What to Expect for Graduation

*You'd Like a Car?
Well, Maybe We'd Better Look Over
That Old G.P.A. of Yours First...*

By Dino Wayne Thorne

You may have elected Bill Clinton because you thought he was going to reform the health care system or college loan program. But Bubba got my vote because I was sure he was the man to change the way Americans give out graduation gifts.

The system we have right now is lunacy! Gifts are given not on basis of merit or dedication, but simply upon presentation of a diploma. This means that a 4.0 honor student could conceivably get a gift of less value than a 2.0 graduate who made academic probation a way of life.

President Clinton, Americans need reform!

I believe the House and Senate will have little trouble passing my proposed solution. Even that old fuddy-duddy Bob Dole will be content to bite his lip and praise America's youth on such a marvelous plan. And Bubba, just watch those approval ratings go through the roof.

For the 4.0 Student: The cream of the crop, the top of the banana, the head of the cheese. These students have worked tirelessly throughout their college years to maintain a perfect academic record. And their gift should reflect such an achievement. No ordinary European vacations or new cars will do here. 4.0 students, what you need is a good magnifying glass with light bulb. This will come in handy in more ways than can be listed. And when the light finally goes out from hours of steady use, the magnifying glass can be taken outside and used in conjunction with a cooperating sun to burn the living Hell out of unworthy bugs.

A Ferrari. That's it. You could really use a Ferrari, preferably convertible, but any one will do, right? Not likely, graduate. Under the new gift plan, you'd be entitled to a nice magnifying glass.

For the 3.1 through 3.9 Student: These are the living equivalents to a B+; they are good, but not good enough to be the best. And their gift must be presented accordingly. A magnifying glass with light bulb is just a little bit too precious for these folks (note to 3.9 students: if you can prove that you should have challenged a grade but didn't because you weren't going on campus that day, an exception can be made). Otherwise, I recommend a SuperSoaker 2000, the ultimate gift for that student who has a long summer of job-seeking neurosis awaiting. With the SuperSoaker 2000, you can not only fill one tank full of water with which to squirt unsuspecting saps, but can also utilize the backup tank so repeated trips to the kitchen sink tap won't be necessary.

For the 2.5 through 3.0 Student: Oh, what a little more time on that history paper might have done! Oh well, nothing that can be fixed now. Just sit back and accept your third-tier gift, which won't thrill, but should be a pleasant diversion for the graduate who gave it all he or she had for a while and then petered out. A perfect gift here would be one of those pens with the five different colors of ink, which also provides hours of fun as you try to press down two colors at once but can't because the opening is only big enough for one. Parents, don't expect your middle-of-the-roads to figure this fact out, but it's good fun watching them try.

For the 2.0 through 2.4 Student: Congratulations! You've just cheapened the hard work of all 4.0 grads by getting the exact same piece of paper they have. But don't think your gift will be the same. Heck, you'll be envying that 2.6 guy trying to force down the black and blue ink-filled stems on his gift. No such benefits for you. You've still got a diploma, however, and that achievement should be recognized. To honor your graduation, you will receive one 15-minute finger mas-

They're in Town, and You're the Host

Mom & Dad's Night Out

By Reynard Van Nguyen

When parents and other relations come to town to witness your graduation, they may be inclined to do something nice for you while they're here to celebrate your inauguration into the real world. Encourage them. Have them have you take them out, have a good time. That kind of thing.

The odd thing about this summer ritual is that while the graduate might be the star for the day or weekend, the guest of honor if you will, he or she is also the host, the one who knows the sights and smells and savors of the area, the one who must do the entertaining. This "guest-host" status goes beyond what Joan Rivers did on "The Tonight Show" before she gave it up to sink into obscure mediocrity; it conveys a responsibility which shows that, even if you told them you never went out because you were at home studying, you have a clue about your surroundings — enough to play tour guide.

The key is to know what kind of folks you've got for yourself. Some parents may want to see college life verite, to experience Santa Barbara, Goleta and Isla Vista as you, the student, did. For these people, start the evening watching the sun go down while the couches light up on the streets of I.V. After breathing in a few lungfulls of burning synthetic upholstery, take them back to your apartment, handing out lots of change on the way, and serve them whatever's left in the fridge. Add lots of ketchup. Say things like, "Yes, this does cost me $325 a month. No, the roaches come free."

