A.S. books in the red due to enrollment drop

By KELLY MURPHY

A.S. President John Grant got a surprise Monday. In a memo from A.S. Director Bob Lorden, Grant got word that his budget is $7,000 in the red.

The memo attributed the red figures to the drop in enrollment. An estimated 10,000 paying undergraduate students were expected to put up the $397,500 for the A.S. budget, but not all of them showed up.

An excerpt from the memo states: "The new net enrollment average with less income results in an amount of approximately $7,000 that should be cut from the present budget."

Since the Finance Board, headed by Richard Hernandez, will make the final decision on how to handle the deficit, Grant couldn't say where the money would come from. He did speculate that a 2% budget cut across the board was possible.

When gueried about the $6,100 from the unused La Cumbre budget (unused if they don't meet their advance sales goal) Grant said, "The $6,100 could go to fill the deficit, but I'd rather see groups like the Academic Affairs Board and the Vietnamese Students Organization get some of it."

Since the Monday NEXUS article on the state of the yearbook, requests for their budget have been flooding the A.S. Office. "We've been turning them away from the door all day," complained Grant.

Reflecting a prevalent feeling among Leg Council members, Lobby Annex spokesman Steve Wade chimed in, "When people come to A.S. for money they don't think about what they can get by with, they think about what they can get."

No pact, says White House; noon rally set

No Vietnam war settlement will be signed today, White House news secretary Ron Ziegler announced yesterday.

North Vietnamese and National Liberation Front negotiators insisted late last week that a settlement between warring forces in Indochina had to be signed by Oct. 31.

That demand has now been rejected by the American government.

The People's Republic of China had joined the North Vietnamese in calling for a settlement today. Democratic Presidential nominee George McGovern has also called for an immediate ceasefire.

In Indochina, fighting rose again as Thieu forces recaptured a district capital, Dak To, from the Communists. Over 100 separate Local antiwar organizers privately confided yesterday that they fear the combination of a noon rally and night-time party could spill over into trashing or other violence.

Parks election today

All Isla Vista voters should have received a sample ballot for today's Isla Vista Park and Recreation District election. However, the short registration period has hampered the county's alleged efficiency in getting out the ballots and preparing for the election.

Since voters are kept on the rolls until they miss a general election, cancel or change their registration, everyone who voted in the June primary at an Isla Vista address is still eligible at that address, unless they have re-registered. If you re-registered at your new address after Oct. 1, try the polling place in your old district and see if they have you listed.

Polling places for today's election are:

GOLETA 4: 6885 Del Playa (Hodgkins Residence)

GOLETA 8: 6550 Picasso (St. Mark's Church)

GOLETA 19: 777 Camino Pescadero (University Religious Conference)

LOCAL PLANS

Meanwhile, at UCSB, organizers of tonight's previously announced victory party for the Vietnamese Communists declared that the end-of-the-war celebration had been cancelled at the news of today's White House edict

Instead, the Emergency Group to Stop Nixon and Thieu has called for a noon rally today behind the UCen.

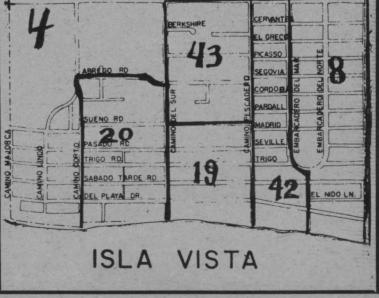

Plans for a party in Perfect Park tonight are still on tap, meanwhile, but tonight's brouhaha will be held in ostensible celebration of the birth of Isla Vista's Park District instead.

Fred Mever, director of the EAP in Bordeaux is in Spain assisting with details of the accident. The parents of both students have been notified. Anderson was 20, a junior majoring in political science from La Crescenta and Rasch, 19, is a junior in French from San Jose.

Santander is the location of the Intensive Language Program for the EAP students planning to study in Spain. It is about a one and a half hour drive from Bordeaux and a students' weekend resort spot.

Vietnamese struggle recounted by students' culture troupe

By MIKE GOLD

For over 4,000 years the Vietnamese have struggled for freedom and independence. Friday, the Vietnamese Cultural Show explained why this struggle has been able to survive for so long.

Five members from the Union of Vietnamese in the United States explained their culture through songs, stories, poems and prose. They did not act though, explained Nhan, one of the group, but merely "acted naturally."

Con, attired in conventional American student dress - jeans and T-shirt, began the hour-long presentation.

