Power Outage Expected to Reoccur at Local Family Housing Apartments

A transformer failure and its resulting complications left Storke Campus Family Student Housing residents in the dark for nearly two days last week.

At approximately 1:45 a.m. Wednesday, the main transformer for the complex failed, leaving nearly 300 units, 1,100 residents, without power. Southern California Edison employees, along with University Housing Services, fixed the problem by 7 p.m. Wednesday. However, two secondary transformer cables failed soon after, cutting the power around 11:45 p.m. Edison was unable to replace the cables and fully restore electricity until Thursday at 10 p.m.

Individual units in Storke Campus Family Student Housing may experience hour-long outages today and Tuesday due to cable testing and replacement. The entire complex is expected to be without power Wednesday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. while the system is re-tested.

Donald "Doc" Stevens' Life Remembered by I.V. Mourners

BY DAVID DOWNS Staff Writer

The deep, somber echo of conch shells resounded through Anisq' Oyo' Park on Saturday afternoon in memorial of one of Isla Vista's most well-known homeless people, who passed away last week.

I.V. officials, students, local business owners and friends were among the crowd of more than 60 mourners who gathered Saturday to honor the life and memory of 46year-old Donald "Doc" Stevens, a homeless resident of I.V.'s parks for over 20 years. Bryan "Tennessee" Harrison opened the ceremony in the early afternoon with words about his friend of 12 years.

"Doc represented a lot of us. He wasn't an ordinary bum, none of us are ordinary bums," he said. "Me and Doc, we shared stories. We told each other about our loves, our griefs and our heartbreaks."

Those attending the memorial brought flowers and food, and shared memories of a man many described as always ready with a joke or a way to make someone smile. I.V. Market donated a keg to the memorial and several employees brought their own tribute - Stevens' favorite beer and cigarettes, Bud Dry and GPC 100s.

I.V. Market manager Brian Sullivan, a junior law and society major, remembered Doc as a subtly brilliant and remarkably humorous facet of life in I.V.

"He was the coolest. I've never seen that guy without a smile on his face," he said. "We'd give him any leftover hot food at the end of the night and he'd take it to the park and make sure everyone in the park had food. He didn't have anything, but no matter

Coastal Commission Approves Construction of Recreation Area for Santa Barbara Skaters

Proponents of a local skateboard park effortlessly ollied over their opposition

Rejecting an appeal by a group of artists and merchants dubbed the Waterfront Coalition, the California Coastal Commission unanimously approved plans for a skateboard park to be built on Cabrillo Boulevard near Stearns Wharf. According to City Parks and Recreation Dept. employee Billy Goodnick, the plan sailed through the CCC meeting without any problems.

"The city unanimously voted in favor of the park," he said. "At the [CCC] hearing, it was proved that the city had done their homework correctly."

Goodnick said constructing the park posed no major problems to waterfront

'The main point from the opposition was that the [skatepark] would hinder the view of the ocean. However, the topography of the area doesn't allow for a view of the ocean anyway," he said. "Also, the problem of parking was discussed. It was proved that there was significant parking for the area."

The skatepark will be constructed within the next year, according to

The construction of the park might be hindered by the summer tourist season, Goodnick said.

Student Health Services Offers Information on STDs

BY MATT HURST Staff Writer

Frequent parties, casual sex and lack of protection have spurred rumors of Isla Vista being deemed the sexually transmitted disease capital of California.

However, according to Student Health Services Educator Elizabeth Guerrero, these rumors are not true. Of the students tested at SHS alone over the 1998-99 school year, there were no cases of syphilis or human immunodeficiency virus (HIV).

The most prevalent STD at UCSB is the human papillomavirus (HPV), SHS Nurse Practitioner Beverly Lavenson said. HPV is a currently incurable viral infection that can cause genital warts and lead to cervical cancer in women, according to a Newsweek article in the Spring/Summer 1997 "Special Health for Life"

The other diseases most commonly found among UCSB students were chlamydia and herpes, according to Lavenson. Chlamydia affected 38 of the 1,722 students tested last year. It is important to detect the disease because the bacterial infection can cause pelvic inflammatory disease (PID) and infertility, according to Guerrero. Antibiotics are available to treat the infection, and need to be taken simultaneously by both partners to prevent re-transferring the disease.

Like HPV, herpes is a viral infection that can cause recurrent sores and complications during pregnancy. Currently there is no cure, but herpes

Bombs Shake Up Peace-Talk Tensions

NETANYA, Israel (AP) - On the eve of final status talks with the Palestinians, three pipe bombs exploded in an Israeli beach town wounding 33 people and raising questions about whether the Palestinians are able to control terror-

The bombs detonated simultaneously Sunday at 10:30 a.m. local time (3:30 a.m. EST) at an intersection busy with ice-cream vendors and automatic cash machines. Sunday is a work day in Israel, and most people run midmorning errands and take coffee breaks at that hour.

