Walter Scott's Personality Charade

Want to know who's sleeping with whom? Want to size up your favorite personality? Walter Scott uncovers the truth about them. Write Walter Scott, Central Intelligence Agency, Washington D.C. 20220, or pick up the nearest phone and ask for the operator.

Q. Erica Jong, author of "Fear of Flying," doesn't she actually prefer trains? X.H., Chicago, Illinois

A. Jong, 37, claims that she actually does prefer trains, although she chastises the men that run them because they are too terminal. Says Jong, "They've yet to see the light at the end of the tunnel." Airplanes, she says, "simply don't understand what it's like to be a woman." "Fear of Flying" was her first attempt to understand the real world since she gave up poetry.

Q. Aristotle Onassis, H.L. Hunt, and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, aren't they the three richest men in the world, and who will inherit their money when they die? J.K.O., Dallas Texas

A. Onassis, Hunt, and Faisal are certainly among the richest men in the world, and will leave bundles to their heirs. Most of the Onassis fortune will go to his first wife, Maria Callas, who claimed in 1947 that she wouldn't marry the man for just a song. Hunt will leave most of his money in trust fund in former President Richard M. Nixon's name. Faisal's fortune will go to Standard Oil.

Q. What is General Westmoreland going to do now that he was defeated in the South Carolina gubernatorial election? Verna Cement, Soggy Home, Oregon

A. Following his doctor's orders, the General has retired to his plantation where he will spend his days defoliating his cotton fields far away from any potentially disturbing concentrations of Asian population.

Q. What is Mae West's beauty secret? Levi Jenex, Sappherville, Ohio

A. Miss West preserves her beauty by avoiding any and all public appearances.

Q. Now that former Presidential thug H.R. Haldeman has been sentenced to Newport Beach Federal Correctional Resort, how does he plan to support his wife and family? Joaquin Murieta, Gauleiter, Wisconsin

A. Haldeman plans to open up a chain of collection agencies in the Southern California area.

Q. What are the possibilities of Henry Kissinger, Jerry Brown, George McGovern, or Henry Fonda becoming the next Democratic nominee for the Presidency?

Mary Mee, Trailer Park, Missouri

A. Of the four, Henry Fonda probably would have the best shot at it, due largely to his convincing performance in "Seven Days in May." He was a great decision maker. Kissinger can't seriously be considered because he can't speak English. The United States has never had a president who could not speak English since Franklin D. Roosevelt had his stroke in 1940. Most Americans believe that they would be better off if McGovern were the gardener at Mount Rushmore, and unfortunately, Brown is too much of a closet Republican to ever be a good president.

Q. J. Paul Getty III, heir to the Getty oil industrialist's fortunes and who was kidnapped in a bizarre extortion attempt a year and a half ago, what ever became of his right ear? Morton Salt, Mosquito, Maine.

A. The young Getty, who lost his ear when his kidnapers wanted to insure that they were heard, remains in Italy, although the whereabouts of his ear is unknown. Young Getty tried to stir up the provincial Italian town of Anvil when he claimed that that was the place where he lost the ear. The Italian press hammered out story after story, but to date rumors about the real location of the lost lobe are still waxing strong.

Q. Why is hack Hollywood director Peter Bogdanovich donating his earnings to the Christian Leppers Fund? Carla Rucksack, Godawful, North Carolina

A. Bogdanovich has always sympathized with those less fortunate than himself as he labors under some pretty considerable handicaps himself. Besides suffering under the stigma of Serbian extraction, Mr. B. has also been seen in the company of Cybil Shepard, need we say more?

Q. Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller, since becoming the wives of the number one and two persons in the nation respectively, have become individuals in their own right. Isn't it true that their conservative husbands think that they have overstepped their bounds in becoming involved in the women's liberation movement? Christine Aorta, Huevos, Texas

A. Most husbands like to think that their wives reflect their man's finer qualities, but both Happy Rockefeller and Betty Ford concede that to get the public to admire their husbands is a delicate operation. Says Betty Ford, "Public opinion is a sensitive area. One day you've got it and the next day it's gone. Happy and I both have a difficult time keeping abreast of it, but we thank the Lord for what we have. Both wives agree that since the tribulations of their husbands' presidential and vice presidential confirmations, they have breathed a lot easier.

