New CAF Schedule Goes Into Effect On Both Campuses

A new schedule of operations for the College Cafeterias went into effect on Wednesday, July 14, according to a statement issued by J. A. D. Muncy, college business manager and Frances F. Spike, supervisor of Dining Halls.

For the balance of the first Summer Session breakfast will be served from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. and lunch from 11:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on the Riviera Campus. On the Mesa Campus limited service only will be offered for the balance of the session for both meals.

During the second Summer Session limited service will be offered for breakfast on the Riviera Campus, where lunch will be served at the same hours as during the first session. Breakfast will not be served on the Mesa Campus, but limited service will be given for lunch.

Limited service was defined by Miss Spike as being restricted to the sale of coffee, doughnuts, sandwiches and such items at certain hours which are to be posted during the periods such service is being offered.

Modern Educator Plays Many Roles Says Aztec Head

The modern school administrator must have as many roles as a fine repertory actor, believes Dr. Walter Hepner, president of San Diego State College, who addressed California educators gathered at the final session of the tenth annual School Executives Conference held recently at U.C.L.A. under the auspices of University Extension.

"The school administrator must be a leader, a morale builder, a policy developer, an administrator and a supervisor. In addition he must be a leader in the community. Indeed, the function and scope of action of the administrator are almost as broad as society itself," the San Diego educator declared.

"The administrator's major objective is to administer public education to the end that children and youth may achieve the maximum learnings needed in a dynamic democratic society. The achievement of this objective requires insight and operational know-how, continuously enlightened and perfected by experience and study," Dr. Hepner concluded.

IT'S NOT MUCH but the El Gaucho is all yours. If you are interested in seeing the paper published for the remainder of the summer, then we humbly ask for a little help. You don't have to be an ace newspaper man or woman, but just be willing to do a little work one or two days a week. If you are interested, put a note in box "J" to Phil Jacks, or sign up in the El Gaucho office.

New Residence Rules Show For Teacher-In-Service; Important!

The attention of teachers-in-service is called to the following residence requirements as stated on page 48 of the 1948-49 Catalogue:

"Residence Requirement Effective July 1, 1948

Every candidate for a bachelor's degree is required to have been enrolled in the college during his two final semesters of residence; the last 24 units must be done while so enrolled. It is permissible to offer a total of twelve weeks of summer sessions as equivalent to one semester, but the student must complete at least one regular semester of his senior year in residence instruction. Credit earned by special examinations taken at Santa Barbara College will not count for residence credit."

In order that teachers-in-service may not be penalized by this rule, this residence requirement is amended as follows:

"Relative to old, returning teachers-in-service; In order to graduate by summer session attendance only, the student must have completed seventy-five (75) units by the end of the 1948 summer sessions, ninety (90) units by the end of the 1949 summer session, and one hundred five (105) units by the end of the 1950 summer session."

All-Time Record For New Housing Construction Seen

The completion of 125,000 new homes or more in Southern California during 1948 is now virtually assured. A new all-time record for home construction is almost certain to result from the tremendous momentum of residence building now taking place.

This was the housing outlook for the Southland offered by Vern R. Huck, President of the Building Contractors Association of California, this week. He asserted that every reliable source of home building information shows positively that California builders are meeting the housing need of the State much more rapidly than the shortage is being overcome in other parts of the nation.

"The astonishing part of it," Huck continued, "is that we are faced with the greatest housing shortage in the nation to overcome, we must depend on out-of-state sources for 75 per cent of our materials used in home construction, and we are operating without the assistance of an important phase of FHA home loan insurance which Congress allowed to lapse; yet we continue to pull away from the other States in the rate at which we are filling the housing need."

The prospects for less expensive housing are brighter every day, Huck declared. A constant supply of adequate materials and labor is absolutely essential to perfecting lower cost housing, he said.

