JONESIN' FOR SOME JAVA?

Isla Vista's newest café enters the scene with a recipe for caffeinated success, from the Mary Hartman-Mary Hartman special to mango iced tea to fresh croissants

By Bunyan Valentine

The truth be known, I've always been overly faithful to restaurants, bars, bookstores, cafés and the like. A bit of premature nostalgia seems to tie me to places before I've even really gotten used to them. It's as if I was already ready to be wistful about such and such bookstore, with its dust-covered novels and byzantine shelving systems, or such and such café, whose rickety tables were always slopping my espresso out of its shallow cup as passing customers bumped by.

This feeling generally doesn't diminish with time, but rather keeps on expanding itself to the point where I'm very nearly in love with such and such diner down on the corner, where the waitress always brought us steaming mugs of coffee as soon as we sat down.

The worst side effect of my prodigious talent for romanticizing even the most impersonal and uninteresting of chain restaurants into warm eddies of friendly commerce, is that I don't go to new places very often. As it happens, this isn't a tremendous problem in Isla Vista, where your choices are severely limited anyway.

But recently, I've found one place — just one — that stole me away from a comfortable, old standby and immediately won my overly impressionable heart.

Nowadays, few days go by when Lanly and I don't stop in at Java Jones Café, even if it's just to pick up a coffee on the way to school. This conversion — coming as it does on the heels of quite a bit of loyalty (now nearly forgotten, I'm sad to say) to the one other coffee house in town — is a bit surprising; as I said, I'm not one to abandon an old habit without good reason.

I must add, however, that remorse has taken a second seat to my newfound comfort at Java Jones. For a place that's pushed up against the busiest street in town, even the passing hordes of bicyclists whizzing along Pardall Road don't seem to interrupt the calm at Java Jones.

Which is not to say that this place doesn't absolutely thrive on Sunday nights or during midterms; people pack themselves into the small interior dining area and hang out playing backgammon, swilling cappuccinos, talking and holding aloft copies of Camus or Brecht. With one couch and about 10 small tables, each of which (as you know if you've been to any café during peak hours) could seat five determined customers. It's quite a convivial scene.

This attitude is mostly the work of the amazingly amiable people who toil away within Java Jones's art-covered walls. They haven't frowned at me once in the entire time I've been going, which must be about six months now — ever since the cafe opened its doors last summer. Beyond that, they have specials like, to name my personal favorite, the Mary Hartman-Mary Hartman, which will set you up with the bare essentials of café living, a cup of black coffee and a single cigarette. There are about eight more "specials," but none of them compare to the Mary Hartman-Mary Hartman. They're just not as fun to say.

Java Jones occupies the old site for Winchell's Donut House, and they've built on the old chain's past offerings, with filled croissants, biscotti, cookies and muffins as well as a few of the same old donuts.

As far as the main staple — caffeine — goes, Java Jones is quite well stocked on that hand. With just over a handful of espresso drinks, including a wide selection of flavorings, two kinds of coffee and a number of other drinks both hot and cold, Java Jones is prepared to satisfy just about any thirst. Of course, it helps if that thirst is a caffeinated one.

For people who don't drink coffee, they've got an incredible fresh hot apple cider, as well as a mango iced tea that probably deserves to be tasted more than described. Suffice it to say that there is no good reason — at least that I can think of — why someone isn't getting obscenely rich off the stuff.

With all this to keep me and Lanly coming back day after day, you can see why I've redirected my café loyalty to Java Jones.

Java Jones is located at 6560 Pardall Road in Isla Vista. Open 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. Phone 968-7441.

ROB SIMPSON/Daily Nexus

Java Jones owner Eric John Reynolds, perhaps the friendliest joe-pusher in the tri-counties, boasts the "funkadelic art of Böbee" on the café's walls.

BETTER'N BACKYARD BARBEQUES

Spell it any way you want, but when it comes to BBQ, Woody's has it by the numbers

By Stephen Lynne-Bachelor

Yes, there is something truly unique about the dining experience of barbecue. Some call it B-B-Q, some Bar-B-Que, others even go as far as simply "Q" — but any way you spell it, it's always good.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of barbecue is the inventiveness behind it. While the concept might seem almost staggering in its simplicity, the varieties and different tastes afforded by the genre are impressive indeed. A good Q joint can offer so many varieties and specialties it'll make your tongue spin, but this you already know.

What you also know or should know immediately is the address for Woody's in Goleta or Santa Barbara. Once you know these few numbers and a word, you'll have unbeatable Bar-B-Que at the tip of your tongue any old time you want. Because it is true: You can have your funky pizzas and your new fangled avocado-raspberry vinegrette Cal Cuisine business and you can have it all you want — when you're really hungry, when you really want satisfaction from a meal, you'll always come back to good barbecue in the end. There is nothing like it, and no stinky lentil chili can replace it. This is why it exists. The idea of still being hungry after one of these meals is absurd, isn't it? Ergo, Bar-B-Q.

Woody's understands what it takes to put on a Barbe-Q meal. First you get your basics down. The fundamentals. In the world of B-B-Q, it is sauce — you need a fantastic sauce. Woody's puts that question to rest quickly and efficiently with a tangy sauce so rich and flavorful and zesty you kind of want to bathe in it on tired mornings. It's really good sauce, and you'll like it.

J.E. ANDERSON/Daily Nexus

Woody's decorators, in a brief statement of purpose, have outlined what you might expect to find in their restaurant.

Woody's comes just about as close to barbecue perfection as I'd be comfortable eating.