Q. There's been a lot of talk going around about how King Faisal of Saudi Arabia would like to ruin Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and his brothers so he can take over American interests in Standard and Exxon Oil Companies. Any truth to that?

A. None. As a matter of fact, Rockefeller is planning to trave to Saudi Arabia in the near future to discuss the prospects of increasing American interests in the Arabian-American Oil Company (Aramco).

California Gov. Jerry Brown (right) confers with Assemblyman Willie Brown (no relation) just before the passage of important sex legislation.

Jerry Brown Picking Up In Sacramento

Jerry Brown is young, handsome, and successful. Since last November, the 36-year-old bachelor has served as the Governor of California.

The affable youngster's political success is not surprising considering his family background. His father, Edmund Brown, Sr. (popularly known as Pat) was California's governor for eight years until he was defeated in 1962 by a character actor named Ronald Reagan. Jerry's mother was once chairman of the Greater Sacramento Garden Club and the governor's sister, Kathleen Brown Rice (who is married), is now running for a school board seat in Los Angeles.

What is surprising then about Brown's political success is that it finally seems California has a governor that suits its style.

The golden state is famous for its diverse and swinging elements such as Sunset Blvd., Haight-Ashbury, and San Diego. But until now, California has suffered under older more settled chief executives. There was Brown's father, the codgy old Pat who was happily married. Then came the stiff-necked Reagan who was also happily married for the second time. Now there is Jerry Brown who is not married but, according to close friends, is happy and gay.

"Jerry's the kind of guy who makes you feel good when you're near him," lisped his press secretary and personal friend Bill Shawl. "He is naturally reserved in public and only lets his hair down when he is in private with trusted friends."

Brown's reputation as a swinging single preceded his reputation as a politician.

Actress Ann-Margret, whom Brown once

dated, claimed that "he was dynamite. A really fun and intelligent guy who didn't let his philosophy stand in the way of a good time."

The statuesque actress went on to describe him as "a little kinky but pretty normal."

Jerry spent his formative years in a Jesuit seminary studying for the priesthood. He said he left because of the isolation from the real world. But it seems the real reasons are identical to the reasons that made him leave the University of Santa Clara. In his own words he "ran out of new experiences."

His roommate at the seminary, Teddy Hesburgh, who is now teaching introductory theology at Notre Dame, described Jerry as "a go-go guy. Always joking and never resting."

Upon leaving the seminary, Brown entered Yale Law School. A number of close friends say that the future glitter star of California politics spent almost as much time in Greenwich Village as he did studying torts while he was back east.

He then joined a prestigious L.A. law firm where he ran up a record number of acquittals for clients on moral charges.

One senior partner said "Jerry really threw himself into those cases."

Now the governor dates infrequently because of the duties of the office. At one L.A. cafe he frequents, the owner Roxy Starr says Brown always tips heavily when he brings a date to dinner.

Bruce Luce, Brown's chief legislative aide, says that many of Brown's appointees reflects the governor's attitude.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

by LLOYD QUEERER

Because of volume of inquiries, Charade regrets that it cannot investigate stories.

COCAINE- 'DRUG OF CHOICE'

The "drug of choice" for America's young people is cocaine, according to Rolling Stone magazine, the most popular publication for members of the youth culture.

For the second year in a row, Rolling Stone has named cocaine the "Drug of the Year" in its annual awards annals.

Coming in a close second in the popularity race is alcohol, which is generally preferred when mixed into Tequila Sunrises, Margaritas, and Harvey Wallbangers. Other popular mixed drinks include White Russians, Skip and Go Naked, and Honolulu Coolers.

