Prizes Offered For Yells In Forum Contest

To assist the yell leader and to instill a little pep into the Student Body, the Forum decided at a special meeting of that organization held last Wednesday, to sponsor a yell contest and to offer a prize of $1.00 for the best yell submitted.

Roscoe McGuire, president of the Forum; Edmund O'Reilly, president of the Student Body, and Floyd Kenney, Student Body yell leader, will be the judges of the yells submitted and will award the prize at a rally to be held next Friday noon, October 23, for the football game with Southwestern University on the home gridiron. At this rally the new yells submitted will be tried out and general ceremonies will be held to arouse enthusiasm for the game.

The College has for some time felt the decided lack of sufficient and varied yells, and it is hoped that this contest will unearth a few that will make the students enjoy yelling. Original yells are preferred, but that is optional. What is desired is yells that are unique and especially adaptable to a college of this type. The judges would like a big response for this contest and since the College is so sadly in need of new yells, several honorable mentions will be awarded as well as the first prize of $1.00. The success of the contest will depend upon this response.

The last contest sponsored by the Forum was a song contest which brought to light a few very good songs. Yells are much easier to compose and anyone with a little originality should be able to draw an honorable mention at least. This contest, however, will last but one week; so it is imperative that contributions be given to Roscoe McGuire or Floyd Kenney at once. The contest will close next Friday morning, so that the winners may be announced at the rally.

Mrs. Miller attended a conference of registrars and secretaries of Southern California colleges at Pasadena last Monday.

A. W. S. To Elect Delegate To Pomona Convention Early Next Week

A special meeting of the A. W. S. will be held early next week to elect an official delegate and name a number of unofficial delegates to the A. W. S. convention to be held at Pomona College, November 13, 14, and 15. A letter from the officials at Pomona was received recently stating that it was imperative that the official delegate be announced by October 20; hence this special meeting.

Last year the A. W. S. sent but one delegate to the convention, but this year efforts are being made to interest a number of unofficial delegates in the convention. This would acquaint the new members of the association with the type of procedure carried on at the convention and would prepare a delegate from the College for the ensuing year.

The topic scheduled for discussion by the Santa Barbara delegates is "How to keep the girls interested in the association." Members of the A. W. S. are asked to decide at once upon a capable representative to this convention one who will freely discuss the problems initiated at the meetings. The official delegate will have her expenses paid by the association but the unofficial delegates must go upon their own expense.

Health Benefit Subscriptions Close Today

Due to the co-operation of the Student Body the Health Benefit Association has gone over the top in subscriptions and no more dues will be accepted after this week. "The students have responded well to the call for subscriptions and a very successful year is ahead of us," stated Miss Edith Comstock, chairman of the association, recently.

Approximately fifty dollars have been expended for emergency funds already this year and the following men have received benefits from the organization for injuries received in football practice: Clayton Sheesley, Phil Martin, Lyman Curtis, Jacob Garber, Remington Treloar, and Trevor Steele.

Art Students Hold First Party Tonite

The students of the Art Department of the College, who have recently organized, will hold their first party of the year in the Music Bungalow this evening. The party will be an informal get-together affair for the purpose of acquainting the students with one another. Novel entertainments are planned for the diversions of the evening.

Outing Club and Block S Society Plan to Erect Letter on Mountains

Steps to place a big block S on the mountains in back of the city were taken by the Block S Society at a meeting last Tuesday morning. Carroll Dawley was selected as head of a committee to look into the matter.

It is expected that the Outing Club, which also took steps toward placing an S on the mountains, will unite with the Block S Society in the matter. Oran Booth, president of the Outing Club, was formulating plans to survey out the letter last Sunday, but owing to rain the surveying party was called off.

A petition placed upon the student bulletin board contains approximately fifteen names of volunteers who wish to help place the letter on the mountains.

These plans for a letter on the range are the outcome of a demand which has been felt about the College for a year or more. No definite action was taken, however, until last week, when the proposition was suggested again in a letter to the Eagle.

If the letter is made, it will be plotted out from a location in the city, perhaps from the campus, by means of a telescope and semaphores. The brush will be cut away from the slopes at a location to be decided Sunday in the form of a huge block S. The cut will be filled in with rocks which will be whitewashed after the rainy season every year, if plans now being considered materialize.

If the location of the letter can be mapped from the College campus, and it undoubtedly can be, Mr. Peters has consented to manipulate the necessary instruments.

A party of men interested in the matter, headed by Oran Booth, president of the Outing Club, and Carroll Dawley of the Block S Society, will go to the mountains in back of the College to investigate possible locations tomorrow.

Student Pay Telephone To Be Installed

Joe Kellem was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for the installation of a student pay telephone in the College at a Council meeting held yesterday. Mr. Kellem reported that the telephone would cost the Student Body five dollars per month, but it is believed that tolls will cover this amount.

The new line will probably be an aerial drop line parallel to the one now serving the cafeteria. The new telephone will be welcomed by a number of students who at present have no way of communicating with the city from the College.

