'Obscenity' dismissed

By RICH ZEIGER
City Editor

Hauled into court for, among other things, the contention that "Pornography is good for you," Freshman Fred Munch stood trial last month for alleged obscenities painted on his car. However, the charges against Munch were dismissed by Municipal Judge Joseph Lodge with the statement that the "predominant theme of this... is humor," and that it did not arouse "Prurient interests."

"OFFENSIVE"

The case arose out of an arrest by UCSB Detective Robert Gauthier who found such platitudes as "Virgins of the world unite, you have nothing to lose but your virginity," and "Fornicate now," painted on the sides of Munch's car to be offensive. Gauthier also stated that he would make the same type of arrest if it appeared with a variation in wording.

ATTY PROTEST

Prosecuting Atty. George Poppe protested Judge Lodge's decision stating that he couldn't think of a "better example" of obscenity, and that the writing was "Utterly without redeeming social importance."

CITIZENS COMPLAIN

Poppe also felt that the decision would be harmful to the University leaving it "wide open to advertising that kind of thing..." and students would be "laughing at law enforcement" if the citation were not upheld.

The Deputy District Atty. was not the only one upset over the decision. In a letter to the Gazette-Citizen, the Citizens Coordinating Council of Santa Barbara congratulated Gauthier on making the arrest stating that "No parent in his right mind wants to see his son or daughter continually exposed to that kind of environment," and that with this decision the "court has encouraged him and others to lower their standards." The letter ended with words of encouragement to Detective Gauthier to "again exercise his full prerogative under the law."

PORNOGRAPHIC?

Munch's defense lawyer James Slater took the decision with a lighter attitude stating that he always felt the writing on the car was about as pornographic as Winnie the Pooh.

Munch himself said that he would switch to bumper stickers.

FALSE CHARGE

Munch himself had not painted the words on his car. Rather it had been done by friends in preparation for a sports car rally. Munch also spent a night in jail where he was charged, because of a typographical error, with putting on a lewd show. At that time, Munch described the charges as "trumped-up."

Writer, sculptor, critic to lecture

The appointment of three Regents Lecturers for the winter quarter at UCSB has been announced by Chancellor Vernon I. Cheadle.

In January, writer Wolf Mankowitz and sculptor George Rickey will hold lectureships, while art critic and author Harold Rosenberg will be at UCSB in February.

Mankowitz is the author of more than a dozen books, 11 plays, 15 screenplays and seven television scripts. Since 1959 he has concentrated increasingly on film writing, winning a number of awards for many of his scripts. "The Bespoke Overcoat" won the first prize for the "Best Short Story Film" at the 1955 Venice Film Festival, a diploma of Merit at the Edinburgh Film Festival, the 1955 British Film Academy Award, the Hollywood Oscar for the best two-reel short subject in 1957, the Golden Reel Award in 1957 from the Film Council of America and the Jewish Audio-Visual Materials Award for the outstanding film of Jewish interest in 1957.

Rickey, also at UCSB in January, was trained as a historian and a painter, though he has earned his distinction primarily as a sculptor and writer. His sculpture, called kinetic sculpture, resembles mobiles.

Rickey's writings are concerned with the artist's creation, evolution and his role in 20th century commercial society, as well as the history and theory of art that moves. The UCSB Regents' Lecturer has exhibited in the Metropolitan Museum, the Whitney Museum, the John Herron Art Institute, the Delgado Museum, and has held one-man shows throughout the U.S., Germany, and Italy.

In February, Rosenberg will assume the Regents' Lectureship. His writings and affiliation with a number of projects have made significant contributions to the understanding of modern art for two decades.

The author of a number of books and articles, Rosenberg currently is researching four projects in the areas of literature, art and politics. His major works include "The Tradition of the New," "Arshile Gorky" and "The Anxious Object," all of which have been translated and published abroad.

Roy King resigns post under fire

By JOHN MAYBURY

STEVE BAILEY

Ordered by his superior to avoid social contact with students after working hours, Roy King, advisor to the Letters and Science Scholars Program has quit. His resignation has created an underground controversy and has cast doubt in some circles on the future of the program. Many parties involved believe the restriction was a bluff to force his resignation.

Although King is removed from the program, he will nevertheless remain in local educational counselling. The scholars who came into the program apparently on account of King's influence will still be able to contact him, but letters to the Administration indicate bitter loss. Their feelings are shared by two program officers who are expected to resign in support of King.