DR. PAUL D. WIENPAHL

New Philosophy Prof To Assume Duties At UCSB Next Fall

Dr. J. H. Williams, Acting Provost, announced the addition of Dr. Paul D. Wienpahl of New York University, who will join the faculty next fall as assistant professor of philosophy. He will be attached to the department of social sciences.

Dr. Wienpahl is a native of Wyoming, and holds three degrees from the University of California at Los Angeles. His doctorate was completed in 1946. He subsequently served as instructor in philosophy at New York University. During the war years he served as an officer in the U. S. Army.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Pi Gamma Mu, and the American Philosophical Association. His philosophical views are embodied in an article on "Philosophy of Ethics, Ethics and Moral Theory," which appeared in the Journal of Philosophy earlier this year. He is expected to arrive late in the summer to begin his teaching with the opening of the fall semester.

Of Dr. Wienpahl, Professor Sidney Hook, of New York University says, "I have rarely met any young man in philosophy whose prospects of a career as a teacher and scholar seem to me so bright. He would constitute a distinctive asset to any department of philosophy in the country."

GARDEN TOURS CONTINUE; NEXT JAUNT TODAY

Another of the series of Garden Tours will be conducted this afternoon, under the direction of Miss Pearl Chase.

The Tour will leave the Recreation Center promptly at 2:00 p.m. to visit some of the famous estates around Santa Barbara. Students interested in going should sign up in the office of the Graduate Manager.

Everyone attending is requested to bring his own car if possible.

Twelve Faculty Members Receive Dept Promotions

Twelve faculty members at Santa Barbara College received promotions in a list issued recently by Dr. J. Harold Williams, acting Provost.

The promotions were made in nine departments.

Among those promoted were: Dr. Elmer R. Noble from associate professor to professor of zoology in biological sciences; Dr. Glenn W. Durlinger, from assistant professor to associate professor of education in the education-psychology department; Dr. Samuel A. Wofsy, from instructor to assistant professor of Spanish in Foreign Languages.

Also, Dr. Lynne C. Monroe, from associate professor to professor in industrial arts; Dr. Stanley L. Rauch from assistant professor to associate professor of mathematics.

Two promotions occurred in the physical education department with Wilton M. Wilton advancing from instructor to assistant professor, and M. Jean Bellinger from instructor to assistant professor; and two in Physical Sciences, where Dr. Willard L. McRary was promoted from assistant professor to associated professor, and Dr. Allan E. Williams also from assistant to associate professor.

Likewise, in Social Sciences there were two promotions, with Dr. A. Russell Buchanan advancing from associate professor to professor of history, and Dr. D. MacKenzie Brown, from associate professor to professor of political science.

In Speech, Dr. John C. Snidecor was advanced from associate professor to professor.

Stanford Adds Former Student To Faculty List

Dr. Thomas C. Smith, who holds an AB degree from Santa Barbara College has been added to the faculty of Stanford University as an instructor in the field of Japanese history. Dr. Smith received his Ph.D in Far Eastern history at Harvard this month. He holds a master's degree from the University of California.

During the war he was selected for intensive Japanese language training and served in the Marines with the rank of Captain. He was interpreter at the surrender of the Japanese on Southern Honshu, remaining in Japan until 1946 when he returned to the U. S. to do graduate work at Harvard.

The addition of Dr. Smith is part of the plan for the strengthening of the Far Eastern study program at Stanford, it was announced by Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, acting president.

New personnel will be added to the program and new library materials secured, he said, in line with the university's recognition of the increasing importance of the areas and peoples of Asia, long a field of intensive interest at the university.

Tickets Still Remain For Water Event; Fish License Required

A fishing trip to the Channel Islands will take place on Sunday, July 18, with the boat leaving the Naval Dock at 7:00 a.m.

Bait will be provided on deck. It has been suggested that heavy sinkers will probably be necessary due to the strong current in the Channel. A fishing license is required for all those interested in fishing.

At present there are no plans for stopping at the islands since the cruise is intended primarily for fishing and sunning. It will be advisable to provide a good lunch in preparation for the large appetite that such a trip inevitably causes.

