New Plans for Sewage To Keep Coast Cleaner

By Ian White

The water at Rincon's famed point break, which exceeded bacterial pollution standards in 17 percent of weekly county tests last year, may be a little more enticing to surfers in the future as locals work to rid the beach of potentially harmful septic systems.

The State Water Resources Control Board approved a $425,600 grant May 18 to fund an environmental impact report for a sewer system in the Carpinteria area. The proposed system would replace septic tanks in Rincon, Sandyland, Sand Point, Pedro Lane and Beach Club Road.

"The majority of septic systems work quite well," said Steve Halsted, a member of the Carpinteria Homeowners Association, "but when you get into an area with a high population, especially in beach communities, the water that is supposed to be absorbed by the septic system is actually seeping out and polluting the ocean."

The Rincon area voted in August 2000 to create a sewer assessment district, but five homeowners filed a lawsuit against the CSD, charging that under California law an EIR must be conducted first.

"The sewer system could possibly have a negative effect, especially in the Chumash village in Rincon Point where there may be a lot of archeological artifacts," Mike said. "The EIR should be completed in three to four months and finished and reviewed by next year. It's a long process."

Steve Halsted, a member and former president of the Carpinteria Homeowners Board, said the Carpinteria community stands behind the switch to sewage systems.

Honoraria System, Budget, Rolling Lunch Passed at Meeting

By Angela Potter

It was out with the old and in with the new Wednesday night at the first meeting of the 2001-02 Associated Students Legislative Council, which included the swearing in of the new executive officers.

Before the new council could take office, the 2000-01 Leg Council voted on an unfinished business, including next year's budget. In 1 1/2 hours, the old Leg Council passed five bills and approved its honoraria and 2001-02 budget.

After four weeks of postponement, next year's budget was passed without any further discussion at Wednesday night's meeting. Major budget changes for next year include all around cuts in honoraria and funding for student groups.

Leg Council seconded to agree that the honoraria system needed to be changed.

Council Reviews Marine Sanctuary Changes

By Ted Andersen

After two years of attempted collaboration between local environmentalists and fishermen, plans to extend the Channel Islands National Marine Sanctuary are still floundering in a sea of uncertainty.

The Channel Islands Sanctuary Advisory Council received a recommendation from the MRWG, created by SAC to engage additional experts and community members in the issue, offering a limited recommendation to the council. The recommendation listed an agreed-upon set of ground rules, a mission and problem statement, issues of concern, and goals and objectives for reserves and implementation recommendations. However, MRWG failed to come to a consensus on a singular spatial designation.

New UCSB Website To Act as Sex Reference for Visitors

UCSB students waiting for a response from Ann Landers or Abigail Van Buren can get instant answers to their sexual questions with a new website launched by sociology students.

Students have been working on a virtual "sex encyclopedia" for the past two quarters with John and Janice Baldwin, sociology professors who teach Sociology 152A, a popular human sexuality class at UCSB. The new website (www.ucsb.edu/soc/sexinfo) will be launched today and will include information on a variety of topics relating to human sexuality, including contraception, sexually transmitted diseases, abortion and sex in the law and news.

John Baldwin said the website was designed entirely by students for the purpose of educating the public regarding issues surrounding human sexuality.

"When Janice and I went on vacation over Winter Break, we discussed how we could put Soc 152A on the Web so everyone could have access to the information we cover in class. Soon after that we created a new class, Soc. 152C, which became responsible for designing the sex info website," he said. "Now we have about 12 to 15 students regularly working as a team to make sure accurate sexuality information is available to anyone who wants to know.

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a dozen Democrats joining in, the Senate passed an 11-year, $1.35 trillion tax relief package Wednesday that makes the largest tax cut in two decades and matches the greatest power shift in Congress since President George W. Bush has been pushing since his campaign for the White House.

House and Senate negotiators immediately began meeting to work out a final compromise, which Republican leaders are scrambling to get on the president's desk by the end of the week.

"Now, we go to the final stage," said Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, (R-Miss.).

The Senate voted 62-38 to pass the bill, the biggest tax cut since President Reagan's in 1981. All 50 Senate Republicans and 12 Democrats voted in favor of the measure.

Bush said at the White House that those 62 senators "would have every reason to thank and praise," and urged Congress to reach a final accord. "Our economy cannot afford any further delays," the president said.

"I don't think there's much of a cloud over this tax bill," said Sen. Max Baucus of Montana, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee and chief co-sponsor of the bill.

The Senate also approved measures that would make a 7-year phase-out in the estate tax and a still bigger cut in the alternative minimum tax.

The bill includes the core components of Bush's original 10-year, $1.6 trillion tax cut plan but faces repeated calls for a return to the marriage penalty by millions of two-income couples and doubling of the $50,000 child tax credit, which would otherwise expire in 2004.

