physical Activities and Recreation Department.

The program owes much of its popularity to Smith. Spaventa described Smith as an experienced sailor with a sense of humor, and dedication to the sailing program and Physical Activities Department as a whole. "If there's any one person who stands out by the time and energy he has dedicated to the department, it's E.W. Smith."

The sailing classes are popular because they appeal to "adventurous spirits" who want to get out in the fresh air and "experience the freedom of the sea," Smith explained. Students with "competitive spirits" are attracted to the intermediate sailing classes, which focus on yacht racing.

One of Smith's favorite outlets for his competitive spirit is windsurfing. He has competed on a statewide and international level since windsurfing developed into a sport in 1969. He placed ninth in the North American Championships in San Francisco in 1976. "That's my proudest achievement," he said.

Teaching is also a matter of pride for Smith. "I've had people come back who took this course 10 years ago who have said: 'You know, this is the only class I took at UCSB that I still use,'" Smith said.

Teaching sailing also satisfies Smith's love of adventure. "I've had fun teaching this course," he said. "It has had moments of suspense and moments of terror — for me, not the students."

Correction

In the Oct 1, issue of the Daily Nexus inaccurate information was printed in an article titled "Women's Center Will Host 10th Anniversary Open House." In the story it said the center provides five counselors for both short-term and long-term counseling.

The center actually employs one counselor, Cheri Gurse, who offers students short-term help for rape, sexual assault and sexual harassment. Personal counseling can also be received at the Counseling and Career Center.

In addition, coming speaker Shirley Chisholm was incorrectly identified as Shirley Chisim. The Daily Nexus regrets these errors.

Resource Center Works for County's Gays and Lesbians

Group Activities Focus on Serving Unique Community

By Vera Grigorian
Reporter

The Gay and Lesbian Resource Center in Santa Barbara opens its doors to all who wish to use their many services, which include individual and group counseling, education, social activities, and support and rap group sessions.

UCSB's Gay and Lesbian Student Union is affiliated with the Resource Center in that they coordinate activities together and make cross references to each other, GLSU Co-director Ron Taylor said. "The GLSU recommends the GLRC to students, faculty, staff, and visitors for information on downtown events and social and health issues," said Taylor. "They (the center) are very helpful to the students."

Taylor estimated the gay population on campus to be about 10 percent of the students, or 1,700 individuals.

GLSU members are also directly involved in the center's services. "I'm involved in the AIDS support group at the center," Dale Kummerle, GLSU newsletter co-ordinator, said. The center teaches volunteers how to deal with AIDS victims and how to help the victims deal with death and dying, Kummerle said.

"A lot of the AIDS patients are abandoned by family and friends. They have no one to turn to and so the AIDS support group is there to supply emotional and physical support," Kummerle said. Physical support includes doing household chores for AIDS patients who are too weak to care for themselves, and making hospital visits to patients.

The resource center is one of five places in Santa Barbara County which administers the test for HTLV III, the antibody to the virus which is believed to cause AIDS, said Geni Cowan, executive director of the Gay and Lesbian Resource Center.

The center was established in 1976 because there were no services for Santa Barbara's gay and lesbian population, Cowan said. "The services that did accept gays and lesbians were inadequate for their needs," she said.

Santa Barbara has a great need for the resource center, Cowan said. "Last year the center serviced 1,500 people."

The resource center has many educational and social events planned for the month of October. A writers workshop will be held every Thursday evening, there will be an ice-cream social Oct. 11, and a weekend of horror movies on Oct. 25 and Oct. 26 will be featured, Cowan said.

The center is also training people to be part of Speakers' Bureau. Speakers will be available free of charge to give information on gay and lesbian issues and lifestyles to anyone who requests this service.

One of the social events conducted annually by the resource center is Unity Week. This local event is fashioned after the national Gay Pride Week in June, which is held in several cities all over the United States, including Los Angeles.

The Unity Week celebration in Santa Barbara takes place in May, thus allowing locals to participate in both events, Cowan said.

The center has begun conducting open meetings for a committee to plan the week's activities, Cowan said.

Members of the UCSB Gay and Lesbian Student Union help the Resource Center to plan many of its activities, including Unity Week. "We were involved in Unity Week for the last three years," Kummerle said.

"The way that Unity Week works is that different organizations in the community get together to plan a week of celebration and pride," Kummerle said.

Funding for the Gay and Lesbian Resource Center comes from a two-year-old community financial support group called Center Circle. "Members of the Center Circle make monthly pledges to the resource center," Cowan, who created the group, said. Anyone who wishes to support the facility can become a Center Circle member while remaining anonymous, Cowan said.

