Nighttime Rally and March End Events for Week of Equal Rights

By Olaina Gupta
Staff Writer

About 250 women and men rallied in Storke Plaza Thursday evening to bring the week's Take Back the Night activities to a crescendo.

The event, which focused on women's safety and status in society, included performances and speeches from students.

The evening concluded with a march by female participants through the streets of Isla Vista, while men discussed the issues of the night in a session called "Women Walk, Men Talk."

"As women, we are really taught that it is not OK to walk alone at night," said Deidre Acker, Women's Center director. "Take Back the Night is a symbol of separation in society. Women can't do what men can."

Members of the all-women bands Random Choir and Moving Breath performed together Thursday for Take Back the Night.

Republican Rep Endorsed by Dole

By Jeff Brax
Staff Writer

U.S. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kansas) traveled to Santa Barbara Thursday to promote Republican candidates in the upcoming election.

Dole was invited by Senate hopeful Rep. Michael Huffington (R-Santa Barbara). Both politicians stressed the importance of the California Senate race in overall Republican success.

"This is a turning-point election," Huffington said. "Two years ago, the American people and the people of this county and San Luis Obispo County said, 'We don't want the same old politicians and we don't want more of the same.'"

Dole hopes a Huffington victory will promote a congressional Republican surge, breaking the Democratic majority in the House and Senate.

"This campaign is all about philosophy. It's about the future of America," he said. "I've been in some good cycles and some bad election cycles ... but I can tell you very honestly I've never been in a cycle which is going to be so good for Republican candidates all across America on Nov. 8, 1994."

Students, Faculty Split Over Administrative Appointment

By Rayshaun Grimes

Last week's administrative decision to appoint Don Zimmerman, dean of social sciences, as acting Chicano studies chair has drawn a mixed response from staff and students.

The post had been vacant since July 1, following Zimmerman's recommendation against the re-appointment of Yolanda Broyles-González, approved by Executive Vice Chancellor Donald Crawford.

"I am deeply distressed that the administration has imposed a chair," said Chicano studies Professor Antonia Castañeda, currently on leave in Texas.

Several of Zimmerman's decisions during the summer, including his recommendation against Broyles-González without consulting the Chicano studies dept., incensed some department members and students.

Late in the 1993-94 academic year, a 4-2 faculty vote of confidence favored Broyles-González remaining as chair.

Castañeda expressed consternation over the disregard of the

Cops Continue to Confiscate Killer Costume Contraptions, Cut Chaos

By Matthew Nelson

Isla Vista Foot Patrol officers are ready to confiscate portions of any Halloween costume that may be used as a weapon, including the occasional set of horns attached to the scalp of a party-goer.

Besides the preparations of the "no tolerance" policy for dealing with this year's Halloween crowds, officers are also gearing up for unusual costumes and problems that may accompany them.

"One of the jobs of the officers manning the barricades is the responsibility to check the people coming into that party area, and if they are carrying a staff or a sword or anything that could be used as a weapon, then that's going to be taken away," said Foot Patrol Lt. Roy Rosales.

Those who are stopped by police have the option of taking their implements home or letting officers confiscate them, to be

Assad Poses Peace for Full Withdrawal

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — President Hafez Assad Thursday offered "full peace" in the Mideast but told President Clinton that Israel must first surrender Syrian land seized in war. Shutting between the ancient foes, Clinton declared, "Something is changing in Syria."

Speaking to the Israeli parliament, the Knesset, Clinton said of Syria, "Its leaders understand it is time to make peace."

He spoke a few hours after meeting Assad at the presidential palace in Damascus and saying Assad had "gone beyond" Syria's previous hardline position. Though Clinton did not elaborate, American officials appeared to be encouraged by evidence that Assad was showing new flexibility on conditions he had set for peace with Israel.

Assad said Syria wanted "full withdrawal for full peace," saying Israel must return to Syria the Golan Heights it after a tentatively planned tour stirred up a political ruckus between Israelis and Palestinians.

Clinton gave lawmakers an upbeat assessment of his meeting with As-tached only peripherally on the delicate and difficult issues separating Syria and Israel.

Clinton said, "This agreement will never occur unless Israel and Syria sign with the absolute conviction that they will be more secure for signing it, not less secure. I wish we were signing a peace treaty on this trip."

"Our job will not be done and we will not rest until peace agreements between Israel and Syria, and Israel and Lebanon are reached," Clinton added.

Syria and Lebanon remain the last two Arab states on Israel's border still officially at war with the Jewish state.

The discussion with Clinton included the issue of phasing in new security arrangements at the time of an Israeli withdrawal, they said.

"Of course, it will take more than words, much more than words, but I believe much has changed. They are serious about proceeding."

Assad said that Syria truly wanted peace and asked "why the others are not convinced."

Researchers Suggest Abortion Increases Breast Cancer Risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women who have abortions may increase their risk of breast cancer by 50 percent, according to a new study in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute. Experts say the conclusion needs more study.

Researchers at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Center in Seattle based their conclusion on an analysis of interviews with 845 breast cancer patients and 961 healthy women of the same age group.

The scientists, led by Janet R. Daling, compared answers to questions about the women's reproductive histories and concluded that there was a statistical suggestion that those who had induced abortions were more likely to have breast cancer.

"Highest risks were observed when the abortion was done at ages younger than 18 years, particularly if it took place after eight weeks' gestation or at 30 years of age or older," the study said.

The risk was not affected by the number of abortions or by other reproductive experiences, such as live births or miscarriages, the study said.

Dr. Noel Weiss, a co-author of the study, said it would be "premature" for women to make any abortion decision now, based on the study. "They should not give the study any weight in making a decision now. But the findings are provocative," he said.

Employees Get X-Rated Jolt Upon Arrival at Power Plant

BURBANK (AP) — Some power plant workers are complaining about the sexual jolt they got over the weekend.

Workers said they saw an actress leaning against a motorcycle having sex with two men when the employees arrived at the plant Sunday morning.

The naked actors were filming the adult film Fantasy Chamber by Ultimate Video under a permit granted by police clerk Norma Brotsma. City Manager Bud Ovrom said the permit "slipped through the cracks."

Ron Stassi, general manager of the city's Public Services Dept., said he fielded several complaints from water and power employees.

"The risk is that it will reflect unfavorably on our department or city," Stassi said.

Brotsma said she didn't know the shoot for Fantasy Chamber involved sex scenes, but the movie producers said they made clear it was adult entertainment.

"We never, ever, ever, ever, ever and I will say that double emphatically, shoot X-rated movies without having permission, without being up front about it," said Nick Pinkowski, co-owner of Ultimate Video.

The power plant had been used in such movies as Thelma and Louise. Burbank, which issues permits for filming up to 200 productions yearly, has decided to review its film permit policy.

U.S. Study of Abortion Pill Begins; 2,000 to Participate

NEW YORK (AP) — Fearful of violence, a research organization is conducting the first nationwide study of the French abortion pill RU-486 without saying where the work is being done or how many clinics are participating.

"You may have noticed there are some nuts out there who do bad things to people who deliver abortions," said Dr. C. Wayne Bardin, research director at the Population Council, the nonprofit group sponsoring the study.

More than 100 women have been given the pill since September as part of the $8 million study, which could make the drug routinely available in the United States by 1996, Bardin said.

The availability of RU-486, now called mifepristone, will not be advertised, Bardin said Thursday. Women coming to clinics for surgical abortions will be quietly taken aside and advised of the new option, he said.

The study is aimed at determining the safety and effectiveness of RU-486. When the research is completed in the spring of 1995, an application for approval of the abortion pill will be submitted to the Food and Drug Administration, which has promised to expedite its review, Bardin said.

