

UCSB coeds seek voter rights

By MIKE CALLAHAN
DN Associate Editor

Although Congress passed legislation this year granting the right to vote to 18-20 year olds in federal elections, most freshmen and sophomore students at UCSB cannot vote in the precinct in which they live nine months a year.

Five women students are trying to change that. Last week their attorney, John R. Cosgrove of Menlo Park, served Santa Barbara County Clerk J.E. Lewis with a notice of their intention to file a petition for a writ of mandate in the State Supreme Court.

The writ would force the Clerk to accept their registrations as voters irregardless of their parents' residence. The petitioners, all of whom were freshmen last year include Linda Anderson, Barbara Lawton, Sheila Pang, Lois Rader and Margaret Streed.

Lewis and his staff have been adhering to a decision handed down at their request by State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger that minors must register in the county in which their parents reside. This ruling specifically reduces the bloc vote impact of college students in predominantly student precincts.

According to Cosgrove, Younger did not even consider the restrictions of Title III of the Voting Act which states that "no state or subdivision thereof shall deny the right to vote to any person over 18 years of age."

The petitioners consider the actions of the county clerk to be in clear opposition to this statute. Their petition states: "The turmoil, confusion and injustices throughout the state resulting from the unjustified failure to register 18-, 19-, and 20-year-olds is such that the public welfare requires immediate judicial relief."

Cosgrove said he will file the petition when the Twenty-sixth Amendment is ratified, which he expects to occur within two or three weeks. That bill would extend the suffrage to local and state elections in addition to federal elections. The reason he said they were going straight to the Supreme Court was the urgency of the matter.

His clients are entitled to vote in the congressional and presidential primaries of June 6, 1972 and must register by April 11. Also, if the Twenty-sixth Amendment is ratified, the students would be eligible to vote in local elections scheduled for Nov. 2, 1971.

Since initiating this suit, Cosgrove has been approached by persons in like situations in several counties. Residents of San Francisco, Santa Clara and Alameda Counties are probably going to be included in the petition to insure Supreme Court jurisdiction and a standard for registration throughout the state, since a Supreme Court decision would be binding on all counties.

Cosgrove feels he has a strong case with very fundamental rights at stake. Using Title III, the Twenty-sixth Amendment and the "equal protection clause" of the Fourteenth Amendment, he is certain the high court's decision will enfranchise his clients in Santa Barbara County.

Consulting architect will advise on campus growth

By DAN HENTSCHE
DN Reporter

"Uniquely qualified" to take a fresh new look at the shape of UCSB's future, William H. Liskamm has been appointed as consulting architect by the UC Board of Regents.

Liskamm's assignment is to advise and consult on the preparation of a new Long Range Development Plan. The old plan adopted in 1968 is in need of revision due to changes in the projected enrollment growth and building programs.

New views on traffic flow, parking and transportation needs will be a major concern of the planners.

According to the Regents there is a "critical need" for closely relating campus development "with sensitivity for social and environmental concerns," to the planning efforts in the adjacent community of I.V. Liskamm feels that separation of I.V. and the campus could cause problems in planning.

"I come with complete open-mindedness," said Liskamm, and at the present time he is just "trying to learn what the issues are." His main emphasis will be to try and get the views of the people who are directly affected by campus changes. The job of the planner, he said, is to try "to plan not for the people, but with them."

Liskamm would like to see a much stronger student position in the planning of the campus and their ideas must not be overlooked. Student opinion on student housing, both on campus and in Isla Vista, their views on parking, and their general view of the campus are of great interest to Liskamm, and he welcomes any comments.

The plan that will eventually be arrived at, may not be one single plan, but rather, two or three alternative plans. This would prevent a rigid inflexible program, and would allow the plans to change as the community changes.

The old end date for the Long Range Plan was 1986, but Liskamm feels that the plan should be a continuous operation, bending and revising with the needs at the time. He cautioned that it is hard to even say what the extent of the University as an institution will be in the future.

The basic components of Liskamm's viewpoint are the use and enhancement of nature, respecting the natural setting and working closely in conjunction with the people who will be affected by the campus.

Much of his work has focused on the impact of transportation systems on the social, economic, political and physical systems that shape the environment. He does not want 50 per cent of this campus' space devoted to the automobile. To this end he will

UNANIMOUS APPROVAL

UCSB accreditation reaffirmed

Renewal of the accreditation for the University of California, Santa Barbara was "unanimously reaffirmed without qualification" by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges, the official accrediting agency for California, Hawaii and Guam.