Resource Center Offers Classes

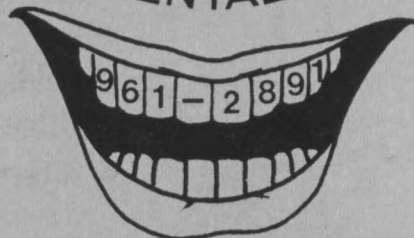

As a function of its Alcohol Treatment and Education Program, the Gay/Lesbian Resource Center is to announce its Fall Community Education Series. Made up of several workshop/discussion groups, the series opens Thursday, Oct. 3, with a presentation by Dr. Gary Zinik, entitled

"Sexual Identity Development: Theory and Research." Other sessions to be held throughout the series include "Women's Spirituality," "Violence Against Men: Objectification of the Male in Advertising Media and the Gay Press," and "Women in Business."

Each session will be held on a Thursday evening beginning at 8 p.m. at the Resource Center, 232 E. Montecito, Suite G. Pre-registration is required for each one, and a $5 donation is requested; work-exchange programs are available.

Many local high school students consider I.V. a weekend playground.

Party-Hungry High School Students Invade Isla Vista

By Mandy Murphy
Reporter

Each Friday and Saturday night, the already crowded streets of Isla Vista become a breeding ground for local teenagers just out looking for a party.

"You end up with a glut of high school kids out there to see what they can see, and do what they can do, and add to an already existing problem," said Deputy Sam Gross, public information officer for the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department.

The high school students come looking to get lost in the crowd and to get drunk, Gross said. With as many as 2,000 high school students out drinking in an evening, the foot patrol is fighting a losing battle, he added.

The I.V. Foot Patrol often has to detain students because they are drunk or possess alcohol, Gross said. Half a dozen teenagers were detained the weekend of Sept. 28-29.

High school students are usually handed a citation or their parents are called to retrieve them, Gross said. They can be sent to juvenile hall for more serious offenses. "They (the police) can only do so much," Gross added.

Both UCSB students and local police want high school students out of I.V. "We don't want them on Del Playa. They have no place in I.V.... I can't imagine that there are too many college students who want to see them out there," Gross said.

"What high school student would actually expect to be welcomed in I.V.?" UCSB freshman Jeffrey McMaus said.

Freshman Kevin McCune is not bothered by the number of high school students in I.V., "as long as they don't commit any crimes," he said. "They get drunk and have fun. That's what we did (in Westwood)," McCune said.

Approximately a month ago, The Graduate, a popular dance club in I.V., changed management and toughened its policies concerning local high school students using the club as a hangout, Mark Simonek, The Graduate's new general manager, said. The club has discontinued its "Teen Night," which allowed anyone 17 or older inside the club.

Even without Teen Night, Goleta high school students continue to "hang out" in I.V., Gross said.

The Graduate plans to reinstate teen nights, but they will only occur on a holiday when college students leave I.V., Simonek said. The new teen nights begin Veteran's Day weekend this November and will continue during Christmas break, he said.

Lagoon Fun Run Provides An Opportunity to Socialize

By Anthony Salazar
Reporter

The Vietnamese Student Association, in conjunction with the Vietnamese Tennis Club of Santa Barbara, will be sponsoring the first annual Lagoon Fun Run. The race will be held Sunday, Oct. 6, at 8 a.m. behind the UCen.

"I got this idea last year, but it was too late to do anything about it then," Dac Vu, member of VSA and president of the tennis club, explained. "Most students are pretty busy with their schoolwork and not paying much attention to their health. This race should help the students get their exercise."

According to Vu, the race was originally scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 5, but due to a conflict in schedules with the Athletics Department, which is holding the All-Cal Cross Country Meet, the race was postponed one day.

"The hard part will be trying to get students to participate. Even with 25 people running, that barely covers the cost of the shirt printing, since the t-shirts are $7," Vu said. "But I'm not looking for a profit. The main thing is that the students have some fun and get exercise. Plus, it's a nice way to introduce the new students to this general area, while making new friends."

The entry fee is $7 with a t-shirt or $2 without a t-shirt. Proceeds will go to the VSA, which will also sponsor a Vietnamese Cultural Week to be held sometime this April.

DELEGATION

To this end, there was a major modification four years ago and now the administrators make adjustments every year, he explained. "It's guided by the responsibilities that the chancellor wants to delegate and the ones he wants to hold onto."

"The letter is considerably shorter than the one the previous chancellor used to send. This chancellor has been willing to delegate more responsibility to A.S.," Birch said.

The vice chancellor said the whole incident is not without positive ramifications. "In a way, I'm sort of pleased to know that it holds that much importance," he said.

Opinion

The Games People Play

The day of game playing is upon us. Students have witnessed, and some have participated in, registration games, political games, name games. Today, a new game begins. But the tone of this game is somewhat different. This time, there are no teams. Everyone plays against each other in a long-shot chance to win the American Dream.