The study will include 2,100 women over 18 who are in the first two months of pregnancy, Bardin said.

Thousands of Serbs Flee as Bosnian Forces Make Gains

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Muslim-led government forces closed in on a frontline town west of Sarajevo on Thursday following a stunning victory over Bosnian Serbs that forced thousands of Serb civilians to flee.

The Bosnian Serb army's chief of staff acknowledged the extent of the defeat near the northwestern town of Bihac. In a letter to U.N. peacekeepers, Lt. Gen. Manojlo Milovanovic demanded they "urgently put pressure on the Muslim side to stop the offensive, especially against civilians."

The Serbs suffered "immense material damage and losses," Milovanovic said.

U.N. relief workers estimated 7,500 Serb civilians had fled advancing government forces in the two areas: 2,500 from the Ku-pres area 55 miles west of Sarajevo and the rest from the Bihac enclave in the northwest.

Relief workers began sending in food and blankets to the displaced people.

The heaviest government offensive centered around the Serb-held town of Kupres, where government army officials said they were closing in from the north and east.

U.N. relief workers said Serb civilians were fleeing to safer rebel-held lands.

Bosnian army sources said most of the high ground north and east of Kupres has been captured by government forces.

Weather

Everybody's talking about Halloween and the election, and don't get me wrong — these are both important occasions that conspire to create a very weird energy by virtue of having been thrown into the same time of the year with another crucial event: the beginning of Daylight-Saving Time.

That's right, chronically overlooked like a dwarf on prom night, the time change (Fall back!) provides opportunity for experiences as mystical as All Hallows Eve and as riddled with loopholes as Election Day. At 2 a.m. Sunday morning (that's still Saturday night for most of us) the arbitrary mavens of time will order the clocks set back to 1 a.m. — giving the world one more hour to party like it's 1999. Or an extra hour of sleep before going to repent with Sunday services, if that's what you're into.

I called the folks out at the Vons over on Fairview in Goleta, to see how they deal with the temporal shift, seeing as how they customarily close at 2 a.m., and was told the store will remain open past the first 2 through the second 2, if you follow me. This provides welcome relief for those (sober) drivers in search of that last twelfth of beer, really great beer, like Keystone.

In any event, the sun will shine, but who's gonna be waking up in time to notice?

Haunted House Horrifies Hundreds

By Kimberly Epler

Screams echoed from the depths of the Alpha Tau Omega house Thursday, as hundreds of children lined up outside, awaiting their chance at a pre-Halloween haunted house scare.

The building was transformed into a labyrinth of her father's leg and explained her favorite things about Halloween: "Trick or Treating and carving pumpkins," she said.

Ahead of her, another 7-year-old, Maya Bolton, youngsters were treated to snacks and face-painting in the central courtyard. Most gave a high rating for the fifth annual event.

"It was cool, scary," said 12-year-old Peter Diaz, noting his favorite part was "the guy with a big mask and a chainsaw."

Carrie Pelland, who anticipates being a princess or Juliet on Halloween, also had fun. "It was cool; it was definitely cool, very surprising," she said.

ATΩ and AXΩ members spent hours setting up the event over two days, to provide a memorable time for local children.

"Hopefully, this leaves a positive experience in their heads," said Scott Hanelt, ATΩ public relations coordinator, adding that one of the youngsters asked him if Halloween was always bad, referring to the annual mass invasion.

This is the first year AXΩ is participating in the event, volunteering after being contacted, according to Philanthropy Chair Melissa Fassler. "It's so popular and well-known, we thought it would be interesting," she said.

Although it is not known how much money was collected at the door, the event is $200 ahead of last year due to community sponsorship. Last year's beneficiary, the Santa Barbara Children's Museum, received $300, Hanelt said.

Ghostly Gala to Be Held Downtown

By Michelle Logvinsky
Reporter

In the spirit of Halloween, Santa Barbara will host a variety of festivals and traditional holiday-themed events throughout the weekend.

Those wishing to celebrate the autumn holiday away from the infamous Isla Vista festivities may opt to attend the fourth annual Halloween Festival for Kids, to be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Monday in De La Guerra Plaza in Santa Barbara.

"Three years ago, we found that there was no real special event for kids with a safe environment during Halloween," said Pat Kistler, public relations supervisor of the Santa Barbara Parks and Recreation Dept. "It's the greatest event. There's a whole city of activities that will culminate with the festival."

The Parks and Recreation Dept. is one of five sponsors of the children's festival. Others who contributed include the Downtown Organization, radio station KMGQ, Paseo Nuevo and the Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation.

Attractions this year include Jay the Juggler, children's acting group Show Stoppers, a phantom piano player, face-painting, a live bat and bird exhibit and a mime search.

Also featured will be a haunted house in Casa De la Guerra, a newly renovated historic adobe building. The attraction, sponsored by the Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation, will be open from 4 to 8 p.m.

"People can partake in a traditional haunted house and experience a little of Santa Barbara's history as well," said Tami Wilson, Downtown Organization promotion director. "Most importantly, it's a really safe, and at the same time, fun place to go for Halloween."

Another first-time attraction this year will be Irish storytelling with Do-reen McBride of County Antrim, Northern Ireland. McBride will be at the Cabrillo Pavilion from 3 to 4 p.m. Sunday and will also be on hand Monday.

"The festival seems to put a positive light on Halloween. People see the partying and all the things destroyed," said Curlew Lee, coordinator with the city Parks and Recreation Dept. "This gives them an alternative and gives kids a safer option than going door-to-door. Parents have as much fun as the kids do."

Isla Vista Ichthyophagists Compete Sunday

In searching for an alternative way to celebrate Halloween weekend, look no further than the Isla Vista Tropical Fish Store's goldfish-eating contest.

The event, to be held at 1 p.m. Sunday, is the second contest of this type that the store has hosted.

All participants will receive prizes, according to Kam Park, a store employee.

"We will be giving away a 40-gallon fish tank to the winner, and all contestants will receive T-shirts," he said.

The entrants in this year's competition will have a tough time living up to last year's winner, Park said.

"Last year, the winner, Robert Jones, ate 89 live goldfish in one minute and 40 seconds," he said.

The contest was originally slated for Halloween evening, but was moved to Sunday in anticipation of a larger turnout, according to Park.

While the store plans to make this an annual event, it is also looking to hold similar contests with unusual twists, including a possible goldfish/beer-guzzling contest that may be held early next year, Park said.

The Isla Vista Tropical Fish Store is located at 6565 Trigo Road, across from Open-Air Bicycles.

Church Event One Weekend Option

By Olaina Gupta
Staff Writer

The Lutheran community of Santa Barbara will join students in worship during a Reformation celebration at St. Michael's University Episcopal Church in Isla Vista Sunday evening.

Oct. 31 marks the anniversary of the posting of the 95 theses by Martin Luther, traditionally signifying the beginning of the Protestant Reformation.

The nearest Sunday preceding the anniversary's date is worshipped as Reformation Sunday, hosted this year by the community's Episcopal church, according to Darcey Jensen, on-campus Lutheran pastor.

"In the past, the local community has had joint Reformation services at the local parish," Jensen said. "This year, they offered to do it on our behalf, in our place of worship." Officials hope the celebration will provide residents with an alternative to the usual Halloween chaos.

"We see this as offering an alternative to some of the wildness going on in Isla Vista. We wanted to come out to campus to allow students to experience the Reformation," said John Wilker, senior pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Anyone interested is encouraged to attend. "We are pleased that they are willing to come to us and show their support and affection for our student community," Jensen said.