The number of students attending is limited by the space on the boat which is restricted to 125 persons. Therefore, tickets should be purchased early to avoid disappointment. Reservations should be made in the office of the Graduate Manager where tickets are available at $2.50 for non-student body card holder and $2.25 for students with student body cards.

Ex-Football Great Takes Boys Camp Job at Los Prietos

Howard L. Yeager, one of Santa Barbara College's all-time football "greats," has been named instructor at the Los Prietos Boys Camp, it was announced by County Probation Officer W. F. Gunnerson.

Yeager will conduct classes in the forestry camp's high school, which is a branch of the Santa Ynez Valley High School. For the past year and a half he has been at Jackson High School in Los Angeles as chairman of the physical education department.

Yeager, who played a year of professional football with the New York Giants, attended Santa Barbara College for 3½ years and was chosen on the Little All-American football team in 1937. He was also a stellar performer in track and basketball. Yeager was a Physical Education major, and a member of Kappa Sigma Fraternity. He served in the Army for 3½ years as a flying instructor.

Last Twilight Sing Will Feature Solo, Trumpet Duets

The theme of the last Twilight Sing, to be held Thursday evening July 22, will be "Great Songs of the Allied Nations."

Special featured attractions of the sing will be a trumpet duet played by Howard Siegel and Jack Sadler, and vocal solos by Jean Lewis.

Everyone is invited to attend to last Sing, which will start promptly at 7:00 p.m. in the Quad, and will extend from 45 minutes to an hour. Dr. Van A. Christy, chairman of the music department is in charge of the program.

PRIVATE EYE TELLS HISTORY OF SECRET BAFFLING CRIME

(This is the first of my celebrated cases to be publicly printed. The only reason that I am letting this one be put in the paper is because the modern private investigators are showing such a poor method of deduction. You will no doubt immediately notice that I have not mentioned my name in any portion of the story. This is not hard to understand, because I am a secret investigator, and they never reveal their names.)

THE MYSTERY OF THE UNSOLVED MYSTERY

I walked into my office and tossed my secretary a cheery greeting. She caught it and tossed it back. I then pulled out my .38 and shot her in the chest. She smiled and pulled back her coat revealing a bullet-proof vest. That's the way I am; I demand efficiency. I believe that the secretary to a private detective should come dressed for the occasion. I then walked over to a chart on the wall and pasted a gold star on it. I also believe in rewarding good work.

Private Office

I crawled into my private office. I always crawl into it, never walk. There was a man lying on my desk. He had a knife sticking in his back. He was quite dead. With a sigh I hoisted him on my shoulders, walked over to the window, and threw him out. If he couldn't bother to make an appointment, why should I bother to take his case. I sauntered over to my desk and sat down. I took a bottle of whiskey out of the bottom drawer and poured some of the amber liquid into a water glass. I then poured in out into the wastebasket. I can't stand whiskey.

My secretary pushed her head through the letter slot and announced that there was a client to see me. At my nod she withdrew her head, and a few moments later entered my office carrying a man on her back. My office is noted for its service. She deposited the man in a chair, and after shining his shoes she left.

Brilliant Talk

The man smiled. I smiled. The man sneezed. I sneezed. The man took out a cigarette and began smoking it. I took out a cigarette and began chewing it. I don't smoke.

"Will you take the case," he asked.
 "Of course," I replied.
 "Will fifty thousand dollars be enough of a retainer," he asked.
 "Of course," I replied.
 "Good luck," he said.
 "Of course," I replied.

We shook hands across the desk, and he left. I took another bite out of the cigarette and reviewed the facts of the case. The hugeness of the whole thing frightened me.

Old Friends

I walked into the Blue Dove night club, sneaked up behind the manager, and tapped him on the head with my blackjack. We were old friends. "Trigger" Mason, the owner, came up to me.

"You can't prove a thing, shamus. You'll never pin anything on me."