Some young people choose to drink their alcohol straight or on the rocks, using Jack Daniels, Chivas Regal, and flavored brandies to achieve the desired results.

Cocaine has been used by man throughout history, and was considered a useful tool in American medicine as late as 1920. The expensive white powder ($10 buys enough for 2 people) is usually sniffed from a mirror with a rolled up bill. Some users purchase expensive silver "coke spoons" which are held to the nostrils for sniffing.

The use of cocaine has been popularized by rock stars, who admit to using the drug regularly.

Sociologists concerned about the rising use of the potentially dangerous substance believe that its attraction stems from a desire among young people to feel affluent during these times of economic crisis. Others have attributed the drug's rise in popularity to the decreased availability of marijuana and hashish.

PATTY HEARST RING?

It has been over a year since newspaper heiress Patty Hearst was kidnapped from her Berkeley apartment which has led the FBI in baffling circles. Now, a former FBI agent involved in the early stages of the investigation, is writing a book detailing the true story of the Hearst kidnapping and FBI investigation.

Former agent Bruce Wayne claims that the kidnapping was intentionally staged just before the FBI was ready to crackdown on an illegal term-paper ring that was headquartered in Ms. Hearst's apartment. Wayne feels the kidnapping was done to draw attention away from the FBI's investigation into the term paper racket.

"The Bureau had 150 men looking into the term paper ring and after the kidnapping that number had to be cut back by 10 men," Wayne said during an interview last week. "The ten men we had to put on that damn red-herring of a kidnapping just destroyed our investigation into the selling of illegal term papers."

Wayne claims further that everytime the FBI got close to breaking up the ring, the SLA and Hearst would stage something dramatic to draw attention away from the term paper investigation.

"The bank robbing took place a day before we were ready to move on the paper racket," Wayne claimed. "The shoot out in Los Angeles came two days before we were ready to make arrests of the racketeers."

Wayne also claims there is solid evidence to prove the fire in the L.A. shootout was actually started by little kids playing with Red Devil fireworks in a field beside the house.

The former agent feels that Patty Hearst has taken a number of disguises while hiding out, including a two week stint as a tour guide at Disneyland in Anaheim, California.

Wayne, who was an insurance claims adjuster in Pleasant Valley, California before joining the FBI, closes his book with irrefutable evidence as to the whereabouts of Patty.

"She is living in a commune outside Fishkill, New York and earning money with a New York Times paper route."

A team of scientists from the University of Delaware is looking into the possibility of the first known case of human asexual reproduction.

Dr. Rubella Begonia of the Delaware Medical Center said the study was begun six months ago when a pregnant female was brought to the medical clinic.

"The subject is a 67 year-old, hunchbacked, midget from Tolussamuck, Alabama," Begonia said. "The possibility of this being a case of asexual reproduction is highly probable because most of the staff here concurs that no one would even come close to touching such a disgusting thing."

Begonia has held up publishing his new textbook, Biology for Sixth Graders, until further study can be done on this case.

GERMAN FOOD CONTROL

German housefraus are famous for their quality cuisine, dished out in copious quantities for hardworking hubbies. But legislation recently introduced in the Bundestag may change all that. Crusading lawmaker Hans von de Pokket, in an effort to protect the future of the race, wants to restrict the production of consumption products, that is to say food, to government-inspected and controlled facilities.

"Who knows what germs lurks in good German cooking? The mental health and bodily stamina of the populace may be endangered by disease derived from improperly prepared potatoes," von de Pokket recently declared before a congress of hofbrau and hotel keepers. Since it is impossible to inspect and insure the sanitary standards of his bill in every kitchen, it is better to limit cooking to controlled kitchens, he said.

If accepted by the legislative body, the law would set up regional kitchens, and production would be distributed through existing channels.

EXPENSE CUTS

The American Association of International Executives has just announced its minimum daily expense account allowance for traveling businessmen for 1975. Seen as a crucial indicator of economic trends and international relations, the allowances are tied to the price of Johnny Walker Red and New York cut steaks at leading restaurants in major cities. "Prices keep going up and up," said an officer of the AAIE, "and lonely executives on the move are finding it more difficult to pass a pleasant evening abroad. Our members are entitled to the same pleasures as the average tourist."

