Crowds Gather to Sneak a Peek at Doomsday Exhibit

BY RYAN ALTOON
Staff Writer

UCSB looked to be preparing for the apocalypse Friday afternoon as escape pods and radiation suits appeared to the delight of hundreds of curious bodies. Had this been the end of the world, shrieks of terror might have issued forth from the attendant throng. However, the parade of nuclear-age oddities drew nothing but oohs and aahs, culminating when the artist responsible for them made a personal appearance.

The University Art Museum is currently showcasing the work of Japanese artist Kenji Yanobe. Friday's opening kicked off his tour of the United States, which consists of only two shows — one in San Francisco and the other here at UCSB. University officials are pleased to have scored such a coup.

"It was surprising that others didn't act on it," said Elizabeth Brown, chief curator of UCSB's University Art Museum. "[Yanobe] was offered to us. This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. He is an artist of the next generation."

Yanobe's most recent work, titled "Last Amusement Park of This World," premiered at the exhibit and is the result of the artist's travels in Chernobyl, Russia.

"Chernobyl is one of the symbols of the destroyed future," said Yanobe, who visited one of the ghost towns of Chernobyl in June of 1997 armed only with a camera and his "Atom Suit." The photographs illustrate his experience through translucent back-lit glass framed in stainless steel.

Yanobe credits his inspiration to memories from his youth in Osaka, Japan, where he saw several futuristic pavilions. "I felt like we were the only surviving people after the future. It was not only a sad feeling, but it was also exciting," he said.

So many eager visitors bombarded the museum in anticipation of Yanobe's appearance that a line formed outside the doors, stretching beyond the museum's courtyard. Once inside visitors are transported to the post-nuclear age, which offers a technical "civilian" solution for day-to-day life after Armageddon — even your dog can come along, as evinced by the matching man and canine diving apparel of "Yellow Suit."

"I think it's a spectacular show, and really fun," said Dean of Students

Weekend's Festivities Keep IVFP On Its Toes

BY ZACK MUSA
Staff Writer

9:07 p.m. The night began. I arrived at the Isla Vista Foot Patrol office and signed the waiver that released the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Dept. from being held liable should I get injured.

9:14 p.m. Surrounded by an entourage of four police officers, including one armed with a video camera to record certain arrests, we headed west on Pardall Road and then south on Embarcadero Del Mar to begin our survey of the evening's events.

9:15 p.m. Officers observed a young female carrying a case of alcohol to a waiting car in front of I.V. Market. The suspect, who was under the legal drinking age, allegedly carried alcohol from the clerk's counter inside the store to the vehicle after her 21-year-old friend made the purchase. The suspect was cited for a Minor In Possession of alcohol (MIP).

9:35 p.m. We arrived on the 6600 block of Del Playa Drive and staked out a place along the side of the road. Within seconds two males were detained by police for having an open container of alcohol in public. Both were cited for MIP.

"Somebody just handed this to me and said, 'Here, take this,'" was one excuse offered to the officers.

A third suspect was also spotted with an open container moments later. She was arrested after allegedly providing false information to police.

9:48 p.m. As the above suspect was being transported back to the Foot Patrol office, a male was spotted urinating on a house along the 6600 block of DP. He was cited for urinating in public.

10:17 p.m. We walked westward down the 6600 block of DP to investigate a party after a complaint was filed at the Foot Patrol office regarding the loud music. After a beer can was hurled at us we pulled back to an adjacent house and waited for five more officers to arrive on the scene.

10:25 p.m. The crowd, which was approximately 300 strong, booed and jeered as the small phalanx of law enforcement officers notified the DJ to shut the music down.

According to Foot Patrol officers, although there was still an hour and a half before the noise ordinance would take effect, a loud party can still be shut down if someone is willing to sign a complaint and make a citizen's arrest.

"I don't like it, basically," said

Swirling Winds Whip Up NorCal Blaze

OREGON HOUSE, Calif. (AP)—A 5,500-acre wildfire raged in the Sierra Nevada foothills Sunday, forcing thousands of residents to flee and destroying at least 20 homes and outbuildings.

The blaze was sparked at 2:30 p.m. Saturday when a motor home's generator shorted, officials said. By early Sunday, it had charred acres of mountainous wildland and wreaked havoc on the tiny Yuba County town of Oregon House, about 40 miles north of Sacramento.