He then pulled out a .45 and shot himself in the head. That was what I liked about "Trigger." He always went out of his way to prove his sincerity.

I walked into the washroom to talk to Sam, the porter. He was busy feeding peanuts to an ele-

Inside of Sport of Kings Revealed By Much Harried Fan

Due to the tremendous response to my last article on horse racing, I will dedicate another column to the "Sport of Kings." The response came from three jockeys, four bookies, and the president of a glue factory, to whom I have sent so much business.

Great Thrill

I don't think that there is anything to match the thrill of seeing a group of horses pound down the home-stretch. The horses and jockeys are straining, the crowd is cheering, and the man behind you is trying to pick your pocket. This latter situation doesn't bother you, because if it is the seventh or eighth race you won't have anything in your pocket anyway.

The best time for the average racing fan to go to the track is phant that was tied to a radiator. I hit him in the face with my blackjack.

"Talk, Sam. I've got the goods on you."

Twenty minutes later I walked out of the washroom with a signed five hundred page statement, and three bags of peanuts. As I left the night club, the manager hit me over the head with a bottle of champagne. Always joking.

Sounds Familiar

I walked into my office and tossed my secretary a cheery greeting. She wasn't looking, so it hit her in the face. She wiped it off, and smiled. I then threw a knife at her. It stuck into her left shoulder. With a snarl, I walked over to the chart and pulled off a gold star. I waited while my secretary, with tears of shame running down her face, cleaning my knife.

When I crawled into my private office the man was there, rifling my safe, and drinking my whiskey. He looked up and smiled. I also smiled.

"Have you solved the case?" he asked.

"Of course," I replied.
 "Well?" he asked.
 "You killed him," I replied.
 "Wonderful," he said. "Here is another fifty thousand for being so clever. You are great."

"Of course," I replied.
 We shook hands over the desk, and the man left.

What's Money?

I walked out of the office building into the darkness of the night. This was quite a feat in itself, being as it was two o'clock in the afternoon. I saw a bum leaning against a lamp-post.

"Match you for a hundred thousand dollars," I said.
 "Right," he answered.

The coins spun into the air. His said heads; mine said tails. I handed him the hundred thousand, and he walked away. I decided to go to a movie. I went.

on a Saturday or a holiday. The reason for this is that it is usually so crowded that you won't be able to get up to the windows to bet all eight races. This will save you enough money to get home on. Even the horses seem to become infected with the holiday spirit. One nag that I bet on one Fourth of July stopped in the middle of the race to shoot off some sky-rockets. It was the last race of the day, and he kept in the festive spirit by using sparklers to light his way to the finish line.

Time Right For New Home Construction-Contracting Head

Prices and weather conditions most favorable for residential construction will make it advantageous for prospective home builders to have the construction of their new homes begun as soon as possible. This was advocated this week by Vern R. Huck, president of the Building Contractors Association of California.

Huck declared: "We are now entering a period of time when it is most likely that construction costs will be at their lowest mark in the next few years. Everyone who has held back the construction of his new home while waiting for prices to drop would be wise to plan the start of the building without further delay."

Huck pointed out that dollar for dollar the next few months will offer the best building value for the new home buyer. He said that continuous experimentation will probably develop means to construct less expensive homes later on. These lower cost homes, he said, will have all the essentials for comfortable living but their value proportionate to cost will be less than homes built in the immediate future.

Weather conditions for the next few months should allow maximum progress in home construction, Huck said. He advocated immediate construction if possible to escape the delays caused by rain and other adverse weather conditions.

"California builders face a two-fold problem in the effect of weather in construction work," he observed. "First, as it affects work

COLLEGE ALUM APPOINTED TO PRINCIPAL'S JOB

Julio Bortolazzo, graduate of the Santa Barbara City Schools and Santa Barbara College, has just been named principal of Jefferson High School in Portland, Oregon, it was learned recently. Jefferson is Portland's largest high school.

