Cycle Route Enhancement Faces Review

By Nate Streeper
Reporter

An attempt to formulate plans and allocate funds for the maintenance and improvement of campus bikepaths was presented by the Graduate Students Association at Tuesday's Campus Planning Committee meeting.

GSA Internal President Travis Dixon pressed the priority of the issue based on the high number of people affected by the bikepaths.

"The first point I want to get across is that the campus bike system benefits more people than any other mode of transportation, and there are several ways in which it benefits," he said. "First of all, approximately 12-14,000 people use the bike system at peak times, and actually these numbers aren't 100 percent solid. Some estimates are much higher than that. ... Estimates go as high as 17,000 users at peak times. And the riders not only consist of students, but of staff, faculty and visitors."

GSA Student Fee Advisory Committee Chair Samuel Deskin detailed many of the problems that the paths face.

TAs, Undergrads Picketing Against Lack of Formal Employment Status

By Kerri Webb
Staff Writer

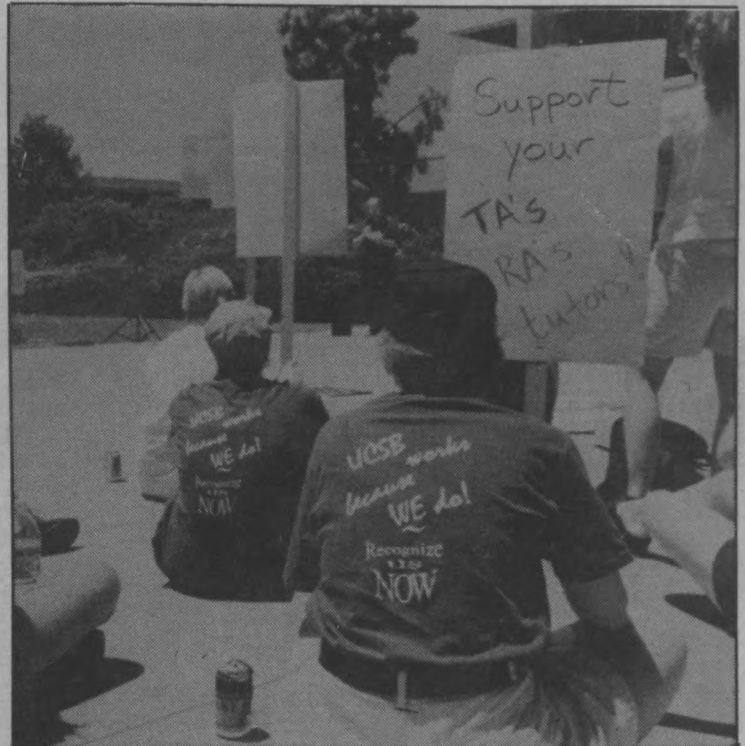

The weather wasn't the only cause of heat when close to 100 protesters gathered to voice their dissatisfaction with the University's refusal to recognize graduate student employees' collective bargaining rights in front of Cheadle Hall Tuesday.

Clad in blue T-shirts and blue arm bands symbolizing unionization, teaching assistants, tutors and readers took to the picket lines in the first of two days of striking to gain recognition of the Associated Students Employees/United Auto Workers union by the University of California.

The protest featured guest speakers and was led by Seth Rossenburg, teaching associate for the College of Creative Studies, who said the University is misusing its funding.

"It seems pretty absurd to me that the UC system cannot seem to find the money to make the undergraduate system better, which is the purpose of the University," he said. "Especially when they're spending millions of dollars fighting this union here and other unions around the UC system who support us instead of hiring more TAs."

The strike featured English Professor Cary Nelson from the

Measure Enactment Starts Goleta Schools' Revitalizations

By Josh Rutkin
Reporter

A financial ballot initiative's implementation is finally underway as the first round of bond sales has been successfully completed.

The initial series of bonds sold under Measure M since May 8 has generated $3.8 million at an average interest rate of 5.7 percent per bond over a 30-year life span, leading to progress in school revitalization plans.

Measure M, a ballot initiative passed in last November's election, authorized the Goleta Union School District to raise $26 million through bond sales in order to renovate its 10 campuses.

The money raised thus far will serve to cover preliminary costs such as architect fees for the various planned renovations, said GUSD board member David Chapman.

"The architects have to come up with specific drawings and detailed plans and that's what the $3.5 million finances," he said. "The other major parts of this first effort is to develop a plan to do the necessary repairs and upgrade El Camino [Elementary School] so we can open it for the 1998-99 school year."

$3.5 million will be used to reopen El Camino and bring it up to current Americans with Disabilities Act requirements. The remainder of the money will go to refurbishing the other nine sites, said GUSD board member Janet Wolf.

The renovation of other schools in the district will begin this summer, Wolf said.

"This summer we're also doing some of the infrastructure work: the plumbing, roofs and things like that. We're going to be put-

Davidson Worker Held Hostage by Malfunctioning Equipment, Phone

By Kelly Parkinson
Staff Writer

A library employee's trek to shelve her lunch in the refrigerator turned into a purgatory-like standstill recently after an elevator jerked to a stop between floors and the emergency telephone failed to summon help.

Cataloging assistant Susan Mahaffey was suspended between the third and fourth floors in the 6-foot-by-7-foot library elevator for approximately one hour and 35 minutes May 7 after stashing her lunch in the staff room refrigerator.