The blaze was 20 percent contained by late afternoon, with full containment expected at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, the California Dept. of Forestry said.

Residents of 1,000 homes in Oregon House and nearby Dobbins — thousands of people — were forced to evacuate and were staying at packed schools in nearby Brownsville, said

It created its own whirlwind, and then everything was on fire.

— Joe Cardoza
business owner, resident

Carol Gibson, a CDF spokeswoman. She said they would not be allowed back to their homes for at least two days.

At least 20 homes and several outbuildings were destroyed, "but we expect that figure to go up," said CDF battalion chief Jim Hoffmeyer.

Among those forced to evacuate late Saturday was Joe Cardoza, whose small restaurant and auto shop in Oregon House were reduced to charred rubble. Also consumed were the three homes he owns.

"It created its own whirlwind, and then everything was on fire."

"It was just unbelievable," he said.

At Lake of the Springs Thousand Trails Park near Oregon House, some 250 campers fled Saturday night as the blaze neared the private campground.

Leonard Bridges, the park's owner, said some campers were reluctant to leave, but were ordered out.

"We didn't give them an opportunity to argue with us," he said, adding that the flames were licking at the driveway leading to the park's entrance when he left at 12:30 a.m.

Thirty trailers kept at the site were destroyed, he said Sunday.

Much of the rural hamlet, however, was spared, as the fire apparently bobbed and weaved with wind.

Not-So-Democratic Elections in Reunited City

HONG KONG (AP)— Hong Kong's lawmakers approved an election law Sunday that reduces the number of people who can vote, a change certain to weaken the democracy movement.

The Beijing-installed legislators voted 29-9 with 11 abstentions in favor of the new voting rules after an 18-hour marathon debate.

The Legislative Council Bill establishes the rules for May elections, the first to be held in Hong Kong since Britain returned it to Chinese rule July 1.

Debate over elections and the pace at which democracy should be introduced to Hong Kong marred Chinese-British relations during the last years of British rule and dashed hopes for a entirely smooth handover.

British Gov. Christopher Patten expanded the electorate for the last elections in 1995, but an infuriated Beijing disbanded the legislature when it resumed control of Hong Kong. It installed an unelected, provisional body, which is stacked with China supporters.

Under the rules approved Sunday, only 20 of the 60 seats will be directly elected by universal suffrage, 10 will be picked by a small electoral college, and 30 by "functional constituencies" representing business, professional and other groups.

The basic framework is the same as in the 1995 elections. However, the number of people eligible to vote for the 30 seats will be slashed from 2.5 million to fewer than 200,000, with votes going chiefly to heads of companies and professional organizations rather than their employees or members as before.

The legislative debate, which lasted until 5 a.m. Sunday, included accusations that some lawmakers were trying to amend the proposed election rules to increase their own chances of winning next year.

"Members of the provisional legislature are serving for their own interest," said Andrew Cheng, a legislator who lost his seat when China disbanded the elected assembly.

Michael Suen, secretary for constitutional affairs, had warned that amending the government's draft law might make it hard to hold the election on time. But after the law was passed with some changes, Suen said he would try to implement them.

Goals Not Necessarily Met as Welfare Deadline Approaches

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite a sunny economy and plummeting numbers of people on welfare, many states will fail this week's first big test of how well the nation's new welfare law works.

By Wednesday, states must show they have 75 percent of all two-parent welfare families in jobs or job training.

Yet a 50-state survey by The Associated Press showed fewer than half the states are confident they will meet the target. And at least 16 states admit they are certain to fall short. Many others remain unsure.

States that miss the deadline potentially stand to lose millions of federal dollars, although it's unclear whether Washington will levy fines. Many states are betting it won't.

This is just the first deadline. By 2002, states must have 90 percent of two-parent families, and half of all families, in work activities. "Work activity" includes a job, a subsidized position, community service, a limited job search or, for a small group, education and training.

By this week's deadline, states need only have 25 percent of their total welfare caseload working, a goal most states expect to meet.

