SPRING FASHION— Here it is, March 6. Time to turn our thoughts away from academia and focus on the swanky modes trending their well-dressed way through the ranks of the high-toned. From its looks, it's going to be a great season, rich with the best in twiggly groove and polite trim, a no-holds-barred feast for the eyes, a banquet of the recherche. Ah, take a look to your right. Is that Eve and Stephanie taking a break between coffees? So it is. Flapped white collars and slim-cut black cotton pants make a fine town to live in for the unfangled.

You'll spend the next 20 years working for your child's future.

OH SORROW, MY WERTHER!— Viv contemplates love lost to little Dutch boys while coming to terms with an era that says, "Rings, leather, hats, my dear." With her thoughtful pout and winning hands, Viv proves to be no flaky flour to the upper crust.

AFTERNOON TEA— It's not hard to figure out why Carlo is putting off graduating. This book is too handsome to read. To compete, Carlo has donned a faux-turtleneck and pea-green linen blazer. Who says you can't judge a book by its cover? Not Carlo.

Have fun, will unravel
You know he looks like Vaclav Havel. He's spent too many nights under your stairs
and now all his socks are dying in pairs. This is a love song meant for piano but it won't take away all the blue I know. Too many nights under your stairs and now
all his socks are dying in pairs.

FASHION & THE LIBRARIAN — Heads and pencils turn in the library as studiers check out the sharpish styles of Joan and Viv. As you can see, things that wrap and things that bind are harbingers of things to come. Who says they don't put fashion over school? Not Carlo.