"It worked fine when I went up the elevator," she said.

But the trip down from the fourth floor that morning wasn't so successful, and Mahaffey was compelled to holler for help after discovering that neither the emergency phone nor the emergency buzzer was working.

"I pushed the button that says 'open door.' It didn't open. I think I probably tried it a couple of times, and then I decided, 'Well, I'll pick up the [emergency] phone and see if someone on the other line can't help me.' It rang and rang and rang and rang, and no one answered," she said. "Whoever answers that phone [at the UC Police Dept.] says they never heard the phone ring."

Mahaffey also tried pushing the emergency button, which seemed to work but failed to bring a response.

"And so then there's a button that says, 'push button in case of emergency.' I did that. I could hear a buzzer going off," she said. "The person in the mail room wasn't in yet, so no one answered the buzzer."

After repeated attempts to telephone for help, Mahaffey decided to yell. Her desperate hollers finally reached the ears of fellow employees, and an elevator repairman forced open the door

Clinton May Face Trial While in Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paula Jones can pursue her sex-harassment lawsuit against President Clinton while he is in office, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday. Though a major setback for the president, the decision left room for a lower court judge to delay an embarrassing trial.

The Constitution does not shield a sitting president from having to face lawsuits over acts unrelated to his official duties, the unanimous ruling said.

"Like every other citizen ... [Jones] has a right to an orderly disposition of her claims," Justice John Paul Stevens wrote for the court.

However, Stevens also spoke of "the high respect that is owed to the office of the chief executive," and he concluded: "A stay of either the trial or ... [pre-trial fact-finding] might be justified by considerations that do not require the recognition of any constitutional immunity."

Jones' lawyers exulted over the ruling, and a friend of Jones said the former Arkansas state employee "just screamed and yelled and cried" with delight. The lawyers said an apology and admission from Clinton might still head off a trial.

The president's private lawyer, Robert S. Bennett, said in a prepared statement, "We are confident that the case ultimately will be resolved in the president's favor."

Bennett later told CNN, "I'm not worried at all. I think when all is said and done the embarrassment will be on the side of Paula Jones."

The case returns to U.S. District Judge Susan Webster Wright, who took a law school class from Clinton when he taught at the University of Arkansas law school.

Wright said in 1994 that Jones' lawsuit should be delayed until Clinton left office although pre-trial fact-finding could begin.

But the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed, ruling in January 1996 that the case could go to trial during Clinton's presidency.

Wright, appointed to the bench by President Bush, also presided over the White House fight to quash a subpoena from Whitewater investigator Kenneth W. Starr. Prosecutors want White House lawyers to turn over notes from a meeting with Hillary Rodham Clinton. The Supreme Court has been asked to hear the case, too.

The president has denied Jones' allegation that he propositioned her in an Arkansas hotel room in 1991.

No sitting president has ever testified in open court, the justices noted.

"The high respect that is owed to the office of the chief executive, though not justifying a rule of categorical immunity, is a matter that should inform the conduct of the entire proceeding," Stevens said.

He said the court did not decide whether a judge could compel the president to appear in court at any specific time or place.

"We assume that the testimony of the president ... may be taken at the White House at a time that will accommodate his busy schedule and that, if a trial is held, there would be no necessity for the president to attend in person, though he could elect to do so," Stevens wrote.

McVeigh Defense Alleges Lab Contamination

DENVER (AP) — An FBI whistle-blower testified Tuesday that the agency lab that analyzed Timothy McVeigh's shirts and pants after the Oklahoma City bombing was contaminated with explosive residue.

Under cross-examination, FBI scientist Frederic Whitehurst admitted, "I have no knowledge of any actual contamination of any evidence in this case." However, he was not involved in analyzing that evidence.

He also said he was told a top FBI official had rejected as unreliable a key piece of evidence, a truck shard embedded with crystals of ammonium nitrate — the key bomb component — because it was found by a civilian, not an investigator.

The prosecution used that evidence, and FBI chemist Ron Kelly testified earlier this month that he personally removed it from a parking lot across the street from the scene of the April 19, 1995, bombing.

Whitehurst included Kelly in his condemnation of a lab that Whitehurst has spent much of his career criticizing. Kelly, he said, was unqualified to be entrusted with handling important evidence in such a big case. The explosion at the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building killed 168 people.

"I don't think that at that time Mr. Kelly had the hands-on experience to understand the implications of what he was doing," Whitehurst said. "I think he could make mistakes without realizing it."

Under cross-examination, Whitehurst acknowledged praising Kelly's work in a deposition in December.

"Yes, I was very proud of him," he told prosecutor Beth Wilkinson.

Whitehurst's observations on the lab were backed up by defense expert John Ryan Ford Lloyd, a forensic scientist from Britain, who found many of the FBI's procedures as "unacceptable" and a "matter of concern."

Lloyd was particularly critical of the packaging of McVeigh's clothing together in a paper bag. He said that explosives residue could seep in or out of the bag. He suggested that a nylon-lined bag or metal paint can would have been better.

Child's Murderer Caught on Las Vegas Casino Videotape

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A suspect in the rape and strangulation of a 7-year-old Los Angeles girl at a hotel-casino early Sunday was seen on video surveillance tape following the girl into a restroom where she was killed.