Experimental Drug Program Finds Success in Switzerland

BERN, Switzerland (AP)— Swiss voters on Sunday overwhelmingly endorsed their government's liberal drug policies, including the controversial — but seemingly successful — state distribution of heroin to hardened addicts.

By a much bigger margin than predicted, nearly 71 percent of voters — 1.3 million people — threw out the proposal "Youth Without Drugs," which would have curtailed government programs for drug users.

The health ministry immediately announced that it would try to put state distribution of heroin to hardened addicts on a permanent legal footing.

"We will propose a change in the narcotics legislation to the cabinet as soon as possible," Health Ministry Director Thomas Zeltner told Swiss radio.

Until now, the state was supplying about 1,100 hardened addicts with heroin on an experimental basis.

Results of a three-year study released in July showed a big drop in crime among the junkies on the program, a huge improvement in their health, an increase in the number of those with steady housing and jobs, and promising signs that some would try to kick the habit.

Weather

Well, if you're reading this, then you somehow must have survived the drunken debauchery, widespread gluttony and general chaos of the first weekend of school. Either that or you're just waking up face-down in the gutter and this is the first thing you're saying good morning to after you've puked for the umpteenth time.

Even if you didn't or don't partake in the imbibing of frosty barley hops or such related Devil Juices, it was still a wild last few days. As I leisurely strolled to a friend's house Saturday night, I reminisced about some glory days in I.V., when DP was filled with the mellow sounds of Liquid Sunshine, Soil and countless other Dead-influenced rockers. Now it feels like a overblown all-ages rave. A sea of white visors to my left, big camo baggy pants to my right, and people of all walks of life dancing like coked-out banshees on their way to oblivion.

Don't get me wrong — I'm not dissing any scene at all. Our diversity is what makes the world go 'round. I just think as we get older, we notice different things. More later ...

Police Report

Who's the Man?!

On Saturday, Sept. 27, Isla Vista Foot Patrol officers encountered a male subject suspected of being in possession of alcohol on the 6600 block of Del Playa Drive.

"I noticed he was carrying a red plastic cup in his right hand. I recognized the cup as a common carrier for alcoholic beverages," reports state.

Upon being approached, the suspect attempted to dispose of his cup.

"[The suspect] turned away from me and threw the cup onto a grass lawn. ... [He] then turned toward me and displayed his empty hands. He said, 'I don't have anything,'" reports state.

In the process of writing a citation, the officer reported that the suspect was not cooperating.

"When I started to fill out the cite, for a third time, [he] continually denied the alcohol was his," reports state. "I told [him] that I did not appreciate him for delaying me of my duties. [The suspect] then said, 'Fuck you. I'll kick your ass. You don't know who I am. I'm da bomb.' When asked why he challenged me, he denied ever stating he was going to kick my ass. He said that he stated he was the 'bomb' and I did not know who I was messing with. I asked [him] what he meant by the bomb. He said the 'bomb' means the 'shit.' [The suspect] was then transported and booked in the county jail for challenging to fight, resisting a peace officer, and being a minor in possession of alcohol."

What's in a Number?

On Friday evening, Foot Patrol officers noticed a possible minor in the possession of alcohol on the 6500 block of Sabado Tarde.

Think Before You Drink, Dammit!

A Few Friendly Suggestions for Not Getting Caught

With the I.V. Foot Patrol having logged 67 arrests by 3:05 a.m. Saturday morning, it seems that many students need to be reminded of the things that will get them into trouble while they're out looking for fun. To that end, we've compiled a list of some valuable lessons to pass on to those of you interested in avoiding an altercation with a police officer. Although we do not advocate underage drinking, we accept it as something that does occur in college life, and so we'd like to advise you on how to party like a rock star ... and not get caught.

1. Preparation: When getting ready for your Saturday night DP crawl, do a little thinking before you get in trouble. Do not, repeat, do not bring your brand-new res hall mug. Certainly, it may seem like a good idea, not needing to worry about finding a cup, but please. These mugs, clearly marked with FT or res-hall logos, are a dead giveaway on the streets of Isla Vista. If you are walking down Sabado Tarde or Pasado with a res-hall mug full of beer (which, unbelievably, many students were doing this past weekend) you may as well just get a sign that says "Arrest Me for MIP" and pin it to your shirt.