Like Americans years ago who fled to this state in pursuit of goldmine riches, California residents today will bombard supermarkets, record stores, and everywhere else imaginable with hopes of winning fortunes from a $1 state lottery ticket. However, as the millions who flowed westward soon found out, there are a number of reasons to be skeptical of the state's latest money-making venture.

First, one must realize that for every one of its few fortunate winners, millions of losers must follow. The state is allowing its adult residents to play the game with the assumption a mature rationale will be applied. But it is likely some Californians will lose sight of this logic. If so the National Council on Compulsive Gambling's prediction that 2 percent of the lottery players will become compulsive gamblers will become an unfortunate reality.

Although it is commendable that 34 cents from every ticket will funnel directly into state schools, for students to depend on such an unstable source of income to provide supplemental revenue for their education unreasonable. One would think the state could provide quality education without resorting to gambling revenues.

The lottery's projected $2 million annual contribution to state education is actually only a small percentage of the total education budget. Accepting the extra funding, with the accompanying threat that it could someday replace state education monies and force schools to partially rely on lottery ticket sales is much too large a gamble.

Closer to home, UCSB students may want to question the appropriateness of housing a lottery ticket outlet on campus. Certain types of gambling, such as betting on horse races, have been found acceptable in California. But permitting lottery activity within a supposed atmosphere of intellectual discussion and growth is out of place. True, the university serves as an institution that encourages a spectrum of ideas and thoughts. However, in exceptional cases such as this university officials should practice more discretion when supporting agencies whose intentions are to solicit student dollars.

The opportunity to question the ethics of a state lottery or its existence on campus has passed. But the decision to partake in the activity remains. It's your move.

UCSB's Human

Kami Hedges

Okay, so with the enrollment up again this year, and with the campus literally crawling with people, do you suppose we could find something to be optimistic about? Sure the crowds are bigger, the bike paths fuller, the lines longer, but that means more resources decorating our campus — more 'human resources' that is. And 'human resources' translates into talent, skills, opinions, contributions, participation, action, social reform! Whoaaa! What was that? Social reform? At UCSB, the campus-by-the-sea? I mean, this campus is a pretty neat place to college, ya know? Lots of things to get involved in, lots of people to meet and neat places to hang out, lots of ocean and beach and clean air, but social reform? Are you sure?

I know it may seem ludicrous to say that the involvement of one person (namely you) could have any real significant impact upon the issues affecting our society as a whole. But multiply that singular involvement by the population of UCSB and most of you would probably agree that even a modest 50 or 100 people might be able to effect some sort of social change.

This column is about those issues which you, an individual, may be able to help change. Specifically, it's about women's issues, but shhh! Don't say that too loud because it has the effect of turning people off. Especially those folks who are of the male persuasion, and even a lot who aren't, just because they think that 'women's issues' is synonymous with 'militant feminism.'

The truth is, militant or not, women's issues are all around us and they affect not only women, but each and every member of our society. They are called 'women's issues' because they are issues directly involving the rights of women. But more importantly, they are called 'human

Hiding It From O

William F. Buckley

Suppose that we had a satellite of the Peeping Tom variety whose prismatic powers were so formidable as to leave the meaning of a Soviet installation absolutely naked to their enemies?

Suppose that for complicated diplomatic reasons you desired not to publicize what exactly it is that this Soviet facility is up to? But on the other hand, you do want to be ... suggestive about it. In other words, you want to let out word that the Soviet Union isn't fooling you, but you don't want to spread a general alarm. And you are putting out that year's Defense Department's annual book, called "Soviet Military Power." How might you handle the problem?

One way would be to call in an artist, an employee of the CIA.

And you say to him, "Sam? Here's a picture of the research and development site the Soviets have going at Sary Shagan. If you study it closely — very closely — you can see that what it's all about is a facility for testing ballistic missile defense through ground-based lasers. But we don't want our shot of it to be that obvious. After all, if we did, all we would need to do is run a straight photo of Sary Shagan in our 1985 "Soviet Military Power" publication. So you give us an artist's rendition, and here are three details I want you to obscure — over there, that thing: make it look just like a traditional launcher, right? And over there, take out this detail, and that detail. Got it? Good boy, Sam."

So the reading public, a month or two later, finds itself staring at what could be a cornfield in Iowa with a granary and something that looks a little like a church steeple. And the caption reads, "The directed energy R²D site at the Sary Shagan proving ground includes ground-based lasers that could be used in an anti-satellite role today and possibly a BMD role in the future."