Police produced tapes Tuesday that showed the victim, Sherrice Iverson, possibly playing hide-and-seek with two men who appear to be in their 20s. The girl then darted into a women's restroom, followed seconds later by one of the men.

The man emerged alone 25 minutes later, the tapes showed.

The girl's body was found about 5 a.m. Sunday after her father, Leroy Iverson, 57, who had been gambling in a casino one floor below at the Primadonna hotel-casino, asked employees to search for his daughter.

Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Lt. Wayne Petersen said the body was found sitting on a toilet in one of the restroom stalls.

Petersen said police have talked with one witness who spoke with the two suspects, and said they indicated they were from Southern California. He said the man who followed the girl into the restroom was a white male in his late teens to early 20s with light brown to blond hair.

Petersen said the man was wearing a dark-colored baseball cap turned backward on his head. He said the witness described the suspect as having body piercing through both nipples and a stud in his tongue.

AP WIRE SHORTS

• SAN DIEGO (AP) — A graduate student who faced the death penalty in the slaying of three engineering professors at San Diego State University pleaded guilty Tuesday to first-degree murder.

Frederick Martin Davidson, 36, is scheduled to be sentenced Aug. 1 to three consecutive life terms in prison without the possibility of parole or appeal, according to a plea bargain.

Davidson shot and killed the engineering professors Aug. 15 with a gun he had hidden in a classroom where he was to defend his master thesis. Professors Chen Liang, 32; D. Preston Lowrey III, 44; and Constantinos Lyrintzis, 36, died instantly from multiple gunshot wounds.

Davidson was arrested minutes later in a hallway.

• SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation putting a one-month limit on handgun purchases by most Californians was narrowly approved by the Senate on Tuesday after the bill's author described it as an attempt to curb black-market sales of firearms.

"It is an attempt, a small attempt at least, to disrupt the growth of illicit firearm sales in California," said Sen. Tom Hayden (D-Santa Monica) before the Senate voted 21-16 to send his proposal to the Assembly.

The bill needed at least 21 votes, a bare majority of the 40-seat Senate, for approval.

Hayden said the bill was aimed at preventing "straw buyers" from purchasing a large number of handguns from gun shops and then reselling them on the street to people who can't legally buy the firearms.

"This restricts the appetite for weapons to 12 a year," he said. "A gun-loving household of three could obtain 30 to 40 a year."

Weather

Probably just as yesterday's surrogate Weatherperson realized the hollowed banality of shallow relationships and the sad revelation that we are all just dust in the wind, the overworked, middle-aged, brow-beaten bartender at O'Shea's belled out for the last call, wearily wiping the excess cigar ashes from the moist bar while simultaneously taking away my empty tumbler.

I pushed the nappy bangs out of my dry red eyes and coughed for one more. I normally wouldn't be doing this, I said.

Fortunately for me and my vice, he said no and suggested a brisk walk to clear some thoughts and close some mental floodgates. I left a generous tip and walked.

Forecast: It'll be the hot sun beating your brow throughout the day, with medium winds fluffing your coif and drying your palate. Tong rocks.

New Leggies, Officers To Take Oath

By Sara Romain
Staff Writer

Associated Students officials elected for the 1997-98 academic year will take office at tonight's Legislative Council meeting.

Following a discussion of old business by the current board, Internal Vice President Frank Orellana will swear in the incoming council members, Orellana said.

"You give them the oath of office and that is when they explicitly sign a contract with the students to represent and serve them the best possible way — from then on they are accountable," he said.

The new representatives are anticipating the excitement of the new year, said Rep-at-Large Dan Schneider.

"I am very excited and optimistic about them. ... They are a very eager and enthusiastic group of individuals," he said. "I look forward to working with them in any way I can."

Chairing Leg Council meetings will be a challenge, said Internal Vice President-elect Kerry Kops.

"I'm excited, but I'm a little busy," she said. "I'm just trying to figure out which Leg Council members go where. ... It's going to be a long meeting."

In old business, a position paper advocating eight hours of mandatory community service per year as a graduation requirement will be put to the board for a vote, said Off-Campus Rep Zack Stillings, who seconded the bill.

"It's a position paper for the university to promote community service for UCSB students," he said.

Community service is a vital aspect of the education process, said External Vice President for Statewide Affairs Colin McCarthy.

"The three tiers of the UC via the Master Plan of Higher Education are teaching, research and community service. It seems the university does very well in the teaching and research arena but seems to fall short in the community service aspect," he said. "If we plan to educate students to enter into the work force they need to be familiar with the community in which they work. In this sense, education needs to extend beyond the borders of Buchanan or Campbell halls."

Rep-at-Large Trinity Eyre expressed similar sentiments.

"I've been on the Community Affairs Board for three years and they really support this," she said. "I think students will get a better sense of the community and who they are."

While community service is beneficial, it should not be mandatory, said Rep-at-Large Aaron Cohen.

"I think there are already a lot of demands on students and if students have the time and feel in their heart [to do community service] they should do it for the personal benefit of doing something inherently good for the community," he said. "I feel that student volunteers could be encouraged by making information and opportunities more readily visible and accessible to students."

Off-Campus Rep Jake White strongly opposes the bill on the grounds it is overburdensome for students.

"I think it's ridiculous that Associated Students should have any say in piling more work on overworked students on this campus. I think there is a reason it's called volunteering and the university should not force students to participate against their will."