ALDRICH DISTANT

Much of the controversy concerns Scholars Program head, Dr. Keith Aldrich, Associate Dean, the man who placed the social rule against King. Whereas King has been viewed as someone who "stood up against the system... who knew and cared what was going on with students," Aldrich has been described as giving an impression of distance and professional anxiety. When questioned about these accusations, Aldrich stated he was unavailable for comment.

King, an unorthodox and "hang-loose" type, admitted the "image conflict" with Aldrich and others: "My record as a student radical here in 1961 is not liked."

However, he scoffed at the accusation that he ever had a bad moral influence on students. Such an accusation, suggested King, shows the administration's lack of respect for student maturity. "These administrators assume students are so shallow they can't think for themselves. But these kids are themselves. They're independent and that makes them beautiful. It is alien to me that I could ever control them."

24 HOUR ADVICE

King described his work and the ideal of the Program as follows: "giving an opportunity for kids to make friendly and meaningful contact with an adult who represents the administration." Whether or not King should offer this service outside working hours is what was and is the issue, with both sides

Study Center opens in Lund

Study center at the University of Lund, Sweden was officially opened last month as the latest (twelfth) addition to the University's Education Abroad program.

Lund, established in 1666, is the second oldest university in Sweden and offers UC students courses in humanities, social sciences and mathematics.

Fourteen students from various UC campuses have been attending Lund since September. Dr. William Allaway, director of the Lund Center, commented, "UC students have been warmly received by the Swedes and are comfortably housed in co-educational student-operated residence halls."

World News

RUBY DIES

Jack Ruby died of cancer yesterday. A terse hospital announcement stated that Ruby lapsed into a coma and died at 11:30 a.m. (EST). A hospital administrator indicated that the funeral will be held in Chicago, Ruby's birthplace.

Doctors discovered that Ruby had a widespread case of cancer after he was hospitalized December 10th.

POWELL INVESTIGATION

A House Investigating Subcommittee looking into the activities of Representative Adam Clayton Powell leveled a barrage of charges against the Harlem Democrat yesterday.

The charges include a finding that Powell and a pretty secretary took a number of trips under assumed names, paid for by funds of his Education and Labor Committee. In its official report to the Parent House Administration Committee, the Subcommittee said the practice was adopted by Powell so that questions would not be raised as to the official character of the travel.

The Subcommittee coupled its charges with eight recommendations, the most stringent of which is that the House shut off the twenty thousand dollar per year salary of Powell's estranged wife, Yvette. Mrs. Powell lives in Puerto Rico, apparently in violation of law requiring congressional employees to work either in Washington or a member's home state.

The Subcommittee also recommended that its report be forwarded to government agencies, including the Justice Department, for possible civil or criminal prosecution of Powell.

CUBAN INVASION FOILED

A group of approximately one-hundred and twenty men, including exiled Cubans and Haitians, plus some Americans wanted to take over Haiti. If they succeeded they planned to make it into a base for the invasion of Cuba.

During the night local police and Federal officers found out about the plans and raided the launch point. They arrested twenty-five members of the group as they planned to leave the Florida Keys.

HANOI REJECT

Britain has appealed again---urgently---to Hanoi to join the United States and South Vietnam in three-power talks aimed at bringing a ceasefire to Vietnam.

Hanoi has rejected a similar British proposal once.

The British Foreign Office said that by agreeing to peace talks, the Hanoi government will commit itself, in these words, "simply and solely to joining efforts to life the burden of war from their country."

JOHNSON MEETINGS

President Johnson today kicked off a weeklong series of private White House meetings with his top advisers.

The aim is to put final polish on Administration proposals to be presented to the new Congress in the budget and State of the Union messages.

CAMPUS NEWS

CONCERT COMMITTEE

AS Concerts Committee will meet today at 8 p.m., UCen 2272.

EXTENSION

University Extension, celebrating its 75th year of operation, has recently announced its schedule of classes for winter in the Santa Barbara area.

Classes offered include computer programming systems, oral communication for business management, clouds, wind and rain, great public issues, and many more.

Further information may be obtained concerning the entire range of courses offered, times of instruction and places of individual meetings by calling University Extension at 968-3577.

GIRLS RUSH

Girls interested in open rush, please sign-up in Dean Bower's office, Adm. 3117. Requirements to rush are a 2.2 GPA last quarter and a 2.0 overall.

HOMECOMING PICS

Homecoming dance pictures may be picked up any day between 8 and 5 in the recreation office, old S.U.

