UCSB Student Reps. Weiss and Spaulding Plan A.S. Upgrade

By ROBIN STEVENS
Nexus Campus Editor

The UCSB Associated Student Government for 1982-1983 plans to become actively involved with the student body and to be responsive to the needs of the students.

According to a statement issued by the Legislative Council, "A major priority for Associated Students this coming year is to have the student government seen as a credible and effective force in representing student concerns."

Among other things, Leg Council would like to implement a typing service for student use and a swapmeet for used textbooks.

A.S. President Jay Weiss has several specific goals which he would like to see reached by the end of his term. His primary concern is the "proper representation of the student body," which he hopes to achieve by getting more people involved in the activities of the A.S. government.

"I would like to change the way that the entire elections process is run," Weiss said. "This year we really have a fresh start; the entire Leg Council is new and I think they will do a good job."

Both Weiss and External Vice President Tom Spaulding are involved and interested in the issue of affirmative action. With the recent uproar over the failure of affirmative action within the U.C. system, both are committed to making some type of progress on the UCSB campus.

Spaulding is coordinating upcoming Education Day rallies to combat the decline in expenditures of California tax dollars on education. He is also establishing an External Affairs Committee to help with the many duties of his office.

Weiss would like to make the student government more representative of the academic departments and give out specific responsibilities to student representatives. "The other U.C. campuses are set up that way and I think that we should do the same," he said.

Weiss is the undergraduate representative from the Student Body President's Council to the steering committee for the establishment of a Peace Institute. "I would like to see the institute centralized on our campus," he said. "There was an innovative proposal from John Earnest, a professor on our campus, and a lot of people are getting excited about it."

Weiss is also establishing an A.S. investment committee which would supervise the investment of A.S. monies. Students who get involved in this committee could get "real business economics experience which they need," Weiss said.

This year there will be a new group called the Executive Advisory Council, composed of officers from all of the different organizations on campus. This will help to get everyone's voice heard in the campus decision making process.

Incorporation Of I.V. Is Still A Major Issue

By VANESSA GRIMM
Nexus County Editor

With little more than a month left before the nine seats of the Isla Vista Municipal Advisory Council are up for re-election, the present members stand firm on the issue of independent incorporation for Isla Vista.

One of the key issues discussed at last Monday's IVMAC meeting was the topic of incorporation, which has become relevant not only in Isla Vista but in the greater surrounding Goleta Valley. Controversy surrounds the concept of incorporation and development; on one side are those who believe in combined incorporation with Goleta, while on the other are those who want Isla Vista to gain independent cityhood.

Though still a regular topic of discussion at IVMAC Monday night meetings, a resolution on the incorporation issue was reached early this summer at a town meeting. According to John Buttney, executive director of IVMAC, "The vote was something like 20 to 10 opposed to the combined city idea."

Although the council has remained firm with this vote, much criticism has arisen by others in the community who feel that 20 people should not decide the fate of a community of approximately 15,000. However, Buttney sees the incorporation issue as "a situation which needs to be kept on hold" since no action can be completed before the new council is re-elected on November 2. As Buttney put it, everyone is moving in the same direction, but each individual position is up to question. Therefore, the present IVMAC will continue to stick with their independent cityhood resolution.

At this time the Isla Vista Community Council is working on a proposal for independent incorporation, but the real status of the issue will not be determined until the election. "It (incorporation) is going to be a real issue and thus, the election will be one of the most interesting in the last three or four years," Buttney said.

Discussions on Monday night also focused on preparations for the upcoming election in November. All matters concerning filing for candidacy are being handled out of the Isla Vista Post Office on Embarcadero Del Mar in the Community Services Building.

Six of the nine seats are prescribed to specific districts and a person filing needs to gather 30 signatures from his given district. The remaining three seats are at-large and those filing for candidacy need to obtain 50 signatures from Isla Vista residents. The deadline for filing is October 22.

With the school year once again at hand, another issue the IVMAC has begun looking into is Isla Vista's economic stability. "It (Isla Vista's economy) is problematic because the local businesses can't count on a big Christmas rush, plus the problems of summer vacancy," Buttney said.

One of the IVMAC's working solutions has been a loan program which to date has made three loans totaling approximately $18,000. In addition, these combined loans have created seven new jobs in the community. The council has been working in conjunction with the Isla Vista Community Development Corporation on the program in hopes of bolstering many of the community's small businesses.

The council also discussed the human services of the Isla Vista community, especially with emphasis on the student level. The IVMAC and the Human Services Planning Group are working on a needs assessment in the community. This assessment will encompass both those needs already provided as well as those as yet unavailable but necessary.

The council has just begun plans to acquire the now vacant Bank of America building which stands on Embarcadero del Norte. The project will be a combined effort by members of the campus, Isla Vista, and county governments. The IVMAC is hopeful that the bank will give the building to the campus and the community to be used as community center, but although B of A owns the building, they do not own the deed to the land on which it stands. According to Buttney, at this time the council "needs to know how much it would cost to run the building if (they) could get a hold of it." Further details on the community center

CalPIRG Encourages Involvement

By JENNIFER WENKER
Nexus Staff Writer

CalPIRG, a statewide student-run and student-funded organization with chapters on several U.C. campuses, gears itself toward giving students the necessary skills for social change statewide as well as in their local community.

"We are a public interest research group involved in research, lobbying and advocacy in the public's interest," CalPIRG Organizer Ron Pembleton stated.

By tabling in front of the UCen, registering students to vote and going to large classes and talking to students, CalPIRG organizers hope to develop citizen membership in CalPIRG and give new students insight toward what CalPIRG is all about, Pembleton said.

CalPIRG's major emphasis at this time is the Bottle Bill, which they have promoted through a statewide citizen canvass launched during the summer. This door to door effort to develop citizen membership in CalPIRG, as well as to promote support for the Bottle Bill, brought in over 9,000 CalPIRG citizen members in California and 2,000 members in the Santa Barbara area. "Our goal is to mobilize a strong statewide student campaign for the Bottle Bill, in addition to developing an extensive fall recruitment campaign for new members," Pembleton explained.

Modeled after the Oregon Bottle Bill of 1977, the Bottle Bill requires a deposit on beverage containers which would be refunded when the empty container was returned. "This would provide an incentive for people to return the empty containers back to the store," Pembleton contended.

"One of the best ways to win this (Bottle Bill) is to be out there in the polling areas when it's voted on in November," Pembleton said. "We (CalPIRG) plan to target 3,000 polling areas in California on November 2. We are going to have volunteers with signs and buttons to give people the sense that there are volunteers who think the Bottle Bill is a good idea."

Barbara Plummer, president of the League of Women Voters in Santa Barbara, stated that they are in full support of the Bottle Bill and CalPIRG's efforts for passage of the bill. "Our members are solidly behind it," Plummer emphasized.