Tonight's meeting will convene at 6:30 in Corwin Pavilion.

Facts About Graduate Student Appointments

Prepared by the Office of the Dean of the Graduate Division

The UCSB Association of Graduate Student Employees, an affiliate of the United Automobile Workers (ASE/UAW), has announced a plan to continue yesterday's strike today. With my frequent contacts and open discussions with members of the Graduate Students Association, the Associated Students Legislative Council, as well as students, faculty, and staff in general, I have learned that there is a wide range of opinions on the issue of collective bargaining for teaching assistants. I certainly respect the rights of those who desire TA unionization to pursue that change under state law.

UCSB is deeply committed to provide the best educational environment and experience for all of our students. Whatever your views on this issue, I urge that our commitment to the regular academic and business functions of our campus, as well as all public events, be met during the strike period.

If you have questions or concerns, please call the phone numbers given at the end of the fact sheet below.

HENRY T. YANG, CHANCELLOR

Q. The United Auto Workers (ASE/UAW) is trying to unionize the Teaching Assistants (TAs) at UCSB. They contend that TAs are underpaid and that a union will address their grievances. Is that true?

A. As a single campus of the University of California, UCSB is not authorized to grant collective bargaining rights to students who are not already allowed those rights under state law. ASE/UAW members often refer to a ruling by an administrative judge in a case which grants UCLA collective bargaining rights. However, that decision is not final and pertains only to UCLA. The administrative judge's ruling will be automatically reviewed by the Public Employment Relations Board as a first step of the judicial process.

UCSB values the contributions of graduate students and provides TAs the following compensation and benefits:

- salary of $12,811.50 for an academic year appointment at half time (one course per quarter, for up to 20 hours per week)
- a fee remission of $2,154.00
- payment of their health insurance premium as a benefit package for a total of $846.00.

The total compensation package is equal to $15,811.50 for 50% time employment for the nine-month academic year. Health insurance for spouses and dependents may be purchased for a reasonable fee.

Q. Which state law governs labor relations at UC?

A. The state passed a Higher Education Employer-Employee Relations Act in 1979 to govern labor relations in California higher education. The law states that students whose on-campus employment is related to their educational objectives are not entitled to collective bargaining unless their service predominates over their educational objectives. The University views teaching assistantships as an opportunity for graduate students to gain mentored teaching experience while pursuing an advanced academic degree, as a means of mastering teaching skills essential for their future roles as scholars, and as a form of financial aid.

Q. How much teaching on campus is done by graduate students?

A. Of the nearly 4,400 regular/primary undergraduate courses taught at UCSB each year, Teaching Assistants teach 14%. Of discussion sections of regular courses, 86% are taught by Teaching Assistants. Discussion sessions take up about 25% of class time. The average enrollment in sections led by Teaching Assistants is 21 students per section.

ASE/UAW is seeking to represent UCSB's graduate student instructors. There are currently just over 2,130 graduate students enrolled at UCSB this quarter. It is estimated that about one-third of all graduate students serve as Teaching Assistants each term.

Q. What avenues are available to graduate student instructors to address issues of workload, health benefits and salaries?

A. UCSB seeks to provide the best educational environment and experience for all of its graduate students. Departments have procedures for handling graduate student concerns informally and directly. Students not satisfied with the results of cases addressed within the department may bring their concerns to the Graduate Division where they are brought to the attention of the Graduate Deans. The Graduate Deans will then work with the department to seek resolution to the problem. The Ombuds Office, Affirmative Action Office, and Sexual Harassment Complaint Officer are available to assist in related cases. Issues related to academic employment may be taken up with the academic dean in the college or school. The Graduate Deans are also available to students wishing to discuss employment issues. A formal grievance procedure is available as outlined in Section 140 of the Academic Personnel Manual.

The health benefits package is negotiated each year and a member of the Graduate Student Association (GSA) participates in the process. The policy coverage and cost are approved each year by GSA as a whole. UCSB offers one of the most comprehensive health plans to graduate students within the UC system.

Q. What has the University done to address graduate student employee concerns?

A. Each department has a faculty Graduate Advisor whose job it is to look after the welfare of graduate students in the department. Chancellor Henry Yang and Graduate Dean Charles Li meet regularly with officers of the Graduate Student Association to discuss student interests or concerns. The Graduate Student Association has representatives with voting privileges at all levels of governance of the campus. This includes membership on the Academic Senate Committee on Educational Policy and Academic Planning, Graduate Council, the Library Committee, as well as parking, facilities and student fees administrative advisory committees.

UCSB has established three priorities for graduate students: quality, diversity, and climate. Climate includes the best educational environment and conditions for graduate study, research and teaching endeavors. The Graduate Division, the Academic Senate, and all of the academic departments and programs have been working continuously over the past eight years to create a nurturing and supportive climate for graduate students at UCSB. This is exemplified by the UCSB Graduate Student Bill of Rights, supported by the Graduate Division and endorsed by both the Graduate Student Association and Graduate Council in 1995. This Bill of Rights forms a foundation on which faculty and students work together in our academic community.

to now that you have the support of the Teamsters Union."

The Teamsters Union, which organizes bus drivers and post office and United Parcel Service deliverers, is honoring the TA union strike and will refuse to service the UCSB campus, said English TA Laura Holliday, who also suggested Metropolitan Transit District drivers may limit their services to campus as well.