Police, blaming militant Islamic groups for the attack, said four people had moderate injuries, while 29 others had minor injuries. A fourth bomb was defused by a bombdisposal unit at the beach.

Dozens of Palestinians were arrested, but all were released before midnight. Police beefed up patrols on the border with the West Bank, which runs less than hawkish government in

Although the frequency of diseases at UCSB is not as high as rumored, Sociology 152A: Human Sexuality Professor John Baldwin offered four ways to avoid the sexually transmitted diseases that exist.

"Each year, you should keep the number of partners to a minimum," he said. "Use barrier methods, like condoms and foams. ... Don't get into sex at an early age. It's harder for children to fight STDs than it is for adults ... and, abstinence. It's perfectly fine to be a virgin in today's society. It's perfectly fine not to rush into sex with someone, because it

Baldwin urged students who contract a disease to visit a doctor's office as soon as possible. "People should treat it as any other medical condition, but they feel that they don't need to see a doctor because of the shame and embarrassment."

what, he was always giving to others." Cliff Boyles, a former Santa Barbara

Cliff Boyles, a former Santa Barbara City College student and former manager of I.V. Market, drove up from San Diego to attend the memorial. Boyles said Stevens would always have a smile as he sat in front of the market with a little horn, distributing copies of his homeless newsletter, "The Shoot Sheet."

"He was the friendliest, nicest guy around here," he said. "I'm really going to miss him."

"Guitar" Dave Doyle, a friend of Stevens and longtime I.V. park resident, said Doc's death was unexpected, as it was the third death in the last two months.

"We're dropping like flies out here. Rick and Randy died because of how they lived their lives, but Doc, man, Doc should still be alive," he said. "They called him a transient in the report but he's been a fixture here for over 20 years. He lived in I.V. longer than most of these kids have been alive. He lived, loved and did everything else here in I.V."

Plans are underway to raise money for a white oak, Stevens' favorite tree, and a plaque to be placed in Anisq' Oyo' Park honoring Doc's life, said longtime friend Dave Oldfield.

"We already have permission from Derek Johnson, the IVRPD director, to plant the tree. There will be collection cans at most of the local markets and coffee shops," he said. "It's going to cost about $500 to get the white oak and plaque, and any extra money will go into a fund at the I.V. Market so Doc's dog Tigger will always have food."

According to sheriff's reports, Stevens was found Tuesday afternoon in Tucker's Grove Park near the Santa Barbara County Jail. The coroner has not released an official cause of death, but it appeared Stevens was not dead for long when he was found at 2 p.m.

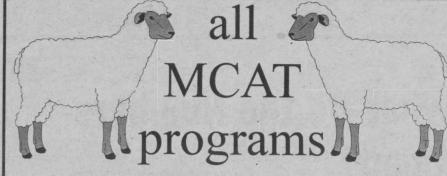

Many people questioned the circumstances surrounding Stevens' death. Oldfield said Stevens had been taken to the county jail the prior week for a bench warrant stemming from a failure to appear in court on a dog-leash misdemeanor. The coroner's report with an official cause of death will be available today. "I'm not concerned with the circumstances now; we'll be concerned with them later," Harrison said.

Tearful and quiet, Judy Hanson said in the three years she knew Doc she always saw him as very lovable.

"College kids, everyone was attracted to his kindness. When he passed away he took a piece of all of us with him," she said. "I'll miss his humor, and his kindness. He took care of all of us."

Donations to Doc's memorial fund can be made at I.V. Market, Mac's Market, Java Jones and other shops in I.V.

What Do the Numbers Mean?

Recent Grants, Rankings Raise Eyebrows About UCSB's Academic Goals

The University of California, Santa Barbara, finds itself ranked number 13 among public universities according to U.S. News and World Report, and number nine according to the Institute for Scientific Information. The university also announced recently that it broke the $100-million mark for research grants this year, thus aligning it with the top universities in the nation. But what do these rankings really mean? Do these evaluations by far-off publishers and institutions affect the average student's education at UCSB? The funding and accolades awarded to UCSB are nice, but the university and its acclaimed professors must ensure that meeting students' needs remains their number-one priority.