Between 1966 to 1978 beverage container litter increased 478 percent. Both Plummer and Pembleton asserted that the Bottle Bill could help decrease that percentage. "I feel the litter would definitely decrease," Plummer said. "Youngsters would be motivated to collect bottles and return them. It would also be a good way for scout troops to make money."

CalPIRG is not, however, involved only with the Bottle Bill. In addition to this issue, they are also involved with the Consumer Utility Board, the Community Right to Know Ordinance, and a CalPIRG radio program which airs on KCSB.

The Consumer Utility Board issue deals with an attempt to create a watchdog committee, funded by the community, which would keep an eye on the workings of the local utilities. The creation of such a group, referred to as a CUB, allows the public the opportunity to be more directly in-

Eliminating sights like the one at top is the purpose of the bottle bill being backed by CalPIRG. Increased recycling (above) is one hoped-for result.

Israeli Parliament Rejects Motion

Israel's parliament rejected Wednesday a motion condemning the Israeli army's push into west Beirut last week by a 47-40 vote. Anger over the Beirut massacre has touched off new demonstrations among Arabs both inside Israel and in Israeli-occupied territories. Many of these Palestinian Arabs have relatives in Lebanon's refugee camps. In Arab-populated areas of Northern Israel, protesters waving the banned Palestinian flag blocked roads and clashed with police. A hospital spokesman in Nazareth said 39 protesters were taken to two hospital there, suffering gunshot wounds and other injuries. In the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, stone-throwing incidents and other minor clashes were reported between Palestinian youths and Israeli troops for the third straight day. Some 1,800 U.S. Marines set out from Naples, Italy, on Wednesday bound for Lebanon aboard the U.S. helicopter carrier Guam. About 1,200 of the Marines, scheduled to arrive off the Beirut coast Saturday, will join 950 French troops and 1,000 Italian infantrymen in a multinational force similar to the one that supervised the withdrawal of PLO guerrillas from Beirut in August. The reconstituted force, sent in at the request of the Lebanese government, will guard against repetitions of the camp massacres and will support the government of just-elected President Amin Gemayel as it tries to assert its authority over the capital and eventually the country. The Reagan administration has demanded that Israeli forces withdraw from Beirut. The Lebanese state radio said the Israelis were pulling out gradually under a plan that would have them out of west Beirut by Sunday. President Reagan's special envoy, Philip C. Habib, returned Wednesday to Beirut, where he spent two months negotiating the PLO pullout. Lebanese government sources said Habib would oversee the deployment of the multinational force.

Congress Votes to End Strike

The House today gave speedy final approval to legislation ordering locomotive engineers to end a strike that the administration said had put nearly a half million people out of work at a cost approaching $1 billion a day. The emergency legislation was signed by President Reagan just hours after the House passed the measure 383-17. Union officials said they would order their members to obey the law though it is not known how soon it will take to get the trains rolling again. Less than two hours before the final vote, the measure had gained voice-vote approval from the House Energy and Commerce Committee with only a scattering of voices in dissent.

Martin Feldstein, President Reagan's choice to replace Murray Weidenbaum as chair of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, got a cool reception at his confirmation hearing Wednesday. Critics assailed Feldstein's past economic comments and wondered aloud how a rich man could identify with the average American's suffering during the national recession. Feldstein, a 42-year-old Harvard University professor of economics, is generally considered a traditional conservative economist. One member of Congress took issue with past Feldstein statements that seemed to favor trimming Social Security cost-of-living increases, reducing the percentage of national wealth devoted to housing, and keeping present government spending policies. Feldstein responded by proclaiming himself "a new boy on the block" who would be looking anew at economic questions as the president's adviser.

The House Judiciary Committee reversed itself under administration lobbying Wednesday and killed a plan for the federal government to pay the cost of caring for illegal aliens who would be granted amnesty under a proposed overhaul of the immigration laws. The plan, sponsored by Rep. Don Edwards (D-Calif.), originally was approved by a vote of 16-12 but during lunch, three Republicans changed their minds and the plan was killed 15-13 when the committee reconvened. Rep. Clay Shaw Jr. (R-Fla.), one of the members who first voted for and later against the Edwards amendment, told reporters that Reagan administration officials persuaded him to switch. Passage of the Edwards amendment to reimburse local costs of benefits for immigrants could eventually add nearly $1 billion a year to the federal budget.

The National Football League has called off Thursday night's Atlanta Falcons-Kansas City Chiefs game, the first one to be affected by the players' union strike. The league did not say whether it was a postponement or a cancellation. In a terse, two-sentence announcement read Wednesday by Jim Heffernan, NFL director of public relations, the league said: "The National Football League announced today that the Atlanta-at-Kansas City game will not be played Thursday night as scheduled because of the players' strike. At the same time, the league said no decision had been made as yet regarding the 13 other games that were to have made up the season's third regular-season weekend." Heffernan declined to answer any questions, referring them to the NFL Management Council, the owners' negotiating unit.

Familiar sight during reg week: lines without end.

Gun Control Ordinance Debated

Attorneys representing 36 opponents of San Francisco's new gun control ordinance argued to a Court of Appeal that state law requires no permit or license to "purchase, own and keep" a weapon in a home, and that state law pre-empts city ordinance. The ordinance makes it unlawful for any person to possess a handgun in the city, with the exception of police, security guards, some store owners and those with a permit to carry a concealed weapon. Bill McCabe, representing the city, argued there is no pre-emption by state law and that the California penal code involves only registration and licensing of guns, not possession. He agreed with Justice Sidney Feinberg, who said that state law gives a person the right to possess a gun at home or at a business, but gives the city the right to ban possession. Attorney Noble Gregory, representing opponents of the gun control ordinance, argued that denial of possession means denial of a permit and thus the ordinance deals with licensing. No decision has been reached by the court.

California officials celebrated victory over the Mediterranean fruit fly with champagne Tuesday, ending a two-year, $96 million battle to eradicate the voracious pest that threatened the state's multi-billion dollar agriculture industry. The state released 4.5 billion sterile medflies, hoping the fertile flies would choose one as a life-long mate, and sprayed the pesticide malathion on 1,495 square miles since the first fly was found in a San Jose garden on June 5, 1980. Roger Blake, the now laid off spokesman for the state project, said, "We've been getting queries from all over the world. Scientists want to know what we did and how we did it." Should the medfly return in the future, Blake predicted the state will again consider all types of control plans instead of immediately ordering aerial spraying in a "knee-jerk reaction."

Jurors pondering the Jaun Corona case deliberated through a ninth day Wednesday, the seven-month anniversary of the start of the $5 million mass-murder retrial. The jury is responsible for wading through 900 exhibits and 16,730 pages of trial transcript. Corona, awaiting the verdict in the Alameda County Courthouse, is charged with the 1971 slayings of 25 migrant farm laborers found in Sutter County peach orchards.