"We're posting messages at bus stops telling those who want to catch the bus that they're going to have to go to the entrances to campus because they're not dropping people off on campus," she said.

However, MTD officials deny the reports at this time.

Nelson urged students to support the TAs and their quest for recognition.

"I call on all undergraduates to join them in their struggle against the increasing corporatization of the University," he said. "Join them in the struggle for justice."

Sociology Professor Dick Flacks expressed his support for the graduate student employees and explained the significance of having the support of the United Auto Workers, also known as District 65.

"It's sort of an anomaly because District 65 is now part of the United Auto Workers. Why are auto workers sponsoring a union for graduate students? [Because] the auto workers union will put resources into this kind of organizing. It's a sign perhaps of a transformation within the labor movement," he said.

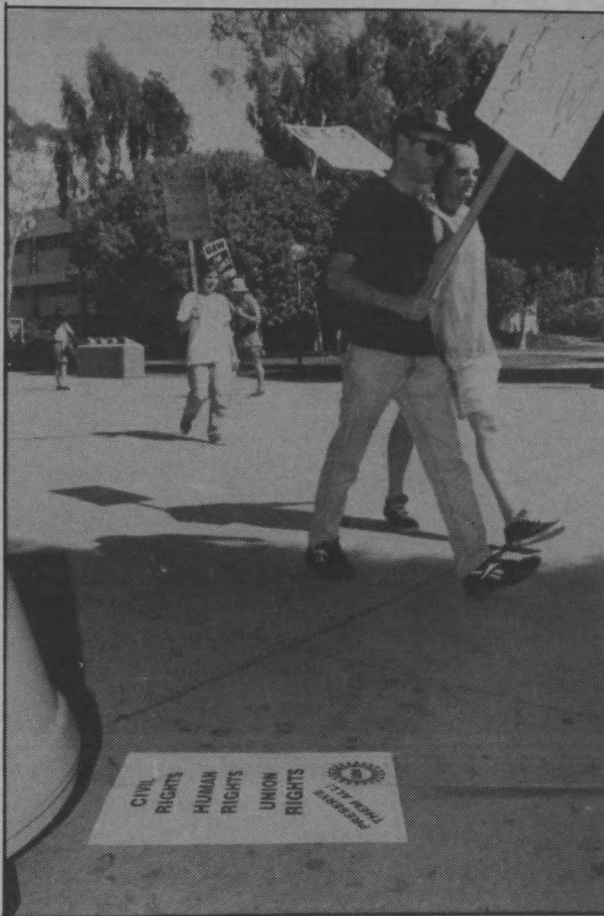

Susan Conrad, member of the UCLA ASE/UAW, informed the crowd about the efforts occurring on other UC campuses and encouraged the TAs.

"I just want to congratulate every one of you on your efforts and support," she said. "This is the fifth strike this quarter as TAs from other UC campuses have staged protests as well."

Conrad rallied the crowd by starting the chant "Sí, se puede," or "Yes, you can," symbolizing the power of the TAs and other academic employees.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Today is an 8 - Schedule your meetings for early. Later in the day, you'll be better at creative projects. In fact, you may be compelled to be creative out of necessity. It's good to have that sense of impending doom. It's motivational.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Today is a 7 - You've had just about enough of bashing your head against a brick wall. You've made progress, but it's been slow going. This evening, you need to do something that doesn't present so much resistance. How about a sappy old romance movie?

Gemini (May 21-June 21) - Today is a 7 - Start major projects and make important connections this morning. Somebody who lives far away will be particularly useful. Around the middle of the day, you may notice a difference. You can make things a lot easier on yourself, and everyone else, by being extra gentle.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) - Today is a 7 - Get all your busywork done early. Make all your phone calls and finish up your correspondence. Then, plan your afternoon and evening activities. Tonight is good for creative projects and relaxation, especially if you've got your chores done. Otherwise, you may feel like brooding.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Today is a 7 - There's no real reason why you have to be good at everything. You'd certainly like that to be true, but it's unrealistic. Actually, once you become good at delegating, anything's possible. Practice that skill this morning. This afternoon, buy your sweetheart something nice.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Today is a 6 - Don't give up. Remember, you're a quick study. If it's taking you a long time, just think how long it would take an ordinary person. This evening, the focus is on partnerships. Do you have somebody in mind? If so, invite that person over to investigate the possibilities.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) - Today is an 8 - You still have an unfair advantage this morning. It diminishes as the day continues, so don't sit around thinking. Take action, and do it early. If there's something you want, ask for it. The morning's your best time to make a commitment to your true love, too.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) - Today is an 8 - You could feel like you're wading through deep mud this morning. Actually, it's just your resistance to doing the next thing on your list. You may not like somebody who's nagging you to do it, either. Just keep slogging along. You'll be through it soon.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) - Today is a 7 - Do you have anything you want to sell? Compose the ad and get it into the paper early. By this afternoon, your life gets more complicated. You'll have several options from which to choose. Pick the one that's best for your family first, career second.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Today is a 6 - If people owe you money, call and remind them to pay up. After that's done, you can get into more pleasurable pursuits. Do you have a new skill you're trying to master? This is an excellent afternoon to practice. It would be a lot of fun, too.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) - Today is an 8 - Make a commitment this morning. You may run into a few problems later, but not to worry. Everything will turn out just fine, eventually. If one of your problems is money, you may be able to solve it this afternoon. There are a couple of legal ways to get more.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) - Today is an 8 - The pressure you've been under should start to lighten up around the middle of the day. There are still a couple of delicate situations to be handled, but that's OK. You're great at those. "Delicate" should be your middle name.