"Long long ago from Vietnamese mythology comes an inspiring proverb about struggling toward the impossible and finally succeeding." The struggle continued through history and this theme still remains today in the sounds of Vietnam.

Back in the eleventh century the Vietnamese struggled against Chinese domination. Khanh, another of the performers, told of Ly Thuong Kiet, a marshal and a national hero who defeated and shook up the Sung dynasty.

A poem by Kiet spoke the theme of struggle and success. The Viet group spoke this poem through song. As they did throughout the performance, they sung in Vietnamese with only guitar accompaniment. The poem translated into English as follows

The Southern mountains and rivers belong to the Viet people

It was so clearly written in the Celestial hook

Those who dare to attack our territory

They will surely meet with defeat. They next sang a poetic proclamation of victory from the fifteenth century. Composed by Nguyen Trai after the defeat of the Ming Dynasty this poem reflects the same theme. After describing the liberation struggle he ended his poetic declaration with the following cries of success:

Both heaven and our ancestors helped us in battle,

We took up arms, fought and won. All the four seas are now serene, great changes are forthcoming, Let everybody everywhere be so informed.

"Then came the nineteenth continued Khanh. century,"

"The French invaded and dominated Vietnam to exploit our country. Confronted with such a painful scene, Nguyen Dinh Chieu, a blind poet, living in the Southern part of Viet Nam wrote:"

UCSB DAILY NEXUS

I'd rather see only the night Than the people drowned in miseries.

I'd rather suffer blindness and keep the family virtues intact

Than have sight and deny my ancestors.

I'd rather be blind and keep my name pure

Than have sight and feed on rotting thinas.

The crowd of about 350 gave the troupe a standing ovation.

But, to the amazement of the crowd the performers clapped back. It was an extremely appropriate means of ending the show as it more than anything else distinguished their culture from ours.

Note: A mistake in Friday's NEXUS led many to believe that Jane Fonda, Tom Hayden, George Smith, and Holly Near would appear at the Vietnamese Cultural Show. They will appear this Friday, Nov. 3, as part of the Indochina Peace Campaign traveling show.

Reacting to Isla Vista residents' needs and desires is the aim of the recently opened I.V. Fun Palace.

"We want people to come in and use what we have," says Marcy Timerman, coordinator for the Regents funded program. The I.V. Fun Palace is located in Suite A of the Isla Vista Community Service Center, 970 Embarcadero del Mar.

The program works in coordination with various offices in the area including the Recreation Office and Intramurals. They are in the process of setting up a crafts area and providing a check-out service for sports equipment, garden tools, hand tools and sewing machines Ideas for possible classes include first aid, sewing, craft workshops and tool skills.

This is the first year a program of this type has been tried. The program office opened Friday, Oct. 13, but preparation work is still being done by a staff of five UCSB undergraduate students in connection with work/study.

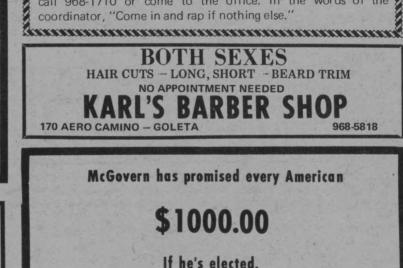

Plans are being made for a "park-fest" to be co-sponsored with the I.V. Youth Project, People's Arts and Isla Vista Community Service Center. Set for Halloween night, the event will include a pot-luck dinner, contests and a live band.

Another service to be offered is a referral file listing names and places where particular services may be found in the area. Anyone with a skill or service is invited to be registered in the file. There is no charge for this service.

Donations will be accepted of any tools or furniture or "any extra stuff, especially a couch."

Anyone interested in any aspect of the program is invited to call 968-1710 or come to the office. In the words of the League promotes films and far-out vibes

By STEVE BELTON

"Well, Webster said it best when he described theosophy as the investigation of unexplained laws of nature and the psychical powers latent in man," stated R. Lee Procter, founder and Most High Exalted of the newly formed UCSB Theosophical Society and Defenestration League.

This seminal organization decries all other methods of reaching the cosmic oneness as "revisionist" and expresses the hope that Gauchos will not be led astray by idle promises of physical fitness, mental bliss or

Chavez to speak tomorrow

Proposition 22, which if passed would threaten the United Farmworker's Union

On Wednesday, Nov. 1, at and further oppress the farm

Chavez will arrive at the UCSB campus at 11:30 a.m. and give his lecture at noon. After his lecture, an informal luncheon will be given for Chavez in the UCen Program Lounge. At this time, UCSB students will be able to discuss relevant issues with him. physical satisfaction in its primitive form (or, as Procter puts it, "banging whores").

