B-ball Season Begins With Some 'Madness'

BY MATT HURST
Staff Writer

With about 1000 college students, lights and music to dance to on a Friday night, the stage was set for a party. It seemed the only thing missing from this shindig was the keg.

It was wild and crazy — in a word, it was Madness. Midnight Madness took the Thunderdome by storm Friday night, when the 1998-99 UCSB men's and women's basketball teams were introduced to the student body. With the shot clock counting down the minutes until 12 a.m., the crowd was entertained with games that included $100 cash prizes, restaurant coupons, free pizza to wild and crazy fans, and a chance to hit a three-quarter-court shot for a $10,000 scholarship.

At 12, the Thunderdome lights went out and the women's and men's teams came out onto the floor, one at a time, with a spotlight on each player. The teams took opposite ends of the floor for layup lines, then joined together and divided into two teams of blue and white jerseys. From there, the teams had shooting competitions pitting two women and two men on either team to shoot for points marked by numbers on the floor.

These events were only preludes to the contest everyone had come to see — the slam dunk contest.

The dunk contest featured four men jamming, with assists coming from four women players. Senior B.J. Bunton, sophomore Chris Lynch, freshman Mark Hull and sophomore transfer Adama Ndiaye provided the fans with excitement at the end of the long night of festivities.

Ndiaye, the newcomer from Senegal, Africa, won the jam-fest with a dunk over the head of women's team freshman Lisa Hansen, who was kneeling on the court in front of the rim.

City Leaders Acknowledge Hate Crime

■ Officials Gather at Downtown Vigil To Remember Victim

BY JAMES BRAMLETT
Reporter

Families, students and other locals gathered Friday night in solemn remembrance of the victim of a hate crime.

Community leaders and politicians spoke at a candlelight vigil at the Santa Barbara Courthouse's sunken gardens. Approximately 100 people went to the vigil commemorating the death of Matthew Shepard, a gay student at the University of Wyoming who was beaten to death, allegedly because of his sexual preference.

Congresswoman Lois Capps (D-Santa Barbara) denounced the murder and intolerance in a written statement read by a representative of her office, saying that she was upset by such blatant violence.

"I cannot say how despicable the death of Matthew Shepard is to me and my family," the letter stated.

The vigil started on a somber note with a Native American chant by Bear Watcher, a shaman. Members of the religious community then came forward to condemn hate crimes.

Reverend Mark Asmen of Trinity Episcopal Church called for an end to aggression against homosexuals.

"We must speak up against bigotry," he said. "Silence betrays the creator, who had a message of compassion."

Wendy Moto, a representative of State Senator Jack O'Connell (D-Ventura), urged people to come together and combat intolerance as a society.

"Stay united and committed to not tolerate violence," she said. "Reach out to children, friends and family with love and mash away this hate."

Santa Barbara Mayor Pro Tempore Tom Roberts said he blames the religious right for Shepard's death.

"They create the environment that is responsible for what happened to Matt," he said. "Our vigilance must never end until

Community-Friendly Facility Planned for Teen Center Site

Visions of a communal haven to enlighten Isla Vista residents and give local culture back to the public were put into action this weekend.

A planning session for an I.V. community center was held Saturday so that I.V. Recreation and Park District members could meet with the Sustainability Project, an organization devoted to environmentally sound construction. The new center will be a model for a small community, both environmentally and socially, according to IVRPD General Manager Derek Johnson.

"We anticipate completion in three to five years, depending on the availability of funding and community support," he said. "We hope to have the large cooperation of UCSB."

The idea to build the center, which first surfaced at a meeting last year, was sparked by concern over a lack of facilities for community use, according to IVRPD Director Dave Fortson. The IVRPD board of directors felt residents needed a place where parties, weddings, dances and concerts could be held, with programming for tutoring, meeting rooms, a library and study room, a large kitchen, day care and art rooms, he said.

The new center will be a model building for the central coast in terms of environmental self-sufficiency, Fortson said. Solar panels will provide energy and heating, landscaping will be irrigated with gray water, ventilation will be all-natural through the use of large windows and open space — even compost toilets were discussed.

"I want this to be a social and environmental model that flows with the landscape and the people," Fortson said.

The committee overseeing the planning and organizational phases of the project has high hopes for a facility that can be used by many different residents, according to IVRPD Director Diane Conn.

"[The community center will] serve everyone in I.V.," she said.

Middle East Talks Extend Until Monday

QUEENSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Prodded by U.S. mediation at the highest levels, Middle East peace negotiations were stalled Sunday over key elements of a land-for-peace deal between Israel and the Palestinians.