The Lutheran Campus Ministry has been meeting at St. Michael's since the late 1960s, according to the church pastor, Rev. Mark Gardner, whose Episcopalian congregation will join in the celebration.

"Anybody is welcome," Gardner said. "Normally, on Sunday night, students are especially invited, but anybody from town is welcome."

Halloween festivities and restrictions are not expected to affect the service, according to Jensen.

"The parking lot at St. Michael's will be blocked off," she said. "We are also giving people at local parishes flyers in case the Foot Patrol does start to restrict traffic."

The worship choir from Trinity Lutheran Church will perform "Now the Feast and Celebration" at the celebration, Wilker said.

Local Protestants expressed appreciation for the opportunity to enjoy the event in a larger setting.

"I would celebrate it at home too, but it's good to happen here so that students can come and celebrate," said Mindy Nelson, a Lutheran Campus Ministry member.

We hope it doesn't happen to you, but...

What to do if you get arrested

Your Rights and The Police

What you say to the police is always important. What you say can be used against you especially if you "bad mouth" a police officer.

You do not have to answer a police officer's questions but you must show your driver's license and registration when stopped in a car. In other situations you cannot be legally arrested for refusing to identify yourself to a police officer.

You do not have to give your consent to any search of yourself, your car or your house; if you do consent to a search it can affect your rights later in court. If the police say they have a search warrant, ask to see it.

Do not interfere with or obstruct the police—you can be arrested for it.

If You Are Stopped for Questioning

It is not a crime to refuse to answer questions, although refusing to answer can make the police suspicious about you. You cannot be arrested merely for refusing to identify yourself on the street.

The police may "pat-down" your clothing if they suspect you of carrying a concealed weapon. Do not physically resist, but make it clear that you do not consent to any further search.

Ask if you are under arrest. If you are you have the right to know why.

Do not "bad mouth" the police officer or run away, even if you believe what is happening is unreasonable. This could lead to your arrest.

If You Are Stopped in Your Car

Show your driver's license and registration on request. Your car can, in certain cases, be searched without a warrant if the police have probable cause. To protect yourself later, you should make it clear if you do not consent to a search.

If you are given a ticket, you should sign it, otherwise you can be arrested. You can fight the case in court later.

If you are suspected of drunk driving and refuse a blood, urine or breath test, your driving license can be suspended.

If You Are Arrested or Taken to a Police Station

You have the right to remain silent and to talk to a lawyer before you talk to the police. Tell the police your name and address. Do not give explanations, excuses or stories. You can make your defense in court based on what you and your lawyer decide is best.

Ask to see a lawyer immediately. If you cannot pay for a lawyer, you have the right to a free one, and should ask the police how the lawyer can be contacted. Do not talk without a lawyer.

Within three hours after you are arrested, or immediately after being booked, you have the right to make three free completed phone calls within the local dialing area: (1) to a lawyer, (2) a bail bondsman, (3) a relative or any other person. The police may not listen to the call to the lawyer.

Sometimes you can be released without bail or have bail lowered. Ask the judge about it. You must be taken before the judge on the next court day after arrest.

Do not make any decisions in your case until you have talked with a lawyer.

This is not complete advice. Be sure to consult a lawyer.

"I've been a majority leader and I've been the minority leader and I've thought about it a lot. I'd rather be the majority leader."

Huffington used the occasion to outline his plans for the Senate if elected.

"I don't want to go to Washington to pass a lot of new laws. I don't want to pass new tax increases," he said. "I want to shrink the size of the federal government, disband the federal welfare state and if there's anything that needs to be strengthened, it's the United States Defense Department, because that's the first line of defense for this country."

Huffington attacked his opponent, Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-California), for accepting campaign contributions from lobby groups, and he repeated his pledge to avoid special interest funds.

"Mrs. Feinstein, who's as wealthy as I am, decided to take $6 million over the last few years in special interest money," he said. "She took it from, guess whom, the trial lawyers association, the gambling casinos, the tobacco companies, the alcohol companies. Mrs. Feinstein even takes it from the oil companies, Texas oil companies."

"People are tired of political action committees. They're tired of special interests and, as you know, I don't take a dime, not a dime, from any of the special interests," Huffington added. "We're sick and tired of people who are beholden to special interests. We do want people who are only working for you."

Former 3rd District County Supervisor Willy Chamberlin believes forums such as this are valuable for voters and sympathized with Dole's difficulties in Congress.

"I think it's a little bit of what campaigning really is where people that care not only about the individual but care about the group can come out and say how important it is to have somebody independent and yet will elect, or tend to elect, the right leaders," Chamberlin said.

"It's been extremely difficult over the years, I think, for Republicans to get what they want or what they would like to get," he added. "I think his remarks were right on."

Also on hand was 22nd Congressional District hopeful Assemblywoman Andrea Seastrand (R-San Luis Obispo), who stressed the importance of getting supporters to the polls.

"Get out there and roll up your sleeves," Seastrand told the crowd. "As I told you before, buy those TV dinners and eat the junk food. We're going to concentrate on victory in 12 days."

Dole echoed the importance of the Republican vote. "If they're with us, take them to the polls," he said. "If they're not, tell them the election is postponed."

picked up later in the week, Rosales said.

"I would encourage people, if they have those things, then don't bring them," he said. "We've confiscated a chainsaw. That just doesn't make any sense, carrying a chainsaw into a crowd."

One of the most bizarre Halloween incidents involved a reveler masquerading as a barnyard animal, according to Deputy Alex Tipolt.

"There was this guy with horns three years ago. He shaved his head first and superglued real bull horns to his head," Tipolt said. "He was arrested for public intoxication and of course he couldn't be taken into custody with horns on his head. We tried everything to get those things off. "One [of the horns] was ripped off in the back of the car because he started resisting. He had to be taken to the hospital to get them removed."

The man returned the following year, complete with horns, according to Foot Patrol officers.

Although the "no tolerance" policy covers the entire community, officers will focus on Del Playa.

"Actually, it's become more of a mob scene down there. It used to be like Mardi Gras, but now it's become much more violent," said UC Police Dept. Officer Mark Gallagher.

"What you find down there on Del Playa are freshmen and sophomores," he said. "Juniors and seniors generally don't go down there. They've had enough of that walk of shame. Where you actually find some of the best costumes are on the [Embarcadero] loop." Most officers agree they would like to see more floats and elaborate costumes and less chaos and confusion.

"For the costumes, the officers are mature enough. They understand that this is a young crowd out here and they're just having fun with their costumes," Rosales said. "We're just hoping for a safe and orderly Halloween."

"Usually the funniest thing I see every Halloween is the day after, when people are coming out of the jail and they have maybe only a diaper on or they're dressed like a woman or something outrageous. The next day at 7 or 8 a.m., as you're walking down Calle Real, it's not so funny. Of course, it's probably funny if you're driving by."

Ojai Event to Feature John Wayne Mimic

Some 12,000 visitors are expected to attend the first "American Country Celebration," a carnival-like weekend event commemorating American history.

The celebration, to be held at Lake Casitas in Ojai, will feature reenactors who will portray mountain men, Civil War soldiers, fur traders, cowboys and pirates.

"These actors know a lot about history and will share this information with people of all ages," said Stephen Hartmann, an event organizer.

Special guests include acclaimed John Wayne impersonator Ermil Williamson and Montie Montana, an 84-year-old cowboy and rodeo legend who has appeared in over 60 television shows and movies since 1934.

Montana will greet visitors and sign copies of his book, Not Without My Horse!

Dick Wixon of Gold Coast Productions, the company hosting the celebration, anticipates a successful event.