SIX MILLION A HIGH PRICE FOR DYING

Government sources have recently disclosed that the popular TV series, "The Six Million Dollar Man" is based on the life of an actual person.

The source told us that this person was involved in a serious automobile accident, and his body had to be partially rebuilt. The source noted that although the cost to the government was originally projected to be $6 million, increased costs of parts and import taxes have subsequently inflated that figure to well over $100 million.

Although the source refused to identify this man, he told us that the electronic man is in fact a high government official. He is associated with one of the "major" intelligence organizations in Washington, and has recently been investigating the activities of IBM who were accused of spying on Rand Corp.

This bionic man has been especially useful to the government in the field of law enforcement. At present, he is physically indestructible, and can control mass violence with his amazing strength. Government officials are worried however that after his six month warranty runs out, he may always be in the shop.

It has also been learned that the Xerox corporation is attempting to reproduce this electronic man so that eventually the government will have use of many of these men. They are also investigating the possibility of creating a bionic woman, for the bionic man has recently been very lonely and has been showing affection toward a shapely Hewlett-Packard calculator.

UNSTICKING THE SANTA BARBARA MONEY PROBLEM

The University of California at Santa Barbara has hit upon a way to use surplus monies that other colleges and universities may find useful. UC Santa Barbara, debating on how to best spend an extra $6 billion in registration fees paid by student, received a proposal from the Campus Committee for Beautification.

The Committee recently suggested that the surplus money be spent to beautify UCen road, a large walkway that runs in front of the student union and continues in front of the concert hall. The road, suggests the Committee, should be modified to resemble Hollywood Blvd., complete with the stars on the sidewalk and the cement impressions similar to those in front of the Chinese Theatre.

Although the logistics have not as yet been worked out, the proposal is being seriously considered. The Committee has not specified whether any additional building is necessary, such as head shops, adult book stores, or X-rated movie houses. The initial construction would be the sidewalk stars and the concrete impressions.

The tradition in Hollywood is to honor famous actors, playwrights, directors and musicians by placing a star with their names engraved on Hollywood Blvd. A select few of these celebrities are asked to leave a hand or footprint in the cement area in front of the Chinese Theatre.

One UCSB celebrity, comedian Vernon I. Cheadle, was the first to encourage such a proposal, and offered his services. In a trial run to place foot prints in front of the Administration building, Cheadle's size 14's sunk too deeply into the cement and he found himself permanently stuck.

University officials promptly placed a blue sticker on his forehead identifying the stranded man as university property, and for the past few weeks students have used him to lock their bikes to.

The UC Santa Barbara Campus Committee for Beautification suggests that "celebrities" on campus be similarly honored with stars on UCen Road. They also propose to honor those who have rendered service to the local community and to students in general.

The major honors will be presented by allowing "celebrities" to leave an imprint in the cement area in front of the UCen. This area will be reserved for campus superstars who have gained prominence while at UC Santa Barbara.

Other awards are still to be proposed, but the Committee prefers to limit the number of students honored until they can be allocated more than the mere $6 million that is available.

ARABS WANT TO BUY OUT WEST POINT

According to unconfirmed reports from the Pentagon, representatives from the Palestinian Liberation Organization and the Egyptian government have been attempting to buy West Point Academy.

The academy, which has been used the past few years as a National Sanitarium for the deaf and the blind, reportedly harbors all of the facilities the Arabs would wish to use for the training, maintenance, and education of their Mideast army.

The Pentagon reports that Palestinian commando Yassir Arafat has held secret summit conferences for the past two weeks with Army Chief of Staff George Brown, who is acting as the negotiator for the U.S. Government. Arafat has reportedly offered 10.5 million dollars for the facility, far less than its actual worth in terms of dollars and cents.