Today's Birthday (May 28). Travel or education, or both, lead to a career advancement this year. Your self-esteem improves noticeably in June. You're lookin' great! Make necessary domestic adjustments in late August. Feedback from your mate makes a huge difference in December. Pay bills in January. Step beyond your boundaries in February. Be prepared to take a test in March for a promotion or better job. Heed an old friend in April. Keep mum in May.

Is it Art, art or A-R-T?

Student Projects Spark Thought, Debate

Marcel Duchamp, famed for "Nude Descending a Staircase," once put his signature on a toilet bowl and titled it "The Fountain." People were outraged, got into a big fight over whether Marcel's autographed crapper was Art (note the capital A), and, in the meantime, a new art movement, Dadaism, was pushed to the fore.

Just something to think about now that UCSB's art students are doing all manner of strange things with their spring projects.

All too often, art gets overlooked by most denizens of our redoubtable campus by the sea, lost amid the great promotional din of what a great research institution UCSB is, how we're ace No. 1 when it comes to the sciences, and all the hoopla over the twin goals of excellence and diversity.

Bromides aside, yes, we're an up-and-coming UC with a bright future in R&D, but who speaks for the "freaks"? The "weirdos"? The ... artists?

For these unfulfilled longings, and for plenty of other reasons, we're pleased as punch that art students have taken their annual act and scattered it across campus once more. In what can best be described as UCSB's own rite of spring, performance artists, costumed randoms and assorted apparatuses have landed here and there and promise a host of happenings until the summer spirits them away.

Is a guy sitting in a big chair by a bike-path with a red carpet in front of him A-R-T? Who cares? His very presence has managed to provoke the question, and on a university campus, anything thought-provoking is great. That random would-be royal in an easy chair might set off a debate between onlookers over whether he's an Artist, or whether or not what he's doing is Art, or even (shudder) the Intimidatingly Large Question: What does it all mean?

Enough to give us all the vapors, for sure. But such brain-benders are uniquely suited to a campus that houses more than a smattering of the more liberal arts as well as some of the premier science research departments in the nation. Most of the projects have managed to be both interactive and aesthetically pleasing, and those with a political point are especially thought-provoking.

Even if a few of the projects look as if they were thrown together at the last minute or born of a twisted psyche, as long as they're out there causing folks to think about something other than the rigors of the daily grind or to ponder the imponderable, then they have done their job. And even if the debate over these performances and exhibitions never ceases, critics must grant that anything capable of sparking such vigorous discussion falls under the auspices of art, if not Art. All art is debatable and debate is good for all of us, keeping dust off the brain and the blood pumping.

That said, three cheers and then some for UCSB's artists. May their imaginations and the fruits thereof continue to make a scene, cause controversy, provoke thought and instigate debate for years to come.

TA HURT OWN REPUTATION

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Regarding Mr. Taylor's response to "Campus Graduate Student Has Record of Sex Offense" (Daily Nexus, May 20): I feel that Mr. Taylor has failed to realize that it is the right of the Daily Nexus to reveal Mr. Garner's past.

I have frequently seen articles published in the newspaper and reported on the television that note the release of a sex offender from prison and where he will be relocated. However, I feel that Mr. Taylor was wrong in blaming the Nexus for damaging this TA's reputation. Mr. Taylor: this TA damaged his own reputation and it is simply the people's right to know if there is a convicted sex offender living in their community.

Perhaps what you do not understand is that Mr. Garner lost his rights when he chose to take something that was unrightfully and unlawfully his! Perhaps you should take into consideration the fact that Mr. Garner brought this situation upon himself when he failed to register as a sex offender in Santa Barbara County. This never would have been an issue if this man had only complied with the law.

Yes, it is sad that this man had to have his name and reputation strewn across this campus, but do not blame the campus paper for the ruination of someone's character.

Mr. Garner chose to damage his own reputation in 1995 in Washington when he chose to rape a woman.

The End Is Near

➤ A Meditation on Graduation

Tom Beers

The end is near. The reality of having to leave college and the lifestyle that goes with it is finally hitting me. No more keg parties, no more sleeping in on weekdays, no more midweek trips to Vegas.

I'll be trading my corduroy shorts, T-shirts and flip-flops for a suit and stiff dress shoes. I, like many of you all who are lucky enough to have amassed 180 units, will be gone in a month from this four-year vacation spot they call UCSB, and will be forced to adjust to a lifestyle I'll probably keep until I'm 65. Needless to say, I'm scared shitless.

I don't know if you other near-graduates have come to grips with the fact that your life is going to change dramatically in the next year or so. I realized this last Friday, when I ventured out to Washington, D.C., in search of a career.

I was engulfed in the so-called real world — and I realized, as I sat there nodding, smiling and pretending to listen to the 70-year-old man that was interviewing me, that this was the beginning of the end. As this relic was describing to me the benefits of working for the government, the existence of a departmental fitness center, and the meager pay scales, all I was hearing was "blah, blah, work, blah, blah, responsibility, blah, blah, 8 a.m."