Applications Accepted For Student Advocate

By ANDREA WOODWARD
Asst. News Editor

The imposition of tuition will again be one of the "most touchy" issues before the University of California Regents this year, and therefore, the vacant position of student regent is a very important one, according to UCSB External Vice President Tom Spaulding.

"We need someone who is very vocal to act as a student advocate, to see that our needs (as students) are met," Spaulding said.

Applications are being accepted by Student Body President's Council members, like Spaulding, at all U.C. campuses. Interviews are to be held at this campus the first week of November, Spaulding said.

Spaulding emphasized the importance of the position, saying, "It (the Board of Regents) is the main body for determining policy for the entire U.C. system."

Three candidates will be chosen from this campus for the student regent position. Other regents include the chancellor of the university, the governor, the lieutenant governor, and the governor's appointees, Spaulding said.

The person chosen by the regents will serve for six months as a non-voting designate and for a year as a full voting member. The regents meet once a month alternating between Berkeley and Los Angeles, Spaulding said.

December 11 is the date set for north and south regional meetings and interviews to choose five candidates from each region. The final three choices for nomination will be made after interviews by the entire SBPC on Jan. 7 and 8. The names of final candidates will be submitted to the regents for a decision.

The only qualifications for the post are enrollment in the university, a "working knowledge of the University of California system and academic excellence," Spaulding said.

Spaulding said the position of student regent, as well as that of a faculty representative, was created in the early '70s in response to student outcry over a lack of representation.

At the time, students had the option of either choosing their own representative and not having a vote or choosing candidates for selection by the regents and having a vote. Students chose to have a full voting member while the U.C. faculty decided "they'd rather choose who they want anyway," Spaulding said.

Spaulding said he would like to see someone chosen from UCSB, but the chances are "one out of nine." With the exception of last year's representative, Linda Zabo from UCSD, most of the student regents have been from Berkeley or UCLA.

Three people have turned in applications to Spaulding thus far. Spaulding said these are people "who have known about it far in advance and decided that that is what they want to do," but all other interested students are encouraged to apply.

Spaulding said that the SBPC "is making an attempt to see that all campuses are represented" in the selection of a student regent and the systemwide committees which advise the chancellor.

Spaulding said that six UCSB students, mainly women, were appointed to the systemwide committees including Affirmative Action, Board of Admissions and Relations with Schools, and Student Financial Aid Committees.

There are still openings for committee appointments, including the systemwide Committee on Affirmative Action that is working on a five-year plan for submission to the legislature. Interested students should see Spaulding in the Associated Students Office.

Retreat Held To Organize Fee Advisory Committee

By ROBIN STEVENS
Nexus Campus Editor

The UCSB Registration Fee Advisory Committee met for a retreat Tuesday to prepare for the 1982-1983 school year and to acquaint new members with the administrative system.

The Reg Fee Committee recommends the allocation of university registration fees ($170 per student per quarter) which maintain such services as Arts and Lectures, athletics, the Student Health Center, and the Equal Opportunity Program. For the coming year "none of the major services for any of the departments have been cut," Jeffries explained. "Our first priority is with the already funded departments."

"What we have to do every year is work with budget requests for one time and on-going allocations," Steve Jeffries, the new chair of the committee, said. Jeffries, a junior, was elected last year by the other members of the committee and took over the chair on July 1, 1982.

The five new members appointed to the committee last month are sophomore representatives Anne McTeague and Thomas Morales, faculty member Dr. Charles Akemann, staff member Doris Phinney, and graduate member Susanne Chess.

Committee appointments are for a period of three years. "They have three year appointments because of the complexity of the issues that the committee deals with,"

Daily Nexus Opinion Opinions

One of the functions of a newspaper, any newspaper, is to provide a forum for public debate on the issues which concern its readers. The UCSB Daily Nexus is no exception.

Each day, Monday through Friday, these two pages will be devoted to expressions of opinion on a variety of topics by our readers, nationally-known syndicated columnists, Nexus staff members and, of course, our editorial staff.

Since this is our first regular daily edition, it is a good time to state publicly our editorial policy, provide a basic roadmap identifying the different components of the opinion section, and give some directions for those who wish to take advantage of the opportunity to air their views in our pages.

Monday through Thursday, the Nexus editorials will appear in the column on the left side of page four. The opinion expressed therein represents a consensus viewpoint of the Nexus editorial board, which is comprised of all senior editors. Their names will appear, as often as space permits, in a box above those editorials.

The remainder of page four is devoted to letters to the editor (on Friday the entire page will be given over to readers' views). All letters must be limited to 400 words in length, and must be accompanied by the writer's name, signature and phone number. Phone numbers will, of course, be held in strictest confidence, but anonymous letters will not be printed. Neither will those that fail to come reasonably close to the 400-word limit.

Page five is devoted to opinion columns concerning as wide a variety of issues as possible, from campus issues to war in the Middle East (and everything in between). We encourage everyone who has an interesting perspective on an issue — student, faculty or staff member — to submit a piece for possible publication. It should be remembered that the pinions contained within them, as with letters and editorial cartoons, represents that of the individual writers and/or artists — not the Daily Nexus.

Register

If you are tired of being labeled an "apathetic student," and if you care about your city, your state, and your country, then you must take advantage of the opportunity to vote in the November elections by registering before the October 4 deadline.

In an attempt to get more people to vote, CalPIRG is sponsoring a large voter registration drive on campus and in Isla Vista. From now until October 2, CalPIRG representatives will be located in front of the UCen, near packet filing lines, and at several other locations to assist students in the registration process.

Among those who must re-register to be eligible to vote in the November election are those who either have moved since the last election or did not vote in the June primary. The Santa Barbara County Clerk's office recently purged the voter lists of as many as 16,000 of the latter, a great percentage of them in the Isla Vista area.

The November elections are crucial for several reasons: voters will not only choose the next governor, a U.S. senator and several congressmen but will also decide the fate of such critical issues as the handgun initiative and the bottle bill as well as several important local measures. We should keep in mind that when we choose our leaders and take a stand on issues, we are exercising a right granted to us as United States citizens. Without registering, that right remains unavailable.

Tanning

Editor, Daily Nexus:

As the owner of Sun Time Sun Tanning Center of Goleta, I was both shocked and dismayed when I read last week's article about indoor tanning salons.

By implying or even alluding to the fact that "sun tanning places the emphasis on self" or "recreating the appearance of youth" or "looking forever tanned and 20," do you have even the slightest idea what you are doing to the fragile psyches of — just to name a few — Cheryl Tiegs, Tony Bennett, Farrah Fawcett, or (God help us) — George Hamilton?

You mention indoor tanning as "perhaps one attitudinal step toward Big Brother-type control" etc. This is a setback of tragic dimensions for a whole generation of amateur tannists who look upon indoor tanning as — at the very least — a God-send. Don't you realize there are days when it's cloudy and the sun doesn't shine? How can you shatter the security of these bronzed free-spirits by suggesting control by the ominous "Big Brother?"