And then, in the months ahead, we listen to speeches from Gorbachev and Shevardnadze, and they tell us over and over again that the Soviet Union isn't testing any Star Wars technology. Those of our people in the know just wink when they hear this. But the American people, and allies of America themselves don't really know the full story of Sary Shagan. Or the full story of what the Soviet issues' because what affects one half of the population in such a significant way has got to involve the other half as well. Rape, pornography, equal pay, abortion, gay rights, sexual harassment — all are problems with which we should be concerned as a society.

The rape victim is not just 'some' woman — she's your girlfriend, sister, mother, wife, daughter. The lesbian is not just a gay woman — she's your best friend, your co-worker, your sister. The woman contemplating abortion is your lover, possibly your life-long companion, the mother of your child. And the woman who works full-time and still doesn't make enough to contribute significantly to the household income is your wife, your live-in companion, your friend who is being relegated to second class citizenship because she isn't allowed to be an equally contributing member of society.

The title of this column is usually 'Womanwise.' It's geared toward enlightening each member of our embryonic community about issues prevalent in the greater society we're all a part of, and which we will all join, like it or not, one day soon. Now that you know the true title of the column I hope one-half of you won't skip over it each week because "it doesn't have my name on it." It has everyone's name on it. This column is about social reform. It is a billboard for anyone who cares (or should I say dares?) to put forth their ideas and opinions in print for the rest of us to learn from, evaluate, and praise. It should serve as a sounding board for educating the women and men of our campus about issues relating to them, together, as human beings. It is a forum of ideas. Enough said! Let's hear from some of you 'human resources!'

On Ourselves

Union is up to in the development of what we call our Strategic Defense Initiative.

The term "arms race" — did you notice — took on, over the past dozen years, very unpleasant sounds, sort of like what "adultery" used to sound like before it was laundered. Critics of "arms races" were so scornful of unnecessary monies spent, of fetishistic pursuit of military redundancy, of a Strangelove's love of highkill for the sake of highkill, that the entire other meaning of "arms race" tended to get lost in the verbal commotion.

Suppose that it is the intention of the Soviet Union to develop a comprehensive defense of its own territory such as to render it substantially immune to damage from hostile nuclear weapons. Suppose that its motivation in pursuing that objective is to permit it to pursue its blackmail against the free world sufficient to achieve ultimatum status. Suppose then that the free world, reacting healthily, desired to prevent this from happening by achieving a complementary security of its own — by cultivating a Star Wars technology.

What you have there is the makings of a race. Not necessarily a race we began, but certainly a race we desire not to lose. So if you want to call it an arms race, go ahead. But if you do, you should force yourself to complementary honesty, and say, "If we lose this arms race, we may very well lose our capacity to stay free."

What astonishes, then, is that whoever is in charge of security arrangements in Washington (and it isn't necessarily the names that come instantly to mind: Casey, Weinberger, Shultz, McFarlane are important men, but there are those little committees that have a way of quietly prevailing) is attaching more importance to keeping from general circulator knowledge of what we know the Soviet Union is up to than to doing exactly the opposite. Nothing, at this juncture in particular, would help more in advancing a general understanding of, and then an enthusiasm for, the development of our own Strategic Initiative than the disclosure that the Soviet Union is very far along in the development of its own Strategic Initiative, the difference being that ours is all about Defense, while theirs is all about Offense.

Here is one for Congress. Get the boys from DOD over, and ask them certain questions. Begin by asking about page 58 in the publication "Soviet Military Power," 1985.

Soul

Virginia Bean

I learned a new meaning to an old word this summer. tom and shelley used it a lot and they like to ski and backpack and lay out on nude beaches. tom would say things like she has a good soul or this shirt is soulful and shelley and pete would cook stir-fry dinners and we'd drink sake with the candles lit and the conversation would turn soulful with good music. drew and pete's rasta-pad has soul. maybe it's the fluorescent sponges in the fishtanks and the constant flow of reggae but probably it's the herbivores who drift through who make it that way.

arpo and me cut through the community garden at the end of sabado the other day when it was foggy and he talked about the ferns and plants that used to grow on the trellises and all the kids that used to sleep there in the seventies. he said it was beautiful. the plants are gone from the trellises now and all the i.v. bums hang out there a lot. i remember once when i rode by i guess i wasn't smiling because one of them yelled at me, hey, where's your smile. i gave him one and rode on.

sue was mad when they tore down baba's. she said that the old building was a landmark and had character and a first rate falafel/fro-yo stand. she said too that whoever designed the new building obviously never tasted a falafel because it looks like a mcdonald's or a bank. no more outside patio. no more cats hanging out. i guess it got vibed-out by the white table across the street.

gary said the other day, did you see the n.y. bagel factory it's gone and they took down all the magazines and funky art in the inside. it's painted gloss white and they call it rainbow something. i guess they still sell bagels there.