2. During the party: All students should be aware that, according to the Public Intoxication Law, the definition of "public" is not limited to the streets of Isla Vista. If you are at a party on someone's front lawn, you can still be arrested for public intoxication, especially if the arresting officer has cause to believe you are a minor in possession of alcohol. Beware of that next time a drunken stupor entices you to yell out a vulgar comment at a police officer patrolling the streets.

3. Commuting from party to party: Many of the arrests that happen in Isla Vista do not occur in actual party settings, but rather on the commute from one keg to another. Although keeping one's balance and self-control after a few parties may be difficult, it is essential in avoiding an altercation with the law. When journeying from party to party, remember that things such as smashing beer bottles in the street, yelling and screaming, and hurling oneself on every member of the opposite (or same) sex might just cause police officers to question your sobriety.

4. Respect your fellow revelers: It probably shouldn't astonish you to find out that the easiest way to get arrested is to tick off other partiers. If you're at a party with eight of your friends and think that being a bunch of bad-ass punks and trying to pick fights will win you the admiration of your fellows — give it up. They'll call the cops and they'll wave as you and your friends are escorted away. If you bring your mob attitude to a party, you'll see your popularity die very quickly.

5. When to surrender: It's always amazing to see those students who, when an officer begins the arrest process, never surrender. They think that they'll fight 'til the end. They don't seem to realize that police officers do not have (and will not spare) the time for an extended conversation. There is no use in arguing, lying or trying to throw a tantrum. Your best bet is to say "yes, sir" a lot and be honest. If your rights are being violated, go ahead and file a complaint — later.

Yes, college life in I.V. can be a lot of fun — but handcuffs and holding cells aren't anyone's idea of light entertainment. Keep an eye on your friends and a short enough leash on yourself and you'll be able to enjoy your well-earned hangover in the privacy of your own home — not the drunk tank.

DIVER SAFETY: A LESSON WELL WORTH LEARNING

Editor, Daily Nexus:

On the weekend of Oct. 11-12, the fourth annual Dive Rescue Workshop will be held here in Santa Barbara in memory of my brother, Nejat Ezal. Nejat died in a free-diving accident on April 23, 1994. He was 25 years old. He was working toward his Ph.D. in marine biology at UCSB and was a member of the UCSB Dive Club. Nejat was also an advanced scuba diver, a dive master, a UCSB research diver, an assistant instructor, and, at one time, an intercollegiate swimmer. Needless to say, he was experienced and had the necessary physical stamina to undertake even the most strenuous of activities. Nonetheless, he was unable to pull away from nature's grasp when his very life depended on it.

The purpose of the workshop is to provide information and training to divers so that what happened to Nejat does not happen again. Some 300 divers, including myself, have already completed the course in the past three years. The course covers diving safety, medical aspects of diving, dive accident management, ocean and pool rescue skills, and helicopter evacuation.

Like last year's event, an actual Coast Guard helicopter rescue and evacuation demonstration will take place off Leadbetter Beach on Sunday, Oct. 12 at 10 a.m. You should come to watch this demonstration even if you are not enrolled in the workshop!

The cost of this event is $55, or $45 if you are a member of various local dive groups. A course of this type would normally cost as much as $250. All of the money raised goes toward the Nejat Ezal Fellowship funds here at UCSB and at SBCC. The fellowships provide some monetary assistance to graduate students doing research in the marine sciences and to outstanding student divers.

If anyone is interested in attending the workshop, or would like more information, please feel free to contact Ed Stetson at 687-4771 or myself at 685-0058. Informational fliers are also available at the RecCen.

The workshop will host over 30 instructors and lecturers and approximately 100 students. Needless to say, an event of this magnitude requires an extraordinary amount of organization. On behalf of my parents, and Nejat, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Ed Stetson and Don Barthelmess for organizing this event, and all of the workshop instructors and volunteers, including the U.S. Coast Guard, for their participation and promotion of the workshop. They have all done a fantastic job!

Yonie Harris, who attended the opening. "I'm thrilled because it's attracting so many different kinds of people. These are the best toys around."

"Yanobe's work seems to have brought life to the pages of Japanese comics, which is one of the sources of his inspiration," Brown said. Yanobe finds ways of dealing with what we are all afraid of and that's why people are so interested, according to Brown.