Meanwhile, all I could think about was that while in college having fun was my primary function — now fun is just going to be something I look forward to having on my day off. How are we as UCSB students, who are so accustomed to the sun, the ocean and the keg, supposed to give all this up and sit in offices for 40 hours a week?

To me, this is mindblowing. I could barely sit through my one-hour interview without daydreaming about being somewhere else. Eight-hour days in a chair? Not coming home from work until the sun sets? People, we're in trouble. Unfortunately for us, there is not an overabundance of careers where you can earn a decent living and work outside. Let me know if you've found one.

So, I've realized that I'm basically stuck on a sedentary career path in which I'm scheduled to return to my current fun-maximizing lifestyle sometime in the year 2038, when I'm supposed to retire. By that time I'll probably weigh 250 pounds, be on a special diet and look like a human raisin. Life sucks.

My parents' advice to me on the subject of leaving school for work was simple. They told me without hesitation, "You'll see, you'll just adjust." In this context, you can feel free to substitute the phrase "get old and settle down like the rest of us," for the word "adjust." I don't want to adjust. I don't want to settle down. I have to admit that one side of me realizes that I need to start living without the financial assistance of mom and pop, which has gotten me where I am today. The other side of me, however, wants to run away to Barbados and live out my life like a drunken sailor in a Jimmy Buffett song.

My advice to seniors is to rage against the dying of the light. Don't settle down unless it's on your terms. And whatever you decide to do with your life make sure you do it because you enjoy it and not just because you think it's the only way to make money (accountants, this means you). Life is not worth living if it's not enjoyable.

To everyone else, have as much fun as humanly possible before you graduate, because having fun seems to become infinitely harder once you're in the real world. Besides, no one in the real world really cares what your GPA was. I've learned in these past few weeks that fun is the most important part of life. So, sleep in whenever possible, skip class whenever it conflicts with fun, and don't stress out about studying for tests. You have the luxury to be a slacker only while you're in college — enjoy it.

Vice President for Local Affairs-elect Leila Salazar lent her support to the strikers.

"I'm here to show my support for you," she said. "I've spent many, many [more] countless hours with TAs than with professors and I know how much you all work and how hard you work. 30TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION

Wednesday, May 28/ 7 & 10PM
UCSB's Isla Vista Theater

In this star-making film of the late 60's, Dustin Hoffman plays Ben Braddock, a pensive and somewhat shy youth of wealthy California suburbia. Balking at his future after graduating from college, Ben gets involved in an affair with Mrs. Robinson, who happens to be a friend to the family. Superb direction by Nichols and great cinematography are brought out in this brand new 35mm print in commemoration of the 30th anniversary of the film. (Nichols, 1967, 105 min.)

A zany, hysterically funny, brilliant send-up of every medieval movie ever made, Monty Python and the Holy Grail follows King Arthur and his knights in their search for the legendary Holy Grail. What happens in the next 90 minutes is virtually impossible to describe. By far the best Monty Python film, Monty Python and the Holy Grail benefits from the keen direction of Terry Gilliam (12 Monkeys).

MEETING

"The quality of the surface of the bikepaths have decreased due to erosion of the asphalt and uprooting by nearby trees. This threatens the safety of pedestrians and bikers alike. Considering the number of riders that use the paths, this is unacceptable," he said. "Bike parking lots are having problems too. . . . Some lots have inadequate parking. It's simply a matter of reorganizing the racks that exist."

Associated Students President Russell Bartholow affirmed the need for bikepath improvement by recounting his own riding experiences.

"I have personally experienced bike accidents," he said. "And when you're talking about peak times, it's pretty insane."

The proposed CPC recommendation includes formation of a subcommittee situation using money from the Fines and Forfeitures fund for maintenance, repair and improvements, Dixon said.

"The Parking and Transportation Committee has said that bicycles be used for repair and new improvements."

Action on the bikepath proposal will be postponed, said Robert Kuntz, assistant chancellor of Budget and Planning.

"We won't be acting on this recommendation today," he said. "This is a preliminary project proposal and we'll be coming back to this in June, but this is a recommendation that we will have to consider at our next meeting."

Other items discussed during the meeting included the schematic design approval for a seawater renewal system by Campus Lagoon and approval to add a fourth and fifth floor to the Environmental Sciences Building to be completed in the year 2005.

ting [in] ... new alarm systems for the schools and telephone systems," she said. "We want to get Isla Vista [Elementary School] up and running."

Approximately $8 million from the sale is earmarked for I.V. Elementary, which will be torn down in about a year and rebuilt during the 1998-99 school year, said I.V. Elementary School Principal Stephen Flores.

The new school will be revitalized and expanded to accommodate the kindergartners who are currently being bused to Branden Elementary, Flores said.

"We've been working with the architectural firm on creating schematic drawings ... of the proposed new school. On June 4, the board will vote on whether to except these drawings and proceed with these. Then they start making very detailed drawings and the process takes anywhere from four to six months," he said.

Specific renovations planned for I.V. Elementary feature revamped facilities and equipment, Flores added.

"It's pretty clear-cut," he said. "The architects have a budget of $7.4 million to work within. The budget will include not only new buildings, but new parking lots, new playgrounds, new play equipment [and] new classroom furniture. The architects have met with teachers, classified staff, the parent community and actually with our student council."