SENIOR COUNCIL

Senior Class Council will meet today, 7 p.m., in SH 1112. All members must attend.

THURBER TRYOUTS

All students are invited to try out for this quarter's Reader's Theatre production of "A Thurber Carnival."

Open tryouts will be held Monday, Jan. 9 from 3 to 6 p.m. and from 8 to 11 p.m. in Speech 1637, and Tuesday, Jan. 10, from 3 to 6 p.m. in Speech 1633.

Drama Production sets tryouts for two plays

Tryouts have been announced for the UCSB Department of Dramatic Art's two winter productions, Michael Gazzo's "A Hatful of Rain," to be staged by Dr. William Reardon, and Bertolt Brecht's "Good Woman of Setzuan," to be staged by Eugene H. Miller.

For the convenience of interested students, simultaneous tryouts will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 7-10 p.m., in both the Main Theatre ("Good Woman") and the Studio Theatre ("Hatful") of the Speech and Drama Building. Callbacks will be heard on the evening of January 6.

"A Hatful of Rain," which will be presented Feb. 7-18, calls for seven males and two females, while "Good Woman of Setzuan," scheduled for performance March 2-11, calls for at least eighteen males and eleven females. Because of conflicting rehearsal schedules, it will not be possible for students to play roles in both productions.

Miller wishes to emphasize the great variety of roles open in "Good Woman," and, because of the international quality of the play, he would like to encourage Negro and Oriental students to audition for parts.

All students, regardless of major, are invited to contribute their talents. Scripts are available in the Office of Dramatic Art, Room 2641, in the Speech and Drama Building.

'Alternative to violence is brotherhood'--Baez

By TERESA CHENERY
Staff Writer

"I decided very young to join a new ethnic group called the brotherhood of man," began pacifist Joan Baez in a class discussion on non-violence on campus last month.

Briefly describing the theory and practice of a non-violent way of life as explored in the Institute for the Study of Non-Violence located in Carmel Valley, Joan Baez and Ira Sandperl (founders of the Institute) related their personal experiences and convictions to students on issues of Black Power, the Viet Nam war and how non-violence is the "only alternative to the present situation."

"To join a universal brotherhood," continued Miss Baez, "the first thing you have to throw out its nationalism. We're American by accident but people take it so seriously that they kill their fellow man in the name of national interest."

WORLD NEED

To do without the identity of nationalism, "you have to connect with the rest of the world," said Miss Baez. "We're a wealthy bunch on the whole and we have to educate ourselves as to the world's needs. We can't just do good without knowing some of the cause of the disaster or need."

"This connection with mankind is growing up," she commented. "It should take me all my life to grow up as it should take anyone who takes overcoming their stupidity or ignorance seriously," said Miss Baez.

Non-violence was presented as the only alternative to the direction the world is headed toward today . . . "total destruction," felt Miss Baez.

"Peace can be achieved only by those willing to go about getting it peacefully, which means they'll have to give up war," said Miss Baez. "This doesn't mean that I want total love with no one popping someone in the nose anymore, but rather a world which at least doesn't condone and congratulate war (with purple hearts). If we can outlaw international murder, which I think isn't utopian but possible, then I feel we have a chance to establish a peace."

NON-RECIPROCAL LOVE

Asking for a non-preconceived opinion of what he was going to say, Institute director, Ira Sandperl described non-violence as "the political word for love."

"Using the Ghandian derivation of the word," said Sandperl, "love is when you honestly, unconsciously, unaskingly give yourself in every situation. We're terrified to give this gift without a guarantee. Out of fear and mistrust of each other we justify violent means whereas in a non-violent goal the means is what determines a peaceful end."

PEACE STEPS

Mr. Sandperl outlined what being non-violent meant with three steps:

1. Resist anything you believe to be evil (ie. violence which is described as violating human beings bodily or psychologically).

2. Prevent evil by organizing political, social, economic methods to stop people from resorting to violence.

3. Never oppress or use any form of violence. Never be submissive to what you feel is wrong but never retaliate to force with force.

WHITES THE CAUSE

Black Power is "a despairing cry of a people who have dispaired of a white society they've seen as ultimately violent," described Mr. Sandperl.

"Black Power is vindictive, yes, and violent but piddling compared to white viciousness. The need is for the intelligent of both sides to come together without violence," he continued.

VIET VIOLENCE

"The war in Vietnam is a lead to violence, not that we need it," says Sandperl.

We try harder.