Procter decries all those who attempt to explain away verified instances of mystical insight as "side effects" of untested drugs, which Procter insists is an integral part of the theosophical ritual ceremonies (or "seances"). "You've got to expect when you're on to something this big you're going to be persecuted by a lot of small minds."

The society acknowledges its heritage drawn from such related sects as Neo-Platonism and Gnosticism, but distinguishes itself from them with its basic tenet that the original founder, Madame Blavatsky, was thrown out of a window in 1891, causing her untimely death (hence the recognition of defenestration as a primal force). of the club show five active members, filling the five points of the Pentagle (the Theosophical term for the five executive positions: Most High Exalted, Exalted, Beknighted Guardian of the Glass, Women's Auxiliary Chairman and Secretary-Historian).

The present membership rolls

Immediate plans of the group include a membership drive, film festival and a field trip to Ojai (thought by the ancients to be the Center of the New World and chiefly famous as the place of inspiration for poet William Butler Yeats' career as poet laureate of the theosophists).

Until a permanent meeting hall can be procured, the Theosophical Seances will continue being held in private homes of people interested in this brand of the occult. One meeting was even held in Perfect Park, although the absence of windows—a part of the ceremony which, says R. Lee, cannot be emphasized too greatly—was a severe drawback to this location.

"People who come to meetings," cautions Procter in conclusion, "should be prepared to willingly suspend disbelief, and to meet a new matrix of explanatory phenomena."

KCSB presents War of Worlds

Madness returns to the airwaves tonight at 9 p.m. in the form of Martians. KCSB (91.5) will be presenting 'War of the Worlds 1972," a modern version of Orson Welles' masterpiece that frightened millions back in 1938.

While tonight's Halloween special is more modest in scope and intends to scare no one, the story is no less earth shattering. Local residents will be treated to a flying saucer invasion near Santa Ynez, a battle between Martians and the Air Force, and Captain Honey defending San Marcos Pass, to mention but a few incidents.

Listen tonight to KCSB starting at 9 p.m. for the second interplanetary invasion of the Earth—what you hear will be real inside your mind.

Leg Council presumptuous

To the Editor:

It's absurd.

Last week A.S. Leg Council proposed two alternatives for A.S. representation which will be voted on by the student body in three weeks. One proposal states that the three RHA Reps may live anywhere, there is no stipulation that they must live in an on-campus dorm during their term of office. The rationale behind this provision is sadly incorrect. We feel it is absolutely inane to think that one could represent a group efficiently while not residing in their particular area.

What would you think of an out-of-state resident serving as your U.S. Senator for California?

Leg Council is rather presumptuous in assuming they can determine the nature of our representatives. We know what brings us the most effective representation-those who are close at hand, constantly exposed to dorm student opinion and those familiar with student resident administration and the R.A.'s.

If RHA Reps live off-campus they will speak of us at Leg Council meetings in terms of "they" instead of "we." This would defeat the very purpose of representation.

Should Leg Council's present proposal pass, it would minimize our chances of having the most effective representation possible, and it would demean the actions and voices of 2600 students, (realistically one-fourth of the student body.)

As a unified governing body, RHA Coordinating Board will unanimously offer an amendment to the A.S. proposal spoken of above, to state that RHA Reps must reside in an on-campus residence hall during their term of office.

Dorm students feel very strongly about this issue; their voice in Leg Council is at stake. We intend to fight long and hard for this amendment.

Think about it. Don't let Leg Council give RHA the shaft.

RHA COORDINATING BOARD

Grand scheme of computer center

By CARROLL PURSELL

The Delco/Computer Center expose by David Handler in last Thursdays' NEXUS shouldn't have come as a surprise. The campus Computer Center had its very birth in a happy combination of faculty entrepreneurship, Pentagon money and the cooperation of industry.

When the Center was built ten years ago it had very close ties, both in terms of personnel and equipment, with Bunker-Ramo of Canoga Park. Funds from the Office of Naval Research and the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) aided its early work, and a Defense Department grant allowed a tie-up with Harvard.

The early Sixties were in general a golden age for defense and space related activities. In 1962, the same year the Computer Center was built, our School of Engineering was planned to begin operations. Down by the Goleta Slough, three "research parks" opened: Raytheon, EG&G, Santa Barbara Research, Defense Research Corp., GM Defense Research, and a host of other firms were making Santa Barbara a new center of war research.

