EDITORIAL

During the forthcoming election for class representatives, an issue of fairly great importance is to be decided. We will choose between changing our school colors to Blue and Gold in harmony with the rest of the sister campus, or keeping them Green and White. The following is intended to be an impartial discussion of points on both sides, just so you will know exactly what the score is.

In the first place, by keeping the school colors as they are, we will be able to maintain our individuality and personal tradition. Our colors have been Green and White for a long time and have come to mean something. Secondly, all of our athletic equipment is Green and White, and when we have lots of sports again, we will want to use that equipment. It would be quite expensive to replace it.

There is a lot to be said for the opposite point of view though. As a member of the University, we should do all in our power to cooperate with them and truly become a part of their traditions. Individuality isn't everything, although it is important. We do owe a lot of loyalty to Berkeley and changing our colors would be an excellent location. There is something else too.

We are going to smoke, and from all appearances we certainly would be an excellent location. There is something else too.
