GREEN DRAGON

By Sally Trinka

I just kept thinking, "It's too hot for coffee."

But all my platonic companions rave about the Green Dragon over on Mission Street in downtown Santa Barbara. They often converse about how amiable the atmosphere is — the people, the art, the floor. One of my male-friends, a graduate student from the Philosophy Dept., contends that his mind is crippled without a cup of java from the Green Dragon.

But it was just too hot for coffee. Nonetheless, I had to indulge myself. Much like Nietzsche, I believe self-indulgence is good for the soul — or maybe that's self-assertion. Nevertheless, I let go of my inhibitions, picked up a couple of my platonic companions and headed for this intellectual nirvana — ready to withstand the heat.

I walked in expecting to find the young minds of Santa Barbara deep in thought, fueled only by what we heathens refer to as coffee. Instead, I was delighted to discover that people weren't drinking coffee at all! It was too hot for coffee, just like I had thought! They were drinking iced tea — "tropical escape" iced tea flavored with kiwi and passion fruit. I was relieved to know that I understood this concept. And all this time, I thought I was out of the loop.

I stood there at the counter, staring with amazement at the tea when the woman behind the counter said with much pride, "I created it." It too was a work of art! I couldn't resist.

It was an incredibly wonderful experience. It was hot outside but we were comfortable and cool inside of the Green Dragon, sipping our tropical escape through flexi-straws. I felt somewhat betrayed by those who had failed to tell me that the Green Dragon offered this outstanding beverage. Maybe they felt that the experience would be too complicated to convey through words, that I would have to apprehend it on my own. But the surprises did not end there. Not only does the Green Dragon offer the most uplifting iced tea in town, but also they have delicious dishes that are worldly in both name and flavor.

I considered trying out the Ethiopian burrito, which is made with yellow peas and spices, but I'm really a bit more provincial than I like to let on (at least around my university-friends), so I stuck with what I knew and ordered the eggplant and artichoke heart lasagna. It came with a salad topped with caesar dressing. It was sinful.

My woman-friend partook of Buddha's garden, a rice casserole with peanuts and cashews. I'll definitely venture back again to try this dish, which was accompanied by salad topped with a Japanese vinaigrette.

This Green Dragon is truly magnificent. My friends were right about its atmosphere but they were incomplete in describing what it had to offer. This is not just a coffee shop. It is an intellectual escape.

The Green Dragon is located at 22 W. Mission St. in Santa Barbara. Open 7 a.m. until midnight every day. Phone 687-1902.

FOOD FIT FOR AN ELEPHANT

By Bunyan Valentine

Take hamburgers, for instance. Hamburgers with things like avocados, or mushrooms, and maybe with bacon, too. Hamburgers on a light bun, with thick french fries and ketchup. And a beer.

That, I say, is what America's all about. Hamburgers are down home American, I might say. They're real, true blue, dyed in the wool, 100% American, you might say.

And restaurants with well-padded booths and comfortable lighting. With free iced tea refills. And laminated menus. That's American too.

That's what makes this country great, I always say.

Sometimes you need to immerse yourself in it, you know, really steep yourself in something plush and authentic and most of all, American. Just take a deep breath and dive into the good ol' U.S. of A. That's when the Elephant Bar comes in handy.

The E-Bar, as those of you in the know call it, is just what you want from America, complete with thick carpets, a patio that overlooks the airport, a full bar, a safari theme and friendly waiters and waitresses who keep on refilling your iced tea.

The E-Bar, being American, does hamburgers up right. They're thick and juicy and covered in lettuce and tomato and onion and whatever else you might want. They've got the standard Santa Barbaran burger, as every good restaurant in the area should, with avocado on it. It comes piled high, almost too tall for your mouth, flanked by a pile of light, crisp french fries. It's American, by God, through and through.

RICK BESSEY/Daily Nexus

A tusk-ament to the E-Bar's "fun" atmosphere

But the E-Bar, being a really good American restaurant, does more than just hamburgers, of course. First off, there's the chicken sandwiches, which look a lot like the hamburgers, but without the meat. And then there's the fish burgers — crisp, tender, delicious. And then there's the vegetarian sandwich, which has more vegetables than you thought, and it's still so good. Maybe that's too many vegetables, you might think, reading the menu and sipping your iced tea. Actually, it's exactly right. Exactly.