We try harder

Unlike those rent-a-car people, we don't have to worry about the competition. But that's no cause for complacency.

So we try harder to put out a better edition of EL GAUCHO than the last one. Our conscience gives us no rest.

To do this, we need people. Lots and lots of people.

Unlike Avis, we won't give you clean ashtrays. Ours are never empty. But the editors are always happy to give you gas. At the parties, you get a tankful.

And if you're around for a while we'll put you in the driver's seat.

Student-staff Relations...How Much--How Good

The large question arising out of Berkeley and the Roy King case at UCSB is this--just how important are relations between students and administrators? Cal's Chancellor Heyns is looked upon as a reasonable man who generally succeeded in keeping the peace, but during the recent Berkeley crisis his statements to the press sounded incredibly naive, out of touch with ACTUAL student demands. He announced, for instance, that he would not negotiate with non-students, although non-students were hardly the major plaintiffs--it was the students, yea verily the ASUC Senate who were griping.

What Heyns said was symptomatic of the generation and communication gap existing not only at Berkeley but on this and other campuses. That gap, we think, is evident at Santa Barbara in the forced resignation of Roy King.

King's efforts as an adviser in the Letters and Science Scholars Program were enormously successful; he feels the Program's very success was the cause of his downfall, forcing an administrative exercise of power to decrease contact. It all goes to prove, perhaps, that the administration doesn't want to have close relations with students.

In other words there occurred a switch in policy, which was ill-timed as well as unexplainable. Why take away something good which had just barely begun? Might not part of the answer be basic insecurity of the administrators involved? Let's see:

● Despite Dean Aldrich's obvious and successful attempts to get sociable Roy King out of the Program, the former insists that student-staff social contact is not in disfavor. Word and deed conflict.

● Letters and Science Dean Cressey did not come to the defense of King, yet he valiantly affirmed the value of student-staff contact. He, too, defended contact as a theory, not as a striking reality. He even affirmed the desirability of continuing the Program, but he wouldn't back up the man most dedicated to that continuing ideal.

What we gather from all this is that a couple of administrators are putting us on. If they really object to the way Roy King talks and dresses, then they should apply themselves to weeding out all the eccentrics in the administration. Such a purge would, of course, leave UCSB without an administration.

Obviously Roy King has suffered differential treatment; personalities have impeded personalization in the administration. But this has also hurt many students who looked to King with respect and to the Program with thanks. Now they have lost a friend and a place of refuge in an academic maelstrom. Whose fault is it? Well, just some people who said they were for the student, but turned out to be for themselves.

They had no right to let personal hang-ups get in the way of the job.

I.V. housing

Dear Supervisor Grant:

I was appalled to read about your proposal against future on-campus housing at UCSB. The rationale you gave for your proposal was the fact that there are over one thousand vacancies in the supervised housing in Isla Vista and about five hundred in assorted apartment buildings.

Do you really feel that the present situation is caused by unfair competition from the University? Have you been to Isla Vista recently? I think you should come and inspect and compare the differences between supervised housing on and off campus.

With one or two notable exceptions most supervised housing is poorly designed, often both shoddy and inadequate, built by speculators interested in a quick return on their investments.

I call your attention to El Colegio Hall -- the first supervised housing unit built in Isla Vista. It opened in 1959 and was condemned as supervised housing in 1964. The building, scarcely seven years old, is literally falling apart; its walls are cracked, and the water pressure is low, among other problems.

Originally there were four girls to an apartment, at about fifty to sixty dollars a piece. Two of the girls had to sleep and study in the living room-kitchen area.

House of Lords is another example; it was condemned before it ever opened. It is plagued by leaks; the place is noisy, the walls are extremely thin and sound echoes through the courtyard. Inside the courtyard the building resembles a cell block, with endless rows of windows and doors. Outside it is one of the ugliest and most depressing places I have ever seen.

There is more than the law of supply and demand at work in Isla Vista. The private supervised housing generally offer fewer services for more money, are poorly built, are noisier, and are farther from campus and the mainstream of activity.

The unsupervised housing can make it on its own merits. Most students do not stay more than a year in the residence halls and they surely do not move into supervised housing off-campus. As the university continues to grow the surplus will be absorbed quickly.

I invite you to tour Isla Vista with me and talk to some of the residents of these halls and compare conditions. If you and the board are really concerned about Isla Vista, I think you would pass stricter zoning and building laws, encourage the installation of sidewalks and street lights, and somehow make it more profitable to build beautiful, well-designed buildings.