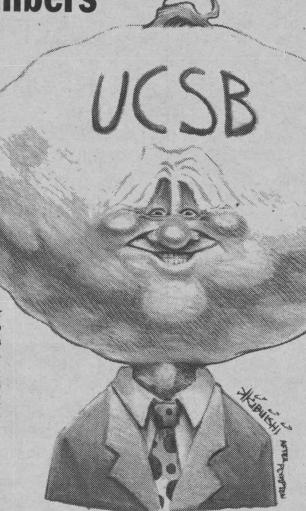

As funding at UCSB increases, so does the university's academic reputation. With a higher-profile reputation, the desire to attend UCSB also increases. Each subsequent year raises the bar for admissions; some upperclassmen find that they would probably not be admitted to UCSB today based on their high school grades and test scores. To illustrate: Five years ago, the entering class's average GPA was 3.45 with an SAT score of 1079, whereas now the average GPA is 3.69 and the average SAT score is 1179. When all is said and done, do we really need this increased reputation and funding? Many of the books used by professors here are the same books used by professors at Berkeley or other top-notch institutions. If professors are teaching the same material at these two institutions, and have similar > petition among students (more top students equals more competition for the top spots in the class). Do we really want to face increased competition among our peers if the material we are learning remains equal?

The university is paving a slippery slope. The increased importance of research directs emphasis away from teaching. To obtain tenure, professors are encouraged to participate in professional organizations and publish articles in prestigious journals. Faculty members are also evaluated every two to three years based on the amount and importance of their research. Without an equal or greater emphasis on teaching, professors will worry more about their national reputations and publishing records than whether their students are learning any-

While research may enhance a student's education, especially in the science departments, such research should not come at the expense of personal interaction with students. The students are here to learn, which can be a disadvantage for rankings-obsessed faculty and administrators. National rankings aside, the university should pursue whatever course will lead to the best learning environment for students.

Dwelling on Differences Leads to Division

Modern Notion of "Diversity" Is Harmful to Our Community and Betrays Liberal Intentions

JOHN BITTEROLF

Ever wondered why our generation lacks the kind of indignant fervor that seemed to fill the hearts and minds of students during the grand old '60s? What was it that ended that movement, that spirit of a decade that has since assumed almost mythological qualities?

Perhaps it's that there's really nothing left to argue about. Freeing Mumia sounds like a great idea and all, but doesn't it seem like all the really big fights for civil rights have already been fought and for the most part, won?

The struggle to provide more opportunities for minorities on college campuses, for example, has faired quite well since the '60s. One needs only to look around our campus to notice the accomplishments of our parents' generation. We are the world. We are the children. We are the faces of Many assume diversity to be the gift that has been bequeathed to us from that great decade. But what exactly is meant by "diversity"? Is that an accurate word to describe the spirit of yesteryear? Not quite. When its numerous connotations are examined, the term actually undermines the very dream of the '60s.

Now, I have no desire to attack particular programs that have promoted the idea of diversity throughout the years. Likewise, I don't possess the omniscience it would require to gauge whether this or that program has or hasn't been successful in its efforts.

So instead, I'm simply going to attack

The idea behind diversity is fundamentally opposed to the very aims of such programs. Yet what's more alarming is just how this whole notion of "diversity" is being played out by our generation.

When you hear the word "diversity" being used to make a point, you are supposed to believe that what is really meant is "unity." Unity — like the bringing-thepeople-together, Coca-Cola and Kodak 'proudly sponsored" kind. What you're actually getting with the word "diversity" is something like: "Let's dwell on the surface differences."

Needless to say, an emphasis on surface differences has been a major cause of discrimination for every generation. Since ours is a generation that (I like to believe) wants to live in peace and harmony with one another, a constant emphasis on our differences is a little frustrating, to say the

It's this frustration, coupled with the feeling that our parents have already solved our problems for us, that has developed into an attitude of hopeless apathy. This attitude has, in turn, spawned the masses of uninspired slackers roaming today's college campuses.

No, when someone talks about diversity, what you're really hearing is fragmentation, separation. I wanted to avoid using the word "segregation," but basically it's the same thing.

And when applied, what diversity really amounts to is a network of tiny factions so self-conscious and divided that they are rendered useless to make any changes whatsoever to society at large. The old proverb proves true: divided we fall.

Division abounds on this campus. There is a plethora the word "diversity." of so-called "cultural" and "ethnic" clubs and organizations that claim in their constitutions that they exist in order to promote diversity. No doubt they do, which is precisely the problem.

These are special-interest groups on our campus, just like any other club. Let it clearly be stated that, like any other club, these groups absolutely benefit the community at large by providing a forum for people with common interests to meet. What concerns me is that these groups receive quite a large portion of this school's attention and funding simply by spouting the word "diversity." Yet they are doing no more to bring people of different backgrounds together than does the greek system.

Diversity is not what the hippies had in mind. The word's ability to mislead us into thinking that we're an integrated community by cutting us up into small, innocuous pieces is the cruel joke of our time. Hence, diversity need never be sought out or promoted. Rather, we need to shift the emphasis from diversity to understanding among all people. Again, think melting pots and rainbows of skittles. Put simply, diversity is OUR enemy.