Brown, however, has been anxious to sell the property to the Arabs because he fears if it remains on the open market it will be snapped up "by subversive Jewish bankers who would use it for their own greedy purposes."

Brown reportedly told one Jewish banker, who wished to purchase the building as a home for his mother, "Jesus Christ, we gave you Israel. Better you should send your mother there."

Arafat is so confident that the Academy will be sold to the Palestinians, that he has already begun to train Arab militants elsewhere in New York. According to the New York Times, roving bands of headressed Arabs have been rifling the Kosher food displays in New York's Jewish-owned A & P supermarkets.

The PLO has also claimed responsibility for shooting off the noses of one thousand miniature Henry Kissinger busts being sold in the gift shop of the United Nations building.

The Sorry Saga of Karen Silkwood

In a small riverside community twenty miles outside of Oklahoma City Gene McGee is somewhat of a hero. He killed Karen Silkwood, the environmental activist who desperately tried to expose the nuclear hazards posed by the unsafe working conditions at McGee's plutonium processing plant. Local residents had known for some time that it was McGee who killed Silkwood, but a massive coverup attempt by Riverdale's three-man police force kept the local press from finding out.

According to workers at Kerr-McGee's plutonium plant, Silkwood had become contaminated when another worker's "plutonium rod" exploded in the same room where Silkwood was working. Plutonium rods are the main product of the company and are used to generate electrical reaction in physical plants.

"That girl was running all over town contaminating everybody," says Jeremiah Cleaver, who along with his wife and three teenage sons operate the town's hardware store. "All the papers I ever read said that she was a glowing example of responsible activism," Cleaver continued, "but anyone can tell you that she held a Pandora's box of trouble for this town."

The other worker died of a heart attack; Silkwood survived.

Muskie Cleaver, Jeremiah's eldest son, agreed with his father.

But she became contaminated. Doctors all over the state proclaimed that her case was hopeless. She had contracted a terminal case of plutonitis. They gave her a year.

"After her accident," says the younger Cleaver, who worked at the plant, "she wasn't a-scared a nuthin! Until Mr. McGee had to fire her, she was like a fox around the henhouse, trying to grab everybody's plutonium rods and tellin' them that their rods was full of evil. Why Mr. McGee says that if the good Lord didn't want us to have the rods, he wouldn't a give 'em to us."

Anguished, Karen turned to drugs and sex. According to the town psychiatrist and school nurse, Sarah Bellam, she developed a perverted sense of hatred toward the plant, and desperately tried to ruin Mr. McGee.

Finally, the town couldn't take any more of the young girl, and on a 4-1 vote the city council issued her a death warrant. Because McGee's rods had caused her contamination the town felt

Keeping Up... With Youth

Numbers Instead of Names?

A recent study has shown that a university student at a major college could attend school for the usual four years without ever using his full name. A survey group found that a number of students, who had taken primarily broad introductory courses throughout college, had never once used their real name. They were required to submit papers and exams with only their Alpha numbers or Social Security numbers for identifications.

One student, Ralph Snurd (also known as 78), told us that he was always asked to submit his Alpha number (39887278) instead of his name. He used the number so often that eventually he preferred to be called by his nickname, 78.

Another student noted that he too had continuously used his number rather than his name. He took courses such as Introductory Sociology, Chemistry, Economics, and Anthropology, and always sat at the rear of the lecture hall. In fact, when this student (who prefers to remain unidentified) was shown mug shots of his former professors, he was unable to accurately identify any of them.

The study suggested that major reforms be undertaken in the field of undergraduate introductory courses. They suggested that students wear large name tags on their heads, and that each professor be issued a pair of binoculars for large lecture rooms. They also proposed that students be able to rent time on strategically located telescopes, at the rate of 10 cents a minute.