The board should have acted ten years ago, but unless it takes some action soon Isla Vista will become nothing more than an expensive slum by the sea.

Please, Supervisor Grant, take an interest in the people who have to live in Isla Vista; the speculators and absentee landlords can and will survive.

Yours truly,
RAMON DE LA GUARDIA

Cal riots

To the Editor:

I read with utter and complete disgust in the 5 December edition of the "Stars and Stripes" newspaper, a headline article concerning the most recent of the entirely too frequent "student" demonstrations at Cal Berkeley.

These outcroppings of rebellion under the guise of reformation of the educational system, led by draft dodger and rabble rouser Mario Savio (who should return to where I last saw him, serving his country as a waiter in a Berkeley bistro), are merely demonstrative of the decadence of a select group of asocial carriers of portable umbilical cords who continually seek nourishment for their indefinable (sic) cause by demonstrating their ill-advised disregard and contempt for a university which has consistently provided them with what is unqualifiedly the finest educational opportunity in the free world.

It is unfortunate that a group of dissenters (whom (sic) in the majority of cases, are not students) are allowed to place themselves in a position such that their boorish actions reflect upon the reputation of the University of California, coincidentally, jading the public image of the innocent students who are quietly and legitimately availing themselves of the educational opportunities.

Further, it is nauseating that the presence of US Military recruitment personnel on a tax-supported campus should be cause for riot. Why not when a recruiter from IBM or Proctor and Gamble shows up?

It is gratifying to note that there have been no headlines about UCSB, and that you are continuing to exhibit your maturity by recognizing these juvenile and baseless demonstrations for what they are.

A better America

Hello Friend:

If you're as surprised to be receiving a letter from me as I am to be writing it, blame Bill Buckley.

I was talking to Bill just after Ronnie Reagan's terrific victory: "you should be happy too, Buckley," I said, "I'll bet you get a million new readers."

Bill laughed that laugh of his, and answered: "John, I wish it were true, but it just does not work that way." What did he mean? I would have expected that Reagan's landslide would have produced a burst of enthusiasm among conservatives all over America, and made National Review the hottest item on the shelf. I said, "explain it to me." And he did: "it seems you still have to go out and ask people, as individuals, to get results."

I laughed and said, "Bill, tell 'em old John Wayne is going to give twice as many Christmas gifts this year."

"Wonderful," said Bill, "but why don't you tell them yourself? I think it might be just the thing!"

Yours for a better America,
John Wayne

CARRIE NYE and Frank Langella take leading roles in the New York production of "The White Devil," which will be seen in a single performance at UCSB Jan. 14.

Circle-in-Square Theatre to perform 'White Devil'

Circle-in-the-Square Theatre of New York will bring its highly acclaimed production of John Webster's "The White Devil" to Campbell Hall for a single performance on Saturday, Jan. 14.

The 350-year-old play, performed in modern dress, is directed by Jack Landau and produced by Theodore Mann. Starring in the Elizabethan tragedy are Carrie Nye and Frank Langella.

Inspired by a Roman scandal which occurred circa 1573, the play was first presented at the Globe Theatre in 1610. The plot deals with the Medicis and takes place in Rome and Padua.

Mann, who produced "The White Devil," has devoted the past 15 years to presenting productions at the Circle in the Square and on Broadway. During this time, his name has been associated with more than 40 plays, including "Long Day's Journey into Night," "Strange Interlude," "Summer and Smoke," "The Iceman Cometh," "Desire Under the Elms," "The Trojan Women" and "Hughie."

Tickets for the 8:30 p.m. performance are available at the campus boxoffice and at the Lobero Theatre.

Cremean exhibit in UCen gallery

Sculpture by artist Robert Cremean is now on view through Jan. 31 in the University Center. The traveling exhibition is sponsored by the California Arts Commission.

Cremean is the first artist living in California to be honored by a one-man show under the aegis of the Commission.

The exhibition encompasses a time span from 1960 through 1965, comprising 21 works in wood mortise, laminated wood, bronzes and an 80 x 90-inch drawing. Height of the sculptures varies from 8 1/2 inches to 77 inches. Cremean's work in laminated wood is carved without the aid of power tools, and he does not make editions or duplications of his sculptures.

Book contest

Competition in the fourth annual Edwin Corle Memorial Undergraduate Book Collection contest has opened here, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Jean Corle in memory of her husband, Edwin Corle.