These events were not unrelated. As Cambridge, Mass., and Palo Alto had already proved, universities with strong science and engineering departments, and defense and aerospace industries with large amounts of federal dollars, were vitally important to each other. The universities supplied the graduate students, the big-time faculty consultants, the libraries, esoteric instruments, and a general cultural setting in which Ph.D.'s could be happy.

The industries supplied the "action"; interesting new defense problems to research, jobs for graduate students, lucrative consulting fees for faculty, large amounts of Pentagon and NASA money and a general atmosphere of power and excitement.

A mutually satisfactory cooperation with the defense establishment was a key part of UCSB's plans for growth and greatness during the Carrol Pursell is a UCSB Professor of History and an expert on the History of American Technology.

Sixties. Now in the Seventies that relationship, like so many others, badly needs reconsideration.

Spending for defense and space is not the sure thing it once was. The Mansfield Amendment has cast doubt on the propriety of Pentagon support for every whim of academic curiosity. Defense Department money is an increasingly shaky foundation upon which to build dream castles.

At the same time that the practical advantage of defense support is diminishing, its moral position is similarly weakening. A few years ago the UCSB Academic Senate took a timid stand against war-related research. One pallid legacy of that forgotten episode is a less secure feeling among those who still accept such money. A few even hesitate to allow their grants to be published in the periodical compilation of research funds in the "Faculty Notes."

It may well be that UCSB can never become famous in the big time of the Military-Industrial-Academic Complex without a large Computer Center closely allied with local and farflung defense and space industries. It should be pointed out, however, that ten years of eager wooing has not produced much solid results in this direction. It should also be pointed out that this may not, in 1972, be a goal which this academic community wants to pursue at all.

My own guess would be that neither the free world nor the UCSB student body would much suffer from a realistic scaling down of Computer Center (and related) activities.

The danger of not taking a close look at such activities is that, in these times of stringent budgets, there are many temptations to cut ethical and educational corners. Extension courses receive no state aid and must pay their own way. Since upgrading the skills of area military personnel and defense workers pays, so does catering to their needs. When the wolf's at the door we should be particularly careful who we let in the side window.

The research strike at MIT three years ago led Paul Goodman to declare that "an attack on the American scientific establishment is an attack on the world-wide system of belief" in the present relationship between science, technology and social needs. While the present question is hardly that important, it does connect with other current concerns. A growing and elaborating UCSB in the early 1960's was only one element in a grand scheme which included upgrading the local airport to handle jets, the building of Lake Cachuma, the expansion of local industry and population, the prosperity of local savings and loan associations and similar elements. Not all of these are under our direct control, although all of them must be matters of our concern. The future of activities on this campus, however, especially the future of activities which are no longer seen to perform a necessary or humane function, ought to come under close review. Like the nation in general, UCSB needs a new look at priorities. The Computer Center is one place we might start.

Hanoi, Nixon: Very predictable

To the Editor:

I have been reading with interest the peace negotiations. I have been very confused as to why Hanoi agreed to a settlement agreement a week before the elections. I always thought that Hanoi wanted Nixon defeated. Now it is all quite clear to me.

and why they want to sign the Hanoi is still out to beat Nixon this year, and they just might do it.

> When Hanoi announced a cease-fire agreement they also mentioned a Tuesday deadline, making the deadline sound like part of the agreement. Kissinger in his speech in effect said the deadline could not be met but Hanoi insisted on Tuesday. Sunday Agnew stated that the agreement will not be signed today.

So when the deadline comes and goes, Hanoi will accuse Nixon of violating the agreements and peace will go down the tubes. The rest is predictable. McGovern, the U.S. press and the world in general will attack Nixon for blowing the best opportunity for peace ever. The American people will be so dejected after two weeks of hope that I wouldn't be surprised if NIXON JOST NOVEMber seventh. I must admire Hanoi, they are really clever.

UCSB DAILY NEXUS

For the first time in his eight years as UCSB water polo coach, Rick Rowland returned home from a major road trip with a pair of back-to-back victories over national powerhouses as the Gauchos beat Cal State Long Beach, 6-4, and Cal State Fullerton, 11-8.

The two wins improved UCSB's record to 14-5 for the season and moved the Gauchos up to sixth in the national rankings, setting up Saturday's showdown with San Jose State, the nation's top-ranked team, in the UCSB campus pool. San Jose and UCSB are the only undefeated teams in Pacific Coast Athletic Association play.

The Gauchos, now sporting a 4-0 PCAA mark, evened Rowland's record against Cal State Long Beach at 6-6, picking up their third victory in their last four meetings with the 49ers.

