OPERATION ABOLITION HERE TOMORROW IN CAMPUS AUD

By BARRABA HODSON
The controversial film, "Opus," has been shown on campus to small groups of students, and is scheduled to be shown on Monday evening at 8 P.M. in the campus auditorium. The film has been rated "X," and is intended for mature audiences.

The film is a documentary of the 1946 arrest of Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, a physicist who worked on the Manhattan Project during World War II. The film depicts the trial and conviction of Oppenheimer, who was accused of espionage and subversion.

The film is being shown as part of a larger movement by students to oppose the United States' nuclear weapons policy and to demand a more peaceful future. The film is part of a series of events planned for the next few weeks, which will include a discussion panel and a rally.

The screening of the film has sparked debate among students and faculty, with some calling for its cancellation and others defending its right to be shown.

THE VISITOR

As a former high school student, being a visitor is a special treat. I feel that it is my duty to keep this position full of reading and writing, and to share with others the joy of learning. I believe that education is a lifelong process, and that everyone can benefit from the insights and experiences of others.

The experience of being a visitor has been a valuable one for me, as it has allowed me to gain a greater appreciation for the importance of education and the need for continued learning. I have enjoyed the opportunity to meet new people and to share ideas and thoughts with them.

In the future, I hope to continue to visit and to learn from others, as I believe that this is one of the most important aspects of education. I will strive to remain open-minded and to maintain a positive outlook on the world, as I believe that this is essential for personal growth and development.

I am grateful for the opportunity to be a visitor, and I look forward to the continued opportunity to learn and to grow.