The action was announced Wednesday, June 23, in Oakland at the meeting of the association's Accrediting Commission for Senior Colleges and Universities, an arm of the WASC. The accreditation applies to the campus as a whole and all of its degree and professional programs.

The announcement issued by Kay J. Andersen, executive director of the Accrediting Commission for Senior Colleges and Universities, said that "under a new policy, such reaffirmation does not expire at a particular time although it is expected that the University will again engage in self-evaluation and receive an on-campus visit in approximately five years."

The Western Association of Schools and Colleges is one of six regional accrediting agencies in the U.S., all closely affiliated through a Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions for Higher Education.

Andersen said that accreditation by the WASC and other higher education commissions "attest the judgment that the institution is guided by well-defined and appropriate educational objectives, that it is accomplishing them substantially, and that it is so organized, staffed and supported that it can be expected to continue to maintain its standards."

Such institutional accreditation by regional agencies, he explained, is contrasted with accreditation by specialized agencies which evaluate particular programs.

"Institutional accreditation is unconditional, never partial, provisional or probationary. The action taken concerns the entire institution and the commission does not accredit or reaffirm accreditation of one part and not the remainder," the statement concluded.

Although the association does not usually issue statements concerning its accreditation findings, Andersen announced this action "at the request of UCSB and because of the confusion surrounding the limited period of accreditation conferred by the California State Board of Education on teacher education credentialing programs."

In a separate action on June 11, the State Board of Education accredited the teaching credential programs at UCSB for one year, pending a review of what the news services reported as the concern of some members of the state board of the effects of Isla Vista disruptions on the preparation of teachers.

Chancellor Vernon I. Cheadle said that he is "gratified to learn of the unanimous reaffirmation of our regular campus-wide accreditation by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. This gives official recognition to the quality of our academic programs on all levels."

THE DECISION TO BUILD this proposed addition to the Music Building will be, in part, decided by new campus architect William H. Liskamm.

WANT CONTRACEPTIVES privately?

We believe your private life should be your own. And when it comes to buying contraceptives, the hassle in a crowded drugstore isn't exactly private. So we've made it possible for you to get nonprescription contraceptives through the mail.

We specialize in men's contraceptives and we offer two of the most exciting ones available anywhere—Fetherlite and NuForm condoms. They're better than anything you can get in a drugstore. Imported from Britain, they're lighter, thinner, more exciting to use, and precision manufacturing and testing techniques make them as reliable as any condom anywhere. Made by LRI, world's largest manufacturer of men's contraceptives, Fetherlite (the best) and NuForm not only conform to exacting USFDA specifications, but are made to British Government Standard 3704 as well. We think you'll like them.

Our illustrated brochure tells you all about Fetherlite and NuForm. And about seven other American brands which we have carefully selected from the more than one hundred kinds available today. And we explain the differences.

We also have nonprescription foam for women and a wide variety of books and pamphlets on birth control, sex, population, and ecology.

Want more information? It's free. Just send us your name and address. Better still, for one dollar we'll send you all the information plus two Fetherlite samples and one NuForm. For four dollars you'll get the brochure plus three each of five different condom brands (including both Imports). # Council defers action on Bearman question

In a 6-6 tie vote, IVCC failed Monday night to resolve the controversy over who receives funding for the operation of the Isla Vista Medical Clinic.

The motion before the council asked that Regent's funds be stopped because they were in Dr. Dave Bearman's name, rather than going to the clinic itself.

(Sunday night the Service Center Board of Directors had decided not to renew Bearman's contract after the Aug. 21 expiration date. Bearman has been with the clinic since its conception last fall.)

According to Barbara Olsen, secretary for the council, the conflict centers around ownership of the clinic.

Bearman feels the clinic is his own private practice, whereas the Service Center Board and, ostensibly, the community, feel it belongs to the community.

Since the issue is still unresolved, it will most likely be considered at next week's meeting. Meanwhile, the Board of Directors for the Service Center are in the process of establishing another clinic for the community.

The council also:

- decided to request federal funding for the creation of a park at the Madrid site;

- asked that Regent's funding be obtained to finance the operation of the IVCC office for the summer.

(Although the committee which allocates the funds is not meeting until the fall, Vice Chancellor Ray Varley is attempting to get the funding, as the office will probably not survive the summer without them.)

Next week's IVCC meeting will be held on Thursday night, at 7:30 instead of the usual Monday night meeting time.

COMMENTARY

U.C. begging for mercy

By David Handler,

Californians have been treated to a new governor of late. Instead of a knight in shining armor riding the strong white steed of conservatism, we have a new Ronald Reagan.