Eager to nail down a deal, President Clinton and members of his administration worked well into the evening for a second consecutive day and extended the difficult talks for at least one more day.

Nonetheless, the administration appealed to the two sides to find the "political will" to settle issues that have generated 19 months of stalemate and extended the talks past Sunday's projected conclusion.

"It is in the best interest of the peace process and the discussions we have been having," State Dept. spokesperson James P. Rubin said at nightfall Sunday in announcing that the Israeli and Palestinian delegations would remain overnight at the secluded summit retreat and that there "almost certainly" would be talks Monday.

Separately, White House spokesperson Joe Lockhart told a group of reporters that "talks almost certainly will go into tomorrow. We believe it's in the best interests of the peace process to continue the discussions." Clinton, in a third day of personal intervention, met over lunch with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu for an hour and 45 minutes and then strolled along the Wye River.

In early evening, Clinton turned to Palestinian leader

Yasser Arafat, meeting with him in the president's quarters for an hour.

A significant stumbling block involved security guarantees for Israel as part of a deal to give up land on the West Bank to the Palestinian Authority, diplomatic sources said. American assertions that the summit was timed to end Sunday night gave way to a statement by Rubin that "we are taking this one meeting at a time." Palestinian sources told The Associated Press, meanwhile, that Arafat's demand for a phased release of Palestinians held in Israeli prisons remained unresolved. The sources, insisting on anonymity, said that was the main request Arafat made of Clinton at their meeting Saturday.

On the fourth day of talks, Clinton and Vice President Al Gore rode separate helicopters to the Wye Plantations hideaway on Maryland's Eastern Shore to work with Netanyahu and Arafat to break the impasse.

"There is time to complete the work if the political will is there to make the tough decisions," Rubin said.

While diplomatic sources said the likely result of the summit was a partial agreement, Rubin said, "We have no plan to defer issues for many weeks." He also cautioned that without an accord "there are serious dangers ahead for the people of the Middle East."

"There's important work being done here," Lockhart said after Clinton arrived from Washington for his third day of mediation between the two sides.

Palestinian sources told The Associated Press the talks "have become very difficult."

Letourneau Gives Birth to Pupil's Second Child

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — The teenage boy who is the father of Mary Kay Letourneau's new baby — the same boy she is imprisoned for raping — says he's overjoyed that she has given birth to their second daughter.

"I'm very excited and can't wait to go back and see my next baby," 15-year-old Vili Fualaau said from Paris. "I have two daughters and I'm a single father."

Fualaau is in Paris on tour promoting a book he wrote with the 36-year-old Letourneau, Un Seul Crime, L'Amour (Only One Crime, Love). The book, released in French in Europe earlier this month, is not yet available in the United States.

Letourneau, a former elementary school teacher, is serving a seven-year, five-month term for second-degree child rape for having sex with her former student.

She gave birth to their daughter, Georgia, on Friday night at St. Joseph Medical Center. Letourneau was returned to prison Saturday.

The baby was also released but hospital officials would not say who was caring for the child.

In his interview, Fualaau did not specify who would care for her, but indicated it would be him and his family. Fualaau's mother is caring for Letourneau's and Fualaau's first Fualaau said he was upset "that [Letourneau] is in jail and that I'm taking care of the kids alone ... with the help of my family." He also said it bothered him to have Letourneau separated from her new daughter.

"I feel bad that the mother has to be separated from her baby just a few hours after her baby was born," he said. "I wish that the mother could spend time with her baby and her other kids."

"[Letourneau's] being a victim at the same time they say she's a criminal." Fualaau has repeatedly denied being a victim, and his mother and other relatives have said they accept Letourneau as one of their family.

Letourneau began having sex with Fualaau when he was 13. She has described the boy as "the love of my life" and says she hopes to marry him.

The birth of their first child resulted in Letourneau pleading guilty to second-degree child rape. A judge suspended the bulk of her sentence, but within days after her release from jail in January, she violated a court order not to have contact with Fualaau and said she had sex with him. She was arrested and the judge reinstated her sentence.

At the time she began having sex with Fualaau, Letourneau was married and had four children. Her husband has since filed for divorce and has custody of their children.

Two Weekend Forest Fires Blaze the Santa Barbara Area

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A fire in the Los Padres National Forest grew to more than 2,200 acres Sunday while a new blaze threatened homes in Piru, authorities said.

Four homes were threatened by the 250-acre blaze near Lake Piru, which was sparked at 12:45 p.m. by someone welding a gate, said Cristina Rodriguez, a Ventura County Fire Dept. spokesperson.

No one was evacuated, but fire engines were stationed near the Hopper Canyon homes to protect them, Rodriguez said.