What's this noise about "poor laboratory rats" used by researchers who tried unsuccessfully to develop cancer using UVA bulbs? Haven't you considered the increased status of those "rodents with a healthy glow?"

Since your article so maligned indoor tanning (and with only a few more weeks until the Olympic Tan Fest held this year in Lompoc), I should point out just some of the advantages of indoor tanning.

All-Over Tan: Unless you're one of those perverts who go to the "nudie" beaches and leer behind your sunglasses and do nasty things, you'll appreciate the fact that you can have a golden tan even in those places "where the sun doesn't shine."

Medical Advantages: No more ugly zits! No more pasty-white skin! No more itchy psoriasis!

Week-Day Fallout: Don't lose your skin during the week because you spent 32 hours in the sun on Saturday and Sunday and fried to a crisp. Condition your skin indoors.

I hope your readers will agree that "Unnatural Is Best" and come see us in Goleta. Who knows, you might have a chance to get George Hamilton's autograph!

Overtime

Editor, Daily Nexus:

It has been stated, "If you work 40 hours a week, and anything over 40 hours is to be considered as overtime; which is time and a half. You will receive your regular pay on the first of the following month, overtime within 15 days of that month," according to the Labor Relations Board.

"However, that is not true for the UCSB Residential Housing," said one of the department heads. The department heads feel that they are under a different budget; therefore, are able to avoid paying their dorm supervisor, custodian, maids and their student help in full for their overtime, ignoring the policy of the Labor Relations Board.

Last summer 1982, residential services made over a million dollars in summer conferences using Anacapa, Santa Rosa, Santa Cruz, San Miguel, San Nicolas and San Rafael dorms. Their supervisors were told that they must work 40 hours a week, and overtime when needed. And also, the custodian, maids and student help. Everything was fine on pay day, except the overtime. Instead of being paid as the Labor Relations Board states, it came as a trickle down effect. For instance a staff member worked 38 hours overtime for the month of July, and received eight hours of overtime in September. Two months after working, it is still being trickled down into the months of October, November and December, not to mention the overtime for the month of August and September.

Many of the summer staff felt resentment that the hierarchy did not care about them. When help was needed in a particular dorm (Anacapa) there was no answer from the residential service office. The dorm supervisors had to combine their efforts in order to get a particular building ready for the conference that was scheduled.

UCSB student workers are paid on the fifth working day of the month. Some students do not seem to mind; although others do not like it. The personnel office seems to forget that students have to pay their bills on the first of the month too. The reason why students are paid so late is because the university can collect interest on their money in order to pay higher salaries to the department heads for sitting on their butts and doing nothing but making the lower level do the work.

I, for one, do not think that is fair to the dorm supervisors and their full-time staff, nor to the student workers to be treated like dogs in order to pay department heads higher income with their money.

Rip-Off

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I see the university is again looking out for the benefit of the students this year. They have installed an automatic teller machine in the UCen. What a money saver for the university! The Bank of Montecito's rates are only twice that of most banks. Note that the $4 a month checking service charge applies only when a balance of $600 is kept! Who chose this bank? Who is getting the kick-backs? I encourage the students to boycott this service. It is a rip-off!

La Jicora

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I enjoyed reading Jonathan and Jane's synopsis of Santa Barbara's eateries, (Focus, 9/17). I found myself agreeing, amused by the accuracy of the reviews. It must have been hard, however delicious, to cover the area. And I feel obligated to mention a place which was overlooked.

The past two years, while attending UCSB, I have grown to depend on La Jicora for consistently satisfying Mexican meals. On weekends, in the mornings, La Jicora is a good place to recuperate after a long and fun evening. I usually get heuvos rancheros. For those who can't face spicy food so early, La Jicora prepares regular American breakfasts also. They make fantastic Mexican hot chocolate, but I'm not sure I would have anything but H2O with the heuvos.

La Jicora does not look like much from the outside, and it does not have the pleasant decor of El Mexicano, but the food is better and cheaper. Mexican food can make you feel your lower digestive tract if it is not prepared right. I have always found La Jicora to have the freshest food. Another thing: they don't hide your order under a mountain of lettuce. This service is excellent; the entire business operates efficiently.

So try La Jicora. Once you have been there a few times you will most likely become another familiar face to us other avid customers. It lacks the happy hour but has the basic selection of beers. It is a good place to read.

Another good restaurant Focus overlooked was the Ocean View Cafe on Cliff Drive. These two places help students on strict budgets who are bored with college food or can't motivate themselves in their own kitchens.

Student/Employee Coalition

This is the first in a series of articles which hopefully will appear in the Daily Nexus each week. In fact, the members of our group plan to have an article published each week for the entire academic year.

Our group is made up of undergraduates, graduate students, staff and faculty. We are involved with a number of campus organizations, such as Associated Students, the Graduate Students Association, the American Federation of State and County Municipal Employees, and the American Federation of Teachers. We have been in communication for the past two years, discussing a wide range of specific issues related to the process of campus management. We have all agreed to promote the concept of greater student/employee participation in university governance, a concept which is implicit in the function of this institution (by the existence of an elaborate committee structure). In addition, the concept of student and employee participation in campus governance is part of administrative policy (See University of California President Saxon's statement on this subject, 1979.)

Our group was originally formed to study the problems of campus closure. Our position on this particular issue is that the process of campus closure during the December/January holidays has not been sufficiently reviewed, nor has it received adequate input from students, staff and faculty to warrant implementation (we do not disagree with the basic idea of a closure.) With respect to this issue, an informal hearing of the Public Employee Review Board resulted in an agreement between AFSCME and the university. This subject will be discussed in greater detail in another article.

We hope this weekly column will help make students and campus employees aware of those policies and programs which affect all of us. We intend to offer criticism of those decisions which we feel are counter to the interests and welfare of the majority of people who study and work on this campus. Furthermore, we intend to praise those decisions which we feel are in agreement with the interests of students and employees.

An example of a praiseworthy decision was the appointment of last year's Financial Aid Review Team, consisting of faculty, staff and students. The task of the review team was to look into student and employee complaints regarding the management of the Financial Aid Office. The results obtained by the review team, though not fully realized, have been positive and substantial. On the other hand, there are many questions about the causes of those problems which remain unanswered.

Many other issues will be commented on in greater detail each week by a member of our coalition. Each article will be written from the standpoint of the writer and will not reflect a consensus of the group. The underlying purpose of these writings will be to motivate fellow students and employees to accept more responsibility for the way UCSB is governed, thereby encouraging greater participation in the management process. Only by direct participation in the decision-making process can students and employees guarantee that their interests are addressed.