And that's just the meals that come between two pieces of bread. The E-Bar wouldn't be a really good American restaurant (which it is), without a whole lineup of complete dinner dishes, the likes of which include fish tacos filled with Mahi-Mahi, or sizzling fajita platters, crackling and hissing on a hot plate.

All this, however, even if you were to eat everything else on the menu, would miss the whole point of E-Bar if you never had their artichoke dip. E-Bar is the kind of place where you ought to have an appetizer, where you might feel a bit out of sync if you didn't.

In this case, you have the artichoke dip. You could have the Cajun fried shrimp, and you'd be pretty happy, but what you really should be eating is artichoke dip chock full of tomatoes and spinach and swiss cheese and there must be at least three other yummy things in there. You grab one of their lighter-than-air tortilla chips, and plunge it into the artichoke dip, and then you close your lips over a dip that must have been brewed in a magic cauldron and blessed by angels. It's that good.

The Elephant Bar is located at 521 Firestone Rd. in Goleta. Open 11 a.m. to midnight Sunday through Thursday. 11 a.m.-2 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Phone 683-1714.

DON HO MIGHT WALK IN AT ANY SECOND...

By Dino Wayne Thorne

First, let's put to rest all those unfounded rumors that Chuck's of Hawaii is improperly named. There is indeed a Chuck's on the islands. It's located square in the middle of Honolulu, right beside Dan's House of Tiki Hair Products. Check it out for yourself.

Or don't, stay right here in Santa Barbara, and head down State Street to enjoy that same steak and seafood greatness without getting sunburned and sandy. The restaurant is here in our own backyard and though some might argue that Chuck's of Santa Barbara would be apropos, the exotic locale of Hawaii better fits the diner's mood setting and flavorful food.

Chuck's isn't just a restaurant, it's an evening. Get there about an hour before you want to sit down for dinner to take advantage of their bar and lounge. The area is the first indication that the "of Hawaii" moniker is well earned. The lighting is dimmed and the plants are tropical, and you half expect Don Ho to drop by with a serenade. Or Elvis in his Blue Hawaii, green and blue flower shirt, face-on-the-stamp-that-won days.

Go ahead, order a drink. The selections run into the dozens for all tastes. The wine list isn't so much a list as it is a short story, numbering 10 pages. The tropical drinks are quite pleasant and well-priced, and there's always Chuck's variety of beers for those looking for an ale to whet their appetite.

Some go to Chuck's for the steak, some go for the fresh seafood, but I go for the bread. Nestled between the shredded lettuce and ripe tomatoes at Chuck's famous salad bar are their homemade sourdough and wheat loaves, still warm from the oven and virtually begging for a pat of butter. Remember to exert some self-control, however, or risk committing a major Chuck's faux pas — you will eat so much bread that your entree will soon see the inside of a doggie bag.

Once you've made your way through Chuck's salad and bread bar, you'll find a

RACHEL WEILL/Daily Nexus

...or maybe Elvis, in his young, pre-Vegas days, singing on the white sands of Hawaii lineup of entrees, ranging from teriyaki steak to charbroiled scallops, waiting patiently for you. Every meal is cooked in front of your eyes, assuming your eyes are pointed in the direction of the huge broiler which sits behind the salad bar. Dinners are cooked to order and come with wild rice, though a baked potato can be added a la carte. Either way, the rice or potato will be simply a supporting player to the headlining entree.

For the discriminating diner, Chuck's offers dinners starting at just $6.95, unheard of in the steak and seafood business where the competition can get so rough restaurants may soon take to inventing new types of fish. But Chuck's is concerned only with a happy and well-fed patron, and isn't afraid to roll back the prices to accommodate.

This does not mean there is no room for the more expensive tastes. Chuck's serves filet mignon. Chuck's serves halibut. Chuck's serves marinated chicken. It's all there and it's all charbroiled. In addition, there are nightly specials which feature other seafood dinners and steak dinners, and some seafood and steak combinations. Even some seafood and seafood combinations.