Not everyone will want this kind of treatment, however. Or survive it. Many folks will want to experience the local fare that you never had: eating out and not getting a burger, sub, burrito or pizza, for example. Have them take you to a place that is near the sea but doesn't have a giant apartment complex between it and the shore. Downtown has a number of such places, and you can watch the German tourists ride by on their four-wheeled pedal cruisers. Say things like, "Hey, why aren't they taking our order at the register? Hey, hey, isn't that my bike chassis welded to that bench?"

Take your family on a cruise down State Street. Explain that all the bartenders know your name because they're all TAs you once had; they're just working their way through grad school. Learn where the art museum is beforehand so you can show that you know where it is, implying that you've been there. Same thing with Earthling Books. While miles away from campus, it has that intellectual air that people expect, although it doesn't sell shot glasses with Greek letters on them. Say things like, "Hey, I bought this used for $35.99; they have it here for $12.50. Must be on sale, huh?" It shows you've been reading.

The most important thing is to have fun — the good, clean kind that you will be increasingly limited to as an adult. Maybe even turn things around and have your parents show you what they do for entertainment in the real world. Say things like, "I love you, Mom and Dad. Is this the rest of my life?"

Ahh, the Glory of Ceremony

Yes, It's Your Day, Come at Long Last. But Beware the Pitfalls of Pomp and Circumstances

By Alfonso Kelley

The worst thing about graduating from college is, of course, graduation.

Socrates probably said it best when he said, "Don't let your parents find out what we do here at school."

What could be worse? You spend four or five years of your young life trying, failing, succeeding, celebrating, loving, hurting, voting, pasting up ridiculous flyers because something outraged you and then pasting up a round of new ones because someone pasted up a bunch of flyers denouncing the first batch of flyers you pasted up; gradually losing your taste for Led Zeppelin except for that slow, stoney song off Led Zeppelin II; going vegetarian and then giving it up over a double cheeseburger and a monster beer; becoming computer literate even though they won't get you a PowerBook for graduation; making road trips to Vegas, where you learned the value of the dollar — 97.5 cents if you went to the right places — and becoming sick of "spicy" curly fries. Then, of all people, your parents and grandparents come traipsing into town like they earned the damn degree themselves or something.

It takes a lot of nerve, I tell you.

First off, who the hell is the "host" for graduation weekend? You or them? They can't expect you to pay — they just shelled out thousands of dollars for you because they knew you were broke. And you're the person being honored, so you think you deserve a little of the treatment. But you know that when it comes down to it, you're going to end up entertaining all those people and devoting way more time than you'd prefer just making them feel at home, when actually you'd rather be sitting waist-deep in the Pacific with a half-dozen good friends and a big bottle of malt liquor. Very strange social and familial dynamic at a graduation. It worries me.

It's time to celebrate, and who knows how to celebrate better than you? Maybe this guy, sure, but you know how to throw a darn good party, yes?

But the real doozy is the ceremony itself. Have you ever been to a UCSB graduation?

IT'S SO BORING YOU WON'T BELIEVE IT! AND HOT!

You know how much graduation costs the students paying for it? One hundred thousand dollars this year — and that's down $20,000 from previous graduation weekends. All that dough, and they can't give you a tumbler of scotch when you walk across the stage? How about a party favor? One of those spit-wad parachute toys? Those are funny. Maybe they could have flight attendant style waitresses roaming the isles.

"Would you like a drink today?"

"Pillow for your back today?"

"Would you like chicken or fish today? Okay, here you are. Sure."

That would be really classy. Like our very own airplane flight!

What would make it even better is if they got a graduation speaker who would let people know just how lucky they are that they went to college.

They could get Pete, the 21-year-old apprentice plumber, to tell folks 'bout the time he got a call for a backed-up toilet, and when he got there, he found that the whole family had been using the toilet for five days since it plugged. Well, there was only one thing for a guy to do, Pete would say. Reach on down and see what your hand brings up. Turns out it was a little cast-iron fire truck one of the boys dropped in.

That way people might get sick, but at least they'd realize the importance of a college degree in today's fast-moving society.

How to Avoid Being a Walking Cliché

Before You Jet Off to Europe This Summer...

By Heddy McFrisco

Postgraduate travel is much-ballyhooed as a form of "broadening one's horizons." Oh sure, you're book-smart by now. You've contemplated the complete work of Ezra Pound from nearly every angle, and can apply Schrodinger's Equation to most subatomic processes without really thinking about it. You're so proud.