We welcome comments and criticisms from other groups and individuals of the campus community. For more information please call: Ron Smith (AFSCME) X2371, Jay Weiss (A.S.) X2566, Bernie Kirtman (AFT) X2217, Bill Leone (GSA) X3824.

Womanwise Toward a Student Perspective

By ROSEMARY LA PUMA
and JANE MUSSER

Womanwise Coordinators

Womanwise is a weekly column that provides an opportunity for women to express their opinions and feelings about issues affecting themselves and the world. It is a chance for women to publicly discuss subjects ranging from politics to personally significant events.

For the past two years, Womanwise has been coordinated through the Women's Center. However, the A.S. Commission on the Status of Women has been given responsibility for the column this year. As the student coordinators of Womanwise, we believe this move will enable the column to become more student-oriented.

Because as coordinators we have been given sole responsibility for the column, we have no outside pressure to print or not print any certain opinions. We consider all and every view significant and worthy of publication. Diversity is what will make Womanwise interesting and important.

In an age when it's easier to sit back and observe we hope students will take this opportunity to express their opinions about the changing world. After an initial failure, the Equal Rights Amendment forces are rising again with renewed energy. Legislation to outlaw abortion and limit birth control rights is pending in Congress. Women still average 59 cents for every dollar a man makes. Sexual harassment continues to be a major problem in business and in academics. Discrimination on the basis of sex remains an unavoidable aspect of our society. These are some of the issues we hope will be discussed through Womanwise this year. In a time when there is so much potential for change, it is vitally necessary that we act rather than simply observe.

However, Womanwise isn't only for the political aspects of today's issues. How these issues affect women personally is equally important. Such concerns as friendships, achievements and failures, important role models, relationships, sexuality, hopes and fears, belong to all of us and we feel they are worthy of publishing.

If you have an opinion and would like to write a column for Womanwise, but have trouble expressing yourself in written form, we are available for advice and suggestions. Please leave your name and phone number at the A.S. office located on the third floor of the University Center or give us a call at 961-2566. Articles can be submitted typed and triple spaced to the Womanwise box in the A.S. office. Articles must be submitted by Friday to be considered for publication the following week. Please write your name and phone number on the article. Names will be withheld upon request.

Too often and for too long women's issues and concerns have been pushed aside. Womanwise provides the long overdue opportunity for women on campus to publicly discuss these issues and concerns. We welcome your comments, suggestions and articles.

New Publication Revives Old Questions

All over the country, daily newspapers are dropping like medflies under a direct barrage of malathion. It's easy to pin the blame on inroads made by ever-expanding television news into both the attentions of Americans and the available pool of advertising dollars — who wants to buy ad space in a paper when every new poll reveals that fewer and fewer people pay attention to them?

It's also easy to pin it on labor unions, which consistently oppose the introduction of computerized, job-eliminating technology into the print journalism industry, thus leaving major papers at the mercy of new employee demands for pay increases. The now-defunct Washington Star had a great deal in common with Chrysler Corporation, except one got bailed out by the federal government. Politicians always have preferred oversized, outdated cars to vital, vocal newspapers.

The issue is not, however, quite as simple as all that. Perhaps it is easier to gain some insight into the sickness that now debilitates the journalism industry by looking at a new-born addition to its ranks, the much-heralded USA Today, which made its debut last week as a national daily newspaper under the auspices of the Gannet Company.

Gannet is the nation's largest newspaper chain, composed of 88 dailies, and the sixth largest media company in the country with 1981 sales of $1.8 billion. Despite the disheartening fact that 47 papers folded last year alone, Gannet is spending an estimated $20 to $25 million to launch what will eventually be a Monday-to-Friday daily paper, printed in many regional pressrooms via satellite transmission, and available from coast to coast. Projected circulation by 1987: an optimistic 2.35 million.

Numbers alone give no hint as to the character of this new paper. With the market for young journalists as awful as it is right now, and the death knell of each folding paper causing other publishers to wonder how long they can survive without being buried by the same set of economic circumstances, it would seem that the introduction of a new paper would be cause for rejoicing, a sign that things may be looking up. However, a closer look at the format of USA Today reveals that optimism should remain guarded, and hope for the future of print news media be tempered somewhat by somber realization of what it says about the changing appetites of the American public. Or, at least, what the thus-far successful publishers of the Gannet chain perceive to be the appetites of news consumers.

Compared to other large newspapers, USA Today is what People is in the world of news magazines like Time, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report. It emphasizes the brief and easily digestible over analysis and comprehensive detail, the accessible over the crucial, and the interesting-but-unimportant over the less-flashy-but-significant stories that comprise the newsworthy events of any given day. Case in point: the death of Princess Grace of Monaco was the lead story on page one last week, while the assassination of Lebanese President-elect Bashir Gemayel was relegated to page nine of the same edition.

Granted, it is very sad that the princess died, but when compared to the ongoing turmoil in the Middle East, the sight of a powerful American client state pounding the holy hell out of a civilian population center for several weeks with sophisticated American weaponry, the vulnerable reliance by a majority of the nations in the Western World on natural resources from the region, and the unlikely but still possible scenario of the U.S. being forced to intervene in the conflict to safeguard its "national security," who cares about a dead princess who once had a brief career in Hollywood?

Some events are just more important than others; determining those priorities is one of the greatest burdens placed on the editors of all newspapers. Certainly, the decision must be based to a certain extent on the wants and needs of a paper's readership, but there is a point at which editorial intuition and experience in simply observing the way the world works takes precedence. The premise underlying that sort of decision-making is that certain types of ignorance are more dangerous than others. Which is worse, a society that knows nothing about the death tolls from hurricanes and earthquakes in faraway lands, or a society that fails to anticipate or even understand its government's decision to send troops to one of the same foreign lands?

In a sense, the kind of news reporting that USA Today has committed itself to producing bears more than a passing resemblance to television newscasts. Complex issues are distilled, and the way the news is presented becomes as important as what is presented. One of the executives of Gannet justified this brand of reporting by saying that most large newspapers today tell the readers what it is that they should know, instead of the reverse. Apparently, USA Today will be giving people "what they want." The same rationalization is what lies behind the advertising campaigns that sell "vital" products like electric toothbrushes. If extended into the public school system, children would be "taught" to read comic books, if anything, and passing tests would be strictly an optional exercise in masochism.

Like it or not, newspapers have a responsibility to educate the public on the issues that educated people should be aware of. Ask any teacher — this requires a certain measure of prodding, and is a little like going to the dentist. It's painful, but you're better off afterward. Making it easy too often means making it ineffective. Handing the public news that is simple and simplistic means it is given the illusion of being informed without the substance.

That's a prescription for complacency if ever there was one. Present auto wrecks, fires and liquor store holdups as the top stories often enough, and the impression will grow that they really are the important events of the day. Let people think that by reading or watching that kind of news they are keeping "well-informed," and the drive to find out what's really going on in the world will atrophy beyond rehabilitation. Do all that with the goal of making a lot of money, and you've violated the public trust.