"His work deals with emotions, issues and feelings ... they're wonderful to look at, yet terrifying," she said.

Each room of the museum plays on different phases of his doomsday theme. Tentacles of railroad track lay on the floor, each set leading to its focal point, in Yanobe's "Survival System Train," the exhibit's centerpiece.

To the delight of onlookers, Yanobe activated two of his pieces toward the end of the show, "Survival System Train" and his most recognizable piece, "Foot Soldier

Key
If you answered mostly ...

A: Surprise (not really), you are a freshman. Full of ideals and hopes which in the coming months will turn into despair and eventually apathy. Happy trails.

B: You're probably a sophomore. Smarter than a freshman, or so you think. You may have one year under your belt, but live and learn, baby!

C: You are beginning to get the idea of what college is really about: all-nighters, happy hour, Tuesday nights at Woodstock's and Thursdays at IVBC. You're lucky if you even go to class the next morning.

D: Congratulations, your answers reflect the grades you're getting by now. But hey, cheer up, D means degree. Guard your knowledge wisely, my child. It is not to be taken lightly.

POLICE

"I walked back to [the suspect] and asked his age. He said '21.' ... Believing he was trying to deceive me, I asked again for his age. He then stated he was 23," reports state. "When I asked for his birthday, he said, 'July 11.' When I asked for the year, he would not provide it. I told him I needed the year in order to run a computer check to confirm his name. He then asked me, 'Does it really matter?'"

"While transporting [the suspect] to the Foot Patrol office, he told me his birthday was 7-11-73. I told him that does not add up to the age he provided, which was 23," reports state.

The suspect eventually revealed his birthday as 7-11-74. A computer check showed that he possessed a suspended California driver license.

"[The suspect] was then transported and booked in the county jail for possession of an open container of alcohol in public and providing false I.D. to a peace officer," reports state.

Just Plain Dumb ...

At the corner of Trigo and Camino Pescadero Friday evening, Foot Patrol officers encountered a subject who appeared to be in the possession of alcohol.

"When I approached the suspect, he disposed of [the] contents of the cup into the street. I checked [the suspect's] cup, which was wet inside with what looked like and smelled like beer. [He] had the strong odor of an alcoholic beverage on his breath. He had slurred speech, bloodshot eyes and unsteady balance. I tried to have [him] stand in place to check his balance and determine his level of intoxication. [He] said, 'I can't, I'm drunk,'" reports state.

WEEKEND

Brian Abellera, the DJ for Spin Sport Productions. "I thought they'd shut us down after 12 ... we had good, clean fun without any kegs, alcohol or drugs."

One disgruntled party-goer complained to police that one of the officers was too rough in breaking up the party.

"All I asked was what's going on and he pushed me," he said.

The subject continued to become increasingly quarrelsome and repeatedly refused to leave after officers warned him he could be arrested for public intoxication.

"Well, maybe I'm fucking drunk, but maybe I'm fucking right," he said.

After a short scuffle with two officers the suspect was handcuffed and arrested.

10:40 p.m. Officers observed one male suspect walking along the 6600 block of DP carrying a Francisco Torres mug in the upright position. Once contacted by police, the suspect inverted the mug and a large quantity of brown-colored liquid was dumped on the street below. The suspect was arrested.

10:46 p.m. One adult male from Santa Barbara was cited for having an open container in public on the corner of DP and Camino Del Sur.

10:48 p.m. One male was cited for MIP.

11:14 p.m. Three additional MIPs were issued at a party on the corner of DP and Camino Del Sur.

11:33 p.m. A 17-year-old male was arrested for MIP on the 6600 block of DP.

11:41 p.m. As we walked east on the 6600 block of DP, officers were hailed by two females "who complained of two males urinating on their driveway."

"I know of at least two other times [this has happened]... tell people not to pee in our driveway anymore," said junior business economics major Jennifer Ayer.

One of the suspects, who was in possession of several cans of beer, was arrested for MIP. A total of eight beers, including one can of Guinness, were dumped into the gutter by officers.

12:25 a.m. One male suspect was arrested for an open container along the 6700 block of D.P. The surrounding crowd threw several empty S.O.S. cups in our direction.