"We have had success in organizing events similar to this one in the past, including a Renaissance fair and a pirate festival," he said.

As students and fans of history, Wixon and Hartmann enjoy providing a setting where people can learn and have fun at the same time.

"This provides college students with an alternative place to go for Halloween," Hartmann said. "Students can come to Ojai, relax, have fun and learn all at once."

Play It Safe

We Can Have Fun Without Destroying Ourselves— or Our Town

Editorial

Get ready. Once again, the annual Halloween festivities are upon us, and Isla Vista is faced with blocked-off roads, hordes of out-of-towners and generally, more chaos than any town smaller than one square mile should have to contend with.

Things weren't always this way, though. Halloween of the past is said to have been a pleasant community celebration — a fun time for all. It was a time for Isla Vista residents to get together, don a few costumes and enjoy their very own holiday tradition.

Then it all began to get just a little crazy. In 1987 Playboy magazine listed UCSB as one of its top 10 "party schools," citing the Halloween blast as the main reason. And from there, it escalated. The event seemed to become more raucous and less truly spirited each year, culminating in 1992's celebration, which saw over 40,000 revelers, more than 1,000 arrests, several minor injuries and two people in critical condition after falling off the Del Playa cliffs. Our innocent little community party had turned into a phenomenal street rager that could be seen as either delightful or dangerous.

Last year, however, local law enforcement agencies decided that they'd had enough of the madness and took action, cracking down with a stringent "no tolerance" policy. Those who violated the law, or were perceived to have, were cited and/or arrested, prompting an outcry that many of these actions were unwarranted and were carried out improperly.

That was the bad news. The good news was that 1993's Halloween was far milder than in previous years, albeit much quieter as well due to the county "ban on bands" prohibiting both live, amplified music and loud prerecorded music.

Because of the many citations and arrests last year, and also because of what some saw as the extreme harshness of the crackdown, many felt that Isla Vista during Halloween had been transformed into nothing short of a police state. And while it's true that the law enforcement influence was stronger than in previous years, it's also true that things were much saner than they have been in quite a while.

A police presence in I.V. is necessary during such a large event to maintain some sort of order. But the officers, especially non-locals who are unfamiliar with the community's unique character, need to be willing to adapt their procedures in dealing with the celebrants. We're not asking to be pampered or given special treatment, but we should not be tried and convicted before being proven guilty. There needs to be some sort of realistic, innovative way to handle this situation — a balance between overly rigid enforcement and none at all.

On the other hand, we as students should take steps to play it safe and avoid getting into trouble. There will be alternative events both on campus and in the outer community; you don't have to experience Halloween Isla Vista-style. But if you decide to do so, and if you're going to drink, do it responsibly and not in the street. Public intoxication can result in six months' county jail time or a fine of up to $1,000. If you do stupid things like burn a couch in the middle of Sabado Tarde or urinate outdoors (which carries a $275 fine), be prepared to get caught.

Unlike last year, though, we know what can happen. Consequently, there will be people out there on our side with video cameras and notebooks, doing their best to protect our rights. But we need to be smart and not act like complete idiots. We can have fun without destroying ourselves or our town, and the sooner we realize that, the sooner Halloween will return to being the spirited local celebration it used to be.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Last year at this time, the UCSB community was busy with the Santa Barbara County sheriff's new "no tolerance" policy for Halloween weekend in Isla Vista. While many students had been in the summer of 1993, several new laws had been proposed and adopted by the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, and several new laws adopted by local law enforcement agencies. Many Isla Vista residents as members of the surrounding community welcomed the change in attitude on the part of the sheriff's office.

No one could deny that Halloween had gotten out of hand. I was part of the UC Student Government at the time, and we, along with members of the Events Committee and other community leaders tried to do our best to control local residents about the changes and provide alternative events during Halloween. In some ways we were successful, but in others weren't. The university had spent a good deal of time trying to get locals from coming to Isla Vista, and by Friday, Oct. 29, I was hopeful that all would go well.

When everything was said and done, however, there was a lot of controversy over exactly what happened last Halloween. One was written up in the history books. One didn't. I would like to talk about the official version goes something like this:

"The Sheriff's Department campaign to keep Isla Vista mass drunken through this Halloween was a howling failure." —Santa Barbara News-Press Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1993

Many such articles appeared in local papers immediately after the event. As the "official" statistics were slowly released, they were put into the articles. Fewer fights, fewer assaults of all kinds, less noise, no deaths, etc. ... Judging from these statistics and the fact that to argue that Halloween 1993 was not better than previous years was difficult, that is, unless you talked to someone who had been arrested.

Late in the evening on Monday, Nov. 1, I got the first call from a friend who went well. I had spent the past few nights working with the police agencies to keep out-of-town visitors from crowding the campus married-student housing, and had not seen what was going on in the 6600 blocks of Del Playa, Sabado Tarde and Trigo. The night was from a friend who informed me that he had just been arrested at the county jail. He went on to tell me he had been arrested for public intoxication, but that he had been completely sober. He was not arrested for his arrest for some time after he was placed in a police car. He never read his rights. He remained in the back of the cruiser for several minutes. During this time, the officer driving the cruiser stopped to talk to fellow officers. They gave each other high fives and bragged about the one they'd caught."

After hearing his story, as well as several others shortly thereafter, I was extremely skeptical. These people were my friends. It was possible that they were simply upset about having been arrested and had reconstructed what had happened to them? Over the course of the week I became convinced that the answer to that question was no.

I proceeded to write an editorial for the Nexus and asked several people to contact me. The results were astounding. I came forward to recount stories of false arrests, students' general inappropriate behavior by many officers. Many sought legal counsel and challenged the charges against them. It was an important, many won. This group of people met with my friends and I discussed several times to discuss their options. In the end, however, most of those who had concerns, and academics and financial concerns came forward.

Although this "other side" of Halloween 1993 was reported in local media, it was very much overshadowed by the claim that it was a "success." In my opinion, the claim ignores many of the problems that occurred last Halloween.

I do not deny there were some things to be proud of. The fact that we were able to prevent non-residents from coming into Isla Vista was a success. The increased presence of law enforcement certainly had an impact on reducing crimes against people and property. For this we should be proud.

HOWEVER, this does not excuse the fact that the police officers who were present violated. I recognize that this is a power imbalance, but I believe it to be literally true. That is the reason students and parents are organizing observation teams.

In an effort to create a Halloween weekend that is safe and fun, we will use video cameras and notebooks to record the event on Oct. 29, and Monday, Oct. 31. Specifically, we will focus on the areas between law enforcement officers and the general public. We will have people throughout Isla Vista to observe specific areas, as well as camera teams. To accomplish this, we are asking for volunteers to work one or more two-hour shifts on either night. A total of 100 shifts needs to be filled.

Although we have had an excellent response so far, more volunteers are needed. All who volunteer will carry a hand-held two-way radio to maintain constant communication with all others. If you would like to participate, please call me, Geoff Green, at 685-9417. People who own video equipment or who own it are especially needed.

I hope this effort will not be necessary and that all incidents will be handled responsibly and peacefully. I do believe, however, that last year's incidents give us reason to be concerned. We are just as willing to thank police officers for a job well done as we are to challenge their conduct in court; however, we would prefer to thank them. The last thing this community needs is an atmosphere of distrust between residents and police.

All of our observations will be compiled and made public. In the meantime, be safe, responsible and have a happy Halloween. Geoff Green is the Goodspeed intern for the vice chair of the observation team.