But then comes the perspective attack. "What good is any of it?" you ask yourself, feeling crowded by conventional wisdom. "I mean, if society collapses or I'm stuck on an island without a bank loan or something, what tools will I have to survive?" Your confidence falters. You find yourself sweating underneath your rented hat and gown, motor skills out the window on the day that some say marks your crossover into adulthood. You offer everyone a clammy, nervous handshake and wish Mom would put the camera down.

Fear not, graduates! Conventional wisdom, in all its infinite, well, wisdom, has provided a safety net for these "real world" jitters. To compensate for your ignorance of what's really out there, you will go out there. At least, you'll go to Europe. Part of it. And correct me if I'm wrong, but you'll go with nothin' but a backpack on your back and a railpass in your pocket. Just you and your ego, and maybe a walkman and a few thousand American dollars in traveler's checks. And you'll go for a few months, maybe three or four, until the traveler's checks run out. I knew it!

Boy, I envy you. You're going to have a great time, and I know because I've done it. Don't worry about crime: if you've ever survived a week in L.A., you can live indefinitely in Europe, a land that still can't fathom our ridiculous gun culture. Also, bring a hat and mosquito repellent, and always carry a roll of toilet paper, lest you wind up having to use your map of Greece. And bring a couple good books to whittle away the long hours you'll spend on a lonely, rattling train.

But please, do the Old World a favor and avoid becoming a cliché, specifically a cliché of the American-Backpacking-Through-Europe variety, one of the worst kinds (the German-Backpacking-Through-Europe variety can also get pretty bad, but there's nothing you can do about that). Granted, the simple act of traveling through Europe after graduation isn't the height of novelty, but never mind that, travel is worthwhile and enlightening. No, I'm speaking of the American travelers who, no matter how long they've been living in Barcelona, still look and act like they're in La Puente, putting fluorescent decals on their pickups and whatnot.

Oh, the problem isn't just their appearance, but I'll start with that: college logo tanktops, sunglasses that cost more than an average Bulgarian's yearly wages. Most importantly, the shoes — while sturdiness is a virtue, ugly Americanness is not. I'm referring to MTV shoes like Nike Air Assault Something-or-Others, the kind Americans kill each other for.

Imagine walking along the famous Charles Bridge in Prague, sharing its beauty with sojourners from around the world — the lighted arc of the streetlamps glinting off a wide river below, navy blue in the twilight — when three guys wearing hi-tops that pump, flash, play music and have a special switch to go from "indoor" to "blacktop" come bouncing your way, talking loudly about "getting laid, Czech-style." I should warn you that in many Eastern-bloc countries it's legal to kill someone if they're wearing stupid shoes. Or acting stupid, for that matter.

Behavior is another point of interest. Many times I've been given Europe's impression of American behavior, and no matter what country I'm in, the stereotype is the same, roughly that of a used car salesman. We talk loud, slouch, wolf our food, etc. We're pigs.

But I'm not going to discourage you from slouching or cramming baguettes into your face. There's nothing worthwhile or enlightening about that, but I'm not your parent. Much more offensive to Europeans — more so even than bad shoes — is the arrogant supposition that since everyone in the United States speaks English, so should the rest of the world. More than once I heard some American brat, frustrated because he wasn't getting coddled like back home, scream, "Don't you speak any English?!" He may as well have asked, "Do you have any idea who you're dealing with? I'm an American!" In this country, that sort of thing gets people shot, but Europeans just disgustingly ignore the little whelps.

The trick, you see, is to blend in. Sure, no matter what you do the natives will be able to pick you out immediately as an American, but there's nothing wrong with that, especially if you're trying to learn as much as possible about the culture you're traveling through. What's more, the Europeans will be incredibly polite (even the Parisians). But for Americans with bad shoes and complexes, nothing worthwhile or enlightening ever happens.

Since you know what and how, now the last point is where, and to this I say, "Doesn't matter." Go anywhere, anywhere at all, so long as you steer clear of McDonald's and Hilton Hotels. You may, once or twice, get a bit homesick and therefore tempted by a little down home cookin' or friendly room service, but be strong. Don't sell out to these bulwark travel companions, if not for ideological reasons then purely for aesthetics: it's such a cliché! Every walking American cliché in Europe — bad shorts, camera, brought their dog — will be eating at McDonald's and staying in Hiltons, so don't you do it (all right, maybe one cheeseburger a month, tops, but never stay at a Hilton).