He no longer comes to his news conferences radiating in self-assurance with his shiny suit and hair. His face is worn, a slight comma of hair falls on his forehead and he addresses his listeners in an urgent, fighting manner — for Ronald Reagan is fighting for his political life.

The governor's chief battle since he took office has been to bring some sanity to the amount of taxes that California residents pay. One of the major expenditures of the state is their faltering giant of higher education — the University of California. Yet it seems inevitable from a speech the governor made last week at the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco that the University faces a near future so incomprehensible to those truly interested in a great university that the now faltering giant will soon roll over on its collective back and beg for mercy.

The governor has maintained that belt tightening is the only method for the University to stay on its feet, but the new notion that he presented not only shows he hasn't the slightest understanding of higher education but may cause the greatest migration of professors from California that anyone has ever seen.

The governor presented figures showing that the university faculty members spend an average of only 4.3 hours per week in the classroom. While the university maintains that the figure is actually 6.7 with a projection of 7.2 for the next year, the governor called for legislation that would require the faculty to teach what he called the traditional nine hours of classes per week.

Quite apparently, the governor's notion of a university is that of a big high school with very large lectures instead of small classrooms. He emphasized that professors actually work about 60 hours a week, spending between 25 and 35 hours doing research, preparing lectures, grading, counseling and leading graduate seminars. University President Hitch replied to the suggestion by calling it a "giant step backward".

Sixty hours a week is quite a workload — you can't expect professors to put in more than that. If they are forced to teach more classes, the quality of the education students receive will get even lower than it is rapidly becoming. Professors will have less time to research current findings and prepare good lectures. The spark of vitality so inherent to conveying interest in material before several hundred students will be gone.

Belt tightening is fine, Governor Reagan, but what happens when the belt gets too tight and your great university can't breath anymore?

The governor stated in his speech "WE need open minds and fresh thinking; WE need cooperative efforts between society and its institutions...." "I am proud to be able to say that in the last several years the nation, and indeed the world, has learned to expect innovation and excellence from California."

He concluded his speech with "Together we can reclaim for higher education its proper role as guardian, advocate and inspiration for all the lasting values of our civilization."

Either there's a glaring contradiction between what the governor says and what he does or he's down on his knees begging for help from the people of California. Maybe that's it.

Letters Street people marked by infancy

I would like to take issue with the June 23 article entitled "Street People Repressed." I have worked at Switchboard for the last two months, and I have watched the street people take and take and take, and I have never heard one of them say "thank you." There seems to be a feeling among the street people that everyone owes them something.

The mark of infancy is not age, but that the infant expects to be GIVEN (not buy) what he wants when he wants it. Evidently, we are indebted to them for their overwhelming contribution of narcissism and self-pity.

Others try to tell me that the street people are not in I.V. to take, but I have seen their rage and indignation when the giving stops. The street people are oblivious to the parasitic nature of their life style, and they hate the very people from whom they take. I have seen very few among them who show any real signs of self-respect.

The Wednesday article says, "The system is closing in and the street people are feeling it the hardest." How about, "The street people are closing in and responsible adults are feeling it the hardest."

The article also said, "The community is making it harder for this segment of society..." The street people are not a segment of society unless a leech is part of the organism on which it rides.

The article ends by saying, "I'd rather die being free than live a slave." You street people are not free NOW! You are enslaved by your regression back to your pre-natal existence, as you plug your umbilical cord into the system you detest. As far as dying is concerned, very few people would call you "alive" now.

Switchboard suffering, needs aid

To the Editor: Switchboard is presently suffering under a strange paradox. This spring it has had one of its most dedicated staffs but has come very close to extinction. The reason: the organization can no longer offer an adequate crisis counseling and referral function and at the same time maintain a lounge that serves the interest of transient youth. The two functions have clashed and there is not sufficient manpower to adequately serve both.

Switchboard is one of the few organizations in Isla Vista where staff members have put their lives on the line to back up what they believe. Violent, brutal and inhuman situations have occurred, but time and time again, staff members have gone out in the middle of the night to help their brothers and sisters. They have picked them up off the beaches, out of Isla Vista alleys, wrestled weapons away from the deranged and have taken dozens of people to hospitals and clinics for emergency aid. They do these things and do them proudly, asking nothing in return but the privilege to continue to help people and to do so in confidence.

The tasks have not been easy and we need help. We need help from the community. New (Continued on p. 5, col. 1)

Which do we want?

To the Editor: I was much amused to find out that only two professors (Weintraub and Crouch) spoke out against the Administration's action on the Zeitlin's case at the Academic Senate meeting on June 10, 1971. Isn't it ironic that both Professors Weintraub and Crouch belonged to the Economics Department which the NEXUS labeled as "mediocre" earlier last (academic) year?