Costuming Ideas

Matt Leising

October is, by far, the best month of the year. Besides being the month of my birth (yes, gifts are still being accepted), October means hockey season begins (hopefully), the leaves start changing color and of course, has my favorite holiday: Halloween. As Ray Bradbury wrote in The October Game: "By the sound of the children you knew the calendar day. By their screams you knew what evening it was. You knew it was very late in the year. October. The last day of October, with white bone masks and cut pumpkins and the smell of dropped candle fat."

Exactly. So Halloween means costumes and candy and shaving cream fights and bobbing for apples and running from the police and tee-peeing your neighbor's house and ... oh, wait. I forgot. This is Isla Vista, where Halloween means kegs and fights and people who don't live here destroying our town, and kegs and drugs and sex and kegs. Did I mention beer?

So you've never seen Halloween in I.V. and you can't believe all the stories you've heard. Well, I'm here for you, I have your best interest at heart. Read on, dear Gaucho, as I guide you through the basics.

No matter what anyone is telling you, Halloween is still a holiday that requires you to DRESS UP. This means a costume, not necessarily one of the best ones ever seen by mankind, but at least give it a try. For all of you who don't know what you're going to wear yet, I've compiled some possibilities.

- Are you tired of all this retro '70s crap? Do you want to go back to our real roots? Take charge of your childhood and go as one of your favorite children's literature characters: Be James from James and the Giant Peach, or Veruca Salt from Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory (remember her? She was the one who got flushed down the nut hatch by the squirrels).
- Go funky and furry as R.O.U.S. (a Rodent of Unusual Size, of course). This will not only be original, but you'll have no trouble cutting in line for beer.
- This idea requires you and four friends. One person dresses up as the Jolly Green Giant while the other four go fruity and become the Fruit of the Loom guys. Then, at midnight on All Hallows' Eve in the middle of Del Playa, you can battle it out in early '70s Japanese monster movie fashion when The Jolly Green Giant Meets the Fruit of the Loom Guys.
- Are you politically involved? Dress up like a racist, un-American, Republican load of complete bullshit and call yourself Proposition 187. Get two friends and be Kathleen Brown, Pete Wilson and Willy Chamberlin and call yourselves The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, respectively. Or forget to dress up at all and call yourself Ronald Reagan.
- Disgusted with the decline of American society? Then make a statement and dress up like your favorite talk show host: Geraldo in drag! Ricki Lake flaunting her bodacious bod on Embarcadero! Richard Bey squeezing the one ounce of talent he has from his worthless little ass!

You're now well on your way to getting a costume, but do I hear you asking what to do once at the party? Don't worry, I have more tips than the Royal Piss Boy. If you're with that special someone and you want to show them how much you care, play body shots. This involves the hard alcohol of your choice and any external body cavity that can hold liquid. The belly button is a good place to start; I'll leave it up to you on how to proceed. If things are going well from there, you can progress smoothly on to butt quarters. This is a real game, but if I tell you how to play I'd have to kill you, and that means every damn one of you Gauchos.

Another great Halloween drink is the Flaming Dr. Pepper. These are made by taking a shot of Amaretto, topping it off with some Bacardi 151, lighting the shot and then dropping the glass into a mug of beer. Be like me two years ago and drink five too many of these and your Halloween perspective will get a little crazy. Trust me.

Turning back to the beer scene, make this Halloween the time when you finally do a keg stand, or show a freshman how to beer bong and then get them to do six or seven in a row. Why not be the envy of your friends as you become the first person on your block to get arrested.

Speaking about getting arrested, I feel a moral obligation to clarify myself here. I am all for fun. I think there's nothing better than releasing a little stress and anxiety by partying; yet if this year is anything like last year — and the pigs are promising just that — then don't be an idiot. You will be arrested. Unfortunately, this means don't drink on your lawn, don't assume that the pigs will listen to you, they're way too jazzed up on pig juice to hear reason. Don't even think of going near the street with an open container and look out for each other. Sound like a drag? Well, it could be, but I have faith in Isla Vistans in this one regard: We know how to party, and a few ballistic cops shouldn't ultimately stop us from having a good time.

So be safe, have a good time and lay all our money on the Jolly Green Giant. I'm telling you, he's a killer. Trust me.

The Reader's Voice

Go Out and Vote

Editor, Daily Nexus:

It's that time again. Election Day (Nov. 8) is just around the corner. Most students probably aren't too concerned about Election Day and whom they are going to vote for. Instead, most students are most likely too occupied with the upcoming Halloween weekend festivities to think about anything else.

UCSB students, I urge you to get involved. How do we expect to get our voices as university students heard? How do we expect anything to change or improve if we don't do something about it? Can't stand your political science class, hate politics and don't find any interest in it? Most of you will be surprised by how exciting politics can be and what a difference you can make.

UCSB's very own Professor Walter Capps is running for Congress. I have been lucky enough to hear him speak and lecture. He isn't the typical career politician. He has never done anything like this before. I truly believe his interests are in us, the students of Santa Barbara and the people of the Central Coast.

When Election Day is here, take time out of your busy schedule and go to the polls and vote. You'll feel better about yourself that night while you lay on your couch staring at the TV, trying to motivate yourself to do some homework. Just think, at least you didn't sit around and watch the world go by without trying to make a difference.

JENNY LAM

UCSB, is running as the 22nd District's Democratic candidate for Congress. He is running as a representative for the people, unlike the masses of career politicians already in office. Dr. Capps is endorsed by the Sierra Club, the California League of Conservation Voters and Voters for Choice. He is decidedly pro-environment and pro-choice. He is also in support of expanding student loan programs to increase the affordability of a college education.

Dr. Capps is running against Andrea Seastrand, a Sacramento politician. Seastrand has accepted funds from a number of major oil companies and has received 0 out of a possible 100 rating from the California League of Conservation Voters. In addition, she is strongly opposed to a woman's right to choose, even in cases of rape and incest.

Historically, the 18-25 age group has shown the lowest turnout at the polls. It is vital that we as students band together and make a difference in this election. We all need to get out there on Nov. 8 and cast our vote for Dr. Walter Capps. It is about time we elect a representative who will look out for our interests.

Not to mention he's a fellow Gauchó!

Brooks for Assembly

Editor, Daily Nexus:

If someone told me three years ago I would be endorsing a Republican, I would have laughed in their face. I was in another life as an environmentalist with hair. Then I came to UCSB and encountered some kind would be no valid temptation to raise them in the first place. That's thinking like a Republican.

By the way, anyone interested in joining Students For Firestone can call me at 562-1831. And don't forget to vote Brooks for 35th Assembly on Tuesday, Nov. 8. Thanks a bunch.

PATRICK BYRNE

Progress?

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I would like to address a subject that goes to the core of almost all students' existence here at UCSB. A subject so integral to our campus, it appears to have been overlooked in the midst of the volume of new construction, assumed to have been taken care of by that infamous "somebody else."

Yep. Bikepaths.

Ladies and gentlemen (and, to be properly PC, I'll also address this to the dog that appeared on the stage last week in Mouré's History 4C class), I would like to ask all of you, students, faculty, administrators alike: Do we have a planning department any longer? Is that budgetary allotment just going into a black hole the size of Susan "STOP THE INSANITY!" Powter's mouth? Am I missing something here?

Years ago, when first I came to this fine campus, we had things current students can only dream of — adequate bike parking. Close to class. Paths that went on a more or less direct route to where they were going. Instead, today's entering freshmen are confronted with a mess only a truly bureaucratic system could provide.

MATT RAGLAND/Daily Nexus

Know Who to Vote For

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Do you think that anyone would ever just wake up one morning and decide to run for the Isla Vista Recreation and Parks District? What if you had never ever been to a single Park Board meeting? Would running for such a board make sense?