friday night was insanity on d.p. and the natives were pounding beers and dancing in the street as natives will. then the cars came by driving too fast and the short hair that yelled as it went by and a few almost got hit because too many bikes in the way.

drew and me and jeff cruised around for awhile watching the money go by and passed two girls who snapped gum in madonna lace and leopard skin and drew said something about kiddie porn. angus was there and texas tom but we got smothered in the guess jeans and felt like leaving.

saturday morning i walked out and my bike was gone.

after filling out the report me and gary stood outside i.v. foot patrol and some bob-haired girls walked by in high shoes. they glanced us up and down and gary's friend said they reminded him of his houseplant that got too much water or something because it put out so many leaves that the plant fell over.

Murphy's Law

Editor, Daily Nexus:

It is apparent that Murphy's Law was working overtime during the past couple of weeks as UCSB students engaged in the important endeavor of trying to continue their education during fall quarter.

I want to apologize for the obstacles which littered the path to that worthy goal and to pay tribute to the patience and perseverance of those who achieved it.

The authority vested in me by The Regents of the University unfortunately does not extend to dominion over all the mishaps which can occur during the complex process of registering students efficiently in more than 4,000 classes. However, I have committed the expertise of my colleagues responsible for this process, to resolving the problems you have recently encountered in time for registration for winter quarter. I am confident, therefore, that you will encounter a much improved registration procedure in the next several weeks.

In the meantime, I am grateful for your cooperation and good humor, and I fervently hope that the remainder of the quarter is productive and rewarding for you.

Bike Lights

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Much to my chagrin, when I rode on the bike path leading away from campus last Wednesday night, I found that out of the twenty bikes I met, none had bicycle lights. At least one of these riders was on the wrong side of the trail. I'm surprised that those who pass for serious riders, who have bicycle helmets and expensive bikes, can't afford a light. There appeared to be some out there that night, yet none had a light. What really surprises me is that there hasn't been a serious accident on that trail, as of yet. If riders continue to refuse to use lights, there might be one.

Labeling Music

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In response to Stewart Wolfe's article regarding warning labels on record albums, I agree that we must be careful lest we gradually lose our freedom. However, I disagree that these labels are a threat to freedom. The labels do not prohibit these albums. They are there to help people make informed choices when purchasing music. Forgive the generalization, but the group who would probably use them most is parents who are buying albums as gifts for their children. As long as the labels don't say "This music is evil. If you listen to it you will burn in Hell," I am not going to get paranoid about morality being forced on me. Since Mr. Wolfe used the movies for illustration, so shall I. I find the rating system quite useful. When I am in the mood for blood and guts, I can look for the "R" movies. If I feel like seeing a fairy tale or slapstick comedy, I will most likely find it under a "PG" or a "G" rating. Or, if I were in the mood for sex on screen, I could easily locate it by looking for an "X" rated movie. Can you imagine taking junior to see "High School Memories" only to find out it is a porno flick? Maybe I'm being too simplistic, but some people don't have a clue what various musical artists are up to these days and the pictures on the cover don't always tell the whole story. Besides, there are some people who really like to worry about evil lurking in the grooves of records — especially when played backwards. So let them worry. As long as we heathens are not forced to give up our freedom to lyrical blasphemy, who cares? A little red "A" on the cover might even look good. Consider it art.

Air Jam

Editor, Daily Nexus:

As student manager of KCSB I would like to address Robert Plummer's letter concerning KCSB's programming policies. To me, his letter suggested that he felt we should allow any student who wants a show on to our FM station. I invite Mr. Plummer to attend our fall orientation meeting to see just how many people want a show. If we allowed all of them on, each programmer would have a 15 minute show and that wouldn't do them or our listeners any service. I appreciate Mr. Plummer's concerns but I would like to explain the process that Program Review Board (the governing body that determines what goes on our air) follows concerning new shows. First of all, KCSB has certain requirements that must be filled before any show is considered for scheduling, such as: every programmer must have signed a staff contract, be FM trained and be an owner of an FCC license, and they must have also fulfilled the staff contract work requirements (4 hrs./qtr.). If this has not been accomplished, the show will not be considered for that quarter. If it has, the PRB looks at the blank spots in the schedule. We try to keep a flow in our vertical scheduling. For example, Mondays are typically jazz programs so it would be unlikely that a rock show would be placed in a spot on Mondays. Also, programmers that are already on FM have priority. They will be moved "up" to better time slots or changed if they have a time conflict first and then new programmers are moved into the open slots. Again, flow becomes a factor. If the slot used to be soul music, we will try and fill it with a new soul program to keep the audience which has developed for the day and time. However, if there are no new soul programs proposed, then another suitable genre will be programmed. PRB also has to keep our standards in mind when scheduling. KCSB has become famous for its alternative programming so a proposal for a "Top 40" show would not be considered. I hope this has clarified some things for Mr. Plummer as well as anyone else who is interested in getting involved at KCSB. Everyone is welcome but there are certain procedures that must be adhered to. Again, I appreciate Mr. Plummer's concerns, but I think it is obvious that KCSB does its best to assure fair consideration to all incoming programmers.