12:29 a.m. Officers observed two males as they attempted to push each other into the street. One suspect, who was wearing a novelty fish on his head, was cited. 12:35 a.m. One male was caught in the act of urinating on a tree next to a mailbox on the 6600 block of DP. He was cited for public urination.

12:55 a.m. Police encountered the individual with the novelty fish again and arrested him for public intoxication. His friend, who did not think it was fair for him to be arrested alone, offered to go in his place. Both were arrested and taken to the Foot Patrol office.

1:07 a.m. En route to investigating a noise ordinance violation, we encountered and questioned a male in possession of alcohol standing in the driveway along the 6500 block of DP.

"How old are you?" asked the officer.

"Twenty-one," replied the suspect.

"You're lying like a rug. How old are you?"

"Uh ... 22."

"Is that the story you want to stick to?"

1:10 a.m. A resident of an apartment along the 6500 block of DP was cited for violating the noise ordinance.

1:25 a.m. We return to the Foot Patrol office to fill out reports, process prisoners and facilitate their transfer to the Santa Barbara County Jail.

3:05 a.m. Scoreboard: 65 arrests, 23 of which were incarcerated at the county jail.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
BY LINDA C. BLACK

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Today is a 7 - There's more work coming in all the time. It's important that you do it, too. There's quite a bit of money involved. Delegate some of the other chores, but keep the authority for yourself. You have a great deal of energy, so don't worry about it. You'll get everything done.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Today is an 8 - Even if you have to work, you're in a good mood. There are a bunch of old, overdue assignments stacked up in the corner. Take care of those first. Some of the customers are starting to holler. Tell them it will all be handled as quickly as possible. Then, get busy!

Gemini (May 21-June 21) - Today is a 6 - You would rather stay home today. That's not happening. Work will go well, once you get into it. Convince yourself that whatever you're doing is important and interesting. A person who's usually difficult to get along with is in a good mood. Finish a job for a friend.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) - Today is a 9 - You're very good with details right now. And, you're lucky in love. If you've already got a sweetheart, pay attention to that person today. This evening is an excellent time to discuss a personal matter. It's usually not a date night. Make an exception to that rule.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Today is a 7 - You have plenty of financial pressures. What's more, your romantic partner is still being stubborn. Don't argue. There's going to be a little more freedom of movement for you soon. That will be good for the relationship. You do better when you're the person making the decisions.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Today is an 8 - Focus your concentration on earning as much as possible. Then, pay off as many bills as you can. Think how proud you'll be! The only problem with this scheme is that you're going to want to spend the money once you get it. It's not going to be easy to save, but give it a try.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) - Today is a 6 - The theme of the day is to get things cleaned up. Make sure everything is sent out, checked off, finished and done with. It's a pretty good day for starting new projects, especially the planning phase. A good beginning is very important. It quite often leads to success.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) - Today is an 8 - This is an especially good day to meet with friends and associates. You are very decisive and forthright. You'll be constantly surrounded by people who want to do whatever you request. This could also be true in romance, by the way.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) - Today is a 6 - Today is the same as yesterday, but in a different setting. You may be ordered to do something you don't think you should have to do. Don't be pushed around. Be forthright and honest about what you want. Hash this thing out so it's settled once and for all.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Today is an 8 - Go along with an older person's demands. You'll make everybody's life easier. Offer your opinion in a nice way. That's not easy for you. Your middle name is "Confrontational." You could learn something by being slightly tactful. It'll help you become more effective.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) - Today is a 5 - If you need to get a loan, put in your application. It's an excellent time to ask for a raise, too. If you're out to sell something, make sure you've done the homework first. You'll have to pass a test. If you're not sharp, you won't get what you want. But it's good practice.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) - Today is a 9 - Things are falling into place. Enterprises you launch now will be very lucrative. If you want to apply for a better job, move on it right now. Conditions are changing tomorrow. Talk to a person who lives far away to find an additional source of funding.

Today's Birthday (Sept. 29) - Tie up loose ends this year so you can leave the past behind. Start in October. In November make a loan to a person you can trust. Learn assertively in December and find the answer. A roommate tells you what you don't want to hear in January. Old friends and lovers are best in February. Make long overdue changes to a partnership in April. Have an old project finished by September and your dreams come true.