If a government-controlled newspaper does that, it's fascist manipulation of the populace. If a large corporation in a democratic society does it in the name of free enterprise, it's sad and disgusting.

I'm not sure which is worse.

Marshall Tulin Appointed To New Presidential Chair

Marshall P. Tulin, internationally recognized engineer and scientist in ocean engineering, has been named a professor of mechanical and environmental engineering at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

In addition to the professorship, Tulin has been appointed the first holder of the newly established Presidential Chair created on the campus through action of the U.C. Board of Regents. The Presidential Chair, the first endowed chair at UCSB, will be held by Tulin for five years.

The regents have established a fund functioning as an endowment to support a continuing program of Presidential Chairs on each of the U.C. system's nine campuses. The chairs are intended to encourage new or interdisciplinary program development or to enhance quality of existing academic programs.

Annual support of each chair will be equivalent to the income from $250,000, or around $15,000. This money may be used for instructional activities, research or other endeavors of the chair holders.

John E. Myers, dean of the UCSB College of Engineering, said, "Marshall Tulin's addition to the faculty will have a strong positive effect on our new interdisciplinary program in ocean engineering. He not only is a superb ocean engineer, but an exceptional mechanical engineer in the broadest sense."

Tulin will be the first UCSB member of the National Academy of Engineering, the engineering counterpart of the National Academy of Sciences.

Tulin's appointment marks the latest step in developing undergraduate and graduate programs in ocean engineering. Planning began in 1980 with the arrival at UCSB of Wilbert J. Lick, professor and chair of mechanical and environmental engineering. Lick is considered an authority and pioneer in developing models that forecast where contaminants and other substances will be transported in large bodies of water.

Tulin's international reputation is based in large measure on his highly regarded and varied research in hydrodynamics, the science that deals with the motion of fluid and the forces that act on solid bodies immersed in fluids and in motion relative to them.

His theoretical and experimental work is credited with making possible the practical use of super-captivating propellers and hydrofoils.

Office of Naval Research Supports University Laser

By GREGORY McMORROW
Nexus Staff Writer

Barring any unforeseen budgetary obstacles, the Office of Naval Research will award an additional $3.5 million contract Oct. 1, 1982 to UCSB's Quantum Institute for further research and development of a free electron laser which will be housed in the newly built laboratory behind UCSB's physics building.

The free electron laser, which measures approximately 21 feet, represents a considerable advancement in laser development because unlike other conventional lasers, the FEL emits a beam which can be tuned to any wavelength from the ultraviolet to the far infra-red regions of the spectrum.

The laser could be applied to many areas of existing technology, but the Navy is primarily interested in using the FEL to improve optical communications, countermeasures and weapons, according to presentations it made to Congress in order to gain approval for funding of the program.

Dr. Luis Elias, director of the FEL program, is quick to point out that the experimental laser is not being developed specifically to be used as a weapon. "This is basic research that we're doing. We're testing concepts and you'll find no mention of weapons, countermeasures or even communications in our proposal."

The FEL beam is considered an important advancement because unlike conventional lasers, which use electrons connected to molecules, the FEL uses unconnected electrons whose speed can be controlled in order to change the beam to any wavelength.

"This machine will be unique in the world because its wavelength can be tuned to match that of the material being studied simply by changing the speed of the electrons which make up the beam," Elias said.

Concerns were raised last spring regarding the university's involvement in what might amount to military research but Elias stated that these concerns were greatly exaggerated.

"This laser is not a lethal weapon and it does not give out much more energy than a regular kitchen range," Elias said. Elias further noted that the Navy has a traditional relationship of funding universities and more importantly, that the Defense Department is the only agency which has the means to fund such basic research.

However, Elias concedes that the Navy may want to use the FEL for military purposes in the future.

The Navy might benefit (militarily), but lasers are already being used by telephone companies, department and grocery stores and numerous computer firms," Elias said.

Once the FEL becomes operational Dr. Elias wants to establish a national "user facility" which will be open to researchers from around the country as well as UCSB scientists. "We hope to build adjoining labs which could accommodate visiting scientists," Elias said.

UCSB Chemistry Professor David Harris hopes to employ the FEL to study the structure of certain molecules, which previously could not be studied with lasers. "It (FEL) will be useful for general studies of the structure of molecules because it operates in areas which heretofore were blind spots on the wavelength spectrum," he said.

The FEL, along with an electrostatic generating device being assembled in Wisconsin, will be housed in the 2,500 square-foot laboratory on campus. $500,000 in construction funds were allocated by the U.C. Regents three and a half years ago. However, cost overruns forced the project to use approximately $20,000 from the initial $1.8 million grant from the Office of Naval Research for the lab's construction.

Legal Research Course Offered

In cooperation with the Santa Barbara Legal Secretaries Association, UCSB Extension is presenting "Legal Research" this Fall quarter as part of its Certificate in Legal Assistantship program.

Classes meet in Phelps 1425 from Sept. 27 through

Dec. 13, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Participants in the course must have one year experience as a legal secretary or consent of the instructor.

Taught by Susan Petrovich, member of the State Bar of California, this course provides instruction in legal research techniques, beginning with sample fact situations. Methods for defining legal issues will be followed by an introduction to legal digests and other source materials, including case reports and instruction in writing of legal memoranda and in use of correct citations. This course is required for the certificate.

Fee for the class is $135. All interested may call the Extension office at 961-4200 for more information and enrollment details.

I.V. Incorporation Issue

The council also touched on two other issues which will be in store for Isla Vista in the future: the possibility of the IVMAC working with the county on local road repairs and of working in conjunction with local utility companies to place utility equipment underground in the local commercial area.

CalPIRG's Goals

involved with the services they receive while at the same time often creating extensive savings for the consumer.

CalPIRG director Lauri Flack spoke on CalPIRG's involvement with the Community Right to Know Ordinance, which specifies that any company or business that stores, uses or disposes of any toxic substances must report them annually. "We (CalPIRG) feel that the passage of such an ordinance can help in the event of an accident with the toxic substances. It will facilitate dealing with the problem," Flack reasoned.

"Residents have a right to know what they are being exposed to," Flack stated. "It's about time that Santa Barbara joined other communities in the state to protect our health."

CalPIRG member Eric West hosts a KCSB radio show, "CalPIRG on the Air," every other Monday evening at 5 p.m.

Reg Fee Comm.

Jeffries explained. "It takes a year to really get into it."

At the meeting Jeffries dealt with the organization of the committee as a whole, special budget requests, a review of a project aimed toward funding a student services building, and another project on allocating money for university housing in I.V.

"The campus is having budget problems and when money gets tight people turn to us for more money," Jeffries said. The committee has a "policy of appropriate use" which specifies that the money obtained from reg fees must be "services in support of the academic mission of the campus but not necessary to the academic mission," Jeffries explained.