Of course, these reforms are only the beginning of a reorganization program that is being formulated. Other proposals include: lowering class size to a number where a professor could remember the names of each student (perhaps 2-3); elimination of all Alpha numbers, so that students could be treated as names, not numerals; and a more complex suggestion which would have many professors teaching a class as a team. Each professor would be responsible for remembering the names of those students on his side of the room, and the lectures would be recited in unison, simultaneously by each teacher. This would require seating charts and assigned places which would be enforced by law.

Bronx School Coke Program

Two months ago the Junior Achievement program at P.S. 169 in the New York Bronx was failing miserably. The five club members had only $15 in their funds and no local businessmen wanted to support the group.

Then Antonio "Hips" Rossatelli stepped in. Rossatelli, a Bronx entrepreneur, underwrote the club with a $20,000 grant and introduced a new concept into Junior Achievement which rose membership at the high school by 300 members.

"Da little punks were doing minor shoplifting and muggings," Rossatelli explained. "No ways was they goin' to learn about big business dat way."

So Hips, a frequent supporter of New York law enforcement functions, introduced cocaine and Rubberneck these ideas guaranteed to be constructed of the shoddiest materials in order to add needless complication to your life. Caveat Emptor.

BOONDOGGLE: Congress got sold a bill of goods on this baby, and so can you if you've got several billion lying around. If not, easy credit can be arranged. See upper-middle-right of the page for more information.

GOLF THE REVOLUTIONARY SOCIALIST WAY: New Golf carts designed and assembled in North Korea are just the thing for the golfer who wishes to display his anti-imperialist credentials on the links. Carts can easily be converted into wheat harvesters, bumper cars, or amphibious tanks. Great Proletarian Vehicle Works, Wom Bat, Peoples Republic of Korea.

OBSOLETE BOMBER: (Upper left of page) Oil rich countries may soon have the opportunity to own this spanking new and perfectly worthless product of American technology. Defense officials hope that megalomaniac shieks will decide that this is the perfect thing to frighten their neighbors with and thereby recycle precious petrodollars. ## NEEDED — TOUR GUIDES

Can you volunteer one hour a week this quarter to give tours to prospective students? Students from High Schools, Colleges and other Universities are visiting the UCSB Campus regularly and requesting brief tours of the Campus and an opportunity to talk with currently enrolled students. Our tour schedule will be each Weekday (Monday through Friday), at 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. If you can help us provide these interested students with a tour and your comments about campus life, Please Contact the Office of Relations with Schools and Colleges, 3631 South Hall, or Call us at 961-2485 as soon as possible.

Thank You.

my FAVORITE jokes

by W.D. Hackney

Editor's Note: W.D. Hackney, known to his friends as "Woody," is a resident eccentric of the Nexus office. Blending easily with his partners in insanity (Nexus staffers) he is noted for his sharp wit and easy-going temperament.

I first met Woody when he casually approached me with a joke published in the San Francisco Chronicle under Herb Caen's column. I laughed and he told me some more.

"When they give you your plate of food at a restaurant some waitresses say "Hair y'are," others say "Thar yugo."

It has been rumored that this unique brand of humor originally initiated the "dead baby" genre of jokes. His influence has even extended into the solemn realm of elephant jokes.

W.D. Hackney has his own typewriter and desk available to him in the Nexus office along with a mailbox which reads "W.D. Hackney (the lowest paid hack in the hierarchy)." Under it is scribbled the following blasphemy "What did you expect with the stuff you turn out?."

He does specialize in letters to the editor and has been published in many of the great newspapers of our time including the Chronicle and the Nexus. One weeps for his credentials. He did find time however to release a new and original piece of comic prose. Straight from the respected typewriter of my honored friend, who refuses the alias of "anonymous," comes the following poignant work.

Born 1899 outside the walls of Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City. First experience with journalism at age two when my picture occurred nude behind a guitar in cute baby contest, St. Louis. First job—placing painted Haviland in mother's china kiln. Next, printers devil Olathe (Kans.) Independent. Later studies with William Hekking and D. A. Siqueiros. Presently teach traditional buono fresco and minwax encaustic (Italo-Egyptian recipe) with modern equipment. Contributor various dailies and sleek journals.