Under pressure from Senate moderates, the Senate bill differs markedly from the Bush and House plans, mainly in ways that shift more of the benefits to low- and middle-income people. The Senate bill would reduce the top income tax rate to 35 percent, instead of 33 percent, and gradually phase in all the income tax cuts by 2007.

The Senate bill also would permit millions of low-income people to claim a portion of the child credit, boost contribution limits for IRAs and stock options, create a new, retroactive 10 percent tax credit for the first portion of every taxpayer's income.

Jeffords, 67 and a veteran of nearly a quarter-century in the Senate, said he became an independent one day after a private Oval Office meeting in which he told President Bush he was no longer comfortable in a party that has become steadily more conservative.

"I like being chairman," said Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), who presides over the Commerce Committee. He said Jeffords' retirement was a huge shift of influence in the federal government.

Party sources say in Senate history that a change that terminates one party's majority is unprecedented.

"I am the leader in the Senate," said Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), who presides over the Commerce Committee.

"It's about controlling the legislative agenda... and it's about the federal judiciary," said Sen. Bob Torricelli (D-N.J.) "This is an enormous shift of influence in the federal government.

Do you think IVTV is too graphic?

"Yeah, but we like it."

"It's sad that they have to exploit women for ratings."

"If you're going to do a show about a town like this it's going to have to be graphic."

"I heard about the feeling thing, and that seems a tad too graphic."

"I think it's pretty realistic of what goes on in a college campus."

"I don't think it's a question of being too graphic. It's a matter of free speech."

who has questions.”
An integral part of the website is an interactive feature that allows people to ask any questions they may have about human sexuality. Students of the Soc. 152C class will research
the questions and then post answers on the website.
Each student chose a topic of interest and then researched it. The results of the students’ research are posted on the website, which Janice Baldwin said could have international implications.
“They divided up the many topics we could cover, and each student picked one topic to specialize in,” she said. “This is a student-created project, and it is continuously building on itself. It is valuable knowledge that lives. When it comes to building on itself. It is very important part of the entire project.
“We have several hundred pages of information
right now, but there’s no way we can cover it all. It’s fairly complete as it is, but we’re constantly adding and changing information
as needed,” he said. “We’re really hoping for interaction with people by them
-mailing us their questions. That way, we know what else we need to cover,
and we can provide a forum for people to learn from each other.”

The website will include a section on popular myths regarding sex
and also a quite section where people can test their knowledge about human sexuality. The new site also features links to other websites that contain sexuality information. Visitors to the site can play the “catch the sperm” game or find out if the “pull-out”
method is an effective means of birth control. Sophomore business economics major Jennie Hoffman said the information on the site will let browsers know they are not alone in whatever
questions they have.
“I did a lot of the information on painful intercourse for women, and women need to understand that other women have this problem too and that there are things you can do about it,” she said.
“It’s a very informative yet very interesting site. It’s good information for any age group, from teenagers
up through older adults,
and even parents would be able to check it out with their kids. The website shows people what their sex life can and should be like.”

The students contributing to the website are responsible for making the project feasible, John Baldwin said.
“The only way to dispel all the myths relating to sex,” he said, “is for people
not alone in whatever
questions they have.

It's nice to finally know how much President George W. Bush's promises about bringing integrity back to the Oval Office were worth: $23.9 million.

Tuesday night, the president helped set a fundraising record for the Republicans Party by hosting a black-tie bash at the National Guard Armory. Tickets cost $1,500 for individuals and $20,000 for corporations. Attendees, needless to say, were encouraged to give more. They did.

Before the dinner, Cabinet members sat down with "eagle-level" donors, patrons who donated more than $15,000. Donating corporations included Phillip Morris (tobacco), Bristol-Myers Squibb (pharmaceuticals), the National Beer Wholesalers Association (booze), Capitol One (credit cards), AT&T (telecommunications) and PepsiCo (sugar and fast food).

After the chitchat, more than 2,000 donors sat under red, white and blue lights, dined on Key lime pie, apparently, is different. I am writing this letter in response to Adam Bradley’s letter concerning abortion (The Reader’s Voice, “Basic Scientific Knowledge Supports Fetal Rights Act,” May 14). I will in no way deny that the zygote is a living organism by the definition of mitosis. But just because an organism undergoes mitosis does not mean that the zygote is alive in human terms, that is, it does not possess a consciousness. All living organisms undergo mitosis, including plants, viruses, bacterium and even the diseases of our generation. The result of unregulated mitosis is a living, breathing, thinking being. I see no need to deny the existence of a potential life, because the potential life neither has the yolk nor the contents to develop a body and be considered a person. They are not. I know from experience that I myself am a twin and can tell you that we are quite different. This should provide further proof that before twinning, the zygote is not yet what can be called a person. One must also remember that during the early stages of the first trimester a high percentage of zygotes result in natural abortions due to mistakes in DNA replication. It is not just the woman whose life will be impacted, but also the state would impose upon the potential person dependent on the mother? They are not. "Myself and the majority of the community are delighted that this project is back on track. We had previously voted as a majority to go ahead, but the lack of funding for the EIR and a lawsuit that is now defeated were holding things up," he said. "Now that we've got this grant, we can take this major step for the coastline."