Roadrunners To Meet Renegades At Bakersfield

Although the Roadrunners have not set up an imposing record so far this season, they have held two well balanced, smooth running football machines to reasonable scores, and now they expect to make a better showing against the teams that are to be played during the rest of the season. The individuals of the team are getting into better condition and they have gained a lot of valuable experience, which was badly needed, because most of the men had had very little football experience before this year. Teamwork begins to show when it is needed and now the squad wishes that it could take on the same teams that have been played and thinks that the scores would be a lot different. Well, Caltech and Loyola are on the schedule for next year.

This morning Coach Gilliland left for Bakersfield with a squad of twenty-two men who will try to finish scalping the Bakersfield J. C. team that tied us last year by the labors of a shy fullback who is now on the varsity of Stanford. Minus his efforts Bakersfield would have lost the game to us last year, and now that we are stronger than last year the game should be well worth watching. This time it is win big or lose big for Santa Barbara because the punch so far displayed by the Roadrunners will make a big score against any team that the defense can hold.

Because of injuries there have been some readjustments in the team since last game. On the line we now see Capt. Linder at left end and his old running mate at right end, Keim of course. Tackle positions are alternately held by Annin, Carter, Vandam and Martens. Holding the guard positions are Furman, Larsen, Gunn, and Mabe. Center is nearly always taken up by O'Reilly, who has been playing veteran football ever since the season began.

The backfield looks new with the added punch that is mostly Ted Cooper at full. Andy Anderson, Ren. Treloar, and Hal Morehead work the left half while Vince and Heggie take care of right half. All of these men are heavy and active and with a little teamwork compare well with any backfield that we will play this year. The quarterback position is still doubtful, but the possibilities sound like Curtis, Garber or Heggie.

President Phelps attended the state convention of city and county school superintendents at Pasadena this week.

THE YELL CAMPAIGN

Too many students look at college sports in the wrong light. Instead of yelling and pepping up the team, too many students wait for the team to win a few games and pep them up so they feel like yelling. This attitude is all wrong. A famous instructor at Stanford has affirmed that yelling from the side lines has practically no effect upon the team, because the latter is too much absorbed in the game to hear the rooting. If that statement is true at all, it applies only to large colleges where yelling is taken as a matter of course and the rooters yell for the enjoyment of it rather than for the instilling of pep in the team.

But in a smaller college, like this, the situation is different. The rooting section is of necessity small and little personal enjoyment can be derived from yelling. Hence, when this College yells, the team knows we mean it from the bottom up.

If you were a member of the team and were fighting hard on the home gridiron against a strong opponent; if the opponent was a hundred miles from home and had a loud rooting section, also a hundred miles from home; if that rooting section let out twice the volume that your own rooting section had; wouldn't it have some effect upon your morale? We think it would, because we have been told that it did have some effect on their morale by members of the team that fought Loyola last Saturday.

If you haven't any talent for composing yells, develop some and get behind the Forum in the campaign that it is inaugurating, and yell them for the sake of the team if not for your own sake.

THE "S" ON THE MOUNTAINS

The long contemplated proposition of drawing a huge S on the mountainside back of the College is at last to be realized and the letter will be made as soon as specifications are arranged. That is, the letter will be made provided a sufficient number of volunteers sign up to assist in the project; but that may be taken for granted. The value of such an insignia to the College will at once be obvious. It will let the townspeople see how much pep the College has, it will be pointed out to visitors from other places, and the College will come to be recognized as one of the leading institutions in the city.

The value of putting the College on the map in the eyes of the townspeople is apparent. It will facilitate the solicitation of advertising for College publications which depend upon it for their existence; it will swell the gate receipts at athletic meets, and it will decidedly swell the enrollment at the College in an indirect way.

Let's volunteer unanimously when the call comes in a few weeks to put the S on the mountains.

We'll page Everett True for the side-lines enthusiast who assures us that the game would be in cold storage if the home team would only try more long passes and fewer bucks.

Beta Sigs Hold Informal Dance at Frat House

The Beta Sigma Chi fraternity gave an informal dance at its fraternity house last Friday night. The rooms were delicately decorated with an abundance of flowers and with colored lighting effects. The dance was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Walker. Everyone gave his hearty approval on the success of the evening. The only mar was the departure of football men at 9:30. The affair lasted from 8 until 11.

Those present were Jack Vince, Norvell Dice, Warren Atwood, Francis Williams, Rodney Heggie, Francis Peteler, Fred Greenough, Allen Mobley, Gordon Bailard, Reid Hollingsworth, Fred Jacobs, Will Brooks, Fred Hicks, Dorothy Franklin, Helen Dane, Ruth Chalmers, Max Watson, Frances Bath, Wilma Smith, Eleanor Hicks, Margaret Lyman, Ruth Garner Eleanor Warren, and Frances Catanes.

Fable

Mary and Anne belonged to the same sorority. They had been sidekicks since they learned to daub paints in kindergarten, and now they were in college daubing paint for a purpose. They were now drifting apart, for while Anne had all the brains between them, Mary had all the looks and nerve.