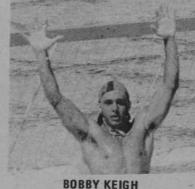

Long Beach, the fourth place finishers in the NCAA finals last vear, entered the game with a sixth place rating nationally and fought the Gauchos to a 2-2 half time score.

UCSB finally gained a 5-4 advantage after three periods and iced the victory with another goal in the final quarter.

Rowland cited junior Rick Rosenquist for his play. Rosenquist, who scored two field best game of his career, according to his coach.

Goalie Bobby Keigh also turned in a stellar performance as he came in at halftime to make six saves and block a penalty shot.

The Gaucho defensive game was at its best as UCSB allowed Long Beach only a single field goal in the first quarter and then shut the 49ers out from the field through the final three periods. Long Beach scored its other three goals on penalty shots, while the Gauchos were able to score five goals from the field.

Cal State Fullerton, the third place finisher in the NCAA finals last year, not only lost its seventh place rating nationally, but was totally eliminated from any consideration for an at-large berth in this year's nationals after losing to the Gauchos.

Intramural 'B's' buzz toward finale

Though the "A" league teams in IM flag football are usually the ones gaining the most attention during the latter part of the season, one should not forget the 12 "B" leagues and the tremendous pennant races they are fighting.

A quick glance at the "B" leagues shows the following: four teams in the Butkus league are fighting for play-off berths. At this time the Regurgitated Feces are on top with a 5-1 record, but Sister Mary and the Mudsharks are close behind with identical 4-1 tallies. The Nunez Raiders are not yet out of contention with their 4-2 record. Watch out for an exciting finish in this league!

In the Chapple league Anomoly Acres is running

Titans for the next two periods with the lead changing hands five times. The score was tied at 8-8 after three periods.

Freshman Greg Carey, a high school All-American at Fullerton's Sunny Hills High, celebrated his homecoming by exploding for three field goals in the final period. Carey scored a total of five goals in the game.

Keigh and Don Randall shared goaltending duties in the fourth.

away with the title, holding a 6-0 record. The Annapurna their unblemished record thus "B's" are the only team with a chance to tie the Acres as they sport a 4-1 record, but Anomoly Acres have only one game to play: Wednesday, Nov. 8 when they take on the Hole In The Wall Gang."

Sabado Tarde Asylum, in the Dawson league also has a 6-0 tally, having already handed the second place Kumsquats (5-1) their only loss. Looks like the Asylum has just about wrapped up the Dawson league.

PTM vs. FLA (5-1) are hoping the Reds (3-1-1) can knock off the high flying Magoon's Platton (6-0) on Thursday, Nov. 9. If not, the Platoon cinches the league title.

the Titans.

Collins, who shut out Long Beach's leading scorer-Don Watson-the previous evening, came back to shut out Fullerton's top scorer-Jack Simon.

Rowland was impressed with

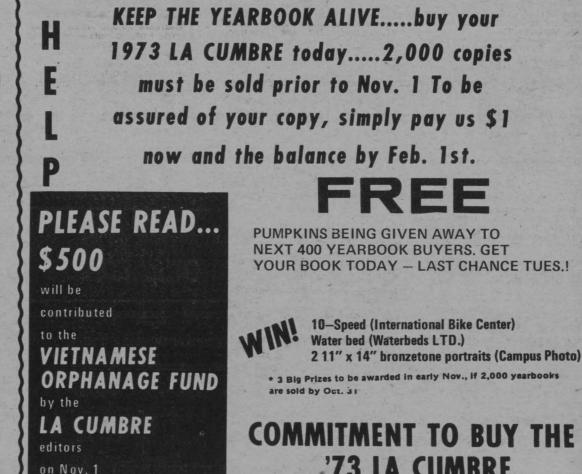

Zone Z (6-0) has maintained far, but on Thursday, Nov. 9 (a big day for "B" football) they come up against White Blood (5-1), who is currently tied with the Handelstash Mushbars (5-1) for second place in the Felix league. This could prove to be one of the best "B" league finishes, should the White Blood upset Zone Z.

In the Gunther league, EK's Freaks (5-1) moved into undisputed first place, as (3-2-1) Annapurna upset previously undefeated BFD's last Friday 7-6. This leaves BFD's with a 4-1 record, but they still have a good shot at their league's title.

Watch tomorrows NEXUS for the rest of the "B" league action wrap up.

quarter and were able to shut out Collins, praising him for his vital goals in each game as well as his defensive play, and felt that with this vast improvement over the past weeks, Collins has a shot at a starting spot against San Jose State.