Following his graduation from Santa Barbara College, Bortolazzo taught at Santa Barbara Junior High School until he was awarded a scholarship to Harvard University to study for his doctorship in education, a work he is continuing.

He took his Master's Degree at the University of Southern California. He was an honor student both there and at Santa Barbara College. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Kappa Fraternity.

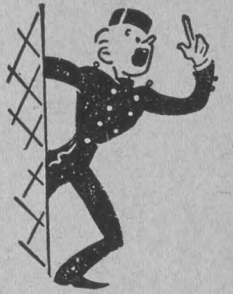

LATIN OFFERED BY LANGUAGE DEPT. IN FALL

Latin 1 and 2 will be offered by the Department of Foreign Languages for the first time beginning in the Fall Semester, it was announced this week by Dr. W. F. Aggeler, chairman of the department. Instructor will be Mr. Pablo Avila.

In adding Latin to the curriculum, Dr. Aggeler pointed out that aside from its cultural value, a knowledge of Latin is required by many universities for a master's degree in English, foreign languages and other subjects.

Both 1 and 2 will give five-unit credit and will be announced in the Fall laundry sheet.

THE UNIVERSITY BALLAD

Students

We study everything from A to Z,
We ponder on the arts and science, too,
We try to understand philosophy,
Which even the professors do not do.
We seek to figure out the ways of old,
The Roman and the Greek and Christian way,
But we must always do as we are told,
For if we tell the truth we cannot stay.

For we are the college students
You have heard so much about,
We're God's gift to our dear country,
And will gladly help her out;
When we have our fine degrees,
Diplomas, pins, and cap and gown,
Why, you'll know we are the greatest
In each hamlet and each town.

Yes, we are the college students
Who are soon to graduate,
With the honors of a craftsman,
Whether now or soon or late;
And we study for examinations
Till the night is through,
Then promptly forget everything,
For it's the thing to do.

Professors

We are the great professors
Who know all the answers yet,
We make all our students study,
Though we know they soon forget;
We make them search in libraries
Through old and obscure tomes,
And sometimes our education
Even breaks up happy homes
Yes, we are the great professors
Who rule education now,
We teach rules and regulations,
But never why nor how;
You may study everything we tell,
Yet you will only find
That the only education

Really lives in your own mind.
Students and Professors
Yes, we form the population
Of our education realm,
And we all are now preparing
To take our country's helm;
We will study, cram, and scurry,
And our marks will prove it so,
You may think that we are wrong,
But it's the only way we know.

And as college men we all expect
The better jobs to find,
Though to practical realities
We know we're rather blind;
But as scholars we all know
That we are ever true and right,
Though we're almost ready to confess
We are a sorry sight.

Therefore go to college, children,
And seek knowledge while you may,
For unless you have your credits,
In this world you cannot stay;
Within our universities
All answers will be told,
It's the key to life and fortune,
And of course to wealth and gold.

Vocational Guidance Offered to Veterans At Los Angeles VA

Veteran students on vacation between college semesters are urged to secure vocational guidance during the summer weeks by Dr. Llewellyn Wiley, head of the Veterans Administration Guidance Center at the University Extension, University of California at Los Angeles.

During July and August, counselors' calendars are not as crowded as during the school months, Wiley said, and veterans who need vocational advice may secure more immediate and longer consultations.

Many veterans who are eligible for vocational rehabilitation do not know it and are not aware of the advantages of Public Law Number 16, according to Dr. Wiley.

The law provides as much as four years of training regardless of the amount of time over 90 days which a man has spent in service.

Exclusive Theater Showing Thrills College Reporter

I was very honored when one of the local theatres called me on the phone and asked me to be a guest at a private showing of a new smash-hit movie. I wouldn't have been too excited if I had been told that it was going to be a "hit" movie, but a "smash hit," is a movie of another odor. I wasn't told what the name of the movie was, or who was to star in it, but I figured that nothing less than Lana Turner, Betty Grable, Clark Gable, and Gary Cooper was to be the order of the day.