Four prizes, ranging from $150 to $50, will be awarded on the basis of collections containing 35 to 50 books, an annotated bibliography and an accompanying essay which may not exceed 400 words. Deadline for entries is March 24, submitted to Christian Brun, Department of Special Collections, University Library.

Each collection will be judged by its representation of a well-defined field of interest, the appropriateness of the books and, to a lesser extent, excellence in design and production.

COACH RICK ROWLAND's Gaucho swimming team captured first-place finishes in 10 of the 12 events to overwhelm Fresno State, 68-36, in a dual meet Friday, Dec. 16 at the Gaucho pool. It was the second victory in three meets for the Gaucho swimmers who compete against USC, Friday at Los Angeles. UCLA comes to the campus on Sat. with competition starting at 11 a.m. Jim Ranta of the Gauchos set a new UCSB 1,000 yard freestyle record in the Fresno meet, being clocked in 11:15.0 to break the old mark of 11:26.5 set earlier this month by teammate Terry Finucane. Dave Gray missed Ranta's mark by 1/2 second in last Saturday's meet against B.Y.U.

Barkey's cagers await league play, Kolberg stars in tourney

Coach Ralph Barkey's hoop club will open WCAC league action Saturday night against San Jose State with tip-off time 8:05 p.m. in Robertson Gym.

The Gauchos will go into the game with a three win-six loss mark, having just taken two setbacks after an opening round win in the WCAC Holiday Tournament in San Jose.

Behind the scoring of Howard Demmelmaier and Dick Kolberg the Gauchos upset Santa Clara 82-74 in the first-round action. The pair hit for 21 and 15 respectively.

In a see-saw thriller the next night, Pacific edged the Gauchos 75-73 with the lead changing hands 11 times. Kolberg paced the local quintet with 27 points. He also established a new tourney individual record for most field goals attempted as his 13 for 30 field goals statistic broke the old mark of 27 attempts.

WCAC HOLIDAY TOURNEY CHAMPIONSHIP

- Pacific 59 San Francisco 51
- THIRD PLACE
- Loyola 89 UCSB 72
- FIFTH PLACE
- Santa Clara 99 San Jose State 79
- SEVENTH PLACE
- Pepperdine 95 St. Mary's 81

Loyola outclassed the Gauchos last Saturday night 89-72 in the contest for third place. The Lions pulled into a 54-30 halftime lead and built it to 66-33 before the Gauchos could rebound.

WYOMING UPSET 86-70

In their last home encounter Barkey's hoopsters romped over highly-regarded Wyoming 86-70 before some 1,000 fans on Dec. 23. The visiting Cowboys were overpowered as five Gauchos hit in double figures with Kolberg leading the pack with 26 points.

UCSB jumped into a commanding 48-34 halftime lead and, with Kolberg pouring in 22 during the second half, the Cowboys became the second victims of the Gauchos, who had suffered four straight losses.

Two of the setbacks came on their eastern road trip when University of Buffalo's cagers hot shooting from the free-throw line enabled the Bulls to post a 64-58 win. Two nights later on Dec. 19 the St. Bonaventure quintet hit on 30 of 39 free throws and an 80-71 decision. The local hoopmen outscored the Bonnies from the floor, 28-25, but the gift tosses made the difference.

tournament title and conference championship in the same season, the other seven league coaches simply are not buying this at all.

The mentors point out that the conference is stronger throughout and has better balance than at any time in the past several seasons, and that any one of the other seven teams is capable on any given night of knocking off the Tigers, a fact that was not true last year.

With 16 basketball games remaining (14 league games) on the Gaucho schedule, the two big non-circuit clashes are against Lew Alcindor at UCLA on Jan. 21 and the USC Trojans on the home court Jan. 28.

ACE SCORER Howard Demmelmaier hit for 23 against Seattle in a 70-60 loss. The flashy guard scored 41 in the three WCAC tourney games plus 25 points in the two eastern encounters against St. Bonaventure and Buffalo. The Gauchos resume action Saturday at Robertson Gym when they battle San Jose State in the first WCAC league game.

Can Pacific snap jinx of tournament?

Comments about this and that from the West Coast Athletic Conference Holiday Basketball Tournament:

Favored University of Pacific won the championship for the first time, beating University of San Francisco 59-51. This not only is the eighth WCAC tourney to be held, but it also will be the last one. Almost all of the eight coaches would rather schedule intersectional games and also be free to accept invitations to some of the other big holiday tournaments around the country.