The green and gold lottery poster, shown here in the window of Morninglory Music, will soon become a familiar sight in many Isla Vista shops.

The state charges 95 cents per ticket, leaving retailers a net profit of five cents for each ticket sold.

"I don't expect any large profit, but it will bring more people into the store," said Michael Andrews, manager of Leopold's Records. "It's for a good cause — education."

"They're more trouble financially than they're worth; it's a promotional thing," Blickey said.

The lottery was created after California voters approved Proposition 37 last November. Gov. George Deukmejian opposed the lottery initiative, but pledged his support after the measure passed.

Public reaction to the new lottery varies. "Rich people play it the least, so it is mostly a tax on the less wealthy," UCSB sophomore Andrea Margolis said. "Also, the lottery could promote other forms of less charitable gambling."

"The arguments against it don't carry much weight," said junior Tim Holden, who plans to participate in the lottery. "I'll probably buy about a ticket a month, but I'm not going to spend a hundred dollars on it," he said.

When the 400 million tickets go on sale today, many people like Holden will try their luck. The prizes range from $2 and $5 prizes up through $100 prizes, which give the winner a chance at the $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $2 million grand prizes.

The $2 and $5 prizes will be awarded instantly, but all larger prizes must be claimed through the mail.

Although the chances of winning a small prize are over 10 percent, the chance of winning the grand prize is about .00004 percent or four in 100 million.

penditures were permissible, but subject to reimbursement," Hickman said.

UCSB Ombudsman Geoffrey Wallace said, "if Joan would have been on the ball, none of this would have happened. And because Joan was on the job, that opened the way for this to happen."

Hackett's report states Nordberg's resignation in May, 1985, "was for reasons unrelated to the audit." Hickman disagreed.

"Nordberg's resignation was a result of her admission of failure to carry out her responsibilities as A.S. executive director. Amongst those failed responsibilities was the administration of financial policies, including the American Express card," Hickman said. "To make a blanket statement that Joan's resignation was unrelated to the audit is an unfortunate misconception."

According to Berry, "using Joan as a scapegoat seems like a very convenient way to go."

Because of the lack of an explicit policy and the controversy surrounding Nordberg's responsibilities, Hickman feels the request for resignation is unfair. "I will not now or ever resign from the position of A.S. president," he said.

Should the conduct committee find Hickman and Neal guilty of the charges, they could face suspension from campus as well as the proposed punitive assessments.

"These people were elected as responsible individuals leading the students of this university, and with this job should most definitely go fiscal responsibility," Berry said.

No court actions will be filed against Hickman and Neal, "due to the lack of A.S. policies governing travel and entertainment procedures," the report said. Prior to the completion of the committee's report, no formal policy existed to control misuse of student funds.

"In every executive office there is an implied trust. I think in a lot of areas, that trust was broken," Hunter said.

Committee members assert that items under scrutiny were checked to the best of their ability. "If we had any questions, we would ask them to elaborate. Then, we would go back and double check the receipt," Hunter said, adding that in many cases businesses were contacted for price verifications.

Judaic Traditions, Yiddish Language Are Class Topics

By Karl M. Larsen
Reporter

UCSB Jewish students and those who plan to convert to Judaism, now have a chance to learn some of the basic and more advanced aspects of the religion, through classes which touch on subjects such as bar/bat mitzvah preparation and the Yiddish language.

Also included in the schedule are classes on basic Judaism, Jewish text study, and folk dancing. "Basically, Hillel's philosophy is to offer a large range of classes to serve a wide range of people," said Rabbi Stephen Cohen of Hillel.

The bar/bat mitzvah classes are for "people who never had a bar or bat mitzvah when they were 13, and who want to have one at Hillel," Hillel program director Ann Schwartz said. "These classes are good because the people attending will have a small community to study with," Schwartz added.

Basic Jewish text study will be taught by Rabbi Cohen in the on-campus dorms. "We don't have a room yet, but our first class, which met Wednesday, October 2, met in San Nicolas's lobby at six o'clock," Schwartz said.

Two Yiddish classes, one basic and one advanced, will be taught by Dr. Arthur Schwartz and Mickey Flacks. "These are great introduction classes for people who've heard a little Yiddish, such as from their grandparents, and decided they'd like to learn it," Schwartz said.