Most people would obviously say "No," but two students, Richard Acosta and Pat Kerzic, who had never been to an I.V. Recreation and Parks District meeting, decided to do just that. Did they run for kicks? A resume builder? I don't know, but the thought that two students are candidates for the district who prior to running did not know anything about the I.V. Parks District should set off major alarms in your head.

In the I.V. Recreation and Parks race, the top two vote-getters will become our next two Park Board directors. As students we have a lot of voting power, but if we want to be taken seriously and get any sort of respect, we have to use it wisely. To vote for a person because they are a student and not because of their qualifications is to add weight to the claim made by those who say Isla Vistans are "stupid voters." If we decide to elect people who have experience with parks, then our parks will be all the better for it, but if we just check people off on the ballot because the word "student" appears next to their name, then we'll have to live with people like Kerzic and Acosta, who seem to be counting on students' ignorance.

I.V. has some great parks, but the future of them depends on how they are managed and by whom. As students, we need to put people in office who can and will do what's best for our parks. Just being a student does not mean a person is best qualified. Know who you're voting for; it will make all the difference in how parks in I.V. are managed.

MATT WADE

Capps for Congress

Editor, Daily Nexus:

As Nov. 8 approaches, it cannot be stressed enough how important the ensuing election will be. This election year gives us, the students of UCSB, an opportunity to send one of our own, Dr. Walter Capps, to Washington, D.C.

Dr. Capps, one of the most popular professors at of New Age Marxism on Prozac called political correctness. Luckily, I found a safe haven in Econ 109. Saved.

And damn it, I am 115 percent behind my buddy Brooks Firestone, Republican candidate for the 35th Assembly District of California.

Brooks Firestone is a solid, independent businessman with broad appeal easily embracing moderate Democrats and civil libertarians. Firestone has lived, worked and raised a family in this area for 22 years. Son of the founder of Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Brooks ran the company's British sector, where he met his wife of 36 years, Kate. The company was subsequently sold to a Japanese firm (though it still bears the family name) and Brooks started a winery business in the Santa Ynez Valley, creating local jobs and prosperity in the area.

I have personally met both Firestone and his opponent and I must say Brooks is the most friendly, unpretentious individual anyone could meet. This past summer I attended one of his shindigs sporting shorts and a bandanna; Brooks just came up to me with an extended handshake and said, "Hey, Pat, good to see ya. Like a glass of wine?" (By the way, Firestone Vineyards makes a mean vino.) So I decided to mingle with people who look like "Muffy" and "Biff" like it's nobody's business and next thing you know, I'm a bona fide volunteer. Good deal.

Brooks is running because he is very serious about streamlining our state government and making it more responsible to people like you and me. Take the education system as an excellent example. Everyone can relate to being disgruntled by the seemingly perpetual fee increases. Democratic candidates like Firestone's opponent are "promising" a "fee cap," which sounds good and fine, but quite frankly misses the root of the problem. The basic approach is to cut excessive bureaucracy. Let me explain:

Almost any UCSB student knows that the University administration is wide on the top and then trickles down through the faculty and then finally to us, the students. Brooks calls this the "inverted pyramid."

The basic answer to this inverted pyramid would be to make students and parents the financial priority over anything else. After all, we are the ones paying the fees and taxes that run the school, right? So maybe some of this construction that goes on every year is a little unnecessary. Maybe we should streamline requirements so most students can graduate in four years instead of five. And maybe instead of talking about "capping" the fees, we would not have to worry about it since there

We have millions of dollars of new buildings. Fabulous beige-and-pink color scheme. However, that new Chem building took over the huge parking lot that people actually used for Buchanan. Yep, for you newbies, that mysterious nub of a path going to Broida actually did, in a time long since lost, go somewhere. This is progress?

Today, I look at Snidecor and the new humanities building being erected across from it. Wonderful job they did on that Pardall bikepath. I'm sure thousands of our hard-earned dollars were spent on bark, a great thing to waste money on if I've ever heard of one. But what of the bike lot right across from the Snidecor theater? Was that just chewed up when Rover got his teeth on the plans? Or was it eliminated by a coffee stain on the blueprints? Or, perhaps, was it eliminated following the most colossally inane proposal I've ever heard: remove all the bikepaths from campus central and just put a ring bikepath around the perimeter. Now that's a laugh.

Instead, today, we are confronted with CSOs by the dozens — answer me this: Are they human? — bitching and whining about illegally parked bikes. Well, hell, if there was a lot, it wouldn't be illegal, would it?

Instead, today, we have little signs chained up here and there informing us that our bikes will be impounded if they are parked illegally. We pay the CSO for this?

Instead, today, we have the CSO screaming at us when we're riding on the pedestrian walkways when, if some brilliant sport in the planning group had ever had a clue, there would already be a path remotely leading to where most people want to go.

Personally, I gave up. I'm rollerblading, since they haven't managed to come up with a bureaucratic solution to that yet.

MIKE SCHMITT

Look! We're finally catching up on reading our mail. Lots more letters to come next week. After we regain our sanity.

CHAIR

Continued from p.1 majority voice. "The concern I have is that the department was running effectively and efficiently," she said. "The non-reappointment could not have been due to any problems in the department not running smoothly."

This disregard nullified the achievements of Broyles-González and members of the department, according to Castañeda. "The work of her vision and leadership and the work of the faculty in the department has been torn asunder," she said.

Alma Flores, head of the Chicano/Latino campus organization El Congreso, expressed the group's disappointment with Zimmerman.

"El Congreso is definitely behind Professor Yolanda Broyles-González," she said. "The appointment of Dean Zimmerman, the same man that wrote the memo demanding her non-reappointment, what does that say? ... The administration has appointed a token chair for what they feel is a token department."

However, Mario T. Garcia, Chicano studies and history professor, believes the appointment will be beneficial to the department. "I think that Zimmerman fills the bill," he said. "He knows our department very well."

Broyles-González, the first woman of color to receive tenure at UCSB and the first Chicana chair in the UC system, considered Zimmerman's appointment unnecessary.

"It is unprecedented on campus and incomprehensible that a department functioning smoothly and effectively would be taken into administrative custody," she said.

Provost Gretchen Bataille, who was asked by Crawford to recommend a new chair for the Chicano studies dept., defended her decision to appoint Zimmerman.

"I decided the most important thing right now was to have administrative leadership, someone who knew the department, who'd be able to get things going," she said, noting appointments can be made without faculty approval.

Of the available candidates, "not many had the amount of time or possessed the knowledge necessary to carry out the chair's duties," Bataille added. "An immediate decision had to be made in order to keep the department functioning smoothly."

"We weren't voting. I was getting responses and nuances. I didn't ask them to agree with me. My job was to make a recommendation."

Garcia confirmed his belief in the way the decision was made. "The process of appointing a chair involves the administration consulting with the department, but it doesn't have to agree with the department," he said.

Faculty members have the right to make recommendations in hiring and advancement cases, according to Bataille.

However, "chairs serve at the behest of the administration," Castañeda said.

Faculty of departments outside Chicano studies were consulted in the process, according to Castañeda. "We're told that the administration has consulted with everybody throughout the campus, but they're not members of the department," she said. "They're not appointed in the department."

Zimmerman said he accepted the post because of his sense of responsibility. "I was not campaigning for it," he said. "Since it was a department in my division, I should accept responsibility."

Zimmerman has unofficially held the post since the end of Broyles-González's term, according to Garcia.

"In effect, Zimmerman, de facto, has been chair since July 1, because when you don't have a chair, the dean, de facto, is chair," he said. "I, myself, have requested things of him as Chicano studies chair since July 1."