The fire earlier threatened homes in Lake Piru before changing direction and moving toward Hopper Canyon.

"It was bad. The wind was blowing. It was blowing this way and we were really frightened there for a while," Lake Piru resident Nancy Tujetsch said. "It was really close." About 100 firefighters had the brush fire 20 percent contained by nightfall.

Several people voluntarily evacuated a campground, to make room for firefighters setting up a base for crews, she said.

Meanwhile, about 70 miles northwest, 650 firefighters were on the front lines of the Los Padres National Forest blaze, which began about 2:50 p.m. Friday when a tractor pulling a mower hit a rock, causing a spark.

"The fire was very active all night long," said U.S. Forest Service spokesperson Kathy Good.

She estimated the fire had grown by several hundred acres but did not have an exact figure. Winds picked up, spewing smoke and ash 12 miles south to the coastal city of Santa Barbara.

Terrain was steep and packed with thick vegetation that hasn't burned since the turn of the century, Good said. It was accessible only by foot or horseback and many firefighters had to be ferried in by helicopters.

Seven retardant-dropping aircraft battled the flames along with 15 helicopters, some dropping water and others transporting firefighters.

U.S. Forest Service biologists were called in to examine habitats and assess any damage, Good said.

Weather

This weekend has given us a taste of what to expect when the Y2000 bug hits.

There were massive fires in the hills, power outages and of course, drunken mobs. Well, friends, as weather-human it is my civic duty to use my clairvoyant powers to prepare you. First, grocery stores will close due to power outages and credit/ATM cards will be rendered useless, so start hoarding supplies. Don't let your neighbors know you have food or they'll swamp you.

Now, you're also gonna need a gun — a lot of guns, actually. Just go out to Billy Bob's Gun World and ask for the deadliest and most dangerous thing they've got (it's in the Constitution, baby). That silly 15-day waiting period will prevent you from buying and then using a gun in a fit of passion, so plan ahead.

Today's weather: surprisingly warm in the mid-70s and otherwise peaceful ... for now.

Police Puzzled by Campus Burglaries

By JEFF LUPO
Reporter

A string of burglaries scattered across campus has left faculty and police looking for answers.

Four commercial burglaries have taken place on campus since the beginning of the quarter. Hatlen Theater in Snidecor Hall, the Arts & Lectures ticket office, Robertson Gym and the Student Health Center have all suffered break-ins over the last three weeks, according to University of California police reports.

A large sum of money was taken in the Arts & Lectures and Student Health Center robberies, according to Sgt. Cathy Farley, the campus police public information officer.

"It is estimated that approximately $1,000-plus was taken from both the Arts & Lectures ticket office and the Student Health Center," she said.

UC police were called to the scenes of two burglaries over the weekend of Oct. 9, at the Student Health Center and the Robertson Gym offices. According to Student Health Administrator Judy Akiyoshi, there were no signs that any of the center's outside entrances were broken into.

"None of the main doors were unlocked. Our building was secure in that respect. Nothing was broken and none of the outside doors showed any significant prying damage," she said.

Akiyoshi said the possibility of the burglars having a key to the outside doors has not been ruled out.

"It's always possible because we're a large building and we haven't been re-keyed in several years."

The burglars made off with cash from a safe and a locked office drawer, both of which were in the locked cashier's office, Akiyoshi said.

"It's a shock of reality," she said. "We feel the campus is separate from the regular community. It makes it hard when you've done all the right things like lock all the doors, and still this can happen."

Another pair of burglaries occurred over the weekend of Sept. 25. UC police responded to reports of burglaries at Hatlen theater in Snidecor Hall and the Arts & Lectures ticket office. Both of the burglaries were forced entries. A safe containing cash as well as Arts & Lectures gift certificates was taken from the office. Don Devich, director of operations for UCSB Arts & Lectures, explained how the burglars were able to enter the building.

"The burglars pried open the door to the outer office and to the ticket office and rifled through some ticket office drawers," he said. "We were surprised that they took the safe because it was so heavy that none of us could even budge it."

Devich said that precautions have been taken to ensure that a burglary will not happen again.

"We have a new alarm system, and we don't keep money in the office anymore," he said.

It is still unclear as to whether anything was taken from Hatlen Theater or the Robertson Gym offices.

Farley said that presently there are no witnesses or suspects for any of the burglaries.

"It is a possibility, however, that one or more of these burglaries may be connected," he said. "Investigations of all of the burglaries are still in progress."

Plans for Residence Hall in Motion

By DAVID DOWNS
Reporter

As part of the ongoing struggle to accommodate the yearly influx of new students, the university will begin construction on a new residence hall this spring.