Next you need a good beans recipe, some great cole slaw and then a salad bar. Once you get your basics established, you are free to do just about anything you want. It's party time. You get ribs — all types of ribs — beef ribs, pork spare ribs, baby back ribs. You try out some half chickens, some ducklings, some more exotic turkey-Q. And you start cooking, cueing and there's all kinds of smoke and piquant aromas steaming up all over the place. And the people start walking in, "Mmmmmmm."

And Woody's comes just about as close to barbecue perfection as I'd be comfortable eating. They don't mask their rootsy, solid-food heritage in some ridiculous new age showboat. They come out, straight and simple: B-B-Q. They have a little mascot guy — a mustache guy in a cowboy hat, perfect — and they have all wood and iron walls and sawdust on the floor. It's the kind of place that says, "This here's the ketchup" on the ketchup. They have a big bathtub and faucet deal set up so you can wash your hands with ease after a particularly grueling wrestling match with flavor. Or you can wash your child, should you have one that's covered in barbecue sauce.

The menu is just as you would hope, with all kinds of variety. Different ribs from St. Louis style to "Big Baby" Back ribs, and incredible chicken, smoked slowly and it's tender. You can get full slabs of ribs or simply the Lite Rib Dinner. From there, Woody's branches out into the world of wild, huge hamburgers, chili, prime rib, Q-Kabob, hot wings, the whole genre. Everything I've had the pleasure to eat at Woody's has been ample, tangy, delicious and over-brimming with out-and-out quality. And you'd like it and your grandfather would like it.

Woody's is located at 229 W. Montecito Street in Santa Barbara and 5112 Hollister Avenue in Goleta. Santa Barbara location open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Mon.-Sat. and 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Sun. Goleta location open 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Sun.-Thurs. and 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Fri.-Sat. Phone 963-9326 and 967-3775, respectively.

Chefs at Paradise Cafe downtown cook up plenty o' good food, the vast majority of which is eaten with great relish by what, we imagine, is a pretty darn steady clientele.

PARADISE

With hearty black bean soup, some great gaspacho and some folksy charm, this downtown restaurant has dining down pat

By Tabitha McMurphrey

Paradise. Pair-o'-dice. Paradise. If there's one place in this cushy town of Santa Barbara where the guru of pleasure rears its interesting head more than anywhere else, it's in the Paradise Cafe.

This establishment is worldly, peaceful but not comatose, and, yes, "folksy." That's exactly how my dinner partner put it, too, right before she licked the last morsel of oak grilled ahi tuna off her fork and ordered up a cappuccino — no cinnamon, please. Folksy.

Surprisingly, though, only two entrees are named for the cafe itself. That is, the paradise burger and the steak paradise. This really threw my comrade, who had just polished off a grilled eggplant and roasted pepper salad with goat cheese appetizer when the oddity sprung forth.

When patrons with the limited capacity to be pleased like my guest place an order, it is the sincerity in each server's tone that strikes home the most. Even the commonplace, "What do you mean can you get the rock shrimp and spinach salad without the rocks?" exudes neat feelings that conjure up memories of freshly cut grass. Folksy.

Atmospheric pressure once safely seated is darn near perfect. Chomping on penne with grilled summer vegetables (that's eggplant, zucchini, roasted peppers, olives and tomatoes — the summer crop), my companion pointed out some paradise-type art on the wall. She gestured for a duo seated beside her to look, too, but tiny particles of half-chewed zucchini dribbled into the cleavage of the stranger's double breast of chicken. Boy was my face red!

Perhaps the most captivating characteristic of the cafe is the Southwestern touch. Sure, the Calendar section of the Los Angeles Times says Southwestern is out, but who could resist the gazpacho soup, pureed to a tee, or the zippy phenomenon of the black bean soup.

Trivia fiends would be interested to note that the eatery's founders didn't neglect to remember Valenzuela, whoever that may be, when they named a scrambled egg, black bean, avocado, salsa and cheese concoction rolled into a flour tortilla, after her. Folksy.

The cafe is well-lit, and patrons have the option of consuming one of a plethora of fun food options on a heated patio under the stars, or inside, closer to the kitchen and other people.

Beverages of all persuasions are served at an indoor bar while waiting to be seated, much to the satisfaction of my companion and this funny little man trapped under her bar stool.

The heftiest tab any item runs up in one shot is $16.95, and these selections range from a 22 oz. T-bone to oak grilled swordfish. That oak grill really gets a workout when it comes to fish orders.

When it's all said and done, and the black bean soup well has run dry, Paradise Cafe has something to offer all — especially for Isla Vistans violently searching for the calm after the storm of a gruelling week.

A reminder from the Paradise crew: Please, no cigars or pipe smoking. It's not Southwestern and it certainly isn't folksy.

The Paradise Cafe is located at 702 Anacapa Street in Santa Barbara. Open Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m.-11 p.m., Sun. 8:30 a.m.-11 p.m. Phone 962-4416.

AHEM

Orchid Bowl in Goleta's address was misprinted in the last issue of weekend connection. Orchid, the home of Rock 'n' Bowl each Thursday night, is actually at 5925 Calle Real. Also, due to an editor's hapless and apparently incurable confusion when it comes to bowling alleys, a headline incorrectly stated that they have an air hockey. They haven't got air hockey; they've got Rock 'n' Bowl.

Thanks.

LOCAL COLOR Anaconda

Santa Barbara's 6th Annual Bob Marley Day will take place this Saturday afternoon (February 6) in Isla Vista. The festivities kick off in Anisq'Oyo Park where there will be plenty of food & crafts, and Windcave will play beginning at 2 p.m. Then the party moves over to the Anaconda where S.B.'s best local reggae bands will play in tribute to the late, great Bob Marley. Headlining the Anaconda event is Underground Roots Syndicate with Ras Leon and special guest Beenie Man. It should be one hell of a day, so don't blow it, GO!