Jeffries added that he expects more requests for money this year than ever before because of the recent budget cuts on campus. "I expect requests — different requests — from sources which we have never before funded," he said.

The Reg Fee Committee meets every Wednesday from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., the second meeting of every month is open to students and anyone else who would like to attend. "We are dealing with confidential issues such as jobs and money allocations," Jeffries explained.

All announcements must be turned in by 10 a.m., two days before they are to be printed. Announcements submitted late will not be printed. Announcements may be turned in up to two weeks in advance of publication.

Kiosk forms are available at the Daily Nexus office, Storke Communications Bldg., Rm. 1035. The yellow forms are located in a tray beside the door and are to be completely filled out. No Kiosk announcement will be accepted over the telephone, nor made from any letter or correspondence.

Kiosk forms limit each announcement to 168 characters, which must include the name of the group sponsoring the event, the nature of the event, and the day, date, time and place of the event.

The Daily Nexus reserves a space for Kiosk announcements. Kiosk announcements will be selected to run in the space permitted by virtue of when they were submitted. Limited space does not allow all Kiosk announcements to be published.

The editor reserves the right not to publish any Kiosk announcement.

In an attempt to better serve the campus community, we have moved our Kiosk announcements from their former spot on page two to this location, where they will appear from now on. In this way, we hope to reduce the number of times that space constraints prevent us from printing some of the many announcements we receive each day. We consider our policy of providing this space to be a valuable public service, and hope that it will continue to be an asset to our readers.

UCSB's Start Forgettable

By KEITH ROSS
Nexus Sports Writer

Regarded as one of the top teams in the nation, the UCSB men's water polo team has opened the season in a disappointing manner, dropping five of their first seven matches. In their home opener on Sept. 16, the Gauchos lost a tough 8-5 decision to Stanford.

UCSB water polo coach Pete Snyder felt his team played well against the Cardinals and that certain changes could affect the outcome of future contests.

"We didn't take advantage of a lot of 6-5's (situation where a team must play without a player for a set amount of time because of a foul), and that cost us the game. We've made some adjustments that should help in the future games," he said.

After losing to Stanford, the Gauchos headed for the U.C. Irvine Tournament, where they lost to four of the top teams in the nation: Cal, USC, UCLA, and U.C. Irvine. Each time falling by three or less goals.

Snyder felt several factors were responsible for the poor showing made by the Gauchos. Conditioning, or the lack thereof played a big part in the demise of UCSB in the Irvine Tournament.

"We started behind in terms of conditioning because of a three week lay-off this summer. This forced us to play less experienced people to keep the starters fresh."

The loss of junior Larry Mouchawar, the Gauchos' sixth all time leading scorer coming into the season, for the first half of the Irvine tourney slowed down the Gauchos offense. Another factor limiting the success of the Gauchos was inconsistency.

"Everybody played inconsistent at one time or another," commented coach Snyder.

Also in the tournament, the Gauchos defeated UOP 10-5 and Fresno State 12-6 for their first two victories of the season.

Overshadowing some of the disappointments in the young season has been the play of senior Peter Neuschul, junior Scott Porter, and some of the younger players. Neuschul, currently 11th on the all time scoring list and Porter have combined to provide most of the offense.

Greg Chambers, a sophomore from Santa Clara, and senior Dan Hoffman of Huntington Beach, have played well enough to win some starting opportunities, according to Snyder.

This Saturday the Gauchos squad ventures down to Southern California where they will take on the Trojans of USC. After dropping a 5-4 game to the Trojans at Irvine, coach Snyder is looking forward to the rematch.

"It's not out of the realm of possibility for us to beat USC and the other teams who've defeated us," the next time we play them.

Trivia Quizzes

Better start brushing up on your sports trivia. It may win you a free pizza at Pizza Bob's.

Beginning Tuesday, the Daily Nexus and Pizza Bob's will join together to sponsor a sports trivia quiz. Every Tuesday and Thursday a sports question will appear in the Nexus sports section and the first correct answer will net the winner any pizza at Pizza Bob's.

The first question will be on Sept. 28, so be prepared. Everything from baseball to football, basketball to college athletics will be tested. The winner's name will also appear in the Nexus the following day.

NOTICE: TO ALL STUDENTS, FACULTY & STAFF WHO RIDE BIKES ON CAMPUS

The bicycle riding and parking system at UCSB was designed with the safety and welfare of all members of the University community in mind. During the year, we have numerous problems caused by bicycles being parked where they don't belong and ridden where they should be walked. These problems include accidents of moderate severity, the blocking of handicapped people's access to buildings, and a hazard to emergency personnel who attempt to respond as quickly as possible to emergency situations.

Because of these health and safety problems, the CSOs and the University Police will continue to actively enforce bicycle regulations throughout THE SCHOOL YEAR.

Any information concerning bicycle regulations is available from the University Police Dept., or the CSO Office (961-2433) located in the Public Safety Building. To avoid Tickets, Impoundment and Inconveniences, know all the laws about bicycles.

YOUR BIKE WILL BE IMPOUNDED by the CSO if you:

- Block a doorway
- Lock your bike to a tree or post
- Lock your bike on or to a wheelchair ramp
- Park your bike inside any building
- Leave your bike in the quad area of Phelps, Ellison, Arts, Engineering, etc.
- Leave your bike in front of Rob Gym or Nautilus
- Park outside of the bike parking area at the library

IMPOUNDED BIKES MAY HAVE THE LOCKS CUT
(if necessary) AND A $1 FEE WILL BE ASSESSED

Bikes may only be picked up between 10 am and noon M-F

YOU COULD GET A TICKET from a Police Officer if you:

- Disobey traffic signals or signs
- Ride without a light after dark
- Ride in areas posted "NO BIKES" (look for signs and for markings)
- Ride in a way that endangers yourself or the innocent people around you
- Ride Double

Off The Record

Not The CFL

By GARY MIGDOL
Nexus Sports Editor

After all the anticipation of a football player's strike, it has finally arrived. It is an argument heard many times before. The players want more than the owners want to give and feel the only way to show they mean business is to strike. And who can argue with that.

The only problem is that in the end, the fan ultimately suffers. As the National Football League loses a cool $42 million a week, many people are losing the entertainment they so richly enjoy.

Tonight's game between the Atlanta Falcons and the Kansas City Chiefs is the first scheduled game to be affected by the walkout. As of this writing, the league is saying they will not cancel any games, that they will play the games with free agents and strike-breakers. But if the games are cancelled, NBC and CBS are planning to televise Canadian Football League games on Sunday to take the place of NFL games and give the football addict his weekly fix.

Can you believe it? Canadian football in place of the NFL? That's like scrambled eggs in place of prime rib. I don't intend to demean the Canadian Football League, but when you've been brought up on the NFL, as I have, you sort of get used to 100 yard fields, 11 players, five receivers and ten yard end zones.