Castañeda believes Zimmerman's appointment reflects badly on the university administration.

"I've stated in a letter to the administration that I am deeply distressed and concerned about the climate on campus in terms of faculty of color and how the university handles these issues," she said.

Notice of Availability and Public Hearing Initial Study De La Guerra Renovation and Expansion Project & Long Range Development Plan Amendment 94-1

Pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act and the California Coastal Act, the University of California, Santa Barbara (UCSB) has prepared an Initial Study for the proposed De La Guerra Renovation and Expansion Project and associated LRDP Amendment.

The proposed project consists of the renovation and expansion of De La Guerra (Building 549) on the Main Campus of UCSB. The existing structure includes a student dining facility and the administrative offices and maintenance shops of the Department of Housing and Residential Services (HR&S). The project includes renovation of 18,530 assignable square feet (asf), demolition of 10,166 asf, the addition of 16,382 asf to the existing structure and construction of a new 22,337 asf facility adjacent to the existing building. The project includes an amendment to the 1990 LRDP to develop a site that was not identified in the LRDP, Figure 12, Potential Building Locations.

The 45-day public review period is from October 20, 1994 to December 1, 1994. The purpose of the public review period is to provide the public and other government agencies an opportunity to comment on the environmental document and the proposed LRDP Amendment. A public hearing will be held on November 2, 1994 from 6:00 pm to 8:00 pm at De La Guerra Annex. If you have special needs due to a disability, please contact the Office of Budget & Planning at 805-893-4746.

Copies of the Initial Study are available at the Office of Budget and Planning, the UCSB Main Library — Special Archives, the Goleta Public Library, and the Santa Barbara Public Library. Additional copies may be obtained from UCSB, Office of Budget & Planning, Santa Barbara CA 93106, attn.: Aeryn Richmond.

Written comments should be provided no later than Thursday, December 1, 1994, addressed to:

 Violence against women is a societal problem due to sexism and misogyny.

The event advocated increased public awareness. "Take Back the Night is about women challenging institutional silences, validating our experiences, reclaiming 'herstory' long denied and meeting in solidarity to break the silence which is death," said Melinda McMahon, a senior sociology and women's studies major.

Ingrid Turner, a UC

Santa Cruz student in attendance, expressed her belief that women should be free to wear what they want and walk safely at night without fear of harassment. "We should not have to be responsible for men losing control of their sexuality," she said.

Drawing attention to the global importance of recognizing women's rights as human rights, sociology Professor Kum-Kum Bhavnani told the story of her first Take Back the Night rally in England in 1975.

The march there passed through a predominantly

Black area of town where women were known to be prostitutes, and Bhavnani refused to march because of the message implied.

"We were women marching, determined that we would be able to feel safe," she said. "We were asking for more policing, not saying those who make streets unsafe are people of color. We were asking for the streets to be safe."

Women's unity needs to transcend class and racial lines in order to succeed, according to Bhavnani.

The testimonial portion of the evening welcomed both men and women who came forward with stories of rape and violation.

Speakers emphasized that most rapes are not just violent acts committed by strangers, because the majority of survivors knew their assailants personally.

Many speakers were thankful for the opportunity to tell their stories. "This is the first time I've felt so proud of myself and so relieved," said one speaker, who came forward after remaining silent for five years following her assault. "This is the closest I've ever come to facing it."

 haps the best team in the nation. The Cardinal has overpowered its opponents this year, outscoring them 36 to 8.

Besides the fact that Stanford will be an extremely tough team, UCSB will have to overcome a tremendous obstacle in that two of its top players have recently suffered injuries.

Midfielder Julie Harris has missed the last two games with a knee injury and is questionable for Sunday's contest, while midfielder Amy Gutowski broke her foot while warming up prior to the LMU game. With the possible continued absence of another midfielder, Rachel Romano, the Gauchos may have to play without any substitutes.

Stanford's potent offense, averaging 2.57 goals per game, is led by sophomore forward Erin Martin (10 goals, four assists), junior midfielder Carmen Murphy (six goals, one assist) and sophomore forward Erin Burt (five goals, two assists). The game will also feature the return to Harder Stadium of Julie Bushman, a former Gauchito who is now a reserve forward for the Cardinal.

"We beat UMass, so it's not like it can't be done," junior midfielder Amy Hunter said. "We just have to work extra hard, be mentally and physically tough and play our hearts out. Hopefully, our offense will click together and we'll start scoring some goals."

Swimmers and Divers to Jump in at UCLA; SB Squads Hope for Big Wins in Tri-Meet

By Michael Kohn
Staff Writer

After burying Cal Poly SLO last week in the season opener, the UCSB women's swim team has been eagerly waiting to face some real competition. The wait will end Saturday as the Gauchos head south for a tri-meet with highly ranked South Carolina and UCLA, the host school.

The meet's significance lies in Santa Barbara's facing top schools early in the season. This will benefit the team in the future, team members said, because it will speed the maturation of the Gauchos' highly touted freshmen.

"It is definitely going to be a challenge," said Assistant Coach Victor Wales. "We are kind of throwing them [the freshmen] into the fire in this one ... but we think the younger kids will step up."

Leading the Gauchos' charge are sprinters Meredith McLain and Stephanie Raymond. Amy Price and freshman Sharon Noe will lead the breaststroking event, and Erin Patrick is slated to compete in both the freestyle and backstroke.

The diving team, which will be competing for the first time this season, will join the swimmers. Since the Gaucho divers have not been exposed to any intercollegiate events, the team will be using some of the less technical dives.

"We won't use our bigger dives; we are just going to take it slowly," explained senior Melissa Ulmer. "This is just a stepping stone for us; it is going to get us back into the competitive scene. Right now, we are going on a good pace so that we will peak later."

Santa Barbara will be looking to topple South Carolina, who ranked #28 last year, and UCLA, who finished #7 nationwide last season. The Bruins boast a young team with 14 freshmen and six sophomores, and are led by Annette Salmeen, a freestyle and butterfly specialist who holds UCLA's top times in four events.

UCLA has "some excellent swimmers," McLain said. "They work hard and have a good team, but we will match them in some events."

UCSB to Face #3-Ranked Stanford Cardinal

By Curtis Kaiser
Staff Writer

Coming off a win against the Loyola Marymount Lions, perhaps its weakest opponent of the season, the UCSB women's soccer team will face its toughest test of the year Sunday.

After Wednesday's important victory against the Lions, Santa Barbara (5-7-3) will welcome the #3-ranked Stanford Cardinal (13-1) for a 2 p.m. contest Sunday at Harder Stadium.

"Any time you have a chance to take down the #3 team in the nation, it's a big game," Assistant Coach Aaron Heifetz said. "It's always been a big rivalry between us, and it's our second-to-last home game."

A victory over Stanford would not be inconceivable for the Gauchos. With its 1-0 victory over the then #5-ranked University of Massachusetts on Oct. 2, UCSB showed it can compete with the best teams in the nation.

"We've got to play mentally focused and physically hard," Gaucho Head Coach Tad Bobak said. "We have to be very defensively organized and play strong and balanced."

Stanford's only loss this season was a 1-0 defeat at the hands of the University of North Carolina, per-

Senior setter Chrissy Boehle gets pumped up. Boehle will attempt to lead UCSB past Long Beach.

UCSB Volleyball Hoping to Strike Gold in Match Vs. Long Beach State Tonight

By Jenny Kok
Staff Writer

The last time the #8 UCSB women's volleyball team and defending national champion #9 Long Beach State met, the Gauchos pulled through to win a five-game match, 11-15, 15-10, 15-12, 6-15, 15-8. But that time, it was in front of a home crowd of 1,349.