"The classes are good because after a while you can read some very old Jewish stories in the original language," she added.

The classes are usually pretty small, consisting of about five to 10 people per quarter for the basic, and about the same for advanced," Schwartz said. "The advanced classes are usually a steady core of professors on campus."

The Basic Jewish text reading will be led by Rabbi Cohen and will examine the Bible, Midrash, Talmud and Chassidism. "We will provide all of the texts in English," Schwartz said.

All of the classes are free except for the folk dancing which costs $1 per session. The folk dance class is co-sponsored by Merhaba (a folk dance organization) and Hillel, and includes both Israeli and common folk dancing, Schwartz said. "The dance classes get a broad representation of community people, and is the only dance class in I.V.," she added.

"I hope the classes get a big turnout," Cohen said. "The idea is not to put pressure on people's lives, but to give them a pleasurable learning experience," he added.

Hillel has been at UCSB for about 15 years and is part of the national Hillel, which has been involved at major universities for the last 50 years. The organization is nationally funded by B'nai B'rith, an organization that specializes in funding Jewish activities. "Hillel is like a Jewish student union," Schwartz said.

"The classes are good because after a while you can read some very old Jewish stories in the original language."

"I saw that that (too many teens) was a problem. There were too many teenagers here," Simonek said.

Simonek hopes to cater to the college students, because the club is located in a college area. "Everything we do is structured around college students."

"We don't have them (teen nights) to see kids get drunk," Simonek said. "Basically what teen night is, is to build our future business."

Improved Passing Skills Lead Women's Soccer Team to Win

By Mark van de Kamp
Assistant Sports Editor

Showing improvement in their passing game, the women's soccer team recorded their third consecutive win with a 4-2 victory over Cal State Dominguez Hills Wednesday night in Harder Stadium.

UCSB Assistant Coach Steve Daluz was satisfied with his team's offensive effort, explaining the passing game

BROOKE NEWMAN/Nexus

No Looking Back — Kris Browne, along with the rest of the women's soccer team, backed Dominguez Hills into a hole early Wednesday night and never looked back.

has progressed as planned.

"The women moved the ball around with the knowledge of where to hit it before it got to them, which is what we want to work towards," he said.

UCSB Head Coach Andy Kuenzli agreed on that point, but he was critical of the team as a whole.

"The game was sloppy," he said. "We didn't play to our potential. I think we thought too highly of our skills, and took Dominguez Hills not as seriously as we should have."

Playing a non-ranked team after competing with five of the top ten teams in the nation obviously made it difficult for the women to play with the same intensity, but their effort yesterday was a disappointment, especially coming from a team ranked 16th.

"I don't think the score accurately reflected the game," Daluz admitted, "because we dominated most of the game. There could easily have been a lot more goals for us."

The women took a 2-0 lead into halftime. Midfielder Laura Venezia scored the first goal only 5:43 into the game off an assist from Julie Taylor. Carin Jennings used a Liz LeDuc/Durell Petrossi assist with 8:35 left in the half, charging unopposed toward the goal, where she nailed a shot a couple of feet above the ground to the right.

"Carin is developing a better understanding with Petrossi, especially so in this game," Daluz said. "That's what she needs; she can do the quick passes, but she needs someone to pass back to her."

Jennings and Petrossi teamed up again in the second half for an insurance goal to make it 3-1, after the Toros had closed to within one goal. Bryn Randolph ended the Lady Gauchos' scoring from a Marina Cofer pass with 6:51 to go. With several minutes left, the Toros' Michele Salaz scored on a penalty kick, but Dominguez Hills had to settle for the 4-2 deficit.

The women will face St. Mary's at home on Oct. 6 in a noon game. With Wednesday's victory, their record rose to 8-3. All UCSB teams are a combined 14-0 at home.

SNAPPED STRING — Things were looking down for the men's water polo team in Fresno Wednesday night, as the Fresno State Bulldogs snapped an 0-36 string against the Gauchos by defeating UCSB, 13-11. The Bulldogs (5-5, 3-0 in the PCAA) scored ten goals in the second half. UCSB (8-2, 2-1 in the PCAA) was ranked fifth nationally before the match.

Anderson Honored

Water polo standout John Anderson has been named this week's UCSB Sports Information Athlete of the Week.

In three Gaucho victories last week, the 1984 All-American tallied 10 goals, six of them coming in an 11-7 win over the Pepperdine Waves at Campus Pool. He played sparingly in the other two contests against Cal State Fullerton, which lost 10-6, and Iona University, which got dumped by a score of 12-3.

Anderson, an All-PCAA selection in 1984, led the Gauchos with 67 goals last year, the eighth best mark in UCSB history. In a 10-6 victory over UCLA last year, Anderson scored six goals. He also played for the 1984 Canadian Olympic team, which finished tenth.