Located south of San Rafael Hall, on what has previously been used as a parking lot, "Manzanita Village" will provide housing for some 800 students starting the fall of 2000.

All the rooms are a little bit bigger; all the singles are bigger, all the doubles are bigger.

— Mike Shinn
RHA president

The project, which breaks ground April 15, will cost $47 million and last 17 months.

According to Residence Halls Association President Mike Shinn, Manzanita Village will consist of 18 residential buildings with an average of 45 students per building. It will also include three community buildings for study, recreational, classroom, technology and administrative needs as well as a change in individual rooms.

"All the rooms are a little bit bigger; all the singles are bigger, all the doubles are bigger," he said. "Since the complex is so close to the beach, there's going to be a lot of surfers and other people coming up with sand and tar on their feet. So there's going to be outdoor showers to wash off your surfboard and/or wetsuit. I've been pushing for that since my freshman year. There's a central courtyard with a barbecue pit and two volleyball courts, brand new bike paths, the works."

According to Willie Brown, head of Housing and Residential Services, the decision to build a new residence hall dates back to 1985, but as both enrollment and the economy slumped in the early '90s, the project was shelved. As enrollment grows every year, the need for more housing is unignorable, Brown said.

"I think most of our buildings were built in the late '50s, early '60s. They were built as traditional double-loaded corridors, which meant you had a lot of students living on a hallway, and they all shared a common bathroom," he said. "One of the things we've heard expressed by students is that they didn't want the whole idea of hall bathrooms anymore. They wanted to lower the number of students using the bathrooms, so this complex will have four students per bathroom."

According to Shinn, students will be footing the bill for Manzanita Village. UC Housing Services housing reserves will provide $3 million while the other $44 million will come from student housing revenues.

"Every year student rates increase a little bit. Now, you might say we have four percent inflation each year — that's true. Our rates

This complex will have four students per bathroom.

— Willie Brown

are going to go up five and a half percent each year," he said. "RHA, two years ago, met at about three or four really heated meetings and crunched the numbers, talked to Willie Brown, who is a really nice guy, and made it five and a half percent a year. That way, no one group bears the brunt of the bill."

While $1.5 million went into pre-construction research and planning, Brown

School Pride Is Lacking

Too Much Apathy Exists as Many UCSB Students Fail To Realize the Importance of School Spirit

When one considers the allure of many of the big colleges and universities throughout the nation, school spirit plays a major role. From football to protests, many schools boast a strong academic, athletic and participatory reputation.

Friday night's Midnight Madness at the Events Center highlighted exactly what UCSB does and does not have — apathy and school spirit, respectively. Why a school with so much potential for positive energy can not even get pumped up for the kickoff to what could be one of the best men's basketball seasons in recent UCSB history is mind boggling.

The low attendance and seeming lack of fan participation reminds all those who spent the night partying in Isla Vista how much their support is needed in order for UCSB to muster up the spirit needed on this campus.

There are many good and lawful causes on campus — such as the sports teams and outreach programs — that deserve positive attention and support from the rest of the campus. However, it seems the only things that can fire up UCSB students are either of a negative tone or involve drinking on a Friday night.

Most of the major 'uprisings' on campus in the recent past have all been of a negative nature. Last year as the women's basketball team surprised everyone but themselves en route to a historic performance in the NCAA tournament, few students looked up from their books or their six-pack to notice. A major accomplishment by a UCSB sports team had little impact on the campus as a whole.

At many other schools, an achievement such as this would invoke celebration throughout the entire community. But not at UCSB. Even this year, as the women's volleyball team is destroying their opponents and holding a top-10 ranking, very few people are taking pride in the team's success.

Santa Barbara is an area where you can wear shorts and a tank top in the middle of October and be perfectly comfortable. It is a beautiful area where the ocean hits the beach on three sides of campus.

Yet the wonderful weather should not affect the amount of school pride present among the students and faculty. Yes, it is not always conducive to heading indoors to take in a basketball or volleyball game; however, students should be looking forward to the game as a time of celebration (win or lose) rather than an obligation to somehow promote school spirit.

Pride in a school's athletics, although seemingly trivial, is an important part of the college experience that is lacking at UCSB. Not only can it affect students while at UCSB by bringing the campus community closer together, it also has an impact on them following graduation. It provides a common thread that can stimulate professional relationships and the link to a reputable athletic program can add value to a UCSB degree.

The $9 per quarter per student lock-in fee approved last year is a positive step in the direction of school spirit. Although it should not be the case, it is unfortunately true that good sports teams will bring more people out to the games. The money will help recruit better players and allow the university to offer more scholarships in an attempt to lure athletes to UCSB.