Santa Barbara-based environmental group Heal the Ocean and local homeowners collaborated with the CSD to secure funds for the EIR. The grant comes from Prop 13, which sets money aside for clean-water programs.

The #1 UCSC baseball team left Santa Barbara at the end of the NCAA Regionals, and the Big West Conference made sure the Gauchos didn't go away empty-handed.

After one of the finest seasons in Santa Barbara history, UCSC Head Coach Bob Brontsema was named Big West Coach of the Year for guiding the Gauchos to a 39-15 record and a #2 seed in the NCAA tournament. The Gauchos also placed nine players on either the First or Second All-Big West teams, which is the conference announced Tuesday.

Brontsema has now been named Big West Coach of the Year twice, the first time in 1996. This season, Brontsema has led the Gauchos to the top 25 of three national polls and into the NCAA Tournament for the first time since the 1996 campaign. Brontsema now owns a 215-206 record in eight seasons at UCSC.

Of the nine All-Big West selections, five Gauchos made the first team: senior shortstop Chad Peshke, senior third baseman Dave Molisho, sophomore Los Angeles Skip Schumaker, sophomore right fielder Ryan Spilborghs and junior pitcher James Garcia.

Both Peshke and Molisho are repeat All-Big West selections. Peshke, who has started in all 208 games since his freshman year, enjoyed a huge final season at UCSC. The second baseman hit .389 with 18 doubles and 50 RBIs. Molisho nearly matched Peshke's numbers, hitting .387 on the season with 10 fingers and 65 RBIs.

As Santa Barbara's head coach, Schumaker was expected to get on base consistently and he didn't disappoint. Schumaker led UCSC with a .395 batting average, 19 stolen bases and 94 hits on the season — only six short of the school record.

The other sophomore of the group, Spilborghs, may be the most exciting selection of them all. Hitting out of the ninth hole, "Spilly" finished the season hitting .368 with 10 doubles and 39 RBIs. Spilborghs also carries a school record 33-game hitting streak into the NCAA Tournament.

The selection of Garcia to the first team was anything but surprising. The Gauchos' ace finished the year with a 10-2 record and a 2.63 ERA. Garcia also struck out 105 batters in 116.1 innings pitched. In addition, Garcia led UCSC with five complete games, and opposing hitters hit only .222 on the season against the righty.

Four Gauchos were also named to the All-Big West second team: junior first baseman Tyler Von Schell; junior left fielder Jed Stringham; senior designated hitter Mike Kolbach and senior hurler Rylie Ogle.

Von Schell enjoyed a monster year in his third season at UCSC. "Bomber" hit .315 with 61 RBIs and broke the school record with 18 round-trip- pers. Von Schell also finished with 14 doubles and 47 runs scored. Stringham, a junior college transfer from Utah, finished with an .386 batting average and was second on the club with 13 long balls. Stringham knocked in 48 and came around to score 37 times.

Kolbach, who was named Big West Player of the Week for his performance against Sacramento State, hit .367 on the season and finished with 24 RBIs.

Ogle, the Gauchos' #2 starter, married Garcia with a 10-2 record, but came in with a slightly higher ERA of 3.65. Ogle also finished second to Garcia with two complete games.

UCSB will be looking for the continued performance of all of its players this Friday against Florida International in the first round of the NCAA Tournament. The two squads will square off at 3:50 p.m. with the victor facing the winner of the Notre Dame vs. University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee game.

— Matt Heinzer

Larry Brown is finally vindicated. After years of toiling with mediocre NBA clubs, including the Clippers and Pacers, among other teams, Brown has finally stopped his nomadic wanderings. And at one place, Brown has succeeded, having winning records in 25 of his 30 years as head coach. Brown has the uncanny ability to turn teams around, and he has finally decided to stay in one place rather than bolt for greener pastures. He has become a necessary ally to Allen Iverson and taken nondescript players such as Allen McKie, Eric Snow, Tyone Hill and Jumaine Jones to play to their potential, without question. And of course, Dikembe Mutombo is the missing piece of the puzzle.

— Toronto Raptor Vince Carter has quickly become the most dynamic player in the NBA, second to none. An improved outside shooter, a scintillating slasher and an intense mind-frame have made "Vincey" an incredible force. When he went to his graduation ceremony at North Carolina, Carter was solely lambasted by his teammates, coaches and the media. Yet Carter did not even mince a practice, workout or tape-session, and was in Philly hours before the tip-off of game seven.

Even if he missed a practice, Carter was able to experience an important event in his life, something that no NBA playoff game can diminish. People will remember Carter for completing his degree quickly after leaving for the league early, not about his absence from the Raptors for a couple hours before a big game. Carter did the right thing and he should be applauded for his actions, not scolded.