Should the strike continue through Sunday and cause the cancellation of scheduled NFL games, which in all probability it will, football fans will be fed two CFL games: British Columbia against Toronto and Calgary vs. Edmonton.

Now is this any way to treat the people that support a $700 million contract between the NFL and the three major networks? I suppose the networks are stuck between a rock and a hard place. They don't want to televise CFL games, but when millions of Americans want football on Sunday, they are only supplying the public with what they want, even if it is Canadian football.

The Canadian Football League is just not the same. The players, coaches, and the game itself is different. It is an entirely different event. I bet they don't even have the same food as the NFL.

Can you buy a hot dog at a CFL game? What about a beer? Do the fans get rowdy and boo the visiting team, or the home team in the case of the Los Angeles Rams?

I've never been to a CFL game but I can imagine what they're like. I bet the fans eat quiche, and we all know real men don't eat quiche. Or worse yet, football fans eating quiche during a game. And they probably eat some sort of vegetable quiche like broccoli or spinach. I can just see it.

If they tire of quiche, maybe a crepe or two would suffice during halftime. The Canadians are tops in the hockey world, but when it comes to football, they just don't measure up. I'm sorry.

I don't know how long we avid gridiron fans can last watching only CFL games. Sure college games will still be around, but it is the NFL that stands far and above any other league. I hope the players and owners can reach an agreement soon for the sake of millions of people.

But I imagine it will have to due for the time being. I think I'll write each owner and tell them all that if the strike is not settled soon, they will have a million people ketching at them. And I don't wish that on anybody.

Women Spikers Go To Nebraska

By BARRY EBERLING
Asst. Sports Editor

Today the UCSB women's volleyball team will arrive in Nebraska for the Nebraska Invitational.

Why travel so far? Especially when most of the top-ranked teams are in California?

"Because it's good experience," coach Kathy Gregory said. "We're assured of four games against top mid-west teams, and it won't be like playing USC and UCLA back-to-back."

Instead, it will be like playing the University of Nebraska, Texas A & M, and Southwest Missouri back-to-back. All finished in the top 20 last year and would like to build their reputations by knocking off a top 10, Southern California team.

They may have picked a good time to do it; the Gauchos' inexperience has been accentuated lately by injuries, which have forced Gregory to start three freshmen. Middle blocker Cindy Cochrane will miss the invitational with a knee injury and hitter Iris MacDonald is doubtful due to illness.

Missing players didn't stop the Gauchos from running their season record to 9-2 last weekend, though. They won three out of four matches to place fifth in the Fullerton Invitational, despite the absences of Cochrane, middle blocker Kathie Ludeke, and Mary Allison.

Gregory was pleased with the play of freshmen Lisa Moore, Sally Rea and Liane Sato. Still, she says the team needs to "go through some wars."

The closest they came at Fullerton was their 15-7, 7-15, 15-5 victory over the host team. "Fullerton is tough and they had a good crowd," Gregory said. "It was a good match for pressure."

Saturday's 3-15, 9-15 loss to Arizona State wasn't good for UCSB, period. As the score suggests, the match will be left off of any Gaucho promotion pamphlets.

Gregory expects the inexperience problem to be eased when all players are back in action. Until then, she points out that at least everyone is getting to play.

Gauche Grapevine — UCSB will play the University of Nebraska tonight before starting the two day tournament tomorrow... Fullerton Invitational scores — UCSB beat New Mexico State 15-3, 15-12 and Cal State Fullerton 15-7, 7-15, 15-5 on Friday... Only Kicker's Opponents Are Disappointed So Far

Nexus Sports Editor

Expected to be one of the finest teams in UCSB history, the Gaucho soccer team has not let anyone down so far in 1982.

After winning the Fresno Sunbird Classic last weekend, UCSB hosts a tough Stanford team today at 2 p.m. at Harder Stadium.

The Gaucho's, now 4-1-1 on the year, beat Azusa Pacific 1-0, Chapman College 3-1 and Fresno Pacific 1-0 to win the tournament. Midfielder Steve Price was named the most valuable player of the tourney. Also named to the all-tournament team were Eric Price and Steve Daluz.

Steve Price has scored four goals this season and has become the all-time leading goal scorer in Gaucho history with 28, breaking the record of 27 set by Steve Pollock.

Today, UCSB faces the preseason number eight ranked team in the far west in Stanford. The Cardinals were 12-7 a year ago and finished rated number ten in the far west. They shutout the Gaucho's last year 4-0 and lead the series 2-0.

Santa Barbara has lost fullback Graham Witherall for two weeks with a broken bone in his foot. Goalie Steve Tipping has undergone arthroscopic surgery to repair torn cartilage in his left knee.

The Gaucho's host Cal Poly SLO on Monday at 7:30 p.m. and Westmont on Wednesday.

California Policy Seminar Research Awards

For the fiscal years 1983-85, funds are available to faculty and researchers on all University of California campuses and associated federal laboratories who are investigating public policy issues on subject of vital concern to Californians. Recipients of research funding will conduct their research on their home campuses and ultimately report their findings to the CALIFORNIA POLICY SEMINAR and interested state government officials. The CALIFORNIA POLICY SEMINAR is chaired by David S. Saxon, President of the University.

This year the Seminar seeks responses to the following questions:

1. Assuming that no additional money is available, how should the public education system be changed to reduce school dropouts and increase the number of youth who either go on to college or become employed?
2. What does it cost both economically and socially to resettle refugees, and is the money used effectively?
3. Should we expand or contract the responsibilities of counties, cities, and special districts, giving local governments more/less taxing authority, more/less control over various service functions? If we do nothing, what is the likely future of local government?
4. Consider the state's economic development and role in international trade.
5. Consider the impacts of the AT&T settlement on consumers, and the effects on competition in the communications equipment manufacturing field.
6. Are there new ways to think about taxation in California?
7. How should California coordinate state and federal policies for the freight and rail systems?
8. How should the state deal with the often antiquated highway and personal transit systems?
9. California in ruins: What are the effects of fiscal shortfalls on outdated state infrastructures?
10. Are there alternatives to incarceration that would be less costly, provide adequate public protection, deter crime, and be sufficiently unpleasant to satisfy the desire for retribution?

Each research project is funded at $50,000 over a two-year period.

Application forms may be obtained from the CALIFORNIA POLICY SEMINAR, 109 Moses Hall, University of California, Berkeley, 94720, or by calling (415) 642-5514. The SEMINAR will commission the most promising abstracts for development as 20 page research proposals which may also be candidates for publication as monographs by the Institute of Governmental Studies. Four to six of the research proposals will chosen for two year funding beginning July 1, 1983.

The completed forms must be returned by SEPTEMBER 30, 1982 on abstract forms provided by the CALIFORNIA POLICY SEMINAR. initial funding awards will be announced on or about November 15, 1982.