School pride and spirit is something that begins at the most basic level of enjoying and respecting a college. UCSB is a paradise that should breed pride and produce a student body that is teeming with positive energy to support all school endeavors — athletic, academic and extracurricular. Apathy toward school activities shouldn't even be an issue.

Students possess the ability to change the image and view of themselves. There are many opportunities present to support fellow Gauchos as they take on other schools. If the athletes know and understand that they are backed by the student body, they are much more likely to perform well and enjoy their experience at UCSB.

An Attack by a Dog in an I.V. Apartment Causes Injury

KELLIE SCHNEIDER

On Wednesday night, Oct. 7, at approximately 8:30 p.m., a quiet evening on the 6600 block of Trigo Road was intruded upon by the vicious attack of a pitbull.

Inhabitants of 6669 Trigo do not own a pitbull. Yet this unattended and uninvited beast entered the home without any sign of its owner, violently attacking a 10-week-old kitten. The kitten, Mojave, was simply playing in the living room when the unexpected attack occurred, ultimately resulting in Mojave's premature death.

When the attack began, eight occupants of the house immediately began grabbing and hitting the pitbull in hopes of separating its jaws from the body of the kitten. Unfortunately, the pitbull did not release Mojave until more than enough damage had been done.

Initially, it seemed as though Mojave would survive. His flesh wounds appeared minimal. A few moments later, however, he began to vomit, urinate and gasp for air. It was then that four of us, including the kitten's owner, headed for the Emergency Animal Hospital on the 2900 block of State St. We made it as far as Los Carneros before Mojave stopped breathing.

The owner then attempted to resuscitate Mojave using the "mouth to mouth" technique, but before we got out of Isla Vista, Mojave died.

I could go on and on about how fucked up Isla Vista is, but I honestly think this tragic event surpasses anything I've personally witnessed in the two and a half

The Reader's Voice

DIVERSITY SHOULD BE SUPPORTED!

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I am writing to voice my concern for the lack of support from the administration on gay/lesbian/bisexual/transgender issues. On Wednesday, during the Activities Day Fair in Storke Plaza, I was talking with the Queer Student Union while Chancellor Yang was introducing himself to the different organizations.

Upon reaching our table, Janet Mallen, a queer peer, asked the chancellor if he would sign his name on a list of allies to show that he supports the GLBT community on campus. The chancellor flatly refused to sign his name.

Yang still refused even after we explained that his signature would mean nothing more than being listed as an ally to the queer community, that he would not be obligated in any way to take action, and that now is a crucial time in the lives of his GLBT staff, faculty and students to feel administrative support.

This past Monday, Matthew Shepard, a student in Wyoming lost his life due to the ignorance of two men. This dreadful incident, in addition to other anti-gay attacks, has ignited fear, anger and concern in a number of students on campus.

I had met with the chancellor earlier in the year and explained to him the lack of support from the campus community. During the fair, I explained how so many students have been kicked out of school, their homes, or were evicted from their sexual orientation.

At the fair, I heard these stories and I had rocks thrown in the middle of camp because of the support on her car. Still, the response was offensive. Furthermore, identifying his actions with our needs, Chancellor Yang ally turned his back on the organization and walked away.

I cannot express the amount of anger I feel that the chancellor refuses to show support for more than 10% of the campus community. The amount of support that the administration cares about is the amount of fear in their student body. I am concerned that I am not getting a year of dollars a year on diversity.

Chancellor Yang is ashamed of the setting for the man who speaks diversity and equality. I never become a victim. I expect action to get him to put up his own paper?

Pets Can Cause Tragedy

nt Causes an Angry Resident and the Demise of a Kitten years I've lived here. For those of you who lack the emotional capacity to understand how this incident affects you, let me present an alternative scenario.

You and your small child are enjoying a quiet evening in the sanctity of your home. It's a good night — the baby is laughing and you are finally relaxing. Suddenly, without pretext or warning, a vicious pitbull charges into your home and mauls your child right before your eyes. You begin beating on the animal, frantically trying to save your helpless, innocent loved one. But there is nothing you can do. Circumstances are beyond your mortal control and now your baby is suffocating — bleeding internally — as you watch. You call for help, but before an ambulance arrives, you watch, helpless, as your child dies in your arms.

Comprende?

Owners of dogs, especially those aggressive by nature such as pitbulls, also own the responsibility of keeping their dogs contained and under control. I have noticed in the last few months an increase in the Isla Vista pitbull population. Sure, these dogs are cute when they're young, but Mojave's death is testimony to the fact that pitbulls are aggressive, uncontrollable and potentially fatal pets.