Today the Gauchos head to LBSU to take on the 49ers in the Gold Mine at 7:30 p.m., hoping to break a three-way tie for first place in the Big West between Long Beach, Santa Barbara and the University of Hawaii.

This time, things will be different for both the 49ers and the Gauchos. The Long Beach attack has become much more consistent in the last few weeks, so the 49ers should be more effective against the Gauchos than in their last meeting.

For UCSB, blocking has become a vital part of the team's defense. On the other hand, Gaucho setter Chrissy Boehle has had problems with her Achilles' tendon, but after Tuesday's match against #4 UCLA, she has shown remarkable signs of recovery.

"Chrissy is at about 80 to 85 percent right now," UCSB Head Coach Kathy Gregory said. "She's still moving a little bit slower than usual, but she's a senior and she knows the game, not to mention the fact that she played extremely well against UCLA."

The Gauchos' biggest worries tonight will be Britta Schwerm, Traci Dahl and Nichelle Burton. Schwerm has been showing a lot of strength in the front row. In the past two weeks, she has raised her hitting percentage from .257 to .309, tallying 76 kills at .461 over the last four matches.

Dahl leads the team and ranks second in the Big West with 252 kills on the season at a .375 hitting percentage. The 6'1" middle blocker earned Big West Player of the Week honors this week after tallying a career-high 23 kills at .595 and putting up eight blocks, including three solo stuffs, against the University of Nevada, Reno last Thursday.

Leading the 49ers overall is senior outside hitter Burton, who has amassed 279 kills at a .365 hitting percentage, made 189 digs and 41 blocks. Burton has once received Big West Player of the Week honors and has been nominated for national player of the week.

"What are we gearing for? Well, of course, we want to beat Long Beach," Gregory said. "Let's face it, we have beat them when we weren't at full strength and they've beat us when we should have had it together. With the situation we are in now, just to compete well and keep the team together could be enough to win. We've made some changes in the lineup to adjust to their [Long Beach's] style of playing, but as long as we play tough, that's all that really matters at this point."

Catch the #8 UCSB Women's Volleyball Team as they dig for gold at #9 Long Beach State's Gold Mine LIVE on 91.9 KCSB. Pre-game coverage begins at 7:15 p.m. The action starts at 7:30 p.m.

Gauchos Need Two Victories to Keep Playoff Hopes Alive

By Deborah Raffi
Staff Writer

The UCSB men's soccer team must go undefeated the rest of the year in order to have a chance at the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation playoffs.

Coming off a 0-3 loss against the University of New Mexico, the Gauchos (9-6-0 overall, 4-2-0 MPSF) hope to convert frustration into intensity as they did after their loss to the top team in the division, the UCLA Bruins.

Tonight, the team will travel to Northridge, where it will play its final conference match of the season.

"We had a really good week of training and the guys are both loose and confident," UCSB Head Coach Mark Arya said. "Going in with a healthy team will be a definite strength."

Junior sweeper Pat Griffin suffered a minor injury during this week's practice to the same knee that kept him on the bench last season, but he will be ready to play in the first match.

"It's tough to come off a loss like we are and it's been an emotional downer," Griffin said. "But we're looking at the rest of the season as a new start. As long as we finish strong, we have a better chance at the playoffs."

Cal State Northridge (7-8-0, 1-5-0) does not pose a serious threat to UCSB, but the Gauchos may need to pull an upset of their own this weekend in order to make a comeback.

UCSB will take on Fresno State Sunday, hoping to put a small dent in the opponent's 5-1-1

MPSF record, which makes the Bulldogs #1 in the Mountain Division of the conference.

"Fresno is identical to UCLA in how we perceive them," Arya said. "We always play them tough but come back with the short end of the stick. But right now, we have momentum and know we have to play big."

Tied for second place with New Mexico, Santa Barbara's last four games are crucial. The Bruins, who have completed conference play, have earned a guaranteed playoff berth, but UCSB may get a bid if it finishes strongly.

Tonight's contest at Cal State Northridge is set to begin at 7 p.m., while Sunday's game at Fresno State will start at 3 p.m.

Runners Ready for Championships

By Steven Large
Staff Writer

A trip to Utah over Halloween weekend doesn't usually inspire excitement in most UCSB students, but for Santa Barbara's men's and women's cross-country teams, Utah is the place to be.

The Gauchos travel to Logan, Utah, today for this weekend's Big West Conference Championships.

The Gaucho women expect to do well, but they don't expect an easy victory.

"The Gauchos are new at this," Santa Barbara Head Coach Pete Dolan said, referring to UCSB's being a first-time defending champion. "We're taking nothing for granted. We won't assume that we're going to win just because we're defending champions."

The UCSB women's only real competition is Irvine, whose athletes won three straight Big West championships before the Gauchos' triumph last year.

"UCI is the big competition," Santa Barbara runner Kara Bradbury said. "But everyone is rested and ready to go. If everyone goes in and runs their hardest, we should win."

This competition is particularly meaningful to Bradbury, who, as a senior, will be running in her last Big West Conference Championship.

"This week has been hard," Bradbury said. "Emotions have been up and down. God, this is it. I want it all."

The men's team will face stiff competition against Utah State, the defending champion of the Big West.

The Gauchos beat the Aggies earlier this year at the Stanford Invitational and, according to Dolan, are running even better now.

"There is no reason to talk ourselves out of it," Dolan said of the possibility to win the Big West.

UCSB's Forest Quinlan is the only Gaucho going into the championships with an injury. Quinlan's right quadriceps is slightly strained, but Dolan doesn't believe it will pose much of a problem.

"He ran his best race ever at the San Luis Obispo Invitational, when he had the same injury," Dolan said.

If the Gauchos are successful at the Big West Championships, they will move on to the regionals, which don't seem far out of reach.

Water Polo Putting Streak on Line

By Chris Ganci
Staff Writer

With a season-high five-game winning streak in its pocket, the Gaucho water polo team faces Long Beach State at noon in Campus Pool on Saturday.

This will be the season's third meeting between the two teams. UCSB won the previous two encounters, 11-7 at Long Beach on Sept. 17 and 10-6 in the Northern California Tournament at Stanford on Oct. 1.

"They are a physical team that works very hard," UCSB Head Coach Joe O'Brien said. "They have had every reason to roll over this year, but they haven't. Despite all the misfortune, it hasn't changed their approach, and they work hard to cover up their weaknesses."

In the Sept. 17 meeting, the Gauchos (11-9 overall, 3-4 in the MPSF) broke open a 2-2 tie by scoring four consecutive goals in the second and third quarters. Senior Doug Wierenga led UCSB that day in scoring with five goals, including three in a three-minute span at the end of the third and beginning of the fourth period.

Long Beach (4-14 overall, 0-7 in the MPSF) has been beset by misfortune. Three starters have been lost from the start of the season, including Kip Parsons, a second-team all-conference selection in 1993 who was sidelined with a season-ending shoulder injury. Besides Parsons, both starting goalie Adam Lee and his backup Brian Thompson are also out of the 49er lineup. That leaves Dan Poppin to cover the Long Beach net. Poppin had never played goalie in Division I water polo until three weeks ago.

Despite the difficulties LBSU has had to endure — the 49ers will be depleted on the bench, fielding only four subs for this weekend's game — O'Brien still expects a competitive game.

This match is the next-to-last home game for UCSB and the last one before the MPSF tournament, to be held in Long Beach Nov. 12-13.

After the Long Beach State contest, the Gauchos will conduct an alumni game at 2 p.m.