After the memorial services for Mr. Storke in Santa Barbara Mission, I got inebriated in the central courtyard and suggested that this school be renamed Tom Storke Coldwater College. The suggestion elicited no responses from Pearl Chase and Earl Warren.

So the robed brothers broached another case of first-class wine and we gradually felt better. Someone mentioned that Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was the first woman ever permitted in that patio. I explained that eucalyptus is no good for clipper ship masts because that Australian tree (in 400 varieties of bark) is built on a spiral. Iffn you think that's odd, consider my report on the first mental hospital in California—a de-masted wooden ship known as 'the warehouse' tied to San Francisco's dock. With therapy nil, deceased patients were tossed outside the Golden Gate. The date? 1851. My auditors et that up like it was going out of style. I fully intended to close with a version of how Lucky Baldwin sold barrels of beverage like battery acid to the Mormons precipitating the Mountain Meadow Massacre, and Donners insulting the Utes, but dusk descended on the sanctum of peace. Sure, 'twas a fine wake.

Presenting Linda Hopkins in the smash return hit "ME & BESSIE"

The Alumni Association has acquired 300 tickets for the April 26 matinee performance of "Me & Bessie" at the Mark Taper Theatre. Here are just two reviews of its previous run in November 1974.

"To understate it, "Me & Bessie" at the Mark Taper Forum is a stupendous show. As Bessie Smith, the legendary empress of the blues, Linda Hopkins brings the singer alive in a joyously vivid and incandescent musical exploration" — Ray Floyd, Herald Examiner Entertainment Director

"It's not taking anything away from Bessie Smith to say that it's inconceivable that anyone could ever have sung them better than Linda Hopkins... don't come crying to me if you commit the sin of missing it next time around," — William Murray, L.A. Magazine.

The performance begins at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are: Students $2.50

April 26th

An Evening with Homer Swander

Following "Me & Bessie" the Association presents its second special evening with Homer Swander, Associate Professor of English, UCSB, and Director of the educational division of the Oregon Shakespeare Festival.

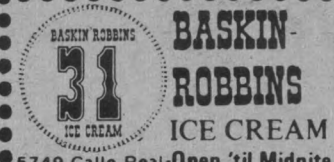

Dinner (Sirloin steak, en brochette Terriyaki - $6 per person) will begin at 6:00 p.m. in the Sherwood room of the Roger Young Banquet Hall, 936 W. Washington Blvd. Roger Young's is located minutes from the Taper, provides ample free parking and excellent food. Cocktails (no host) will be served in the Sherwood room immediately following "Me & Bessie".

marijuana to the J.A. program at 169.

"We've pulled in over $200,000 since we've began pushing," explained club president Sweets Washington. "Some members who started out on dimers have now gotten up to kilos. We couldn't have done it without the aid of Mr. Rossatelli and his group."

Rossatelli modestly declines to take the credit for reviving the dying program at the high school.

"The creeps just needed a little push," punned Rossatelli. "Me and my group just supplied the basis and some advice. I'm real proud of what the kids are doing."

Roger Smith, principal at P.S. 169, was not able to comment on the Junior Achievement program due to the large number of requests to transfer to 169 that he must now process.

Meanwhile, Washington and other club officers are talking about expanding.

"Heroin is always a possibility but for now we're going to stay a little closer to home with either prostitution or protection racket," Sweets outlined.

Cohabitation--A Thing of the Past

Shacking up, or "cohabitation" as it's now called, may fast become a thing of the past because young people are finding that yesterday's fad is tomorrow's crisis.

The Internal Revenue Service reports that more and more unmarried couples have been attempting to file joint income tax returns. "These kids don't realize it's just not legal to claim a mistress for their income tax," comments Assistant Commissioner Clyde T. Culpepper. "We nail them every time." He privately added that as a taxpayer he is incensed about the moral decay going on in college communities, where cohabitation is said to be especially prevalent.