This incident is not isolated. I recently witnessed a pitbull attack on another dog at a private residence on Pasado. Although unrelated, the attack was quite similar. For no apparent reason, the pitbull lunged at the passive dog, ripping at his throat while at least four young men tried to pull him off. The victim survived this attack, but was injured.

KAZUHIRO KIBUSHI / DAILY NEXUS

I hope this message hits home with all of you, as it affects each of us living in Isla Vista. This town isn't the safest place in the world and we have enough shit to deal with already. We do not need to tolerate the painful effects of irresponsible dog owners.

This doesn't apply to every dog owner, just the ones who allow predatory house pets to roam the streets in search of prey. Relating back to Mojave's death, you should feel threatened by the presence of unattended pitbulls. This particular pitbull is white, of medium build and has a brown patch over one of its eyes. It wears a red collar.

A report has been made with the IVFP regarding Mojave's death. The irresponsible owner of the pitbull will be held responsible for the death of our loved one, as the occupants of the Trigo house do intend to press charges if this pitbull is seen unattended again. If anyone has information about the whereabouts of a pitbull matching this description, please notify its owner of the danger in which he/she is placing Isla Vista.

Kellie Schneider hopes I.V. residents will keep their dogs on a short leash.

FINANCE BOARD IS FOR STUDENTS

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I'm writing in response to the article published in the Nexus on Oct. 13, "More Money Problems," which set forth some troublesome inaccuracies about the guidelines governing Finance Board.

Specifically, I hope to correct the article's misinformation about priority for unallocated funding and about our motives in asking for an itemized list of expenses from the office of the external vice president of statewide affairs.

The confusion about funding priority, I think, comes from the fact that during the budget process, A.S. boards and committees have priority over student groups, as stated in Section II, Clause 5 of the Financial Policy.

However, regarding unallocated funds (which are those that Finance Board disperses at our weekly meetings), Policies and Procedures clearly reads: "Unallocated Account: Funds in this account are to be used for any program, event, or activity that is for the benefit, education, or entertainment, and in the best interest of the student body and the campus community" (Section IV, Clause 2).

This means that beyond the operational costs of A.S. entities determined during the budget process, Finance Board is empowered to distribute funding as it finds most beneficial to the campus.

There is no mandate that A.S. entities receive first priority of unallocated funds; indeed, if the budget process operates correctly in the spring, there are few occasions in which A.S. entities should even need to come before Finance Board during the school year.

This, of course, does get rather tricky when certain boards either are not funded at all during the budget process, or are greatly underfunded as happened this year. In situations like this, Finance Board can only try its best to strike a happy medium between entities crucial to the internal functioning of our government, and the student groups for whom unallocated money has traditionally been intended.

Dilemmas like this are what mandate Finance Board's close scrutiny and supervision, and are what drive us to request itemized lists of expenditures from those coming before the board.

Bluntly, I am shocked that any student at this university would express indignation that Finance Board requests an itemization of expenditures before allocating money. Yes, we have faith in our elected leaders. Yes, we support their efforts. But no, we can not blindly throw money at them, without some accountability, because to do so would be a blatant disregard of the trust the student body has placed in us.

We have an obligation to make sure the money is spent fairly, equitably and responsibly — and that is an obligation that should not be waived for any particular organization we fund, be it Associated Students or otherwise. We asked the EVPSA for an itemized list, we looked at it during Monday's meeting and then we granted it. Fairly. Judiciously. Respectably. The way it's supposed to be done.

I can not overemphasize that we do have a limited amount of funding, and the only way it's going to get us through this year is with vigilance by the board, and compromise by our leaders. The EVPSA's willingness to comply with our request for itemization of expenses for last Monday's meeting was infinitely appreciated, and helped us attain some degree of compromise to take us through the remainder of the quarter.

Funds are limited, and will continue to be. Please do not ask us to disregard this and make exceptions for any particular branch of government, because if we do, then we are letting down those we are supposed to serve.

BIKERS: BE NICE TO EACH OTHER!

Editor, Daily Nexus:

As many of you know, the bicycle paths are quite dangerous these days in between classes. Fortunately, many of the riders abide by common traffic laws.

However, there is a small population of people out there who feel that they can just lazily drift back and forth without looking to see who is behind them. It's madness. These are the jerks who don't check their mirrors when they change lanes on the highway. It's insane.

Just remember that it is easier to look over your shoulder before you take your bike into the fast lane than it is to remove someone's handlebars from your butt. Thank you.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
BY LINDA C. BLACK

Check the day's rating. 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19)—Today is a 7—Surrender to your partner's whims today. Be careful tomorrow and Wednesday. Take control of the check-book, and your impulses, or you'll go way over budget. If you can do a job that includes both work and play, and is outside, you definitely win.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)—Today is a 6—Get a work-related question answered today so you can make your big decision later this week. From Tuesday through Thursday you'll be ready to choose. Wait for the right moment, and the best offer. By Friday, you could start seeing more money coming in. If not, make your move in that direction. Shop with your sweetheart on Saturday, for a significant gift. Force yourself to go out and have fun on Sunday.