Coach Ralph Barkey plans to revive the California Winter Classic at Robertson Gym, first started by Art Gallon several seasons back, with 1968 set as the first year for the revival. Harvard already has indicated it will come in 1968, Rice is a strong possibility, and among the other 50 or more schools invited by the Gaucho mentor are Ohio State, Vanderbilt and Tennessee.

That 1968 season, with Northwestern and Tulane also lined up to play in Robertson Gym, promises to produce a whale of an intersectional home schedule. The California Winter Classic will be played at home in the even-numbered years, with the Gauchos hoping to compete in some of the big national holiday classics in the odd-numbered seasons.

Despite predictions by the northern California press that big and strong University of Pacific will become the first and only team ever to break the WCAC jinx and win both the

CAL CHARTER FLIGHTS

Summer 1967 Flights to Europe

Due to increased demands for regular commercial travel to Europe in the summer, A.S.U.C. has been having considerable difficulty obtaining aircraft for next summer's charter flights.

As of now we have scheduled the following flights (fares are approximate):

AIR	June 22, 1967	San Francisco to Paris	) $450
FRANCE	Sept. 13, 1967	London to San Francisco	)
TWA	Sept. 3, 1967	London to San Francisco	$210 (ONE-WAY)
TWA	Sept. 4, 1967	San Francisco to London	$150 (ONE-WAY)

Unless additional aircraft are obtained, the Cal Charter office ( 509 Eshleman Hall, Berkeley campus ) will not re-open until February 6, 1967 at which time sign-ups for the above flights will be accepted.

Cal Charter Flights are open to UC students faculty, and staff members. Spouses, children and parents residing in the same household may also fly to Europe on Cal Charter Flights providing they accompany the eligible student, faculty member, or staff member.

Chicago draft conference notes 'voluntarism' trend

CHICAGO, Ill. (CPS) -- Another skirmish in the battle over the draft briefly engaged the nation's attention Dec. 5-7. The 110 "experts" at a University of Chicago conference trundled out familiar alternatives and counterarguments, surprising observers only with the transient coalitions they developed.

Although no official consensus was resolved--conference coordinators insistently avoided anything that smacked of voting--several patterns seemed to emerge among the delegates.

Voluntarism became a roosting place for a whole aviary of doves, hawks, and even some eagles. National service proposals met with a similarly wide response. Both were overshadowed, however, by the enthusiasm which existed for several limited modifications of the present system, including abolition of the II-S student deferment and broadening of the grounds for conscientious objection.

Other proposals were presented, both singly and in their various permutations and combinations, including change in deferment policies, the lottery and universal military training. There were several brave attempts at synthesis, most notable that of Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), long a proponent of the lottery system.

Kennedy, arriving just in time for the last session of the conference, suggested that the lottery be combined with some form of national service which might include several elements of the voluntary principle. The Senator did not, however, elaborate on the details of such encompassing compromise.

The most revealing development for many participants was the wide support given to the idea of abolishing conscription altogether. Over half of the delegates, including many on both the right and the left, signed an informal petition endorsing the principle of voluntarism.

Milton Friedman, a professor of economics at the University of Chicago noted for his laissez-faire ideology, argued that the present system of compulsion has many effects which are "inequitable and wasteful and inconsistent with the principles of the free society."

Among these he included the push to stay in school when many men might want to be elsewhere and the underpayment of soldiers who could earn twice as much in civilian jobs.

To raise soldier's pay to a sufficiently attractive level has been estimated to cost between five and seventeen billion dollars, Friedman said, though he judged that the best estimate probably lies between four and eight billion.

He noted, however, that the present system involves high indirect costs, such as the need for training large numbers of new conscriptees in a system with high turnover. This expense would be cut with a standing professional army, Friedman argued.

Others objected to the fact that the conference was "given" the problem of supplying an army of from 2.5 to 3.5 million men. As one participant put it, to him it was like "entering a family debate on whether to go by train, car or airplane when one does not approve of the trip altogether."

One of the conference's most attentive participants was Brad Patterson, executive director of the National Commission on Selective Service, which has been studying the present system and possible changes since it was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson last spring.

Despite Patterson's insistence that the Commission's collective mind is still "wide open to suggestions," many conference participants doubted that the Chicago deliberations would have much effect on the Commission's January report.

The military, at any rate, was not impressed by the outcome. Col. Dee Ingold, special assistant to Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service System, said the conference had brought out nothing new and defended the present system as "the only one which could possibly fulfill all the needs of the armed forces in the country."