The architects' plans, as well as the money allocations for each site, will be reviewed by the GUSD Board of Trustees this September, when final decisions will be made. Chapman said the earliest date that all projects might be completed is during fall of the year 2000.

LIBRARY

"I can laugh now, I couldn't then," she said. "I was getting a little paranoid. Someone finally came back and said, 'We hear you and we're going to call for help.' They kind of kept me posted."

Peter Shapiro, library assistant for acquisitions, was working in the area when the incident occurred, and thinks the situation was handled poorly.

"The library administration seemed to be unconcerned about a library employee stuck in the elevator. They seemed to be unconcerned that the emergency phones didn't seem to work, that the emergency buttons didn't seem to work and more than that, they seemed to have purposely decided that fixing the telephones is no big deal," he said.

Yet library administrative assistant Dennis Olson believes he took adequate action by reporting to Communications Services.

"I just call in the basic problems," he said. "[Communications Services] told me that they were repaired."

Shapiro maintained

The elevator may be the example which provides the clearest condition of a lot of things that have been happening here.

Peter Shapiro
library assistant for acquisitions that the elevator had not been functioning properly, and the administration's choice to put in new office carpeting seemed to eclipse its concern for employee safety.

"That particular elevator has been a problem for many, many months," he said. "In the meantime, these [lawn chairs on the employee lounge deck] are new, the bean bags are new, they've got a new carpet, they've got new software in the administrative office. ... It's all — gosh — incredible."

Communication Services' Paul Velenzuela, associate director and operations manager, said they have repaired the phone, adding that the phone slipped through the cracks of a usually reliable checking system.

"If it's been reported, it's been fixed," he said. "Once a month, every month, every phone on the campus is checked [by CSOs]. ... I know I lose at least a phone a week to vandalism — someone cuts the wire or stuffs a banana into the speaker."

Shapiro said this is the latest in a string of offenses against employees committed by library administrators, whom he accused of being historically apathetic toward employee concerns.

"The elevator may be the example which provides the clearest condition of a lot of things that have been happening here," he said. "There is one thing that does seem to be repetitive. If the administration of this library can avoid dealing with health and safety, and they pretend to be doing something about it ... that's really not good."

"At odd hours there are custodians working here too, and if these phones aren't working and if something serious happens, that could be the difference between someone really getting the emergency assistance they need and someone suffering. I mean, she was in there for an hour."

Yier's Out!

By Yier Shi

Nearly two years ago, I stepped into a dungeon underneath Storke Tower that I now call home — the Daily Nexus office. Countless hours and over 100 stories later, today I reluctantly bid farewell to the institution that has been so much a part of my life.

This last year as sports editor has been especially rewarding. Not only did I get to meet some very special people from all walks of life on campus, but I have also been fortunate enough to share some of the ecstasy of victory and agony of defeat that defined UCSB athletics this season. For that, I have all the hard-working Gaucha athletes to thank.

It's certainly impossible to list more than 400 students and 21 coaches in such limited space, but special gratitude is reserved for the three teams that I have covered in the past season. To Kathy Gregory and the women's volleyball team, Jerry Pimm and the men's basketball team and Bob Brontsema and the baseball team, you guys have been great to work with.

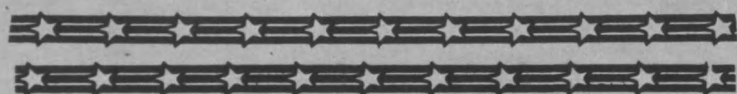

I would be remiss if I didn't thank some more people that have made my job much easier this year. To the athletic department and Dr. Gary Cunningham, all the staff at the Sports Information office, and all the Nexus staff, thanks for putting up with my often difficult personality.

As I sit here in front of our 1970s Mycro-Tek computer, I feel the product of an absolute transformation from the inexperienced reporter I was two years ago. In that, I owe everything to my predecessors — Curtis Kaiser, Mike Cadilli, Alex Nugent, Steven Large and Brian Berger, for teaching me everything I needed to know about this job. I wish I could be as successful in passing that knowledge to the future sports editors. To Scott Hennesee and Ben Alkaly, good luck next year.

Finally, I'd like to give props to some of my dear friends. Ed, Jeff, Troy, Frank and Dave, your constant support has been much underappreciated this year and I apologize. Good luck with all your endeavors next year.

As with most thank-you speeches, I feel like I have forgotten to include some people on my list. If that is the case, please accept my apologies now. Know that you are not forgotten.

It's been a great experience. Thank you all for being part of it.

Athlete of the Year

Honorable Mention

Dave Cullum

SPORT: Track and Field

YEAR: Senior

HOMETOWN: Mission Viejo, Calif.

POSITION: Distance Runner

STATS: Cullum broke school records in three different events this season. His mark of 14:00 in the 5,000 meters was 18 seconds faster than the previous record. Cullum's time of 3:46.84 in the 1,500 meters eclipsed a Gaucha record that stood for 21 years. Cullum also ran a school-best time of 8:48.20 in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

ACCOMPLISHMENT: Cullum placed second in the 3,000-meter steeplechase and third in the 5,000 meters at last weekend's Big West Championships. He will compete in the 3,000-meter steeplechase in the NCAA Championships June 4-7 in Bloomington, Ind.