Am I looking into this term a little too much? Yeah, maybe. But if you think back to those great years of the '60s, you'll have to agree that a generation can and will be defined by simple terms and phrases. It's how the game of writing history is played.

I'm not the only one who has a problem with diversity. Case in point: This month marks the annual "Celebration of Communities." To the credit of its organizers, the word "diversity" and that misplaced ideology will not be a part of this year's festivities. On the contrary, the event will consist of a series of activities What concerns me is that these and talks intended for the exploration, United we stand, groups receive quite a large por- not definition, of tion of this school's attention various and funding simply by spouting within our society.

> This attitude is a step in the right direction. So why not attend one or more of the events this month? You'd be doing your parents proud. And who knows - you might discover that you have quite a lot in common with others on this campus.

Before things happen, before they are naked in bed with each other, they should talk about how far they are willing to go," she said. "I think that's the hardest part for people because they really don't know how to bring those things up with their partner."

SHS testing usually costs $30, and many, but not all, STDs can be diagnosed through urine or blood samples, according to Guerrero.

"We see a lot of students coming in for STD testing all the time," she said. "The tricky thing is that when people come in, they think it's going to test them for everything, and not necessarily test them for herpes or genital warts. If some of those things aren't present there, it doesn't mean that they don't have them, they're just undetectable at the time."

A new process could help women avoid contracting STDs, according to an Oct. 28 article in USA Today. Since the female reproductive tract is four times more vulnerable than a man's to attracting disease, the use of microbicides could greatly help women. Though still in testing stages, microbicides are said to provide better protection than a male condom, according to Jeffrey Laurence, director for AIDS Virus Research at Cornell University — but none of these products will be on a drugstore's shelf for a few

Senior sociology major Harley Augustino said too many people do not make rational decisions about sex when

"When people drink too much, it disturbs their judgment and then they're more likely to make stupid decisions," he said. "People don't realize that there is more out there than AIDS, which has gotten a lot of publicity."

Do that first and have fun later.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Today is a 6— Complete the project you've been working on at home. It's helping you become more confident. You're also getting smarter and more mellow, better looking and more popular. The rewards may not be here yet, but relax. They're coming soon.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Today is an 8— You're so competent today even older people look to you for advice. You're sharp, so don't hold back. Let them know what they should do and how they should do it, too.

they should do it, too. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) —Today is a 6—Some expense has you worried. Your partner can come to your rescue, but you may have to eat some crow first. Agree to be more careful in the future and then do it. Not to fret, you're getting luckier soon.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) — Today is a 9— A close friend or relative won't go along with your plan. You'll win that battle, and just about any others you take on now. You have superhuman powers, so be gentle and kind.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Today is a 6— By now, your hopes, dreams and fears should be well-organized. Get rid of any you don't need. Simply decide not to worry about them, and at least one of your fears may frizzle up and blow away. Don't tell everybody yet, only your very best friend Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Today is an 8— Your friends help you make decisions and spend your money. You should be able to make up the difference easily. If you need more cash, let people know, and the orders will come pouring in.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) —Today is a 6— You might be lucky with your career now. You might find the job you can stick with until retirement. That's especially true if you like jumping through hoops. If you're not lucky in your career, travel and adventure might be a better option. You get to choose.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) — Today is a 9 — Travel by water is favored now. Why not take a cruise with a bunch of neat people? You might not be able to go right now, but you could plant the idea with friends. Make a move to benefit your career, and you ust might make it all happen.

Today's Birthday (Nov. 8). The power is yours this year. Use it wisely. Learn about love from a friend in November. Accept an unexpected gift in December. Quick action cinches a deal in Januy. Fill out the papers for security in February. Accept responsibility for your work in April. A choice you make in May gives you something to rely upon. Look forward in August and back in ઠા

> Learn interview skills and how to write the perfect resume and cover letter for your dream job.

Presented by Lily Maestas from C&CS Co-Sponsored by EOP & C&CS

You work hard to succeed, and even harder to prepare for your future. Robinsons-May offers a wide array of career choices in the areas of Merchandising, Finance and MIS. We are a member of the May Department Stores Company, one of the most successful retail operations in the country, with total sales reaching $13 billion in 1998. In fact, for the last 24 consecutive years we have posted record sales and earnings per share.

It is important to us that you get a solid feel for the company before you make your career choice. We also believe in giving you a second chance to make a good first impression. Therefore, we guarantee two interviews with members of our senior management team. The more we talk, the better we get to know each other. We look forward to meeting with you.

If you have the drive, desire & skill set to succeed in the world of business,

we would like to talk with you.