Exclusive Showing

I had never been to an exclusive showing before, and was therefore surprised to find only three thousand assorted stars, directors, producers, and popcorn vendors at the theatre. I was shown to my press seat on top of a Coca-Cola machine, and settled back to enjoy the festivities. There was some character disturbing everyone by singing snatches from all of the songs on the Hit Parade, and after seventy-two complaints I shut up.

Lights Out

Finally the lights went out, and a murmur ran through the crowd. I tried to catch it, but it slipped through my fingers. The screen blazed with light, and the thrilled assemblage was notified that the picture was entitled "The Return of the Yo-Yo," starring Vladimir Smaltz and Lucy Blapp. Two hours later, those present were all agreed that this pic was the greatest film since "The Yo-Yo's Last Spin," the picture that shot into movie greatness those two famous lovers Alfonse Brrrp and Peggy Timph.

Tired, but happy, I hurried home to sit on the stove. Those Coca-Cola machines get pretty cold.

New UC Cancer Ward Opened In San Francisco

One of the world's unique laboratories for the study of cancer, the University of California Laboratory for Experimental Oncology, has gone into full operation with the recent opening of a ward for human research patients.

The laboratory is a cooperative venture of the University's Medical School and the National Cancer Institute, financed by the U. S. Public Health Service, and quartered in the Laguna Honda Home by the City and County Health Service.

A four point program of the laboratory includes the study of the electronic characteristics of normal and malignant growth, with such tools as supersonic waves; investigation of the nature of changes in the whole body brought about by cancer; the experimental chemical treatment of cancer with new agents; and a fundamental study of the characteristics of human malignant tissue.

Work in some of these fields has been in progress in cooperation with San Francisco hospitals since the laboratory was established in January, 1947. Full scale operations have awaited the opening of the new ward.

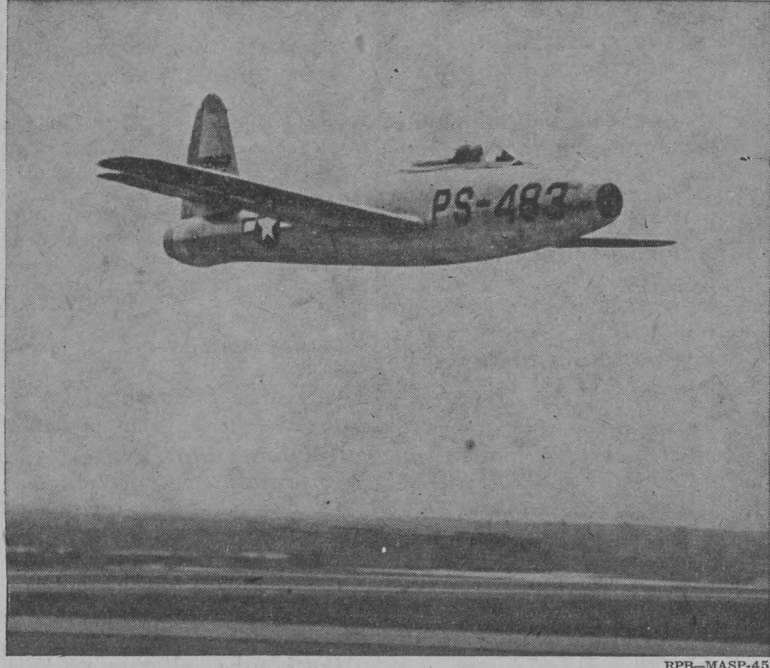

Director of the laboratory is Dr. Michael Shimkin, professor of experimental oncology, and his assistant is Dr. Howard R. Bierman, associated professor of experimental oncology.

AN RKO RADIO RELEASE

WHY... I smoke Chesterfield
(FROM A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)
Liggett & Myers buy top quality cigarette tobacco and pay top prices for it... nobody will average paying more than they do, year in and year out.
I've been smoking Chesterfields ever since I've been smoking. I just like them... they have real tobacco flavor.