Gemini (May 21-June 21)—Today is an 8—Romance definitely blossoms today. You may not get much else done. That's OK. You'll make up for it this week, with some intense workdays. You may surprise yourself with a commitment made on Friday, but don't worry. Even though it's solid, there's still room to play. Prove that on Saturday. You don't need to get realistic again until Sunday.

Cancer (June 22-July 22)—Today is a 6—Whip your place into shape and don't waste a moment. From Tuesday through Wednesday, romance is in the air. No telling what will happen and when, so be ready. Friday's a work day, even though you're still feeling rather passionate. Get used to the feeling. It'll be there for quite a while. There's work to be done on Saturday, too, but it shouldn't cramp your style much. A partnership agreement you make Sunday will last forever.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)—Today is a 7—Acquire the skills you need today, for a job that goes from Tuesday through Thursday. It's a great time to fix up your place even if it means tossing some stuff out. Be ready to party by Friday night. You'll be in the mood. The festivities could go through Saturday, but by Sunday you need to take care of business again.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)—Today is a 6—The sun is in Libra and the moon is in Libra. Insider information could lead to an excellent deal today, so pay attention. Focus on learning new skills from Tuesday through Thursday, and attack a difficult project on Friday and Saturday. Sunday is your best day this week for romance.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)—Today is a 9—You're irresistible today. Plan your time accordingly. From Tuesday through Thursday, focus on money. You'll get it by talking, and there's plenty there. On Friday, the rest of your attention shifts to your pocketbook. So what if you're being materialistic? It's the perfect time for it, through Saturday. Relax at home on Sunday.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)—Today is a 6—Succumb to the pressure today, and you'll find yourself getting stronger, a feeling that increases from Tuesday through Thursday. By Friday, you'll pop through into magnificence. Get yourself something special then, and on Saturday, as a way of celebrating. Learn a new technique on Sunday.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)—Today is a 7—Let friends entice you to go play today. You'll be sorry tomorrow, but that's OK. You'll have to work late anyway. From then through Thursday, the pressure increases, although you start seeing the humor in it about Friday. That's good, because this is pressure you'll have to get used to. It'll be in effect for the next 30 days.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)—Today is a 6—Show an older person respect and you'll be repaid with love. Parties and meetings take up the middle of the week, with you scurrying to keep up. By about Thursday you should have your objective in mind and know what needs to be done next. That's good, because Friday and Saturday will be intense. Count your accomplishments on Sunday. Be proud of them.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)—Today is a 7—Go as far as you can and back again today. Work on a deal to improve your career tomorrow and Wednesday, and make the commitment on Thursday. Your friends want to play on Friday, but it's hard to find the time with the teacher watching. Let your sweetheart have control on Saturday. Do the chores on Sunday. Not to worry. This will be good for you.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)—Today is a 6—Both the sun and moon are in Libra. Money wants to come to you on Monday, so give it a nudge in that direction. Work interferes with travel plans Tuesday through Thursday, unless you find a way to do both. If so, you'll make a good impression on your boss by Friday; it could result in a bonus on Saturday. Let friends teach you a new game Sunday.

Today's Birthday (Oct. 19). You can be everything you've ever wanted to be, and it could be easy. Start by visualizing the perfect you, now. By November you should have your plan pretty well worked out. If changes or further study is required, launch in December. Travel around the first of the year could interfere with your domestic tranquility. Make up for your absence by taking your sweetheart along in February. Work's plentiful in March, and it's a job you know well. Fix up your place in May, and let friends lead you in August. Keep a secret to yourself in September, even if it's tough.

MADNESS

"That was my first slam-dunk contest," Ndiaye said. "The most important thing was to come here and have some fun. I think we did. We got the crowd to know about us and get excited for the season."

The women's team was included in Midnight Madness for the first time, and according to UCSB women's Head Coach Mark French, it was good for the defending Big West champions.

"It was a little more exposure for us to the students and that's something we really want to grow in," the coach said. "It was a great start and I was really pleased that the men and women are doing more things together this year."

Sophomore Erin Buescher was glad that she and her teammates were on the floor at the stroke of midnight.

"It was fun. It was the first year for us and each year you can make improvements," she said. "It was more fun to be out there with the guys this year than sitting on the sidelines."