There is More to Athletics Than Intercollegiate

Club Sports Full of Quality Competition

By Mark van de Kamp
Assistant Sports Editor

Are you interested in competing on a high-level team, but find that the Intercollegiate Athletic Department doesn't offer what you want? In that case, you are likely to find your niche in Club Sports.

A wide variety of sports are offered year-round by the Physical Activities and Recreation Department, ranging from biking to water skiing. The best part of it is, anyone can participate on any club.

"That's what excites me about the program," Club Sports Director Judith Dale said. "If someone wants to be on a team, they can be on a team, without worrying about getting cut."

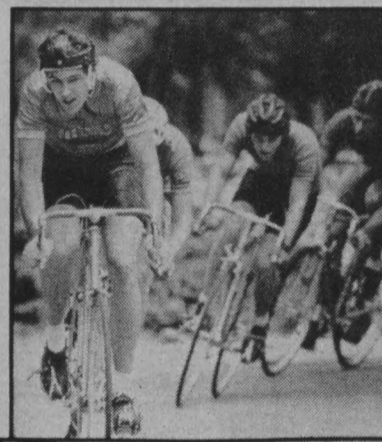

Club teams are similar to intercollegiate ones because they compete against squads from other colleges. They have organized practice sessions and are well-coached. All teams, except for rowing, have volunteer coaches.

"Those people spend just unbelievable hours with their teams," Dale said. "It's just amazing how unselfish they are, and how much of their time they give to the kids."

Two such people are Scott Porter, coach of the women's water polo team, and John Knapp, men's lacrosse team coach. Knapp has coached several impressive teams, including two Western Intercollegiate Champions.

Something exciting is always happening in the club sports program. Over the summer, the surfing club won the State Meet, then captured its second consecutive national championship at Huntington Beach, Aug. 14-15.

UCSB's Club Sports Program offers many areas of interest, while Intramurals (bottom right) are a student favorite.

Students Are Most Active In Intramurals

By Randy Bell
Sports Writer

Numerous extra-curricular activities are offered to UCSB students and faculty, ranging from religious and academic interests, to athletic and recreational as well. But only one of these programs can boast an enormous number of annual participants: The Intramural Sports Program.

Each year, an increasingly large number of participants (17,000 estimated last year) register to play intramurals. The program is extensive, and every quarter offers various sports on varying skill levels.

Intramural sports primarily provide students with the opportunity for competitive, physical diversion.

"Intramurals provide constructive leisure activity which promotes physical fitness," UCSB Intramural Director Paul Lee said. "(And) psychologically, (they) give you an outlet away from your academic classes."

Linda Reed, the Assistant Intramural Director, added that "It's a good way to meet other people... (and) good relief of pent up frustrations or feelings."

Reed also explained that a number of students are employed by the program every quarter. The Intramural Department trains people interested in officiating, and then gives them first-hand experience in actual 80 points," ex-club president Steve Morris said. "We won by a mile.... (and) it looks like we might be able to do it again this year."

A dozen men, three women, and three kneeboarders competed. Dave Oates and Heather Gray each placed first overall in their divisions, and kneeboarder Chris Beresford took second honors in his class, Morris explained.

A new addition this year is the Tournament Water Ski club, which has received many responses already, according to president Steve Hersmeyer.

There are certain fees every club member must pay. Depending on whether a sport is low-risk or high-risk, mandatory insurance is either $15 or $25. Also, a $4 club sports fee is charged.

Not all of the equipment is provided for, but that also depends on the sport. Several boats for sailing, and uniforms for lacrosse and rugby are provided. Bike club members own their bikes, as does the surf team with its boards.

"It's still not too late to join a club sport," Dale hastened. "They can really be a lot of fun."

For more information, stop by the Club Sports office in trailer 369, next to Robertson Gymnasium.

Intramurals: Growing Fast

contests. Many referees and umpires find officiating extremely exciting, and continue on to bigger and better things in that field.

On the same token, participants continue exercising in one form or another as well. For the first time this year, many alumni will make their way back to UCSB for different alumni tournaments, including floor hockey this fall.

The fall schedule is a busy one. Check out the Intramural trailer (next to Rob Gym, 403) for a full fall schedule.

The deadline for most activities is this Friday, Oct. 4. The deadline for tennis doubles, men's and women's basketball, and bowling are the following Friday, Oct. 10. The IM trailer will be open until 7:00 p.m. tonight and until 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Entry fees are low, and the benefits are great. As Lee explains, "I think intramurals promote the total education. (They can) enhance your educational experience, emotionally, psychologically, and socially." And most importantly, they're flat out fun.