It's the kind of restaurant that keeps its patrons coming back because there are simply too many tempting entrees to order in one sitting — unless you really want to, in which case I suggest you skip the bread altogether and concentrate on your meals. But to fully experience Chuck's, have a drink, butter some bread, make some salad, order an entree and enjoy yourself. There are diners in Hawaii doing the same thing.

Chuck's of Hawaii is located at 3888 State St. Open daily from 5 until 11 p.m., and on Friday and Saturday until 11:30 p.m. Phone 687-4417.

THIS IS NOT YOUR TYPICAL SPORTS BAR

By Alfonso Kelly

If you're anything like Monica, you like a meal with your game. You wouldn't believe her sometimes. She'll saunter home from work, stroll right past me, flip on the horizontal pipe and execute a full-court press on the plate of spaghetti I hand her. Not a word from her mouth until halftime or an earthquake of at least 4.0 magnitude. Incredible.

Used to be that she'd endure my cooking so she could watch the game at home, too.

"Sports bars," she would say, affecting that air of haute culture that I still don't believe, "are cold, noisy places with plastic lawn furniture inside and an army of drunks just waiting to fight." The idea of passable food in these places was too remote even to entertain.

Too remote, I should say, until we discovered Nicky's. This was a sports bar that challenged Monica's very notion of the term. Nicky's is quiet, cozy and comfortable but still has enough TVs to catch any tip-off on the air.

And the food.

Nicky's has a full menu of appetizers, sandwiches, salads and pasta. There's even a great wine list full of local vintages. That's right: A sports bar with a wine list.

And if you go, be sure not to miss Nicky's homemade sweet potato chips. You've never had anything like them, I suppose.

During a recent 'Blazers game, Monica had the rainbow tortellini — a surprising mix of spinach, tomato and egg pastas filled with thick parmesan and topped with a roasted tomato vinaigrette. That was a big plate of pasta, and with the hot rolls and the Bass Ale draft, she looked pretty well satisfied. The 'Blazers won, too.

I had the grilled chicken breast sandwich, which came on a superb whole wheat bun. The bun was crispy and it tasted rich. It was a bit dry and salty on the outside, but under the crust was a soul of soft warmth. The bun had that elusive, reassuring characteristic of fine breads. Perhaps you know the one.

On the patty of chicken was a molten treasure. Jack cheese? Yes.

While she chewed her tortellini, Monica gestured toward her mouth with her free hand and nodded, flashing me an "A-OK" sign.

"Funny," I thought. "Monica never gestures contentedly at her mouth while she chews at home."

One of the great things about Nicky's is the location on State Street, just a block from Santa Barbara's famous waterfront. That's a fine place to walk off your good-sized portions. We didn't go there, but you easily could.

Among Nicky's salad selection are such varieties as Caesar salads, chicken salads, spinach salads, grilled vegetables and a healthy dinner salad.

Monica had the dinner salad before her pasta, and she said she felt very healthy.

Does all of this sound expensive? NOTHING ON NICKY'S DINNER MENU COSTS MORE THAN $6.75.

Did you get that? NOTHING ON NICKY'S DINNER MENU COSTS MORE THAN $6.75.

Nicky's is so good, Monica won't eat my cooking any longer.

Nicky's Sports Pub is located at 217 State St. in Santa Barbara. Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. daily. Phone 963-6965.

Did you know... Hey! Hey!

Phun Phood Phact!

Many ancient cultures believed that coffee was best served with finger sandwiches, and shunned drinking it with pastries in the morning. It's true! Weird but true!

LOCAL COLOR Anaconda

Prepare yourselves for one hell of a show I.V.! House of Pain will take the stage next Thursday (April 15) at the Anaconda. H.O.P. is an all-Irish rap band coming at us our of Encino, California, whose beats are sure to keep the joint jumpin'. Opening for House of Pain will be the punk-rock sounds of Wool (previously known as Scream), so make sure you're there early enough to check out a little bit of each of these types of music.