Meanwhile, couples are resorting to various schemes to keep their employers in the dark. Two teachers in a

a salad that smells farty

by euell lovitt
charade bowl editor

Healthful and bountiful, salads can fill the gap in a budget tightened by inflation, unemployment, and welfare cuts. Our Spring Salad costs next to nothing and can be prepared in a jiffy.

Most of the ingredients can be found growing near your home; others can be obtained easily from local sources. Leftovers make a great soup when added to hamster or rabbit broth.

A little oil and vinegar is all the dressing you need for this spicy treat.

spring salad

- 2 cups ivy
- 2 cups long grass

- 2 cups iceplant with flowers
- 1/2 cup eucalyptus bark
- 3 dozen eucalyptus acorns
- 36 frames exposed 35 mm. film
- 6 pencils
- 6 Bic pens
- 1/2 cup fine ground sand

Rinse ground covers in cold water. Chop bark into inch-long pieces. Cut film into four-frame lengths. Arrange ivy and grass in six salad bowls. Add iceplant, taking care to place the flowers attractively. Top with bark, acorns, and film. Sprinkle with sand and garnish each salad with a pen and pencil. Serve cold accompanied by Pagan Pink wine and Saltines. Makes six servings.

California's Brown

"You name it we got," Luce said. "There's blacks, Chicanos women, anything you can image. This is supposed to be a fulfilling administration."

One of the legislators Brown has primed in Sacramento is Assemblyman Willie Brown (no relation). Last month, a few weeks after Brown took office, the Assemblyman pushed through a bill making all sex acts between consenting adults legal under California law. In California, an adult is defined as being eighteen years of age unless found by the courts to be mentally incompetent.

Brown, warmly referred to in Capitol circles as "junior" said he had reservations about such laws because of the insistence of the state to get involved in an individual's personal affairs. "But if individuals wish to get involved in the affairs of state, now that's a different question," he said. "L'Etat, c'est moi!"

But despite Brown's image of liberalism in recruiting minorities for top administrative posts, he has to most Californians evolved as a true public servant.

Former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti asserts that Brown is the best man in the state to ramrod important legislators in Sacramento. "Jerry's a hep-cat," says Moretti. "He's cool as he glides around the capitol, hands in pocket. He's a manipulator too. He knows where to grease the legislature when he wants something pushed through."

Brown's private life however, has carefully been kept from the public view. Instead of taking up residence in the huge Governor's mansion in Sacramento, Brown has opted to live in a two story apartment located above Sacramento's Pussycat theatre.

In his usual nonchalant style, the governor slips in and out of the back door in the mornings and evenings.

Numerous reporters have asked Brown if he will ever get married. Political spectators generally assume that if Brown wished to ascend to the presidency, should he choose to climb that pillar, that voters would not elect him if he weren't married.

"That jerk would probably close up the White House and move into the Washington Monument," says Potomac swinger and former Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills. "Of course, if the shoe fits, wear it. That's my motto."

Silkwood Saga

that he should be the one responsible for her elimination.

Two weeks later, Kerr McGee's plutonium plant erupted and 46 workers were contaminated. According to the AEC, the contamination seems to be contagious and is spreading among the town's working class.

Cohabitation

district with a policy against two employees being married to each other solved this problem by moving in together and having "his and her" phones installed with separate listings. But this arrangement soon proved unsatisfactory. "The phones ringing all the time is driving us nuts," confided the lady of the house. "Sometimes his phone rings and rings in the middle of the night, and he sleeps so soundly that I can't rouse him to answer it."

Bank officials are determined to do something about couples opening joint checking accounts. "Why, it's obvious the only reason they're doing it is so each of them has to keep a $250 instead of a $500 minimum," complained one frustrated branch manager.

"We're losing money because of this immoral behavior."

Some religious groups are calling for enforcement of laws in many states prohibiting cohabitation. Billy Graham, a vocal member of the movement, says the post office should stop delivering mail to mailboxes with unrelated names on them, and that the CIA could be used to flesh out the lawbreakers.