Avoiding travel clichés is actually quite easy, but so many backpackers simply choose not to do it. If you don't care about the mental health of the Europeans you encounter, think about us back here in the ol' U.S. of A. We've all got a little pride in our country, you know.

sage. Not to be confused with the full body massage, the back massage or even the hand massage, the finger massage is sure to delight and relax the phalange of your choice. Thumbs cost extra, so don't count on that as an option.

I'm unsure if proposals to Congress or to the President have to be on any kind of official stationery, but I hope they consider this, nonetheless. Once this issue is settled, the boys and girls in Washington can tackle some of the nation's other worries, like the deficit, gay rights and the Bosnian crisis.

So, What Are You Going to Do?

Avoiding the Question

By Bunyan Valentine

Without fail, they will ask you the Question. They will ask it repeatedly in most cases, just as if they haven't been asking it for the past six months.

So, what are you going to do now? they'll say, smiling if they're your cousins or aunts or uncles, unsmiling and quite serious if they're your parents. Grandad will pat you on the shoulder when he asks. Your sister will wink when she asks and smile knowingly, even though the two of you share no secrets on this matter. Does she think you're going to shack up with a Vegas dancer or a construction worker or something? Why is she smiling like that?

Hey, you'll want to scream, I just don't know.

Of course, you can't tell them that at all. You'll have to smile and fib and lob half-baked euphemisms at them, trying to mask the fact that deep down inside, not only don't you know what you're "doing now," but you don't even know what you "want to do."

But Dad wouldn't want to know that. He's busy maintaining the Proud-Yet-Concerned Look™ while he waits for an answer, a fulfilling answer, an answer that tells him, "You spent that tuition money well, old boy — this one's a winner! Make you proud." Mom's face is molded into the My-Boy/Girl-Is-a-Man/Woman-Now Look™, and when she presses your hands together between hers and looks up at you so wistfully, it's impossible to simply say, in all possible bluntness and honesty, "I dunno."

So what are your choices? You actually have quite a few, all variations on the basic Lie-Or-Evade Technique®.

The Blatant Lie®

This response may be dangerous, but it's also one of the most fun, especially when refined into its more complex version, the Elaborate Lie®. You can tell parents, relatives and old family friends as many different stories as you want — they don't talk that much anyway. Say you're going to supervise a penal colony in Guam; announce that you're a candidate for a linguistics program aimed at preserving indigenous languages threatened by industrial expansionism; tell them you're going to lead spelunking expeditions clear through the Rocky Mountains. (Sure, there's caves that go all the way through. You didn't know that? Sheesh, first thing we learned in geology class.) It's risky sometimes, but you won't get bored, and you won't have to feel sheepish.

The Duck and Cover®

Use this one to get out without having to deal with the guilt of lying. Tell them you're going to do some temp work for the summer, "what with the job market so bad and all," and look around for something that starts in the fall. After all, you might decide to do some temp work. You're just not sure yet. Also, tell them you'll be saving up some money. Very impressive, a young man/woman already concerned with saving some for a rainy day. This technique covers you for at least three months and allows the conversation to move on without disgrace.

The Grunt and Spill®

As soon as you can tell that they're about to ask the question, tell them to hold on, and go get a drink if you don't already have one. Then come back and ask, ever so politely, what it was they were saying. Just before they finish, sneeze, cough, convulse or otherwise jerk your body like a rag doll on a string, and toss your drink down your shirt. This works best with water or Sprite™ or white wine, since they don't stain and you can do it repeatedly. Excuse yourself and go to the bathroom to clean up. Dry your shirt with a hairdryer and get back to the party.

Of course, there are more techniques than these, and an infinite number of variations on the above three can be tested on unwary, prying kin. For instance, you can revise the diversionary technique embodied in the Grunt and Spill® by keeping a bug in your pocket and "finding" it as soon as the question pops up. Oh my goodness! Look at this!

"There are only two types of luggage
— carry-on and lost."

We specialize in carry-on luggage, such as the popular "Borneo Bag" with its hide-away backstraps.

So don't lose YOUR bag — carry it with you!
Also see our complete line of water purifiers, electrical adaptors, security gear and more.

ESPRESSO ROMA CAFE

... because there is no direct energy tax on caffeine ...

... because caffeine pills just don't do it ...

... because chocolate-covered espresso beans are only 5¢ each ...

... because 5 years from now some study will find that caffeine actually reduces serum cholesterol ...

... because no one else opens for you at 5:30 am during finals so that you have a chance of passing ...

... Why? Because we like you ...