Anne, who became known as the boring bookworm, got along fine with her twenty-four hours; but Mary, the one with the dangerous combination, couldn't get along with anyone except most of the women and all of the men. Long before Anne had begun to realize that fifty-minute periods were almost complete hours, Mary had wondered why the chairs in most of the lecture rooms had their backs to the clocks.

When they became Seniors, Mary had a foothold in fourteen organizations and held an executive position in thirteen of them. She could do this, for she was carrying but one academic subject—and dragging four. Anne, on the left hand, had received her discharge a year sooner and was now posting for two courses in the catalogue that she hadn't taken.

Now we'll tear three more years off the calendar. We find Anne yoked with a plumber and Mary dragging the son of a road-house proprietor. Whether or not they lived happily ever afterwards has not been investigated, so there is no moral.

Mr. Imboden Sees Promising Dramatic Possibilities for College Court

By ROSCOE MCGUIRE

"The scenic properties here are excellent and interesting," said David Imboden, the new instructor of Stagecraft, who for many years was with the Community Arts Association, in discussing the scenic possibilities of the College "stage." "The seeming handicaps make it all the more interesting to work with. Of course, one could not work in a purely naturalistic manner, but the settings could be interestingly impressionistic or symbolistic. The arches can be masked, the back walls can be hidden with a cyclorama, and any play can be produced, even the most naturalistic.

"The method that I would suggest to be used for certain types of plays is that of using different openings between the arches for the different scenes of the play. It would give a quick continuity of scenic action and would be most interesting. Several of the Russian plays have the plot so arranged that this method could be used. Then, too, you have here a perfect inner and outer stage. This would lend itself to the production of Shakespearean plays. As the platform stands with its arches and the steps it is a perfect place to give a Greek play. It would not be very difficult nor expensive to set any play that could be desired. You have a beautiful place for production as well as a delightful place to seat your audience."

Women's Basketball Captains Elected

Elizabeth Cash was elected captain of the Freshman basketball team and Edith Enderson, captain of the upper-class team at a meeting of the basketball women held last Tuesday. The interclass schedule, which was announced last Wednesday, will be held on December 8, 10 and 15, comprising a two-out-of-three-games tournament.

Archery Proves 'Lots of Fun' For Women

Shooting arrows may look like archery, but it is not so simple, as any girl will testify who is suffering from a bruised arm. After trying to hit the target, which is 30 yards distant, one is inclined to believe that the stories of Robin Hood and his wonderful prowess with the bow have been slightly exaggerated.

Dean Pyle Addresses Women At Meeting

Stating that castes exist among the women of the College, although a majority of the women are not aware of the fact, Dean Pyle addressed the A. W. S. on "Democracy" at the Dean's meeting last Tuesday morning.

As an example of the caste spirit, Dean Pyle cited this spirit as found among the sororities. Many a sorority will take a girl, not because she has a fine character and personality, but because she may be rated as having a certain social standing or has money. This caste spirit, which rates the women of the College in classes, is detrimental to the College and should not be found on the campus.

Dean Pyle further reminded the women that a cordial social spirit should predominate among the women of the College.

Lions Defeat Roadrunners 6-0 On Skiddy Field Here Last Saturday

Loyola College left Peabody Stadium last Saturday with the heavier end of a 6-0 score in a fast game featuring hard fighting on the part of the local squad and excellent playing all around. Jupe Pluvius did his best to dampen the spirits of the teams, but there were remarkably few breaks and flukes, considering the slippery condition of the field and the ball. Loyola's six points were the result of a touchdown early in the second quarters. The try for point after the touchdown was muffed up by the Roadrunners.

The Roadrunners found the Loyola line impenetrable, so they used their aerial attack to advantage in several instances. The game, however, was chiefly defensive from the local point of view, and a decided improvement was seen over the defense shown against Caltech in the first game of the season. Many times the Lions were in a position to score, but they were held for downs under the shadow of the goal posts.

The Lions exhibited unusual strength in end runs, backfield interference clearing a wide field nearly every time; but our line was as firm as theirs. The linemen followed the ball well and the Roadrunners proved themselves very efficient in recovering fumbles. Three times it saved them a possible scoring of the southern squad.

Loyola started out in the first half with a burst of speed that netted a touchdown early in the second quarter after being held for downs once. Fullback Hoeffler carried the ball over one yard through right tackle. In the second half the rain set in and made the ball hard to handle. Both sides preferred to play a defensive game and wait for the breaks, but there weren't many. Several times the Roadrunners recovered the ball in their own territory and attempted bucks and passes rather than punt the ball out of danger; and although they were not successful, there were no fumbles.

In spite of the handicap felt by the loss of Ham Ross, Nick Carter, Phil Martin, the team showed a world of spirit and played a remarkable game. Keim and Linder lived up to their old reputations at the end positions and let few Lions pass. This was Keim's first game of the season.

Curtis, first string quarter-back, also played an excellent game and peped up the team considerably. Jack Vince felt at home in the backfield Saturday and fought hard through the entire game, recovering a number of fumbles. Cooper also muffed up a lot of plays. In awarding credit, however, the line should not be forgotten. To it credit is due for making the holes and holding the Lions in practically all of the plays.