My belated rebuttal to last year's NEXUS editorial concerning the Economics Department is this: Do we want famous departments with high national ranking but which don't voice concern over loss of academic freedom; or do we want departments which speak out on such issues?

Naturally, both progressive departments and concern over academic freedom are not mutually exclusive. However, if we assume NEXUS' observation of the Economics Department to be correct, such mutual exclusiveness appears to be the case at UCSB.

Understanding needed

volunteers are always an asset, especially people who take the responsibility of a helping relationship seriously. We need understanding — understanding from business people and Santa Barbara organizations who can contribute financially but stop short when they hear the words "Isla Vista" before Switchboard.

Finally, we need help from street people. We respect their freedom, their choice to live and let live. But they too must take some responsibility or

Comedies mark summer drama

In its Annual Summer Drama Season the UCSB Department of Dramatic Art will present "The Homecoming" by Harold Pinter and "Commedia dell'Arte."

"The Homecoming", which plays in the Studio Theatre July 22-25 and July 28-31, was winner of the 1965 Critics Award for Best Play.

Stanley L. Glenn will direct "The Homecoming," which is a fascinating and bizarre comedy. In the play the third son, a professor of philosophy at an American university, returns home after six years absence. Home is a cavernous London home where his retired and widowed father, two fully grown brothers and a senile uncle live. Into this environment the son brings the woman he had married but was too ashamed to bring home six years earlier.

"Commedia dell'Arte" will be based on Scala's scenario, "The Dentist." Directed by Michael Addison, the improvised farce revolves around the comic Pantalone's vain attempts to win the love of Isabella. Joined by youthful lovers, tricky servants, madmen and fake dentists, Pantalone's efforts grow more futile as the merriment and fun increase.

Performances of "Commedia dell'Arte" will be performed free in parks and recreation areas in the Santa Barbara County during the latter weeks of July. Locations, dates and times will be available after July 1 by calling 961-3022.

Both productions are being presented in cooperation with the student drama organization, Mask and Scroll. Tickets for "The Homecoming" will be on sale at the UCSB Department of Dramatic Art, Arts and Lectures Ticket Office, The Lobero Theatre and Discount Record Center, La Cumbre Plaza.

Proposed crafts

By DEBBIE PETERSON
DN Staff Writer

The need for an Arts and Crafts Center in Isla Vista "is the need for people to be treated as individuals," stated Sandy Herrmann, UCSB's Recreation Department Supervisor.

"I.V. residents," according to Herrmann, "are treated in groups: class groups, riot I, II or III, IBM Number X, street people — but not as individuals."

CRAFTS CO-OP

A Crafts Co-op, first suggested last October, would "act as an outlet for the University to provide for the individual Isla Vistan," she emphasized.

At the present time, there are no facilities available to UCSB students and Isla Vista residents to develop their craft skills, Herrmann explained, and "crafts are the way of life for students."

Planning for the Isla Vista Community Crafts Center is about three quarters of the way completed, noted UCSB Recreation Director Joel Witherell.

"We are now seeking final permission on our building plans," Witherell remarked. "After receiving final approval, we intend to begin construction on the center immediately. Hopefully, it will be completed by January."

Initially, those involved in the Crafts Co-op Project hoped to lease space in Isla Vista for the center. However, funding problems forced a search for other alternatives.

GEODESIC DOMES

Various mechanical engineering students interested in the construction of geodesic domes, Buckminster Fuller's well known idea discovering new-found popularity, approached members of the Recreation Department staff concerning the usefulness of such domes to the Department.

As the dome idea developed, it was decided to construct several domes, five in all, to house the proposed crafts center to be located on University property adjacent the parking lot on the Ocean-El Colegio streets intersection.

The center's builders are asking the Regents Funding Committee for $40,000, with the hope that the University will provide the other $40,000 needed to construct I.V.'s new craft center.

The project is unique in that it will be the first building on campus built by students," Witherell remarked. Architects will oversee the project.

The project is also unique in the fact that no one has ever built a geodesic dome on any university campus before, Witherell pointed out.

CENTER SELF-SUPPORTING

To prove to the University that the crafts center is capable of supporting itself financially, a $10 a year membership fee will be charged that will allow the individual access to all utilities at the center.

An exercise room and sauna baths may also be a part of the complex in the future, according to Witherell.

"To change society," Witherell concluded, "you have to change the architecture."

The arts and crafts center, housed in its geodesic domes which give a feeling of warmth and friendliness unequaled by more formal square walls, may very well be a part of this revolution against the mechanization of a de-personalized society.