Clients lose out-- goes to scholars

Business firms across the nation traditionally send gifts to their clients at the Yuletide season -- usually something selected out of a gift catalog with a discount for quantity purchase.

A Santa Barbara County company has taken a new approach to this conventional business practice. Instead of an office gift, each of its customers will receive a letter informing them that the money usually spent for this purpose will go toward two scholarships to deserving students in Santa Barbara County to aid in the completion of their education at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

The Chancellor's Office at UCSB today announced that the First American Title Insurance and Trust Co. has pledged two scholarships as a result of the plan to channel the cost of business gifts into student educational benefits.

The selection of the scholarship winners will be made by the committee on undergraduate scholarships at UCSB based on academic achievement, financial need, and indications of future success.

Glenn Bellinger, vice-president and manager of the donor firm, said the scholarships will be given in the name of the real estate industry of Santa Barbara County to deserving county resident undergraduates.

Coast shoal to be nation

By GARY HANAUER
Staff Writer
Who ever heard of Taluga?
Nobody--until a group of Seattle-based developers unveiled plans to create an island nation atop a shoal about 110 miles west of San Diego.

Led by Jack W. England, attorney for the O.S.D.Co., a syndicate will spend $13,822,000 during the next twenty years in constructing sewers, a power system, government buildings, and a desalinization plant for the new nation.

INITIAL COSTS
More importantly, initial costs of more than $8 million will pay for transportation of rock and topsoil from Mexico to the now open expanse of ocean. At the present time, a buoy marks Cortes Bank, site of Taluga's location.

OBJECTIONS RAISED
While both the Coast Guard and Corps of Engineers oppose the plan as "a menace to navigation," legal means to enforce these objections, according to Charles J. Hoeppe, cartographer for the Coast and Geodetic Survey, are "limited."
He also explains that the new nation will consist of four basic entities: Cida de Pace, Cida de Aurora, Cida de Tirana, and Cida de Bonadventure. "It will only cost them $15.93 per square foot to build the more than 1100 square acre nation," adds Hoeppe.

SEPARATE ISLANDS
Each island will have a special purpose. "One, for instance, will be a freeport which may bring items such as French perfume for an inexpensive price," predicts the engineer. Three other islands will be a "manor resort, capital, and estate area." Building procedures are based on four separate phases, the first of which is a 20 acre base for building.

MANOR PHASE
Although the total project may take up to twenty years, "the estate manor phase can be finished in only two years," according to England's "Notice of Intent."
The syndicate, principals unnamed as yet, has revealed that they have been working on the plan for seven years. Yet, publicity of the scheme has only recently spread.

INVESTOR INTEREST
On Nov. 16, Kirkwood's yacht struck a nearby reef and sank. And Hoeppe notes that "after recent news articles our phones have been flooded by interested investors."
Apparently, only the international Continental Shelf Agreement governs the area concerned. If any nation can develop or tap oceanic resources in international waters, they may lay claim to the area.

England contends that "no law was found prohibiting the creation of a new entity or sovereign state."

Baez...

"It's a question of ends and means again. No matter how well intentioned you are with your machine gun, grenade or napalm, you're still torturing others to gain peace."

INSTITUTE PROGRAM

After giving their opinions which both said were open to challenge as they were personal, Miss Baez and Sandperl answered questions on their Institute.

Sandperl described the school as "one where everyone learns more of the meaning of living without violence, not a teacher-student education."

Miss Baez outlined the teaching as through reading books on all facets of non-violence from economics to philosophy, having seminars lead by Sandperl and various guests, and most important, meditation.

Says Miss Baez, "You can't force meditation, but you have the chance to let your mind slow down and clear perhaps. If you yourself can understand your thoughts more clearly and become more peaceful inwardly, it makes non-violence as a way of life less difficult."

Goodspeed--peacemaker

involved in accusations and counter accusations.

In an effort to mediate the conflict, Vice-Chancellor Goodspeed has reportedly kept many students from entirely breaking with the administration.

Goodspeed agreed that a restriction "tailor made" for King, especially designed to force a resignation, would be "rather underhanded and devious." However, he was unwilling to make any direct accusations. Instead he suggested there might be deeper reasons of which all parties concerned were unaware.

On several occasions, Goodspeed has told Scholar's representatives that he was interested in the outcome of the negotiations. The Vice-Chancellor has also promised to communicate scholars desires to the College of Letters and Science, in an effort to settle the controversy.