According to undeclared freshman Clancy Roberts, Midnight Madness was a great way to kick off the season for both the teams and the students.

"I think it was good to have gotten the crowd involved," she said. "I thought it was good that they incorporated the women in this year. I liked the fact that we were given the opportunity to see the players."

UCSB men's Head Coach Bob Williams saw Midnight Madness as a way to begin his first season with the team on a positive note.

"It was good to see some students out, and the players had a lot of fun," he said. "It's an opportunity to go out and get a few students excited about the program, and for our guys to get a few of the early-season jitters out before we start practice."

this kind of thing stops."

Community activist Shay Welch, a lesbian, pronounced the anger the gay community feels at being deceived by politicians.

"President 'Lick My Dick' Clinton wooed the gay vote and said he'd make things right," she said. "It takes blood to change anything."

Candidate for 35th District Assembly Hannah-Beth Jackson stressed the equality of all individuals.

"I am not a lesbian and I am not gay," she said. "I am a human being and so was Matthew Shepard."

Although the vigil was intended to serve as an affirmation of life and universal equality, Michael Haggerty, executive director of the Correction of HIV Consortium and coordinator of the vigil, was not optimistic. He said he believes a single event like Shepard's death will not be enough to bring about real change.

"I think we will need more of these," Haggerty said. "Blood makes a difference."

Rebecca Howes, a lesbian and Santa Barbara resident, was concerned with the event's low turnout.

"It would have been better if more people knew about it," she said.

Santa Barbara resident Rebecca Rogers believed the vigil was done in good faith, but remained pessimistic about what it might accomplish.

"There's going to be no change, but it was positive," she said. "It was necessary."

The city hopes to make a difference with the newly formed Human Relations Commission, according to Mary O'Gorman, a member of the commission. In her speech she called for the collaboration of people to stamp out hate crimes.

"By fostering some kind of collaborative efforts we can create an atmosphere where people feel safe in reporting crimes," O'Gorman said.

Silence Is Golden, or at Least Less Expensive

BY ORLY ZELTA
Reporter

Nine noise violations issued in the last week show that the Isla Vista Foot Patrol and neighbors will not tolerate late night loudmouths and blaring stereos.

A Santa Barbara County ordinance states that excessively loud noise, including both music and human chatter, must be toned down after 10 p.m. on weekdays and midnight on weekends. The ordinance can be enforced through a complaint by neighbors or by officers who observe the violation within 100 feet, according to IVFP Sgt. Greg Nordyke. Disturbing the peace tickets may be given at any time of the day if a complaint is received and the aggrieved citizen is willing to sign a citizen's arrest form.

"We find the person who lives at the house and give them a citation. This is not a warning process," he said.

Although the number of noise and disturbing the peace violations is not dramatically higher than in previous years, they do pose a problem, according to Sgt. Mike Burridge, the Sheriff's Dept. public information officer. He explained that officers at a party will usually attempt to control a situation without resorting to citation or arrest.

"If a disturbance is brought to the attention of a deputy he will first try to quiet things down," Burridge said. "A second visit will shut the party down. The fines are determined by the court."

Citations can be costly for either noise violations or disturbing the peace, according to Burridge.

Junior history major Jonathan Brand, who received a citation last year, complained of stringent policies at the beginning of the school year that allow for no warnings.

"[It was] No Tolerance because it was before Halloween," he said. "That resulted in a $110 fine."

Although noise violations are most common on Del Playa Drive, large numbers of citations have been issued this year throughout I.V., according to Nordyke.

The new community center will be constructed at the site of the current I.V. Teen Center. Juan Frausto, a 25-year resident of I.V., expressed concern about the project and the impact it will have on teens taking advantage of the Teen Center's facilities for tutoring and recreation.

"People need the Teen Center," he said. "Boys like it and don't want it to change. I'm not happy."

Conn addressed this concern, explaining that residents are welcome to attend the meetings and express their expectations, concerns and ideas.

"The Teen Center is a perfect example of the community coming together," she said. "[Juan Frausto] seems to not understand the process, which is a signal for me to make better effort for outreach so that no one is excluded."

The next meeting of the IVRPD Community Center Committee is Saturday, Nov. 21, at 9 a.m. at the Teen Center and will be open to the public.

Cat lovers, ASAP needs your help. For almost a decade the Animal Shelter Assistance Program, an independent, non-profit organization of volunteers, has given daily care to cats and kittens at our county animal shelter. Because of ASAP's efforts no adoptable cat has been killed for population control in our shelter since Halloween of 1990, but in order to maintain our no-kill status volunteers are desperately needed. Give just one morning or afternoon a week, weekends included, and enjoy a rewarding learning experience. For information call Bette at 967-1370
